History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions. 8.82. Use data to describe demographic shifts as a consequence of the Civil War and Reconstruction.

ADD: Investigate the "Buffalo Soldiers" in the West and their role in the control of Indigenous Peoples."

Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.

Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.84. Investigate the causes and effects of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture that are associated with immigration and migration. ← "by different groups, ethnicities, religious affiliations, etc."
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.85. Analyze the benefits and challenges that are associated with rapidly growing urban areas as a result of industrialization.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.86. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within the United States during time periods of mass immigration.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.87. Analyze the development of the women's suffrage movement over time and its legacy. 8.88. Make personal connections to immigration stories and experiences-- both in the past and present
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.89. Examine both sides in debate or academic discussion of politics in response to immigration. ← "various perspectives or"

ADD: Compare and contrast the movement to abolish slavery and the movement for women's suffrage."

"various perspectives or"

Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identify

- 8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

DRAFT - PRELIMINARY COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS Civics

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Civ.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Civ.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Civ.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Civ.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose. ● 9-12.Civ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Civ.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Civ.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

ADD: Evaluate the cross-cultural credibility of experts from one culture evaluating material from another culture.

ADD: "Reflect and act upon their knowledge, inquiry skills and civic dispositions to become inform advocates for social justice and human rights in an inclusive and equitable society in their classrooms, schools, communities and their interconnected worlds."

[Note that this proposed Inquiry Standard is taken directly from the National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, adopted in 2017 by the National Council for the Social Studies (<https://www.socialstudies.org/standards/national-standards-preparation-social-studies-teachers>), particularly Core Competency Standards 4 and 5.]

High School Civics
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able  ADD: "Explore the work of one or more effective civil society, non-governmental organization (NGO), evaluating reasons for and limits of their effectiveness."
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.13. Distinguish the powers and responsibilities of local, state, indigenous, national, and international civic and political institutions. ● 9-12.Civ.14. Develop claims about the purpose, processes, strengths, and weaknesses of the U.S. government. ● 9-12.Civ.15. Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time. ● 9-12.Civ.16. Analyze the role of groups without formal decision-making power in influencing change in the U.S. government. ● 9-12.Civ.17. Evaluate multiple sources and cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy. "human rights" ● 9-12.Civ.18. Investigate relationships among governments, civil societies, and economic markets. "in diverse regions of the world." ● 9-12.Civ.19. Distinguish historical and current types and systems of government in the U.S. and abroad. ● 9-12.Civ.20. Use data and evidence from multiple perspectives related to federal policy toward Indigenous groups to develop an understanding of Indigenous/U.S. relations over time "; compare with the experiences of Indigenous groups within other nation states." ● 9-12.Civ.21. Evaluate the way America's founding principles and constitutional structures have influenced initiatives and revisions to foreign policy over time. ", including the U.S. promotion of global human rights." ● 9-12.Civ.22. Research multiple sources to think critically about how the U.S. should conduct itself in international relations "and how International standards should affect U.S. domestic policy."
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.23. Evaluate procedures for making governmental decisions at the local, state, national, and international levels in terms of the civic purposes achieved. "and humanitarian" ● 9-12.Civ.24. Evaluate sources to determine how people use and challenge local, state, national, and international laws, to address a variety of public issues ", advocate for their own interests and promote fairness, equity and social justice." ● 9-12.Civ.25. Evaluate public policies in terms of intended and unintended outcomes and related consequences. ● 9-12.Civ.26. Analyze historical, contemporary, and emerging means of changing societies, promoting the common good and protecting rights "civil and human rights" ● 9-12.Civ.27. Evaluate the US justice system over time and its impacts on policy, society, economics, and individual rights. ● 9-12.Civ.28. Explain the unique features and processes of New Mexico's constitution.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.29. Evaluate the contributions of New Mexico’s diverse populations to it’s governmental structure and outcomes. 9-12.Civ.30. Investigate challenges and opportunities within and between different government entities in New Mexico.
--	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.31. Analyze the impact and the appropriate roles of personal interests and perspectives on the application of civic virtues, democratic principles, constitutional rights, and human rights. [[These terms need to be defined at some point.]] 9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels. “, fairness and empathy” 9-12.Civ.33. Apply civic dispositions and democratic principles when working with others. “for” 9-12.Civ.34. Analyze founding documents and their impact on national unity over time. 9-12.Civ.35. Evaluate the tensions between personal interests, different cultural groups, and civic responsibilities or the common good overtime. “ group interests within”
---------------------------------------------------------------	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

ADD: “Develop a personal understanding of the Constitution's identified governmental purpose “to promote the general welfare.”

High School Civics (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------

Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.36. Participate in civil discourse to promote greater understanding around historical, contemporary, and future opportunities and obstacles. “, demonstrating respect for others with different perspectives.” 9-12.Civ.37. Use historical data and evidence related to various actors’ interests and motivations to determine their influence on contemporary issues. 9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted overtime and how they currently shape policy debates. 9-12.Civ.39. Develop strategies for evaluating multiple perspectives about current events, and policy issues. 9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them. 9-12.Civ.41. Apply an effective questioning strategy to evaluate sources intended to inform the public, and consider the effects of choices made by media organizations (including internet social platforms), on elections and social movements. “various” 9-12.Civ.42. Evaluate sources and determine potential bias in the media and how that impacts government decision-making. “. beliefs. values and cultural perspectives” 9-12.Civ.43. Evaluate the effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society. 9-12.Civ.44. Analyze rights and obligations of citizens in the United States.
-------------------------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

[[Please remember that under the U.S. Constitution, both citizens and non-citizens have certain rights and responsibilities. See Bill of Rights, 14th Amendment and laws applying to “persons”.]

ADD: “Employ human rights principles and concepts to formulate strategies to redress historic inequities and heal their continued effects.”

ADD: “Analyze rights and obligations of citizens when situated within the United States.”

- 9-12.Civ.45. Critique leadership strategies through past and present examples of change-makers.
- 9-12.Civ.46. Plan and demonstrate some ways in which an active citizen can effect change in the community, state, nation, or world.
- 9-12.Civ.47. Evaluate citizens' and institutions' effectiveness in addressing social and political problems at the local, state, Indigenous, national, and/or international government.
- 9-12.Civ.48. Take informed action to improve your community.

“, build a more inclusive and equitable society, advance social justice and promote human rights.”
Please note that this language is drawn directly from the National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, adopted in 2017 by the National Council for the Social Studies. Teacher education programs seeking [national recognition of their social studies program through CAEP are required to use these standards. (https://www.socialstudies.org/standards).]

DRAFT - PRE FINAL COPY

HS Economics

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Econ.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Econ.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	ADD: "Explore differences in expert opinions referenced, including differences in cultural positionality." <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Econ.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Econ.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.Econ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Econ.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Econ.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

ADD: "Explore the concept of "fairness" as it applies to economic analysis and decisionmaking."

High School Economics

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making

- 9-12.Econ.13. Apply understanding of economic concepts and systems to analyze decision-making and the interactions between consumers, business, government, and societies.
- 9-12.Econ.14. Gather and evaluate sources to explain the relationship between economic decisions and environmental consequences.
- 9-12.Econ.15. Use cost-benefit analysis and/or marginal analysis to evaluate an economic issue.
- 9-12.Econ.16. Evaluate how economic principles influence choices and can produce varied outcomes for different individuals or groups
- 9-12.Econ.17. Explain how and why people make choices to improve their economic well-being.
- 9-12.Econ.18. Evaluate the market value of income earned through wages and other activities associated with saving, and investing.
- 9-12.Econ.19. Compare the costs and benefits of saving, using credit, and or making certain types of financial investments.
- 9-12.Econ.20. Evaluate how and why individuals choose to accept risk, reduce risk, or transfer risk to others.

Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models

- 9-12.Econ.21. Analyze the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services.
- 9-12.Econ.22. Evaluate economic theories for their compatibility with democracy.
- 9-12.Econ.23. Compare the advantages and disadvantages of major economic systems found around the world.
- 9-12.Econ.24. Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.
- 9-12.Econ.25. Use economic data to evaluate the positive and negative aspects of American capitalism in relationship to other economic systems.
- 9-12.Econ.25. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico.
- 9-12.Econ.26. Critique the impact of globalization on New Mexico and its citizens.
- 9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities.

ADD: Explore the causative and consequential economic factors that promote or mitigate inequality in local, national and global communities.”

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.28. Evaluate opportunities for economic diversification that can significantly impact state and local conditions ← "and conditions within neighboring Indigenous nations."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.29. Explain how buyers and sellers interact to create markets and market structures. 9-12.Econ.30. Evaluate how a variety of factors and conditions in a market determine price and the allocation of scarce goods and resources. 9-12.Econ.31. Evaluate the role played by competition in the market. 9-12.Econ.32. Evaluate the role of financial institutions in a market economy. 9-12.Econ.33. Analyze the role of money in the economy. 9-12.Econ.34. Critique specific government policies/regulations initiated to improve market outcomes and the consequences, both intended and unintended experienced by individuals, business, communities, and states. 9-12.Econ.35. Generate possible explanations for a government role in markets when market inefficiencies exist. 9-12.Econ.36. Evaluate the causes and implications of market failures. 9-12.Econ.37. Explain how governments establish the rules and institutions in which markets operate at the local, state, tribal, national and international levels. 9-12.Econ.38. Use economic indicators and data to analyze the health of the national economy in relation to other countries. 9-12.Econ.39. Evaluate how fiscal and monetary policy choices have economic consequences for different stakeholders in a variety of economic conditions. ← "and affect the overall equity of the system." 9-12.Econ.40. Evaluate foreign and domestic issues related to United States economic growth overtime. 9-12.Econ.41. Explain the effect of advancements in technology and training on economic growth and standards of living.

Economics 9. Global Economy

- 9-12.Econ.42. Explain how current globalization trends and policies affect economic growth, labor, markets, rights of citizens, the environment, and resource and income distribution in different nations.
- 9-12.Econ.43. Explain how economic conditions and policies in one nation increasingly affect economic conditions and policies in other nations.
- 9-12.Econ.44. Evaluate how geography, demographics, industry structure, and the rules of economic institutions influence a nation's economic development ← “and the extent of its economic equity.”
- 9-12.Econ.45. Analyze why a country might participate in global trade.
- 9-12.Econ.46. Connect how trade agreements between nations have short and long-term effects.
- 9-12.Econ.47. Construct an argument about how global interdependence impacts individuals, institutions, and or societies based on documented evidence.

DRAFT - PRELIMINARY COPY

HS Geography

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Geo.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Geo.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
ADD: "Seek expertise from diverse cultural and historical perspectives when examining geographic claims in areas occupied by different groups."
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Geo.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Geo.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.Geo.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Geo.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Geo.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

High School Geography
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.13. Analyze and evaluate the characteristics and purposes and uses of geographic tools, knowledge, and skills. ● 9-12.Geo.14. Create maps to display and explain the spatial patterns of culture and environment. ● 9-12.Geo.15. Analyze and interpret geographic characteristics of cultures, economies, and political systems. ● 9-12.Geo.16. Interpret geographic representations to evaluate and explain changes over time. ● 9-12.Geo.17. Apply geographic knowledge and geospatial skills to interpret the past and present in order to make informed decisions.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.18. Analyze and explain the reciprocal relationship between physical, geographical locations and the patterns and processes humans create within them. ● 9-12.Geo.19. Explain and evaluate the process of place-making and the development of place-based identity. ● 9-12.Geo.20. Identify, define, and explain the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.21. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of human movement (migration, immigration, emigration) and settlement patterns at the local, national, and global scale. ● 9-12.Geo.22. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time. ● 9-12.Geo.23. Describe, analyze, and compare how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time. ● 9-12.Geo.24. Analyze and predict how location, place, and region impact the evolution of human perspectives and identities. ● 9-12.Geo.25. Identify, evaluate, and predict how particular historical events and developments shape human processes and systems in a given place/region over time. ● 9-12.Geo.26. Predict future social, political, economic, cultural, spiritual and environmental opportunities, and obstacles associated with movement, population, decision-making, and perspectives in a given place or region.

ADD: "Explore how different historic groups have interpreted and engaged with the geographic features of the same region(s)."

High School Geography (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 13. Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 9-12.Geo.27. Make reasoned ethical judgments about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determine appropriate ways to respond.
- 9-12.Geo.28. Analyze shifting U.S. government environmental policies and regulations in response to changing human environment interactions.
- 9-12.Geo.29. Evaluate the consequences of human-made and natural catastrophes on global trade, politics, and human migration.
- 9-12.Geo.30. Assess the reciprocal relationship between physical environment and culture within local, national, and global scales ← “over time and in the contemporary period.”
- 9-12.Geo.31. Evaluate how economic globalization and the scarcity of resources contribute to conflict and cooperation within and among countries.
- 9-12.Geo.32. Analyze how the forces of cooperation and conflict within and among people, nations, and empires influence the division and control of Earth’s surface and resources.
- 9-12.Geo.33. Assess how social, economic, political, and environmental developments at global, national, regional and/or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS New Mexico History

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.NMH.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.NMH.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.NMH.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.NMH.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.NMH.9. adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.NMH.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.NMH.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

ADD: "Apply cross-cultural awareness in exploring, making decisions, and taking actions in regard to issues arising from the historical experiences of various groups within New Mexico."

Theme 1: Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.13. Connect various disputes that occur as a result of Article X being stricken from the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.  ← ADD: "Study the Protocol of Queretaro and evaluate its effect in securing Mexican acceptance of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and the consequences of its non-ratification by the U.S. Senate."
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.14. Determine why it was necessary for the U.S. to purchase the land acquired by the Gadsden Purchase, instead of obtaining it by warfare.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.15. Examine the different perspectives from the peoples of New Mexico, and the United States at the time of annexation. 9-12.NMH.16. Dissect the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and evaluate how the different people of New Mexico were addressed and impacted by the document.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.17. Examine the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.  ← ADD: "Examine differences in the way the Mexican Constitution and the U.S. Constitution defined "Citizen," and the implications of those differences for Indigenous people and persons of African descent."

Theme 2: New Mexico's Territorial Period
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.19. Examine the changes in the Plains of New Mexico as irrigation and cattle ranches expand into the territory.  ADD: "Examine the impact of railroad construction and the railroad system on the conflicts between the United States and the Navajo People."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.20. Describe the introduction of the Chinese population into New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.21. Assess the changes of the land and society initiated by the railroad system, along with the immigrant population it brought to the New Mexican territory. ● 9-12.NMH.22. Explain how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.23. Examine the causes and effects of the Civil War, and the battles that ensued within New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.24. Explain how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.25. Probe the beginnings of the Native American boarding school system, and the ramifications that it had on Indigenous communities in New Mexico and abroad.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA.

Theme 3: Statehood and Functions of State/Tribal Governments
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.28. Compare and contrast the similarities and differences between the three branches of the federal and state governments.
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.29. Analyze the requirements for statehood. 9-12.NMH.30. Debate whether or not New Mexico's constitution supports bilingualism.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.31. Define sovereignty, and distinguish ways in which the different Native American tribes in New Mexico conduct governmental affairs.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.32. Evaluate efforts from the people of New Mexico to become a state, and analyze outside perspectives to the entrance of New Mexico as a state.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.33. Contrast the rights given to people that live within a territory vs. a state.

ADD: "Explore how 'tribal sovereignty' has been interpreted over time by Indigenous peoples, the United States government and the world community, and how differences in understanding of sovereignty continue today."

Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.34. Discuss the sequence of events that led to the Great Depression and the implementation of New Deal Programs in New Mexico.

"including the efficacy of these programs for different communities within New Mexico."

Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to: [There are positive as well as negative stories here, particularly in regard to the Japanese residents of Gallup, NM and other communities who were not Interned, but who continued to participate in their communities throughout WWII.]
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.35. Summarize the impacts that artists have had on our state, and why so many artists choose to live in New Mexico.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.36. Interpret data/evidence to conduct periodization of key events and contributions by key people to the events that occurred during the early 20th century. ADD: "Explore the history of Japanese internment in New Mexico during WWII, both in regard to Japanese residents of New Mexico and Japanese persons from other states interned in New Mexico."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.37. Analyze the causes and effects of the Dust Bowl in New Mexico, and how it changed or eliminated communities in our state. 9-12.NMH.38. Demonstrate ability to use relevant historical evidence to synthesize information regarding the impact of nuclear weapons on people around the world. "including the effects of nuclear weapons production on diverse peoples within New Mexico."
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.39. Demonstrate historical argumentation by using various resources and perspectives to show the impact of World War II on the people of New Mexico, and the impact that our citizens had on the war "and resident populations"
[Although the Indian Citizenship Act was passed in 1924, tribally affiliated Indigenous people in New Mexico and other states did not enjoy full "citizenship," including voting and attendance of children in state public schools until after litigation brought by returning Indigenous veterans after WWII; yet their contributions to the war effort were considerable.]
Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.40. Summarize how the U.S. and Soviet Union emerge from World War II as superpowers, and articulate the difference between communism and capitalism.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.41. Identify the military bases and weapons testing sites in New Mexico.

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.42. Analyze the pros and cons of New Mexico's role in the production of uranium fueled weapons built during the Cold War ← ", including the impacts on Indigenous and traditional communities and their members."
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.43. Identify the beginnings of the arms race between the Soviet Union and the U.S. 9-12.NMH.44. Uncover what types of activities took place, and what products were produced at Los Alamos National Laboratory and Sandia National Lab during the Cold War and beyond.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.45. Give examples of how New Mexicans played an active role in military service during the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

Theme 6: Civil Rights ← "and Human Rights" [PLEASE!]		[Don't overlook Reies Tijerina's activities at this time.]
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:	"traditional land grant communities and"
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.46. Demonstrate contextualization and interpretation of key events that took place within Native American communities during the Civil Rights Era. 	ADD: "Examine how the global movement for Human Rights, and the United States' role in promoting universal human rights through the United Nations and other regional and global efforts affected the course of the struggle for Civil Rights in the United States."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using 9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.49. Compare organizations engaged in Civil Rights work. 9-12.NMH.50. Demonstrates interpretation of critical changes in New Mexico's segregation laws 	"and laws regarding access to public services."

Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.51. Illustrate the ways in which the movie and technology industries contribute to our state's economy. 9-12.NMH.52. Connect the activities of the federal government in the state of New Mexico during both the Cold War and WWII, to our current economy. 9-12.NMH.53. Identify the main sources of income for tribes. 	"the various Indigenous nations within and adjacent to the state of New Mexico and their members."
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.54. Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry.

Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.55. Give examples of the different types of sites and activities that would make people want to tour aspects of our state.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.56. Analyze how New Mexicans maintain an agricultural industry being that we are one of the driest states in the country ← “including the practices and priorities of Indigenous and traditional agricultural communities in New Mexico.”

Theme 8: Resource Management and Mineral Resources in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.57. Use multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of how water management has changed over the centuries in New Mexico. 9-12.NMH.58. Develop an argument showing the importance of preserving historical sites and New Mexico’s resources.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.59. Appraise the value of New Mexico’s historical sites to our state’s culture ← “and to the Indigenous and traditional communities of New Mexico.”

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS U.S. History

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.US.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.US.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.US.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.US.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.US.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.US.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.US.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

", including experts within communities of color."

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of various groups whose experience of key historical events, their consequences and causality differ from the dominant narratives."

ADD: Explore how different groups interpret the problematic or beneficial nature of the same events, phenomena, occurrences and how different perspectives affect problem identification and proposed solutions.

Theme 1: U.S. Origins and Origin Stories

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.13. Examine the course and consequences of the Columbian Exchange. 9-12.US.14. Describe the evolution and short and long-term consequences of racialized labor and caste systems such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America. 9-12.US.15. Analyze how various Indigenous nations changed as a result of European settler colonialism. "military incursions and" "in the Americas" 9-12.US.16. Examine the involvement of Indigenous nations in the colonial wars and evaluate the consequences for their societies. "Explore" "various" [Do you mean the colonial wars in North America, or are you including colonial wars in Central and South America?]
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.17. Explain the ways that Indigenous nations expressed and transmitted their beliefs and values. 9-12.US.18. Compare and contrast the different ways in which Indigenous people have resisted, survived, and adapted to maintain their patterns of community life "and Indigenous national identity" 9-12.US.19. Compare and contrast the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism vs. classic colonialism.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.20. Explain the common elements of Indigenous societies. "of diverse Indigenous societies in the Americas." 9-12.US.21. Analyze facets of Indigenous social, political, and economic organization. "of the Americas" 9-12.US.22. Analyze relationships between Indigenous peoples and Spanish, English, French, and Dutch colonizers. 9-12.US.23. Examine the interactions between English colonizers and Indigenous peoples in the 13 Colonies.

[Be sure to explore the meaning of the term "classical colonialism." According to Wikipedia, "Historians often distinguish between various overlapping forms of colonialism, which they classify into four types: settler colonialism, exploitation colonialism, surrogate colonialism, and internal colonialism.", citing Healy, Roisin; Dal Lago, Enrico (2014). The Shadow of Colonialism on Europe's Modern Past. New York: Palgrave Macmillan. p. 126. ISBN 978-1-137-45075-3.]

[This is a well intentioned but culturally questionable performance standard. Given the diversity and complexity of Indigenous societies, from the Mayan to Akaskan, it is essentializing to talk about "common elements of Indigenous societies," other than the fact that they exist where they have been since before contact with settler colonizers.]

Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.24. Determine the importance and utility of rights versus responsibilities. ← “and rights versus privileges.” 9-12.US.25. Determine the characteristics of a revolution and evaluate the American Revolution as compared to the French and Haitian Revolutions. ← “and the various revolutions throughout the Americas in the 19th Century.”
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.26. Investigate the causes and effects of the Revolutionary War on diverse groups of people in the United States. 9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery. 9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans. ← “and women.”
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.30. Describe the Constitutional Convention, the roles of specific individuals, and their conflicts and compromises. 9-12.US.31. Explore the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States.

ADD: “Examine how these key ideals and principles have influenced ideas of the relationship between people and their government across the world.”

Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.32. Examine the short- and long-term impact of settlers, pioneers, frontiersman, and homesteaders on the United States and on sovereign Indigenous nations. ← “and on the other European nations with colonies in the area that became the United States.”

ADD: “Compare and contrast the process of separation of the 13 Colonies from Britain and the process that led to the creation of Canada as a separate nation.”

Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787-1876 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.33. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and short and long term effects of U.S. territorial expansion. ● 9-12.US.34. Examine the ways in which the United States acquired new territories, including purchases, annexation, treaties, and war. ● 9-12.US.35. Explain the importance of the Transportation Revolution of the 19th century. ● 9-12.US.36. Analyze the effects of industrial growth throughout antebellum America. ● 9-12.US.37. Describe the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural South, explain reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyze how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.38. Analyze the convergence of the expansion of colonialism through territorial acquisition and the expansion of chattel slavery in acquired territory. ● 9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants. ● 9-12.US.40. Explore forms of resistance, adaptation and cultural preservation practiced by enslaved and colonized peoples during this period. ● 9-12.US.41. Assess the impact of Federal policy towards Indigenous nations. ← “and individual citizens of Indigenous nations.”

