Workshops for Teachers

Helping teachers and schools align instructional practices to support the NM STEM Ready! Science Standards

Explora's workshops immerse participants in thought-provoking, science-rich experiences. We support teachers to incorporate the hands-on, inquiry rich experiences that are at the heart of the NM STEM Ready! Science Standards. Explora Teacher Workshops involve participants in fun, active exploration of physical materials while equipping educators with ready-to-implement resources and ideas. The Explora approach to teaching and learning also fosters workforce skills of the future: critical thinking, cooperative learning, creativity, communication, and innovation.

Explora Workshops Include:

- Makey Makey® Workshops

Learn how to program and use Makey Makey®, an electronic invention kit that inspires people to find creative ways to interact with their computers and their environment.

- NEW! Making and Tinkering as a Way of Knowing - Coming in late Fall 2018

This brand new workshop will guide participants in design/build strategies that can be used in maker spaces and STEM labs. Educators will gain skills and experience in integrating engineering with art and design through the practice of making.

Ask about customizing this workshop to align with your makerspace.*

- Teaching strategies that incorporate Science Practices

Including “Discovery Based Learning” and “Ice Ball Inquiry” Workshops

- Early Childhood Teacher and Provider Workshops

Facilitated by State-approved Early Childhood Trainers, these workshops are designed to inspire confidence in exploring science topics in the early childhood classroom and provide participants with a Continuing Education Certificate. Science and literacy are integrated together in each workshop.

Cost: Starting at $320 for 2 hours for up to 20 participants.

Workshops can be customized to meet your staff's needs. Half days and full days are available.
