2	Materials include effective instruction for all aspects of foundational reading (including distributed practice.)
3	Fluency is a focus of instructional materials. Materials include routines and guidance to monitor the consolidation of skills as students are learning them.
4	Materials offer assessment opportunities that measure progress in foundations in reading, writing, speaking, and listening.
	Fluency
5	Content Reading selections (read-aloud K-1) facilitate accurate, confident and independent reading.

6	Reading selections represent a balance of literature and informational texts. They are high quality, authentic texts worth reading and re-reading across multiple days and lessons and can be used for addressing multiple content standards at grade level.
7	Materials include sufficient practice to achieve accuracy and a variety of specific fluency building techniques supported by research.
Text Selection and Range of Texts: Texts are worthy of students' time and attention (of quality, rigorous, and at the right text complexity for grade level, student, and task).
8	Materials reflect the genres and text characteristics that are specifically required by the standards at each grade level band (e.g., informational texts, narratives, poetry, plays, speeches, scientific and historical documents).
9	Materials contain a sequence or collection of anchor texts of grade-level complexity that are selected for close reading and that build knowledge systematically through reading, writing, listening and speaking about the text. (Anchor texts provide opportunities for students to continuously return to the text(s) in order to conduct deep analyses and collect evidence for greater understanding of texts.)
Text Selection – Quality of Texts: High-quality texts are worth reading closely and exhibit exceptional craft and thought and/or provide useful information.
10	Materials provide content-rich, well-crafted texts that represent the most authentic literature and informational texts of varied genres and subject matter, representing the best of what is available. (e.g., classics, contemporary, sciences, humanities, social studies, cultural studies, etc.)
11	Informational texts offer a variety of informational text structures (e.g. headings, bold print) and provide a variety of text types (e.g., speeches, editorials, newspaper articles, essays, literary nonfiction, seminal US and foundational documents).
Text-Dependent and Text-Specific Questions: Questions in the materials are high-quality text-dependent and text-specific questions. The overwhelming majority of these questions are text-specific and draw student attention to the particulars in the text.
12	Materials provide text-dependent questions and tasks that require use of textual evidence, including supporting valid inferences from the text.
13	Materials contain a well-sequenced set of text-dependent/text-specific questions that integrate skills to demonstrate deeper understanding of the text.

14	Materials provide questions and tasks that assess the depth and complexity of analytical thinking required by the standards at each grade-level band.
15	Questions and tasks cultivate students' abilities to ask and answer questions based on the text.
16	Materials provide opportunities for students to build knowledge through close reading of specific texts (including read-aloud).
17	Reading strategies support comprehension of specific texts and focus on building knowledge.
18	Materials provide questions and tasks that support students in unpacking the academic language (vocabulary and syntax) prevalent in complex texts.
Scaffolding and Supports
19	Writing opportunities for students are prominent and varied.
20	Materials provide all students, including those who read below grade level, with extensive opportunities to encounter and comprehend grade-level complex text as required by the standards (e.g., build background knowledge, sequence questions, structural supports, strategies that scaffold).
21	Materials provide real-world activities for student practice with natural language (e.g. mock interviews, presentations).
22	Materials assess students at a variety of knowledge levels (Bloom's, Depth of Knowledge, etc.) centered on grade level texts aligned and measured against the CCSS expectations.