ADD: “Examine responses of different groups and individuals in the United States to the laws upholding chattel slavery and requiring the return of escaped slaves, even when they escaped to non-slave-holding states.”

Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.42. Analyze the persistence of the “Lost Cause of the Confederacy” narrative and its long term effects. ● 9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a “war to free the slaves,” and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people.
Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.44. Analyze critical policies and events leading to the Civil War and connections among them. ● 9-12.US.45. Explain how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.46. Explore the similarities and differences between reform movements in the United States in the early to mid-19th century. ● 9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women and African Americans.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.48. Analyze major factors that determined the outcome of the Civil War.

"diverse narratives about the meaning of the Civil War, including"

Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.49. Evaluate the long-term consequences of the end of Reconstruction and the rise of Jim Crow on formerly enslaved people and their descendants. ● 9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.51. Analyze the short- and long-term effects of the end of the Civil War and Reconstruction period.
 ← ADD: "Examine the impact of the end of the Civil War on the settlement of the West, and on the relationship between the United States and the Indigenous nations in the American West."
Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865-1877 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.52. Explore African American economic, political, sociocultural (educational, artistic, literary) responses to emancipation and Reconstruction. ● 9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.54. Explore the efforts of the federal government and African Americans to forge a new political and social order after emancipation.
 ← "and civil society reformers"

Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.55. Examine immigration policy in the United States over time. ● 9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States. ● 9-12.US.57. Examine contemporary labor struggles and populist movements in the United States and around the world. ● 9-12.US.58. Explore the short- and long-term effects of the Jim Crow era on African Americans in both the North and the South ← “and on working people of all races.”
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.59. Explain the various causes of the Industrial Revolution. ● 9-12.US.60. Make connections among the important consequences of the Industrial Revolution. ● 9-12.US.61. Analyze social, political, and economic reasons groups migrated to and within the United States, including push and pull factors.
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.62. Evaluate the effects of the entry of women into the workforce after the Civil War and analyze women’s political organizations. ● 9-12.US.63. Analyze the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the Civil War and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native Peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women. ← “13th, 14th and 15th Amendments” ● 9-12.US.64. Examine the ways that the Great Migration changed America, exploring the ways that African Americans adapted and resisted.

Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.65. Determine the effectiveness of post colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule, "and the effect of disparities in global economic power on perpetuating the effects of colonial rule."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.66. Analyze the causes and course of the growing role of the United States in world affairs from the Civil War to World War I.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.67. Examine the ways in which art, journalism, literature, and cultural artifacts served as forms of resistance and contributed to the anti-imperialist movement^s. 9-12.US.68. Examine the legacy and evolution of turn of the century imperialism, including the short- and long-term effects in Latin America, Asia, and the Pacific. "by the U.S. and European countries"

Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.69. Examine the ethics of the suppression of civil liberties during times of conflict and war, past and present. "and the enduring consequences of such suppression." "and human rights" 9-12.US.70. Analyze the role of the United States in the world and the balance of foreign and domestic priorities. 9-12.US.71. Determine the utility or futility of war.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.72. Distinguish between the long-term causes and triggering events that led the United States into World War I. 9-12.US.73. Explain the course and significance of Woodrow Wilson's wartime diplomacy, including his Fourteen Points, the League of Nations, and the failure of the Versailles Treaty.

ADD: "Analyze how the ideologies of the Progressive Movement impacted Indigenous Peoples in the United States, particularly Indigenous families."

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.74. Evaluate major reform movements and reformers during the Progressive Era. ● 9-12.US.75. Evaluate the inclusivity and exclusivity of Progressive Era reform movements. ● 9-12.US.76. Analyze the campaign for, and the opposition to, women's suffrage in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. ● 9-12.US.77. Analyze the strategies of African Americans to achieve basic civil rights in the early 20th century. ● 9-12.US.78. Examine the role of colonial peoples, women, Indigenous peoples and African Americans during World War I.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.79. Explain what Progressivism meant in the early 20th century through the ideas, actions, and experiences of Progressive leaders ← "and through impacts on immigrants and communities of color." ● 9-12.US.80. Analyze the governmental policies of the Progressive Period, determine which problems they were designed to solve, and assess long and short-term effectiveness. ● 9-12.US.81. Analyze the role and conduct of the United States during the war ← "World War I"

Theme 9: Conflicts and Transitions, 1920–1929
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.82. Explore the ongoing conflict between traditionalism and modernity in American society today, making connections to the movements, ideas and experiences of the past. ● 9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany. ← "the 1920s"
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.84. Assess how new technology in transportation, communication, and finance impacted American society. ← "in this period"
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.85. Explore the arts, entrepreneurship, and philanthropy of the Harlem Renaissance and its connections to the Great Migration. ● 9-12.US.86. Evaluate the passage of the 19th amendment from the perspective of diverse groups in American society including white women, African American women, Native Americans, and Asian Americans ← ", and Mexican Americans." ● 9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.88. Examine the conflict between traditionalism and modernity as manifested in the major political and economic events in the first two decades of the 20th century.

← ADD: "Explore the various causes that led to the Great Depression in the United States."

Theme 10: Great Depression and The New Deal, 1929–1941

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.89. Assess the degree to which New Deal programs have been maintained or dismantled over time.
- 9-12.US.90. Evaluate the impact of New Deal programs and policies on diverse groups of people in America, including African Americans and Indigenous peoples.
- 9-12.US.91. Determine the effectiveness of the United States government in averting and responding to similar economic disasters.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.92. Describe the multiple causes and consequences of the global depression of the 1930s.
- 9-12.US.93. Assess the impact and legacy of New Deal relief, recovery, and reform programs.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.94. Examine the lives and experiences of Mexicans during the 1930s and the relationship of the United States to Mexico.

← "in the United States"

Theme 11: World War II

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period
- 9-12.US.96. Explore the ethics of and arguments for and against the use of nuclear weapons past and present.

← "leading up to and at the start of World War II."

- 9-12.US.97. Explore the legacy of “othering” in the United States, including boarding schools, internment camps, and detention centers.

ADD: “Explore the differences between the treatment of Japanese Americans and German Americans in the United States during World War II.”

Theme 11: World War II (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.98. Analyze the events that led to World War II, the major battles of the war and its consequences, and the conferences of Allied leaders following the war.
- 9-12.US.99. Explain the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the Holocaust.
- 9-12.US.100. Explain the reasons for American involvement in World War II and the key actions and events leading up to declarations of war against Japan and Germany.
- 9-12.US.101. Assess the social, political, and economic transformation of the United States during World War II.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.102. Evaluate the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals.
- 9-12.US.103. Examine the ways in which gender roles changed and stayed the same for women during the war.
- 9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia.

ADD A WHOLE SECTION: “Human Rights Post World War II: Explore the consequences of World War II for international and domestic support for human rights and humanitarian treatment. Evaluate the role of the United States in the creation of the United Nations, the development of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Nuremberg Principles and the 1949 expansion of the Geneva Conventions.”

Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.105. Examine the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America.
- 9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.

“and the economic forces that contributed to the CIA's presence.”

[The role of the United States in the establishment of the United Nations, the adoption of the Nuremberg Principles that guided the trial of the Nazi high command and the expansion of the Geneva Conventions is a powerful and positive aspect of the History of the United States, of OUR history! And, of course, Eleanor Roosevelt chaired the UN committee that drafted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Please do not ignore the American history of human rights and humanitarian law, particularly as they flourished in the period immediately after World War II.]

Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.107. Examine the factors that contributed to the Cold War. 9-12.US.108. Evaluate the policy of containment as a response by the United States to Soviet expansionist policies. 9-12.US.109. Analyze how U.S. foreign policy during the Cold War shaped conflicts in Asia and the Americas. 9-12.US.110. Analyze the roots of domestic communism and anti-communism in the 1950s, the origins and consequences of, and the resistance to McCarthyism “and the impact of “Red Scare” politics on various social, economic and political movements in the United States.”
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.111. Analyze the impact of the Vietnam War on the Vietnamese “, Cambodian and Laotian” people and on the United States. 9-12.US.112. Explore the impact of the Cold War on indigenous peoples around the world. 9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.114. Summarize the diplomatic and military policies on the War in Vietnam of Presidents Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon.

Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.115. Research and analyze issues related to race relations in the United States since the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. 9-12.US.116. Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO. 9-12.US.117. Evaluate the influence of 1960s cultural and artistic movements from past to present day.
History 15: Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.

[These sections are somewhat choppy and could be better integrated with each other and with their over-arching themes with minimal editing. These are extremely important areas for students to analyze and form inquiry-based and research-based conclusions regarding.]

Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.119. Analyze the origins, evolution, and goals of the African American Civil Rights Movement and Black Power Movement. 9-12.US.120. Analyze the causes, course, and impact on American politics and society of new social and political movements, including consideration of the role of protest, advocacy organizations, and active citizen participation.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.121. Evaluate accomplishments of the Civil Rights movement and how they served as a model for later feminist, disability, and gender rights movements of the 20th and 21st centuries. 9-12.US.122. Analyze the important policies and events that took place during the presidencies of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon.

ADD: Explore the intersection of the Civil Rights Movement with action within Indigenous communities, and non-Black communities of color."

"and strategies"

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people. 9-12.US.124. Examine the short- and long-term impacts of criminal justice policy implemented during the presidencies of Ronald Raegan and Bill Clinton. 9-12.US.125. Examine the push-pull relationship between progressivism and conservatism in America over time. 9-12.US.126. Evaluate whether the Cold War definitively ended in 1991.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.127. Analyze how communist economic policies and U.S.-sponsored resistance to Soviet military and diplomatic initiatives contributed to the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991.

ADD: "Examine the various meanings that different proponents and opponents have given to the terms "Conservatism," "Liberalism," "Progressivism," and other organizing terms and the impact of the use of these definitional categories on the political life of the United States."

[These sections are somewhat choppy and could be better integrated with each other and with their over-arching themes with minimal editing. These are extremely important areas for students to analyze and form inquiry-based and research-based conclusions regarding.]

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.128. Evaluate the significance of the 1990 American Disability Act. "Americans with Disabilities Act" 9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality. 9-12.US.130. Examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.131. Analyze the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics.

Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future. 9-12.US.133. Analyze the current state and health of American democracy and create an action plan to protect American democracy. "improve and maintain an inclusive, constitutional democracy in the United States." 9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present. "attitudes and policies, both positive and negative toward immigrants"
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. 9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.

ADD: "Explore the competing claims that surround defense of and challenges to gun rights as interpreted in the United States and in other developed countries."
 ADD: "Establish the rules of debate and discussion to facilitate an open, non-threatening, safe discussion of the appropriate relationship between the right to bear arms and other competing rights, particularly in regard to the use of various kinds of public spaces."

"persons of diverse races, genders, sexual orientations and the differently abled."

"to foster equity, advance social justice and promote human rights in the United States for all persons, including members of groups who have frequently experienced discrimination and been treated unfairly," [Refer to Standards 4 and 5 of the NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers (<https://www.socialstudies.org/standards/national-standards-preparation-social-studies-teachers>)]

Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.137. Analyze some of the major technological and social trends and issues of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.
- 9-12.US.138. Evaluate the effectiveness of the federal government's response to international terrorism in the 21st century.
- 9-12.US.139. Examine contemporary civil rights struggles.
- 9-12.US.140. Analyze US government policies to reduce climate disruption.
- 9-12.US.141. Compare and Contrast the response and plan of the US government during the Covid-19 pandemic with the AIDS epidemic and the 1918 influenza.

"and domestic"

"and human"

DRAFT - PREVIEW COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS World History

Sample Topics by Time Period	Sample Themes by Time Period
1300–1500: Global Encounters and Exchanges Grow (Topics may include but are not limited to Pueblo, Dine’ (Navajo), Apache, Seminole, Culhua-Mexica (Aztec), Maya, Arawak, Andean Civilization, Mali, Ethiopia, Great Zimbabwe, Swahili Coast, Byzantium, Medieval Scholasticism, European Exploration, Mongolian Empire, Ottoman Empire, Ming Dynasty, Asian Exploration, Trans-Saharan & Indian Ocean Slave Trade Networks, Black Death, Crusades, Divine Right of Kings, Mandate of Heaven, Arabic-Latin Translation)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Interregional system of communication, trade, and cultural exchange • Rise of the Mongol empire and its consequences for Eurasian peoples, 1200–1350 • Growth of states, towns, and trade in Sub-Saharan Africa between the 11th and 15th centuries • Patterns of crisis and recovery in Afro-Eurasia, 1300–1450 • Expansion of states and civilizations in the Americas, 1000–1500 • Major global trends from 1000–1500 CE
1450–1770: The First Global Age Emerges (Topics may include but are not limited to Fall of Constantinople, Reconquista, Inquisition, War of the Roses, Columbian Exchange, Ayiti (Taino), Tenochtitlan (Aztec), Cajamarca (Inca), Mestizo, Songhai Empire, African Diaspora, Safavid Empire, Renaissance, Julian v. Gregorian Calendar, Scientific Revolution, Protestant Reformation, Counter Reformation, Absolute Monarchies, Elizabethan Age, Glorious Revolution, Iroquois Confederacy, Enlightenment, Qing Dynasty, Tokugawa Shogunate, etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Transoceanic interlinking of all major regions of the world from 1450–1600 led to global transformations • European society experienced political, economic, and cultural transformations in an age of global intercommunication, 1450–1750 • Large territorial empires dominated much of Eurasia between the 16th and 18th centuries • Economic, political, and cultural interrelations among peoples of Africa, Europe, and the Americas, 1500–1750 • Transformations in Asian societies in the era of European expansion • Major global trends from 1450–1770
1750–1923: Revolution, Democratization, and New Empires Spread (Topics may include but are not limited to Industrial Revolutions, American Revolution, French Revolution, Romanticism, Napoleon, Latin American Revolutions, Monroe Doctrine, Mexican Independence, Unification of European Countries (Italy, Germany), Imperialism, Social Darwinism, Berlin Conference, Leopold and the Congo Genocide, Battle of Adwa, Suez Canal Construction, Boer Wars, Australian Frontier Wars, New Zealand Wars, Mughal Empire,	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Causes and consequences of political revolutions in the late 18th and early 19th centuries • Causes and consequences of the agricultural and industrial revolutions, 1700–1850 • Transformation of Eurasian societies in an era of global trade and rising European power, 1750–1870 • Patterns of nationalism, state-building, and social reform in Europe and the Americas, 1830–1914

Meiji Restoration, Opium Wars, Taiping Rebellion, Boxer Rebellion, Sepoy Rebellion, Russian Revolution, etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Patterns of global change in the era of Western military and economic domination, 1800–1914 • Major global trends from 1750–1923
1900–1980: Conflict & Self-Determination Expand (Topics may include but are not limited to Mexican Revolution, World War I, Armenian Genocide, 1918 Pandemic, Treaty of Versailles, Panama Canal, Global Great Depression, Nationalism, Japanese Empire, World War II, Shoah, Greek Civil War, Rape of Nanking, Chinese Revolution, Pinochet in Chile, Cuban Revolution, Asian Independence Movements, Nonviolent Resistance Movements, Sykes-Picot, Nation of Israel, Middle East Conflicts, Partition of India, U.S. Civil Rights Movement, African Independence Movements, Fall of Saigon, Cambodian Genocide, Tiananmen Square, League of Nations, Cold War)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Causes and global consequences of World War I • Search for peace and stability in the 1920s and 1930s • Causes and global consequences of World War II • Major global trends from 1900 to the end of World War II
1945–Future: Global Interconnections Accelerate (Topics may include but are not limited to Nuclear Age, United Nations, Universal Declaration of Human Rights, NATO, Space Age, Apartheid, Fall of Soviet Union, Globalization, Information Age, Social Media, Nationalism, Global Influence (U.S.A, China, Russia), International Unions (EU, AU, USAN, ACD), Economic Growth of the Global South, War on Drugs, War on Terror, Rwandan Genocide, September 11th, Afghanistan War, Iraq War, Arab Spring, Great Recession, Equity Movements, Climate Change, Indigenous Environmentalism, Green Revolution, Greenbelt Movement, Paris Agreement, Covid-19 Pandemic, WHO, NAFTA/CUSMA, etc)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Post-World War II reconstruction, new international power relations, and colonial empires break-up • Search for community, stability, and peace in an Interdependent world • Major global trends since World War II • Long-term changes and recurring patterns in world history

“The expansion of international humanitarian law in the 20th Century, including the Nuremberg principles, expansion of the Geneva Conventions, and various treaties seeking to limit anti-civilian weapons such as land mines, nuclear weapons, etc.;

“The founding of the United Nations, development and adoption of the UN Charter, and the development of global agencies addressing global security, hunger, refugees, health, environment, human rights and international cooperation;

“The historical, geographical, social and political factors leading to a broader global consensus on fundamental human rights which should be respected by all nations and their citizens.”

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas in world history.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.2. Evaluate the credibility of sources from a range of media (print, internet, audio, visual) by examining origin, author, context, content, and corroborative value. ● 9-12.WH.3. Gather relevant information from credible sources representing a wide range of views and note inconsistencies in the information.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.4. Develop claims and analyze counterclaims about the significance of historical events using evidence that draws directly and substantively from multiple sources. ● 9-12.WH.5. Analyze evidence to detect inconsistencies within the evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.6. Present arguments and explanations that reach a range of audiences using print and oral technologies (e.g., posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, maps) and digital technologies (e.g., Internet, social media, and digital documentary).
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.7. Evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems. ● 9-12.WH.8. Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems. ● 9-12.WH.9. Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts.

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of diverse groups whose experience of key historical events, their consequences and causality differ from dominant narratives."
 ADD: Explore how different groups interpret the problematic or beneficial nature of the same events, phenomena, occurrences and how different perspectives affect problem identification and proposed solutions."

High School World History
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.10. Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems. ● 9-12.WH.11. Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts. ● 9-12.WH.12. Evaluate methods people use to create, change, expand, or oppose systems of power/authority.
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.13. Evaluate the impact of global interconnectedness on international economic stability and growth. ● 9-12.WH.14. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.15. Analyze and explain the reciprocal relationship between physical, geographical locations and the patterns and processes humans create within them.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.16. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.17. Assess how social, economic, political, and environmental developments at global, national, regional, and/or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures. ADD: Examine the 17 Sustainable Development Goals adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 2015 as goals for building a more sustainable and equitable world; consider their applicability to sustainability, development and equity concerns of Americans, including Indigenous Americans. Give particular attention to the applicability of the Sustainable Development Goals to issues facing New Mexico.”

High School World History (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.18. Identify significant transformative moments in world history, analyze the reasons behind their transformative nature, and explain how they continue to shape contemporary global interactions. ● 9-12.WH.19. Trace political, intellectual, religious, artistic, technological, economic, and social developments in historical periods as well as within individual societies. ● 9-12.WH.20. Identify patterns of continuity and change over time in world history, focusing on patterns both within and between historical eras. ● 9-12.WH.21. Examine how historical events and developments were shaped by unique circumstances of time and place as well as broader historical contexts. ● 9-12.WH.22. Identify individuals, groups, and events in New Mexico's history that have influenced or were influenced by events in world history.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.23. Identify and evaluate multiple causes and effects of historical events within world history. ● 9-12.WH.24. Distinguish between long-term and short-term causes in developing historical interpretations. ● 9-12.WH.25. Identify contemporary global issues that influence or are influenced by New Mexicans.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.26. Analyze and evaluate the values and limitations of primary and secondary sources of information (including digital) with attention to the source, its context, reliability, and usefulness. ● 9-12.WH.27. Effectively use and integrate evidence from a variety of diverse sources in order to evaluate and develop historical claims. ● 9-12.WH.28. Synthesize historical information to create new understandings.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.29. Use a variety of source materials to compare and contrast treatments of the same topic. ● 9-12.WH.30. Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, regional, racial, ethnic, class, and gender. ● 9-12.WH.31. Analyze and evaluate multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups.

ADD: "Trace the history of the development of fundamental principles of human rights in diverse human societies throughout history. Explore concepts of fundamental fairness as they have arisen in traditional and historic societies, and exist across a broad historical, cultural and geographical spectrum, including standards of conduct within various Indigenous societies of the Americas, ancient Middle Eastern and Mediterranean societies (e.g. the Code of Hammurabi, the Torah), India (the Upanishads), the laws of republican Rome, the Analects of Confucius, the Magna Carta, etc."

ADD: "Examine the circumstances surrounding World War II, the Holocaust, the restoration of democratic governments, the ending of colonialism by the West, etc. that contributed to the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Nuremberg Principles created by the Allies for the trial of the Nazi high command, the expansion of the Geneva Conventions, etc. Evaluate how those principles have survived and evolved to the present day."

High School World History (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.WH.32. Use historical thinking skills to evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems.
- 9-12.WH.33. Investigate cultural and historical developments within societies with attention to belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology.
- 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, ~~reactions, and long-term effects of oppression~~, persistence of stereotypes, reactions, response and resistance of diverse groups to domination by an occupying power, and the short and long-term effects of oppressive and inequitable power relationships."

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History

- 9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.
- 9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.
- 9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.ECI.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection ● 9-12.ECI.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.ECI.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.ECI.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose. ● 9-12.ECI.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.ECI.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.ECI.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

"while evaluating cultural awareness and bias of "experts" who operate outside the culture of society being studied."

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of various groups whose experience of key global phenomena, their consequences and causality differ from the dominant narratives."

ADD: Explore how different groups interpret the problematic or beneficial nature of the same events, phenomena, occurrences and how different perspectives affect problem identification and proposed solutions."

Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity "and the intersections among identities,"	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior. 9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities. "the larger or more dominant society regarding these identities." 9-12.ECI.15. Identify and explore how current traditions, rites, and norms of identity groups have or are changing over time. "various identity groups" "changed" 9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. "regard to"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.17. Compare and contrast the various origins (Indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in the United States. ", national, gendered," 9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups. 9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language. "and the impact of hybridity in creating new identities."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.20. Examine historical and contemporary cultural, economic, intellectual, political, and social contributions to society by individuals or groups within an identity group. 9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy. "and transformational change." 9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.

EDUCATING FOR AMERICAN DEMOCRACY

A ROADMAP FOR EXCELLENCE IN HISTORY AND CIVICS EDUCATION FOR ALL LEARNERS

The Educating for American Democracy (EAD) initiative provides national guidance that states, local school districts, and all educators can use to transform teaching of civics and history to sustain our constitutional democracy and meet the needs of a diverse 21st-century K–12 student body. The initiative includes a Roadmap to Educating for American Democracy and accompanying documents that give suggested educational strategies and suggested content for history and civics at every grade level—along with strategies for implementation in schools—so that each state, district, or school educator can fit into the needs of their own, unique communities. The EAD initiative is committed to providing instructional strategies and content for all learners to ensure that excellent history and civic learning opportunities are delivered equitably throughout the country.

Why EAD?

Trust in institutions and investment in communities are declining with time. The Civics Deserts report from the National Conference on Citizenship highlighted concerning civic decay. The public's trust in key institutions and leaders such as the media, branches of government, and volunteering declined by over 15% between 2005 and 2015.

Lack of knowledge on the part of youth is a pervasive problem. Only 24% of 8th graders scored proficient in the 2018 NAEP in Civics exam, the results of which were released April 2020. In 2018, nearly three-fourths of eighth-grade students report low to moderate levels of confidence in their civics-related knowledge and skills.

Lack of foundation for civic friendship and unity threatens our country. According to a January 2021 CBS News poll, 40% of Democrats and over half of Republicans tend to think of the other party as "enemies," rather than "political opponents". A majority of Americans identify other Americans as the greatest national threat.

Lack of access to high quality civic education exacerbates national social and economic gaps. According to analysis by Kei Kawashima-Ginsberg at CIRCLE, students from systemically disadvantaged communities, including low-income and Latino/a/x students, scored much lower on NAEP civics exams and reported less exposure to critical civic education products such as simulations, debates, and discussions.

Why EAD and Human Rights Education (HRE)?

HRE reinforces civil society and provides a strong basis for "civic friendship" across ideological differences. The essence of Human Rights theory and practice and the foundation for both content and methodology in Human Rights Education is recognition of the equality and inherent dignity of persons, without references to their differentiating characteristics. While we acknowledge and seek to understand differences of race, ethnicity, religion, gender identification, age, ability/disability, economic circumstances, etc., the fact that such differences exist does not make any of us less worthy or less entitled to the benefits of participation in an inclusive, democratic society.

Human Rights are inherent in all persons. They do not need to be earned and are not granted to us by governments or other social institutions. When "rights" are treated more as "privileges," the holders of privilege often feel they risk loss of their human value when the value of groups in which they do not participate are strengthened. However, respect for human rights is not a zero-sum game; the realization of human rights benefits everyone in society. The human rights lens, applied to difference, seeks both to build equity among individuals and groups and to ensure that no artificial barriers impair participation by anyone (or any group) in the fruits of our inclusive democratic society. A core purpose of the U.S. Constitution, according to the Preamble, is to "promote the general welfare." When that "general welfare" is not equitably available to some members of society, threats to fundamental human rights are present and need to be resolved to realize the ideals of our democratic republic and its Constitutional democracy.

What Can Students Do?

- Deepen your engagement with our constitutional democracy by learning how to recognize and exercise human rights and civic responsibilities.
- Engage in student government, in-school activities, community engagement initiatives, and other practices that strengthen understanding of your human rights and civic responsibilities as well as those of your peers, , family, and community members.
- Become aware of the various legal, political, educational, and societal mechanisms for protecting those rights.

*

What Can State Policy-Makers Do?

- Set ambitious goals to ensure that all students have access to opportunities for excellent civic and human rights learning opportunities.
- Adopt social studies standards that align with EAD and incorporate robust standards addressing universal human rights.
- Require EAD and human rights education training as part of educator preparation or licensure requirements.
- Integrate the Civic Learning Plan data within state accountability systems as a component of school performance indicators.

What Can Families Do?

- Introduce your children to civic activities, from community service to voting.
- Discuss human rights issues and factors that may affect how individuals and members of different groups benefit from societal and governmental policies and participate in democratic institutions.
- You can engage and collaborate on civic activities together with the students in your family such as volunteering, tabling, etc.
- Build relationships with the educators of your students and understand your school policies, community members, and other administrators, and families.
- Support passionate yet respectful discussions of current events at the table.
- Explore your own family's heritage and how that has changed over time.
- Critically assess media sources together with your child.

What Can School and District Leaders Do?

- Adopt and purchase curricula that emphasize the inquiry-based, interdisciplinary approach advanced by EAD.
- Recruit and support staff with a commitment to the school and district's civic engagement- mission and human rights values.
- Forge outside partnerships with families, community leaders, museums, libraries, and other organizations that can support high quality, inclusive civic learning
- Engage in self-evaluation of schools within the District, including participation by school administrators, teachers, staff, students, parents, and community members. Amnesty International and Human Rights Educators USA have resources for assessing the fairness, equity, and human rights friendliness of school districts.
 - Engaging in this kind of self-evaluation can strengthen students' sense of empowerment and provides an ideal environment for administrators, educators, and all participants to learn and practice civil friendships across ideological differences. A process grounded in respect for human rights assures that no one's concerns can be dismissed or marginalized.
 - Recognizing the human rights of all does not diminish the rights of any (but may have some effect on privileges that are not equitably shared with all.)

What Can Educators Do?

Actions to Promote Excellence for All

- Join professional learning communities, including PLCs of human rights educators focused on support, sharing resources, and mentoring to promote a continuous cycle of improvement and courageous engagement in dialogues and discussions that result from teaching the EAD Roadmap. Affirm diverse identities and provide inclusive instruction and examples.
- Incorporate human rights into your teaching and learning practices.
- Communicate clear expectations and express support and care for students.
- Provide opportunities for students to deepen and synthesize learning.
- Differentiate and scaffold instruction to ensure accessibility for all learners.

Actions to Promote Growth Mindset & Capacity Building

- Gather formal and informal student feedback on their learning experiences to understand individual needs and strengths.
- Engage in self-reflection to identify and address implicit biases and practices that may interfere with some students' learning processes.
- Learn about activities to cultivate student motivations to improve and develop a growth mindset.
Develop student-centered teaching and learning strategies that model respect for human rights.

Actions to Promote EAD Classrooms & Schools

- Seek to learn more about students and their families and strive to build relationships with and among students and their families.
- Be mindful of how structural, institutional, and other factors may influence the rights and privileges of your students and affect student engagement in school-based opportunities.
- Help students engage productively with disagreements and solve conflicts.
- Support students to process emotionally difficult events using modes of expression such as dialogue, writing, and creating art.

Actions to Help Practice Constitutional Democracy & Agency

- Facilitate opportunities for students to interact with community leaders, initiatives, and issues.
- Provide students the opportunity to practice democratic skills in the classroom and to demonstrate an understanding of their human rights implications.
- Facilitate opportunities for students to take informed action in their communities.

Actions to Help Practice Inclusive, Participatory Constitutional Democracy

- Employ a human rights lens to evaluate the fairness, inclusiveness, and openness of institutions, policies, laws, economic arrangements, educational set-ups, etc.
Utilize content from the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and related human rights documents to evaluate our domestic polity, economy, society.

Actions to Reflect, Assess, and Improve

- Assess students' civic skills and agency.
- Seek out student feedback to facilitate self-reflection and growth in meeting the needs of all students.

What can you do right now?

Attend EAD and HRE webinars and events, including those promoted by HRE USA, share the EAD Roadmap and Pedagogy Companion on social media, submit resources and discuss what implementing EAD at your school would look like.

Start the discussion about why civic and history education are instrumental for our democracy.

[EXTERNAL] Farmington Municipal Schools letter regarding New Mexico Social Studies Standards

Robert Taboada <rtaoada@fms.k12.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:26 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Schmidt, Eugene <eschmidt@fms.k12.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

Please add the attached letter from the Farmington Municipal Schools to the public comments regarding the proposed Social Studies Standards.

Thank you for allowing this great opportunity for feedback.

--

Roberto Taboada
Public Information Officer
Farmington Municipal Schools
3401 E. 30th Street, Suite A
Farmington, New Mexico 87402
Office: (505) 324-9840 ext. 1546
Cell: (970) 888-4783
rtaoada@fms.k12.nm.us
<https://district.fms.k12.nm.us>

This is a staff email account managed by Farmington Municipal Schools. This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the sender.

Confidentiality Notice: This e-mail, including all attachments, is for the sole use of the intended recipients and may contain confidential and privileged information. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure, or distribution is prohibited unless specifically provided under the New Mexico Inspection of Public Records Act. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender and destroy all copies of this message.

Office of the Superintendent

3401 E. 30th Street, Suite A

Farmington, NM 87402

Office: (505) 324-9840 | Fax (844) 833-2819

www.district.fms.k12.nm.us

November 12, 2021

To Whom It May Concern,

As the New Mexico Public Education Department moves ahead with the adoption process of the new draft Social Studies Standards, it is important to hear and honor the voices of New Mexico's residents during the review cycle. Included in the voices are the twenty-seven members of the Farmington Municipal Schools instructional staff, whose ideas are woven into the theme of my narrative. To honor those voices and to ensure the new draft social studies standards celebrate the richness of our state's cultural amalgamation which serves as a model of an American future that welcomes its rapidly emerging diversity, I offer these thoughts on behalf of the Farmington Municipal Schools.

As a state and nation, it is important for us to understand our history through historical facts rather than opinions. The proposed new draft standards, while well-intended and making an apparent call for use of credible sources, leave many opportunities for additional explanation, clarification, and modification on the part of instructors due to vagueness in meaning of the performance standards. In addition, the new draft standards, which appear to call for greater opportunity for students to discover, understand and create new meaning to our history, through the use of compelling and supporting questions, nevertheless, lack clarity as some performance standards do not provide opportunities for strong inquiry and cognitive demands as outlined in the National Framework. As a further step, I write to express my interest in knowing more about the guiding documents that may have been used in the crafting of the new draft Social Studies Standards. On that line, Team Farmington much prefers the framework as sent in C3 (C3 Social Studies.org). In that regard, Farmington Municipal Schools (hereafter known as Team Farmington) presents the following as Team Farmington's response to the new draft Social Studies Standards for the state of New Mexico. In expressing these concerns, I offer solutions to better strengthen the overall standards and learning expectations of students throughout the state.

Included in this letter is my effort to highlight three main areas of concern including:

1. Lack of adherence to the national social studies framework;
2. Concern that the new draft standards do not clearly frame a guaranteed and viable curriculum; and
3. Lack of cross-curriculum content connection.

Area of Concern: Lack of adherence to the national framework

For the past decade or more, the state of New Mexico has failed to align itself with National Standards in the area of history and civics education. After a review of the "Themes of Social Studies" and the "Four Dimensions" for the National Curriculum Standards for Social Studies in current draft form, it suggests the NMPED new draft standards writers used editorial licenses for the design template and Anchor/Performance Standards. On many fronts, this creates great concern about the levels in which our students will be positioned to compete in a regional, statewide, and worldwide competitive marketplace. After understanding the large gaps and lack of adherence in the new draft Social Studies Standards as compared to the C3 framework and themes, it is our belief that the state's students would be better served if New Mexico's new draft standards were more closely aligned with the C3 model.

Team Farmington celebrates the work of New Mexico educators and values the importance of our teachers' voices. As such, we extend our gratitude for the time and energy taken to serve on the new draft Social Studies Standards writing team. Nevertheless, there is great room for improvement in the architecture of the standards, flow, scaffolding, and growth of concepts between grade levels as well as the opportunity for greater rigor and demand of cognitive skills as an expectation for New Mexico's K-12 students. It is my concern that the standards lack depth in which an individual's critical thinking and inquiry skills can be leveraged to truly make informed decisions and understand the content and context of our world, nation, state, and people. It is also my concern that the new draft performance standards include words of implied (see 8.12 "...denied equality...") bias and/or framed as pre-drawn (see 5.12 "describe how inequity...") conclusions. Based upon Team Farmington's review of the proposed new draft standards we are not yet able to determine how the standards were designed from the "End of Grade" expectations.

Solutions:

- You will find the K-12 scope in which Civics, Economics, History, and Geography meet the needs of all students. Team Farmington recommends using Dimension 2, from the C3 framework as the state's framework of content.
- Team Farmington recommends removing the developed anchor standard of Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies as it does not align nor are there standards, we have been able to find that support this anchor standard in isolation. Given the amount of time before actual adoption and implementation, there appears to be time to thoughtfully review the performance standards in this anchor standard to integrate or incorporate less divisive performance standards into the ask for revised new draft standards using the C3 model.
- FMS also recommends the anchor standard of Inquiry not be a stand-alone anchor, but leveraged as it is designed in the C3 Framework, which is to be the lens in which Dimension 2 is viewed throughout instruction.
- Currently, the unpacking of the standards from grade-level expectations to earlier grades does not appear to have a scaffolded approach to the grade band expectations which could be strengthened with a strong knowledge of unpacking standards for prior knowledge, current grade-level expectations, and upcoming learning.
- A formal review should be conducted and results published, by grade bands, to determine that standards spiral and build on understanding to allow mastery by the end of grade expectations and the culmination of the K-12 sequence.

Area of Concern: Guaranteed and Viable Curriculum

Team Farmington celebrates the hard work of New Mexico educators, leaders, and community members who worked to compose standards that reflect individuals, events, and topics within New Mexico. In a review of the new draft standards, greater attention is needed to perhaps reduce the latitude to a variety of instructional interpretations along with a plethora of avenues in which to meet the expectations of the standards, as written, which may lead to confusion and uncertainty for the new draft standards writers' intent. This causes great concern in which equity and access to critical content are crucial to the success of students in our state, specifically those who are mobile. Without the proper guardrails in which to maintain a guaranteed, viable and, might I add, equitable curriculum, there is difficulty in ensuring all students are engaged in and provided access to the learning necessary to be successful in college, career, and life. In the current draft standards, there is room for multiple interpretations which may lead to an intentional or unintentional bias of teaching and learning, specific to standards. In expressing this concern, Team Farmington recognizes some of the C3 standards have been adapted freely and that the essence of the C3 learning may have been lost in the new draft proposal.

Solutions:

- All standards within the Anchor Standard of Ethnic, Cultural and Identity studies should be removed as there are no national standards, to be found in our research, to the norm against for learning as well as a concern that there will be a lack of High-Quality Instructional Materials (HQIM) to support teachers and students.
- With a lack of HQIM, there is a risk of staff searching for their own resources that may not have been sufficiently vetted through an adoption process and may or may not have an accurate account of historical facts.
- Team Farmington's preferred method of addressing diversity, culture, and NM heritage would be to
 - Incorporate the new draft social studies standards performance standards curricula ideas that celebrate the diversity, culture, and NM heritage be placed within the current C3 Anchor Standards of History, Civics, Geography, and Economics.
 - Leverage already existing C3 framework, Dimension 2, of History, Civics, Geography, and Economics to honor the diversity, culture and heritage within NM.
 - Should NMPED decide to maintain the Anchor Standard "Ethnic, Cultural and Identify Studies," it is the recommendation of Team Farmington that a new Anchor Standard category called "Culture" be used instead.
- Team Farmington suggests and prefers standards written that lead individuals to believe a single ideal should be removed along with terminology that alludes to or denotes negative perceptions, as these are not universal but personal through study, research, and background.
 - Should performance standards remain Farmington Schools offer the following edits as examples, but not limited to:
 - K.5 calls for "Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems." The descriptors "deliberative and democratic" seem high-level vocabulary for K comprehension. Similar language appears on 2.6. Might "discuss and fair" better serve this grade level?
 - 1.9 states, "Compare life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today." It would seem more purposeful to follow the language 2.10 "Examine and compare...."
 - 2.12 has the word attempted could imply failure and negative connotation for the student and, as such, imply a bias. Rather than remove the performance standard, I suggest that the language be changed to "worked to resolve problems" which, in my opinion, opens the standard to inquiry as well as an opportunity for students to describe events where there were conflicts and resolutions through the student lens.
 - 2.16 uses the terminology "one world community...." a definition of one world community might be helpful.
 - 3.16 could be restated as an inquiry and discovery question. Rather than investigate "who", it could be restated as, "Investigate how goods and services in various world communities impact the lives of those within the community and those around them."
 - 5.12 uses the phrase, "Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today." The use of the term inequity promotes a point of view rather than allowing the student to reach her/his own conclusion. Might 5.12 be better written to say "Examine and explain how conflicting points of view in the United States may have laid the foundation for conflict that continues today."
 - 6.16 uses the term "negative perception." As currently written, the phrase presupposes a negative connotation that does not draw from the Dimension Inquiry Arc performance standards of developing questions and planning. As written the performance standard does not support the purpose, process, role, and lens from which the Inquiry Arc should be used as outlined on page 12 of the C3 Framework.

- 6.3 Why did the writers wait until 6.3 to introduce the term “main topic”? One would have thought the term would begin in K.
- 6.9 through 6.12 - these performance standards that call for the student to “formulate, support, cite, and use” primary sources seem duplicative. It might make more sense to choose two of the four.
- 7.1 Why did the writers wait until (7.1 and 8.1) to insert the words (big idea) in the performance standard? It would have made more sense to put these words in the K.1 section.
- 7.42 rewrite this performance standard by flipping the sentence to “Identify and explain the similarities and differences on how the Pueblo and Diné communities adapted over time.”
- 7.59 as written the term destruction as cited in this performance standard, should be removed as it appears to be a value judgement word. The use of the term destruction predisposes and appears to draw bias as it is a judgmental word and, in the process, does not appear to allow students to draw their own conclusions. A better word might be “impact.”
- 7.98 calls for the student to explain examples of “cultural diffusion....” What does this term mean and why introduce it at grade 7?
- 7.102 The writers break from previous performance standards by not including the word credible when tied to sources. Why is this? As an example, consider 3.3, 5.3, and 8.2 - all of which call for credible sources.
- 8.49 More of a curiosity than anything else. I wonder why the Spanish phrase (Identidad Estadounidense) is used when this has not been done before?
- 8.6 uses the phrase “Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation.” This appears to be one of the times that the new draft social studies standards’ writers make a pre-determination that something was wrong. Might this be worded differently to allow the students to discover his/her own truth? Might this be better framed by stating, “Investigate the purpose of the Emancipation Proclamation and make an argument for its intended purpose.”?
- 9-12.NMH.9. The phrase seems to be lacking a verb starter. I suggest a word such as “create or develop” adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative (note to reader - why the word “evocative - which is to suggest a strong emotion”? Makes more sense to simply say “promotes a strong response) and perspectives....
- 9-12.NMH.18 I don’t know that the word “can” is needed in the performance standard.
- 9-12.US.45 discusses the conflict over slavery leading to the North and South War. What is the reason that only slavery is listed? Might the standard also list possible disagreements over states’ rights?
- 9-12.NMH.51 only allows students to explore movie and tech industries as contributors to our state’s economy. Redraft to state: Analyze ways in which New Mexico’s economy has thrived over time (e.g., movie industry, transportation, technology, oil & gas, etc.) and understand their impact.
- 9-12.NMH.54 same as above, the space industry is but one way in which NM land can be leveraged for innovative and growing businesses.
- Any performance standard that is declarative and duplicative in its entirety should be removed or edited to build on prior standards, with new learnings added as a true spiral to the concept.
 - If the standard outlines procedural knowledge, then the process should be identifiable within the standard for mastery and should be repeated.

- Team Farmington suggests consistency in language and terminology in performance standards throughout the K-12 document as noted in 7.102 with the removal of credible.
- The following performance standards have grammatical errors:
 - 2.8 is out of alignment with other bulleted points
 - 2.10 is out of alignment with other bulleted points
 - 2.11 is out of alignment with other bulleted points
 - 3.3 Determine the credibility of one source - might the terms primary and secondary be added for clarifying purposes?
 - 7.78 The word sources should have been included "Analyze primary and secondary ... to explain...."
 - 9-12.Civ. 29. There is an unneeded apostrophe in the sentence "...it's" should be "its"
 - 9-12.NMH.47 and 48 are one continued performance standard. It should read. Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical an analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico

Area of Concern: Lack of Cross Content Connections

After review, there are many cross-content connections, specifically those tied to English Language Arts (ELA)/Literacy standards that are excluded from the drafted standards. Within the C3 framework on page 20 in Tables 3 & 4 they clearly show the alignment and critical nature of ELA/Literacy standards within social studies; this is lacking in the new draft NM Social Studies Standards document.

Solution:

- Any standard or concept in which it supports, strengthens or enhances an already drafted standard from New Mexico Common Core State Standards (NMCCSS) should be referenced for cross content connections.
 For example: The Inquiry Arc (Dimensions 1, 3 & 4) have a direct correlation to Common Core State Standards for ELA; however, the English Language Arts are never referenced in the new draft social studies standards.

In closing, I thank the New Mexico Public Education Department for encouraging public comment. It is my hope the suggestions submitted by Team Farmington are found to have merit and, as such, included in the new draft Social Studies Standards.

Respectfully,

Eugene J. Schmidt, PhD
 Superintendent
 Farmington Municipal Schools

[EXTERNAL] Public comments on 6.29.11 NMAC (social studies)

Rios Fernandez <ammasrios@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:27 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello all,

Thank you for receiving public feedback on a very critical and relevant topic within public education. I am in full support and am pleased by the revisions made to the social studies standards.

My name is Rios Fernández and I'm a graduate from a New Mexico public school. I am a third year junior at UNM double majoring in psychology and Chicano/Chicana studies. My sister current attends Albuquerque High School. So decision-making on public education policies are still very relevant to my life and family.

I am in full support of the revisions (updates) being made to the social studies standards. I will refer to the changes in social studies (SS) standards as updates because as it stands New Mexico teaches social studies from a one-sided Eurocentric perspective. Having a more international and representative version of these standards is not just critical, but vital to student success.

As a minority majority state with high populations of Hispanic/Latinx/Chicanx, Native American, Vietnamese, ESL, and newcomer students this is even more so the case. You will see during this meeting that these important updates to SS standards will be scapegoated as "CRT". Teaching social studies with a culturally relevant emphasis furthers a pedagogy that provides student agency and success. This is needed in a state which often ranks extremely low in education outcomes.

As it stands these aforementioned student groups (Latinx, Native...) do not currently have much or any curriculum that reflects their history or culture. I have personal experience of this as a Chicano identifying person who got taught minuscule amounts of my history in school. For many students this may be one of the few educational opportunities to learn about the history and culture of others. Having a one-sided view of social studies also erases important historical achievements and figures. As a collective, we need to have integrity and relevance in SS standard. The updates clearly reflect that.

Updating curriculum to be more inclusive and successful for all is not just "teaching about racism". Which is another argument you may hear today. Teaching racism through a historical lens is just how social studies should be taught. It's what taught me how Claudette Colvin was actually the first Black women to refuse giving up her seat on a bus. Most people do not know who Claudette Colvin even is. These are the topics students should learn about in SS. Excluding them is part of this cultural and educational erasure that these extremists want. Similar topics in the SS updates are covered through 'multi-identity interactions' and 'Inequality & Justice in the US' for example. When I think of multi-identity interactions I think of the collaborative efforts between Mexican/Chicano and Filipino farm workers during the United Farm Worker's Grape Strike. This was an event where commonalities in identity allowed for great social movement. Students need content that is relevant to them!

All of this historical and social studies related content I mentioned has NOTHING to do with CRT, but has everything to do with teaching the most expansive, holistic, and accurate version of social studies. CRT uses the lenses of race and law to challenge current views of institutional & societal prejudices. CRT then analyzes these prejudices using an intersectional model. This is NOT THE SAME as teaching an accurate and representative version of social studies.

Once again, I am in full support of the revisions being made to the Social Studies Curriculum. Thank you for all your time and energy.

Rios Fernández

[EXTERNAL] public comment on proposed standards

Patricia I. <patricia.pearce@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:30 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Patricia Pearce. I am a resident of New Mexico and I support the proposed Standards.

I grew up in Wyoming, which shares some characteristics and history with New Mexico, but the rich and varied history of this state continues to impress me. Students should absolutely have the opportunity to learn about that history, including the included ethnic and cultural contents.

I want to thank the many, many teachers from around the state who spent countless hours carefully developing these Standards. Thank you, also, to the New Mexico Public Education Department for their hard work on these new standards that are good for New Mexico and long overdue.

Thank you.

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Melody Martin <mellyanne07@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello! My name is Melody Burrus and I am a stay at home mom to 4 children in Albuquerque, New Mexico. I use to send my children to an APS school and we all were very happy with that decision. However, this past year I pulled my children out of APS to now homeschool them. I was forced to make that decision because so much is being put into the APS lesson plans that parents are unaware of, and school is now becoming a place to indoctrinate children with the left wing agenda.

School is a place to learn mathematic facts, learn to read and write, explore science concepts, learn about the true facts of American history, and enjoy socialization and being a child. School is not a place to cause a divide between them and their peers based off of the color of their skin and blame one group for the issues that have arose in American society based off of their skin color. Those are opinions and not facts. Please keep to facts when teaching students and do not instill a disdain for their country in these innocent children. Do not cause division and please keep the politics out of the school room.

More and more parents are realizing that schools do not care about how they feel about what is being taught to their children. This email is letting you know that we do care. We want to know all that is being taught to our children and more and more families are pulling their children out of schools to homeschool them because we have had enough. APS has enough issues educationally. Please stick to increasing children's reading abilities, writing abilities, social skills, mental health, and their love of school. Otherwise, there might not be any students left to indoctrinate.

Sincerely,
Melody Burrus

Sent from Yahoo Mail on Android

[EXTERNAL] Remove CRT in Social Studies Curriculum

Ant Thornton <AntThornton@thenextlg.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Critical Race Theory is based on the thesis that the United States of America is systemically racist. In order for a theory to meet the requirements of science, all empirical evidence must validate the theory. A single case of evidence that presents itself that defies the theory actually debunks the entire premise.

How is it that Asians in the U.S. have flourished, and in many cases, overtaken whites in terms of level of education and socio-economic status? CRT says they have been oppressed and are victims (World War II internment camps in the U.S. for instance). However, they succeed, nonetheless. Why? It has more to do with culture. Asian Americans study twice as many hours as the average American today. They have strong two parent family structures. They put a strong value on education and hard work, and they believe in a meritocracy... that hard work is rewarded. They have proven that the American Dream is available to anyone with the proper motivation, incentives, and appeal to excellence. CRT and the social and emotional teachings in the social studies curriculum being advocated by PED should be removed. It encourages animosity and division based on immutable characteristics such as skin color and racial differences... the complete opposite of the American ethos.

Given that only 30% of students in NM are reading at grade level and that only 20% of them are capable of performing math at grade level, maybe we should focus our efforts on the basics (civics, reading, arithmetic, and writing). I do NOT support this new social studies curriculum and request that PED revamp this curriculum immediately.

LEADERSHIP DEFENDING LIBERTY

Candidate for Lt. Governor of New Mexico
P.O. Box 948
Sandia Park, NM 87047
Ph: 505-985-2390
www.TheNextLG.com

[EXTERNAL] Comments on draft NM Social Studies Standards wrwadt@aol.com <wrwadt@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for seeking public input on the draft New Mexico Social Studies Standards. My background is in science, management, and systems-based continuous improvement, which I have been applying over the past 25-years to help improve the public education system in NM. Learning standards are a key element in that system, so using an inclusive process to improve those standards on a regular basis is very important.

The guiding principles are excellent, especially the following one:

Empowering students to develop pride in his/her/their identity, history, culture, region by incorporating a community-based approach while preparing students to be a part of a global environment.

This guiding principle, which is inclusive of ALL students, provides the foundation for constructive individual and collective exploration. It enables the previous guiding principle on developing a multi-faceted perspective on history and the final guiding principle on becoming a critical thinker, namely, someone who can think for themselves and become an active and constructive participant in our democratic system, which is captured in the second guiding principle.

As a scientist, I really like the inquiry standards which are so important for students, who are immersed in a turbulent sea of information, to learn how to assess which sources of information are reliable, which ones are not, and which ones are intentionally designed to mislead and/or indoctrinate. Research has shown that inquiry-based pedagogy is a more effective way to engage students and keep them engaged. The anchor inquiry standards reflect the same epistemological approach as the scientific method which underpins the Next Generation Science Standards, that were adopted by NM 4 years ago.

My sense is that the focus on civics has diminished since I was in school over 55 years ago. Robust standards and curriculum in civics are essential to prepare students for active participation in a vibrant representative democracy. Therefore, I applaud the focus of the draft standards on civics, which appear thorough and appropriate. It is essential that students graduate understanding the roles of the three branches of state and federal government as well as the intended checks and balances among them. The current lack of knowledge among our citizens is both sad and dangerous for the continued positive evolution of our country.

I liked the sequence of the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies anchor standards from diversity and identity to identity in history to community equity building. This sequence is certainly consistent with the inclusive guiding principles related to identity.

I have read that many parents and others are concerned that these standards are requiring that critical race theory, which is a topic for discussion in institutions of higher education, especially law schools, be taught in our K-12 public schools. Therefore, I searched the draft standards for the words "critical race theory" and did not find them. I also searched for the word "race" which appears 5 times including its use in "arms race." The word "racism" appears once.

The concept of race is a social construction, which has had a significant impact on the history of this country and the lives of its people. The omission of race in the standards would create a major gap and distortion in any teaching of our history, economy, and system of government. Its appearance in the standards seem appropriate based on my review of them.

I am proud to be an American citizen. I am stirred by our history and form of government. Some of our past actions are inspiring and engender a sense that we have made life better for many. Some of our past actions sadden me greatly and engender a sense that we can and must do more to create a system in which everyone can as the slogan for the Army says, "Be all you can be." When I reviewed the draft standards, I saw what to me was a good mix of the inspiring, the saddening, and the need and opportunity to improve. For me, the draft standards embrace the sentiment in the Preamble of the Constitution, namely, "We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, so ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." The draft standards provide a sound context of learning for ALL students to embark on their individual and collective efforts to form a more perfect Union for everyone.

My one general concern is whether the standards represent so much content that it cannot be covered without shortchanging the inquiry standards. The latter are essential to develop the critical thinking skills including the skills to assess the sea of information and its sources. To me helping students develop those critical thinking skills as well as a sense of curiosity should take priority over content when push comes to shove. With our modern information and communication systems, curious, critical thinking students will be able to fill gaps in content after they graduate. However, content-stuffed students who are not curious or able to think critically for themselves are more likely to disengage from our system of representative democracy and will be more vulnerable to purveyors of misinformation and disinformation.

My next comment is a pet peeve. I recommend using "affected" instead of "impacted" (used 13 times). For me, using impact as a verb is appropriate when talking about an object impacting or impinging on another. I know "impacted" has come to mean "significantly affected," but it is often used for a sense of importance instead of clarity.

Given the impact of the Manhattan Project on the history of NM, the US, and the world, I would recommend recasting standard 9-12.NMH.38 to something like: "Describe why Los Alamos was chosen as a key site in the Manhattan Project and its impact on NM, the US, and the world"

In standard 9-12.NMH.44 I recommend using the word "identify" instead of "uncover," which to me has a pejorative tone and is not used elsewhere in the standards, while "identify" is used frequently.

I really like the High School World History standards, which capture the essence of what I hope students learn how to do. If they do, then NM and the Nation will become a better place to live.

The high school Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies standards are extremely important and will be challenging to meet. The first standard 9-12.ECI.13 is key:

Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.

Meeting this standard is essential to create a foundation of mutual respect and comfort among a diverse set of students. Creating a climate of mutual respect is the key to identifying and overcoming problems where dominance of one group has turned differences into inequity. The subsequent standards 9-12.ECI.14 through 9-12.ECI.22 provide a good roadmap for the process of building greater equity and providing students the tools to move us toward a more perfect Union that values and unlocks the talents of all of its people and their cultures to handle the challenges of the future.

Yours sincerely,

Bill Wadt

Los Alamos

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico's social studies standards

Rita Martinez <rita@aidainc.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

More focus needs to be on the contributions to the development of civilizations from Indigenous peoples worldwide. The contributions include governance, economics, technology, medicines, food, social norms, values, etc. The curriculum should be from a strength-based orientation, rather than painting Indigenous people and their contributions to history from a deficit, conquered, or colonized lens.

Tribal governance also needs to be taught. So many non-Indians have no idea how tribes are structured or what jurisdictional authority tribes have over their people and lands. Tribal governance relates directly to the provisions in the U.S. constitution. It is an essential civics lesson that would eliminate the stereotypes that Native people have to deal with because of the lack of knowledge and understanding by non-Indians.

The inclusion of tribal governance could easily be tailored to each grade level and built upon as students move through elementary, middle school to high school.

Thanks,

Rita Martinez

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies Comment

Rosanna Ford <rosannaford12@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Rosanna Ford, I live in Los Lunas. I am a graduate of Los Lunas High School and have a Bachelors in Sociology from UNM. I have a 15 yr old son that attends Los Lunas High School.

I would like to start out by stating that I am not opposed to teaching children about the events in history that have not always been taught in New Mexico schools such as the Indian Boarding Schools, Chinese Exclusion Act, or the Bracero Program. As well as adding more recent events such as 9/11. However, the framework that has been presented does much more than adding additional history or events to the curriculum. It is important for children to learn about history, the events, attitudes, causes, motivations, etc. All topics should be brought up within the context of what was happening in the state, country, or world at the time and without the standards leading toward controversial conclusions. For Example: Standard 8.12 states "Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally." This is a highly controversial opinion. Another example: Standard 5.12 "Describe how inequality in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today." When it comes to these highly controversial conclusions, these are conversations that a parent should be having with their child, so the discussion can include their family background, religious background, and the morals and norms of society at the time and today.

This leads me to my next complaint about the new standards. The added Inquiry Anchor Standard is inappropriate to start at the kindergarten level. Students at this young of an age are unable to form informed/constructive responses to complex local, regional, or global problems. It would be ok to analyze a problem within the classroom such as why the cafeteria doesn't serve candy, so the students gain an understanding that there may be various solutions to a problem with different outcomes depending on the solution.

On the other end, Standard 9-12.US.133 which states "Analyze the current state and health of American democracy and create an action plan to protect American democracy" If highly educated leaders and policy makers throughout the country cannot create a plan to protect American democracy how is a high school student going to be able to.

Thomas Sowell gives a good analogy in his book Inside American Education for this.

"To teach issues instead of intellectual principles to school children is like teaching calculus to people who have not yet learned arithmetic, or surgery to people lacking the rudiments of anatomy or hygiene. Worse, it is teaching them to go ahead and perform surgery, without worrying about boring details."

Also, within the Inquiry Anchor Standard for first grade: Standard 1.3 "Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion." At 6 or 7 years old the majority of a child's "sources" are authority figures (parents, teachers). The only reason I can imagine you would want the child to decide if their parent is being factual would be to undermine the authority of the parent. Therefore again, this is something that should be taught more by the parent than the school.

It has been a recurring comment among my son's teachers that they have to go through the standards too quickly because there are too many to get to within the school year. Adding extra standards that should be taught by parents is bogging down the teachers making it harder for them to concentrate long enough on important topics. And with where New Mexico schools rank in the US, the quality of their learning is more important than trying to exclude parents from the development of our children.

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment To Proposed Social Studies Changes

Justin Boatright <justacowman@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Justin Boatright's

Public Comment for Proposed Changes

To New Mexico Public Education

Specifically Social Studies

From the New Mexico education website this is the quote of their goal I quote "The goal of the updating New Mexico's Social Studies Standards is to ensure that all of our students see themselves reflected in the classroom, that our learning environments are culturally and linguistically responsive, and that the rich backgrounds and perspectives of all New Mexicans come alive in the classroom." My first comment is this goal sounds great but how does teaching students about police brutality fit into this goal. You say that the Twin Tower event on September 11 needs to be added. Is the history your teaching going to reflect how police, paramedic, and firefighters were deemed heroes during this time, and now for some unknown reason these heroes are going to be portrayed as being brutal? It seems as in all of this content proposed for change is one sided and political. Take for instance teaching the rise of conservatism in America and not teaching the rise of communism or socialism. Or teaching how capitalism creates free market and lets individuals own things outright or how socialism is controlled by one central power who delegates all. Where is the semester on the U.S. Constitution the supreme law of this land? How it supersedes any law set forth afterward. Why its importance of keeping federal government small and giving more authority to the individual sovereign states. How does teaching children about the Consequences of gun violence go towards your initial goal, it doesn't period. This is more of a left wing agenda teaching. Where's that category that explains why our founding fathers put the second amendment into our constitution. Where is the positivity behind firearms I mean without them New Mexico might have never become a state. The indigenous people would have had a greater chance of victory if guns weren't used in battle. It's not our place to teach whether these historical events that shaped the future America are morally right or not; that's for the individual student to conclude^[1] on their own. Such as the curriculum that is suggested for 7th graders on the inequality and injustices in the United States page 39. This subject just teaches students something that is totally false. All Americans have the same opportunity to make something of themselves. By teaching this divisive thinking of injustice and dividing people by teaching that there's inequality in the United States is only going to put students in I'm a victim mentality. Victim mentality makes individuals think they are owed something when that's not the case. Every young New Mexican she be taught how privileged each one of them is by just being an American. They get to enjoy freedoms that most children in the world don't. Our country is the greatest Nation on Earth and any negative content about this country needs to be scrubbed from this proposal. We should be building our country up and making young citizens that are proud and aware of what this country stands for freedom and the right to choose for yourself what you want to worship, where you work, or making your own health decisions. There is no room in public school curriculum for these leftist ideals on guns and inequality. These changes in the proposal are propaganda disguised as real subjects to brainwash a younger generation into thinking a certain way. This is wrong and should not be allowed to be changed. Most ideals don't actually even scratch on the initial goals set forth about inclusion and making New Mexican students come alive in the classroom. Culture is fine to teach about as long as it doesn't sow division.

Please consider the Negativity you Sow

[\[1\]](#)

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

SM Ramos <smrcmd@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello, members of the Public Education Department.

I am writing as a mother, grandmother and citizen of NM in support of the proposed rule changes for the Social Studies curriculum.

Additionally, I want to second the proposal made today during the hearing by Mr. Abenicio Baldonado. I agree that having a curriculum that includes Financial Literacy throughout the K to 12 years is essential. As someone who grew up in a home where money (except for its lack) was not discussed, I know the difficulties faced trying to maneuver one's finances as an adult in our world. Please add this missing piece to the excellent changes you are proposing.

Thank you for your attention.

Sylvia M. Ramos

Sylvia M. Ramos, M.D., M.S., F.A.C.S.

P.O. Box 7398

Albuquerque NM 87194

505 401-0601

"Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex." - Equal Rights Amendment (ERA), written by Alice Paul in 1923 and ratified by Virginia, the 38th state needed for it to become the 28th amendment to the US Constitution, in 2020.

[EXTERNAL] Written Comment 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Michael Dabrieo <michael@lanlfoundation.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:44 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Jenny Parks <Jenny@lanlfoundation.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Greetings,

Please find written public comment attached regarding 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies from the Los Alamos National Laboratory Foundation (LANLF). We appreciate the hard work completed, and hope to partner as the NMPED moves to implementation. Please confirm receipt of this message.

Respectfully,

Mike Dabrieo (he, him, his)
Education Enrichment Director
Los Alamos National Laboratory Foundation
1112 Plaza del Norte
Española, NM 87532
Office: 505-753.8890 ext. 141
Cell: 505-901-3413
Fax: 505-753.8915
www.lanlfoundation.org

1112 Plaza del Norte
Española, NM 87532

tel: 505-753-8890

fax: 505-753-8915

www.lanlfoundation.org

DATE: 11/12/2021
TO: New Mexico Public Education Secretary Kurt Steinhaus
FROM: Jenny Parks, LANL Foundation President and Chief Executive Officer
RE: New Mexico Social Studies Standards, Public Comment

Secretary Steinhaus,

The Los Alamos National Laboratory Foundation (LANLF) thanks you for the opportunity to provide public comment and recommendations on the draft New Mexico Social Studies Standards. LANLF's mission is to support public education, learning, and community development in a region that includes 18 tribal nations and seven counties; Los Alamos, Mora, Rio Arriba, San Miguel, Sandoval, Santa Fe, and Taos. LANLF is committed to the improvement of learning opportunities and support structures for students in Northern New Mexico, including within social studies.

We appreciate the New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) and the work they have done to revise the state's social studies standards, reflecting changes in educational approaches and 21st Century Learning best practices to ensure all students in New Mexico are college, career, and civic ready. The LANLF firmly believes that strong Social Studies standards are vital to the students in our state thriving. LANLF fully supports the proposed draft standards, and see them as an important step in shifting educational narratives in New Mexico to be more inclusive and to begin addressing the gaps in our educational ecosystem as identified in Martinez-Yazzie. We applaud including Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity studies as a content area which includes Diversity and Identity, Identity in History, and Community Equity Building as anchor standards. We also deeply appreciate looking to our best resource – our teachers – to assist in the development of these standards.

While an excellent first step, we hope the NMPED will go further in its work to refine these standards in preparation for implementation. The LANLF respectfully submits the following recommendations for consideration:

- 1. Include a Developmental Framework and Social Studies Practice Standards: The draft standards need a Developmental Framework and an articulation of Social Studies Practice Standards. We recommend developing a content sequence similar to Massachusetts' History and Social Science framework, but adapted for New Mexico's needs. (<https://www.doe.mass.edu/frameworks/hss/2018-12.pdf>). The completed framework should provide guidance to educators to why students engage in learning social studies, how that fits with other learning expectations, and a recommended approach for how educators support students across all grade bands. Furthermore, while inquiry is included as a content area within the standards, it should instead be included as a pedagogical approach in how teachers support students to develop understanding of the listed content areas, how the past affects them, and their role in shaping the future. Inquiry is not a separate area of learning, but a lens with which educators can approach all learning opportunities in their classrooms, and social studies is an area ripe for inquiry-based approaches to flourish.

- 2. Align Social Studies Standards to other existing standards: The proposed standards need to be aligned with the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) in Math and English Language Arts and the New Mexico STEMReady! Standards. The New York State Social Studies Standards offer an example of this, aligning the Social Studies expectations with CCSS standards in Reading, Writing, and Listening and Speaking. This alignment will allow principals and teachers to critically assess how they can incorporate New Mexico Social Studies Standards across curricula and classrooms, encouraging collaboration between grade levels and subject areas.
- 3. Leverage the SEL Framework: This alignment extends beyond academic standards and should include the developing NMPED Social Emotional Learning (SEL) Framework. For example, kindergarten standard K.22 within Social Identity asks students to communicate a positive self-view which is deepened through third grade, asking students to describe a positive self-view while not demeaning others. This effort to support students in maintaining a positive self-view cannot happen only in social studies class, and should not stop after early elementary school. The Social Identity content area is a great opportunity for understanding of personal, family, and community identity to be continuous throughout a students' educational career in New Mexico, from kindergarten through graduation. We recommend delving into topics such as this more consistently, and aligning it with the SEL Framework for schools to have an aligned objective in supporting youth as they navigate their identity, in and out of social studies classes.
- 4. Indigenous perspectives should be more prevalent: Our state standards should help New Mexico's youth develop an asset based perspective of what it means to be from New Mexico and how that positively contributes to a global society. The proposed standards improve upon the previous standards in regards to including indigenous perspectives, but still can go deeper. For example, there are currently standards that guide students to explore tribal sovereignty, but they start in 7th grade. This topic can be introduced as a developmentally appropriate standard as early as kindergarten. It is important for students to understand the different dynamics of governments that affect them, including tribal, state, county, and city, even at a young age. In addition, as these standards develop through a student's educational experience, they need to consistently affirm and honor the recognition of sovereign nations, offering tribal nation lenses of history and allowing students to personally explore those perspectives.
- 5. Social Studies must be made a priority: These standards could become a valuable foundation for learning across all subject areas. For this to become a reality, school boards, district leaders, principals, and teachers all need to have the time, resources, and professional learning to do this work deeply and effectively. As teachers develop learning plans for students after a year of remote learning, contend with accelerated learning objectives, and balance priorities, the NMPED must create support systems and make funding allocations that show social studies is a priority within a student's learning experience in New Mexico.

We again extend our gratitude to the hard work the NMPED staff and teachers put into the development of the proposed standards. The LANLF is here as a partner, and hopes to collaborate with you and your staff in the coming months to help refine these standards. We hope these recommendations will assist in the implementation of social studies standards in New Mexico that are culturally responsive, rigorous, and support the leaders of the future.

Respectfully,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read 'Jenny Parks', written over a light blue rectangular background.

Jenny Parks
President and CEO
Los Alamos National Laboratory Foundation

[EXTERNAL] CRT

WALTER BARNES <aandw3@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern, that's all of us,

CRT is a figment of someone's imagination having no historical basis in fact and should not be incorporated into any curriculum in New Mexico schools. In fact, it ranks right up there with the writings of Lenin and Alinsky which are socialist manure. CRT is nothing but an attempt to divide the masses in accordance with the Communist Manifesto.

It is my hope that CRT will be seen for the evil it truly is and not included in any curriculum within New Mexico.

Sincerely,

Walter E. Barnes III

I

[EXTERNAL] School Social Studies

Hobbit Merritt <hobbit.merritt@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am proud to live in a culturally diverse state and the home (both current and ancestrally) of Native American Indians AND those of Spanish heritage.

I oppose any attempts to "white-wash" the teaching of social studies that does not realistically depict both the current conditions and those of the past for these major ethnic groups. As a white woman and a recent transplant to this lovely state, I cherish the opportunity to learn more about these ethnicities. Why on Earth would we deny that to our children?

Truth should be our guide when it comes to teaching children how the world works. Life is not full of cherries, nor is it full of tragedy. Both co-exist in the world we all live in. Let's honor our past and allow our future (children) to learn all they can about being human.

History is where we came from. The future offers a possibility to learn from the lessons of the past. Let's not deny our children the opportunity to learn from the past.

Thank you,
Nancy Merritt
Rio Rancho

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Update Curriculum is biased toward progressive agenda

Doris Buckman <dorisbuckman@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To:

PED Policy Director:

I am a private citizen and grandmother, who is interested in the content and pedagogy of the social studies curriculum in my grandchildren's classroom. It is important that there is no bias toward the progressive and activist agenda. I do NOT want my grandchildren to perceive me as an oppressor nor in any way someone who, because of having white skin, is racist.

I think that PED is trying to rush these standards through without giving parents and citizens enough time to critique the curriculum. These are critical times and need to be held and identified as such.

Sincerely,

Doris Buckman

505440-3795

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] Revised Social Studies standards

Dulcinea Lara <dulcinea@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear New Mexico Public Education Department,

I am writing as the mother of a 4th grader in the Las Cruces Public Schools, a Professor of Borderlands and Ethnic Studies at New Mexico State University, and a member of the advisory council formed last year by the NMPED to revise and update the social studies standards.

As a lifelong Nuevomexicana, I am proud of the New Mexico PED and state leadership for taking the overdue steps to update our social studies curriculum. Today there are more experts, scholars, content materials, and cultural knowledge sets at our disposal in order to revise the current standards that are not inclusive of multiple voices, perspectives, and lived realities.

My perspective is that people who oppose the new standards are comfortable offering our NM youth an incomplete toolkit. The new standards are just that-- a more complete toolkit. It is imperative that we revise and update our toolkit-- I applaud the educators across the state who worked on the standards.

I am part of a collective of NMSU faculty in Ethnic Studies and Education currently working with K-12 educators from all of southern New Mexico to write new history lessons from old knowledge-- knowledge that is multilingual, multicultural, and multigenerational. Infusing these typically omitted perspectives and worldviews into the curriculum will only enhance the educational experiences for all students-- not just students of color or those from low socio-economic backgrounds.

As a scholar with a Ph.D. in Comparative Ethnic Studies, I can attest that there is vast research that points to increased academic success and personal enjoyment experienced by all students and teachers who take Ethnic Studies classes. Students who take classes in Ethnic Studies see increases in attendance, Grade Point Average, standardized test scores, and graduation rates. The time is now to try something new! We have been living with and enduring a model of education that is assimilationist in its history and purpose. If anything, let's at least try a new, updated model. If we do not see the increases in success and enjoyment in the coming years, we can revise and take a new path. For now, I am urging us to take steps to implement the new standards immediately. The NMPED needs to actively ensure that school districts who are resistant to implement these new standards do so. While there are some communities and cities that support these changes, there are many that do not.

California just passed an Ethnic Studies requirement for all graduating high schoolers. This is the way that the nation is moving. New Mexico is part of the important social trend toward offering a more inclusive curriculum.

Thank you for listening,

Dulcinea Lara

Dulcinea M. Lara, Ph.D.

Professor

Director of Borderlands & Ethnic Studies (BEST)

New Mexico State University

dulcinea@nmsu.edu

(575) 646.3649

[EXTERNAL] Updated Social Studies Standards

Melanie Lewis <sunnymel42@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am an APS parent, an APS employee, and a US citizen. I have reviewed the new Social Studies standards and am very excited and impressed by them. I strongly support implementing these standards. Thank you to all those involved in this important and needed work.

Sincerely,

Melanie Lewis
931 11th Street NW
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] proposed repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Joe Klesert <joe.klesert@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

My name is Joe Klesert, and I'm a resident of Albuquerque. I'm writing to voice my support of the repeal and replacement of our social studies and history curricula. I believe we must provide more inclusive curricula, which are less Eurocentric, and more responsive to the myriad cultural influences we enjoy in New Mexico.

Thank you.

-Joe

[EXTERNAL] New Standards for Social Studies

Brady, Debra <debrabrady@lovingtonschools.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Committee:

The standards for HS Economics and Civics does not coincide with New Mexico's student achievement level. Our students are extremely below those expectations. It could be attainable if students were held accountable for their education.

Standards for Rise of Conservatism: 9-12 US 129 and 9-12.US 130 not appropriate for this curriculum, we live in a bible belt we will have many parents protesting these standards, due to Christain beliefs. US in a Global Age 2008-present 9-12 US 132, 133 ...136 Also not appropriate if you are not going to focus on reasoning behind media, political party, and elite classes influence on these global issues and political concerns.

US in a Global Age, 2008-present: 137, 138, 139, 140, 141 again, the truth is dictated by the media, political parties, and elite classes, where will the curriculum being taught obtain its information/resources?

Debra Brady
New Hope High School
Lovington New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the Proposed Social Studies Content Standards

Doug Ghormley <dpghorm@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see the attached memo containing my comments on the propose social studies content standards.

Thank you,
Dr. Douglas Ghormley

To: New Mexico Public Education Department
From: Dr. Douglas Ghormley, parent of three Date: 12 Nov 2021
Subject: Response to the Proposed Social Studies Standards

Imagine a world in which prejudice, racism, sexism and the like are things of the past. We acknowledge the evil of the past as a warning sign to not repeat those same mistakes, to be better, to move forward.

Do these proposed standards move us forward, helping us progress toward a better society? Or do these standards instead represent a regression, moving back toward a world where people judged each other by the color of their skin?

To me, these proposed standards jerk society back into the darkness of the past, encouraging the same kind of I-can-judge-you-by-the-color-of-your-skin thinking that led to the horrors of slavery and all kinds of repression.

The great seal of the United States sports the phrase "E pluribus unum" – out of many, one. This nation was founded on the idea that diverse people groups would come together in the common cause of freedom, liberty, and a chance at a better life. More than 99% of people living in the United States claim some immigrant blood. "E pluribus unum" speaks to our shared identity as a people. This concept is inexplicably absent from the proposed standards. So are the concepts of the "melting pot", the "American dream", and more. The term "liberty" does not occur once; the term "freedom" occurs only twice. However, the term "identity" occurs 109 times. If a student were to be educated with these proposed new standards, that student would be unable to answer the very simple question of why are so many immigrants so eager to come here?

At its founding, the United States was based on a radical idea, different from any other country on the face of the earth at the time. Since that founding, that idea has taken over most of the world, and has led to modern, enlightened concepts of self, identity, society, and freedom. What is that idea? Students educated according to these content standards will never know.

According to the US News Education Rankings, New Mexico currently ranks dead last¹. Many might be quick to say that this is because we are a poor state. This is a convenient excuse. According to the Education Data Initiative², New Mexico is 38th in the nation in funding for K-12 education. That is, we have more funding than roughly a quarter of the other states in the nation, and we still come in last. The way we do education in New Mexico is our problem. These proposed standards represent precisely the type of thinking that keeps us dead last in education in the United States.

Anyone interested in primarily in the well-being and well-rounded education of New Mexico's students and future citizens will reject these standards. Please enable New Mexico to truly progress as a society, embracing values that will heal, not exacerbate the evils of the past, and certainly not standards that return us to the heart of racist thinking.

Thank you for consideration.

¹ <https://www.usnews.com/news/best-states/rankings/education>

² Hanson, Melanie. "U.S. Public Education Spending Statistics" EducationData.org, August 2, 2021, <https://educationdata.org/public-education-spending-statistics>

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Public Education Department - Public Comment 11/12/2021

New Mexico Black Voters Collaborative 2020 <nmbvc2020@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Mason Graham, project lead and policy analyst for the New Mexico Black Voters Collaborative.

I am here to express our support for the proposed draft standards New Mexico Public Education Department Social Studies Standards and give commentary on how the exclusion of race, race relations, systemic oppression, and civil rights in U.S. history can be extremely dangerous for Black/African-Americans and other students of color or students of marginalized groups.

Comments that you may hear/have heard today are in direct opposition to the teachings of Critical Race Theory. However, when I reviewed the proposed social studies standards created by the PED I did not see a curriculum outlined that specifically teaches our students about Critical Race Theory but rather a standard that simply covers the basics of the racial and marginalized history of America.

The movement to repeal the current proposed social studies standards based on the concern that there is a bias toward racial, progressive, and/or liberal themes is a political strategy that works to uphold a standard of whiteness and ignorance in the accurate telling of American history. Our students deserve to have a curriculum that is reflective of their racial, ethnic, and gender backgrounds and should be provided the information and history of how the experiences of Black/African American, Indigenous, People of Color, Women, and LGBTQIA groups have been marginalized throughout the course of our history. This is not indoctrination, this is inclusivity. The movement to dilute, erase or retell the history of discrimination in this country is a powerful example of why we need a social studies curriculum that explores the systemic oppression of marginalized groups. Our children and our students deserve to be taught accurate history in order to become Americans who understand the injustices of our past. We hope this will lead to correcting any future injustices through education, action, and participation in a way that will address systemic racism and prejudice.

I understand how many may feel that a curriculum that exposes the history of racism in America can feel as though a finger is being pointed towards those who are white and currently benefit from a system that upholds eurocentric values in institutions. You must also understand that those beliefs that make you feel targeted for being white when discussing America's racial history are the same beliefs that continue to give justification to the exclusion of BIPOC groups in nearly every facet of American society including but not limited to education, the workplace, the justice system, government, and the economy - all of which have been impacted by the legacy of slavery, segregation, and marginalization in America.

As of now, 21 states have begun to introduce bills that attempt to restrict the teaching of how race is discussed inside the classroom--all of these bills give a vague and undefined standard of what is adequate for the teaching of racial history to our students. The proposed social studies standards discuss a history that does not shy away from teaching the difficult past of America and is representative of what our students deserve to be taught in order to have a complete and accurate understanding of our country's implicit and complicit biases. These standards do not cover critical race theory in-depth but more so represent a theory of change that history is not defined through a monolithic point of view that excludes people of color and centers whiteness as it has done throughout the course of social studies teachings in the education system. New Mexico is one of the most multiculturally diverse states in the country, with over 50% of our citizens belonging to one or multiple ethnic groups. Our students deserve to have a social studies curriculum that fully encapsulates that diversity and explains how race, systemic racism, and bias have been contributing factors to the making of America.

In order to be successful in teaching our students about the history of our country in issues related to race and oppression, we must separate facts from opinions. We must be aware of the implicit biases that exist by those who oppose a comprehensive social studies standard that includes our racial history. We must also be cognizant of how these teachings will only help our students understand history from all perspectives which may be currently shaping their lived experiences as a person of color in America. There is no downside to telling the truth.

Supported by,

Cathryn McGill
Executive Director

Rodney Bowe
Co-Chair

Marjorie Germain
Co-Chair

Mason Graham
Project Lead and Policy Analyst

[EXTERNAL] Written Comment - Proposed Social Studies Standards

Viridiana Cisneros <viridiana.cisneros@aps.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:04 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Susana Johnson <sijohnso@nmsu.edu>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

Please find attached a letter on behalf of the Bilingual Multicultural Education Advisory Council (BMEAC) regarding the proposed Social Studies Standards.

Sincerely,

Viridiana Cisneros and Susana-Ibarra Johnson, BMEAC Co-Chairs

BME Advisory Council

November 12, 2021

Bilingual Multicultural Education Advisory Council

Chairs

Dr. Susana Ibarra-Johnson
New Mexico State University

Viridiana Cisneros
Albuquerque Public Schools

Members

Adrian Sandoval
New Mexico Highlands University

Armando Chavez
Deming Public Schools

Dr. Berlinda Begay
Central Consolidated School District

Dawn Salazar
Chama Valley Independent Schools

Geni Flores
Eastern New Mexico University

Maricela Duarte-Stern
Las Cruces Public Schools

Mayra Lucero
Ruidoso Municipal School District

Dr. Suzanne Jacquez-Gorman
Santa Fe Public Schools

To PED Public Comment, Social Studies Standards

The Bilingual Multicultural Education Advisory Council (BMEAC) stands in full support of the proposed new Social Studies Standards for the state of New Mexico public school curriculum. We believe that all cultures and ethnicities should be represented in the curriculum of our public schools and that our collective history is relevant for understanding our world today and our advancement into the future.

Most of us are educators, and we have taught inclusive history in our respective classrooms. We have found that students respect history and social studies when it is truthful and when it accurately represents multiple perspectives. Students of Native American, Latino, and African American heritage gain investment in school when they see themselves represented in the curriculum. Many experience an increased appreciation for school when they learn that their ancestors fought for their right to be in the same school as the dominant culture. Contrary to many concerns expressed by the dominant culture/language majority groups, our experience tells us that the language majority/dominant group students appreciate learning about the struggles of their peers of color through history and into the present, and rather than becoming marginalized, they become empowered to work toward equity, inclusivity, and social justice.

In light of the above, we view the proposed standards as a positive response to the Yazzi/Martínez lawsuit. The proposed standards help to create a more inclusive curriculum to engage underserved populations in New Mexico schools to inspire and engage them in meaningful, relevant, and accurate representations of history to support and promote their learning and completion of coursework at all grade levels.

We are proud to express our full support for the proposed social studies standards, and we look forward to implementing them in our classrooms very soon.

Sincerely,

The Bilingual Multicultural Education Advisory Council

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment

Joni Long <jmlong1135@protonmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To New Mexio Public Education Department,

As parents to three publicly educated children in the state of New Mexico, I am deeply concerned regarding the proposed social studies standards. Yes, I do agree that social studies standards need to be updated, however the updates the PED is suggesting and attempting to implement are dangerous to say the least. We are proud New Mexican's, trying to raise our children to be respectful, independent, honest, hard—working members of society. We raise our children to be proud of who they are and where they come from. We raise our children to not be victims and to always strive to do better. We will not allow you to indoctrinate our children. They will not be taught to believe they are victims or that they are oppressors. They will not have their "identity" molded into what you believe. We raise our children with the values, morals and expectations that are important to our family, not your government.

This new standard is filled with very one sided, divisive language. Language such as social justice, equitable inclusion, power and oppression is used to create division amongst our children, not unity. We recognize acts committed in our past, as a nation, have not always reflected our founding beliefs and principles. However, we continue to this day to learn from the past mistakes. We are parents do not "candy coat" our nation's past with our children. With that being said, we do not need the public education system to continue to suggest otherwise.

Josh and Joni Long

Jmlong1135@protonmail.comSent with ProtonMail Secure Email.

[EXTERNAL] Support of New Social Studies Standards

Nick Porter <porternick@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

I am a parent and a teacher who is aware that the New Mexico Social Studies State Standards are being updated to be more justice-oriented. I support this decision and believe in integrating ethnic studies into the curriculum, teaching accurate history that is inclusive of marginalized people, teaching about oppression, and humanizing oppressed people to avoid perpetuating racism and stereotypes. Thank you for working to make history education in New Mexico more just and anti-racist.

Sincerely,

Nicholas Porter

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Rosalie Cuellar-Hatcher <cuellarrosalie@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:12 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am appalled at the proposed standards regarding Critical Race Theory (CRT) being incorporated into the Social Studies standards by the Public Education Department. CRT is a worldview that seeks to divide our nation into two groups: victims and oppressors. The United States' legal system is one in which people are innocent until proven guilty. CRT promotes the opposite; people are guilty until proven innocent. Also, CRT uses this backwards idea in judging history. Those guilty under CRT are long dead and cannot speak for themselves. Regarding history, we have to judge by the results of the ideas borne from the US Constitution, separation of church and state (meaning government stays out of church), the three branches of government, and the checks and balances in place. Historically, the results have been freedom and liberty not enjoyed in most other countries. Women are able to forge their own road without being dependent on men. People of color have access to education, can start a business, and build a life resulting in prosperity for themselves and their children. CRT promotes prejudice based on skin color. For example, people who look white must be privileged, and people who look black must be oppressed. It creates false groups and the emotions one would feel being told one is either a victim or an oppressor.

CRT promotes the false expectation of equity. Equity as defined by NACE (n.d.), "The term "equity" refers to fairness and justice and is distinguished from equality: Whereas equality means providing the same to all, equity means recognizing that we do not all start from the same place and must acknowledge and make adjustments to imbalances. The process is ongoing, requiring us to identify and overcome intentional and unintentional barriers arising from bias or systemic structures." Teaching this to children again promotes the idea each person is either a victim or oppressor and is inappropriate in the classroom. Our children must be taught they should expect EQUALITY under the law. Equality under the law already addresses instances in which a person is faced with any type of discrimination. Justice is sought through those means.

The reality of this world is that we all do not start from the same place and some of us must put forth more effort to attain our goals. That is what strengthens a person. US institutions must practice equality by providing the same to all and leaving it up to the individual how much effort will be used in taking advantage of the same tools provided to everyone else. As a person of color, I abhor the idea my children are victims. The truth is, in the US, my children have access to the same opportunities as everyone else, and it is up to them to use those opportunities to build their lives. This is what the children in our country deserve and should expect.

Children must be taught history in its entirety. They must be exposed to the good and ugly parts of history and use critical thinking to learn it without the emotionalism and division the CRT worldview promotes. Stop promoting this farce notion that our children are victims or oppressors. Our children must be taught from history how those before them fought to maintain equality under the law.

Reference

National Association of Colleges and Employers (NACE), (n.d.). Equity. <https://www.naceweb.org/about-us/equity-definition/>

Regards,
Rosalie Cuellar

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the DRAFT NM K-12 Social Studies Standards

Rick Mooday <rmooday@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:13 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Lia Brodnax <LiaBrodnax@msn.com>; Teddie Sue Mooday <tstrunning@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please find my comments on this proposed Social Study standards attached. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Comments on DRAFT-Pre Rule New Mexico Social Study Standards

Rick Mooday

rmooday@gmail.com

Physical address available by request

Thank you for the opportunity to make comments on these standards. I am commenting on the October version contained at the following website

https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/wp-content/uploads/2021/09/21-15540-Draft-NM-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-8_31_21-508-fmt.pdf

A little about myself. I grew up in a small mid-western town, received an outstanding public school education, am a military veteran and have a PhD in Chemical Engineering from a top 5 State School. I am a resident in Los Alamos NM. I am not a teacher or an education professional. My terms may not align with educational standards but I know what a good education is. Our public schools should teach the subjects that are defined for them to the level prescribed, enabling each and every student to apply that knowledge in their life. This curriculum fails to achieve the goals parents and society have for their children.

The faulty foundation of these standards is effectively related on Page 9. Here, without reference, the “guiding principles” underwriting their development is summarized in eight (8) bullets. These principles are wholly seated in progressiveness, post-modernist thinking and Marxist ideologies. These concepts and “guiding principles” are explicitly adopted from Critical Race Theory (CRT – derived according to the earlier Critical Theory - CT) concepts/ideas and are saturated with this horrific ideological movement’s ideas and buzz words.

Some of the “principles” that are derived from and directly related to CRT propaganda have the following characteristics:

- Seeing history through the simple lens of power and oppression, creating victims with permanent grievances.
- Prioritizing history by long-term effects, effectively ignoring real-time practical considerations, constraints and threats
- Minimizing at least, and ignoring at worst, Western/American culture at the expense of other cultures. Western culture, in many ways led by the USA, was the main driver in eliminating slavery from most of the world. Other cultures are glorified above it and at its expense. Hating America is a goal of this curriculum.
- Motivating children to see themselves as members of groups whose main contribution is their “identity group” and “cultural integrity” instead of the “content of their character”. This concept is in direct conflict with our founding which places the individual as the ultimate and most valued member of society.

- Enforcing “pride” in community and global environments while ignoring the very principles that brought and continues to bring much of the world out of oppression and poverty. Ignoring the culture of unity provided through our national founding principles is clear.
- Seeing culture from a “win-lose” negotiation perspective as if culture is a possession that must be jealously guarded instead of seeing it from a “win-win” perspective, as if it is a valuable characteristic that can lift an entire society.
- Infusing the buzzword “critical” into guiding principles with the purpose of conflating the common meaning with their intended ideological meaning (“critical thinking” and “critical historical consciousness” have been adopted to be buzzwords of the current version of this newly minted Marxist thinking)

I see in this document countless areas where hyper-political ideologies are inserted into what is supposed to be a study of social interactions and developments among humans throughout history. This standard is completely inadequate to its purpose. It is clearly intended to indoctrinate all public school students to revisionist history and instill in them a completely faulty, progressive and post-modern worldview. It must be rejected in its current form. A new standard must be developed whose goal is not to indoctrinate children with skewed adult political ideologies.

I cannot dedicate the time required to exhaustively review this document but I will point out several shortcomings that are shocking and destructive enough to support my position that this standard must be rejected and completely reworked if it is to serve our children. They deserve MUCH better than this.

I did a set of simple word searches in the standard. I looked for the words “freedom”, “group” and “identity” in this standard. Here is what I found.

- 1) The word “freedom” appears only twice (2) in this document. One of those uses concerns “...freedoms of the environment.”, whatever that is. The most foundational attribute in steering modern civilized human interactions in history has been relegated to a single reference in this K-12 standard for Social Studies in New Mexico. If these standards are adopted, it is no wonder New Mexico sits dead last in education among American States.
- 2) The words “identity” and “group” appear a total of 185 times. If you do not accept my characterization that this document elevates the importance of the member groups and identities of people above the importance of the individual, search for what is prioritized in this document yourself. The Founders of our country did not confer rights to groups or identity groups, they conferred them to each and every Person. This document eliminates one of the most foundational principles of our nation and replaces it with the same ideas, though rebranded, that socialists and Marxists used in the 20th century to kill over 100 million people.

Further, the CRT propaganda applied to the very young knows no limits. Standard K.25 states

“...the student is able to : Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.”

A kindergartener should not be asked to see themselves or history through the political lens of “their main identity groups”. Five year olds need not be taught cultural perspectives in such a divisive and hyper-political manner. Five years olds should be individuals, with self-worth being a vital component of their education. Teachers should not be forced to teach this crippling perspective. Seeing culture and enjoying the diverseness of it should not be taught via an US vs THEM perspective. These disgusting and activist building ideologies must be stripped out of what is taught to toddlers/elementary students.

Standard 2.28, under “Multi-Identity Interactions” states:

“...the student is able to: Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.”

This standard requests 2nd grade students to create explicitly racist perspectives and encourages them to observe American excellence and merit only through racist and victimization lenses. This racism is a well-known and poorly hidden foundation of CRT. Simply put, their goal is to use racism to get rid of racism (yes, illogical and idiotic). Only a racist can describe a person (WHO THEY DO NOT KNOW) based on their identity or lack of identity. Our very foundation and most morally founded ideologies hold that people are NOT really that different and we all thirst for freedom and rights. The entire story of this country and culture is that stark differences did not hold it back. In fact, our foundations enabled us (as a nation) to lead the world to this better place it is in. America and its western values led the fight to end slavery worldwide. It was the only nation to end slavery with a divisive civil war that almost destroyed it. This standard dedicates an entire theme to “Multi-Identity Interactions” glorifying differences that should be minimized and ignoring the unity that is America. Of course, this plan is to establish the “oppressor and oppressed” power balance theme later.

A series of High School Freshman standards (9-12 US53, 9-12 US87, 9-12 US103 and 9-12 US121) present, as foundational aspects of Social Studies, changing gender roles, gender norms, gender rights, feminism and other movements. These subjects are narrowly presented and glorified without developing or even discussing original and millennia old sex and gender roles and their foundations. The moral questions behind these vital adult issues sexually oriented issues are ignored. Here is evidence of the hyper-sexual activism that has become part of today’s educational system. Pride day events for 5-9 year old children is happening today in New Mexico schools. This continued pushing of inappropriate adult themes and agendas on toddlers and pre-pubescent children is destructive and totally inappropriate.

The final areas I feel I must discuss is the demoted position given to the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights in these standards. The Declaration of Independence is only mentioned twice in K-12 Social Studies. The five words in that document that were used to end slavery in America and were central to its (almost) end worldwide are not even mentioned. If any topic is worthy of inclusion in K-12 Social Studies, the concept that “All men are created equal” surely is. These words were an important foundation of the multi-decade worldwide effort to end the slave trade at the end of the 18th and beginning of the 19th centuries (eg. British led West Africa Squadron). They were used to end slavery in the USA in 1865 and outlaw systems of racism in America in the Civil Rights Act of 1964, enabled by the tireless work of Dr. King. This document more than any other, underwrites the pre-eminence of America in the world. How can the Social Studies curriculum described in these standards attract minority immigrants to the southern border by the ten thousands if America is founded on racism?

The Bill of Rights is only mentioned in two standards in this document and those discussions are in the 5th and 8th grade. Such an elevated topic deserves mention at the HS level. The main topic discussed in the 8th grade standard is “what is missing”. It presents an exceptionally simplistic interpretation of the Bill of Rights as a completely flawed document. It is not that. The incredible acts of leadership and foresight our Founders exhibited to actually found a country on high principles (that were not being lived up to at the time) and obtain unity behind those principles when half of the nation practiced slavery is ignored. The monumental struggle between Federalists and Anti-Federalists as they worked for 11 years to iron out a constitution. You may say these are subject for the standards on History and I might agree. But accurate and complete presentation of these foundational ideas must be included since they guided social development in the modern world. Only in a context of these ideas is it possible for anyone to understand the world today.

To close, this document requires complete revision. It must be stripped of CRT ideology. As I discussed earlier, the goal of CRT is to engender grievance mentalities in every group accessible. These “grieved” groups then become valuable activists to radicalize others. The logic ignores the reality that the groups supposedly victimized by American hierarchies are far more successful in America than anywhere else in the world. This standard is a clear effort to indoctrinate our children with broken world views and into self-hatred. The pre-eminence of the importance of each every individual (especially our children) must be incorporated into NM K-12 Social Studies curriculum. Only by adopting our proven founding ideals can we recover from the CRT that is already in our schools. We cannot formalize it as this document attempts to do.

[EXTERNAL] Comment on repeal and replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Randy Barron <randy@owldancer.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment, both in writing and via today's live Zoom hearing. The procedure has been clear, fairly administered, and invitational, a refreshing change from many hearings I've observed.

I am writing as a teaching artist with 40 years of classroom experience, 26 years of training and practice with the Kennedy Center's partners across the country, and memberships on multiple state standards-writing committees in three US states. I also work with the Santa Fe Opera's Active Learning Through Opera program and the New Mexico Alliance for Responsive Teaching as a consultant and professional development designer and leader.

This proposed set of replacement Social Studies standards for New Mexico is one of the most thorough and thoughtful I have ever seen. Its main fault, in fact, may be that it is so voluminous, given the scant amount of instructional time in the day for anything besides reading and math. But none of the standards proposed are unimportant. What would be very helpful to educators across the state is if the committee could identify a subset of priority standards that all districts and schools could commit to addressing, then teachers would remain free to expand from that base, but a solid base would be guaranteed.

What will make or break the implementation of these standards is the professional development support that the state and its school districts provide teachers. These standards represent a paradigm shift in perspective. Instead of teaching a fixed set of selective facts, this approach relies on deeper exploration of ideas, history, citizenship, and critical thinking. These are not areas in which we have traditionally done a good job of preparing teachers or assisting them in delivering curriculum. Failure to support these standards with significant professional development that is as thoroughly-thought-out as these standards are would be tragic.

To summarize, I wholeheartedly support this repeal and replace effort, and will work to help integrate these standards into my teaching and consulting efforts.

With appreciation,

Randy Barron (he, him)

Writing from the ancestral lands of the Pueblo and Jicarilla Apache peoples

Tecolote, New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] The Hearing in Progress

Rusty Armstrong <outlook_9B61159A86C1B1D1@outlook.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We have listened to one hour and so far heard nothing at all from anyone about the idea of students “learning” our history, “learning” how our government works, “learning” about the heroes of our Republic. In my opinion, if we pursue this line of “non-education” we will secure our position as LAST-NUMBER 51.

On the subject of taking the power away from the local school board and granting it to the state, I am strongly apposed. I believe in local control, decisions made by the local community. The school board members are elected by the local community. Why is our Department of Education afraid of the local community’s control. Outside of illegal and/or criminal behavior the local school board should be just that-local.

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] PLEASE SUPPORT the new Social Studies Standards!

maureen murphy <maurmurphy@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:15 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

I have been an educator in NM public schools for 30 years. I have worked at schools in NM cities, in rural areas and on also on various Pueblos. I have taught at all levels - in elementary schools, mid schools, and high schools. Wherever I have worked, I have observed the natural, intense curiosity students feel about people from cultures other than their own. I have also observed how students' lack of understanding about other cultures has contributed to gross misunderstandings, miscommunication and hurtful stereotyping among student groups.

We are so fortunate to have this opportunity to advance our students' understanding of historical events from different cultural perspectives! Everyone deserves to have their stories told. Trust and understanding among people is based on knowing each other's history and understanding the events that have shaped their present views and values.

The future will bring challenging and complex issues for our students to solve. It will require trust and understanding among people who come from many different backgrounds and histories.

We can help prepare our students for the future by allowing them to openly examine our history and understand how historical events impacted and shaped the various cultural groups within our state. It will help students understand that despite our different backgrounds, we can and we do work together to ensure that we live up to our democratic ideals.

Will the language used in these texts be important? Absolutely. It will be CRITICAL. If it demonizes any specific group, if it portrays any specific group as helpless victims, if it exults any specific group, then it will have defeated its purpose. The voice of these texts must be one that honestly reports the facts and invites open dialogue, but is also accompanied by a sense of compassion and humility in knowing that we who are living today and faced with difficult choices, will one day ALSO have our histories read and analyzed by students in a classroom.

IN CONCLUSION, PLEASE SUPPORT THE NEW STANDARDS FOR SOCIAL STUDENTS. I BELIEVE IT WILL POSITIVELY IMPACT OUR STUDENTS' LIVES.

Most Sincerely,
Maureen J. Murphy

[EXTERNAL] SS Standards

Laura J. Hobbs <lhobbs@montedelsol.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My comment today is in support of the new proposed Social Studies Standards. Our state has always had a diverse population. Our student population is becoming even more diverse. The History and stories of all New Mexicans will be heard when teachers address the new Standards. Let all voices, traditions and cultures be honored. We who are many will be taught to be as one.

Laura Jeanne Hobbs, Substitute Teacher, Monte del Sol Charter School, Santa Fe

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Bonnie Korman <bkorman@newmex.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Public Education Dept.—

We write today to strongly support the new Social Studies Standards project.

Our now adult children attended all 12 years of public schools in Taos. While they often had some great teachers, the overall standard of NM, and Taos public schools, have always lagged behind the rest of the nation.

The current social studies standards in New Mexico was last revised in 2009. It's past time to bring the current issues and curriculum into the 3rd decade of the 21st century.

As we are currently experiencing a national crisis in values, in trust, and in general civics and the meaning of civil society, only excellent public education can begin to address the complex situation. We must count on the new generations to show the way to a sane and informed citizenry. By strengthening our school curriculums, we will go a long way to bringing up the standards of our state in many areas. It's time.

After a lifetime in New Mexico, we are very interested and enthusiastic about this proposed upgrade to the schools' Social Studies programs.

Thank you for considering our comments.

Respectfully,
Bonita Korman and Robert Bishop
Taos

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment

Katie Spaeth <kspaeth2@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:24 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Policy Division,

I would like to make a public comment regarding the proposed rule changes to Social Studies Standards. I am a parent of a currently home-schooled child. However, my child was in the public school system last year, but because of mask-mandates we have removed her for this year. My husband and I have thought about allowing her to return to public school if/once mask-mandates are dropped, but if the proposed changes to Social Studies are implemented we will NOT be returning her to public school in the future.

I have read all 122 pages of the proposed changes and vehemently OPPOSE it. No where in all of these pages does it give examples of the books that will be used in the new curriculum. Parents have no way to examine what will exactly be taught before these new changes are approved. Further, the proposal seems very one-sided. I have not seen any language suggesting that kids will get the chance to hear the other side, whether good or bad.

Some areas I would oppose and have questions regarding how this would be exactly taught to our kids:

1. Page 104 states, "Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States." This assumes that America does not currently have a just system and that it needs to be changed. Would students be allowed to determine whether we already have such a system in place? What resources would be used to teach such a divisive topic?
2. Page 106 states, "Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920's America." This should not even be a topic. Again PED is giving very little information on exactly what would be taught under that umbrella. There is no way to know whether schools would also be teaching other ideas including the fact that only two genders exist. Also found on page 103 the role of sexuality. Not even a relevant topic for history.
3. Page 111, states, "Examine history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future." Would this history include the history of the 2nd amendment? Would this include the study of the depravity of man and why people commit gun crimes?
4. Also on page 111 it states, "Examine the anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present." Another divisive topic. PED is again assuming America is against immigrants. Still parents cannot determine whether this curriculum would include other ideas about why some people are against others coming into this country, which include crossing the border legally vs. illegally, how it might affect crime rates and drug problems. Would there be included in this topic studying immigrants who have committed heinous crimes? Automatically titling that topic anti-immigrant sentiment is wrong.
5. Page 122 states, "Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement." This is the most divisive topic I found in this proposal. This has undertones of racism and tries to point out that America is racist. PED claims they are not going to implement critical race theory but here is it in print. This topic will divide children and make them feel like they don't have certain opportunities in this country based on their background or race and that certain professions are privileged. This is very wrong. They will be taught to believe that certain race groups have more opportunities than others which is undeniably a lie. Further, on page 31, speaking about curriculum in third grade, students are supposed to express a positive view of personal identities without making others feel badly, but then in high school, its taught to make students feel bad about their "priviledge." How confusing for the student! Do better PED.

6. Page 57 states, "Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices." There is zero information here about what injustices PED is speaking of and what resources or text is used to further this theory.
7. Page 111 states, "explore the movement against police brutality." A theme throughout this proposal is again no information is given on what exactly will be taught here. What would the students be exploring here? Certainly the schools would be teaching about the movement toward the lack of respect for law enforcement and teaching the students that looting and rioting businesses is a crime and violence is not a way to get the point across. I would hope that this segment would include a gratitude for law enforcement and have examples of what these brave individuals do every day for us and that "police brutality" is an isolated occurrence. Some examples to use for the curriculum should include using case studies of how body cameras have justified police in a high majority of cases. A discussion should be had of how the media doesn't always correctly portray the full story. Using court cases would help give the actual and full story. This is an extremely tough subject for kids whose parents are law enforcement and making them look to be monsters would be a travesty.

I hope that each of you take these public comments very seriously as these changes will affect actual lives and shape our future nation. Please consider not implementing these changes and take each comment and apply it to better change the curriculum.

Thank you,

Katie M. Spaeth

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Yes, Update NM Social Studies curriculum

Mary Carter <carter.mare@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:25 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a human who has spent nearly 70 years on this planet, I've seen a lot of change. Why some Republicans insist on forcing our children remain ignorant about FACTS is beyond me. It's time we brought REASON to the table and include wider perspectives of the past, present and future, not just a straight white male view like most of us had. The world has changed. Voices that were silenced in the past must now be included, giving us a broader and deeper view of our world. I'm all for including the changes recommended. Fear is driving the opposition and we should all know from studying history that when fear rules, democracy dies.

Mary Carter

Albuquerque, New Mexico

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] Comment on new standards

Glenn Landers <glenn.landiers@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I want to commend the PED for putting out these new standards. Our students deserve historical accuracy and inclusiveness in their classes. Thank you for the thoughtful work that went into the development of the standards.

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Standards Personal Feedback

Guy Archambeau <guy.archambeau@gccs.k12.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:37 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

rule.feedback@state.nm.us

John Sena

Policy Division,,

New Mexico Public Education

Re: Social Studies: Opinion on New Social Standards

I reject any and all claims that have been made by rightwing elements of New Mexico that the recent draft of social standards represents racism. They are seeking to hide a factual portrayal of U.S. History which finally speaks the truth about the genocide, the racism, and the discrimination that was a substantial part of what America is all about.

Yes there are great things about America. The U.S. Constitution and the amendments gave this country guidance to treat one another equally, to freely speak our minds, to assure our citizen rights in voting for our elected leaders. Other protections have been developed over time. And yet, our country began with slavery, subjugation, and slaughter. Our country considered American Indians to be savages and unworthy of keeping the land upon which they lived. Slavery began with Christopher Columbus. Native and black people were considered nonhuman and chattel to be bought, sold, and raped. We have lost forever men, women, and children who were removed from their families, never to return, to not know their own names, to not live free.

New Mexico history cannot deny that Native Americans lived here throughout time immemorial. A special relationship between Mother Earth and Native peoples was understood to be the basis by which they prospered. We need to build our youth's understanding of how important the earth's natural resources are, how to use them wisely, and protect what we have left, which isn't much.

Both Spanish and American conquest of the southwest took away the rights of Native people to exist on these lands. This continued even after the Treaty of Guadalupe, which ironically began the official American incursion and thievery of both Native and Spanish property interests.

When black people came to New Mexico they also experienced (to this day) the racial discrimination experienced by Native and Spanish people. Racial covenants were imposed. The history of Albuquerque is a clear example of the racist and genocidal mentality of Americans that became a legal part of NM history.

Citizenship rights came only in the last half the previous century. Not willingly of course. The courts had to tell white America that minorities deserved a place at the leadership table.

New Mexico Public Education must resist the demands to whitewash American and New Mexico history. Our youth are intelligent enough to recognize the greatness of America but they also can accept that much of our history has favored certain groups at the expense of others.

Do not cave to the strident emotional and racist demands of the rightwing White supremacists who will deny our multiple heritages-- that supposedly comprises this "land of enchantment" of a unified peoples. They do not want us unified. They want to divide. Historical truths must win out.

Thank you.

Guy Archambeau Ed.D.

11/15/21, 10:51 AM

Mail - FeedBack, Rule, PED - Outlook

PO Box 389

Acoma, New Mexico 87034

Board member - Grants Cibola County Schools

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Luke T. Phillips <bailaormxno@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

I approve of the updated standards. Please do not allow racist rhetoric to derail our democracy. Our great state will only remain so if we teach the lessons from our past, some of which have been wonderful, while others have been shameful. Our children deserve a chance to learn the true history of what my ancestors did to people of color.

Respectfully,
Luke T Phillips
Parent of two lovers of Social Studies, history, and politics.
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards gaile herling <herlinggaile@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

11/12/21

To Whom It Concerns:

As a former SFPS educator, I support the new proposed PED social studies standards in NM. I appreciate its inclusiveness, awareness of race, class and power and attention paid to critical thinking. If we want to build a better democracy in our country, then it starts with learning true history and developing skills to analyze our history.

Thanks for your hard, earnest work.

Gaile Herling

Phone: 505.577.5998

Email: herlinggaile@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] In support of the new Social Studies Standards

Erica Surova <ericasurova@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:44 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a mother of a high school student in Las Cruces Public schools and a former social studies teacher, I support the new standards.

To quote the National Council for Social Studies:

“The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world.”

Our current standards include history, geography, civics, and economics. Including ethnic, cultural, and identity studies aligns with these national standards. By explicitly including these studies, we encourage students to learn how to be better citizens of our country and the global community. It allows children to learn from others who are different from them and decreases the likelihood of them discriminating against others.

We need students to appreciate differences if we expect them to have meaningful interactions with people of all backgrounds. The reality is that we are a diverse society. Our schools include students of a variety of races and ethnicities; as well as students of different religions, abilities, economic status, sexual orientation, gender identity, and language backgrounds. Diversity education should not be seen as a threat but as an asset that creates a more tolerant and loving community.

Thanks for your time and your hard work in creating these standards.

Erica Surova and Indigo Surova (high school student who also supports the new standards)

[EXTERNAL] proposed social studies standards

Maggi Davidson <maggidavidson@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Sirs, Mesdames:

I wish to go on record supporting the proposed social studies standards. It is essential that New Mexico students learn not just facts, but how to think critically about those facts, learn how to find, study, and parse sources of information, and especially, to learn about the history and culture of all of our citizens, and how they contribute to our society. Additionally, I feel it is important for our students to learn how our government works, and how they can participate in that government. Additionally, I believe it is important for our young citizens to recognize the importance of being contributing members of the communities in which they live, to the best of their abilities, and with compassion for all members of those communities. We all, not just our school students, need to learn from the mistakes of our collective past. Without knowledge of history, both the good and the bad, we cannot have a meaningful discussion of how we can make a better future.

Sincerely,

Mary Margaret Davidson

2880 Teresita St

Las Cruces, NM 88005

[EXTERNAL] New Standards

Tanya Critchfield <critchfield_t@aps.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Some concerns in regards to the standards for World History:

- 1) Although it says "may include" the number of things listed for World History are more items than we have class periods with our students making it impossible to cover all in a school year.
- 2) Many of the standards included, include information that should be taught either in NM History or US History.
- 3) Although I applaud the fact that there is more diversity of cultures included, it is too much as it stands right now.
- 4) We keep adding quantity instead of thinking about quality. Students are too overloaded with information since they have been required to take 7 classes. We have less and less instructional time with our students as more things are added like the 7 class period day, advisories that are a waste of time, administering standardized tests etc... You need to choose: quality or quantity. If you keep choosing quantity, then don't be surprised as our students fall further and further behind.
- 5) Implementing new standards next year, and being told that it will just take some extra time this school year in order to get ourselves set up next year is definitely not something that is helping teachers' morale. Every year we are asked to do more and more, and just give a little more, but we are reaching our breaking point. We have no more to give because we've been hearing this refrain for decades. Nothing is ever taken off our plates, just added on, so is it any surprise the amount of teacher vacancies there are throughout the state? Many teachers that are leaving their positions are not leaving their teaching positions for other teaching positions, they are leaving the profession because it has become too much and too overwhelming and frustrating. Adding a change to curriculum and standards in the middle of a pandemic is probably not the best way to help support teachers that are already too overwhelmed with the things that we have to do and how we are treated by society in general.

--

Peace,Tanya Critchfield, BA, MA*AP World History, Rm E217, 243-1458 Ext: 60093*Club Sponsor: Jaguars for Positive Change"Be the change you wish to see in the world." Gandhi

Confidentiality Notice: This e-mail, including all attachments is for the sole use of the intended recipient(s) and may contain confidential and privileged information. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure or distribution is prohibited unless specifically provided under the New Mexico Inspection of Public Records Act. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender and destroy all copies of this message.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Recommendations

Cedric Page <rpage11@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello:

Please address/include the edits to the Standards. Thank you.

Comments on Social Studies Standards by Cedric D. Page, PhD.

2.24: Include maps of Indigenous tribes and nations pre-Columbian times.

4.10: Discuss the Haudenosaunee/Onondaga Nation agreement as forerunner to US Declaration of Independence. The Haudenosaunee consist of the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca, and Tuscarora nations. The Onondaga Nation lies in the middle of the Haudenosaunee territory and is also known as the Central Fire. The Central Fire is a term used to describe Onondaga as a place where the Hoyá•neh (Chiefs) meet in a Grand Council.
<https://americanindian.si.edu/sites/1/files/pdf/education/HaudenosauneeGuide.pdf>

5.27: Discuss the means by which the U.S. acquired and maintains these territories...past and present. 6.41: Add African dynasties...Egyptian and South African, South Asian, Indigenous peoples worldwide.

6.43: Expand to include African, Asian, other Indigenous societies and Central and South American empires contributions that are concurrent with those mentioned.

7.98: Maps are crucial for a visualization of in/out migrations. 8.86: Slave trade????

9.12: Black Towns of SE NM....Blackdom, etc.

9.12.27: Challenges by Reyes Tijerena/Court House event in Rio Arriba county.

Congratulations on the inclusion and prominence of geography through the grade levels addressed by these standards.

Regards,

*Cedric D. Page, PhD.
Professor Emeritus-Geography
UNM Los Alamos
(505) 470-8587*

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Esther Kovari <ekovari@montedelsol.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a Social Studies teacher at Monte del Sol Charter School in Santa Fe. I urge you to adopt the recommendations of Think New Mexico to prioritize the teaching of personal finance to high school students. It is essential for students of this age to understand how to navigate the adult world, so that they can make good decisions and not be taken advantage of.

Thank you, Esther Kovari

--

Esther Kovari, Monte del Sol Charter School

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Support

Stacey Duncan <stduncan@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am writing as a teacher educator for the last fifteen years, to voice my support for the new social studies curriculum. It is beyond time that New Mexico include the reality of our current world in our student's understanding of it, so they can see and learn about themselves and their families' experiences. Having taught multicultural education and the importance of diversity in education to pre-service and in-service teachers for many years, I have seen firsthand the misunderstandings of history expressed in these classes, and how such further contributes to the divides in our society and only reproduces the inequity and ignorance these courses are meant to address. We are living in an unimagined time in history with technological and social changes seemingly every second, and the fact that NM has not updated the curriculum in twenty years only lends to exactly why our students and education system is so far behind the rest of the nation. Teaching about racism in history and diverse identities in society is not indoctrination, it is critical information and awareness that we need more than ever not only in our schools, but our communities to give us insight into our present and future. As George Santayana wisely wrote nearly a hundred years ago, "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

Thank you.

Dr. Stacey Duncan, Director

MSC 3AC, PO Box 30001

New Mexico State University

Las Cruces, NM 88003

(575) 323-1861

stduncan@nmsu.edu<https://nmsu.zoom.us/my/dr.stacey.duncan>

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards

Vanessa Harvey MS CCC-SLP <vanessa@atsnm.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org <socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Social studies

My personal understanding of social studies has always related to civics , government and history. We learned the events of history through the lens of historical events lending to the development of students as individuals that attempt to be a good citizens.

History teaches itself- just the facts. One can't read about the Trail of Tears, Womens Suffrage, or the Civil Rights movement and not understand the depth of inequality and disparities of justice that is a part of our collective past as a country. As with life- mistakes were made and will be made. Learning about history and the role of government in our lives and our civic duties as legal citizens helps us not to repeat those mistakes.

Women in Education NM is a great book I read this summer. If we took away the so called Eurocentric focus in our social studies standards, how many of those influential educators would be left out? Somehow- we have squandered all these women did to bring education to our state before our statehood even. What would they think today to see New Mexico rated as 51st in education!?! (Forbes).

I am fully on board with teaching the facts of history, good or bad. I am not on board with changing standards just to meet so called equity demands. Parents should parent and teachers should teach. And add that book to the reading list!

Vanessa Harvey -Artesia NM

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Reaction to Proposed Social Studies State Standards

Jacqueline Sánchez <jasagneda@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Jacqueline Sanchez, and I'm writing as a former student of New Mexico Public Schools.

I support the proposed changes to the Social Studies State Standards. New Mexico's children are incredibly diverse, and they deserve a Social Studies curriculum that reflects that diversity. Bringing diverse, multiethnic viewpoints into a Social Studies classroom will strengthen the ties between these children and their education. A white only viewpoint of history won't connect with children in New Mexico, because many of these children don't have a white only viewpoint of the present day world.

Furthermore, I believe that one of the most important jobs that an educator has is teaching children how to recognize the truth for themselves. For too long, Social Studies standards in New Mexico focused on the viewpoints of those in power, and did not provide enough opportunities for children to engage with history and think critically about it. With these updated standards, educators will have a chance to impart a multifaceted history to students, one that more accurately portrays the truth of the historical record. Presenting a multifaceted view of history to children will invite them to ask more questions, and this should be encouraged. They will be able to develop better critical thinking skills, and learn to discern truth for themselves.

As I just stated, the standards put forth have the aim of trying to teach children a more complete version of history, and that history includes important stories about racism and oppression. Teaching children the objective truth about racism in this country does not teach them to be oppressed. Rather, it gives them the critical thinking skills that will help them become active and informed citizens.

Going forward, I hope that in the future the standards are revised to include an even more diverse picture of history, particularly with further inclusion of indigenous voices.

Thank you.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standard & Benchmark revision

Judy Rabon <judy.rabon@alamogordoschools.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon. Thank you for allowing and considering feedback regarding the current proposed changes. I am a lifelong New Mexican, retired NM teacher, Democrat & School Board Member. I understand the need for revisions and updates and have been part of this process during my career as a NM educator. My great concern is that with the current division of our country and fear and misinformation being circulated among citizen groups and through the media, why would the State of NM be a part of a continued battle among New Mexicans?

So many of our citizens, at this time, are focusing their hate, fear and lack of information at our teachers and schools. Most importantly in NM schools right now, is keeping in class learning available to our students and catching our students up after the COVID shutdown of in person learning. This proposal, at this time, is a huge distraction.

My question is, what is the rush? With a great deal of citizens (half) uncomfortable with the proposed changes and directing the discomfort at our teachers, why would you press this through. Have we learned nothing from the Nov. 2021 election? Look at the Virginia Governor's race. It was decided on with CRT, perceived or real, as the factor that decided the race. Many citizens feel uncomfortable and fearful about these changes. Time is often a healer and in my opinion, that is what is needed in New Mexico.

There is much at risk to our State and schools if these proposals are rushed through at this very difficult time in our country. Please, let's do what is best for our schools and let tempers settle.

Respectfully,
Judy Rabon
Alamogordo

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Karen Phillips <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty. This is so important in New Mexico!

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Karen Phillips
2109 Avenida de las Alturas
Santa Fe, NM 87505

[EXTERNAL] Opposition to New Social Studies Standards

Jerret Turner <jerret@hey.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Jerret Turner and as a parent of two high school students I'm concerned about the proposed social studies standards. The standards seem to point out differences in people with the intent to divide and shame people for their immutable characteristics.

9-12 Civ. 40 - analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them. Historic inequalities is the history standard? What does a historic inequality have to do with civics?

9-12 WH.34 - Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout the world history, including but not limited to; construction of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.

What is a construction? Is it OK if a white male Christian thinks he's dominant and that's OK? What are the consequences of shaming students? Will teachers be held responsible when sued by parents?

This is overt prejudice. This will create an atmosphere of shame, judgment, and right and wrong that's based on immutable traits.

Parents in NM do not want this in our schools and taught to our kids. Changes have to be made before this is implemented. The Artesia Social Studies Department has submitted balanced edits of the proposed standards to reflect more concrete teaching and discussion of the proposed standards in a way that reflects how history should be taught.

Regards

- Jerret Turner

[EXTERNAL] No racist social studies hgdavis <hgdavis@protonmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

No to CRT, Equity, Identity, victims, oppressors, segregation, hate and suspicion or the idea of systemic anything in our schools!

We don't need "social studies" in school. Teach Civics and how government works, citizen rights and responsibilities, honest history with the bad and the good, geography, languages and basics--reading, writing, arithmetic and math as well as real science, computer skills including internet self defense, and physical activity instead.

I do not believe some of the backward and totally ignorant things I hear from people who go or went to New Mexico schools. Fix it.

H.G. Davis
Grants

Sent from ProtonMail mobile

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Jeremy MOORE <themooresalbq@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:53 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

I don't believe that teaching my children to feel guilty about things that have happened in the past that they had no control over benefits them or society in any way.

Thank you
Jeremy Moore

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies curriculum public comment

Linda Bennett <lbennett@bacavalley.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:55 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I do not think that critical race theory should be taught in New Mexico public schools. I do think it is important to strive to treat all students fairly and justly in our public schools. All American citizens have equal rights as provided by and stated in our United States Constitution. To me the important thing is to protect our citizenship rights and recognize the importance that all should be treated with equality. Our schools probably need to do a better job of teaching what is in our Constitution to all public school students.

Sincerely,
Linda M. Bennett
Raton, NM

[EXTERNAL] Comment: 21-15540-Draft-NM-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-8_31_21-508-fmt-2.pdf

Bill Tiwald <vhtiwal@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Ladies/Gentlemen,

I have finished a 19 year public high school and charter school teaching career. I find the proposed 21-15540-Draft-NM-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-8_31_21-508- hit a sweet spot for students. They provide opportunity in the classroom for development of critical thinking skills while at the same time promoting both individual development and a context for greater community. I've been watching the long public comment period and wish to congratulate you on your fortitude.

Bill Tiwald,
Highland High School and Los Puentes Charter School - Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards proposal

Sara Sanders <sara_sands1980@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

Thank you for allowing me to express my opinion on the proposed social studies standards. I am a mother to 4 Los Alamos Public School children, I am an alumni of the Los Alamos Public Schools, I have a Master's degree in secondary education, and I have experience teaching in middle schools, high schools, and at a university.

I do not oppose accurate history being taught and am glad to see that aspect being included. That being said, I oppose the alarming level of divisiveness being incorporated into the standards. I also have a concern about the level of political bias being pushed onto my children. As a parent it is my right and responsibility to instill my values and beliefs into my children. The school's role is to discuss history, not push a political narrative. I hate to pull my children from their schools because they love their teachers and friends, but I will do what I need to in order to protect my children from being taught that they are born racists and oppressors.

I also do not approve of LGBTQ being taught to any students under 7th grade. I do not want sexual conversations brought into the classrooms of such young children (gay or straight). That conversation is MY job. My role. I want to control that discussion.

Do not take the rights of parents away or we will push back.

Thank you,

Sara Sanders

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards Letter

Jessica Bollema <jessica@artesiachamber.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 2:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I know this might be too late, but I have attached my letter for you all to please review regarding the proposed Social Studies Standards.

Jessica Bollema
Communications Coordinator
Artesia Chamber of Commerce
107 N. 1st Street
O: 575.746.2744
C: 575.910.3851
artesiachamber.com
Facebook: @ArtesiaChamber
Insta: @ArtesiaCoC

Mr. John Sena,

I have been pondering my letter to you all for quite some time regarding the proposed changes to the Social Studies standards. There are so many points that I can make regarding why these should not be instated, including the fact that the word “oppressed” and the like is used in ways it should not be used. This fact alone shows that a dictatorship type of feel has been placed in these standards. What does the State of New Mexico pledge say?? Well, one of the phrases in it is ”...Among United Nations.” Not “Oppressed nations.” Not “different groups in a nation.” It’s UNITED!! Why are these standards so divisive? Are you trying to re-instate slavery? These standards would start that slippery slope of black vs white, men vs. women, poverty vs. wealthy, and so on and so forth. From what I understand as a parent, there is not even a social studies standardized test that is given at any grade level, so what I propose is that a lot of this information be left to be taught at home. Much of this is Critical Race Theory and does not belong in these lower levels. Why can’t this be taught in college like it has been for years? These whole social studies standards seem like they are trying to take the “What if’s” of this college course where adults think critically about things like “How would the United States be different today if we would have lost WWII?” and trying to make a curriculum out of it. Critical Thinking is just that – it’s a “What if” type of thinking to learn about history but also to think outside the box. But when you ask a Kindergartener to describe ways they are similar to their classmates and ways they are not.... You’re just asking for the bullying to begin. They will start talking about skin color and clothing that is ragged and that is just not a good way of thinking to put into these kids heads at such a young age. At our kindergarten school the kids are in classrooms that are based off of animals so they can identify their classroom when they can’t read the teacher’s name, so I would rather them all be Lions or Penguins or even Eager Beavers as the whole school’s mascot than be so divisive. I really hope your committee of Social Studies teachers can please take all of these letters into consideration and please revise them so that we don’t start racism in our state. I know it’s a problem and will always be a problem I am sure, but this will not make it any better. Please consider revising the divisive characteristics these standards are portraying. Thank you!

Here is one example from Standard 6.15 that states “Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.” How about something like this instead “Describe how family history and culture connects us to the collective history and culture of other people.” I think this one standard could be changed and then we could eliminate 6.16 and 6.20 and 6.22.

Again, that is just one example, but going from 26 pages to 129 pages is super hard and frustrating to get all of the changes I would like to make, but I feel that many of these are just too long and too divisive. I will say it again....our state is LAST in education, please don’t add this critical race theory to their plates...let’s focus on getting our testing scores up and becoming a better state AMONG UNITED NATIONS!!!!

Lastly, I beg you to please allow us to see what changes you make if any are made before it goes into law!

Thank you for listening.

[EXTERNAL] social studies standards in New Mexico rlbcsw13@aol.com <rlbcsw13@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:01 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide public comment.

I agree with the proposed changes. It is important for students to see diverse perspectives on history and I believe that inclusion of the valuable contributors of our American history include indigenous people and LGBTQ people. Teaching our children a full, accurate and updated history will prepare our students to be informed citizens.

I would request the inclusion of Personal Finance Standards. As one of five states in this country that does not include personal finance in the education standards we do a disservice to our students when we do not offer them essential skills in the area of budgeting, checking and saving accounts, credit, interest, investments and the cost of borrowing.

Thank you,
Renata Witte

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Standards

María Cristina Lopez <mclv2sf@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

I'm writing in support of the proposed social studies standards. I am a retired Spanish professor from the Santa Fe Community College. In addition to language and culture I found myself teaching New Mexico history and culture which I love but was upset to find out the Santa Fe public schools had not done their job. How are we going to have successful New Mexican graduates if they don't know where they come from? If they are not taught to think critically, encouraged to question, and value themselves and their families.

The proposed social studies standards will fill in many of the unfortunate historical and cultural gaps suffered by the past generations.

Maria Cristina Lopez
NM Certified Interpreter and Translator
1614 Ben Hur Dr
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on Social Studies Standards

Christine P. Sims <csimsacoma@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am submitting my comments regarding the proposed revision of the social studies standards. I was invited to the preliminary envisioning meetings for new standards along with many of my Native scholar colleagues. I believe that all of us entered into these discussions with the belief that the state of New Mexico's education department was finally going to move forward some substantive work on revising existing content standards that had not been updated for years and which have shown to be absent regarding many contemporary topics that are important to ensuring our students are kept up to date on current events. The revision work that ensued was also representative of many New Mexico-based scholars who know well the history of this state and who are representative of the very groups that have often been left out of curriculum content that we currently have in our schools and classrooms.

I believe that these revisions were made with careful thought and deliberation to ensure that the curriculums we use in New Mexico are more appropriately representative of our state's diverse cultures and that the history of this state be accurately presented in ways that will encourage students to be reflective and critical thinkers of what they learn and observe in today's world. There are many more reasons that many of my colleagues will undoubtedly present in favor of these standards but I wanted to make sure that I voiced my approval of these standards in light of the increasing political pressures and unfounded misinformation that is being fomented by different groups and individuals who do not know or understand why these revisions are critically needed. Please stand firm in ensuring that this work is not put on the shelf!

Thank You,
Christine P. Sims, Ph.D.
Associate Professor
Dept. of Language, Literacy & Sociocultural Studies

PI/Director, American Indian Language Policy Research and Teacher Training Center College of Education
Hokona Hall, Rm #216
University of New Mexico 87131
csimsacoma@aol.com
csims@unm.edu

Fall 2021 Office hours will be held virtually and by appointment only.

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Public Education Department Social Studies Curriculum

Clarence Washington <CWASHI1942@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:04 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Jim Williams <jim@abqconnect.online>; Sonntag Carla <carla@nmbizcoalition.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached are my written comments on the proposed Public Education Department Social Studies Curriculum.

Pastor Clarence Washington
Abundant Life Community Church

Critique of the New Mexico Public Education Department's Proposed Social Studies Curriculum

After reviewing the PED's proposed social studies curriculum, it became blatantly obvious that the PED's critical pedagogy bias disqualifies them from being able to develop an effective social studies curriculum that will produce emotionally stable students and impart to them the social skills that they need to become productive citizens who are able to integrate into our very diverse American culture. This is true K-12.

Pe-da-ga-gi

All the anchor standards for K-12, which includes the six strands identified as: (1) civics, (2) economics, (3) geography, (4) history, (5) ethnic, cultural, and identity standards, and (6) inquiry—all of these strands have anchor standards or performance indicators, which indicate what a student must know, that are rooted and grounded in race, cultural, and gender identity and the Marxist critical race theory concept of equity or equal results instead of equal opportunity as Dr. Martin Luther King proclaimed in his "I Have a Dream" speech. The word "equity" appears in the anchor and performance standards starting in first grade.

And so it appears that Critical pedagogy, as stated on page 1, of the Public Education Department's requirement for Secondary Computer Science teachers, under "Professional Development"—it appears that the Public Education Department will also require that Critical pedagogy be used by social studies curriculum teachers. This is important because critical pedagogy is a philosophy of education and social movement that combines education with critical theory, which is the basis upon which critical race theory was developed. Critical pedagogy, which the Public Education Department has adopted—it insists that issues of social justice and democracy are not distinct from acts of teaching and learning. More importantly, the goal of critical pedagogy is emancipation from oppression through an awakening of the critical consciousness, which is nothing but critical race theory as I said before. They are one in the same. And the goal of critical pedagogy is to focus on reflective assessment and to critique our society and culture in order to reveal and challenge power structures.

And this is a theme that we see running all through the Public Education Department's social studies curriculum. But more than that, we see the words "take action" after reflective assessments and critiques have been prescribed, which seems in my simple minded thinking—like the start of a revolution or the development of young revolutionists by the Public Education Department. The words “take actions” in classrooms, schools, and communities are used over and over again. Reflectively evaluating, analyzing, and examining the American meritocracy for flaws according to a perceived systemic or institutionalized racist America—and then “take actions” is prescribed over and over again by the Public Education Department’s proposed social studies curriculum for all of its anchor and performance standards K–12. This is indeed classic critical race theory pedagogy—which can be described as revealing and challenging power structures according to a perceived racist American system of living after students have been brainwashed with the errant Marxist ideology of equity or equal results for everybody and identity politics!

The focus on critical race theory and the associated concepts of critical pedagogy; racial, cultural, and gender identity; and equity—all of these things are in direct contradiction to the principles that Dr. Martin Luther King proclaimed in his dream of how to fix what is wrong with America. Critical race theory and its associated concepts are deeply dividing the American people instead of bringing us together. Such division and polarization will destroy us from within. And that is what the proposed Public Education Department’s social studies curriculum will do. Dr. King said that we must judge people by the content of their character and not by the color of their skin. He said that we must learn to live together as brothers and sisters or die together like the fools that we will be for hating each other.

He also said that we cannot reach our full potential as human beings as long as we keep on separating ourselves from each other, which is what focusing on race, cultural, and gender identity does. Focusing on identity is the epitome, the personification, the perfect example of how to destroy America from within. For united we stand and divided we shall indeed fall! When the unity of the many various societal groups of a nation in the pursuit of common causes is destroyed, the nation is doomed. And so again I say that this is exactly what the proposed Public Education Department’s social studies curriculum would do. It would work toward our destruction as a state and a nation through the students that the proposed curriculum would deploy into the culture! And so in closing, I have a couple of questions that I want to ask the Public Education Department:

1. How do we teach our youth not to discriminate by discriminating?
How do we teach our youth not to discriminate by teaching them to judge other people by the color of their skin, their culture, or their gender?
2. How do you bring people together by separating them into different groups?
3. What sense does it make to try and make Black people or other people of color feel good about themselves by making White people feel bad about themselves?
4. Why do you think that Black students and other students of color can't learn just as well as White students? Why do you believe that our children need special concessions to do well—when history has proven that all that students of any race need are some academically excellent schools to attend that are not emotionally or spiritually toxic. And then an equal opportunity culture to deploy them into. The systemic barriers that are mentioned on page 2 of the Public Education Department's proposed social studies curriculum are in fact a systemically mediocre and spiritually toxic public school system, which no attempt at some kind of critical race theory program will ever solve. Instead of bringing academic standards down to a lower level, what is needed is to raise the students up to a higher level of academic achievement.
5. Would the proposed social studies civics strand impart to the students the following:
 - number 1: civic knowledge that would give them an understanding of government structure, processes, and concepts according to the content and original intent of the Declaration of Independence, the US Constitution, and the Bill of Rights? And if not, why not?
 - number 2: would the proposed social studies civics strand impart to students civic skills that enable them to participate in a democracy as responsible citizens according to the content and original intent of the Declaration of Independence, the US Constitution, and the Bill of Rights? And if not, why not?
 - number 3: would the proposed social studies civics strand develop in students a sense of civic duty and concern for the welfare of others according to the content and original intent of the Declaration of Independence, the US Constitution, and the Bill of Rights? And if not, why not?

It is my contention after reviewing the proposed curriculum that the Public Education Department's critical race theory pedagogy ideology has so biased the Public Education Department that it has disqualified them from being able to develop a social studies curriculum that would produce emotionally stable students and impart to them the social skills that they need to become productive citizens who are able to effectively integrate into our very diverse American culture. Therefore, their proposed social studies curriculum must be scrapped and if a new one is needed—someone else must develop, supervise, or oversee it!

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

celina dahlin <cdomaha@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please DO NOT replace the current social studies with the one currently proposed.

Regarding the proposed social standards I have quite a few concerns:

1 - There has not been much time for parents to review and have time to comment. While you may think that there has been plenty of time allowed for this step, many of us are working parents and reading through and making sense of 100+ pages of standards is no small feat. It is very overwhelming and many parents I have spoken with have not had the time to read through the standards and compose constructive feedback regarding their concerns. Please allow more time for people to review and submit feedback. I have limited myself to K-5 for now as this is a daunting task that I have been working on during my free time between my family, child's schoolwork, extra curricular activities, and job.

2- Draft Standard K.22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities - This proposed standard asks a 5 year old to identify themselves to a particular group. If the child can't do that, does the teacher then step in and start grouping their students? That is quite a responsibility for a teacher and leaves so much room for personal ideals and opinions to present themselves. I think the wording could be changed to "Communicate a positive view of themselves"

3 - Draft Standard K.23 Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not - change wording to "Describe ways the student is similar and different from other people without making someone feel badly."

4 - Draft Standard K.25 Describe their family history, culture, and past to current current contributions of people in their main identity groups - Why does it have to be within their identity group? Why can kids not just describe their family history, culture and past. We are asking kids to find difference where they don't currently see them. I think the wording should be changed to "Describe the student's family history, culture, and past"

5 - Draft Standard 2.28 Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not - Are we reinforcing stereotypes here? Again this can lead to leaving our teachers to help students formulate opinions about groups of people. The wording can create division and should not have to fall on teachers when students in 2nd grade are unable to divide their friends into certain groups. I think the wording should be changed to "Describe ways we are similar and different from people."

6 - Draft Standard 3.27 Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly - Change wording to "Express a positive view of themselves without making someone feel badly."

7 - Draft Standard 3.28 Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups - change wording to "Compare and contrast cultural identity with other cultures."

8 - Draft Standard 5.12 Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today - I feel this one should be removed. It calls for too much of a teachers opinion to come into the teaching as this is not a cut and dry historical fact.

9 - Draft Standard 5.30 Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity group - Again with putting people into groups, the agenda here seems clear. Change wording to "Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions."

10 - Draft Standard 5.31 Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is part of what makes them who they are - Change wording to "Explain how each student's abilities could contribute to our society"

These are the most concerning draft standards to me for K-5 and there are many many more in the secondary draft standards. I am asking you to extend the comment period to allow for a better sampling of the input from the parents. To me it seems that agenda of the proposed standards is to assign our children to groups and create division to kids at ages when they are historically 'color blind' and see the similarities in their friends and not the differences. I hate to imagine a world where our children are robbed of this age of innocence and freedom from social pressures.

Thank your for your time and I hope you consider these concerns and proposed wording changes.

Celina Folmar
Aretsia, New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards feedback

Ina Montoya <imontoya@dulceschools.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:08 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon – We just finished a day of Professional Development where we received a presentation from an REC representative on MLSS, worked on the MLSS Self-Assessment, had a staff wellness session and finished with a school safety session.

I planned to join the Zoom session for the Social Studies Standards but feel writing this out would communicate my feedback more clearly and use my time more efficiently. I support the proposed Social Studies Standards to replace the current Social Studies standards because:

1. They are obviously more thorough and not as limiting, giving teachers a finer focus on the immediate communities the students are part of.
2. They give greater ability for teachers to provide CLRE and instruction about the Tribal communities our students are part of or near to.
3. From an Indigenous perspective, portions of these standards can be taught in the students' Native language.
4. The proposed standards seem to help teachers prepare diverse instruction for all areas of our state – diverse and rural communities.
5. History standards help put the diverse populations of NM at the forefront of instruction.
6. Economics and government areas help our students learn more about local/tribal governments as well as tribal economics.
7. In this community, we have teachers who join our staff and do not know how to address much needed Native American topics in instruction. These standards are written in a way to help.
8. Because of #7 – students usually do better when they are taught about areas that concern their community, people and future – the proposed standard opens the doors to lessons that include these.

Iheedn,

Ina Montoya

Principal, Dulce Elementary
Dulce, New Mexico

575-759-2953 Office
505-210-3437 School Cell
imontoya@dulceschools.com

[EXTERNAL] Repeal and replace 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Diana Shea <sheakers@mac.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a former second grade teacher, I support the proposed revised Social Studies standards. They are clearly written, succinct, and appropriate both developmentally and sequentially. As I read them, I can picture the informative engaging lessons that will be developed. Our students and our state will benefit. Thank you for doing this intensive important work.

Diana Shea
Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] Written feedback comment

Kathryn-Mae Eiland <kathrynmaeeiland@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:12 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi,

My name is Kathryn-Mae Eiland and I would like to leave written feedback as I cannot speak in today's meeting.

I support the new standards coming forward, although I would like to underscore what some other commenters expressed; that teachers will need a lot of training and support to uphold these lessons.

I was raised in the New Mexico school system, having graduated from Alamogordo High School in 2011. I am grateful for what I received in schooling, but lack of understanding for how to behave around the rest of the country in common society was a cost of the narrow focus of my K - 12 education. I have been fortunate enough to pursue higher education and feel that after my Master's degree I can finally have intelligent conversation on the subject and strongly feel that it should not have taken this long.

Teaching kids about themselves and their peers will help spare their time, as it's limited for us all. They won't have to spend nearly as long in "Cultural Studies" in higher education (unless they want to), nor nearly as long in therapy to work on not suppressing their identity that currently our school system prefers they try and subdue.

Learning about the struggles and joys that different marginalized communities experience; such as LGBTQIIA+ individuals, those that can't obtain timely citizenship, and those with darker skin in our society will help unify our community, not divide.

Thank you,
Kathryn-Mae Eiland

[EXTERNAL] Today's webinar

AMY BARELA <amy.barela@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

John Sena

Policy Division

New Mexico Public Education Department

300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Thank you for allowing public input during your webinar. I was on the list to speak but was unable to due losing service and losing my place in line. I would also like to commend the effort placed into this new curriculum being proposed.

Critical race theory is an academic chastisement. It has increasingly become the default ideology in our public institutions. Rewording by its supporters to describe critical race theory includes "equity", "diversity and inclusion", "social justice", and "culturally reactive teaching". "Equity" sounds non-threatening and is muddled with the American principle of equality. The difference is massive and essential. Equality is a principle in the Declaration of Independence, defended in the Civil War, and made into law in the 14th and 15th amendment. It is rejected by critical race theorists. To them, equality represents "nondiscrimination".

Attempts to halt the encroachment of critical race theory have been ineffective. There are several reasons for this. First, New Mexicans developed an acute fear of speaking up about social and political issues, especially those involving race. Worried about getting mobbed on social media, fired from their jobs, or worse, remain silent largely surrendering to public debate to those pushing these anti-American philosophies. As a result, our school system becomes one culture, without diversity of opinion.

Arguments have been constructed like a mousetrap. Disagreements with the curriculum becomes evidence of a dissenter's "white fragility", "unconscious bias" or "white supremacy". American history includes slavery and other injustices, and we should examine and learn from that history. But stating that America was founded on and defined by racism and that our founding principles, our constitution, and our way of life should be overthrown and redirected is wrong to administer into our children.

We need to employ our own moral language rather than allow ourselves to be confined by the categories of critical race theory. We often debate diversity. Diversity as most of us understand it is commonly good. We should be discussing our children aiming at excellence, a common standard that challenges people of all backgrounds to achieve their potential.

We also need to remember that parents are first and foremost the teachers and allow them to explain the context of our nation's ideals. Genuine American history is rich with stories of achievements and sacrifices that will move the hearts of our children rather than the contrast to the grim, pessimistic narrative being pressed.

Again, thank you for your time in considering redrafting the curriculum to represent what New Mexicans represent; the courage, bravery, and rewards of achievement when results are successful.

Amy Barela

--

Thank you,

Amy Barela

[EXTERNAL] In support of revised SS standards

Haussamen Lori <mlori423@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:15 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED Committee,

I am writing as a mother of a 10-year-old daughter and as a social worker with 20 years of experience who has worked in education settings from early childhood to higher education. I am strongly in favor of the new social studies standards and urge you to approve them. In light of the state's legal responsibility to remedy the issues identified in the Yazzie Martinez lawsuit, there needs to be meaningful action taken towards equipping NM schools with the tools they need to teach history accurately, incorporating key events from the last two decades, integrating critical thinking into the curriculum, and acknowledge that culturally relevant curriculum isn't a luxury. It is a necessary tool if we want our students to understand themselves in relation to the world. In a global society, it's more important than ever that students possess the knowledge and skills to think about their identity, their communities, and their place in the world.

Thank you,

Lori Martinez
Las Cruces, NM

[EXTERNAL] Document shared with you: "CRT Social Studies"

Jim New (via Google Docs) <jimbobnew@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:15 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

jimbobnew@gmail.com shared a document jimbobnew@gmail.com has invited you to edit the following document:

CRT Social Studies

This email grants access to this item without logging in. Only forward it to people you trust.

Open

If you don't want to receive files from this person, block the sender from Drive

Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043, USA
You have received this email because jimbobnew@gmail.com shared a document with you from Google Docs.

Nov 12, 2021

Policy Division, Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe, NM 87501
rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Jim New
4921 Chagar Court
Las Cruces, NM 88007

To the NMPED,

I write this letter to provide input on the proposed Social Studies Standards, which I think need some adjustments.

My overarching issue is the implementation of Critical Race Theory (CRT) into the NMPED Social Studies Standards. A definition of CRT from the internet

(<https://cers.leeds.ac.uk/wp-content/uploads/sites/97/2013/05/talk-the-talk-walk-the-walk.pdf>)

asserts “that society is fundamentally racially stratified and unequal, where power processes systematically disenfranchise racially oppressed people.”

CRT explains any results of processes that show disparate results between Cultural Identities are evidence of systemic racism.

The draft Social Studies Standard 7.82. directs the use of “primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.”

The 7.82 Standard directs the student to evaluate “lasting” “power relations” and “disenfranchisement.” Standard 7.82 is an exercise in CRT.

New Mexico Public Education Department Deputy Secretary Gwen Perea Warniment claims (<https://www.lcsun-news.com/story/news/education/2021/10/21/social-studies-standards-explain-ed-nmped-deputy-secretary-visits-lcps/6119933001/>) CRT is not in the draft standards. As noted above, practices and concepts of CRT are in the Standards; it is hair-splitting in denying CRT is in the Standards. “We have always understood power and oppression in social studies,” Warniment said. “Always” is a long time. I don’t recall in my youth learning of power and oppression to implement/institute systemic racism.

From the page that discusses guiding principles (Page 9):

“Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo-political impact, social justice, equity and diversity through content standards designed to teach these topics in developmentally appropriate ways.”

What of the “Eurocentric” theme of liberty in the history of Western Civilization, beginning with Greece, Rome, the Dark Ages, the Magna Carta, Reformation, Enlightenment, Puritans/Pilgrims Bradford seeking religious freedom, the American Revolution and the wars of the 18th-21st centuries to defeat slavery, facism, Nazism, communism and Islamism? The standards appear to provide some exposure to historical facts. However, it appears every historical fact is to be questioned in the use of telling stories, as shown by the section of Performance Standards below.

8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established.

8.44. Develop a claim about how opinions regarding the Proclamation Line of 1763 might have varied depending on an individual's occupation and geographic location.

8.45. Evaluate the effectiveness of Native American alliances during and after the American Revolutionary War as a tool to support tribal sovereignty.

8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years’ War (French and Indian War).

8.47. Synthesize text and non-text evidence to persuasively express a perspective on the events leading to the American Revolution.

8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution

8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.

8.50. Use primary source texts and artifacts as evidence to describe daily life in the 13 Colonies by featuring individuals with diverse identities and different perspectives.

8.51. Generate historically relevant questions and hypothesize sources needed to make an argument about diverse individuals’ ability to participate in the war effort (for either side)

The message is there are no absolute facts/truths.

Wilson is the first named President. He was a Progressive aka Marxist. What of Lincoln and the Emancipation Proclamation, the Gettysburg Address, the Second Inauguration address, and what Reconstruction might have achieved but for his assassin?

What of Washington’s restraint in not ascending to be a King? What other leader in the history of the world stepped aside after leading a revolution?

What happened to E Pluribus Unum?

The word liberty appears zero times in the draft standards document, while the word power appears 40 times.

The word story/stories 10 times. Who will write/publish these stories? The Michael Brown story of “Hands Up, Don’t Shoot” has been debunked, yet it continues to be used in contemporary narratives, such as in documents discussing JuneTeenth.

8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.

8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

We are asking students to create fabricated history?

Shouldn’t we highlight/emphasize aspirational events in the history of the United States, with the Declaration of Independence being “the” aspirational document/event in our history?

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Shelby Shahan <shelby.shahan@aps.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:16 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it may Concern,

I am a librarian at an APS middle school here in my native state of New Mexico. I believe that the only way for our great state to progress into a place where we are providing opportunities for our citizens and our students is TO TEACH DIVERSITY. Our great state has the oldest capital in the US, we have a history like no other state and we need to be teaching the diversity of our people's history. Native New Mexicans are all too aware of the difficulties of our past, but that does not mean we ignore them.

The PED and our schools can not keep claiming that we are 21st century ready and 21st century teachers when we are teaching the discriminating ideals and curriculum of the past. Please put our students first, and choose diversity.

"You don't have to burn books to destroy a culture. Just get people to stop reading them." -Ray Bradbury

Shelby Shahan

(505)-299-4735 ex30816

 Librarian & Textbooks

Madison Middle School

3501 Moon St. NE

Albuquerque, NM 87111

This message and all its attachments may contain information that is CONFIDENTIAL and PRIVILEGED. It is for the sole use of the intended recipient(s). Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure or distribution is prohibited. If you received this message in error, please notify the sender by reply e-mail and delete the message immediately.

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards -Tribal Education Alliance comments

Anja Rudiger <anjarudiger@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: regis pecos <regispecos1@gmail.com>; Latham-Jimenez, Patricia <patricia@transformeducationnm.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Colleagues,

Please find attached the Tribal Education Alliance's comments on the draft social studies standards.

Sincerely,

Anja Rudiger

Anja Rudiger, Ph.D.

Leadership Institute/Tribal Education Alliance

57 East Pine Ext

Santa Fe, NM 87508

917-455-9544

<https://nabpi.unm.edu/tribal-remedy-framework.html>

Tribal Education Alliance Statement on the Draft Social Studies Standards

November 11, 2021

The Tribal Education Alliance (TEA) welcomes the draft social studies standards for New Mexico's public schools as an improvement over the one-sided curriculum that is currently taught in our schools. These new social studies standards are a first but significant step toward fulfilling the mandates contained in the Yazzie/Martinez court ruling of 2018. That landmark ruling obligates the State to ensure that all students enjoy a culturally relevant curriculum that reflects the diversity of New Mexico's population.

The draft social studies standards also relate to the proposals contained in the Tribal Remedy Framework (TRF), which is the collective tribal response to the Yazzie/Martinez court ruling, endorsed by all of New Mexico's Nations, Tribes and Pueblos. The TRF puts forward several recommendations, accompanied by legislation, to ensure that curricula, materials, and instruction at all educational levels are culturally and linguistically relevant. The All Pueblo Council of Governors (APCG) stated in 2019 (and again in 2021) that it "formally supports the culturally and linguistically appropriate recommendations" that are aligned with the court ruling (APCG resolution 2019-25).

Tribal leaders, Indian education experts, Indigenous scholars, and Native families agree that children need a culturally relevant education that accurately and comprehensively reflects the history and cultures of their communities and families. In the absence of a relevant curriculum, Native students will remain disconnected from school, and disparities in educational outcomes will persist. This is a key finding and conclusion of the Yazzie/Martinez court, and it has guided the efforts of the Tribal Education Alliance.

TEA hopes that all stakeholders can agree that New Mexico's education standards and curriculum must not be a whitewash. Unfortunately, the current curriculum largely continues the assimilationist approach, which alienates Native students, pushes them out of school, and depresses their academic outcomes. This is no longer acceptable. New Mexico schools must not be allowed to pretend that Indigenous communities do not or should not exist in their cultural and linguistic diversity. They must not be allowed to continue denying or denigrating the assets that Native children contribute to our State.

Therefore, TEA is glad to see that the draft social studies standards now encourage an examination of the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural identities and language, along with an exploration of our resistance to such assimilation. We also appreciate that the new standards require a discussion of how different belief systems relate to land and resource use, and of the role of racism in the acts of land redistribution. All of those and many other topics must be included when teaching our collective history. We have waited for a very long time for these crucial updates to our education standards.

While the Tribal Education Alliance recognizes the draft social studies standards as a significant first step, New Mexico still has a long way to go. For example, further improvements to the content of the standards should be considered, along with the Tribal Remedy Framework's proposals for institutionalizing culturally relevant curriculum development and building a technical assistance support structure to help teachers, schools, and Tribes with implementing culturally and linguistically relevant curricula and instruction.

Regarding the content of the draft standards, we note that most culturally relevant learning appears concentrated in the high school grades. There must be a greater effort to design a sequential curriculum that includes our youngest children in a culturally relevant education. We also need to see a fuller recognition of the systematic policies of genocide directed towards Indigenous people in this country. Moreover, some of the values featured prominently in the standards are at odds with Indigenous values, for example the emphasis on the concept of economic scarcity, rather than an appreciation of the abundance that nature offers to all of us.

Regarding the need for an institutional support structure to ensure the implementation of a culturally and linguistically relevant education, we would like to refer you to the proposals contained in the Tribal Remedy Framework. First, the TRF proposes two permanent Indigenous curriculum development centers housed at New Mexico's and Tribal academic institutions. By establishing such centers, the public education department (NMPED) would be able to draw on the expertise of renowned Native scholars to devise, refine, and support the development of a sequential curriculum from early childhood through to college. It has proven ineffective to hire a series of private contractors to undertake such curriculum development. Over the past two decades NMPED has pursued such a shotgun approach to the detriment of our children. Second, the TRF proposes to establish two Technical Assistance Centers for Indigenous education, modeled on the Regional Education Cooperatives that serve other constituencies. These Indigenous Technical Assistance Centers would respect tribal sovereignty while supporting Local Education Agencies, schools, teachers, and Tribes in implementing the culturally and linguistically relevant education that Native students are entitled to.

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies written feedback

Roni Booth <ronnbooth@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:20 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: bar-roe@comcast.net <bar-roe@comcast.net>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

RE: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to obtain input on the proposed repeal of 6.29.11NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11NMAC Social Studies, public comment

Dear Mr. John Sena:

We are writing along with others, to express our concerns with the proposed draft Social Studies standards curriculum, to express our antipathy for the implied, sometimes explicit racial ideology, and to respectfully request that you:

- 1) Extend the public comment period and
- 2) Encourage PED to submit the proposed curriculum to the State Legislature for formal, well-publicized, public hearings.

We have had numerous conversations with parents and teachers who expressed concerns over having inadequate information on the proposed changes, and having inadequate time to review the draft standards and the resources used to create those changes. We urge you to extend the review and comment period, and to submit the proposed curriculum to the State Legislature for formal public hearings which the public may attend.

Our primary concern with the proposed Social Studies curriculum is an apparent disrespect for our country's foundations and for ALL of its people, ALL people of varying races, creeds, cultures, beliefs, politics, class, background, personal identity, etc.; for which our founding documents were created in the pursuit of constant betterment, where "all [men] are created equal."

Overall and throughout, the curriculum focuses on diversity, inequity, injustice, and oppression. Americans with various and mixed backgrounds, flourish when the focus is on what we have in common. Our duty to teach our children how to get along, to cooperate, to respect others despite our differences; must not be supplanted by a curriculum that disparages their differences, such as who has “oppressed” them?!?!?! The proposed curriculum includes copious focus on slavery and oppression, yet contains no mention of why America fought for independence, and no mention of the countless soldiers and citizens who fought to abolish slavery.

The proposed curriculum heavily emphasizes both the “global community” as well as slavery. It stresses human rights’ atrocities and inequities within the United States; yet the curriculum evades addressing the perpetuation of human rights’ violations, human trafficking and slavery amidst the global community. The exclusion of these topics, in itself, is inequitable.

We are concerned with the curriculum’s disrespect for America’s history and our foundational documents. In the current Social Studies curriculum, American History is taught. Our country’s history, as imperfect as it may be, provides evidence from the past that gives us insight into why we must behave as a civil nation. Teaching a broader range of topics is forward thinking, but in ignoring the data, the facts of the past, we risk losing our understanding of why we as a society have changed, and why our most important basic tenets have remained.

- The curriculum should first provide historical context before adding contentious and difficult topics.
- The proposed curriculum must present significant American historical events and figures.
- Children should be taught the meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance, what it means to be a citizen of the United States and that standing together as a nation is important. Students should be allowed to continue the non-compulsory recitation of the Pledge.
- The names of specific documents - “The Bill of Rights” and “The Declaration of Independence” must be capitalized. Treating the names of these documents as common nouns is as disrespectful as addressing our Governor as governor michelle.

We are also concerned with use of language and rhetoric within the proposed standards. An entire section of the Social Studies curriculum is entitled, “Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards”. This is a concocted concept: “Identity Standards”; what is it doing in curriculum? How does NMPED attempt to define what “identity standards” are in education? Are our children to be branded?

Rhetoric such as: “critical consciousness”, “community equity”, “global community”, social identity”, “reconciliation”, and “implicit bias” indicate a politicized educational agenda.

Many terms and concept titles are devices, subterfuge that give an educator opportunity to teach one's own beliefs over historical facts. There are loopholes within the curriculum where a student's education might be manipulated by a teacher, an administrator, or another to present one's own agenda.

Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(i) "...evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S." Comment: What standard indicates what/who defines equitable and just economic system?

Proposed 6.29.11.11(E)(2), 6.29.11.15(E)(7), 6.29.11.15(E)(12) "...justice and fairness", "unequal power relations", and "past and current injustices". Comment: While these can be debated and discussed, these topics are highly subjective. For these concepts to be included as an "Anchor Standard" within the topic of "Identity Standards" leaves far too much room for interpretation. A child's identity is formed by their interactions, experiences, their own history; attempting to teach a child what their identity should be by interpretation or another's past is dishonest and manipulative.

Proposed 6.29.11.10(E)(1)(a), 6.29.11.11(E)(1)(a) "expressing a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad..." Comment: While a student can choose their words, they cannot control how others feel. It is highly inappropriate to make one student responsible for "other people's feelings". This does not belong in curriculum.

Proposed 6.29.11.15(E)(3) "society's responses to different social identities lead to access or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including education, healthcare, government, and industry". Comment: This seeks to divide students based on what is perceived as a social identity. Barriers as well as access, has traditionally, or is optimally, directly related to personal characteristics and may be bolstered by a demographic, not a social identity. Using this rhetoric in educational materials has direct potential to be propagandist. Just as Proposed 6.29.11.15(E)(8) "brainstorming ways in which New Mexico might heal from past and current injustices" Informing young students that they "might heal from...injustices" makes them victims without their consent. Education shall not teach victimization. Why not use the opportunity to teach the benefits of collaboration for a community in duress?!

Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(gg) “examining the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence...”

Comment: To examine the history of guns in America, one would include the Constitution and its Bill of Rights. This examination of history would include the reason Americans have had guns, protected their rights to have guns, and include how this has protected them. An appropriate examination would also include what has happened to citizen’s rights in countries where they do not possess the right to protect themselves, how violence is not extinguished just because rights are removed, and how it is the “violence” of the law breakers that is the problem, not the gun. To use the rhetoric “gun violence” is inappropriate, a gun does not commit violent acts, a criminal does. This is an important lesson for any student.

Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(ii) “examining anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States...”

Comment: It would be far more appropriate and relevant to discuss “anti-illegal-immigration” sentiment since that is the more pertinent issue. Many Americans are here as a result of the legal immigration process and don’t oppose it; on the other hand, students would benefit from learning how unlawful migration affects their nation and their state. They would also benefit from learning about atrocities across the globe that create refugees, and the importance of American humanitarian efforts to aid the people suffering humanitarian atrocities.

Proposed 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d) “...social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement”

Comment: This can be highly refuted. While the media hasn’t been honest about reporting, statistics and studies disprove many of the “systemic inequity” arguments. Many opportunities are afforded by individual economics, fortune, merit, tenacity, etc. These things are better indicators of opportunity, not “identity groups”; and we are appalled that education is teaching about “privilege” without talking about how anyone in America is far more “privileged” than others in the “global community”. This does not belong in high school education. Leave the debate for college!

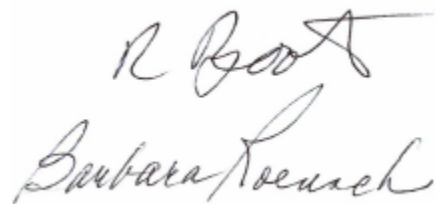

An attempt to select the most egregious items in the proposed Social Studies curriculum, admittedly has been difficult. Though we take no issue with re-evaluating curriculum to update the most recent events that expand on our history and shape society, we disagree with revising data and omitting facts - basically eliminating evidence needed to determine how we came to behave as we do in today's world. Additionally, we see the manufactured terms and manipulated meanings to teach a conflated agenda as unacceptable.

Some proposals are reasonable updates while others are quite contentious, inappropriate, or otherwise, dishonest and disrespectful. We believe a redraft of the entire curriculum is in order; and that each and every occurrence of "Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards" should be removed.

The proposed curriculum fails to provide a balanced history. It fails to provide positive attributes of the United States of America, of the State of New Mexico, and of its people. Students in this state should be taught what makes them exceptional human beings, and we will support curriculum revisions that teach Our History: a history that includes the good and the imperfect; a history that shows the dilemmas and perseverance of our ancestors, and a history that celebrates our identities. An understanding of history can encourage students to become responsible citizens of our state, our nation and the global community.

We appreciate your dedication to education, and to our youth - Our Future.

Respectfully,

The image shows two handwritten signatures in cursive. The first signature is "R Booth" and the second is "Barbara Roensch".

Roni Booth and Barbara Roensch

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards

Jim New <jimbobnew@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:23 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Nov 12, 2021

Policy Division, Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe, NM 87501
rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Jim New
4921 Chagar Court
Las Cruces, NM 88007

To the NMPED,

I write this letter to provide input on the proposed Social Studies Standards, which I think need some adjustments.

My overarching issue is the implementation of Critical Race Theory (CRT) into the NMPED Social Studies Standards. A definition of CRT from the internet

(<https://cers.leeds.ac.uk/wp-content/uploads/sites/97/2013/05/talk-the-talk-walk-the-walk.pdf>)

asserts "that society is fundamentally racially stratified and unequal, where power processes systematically disenfranchise racially oppressed people."

CRT explains any results of processes that show disparate results between Cultural Identities are evidence of systemic racism.

The draft Social Studies Standard 7.82. directs the use of "primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups."

The 7.82 Standard directs the student to evaluate "lasting" "power relations" and "disenfranchisement." Standard 7.82 is an exercise in CRT.

New Mexico Public Education Department Deputy Secretary Gwen Perea Warniment claims (<https://www.lcsun-news.com/story/news/education/2021/10/21/social-studies-standards-explained-nmped-deputy-secretary-visits-lcps/6119933001/>) CRT is not in the draft standards. As noted above, practices and concepts of CRT are in the Standards; it is hair-splitting in denying CRT is in the Standards. "We have always understood power and oppression in social studies," Warniment said.

“Always” is a long time. I don’t recall in my youth learning of power and oppression to implement/institute systemic racism.

From the page that discusses guiding principles (Page 9):

“Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo-political impact, social justice, equity and diversity through content standards designed to teach these topics in developmentally appropriate ways.”

What of the “Eurocentric” theme of liberty in the history of Western Civilization, beginning with Greece, Rome, the Dark Ages, the Magna Carta, Reformation, Enlightenment, Puritans/Pilgrims Bradford seeking religious freedom, the American Revolution and the wars of the 18th-21st centuries to defeat slavery, facism, Nazism, communism and Islamism? The standards appear to provide some exposure to historical facts. However, it appears every historical fact is to be questioned in the use of telling stories, as shown by the section of Performance Standards below.

- 8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established.
- 8.44. Develop a claim about how opinions regarding the Proclamation Line of 1763 might have varied depending on an individual’s occupation and geographic location.
- 8.45. Evaluate the effectiveness of Native American alliances during and after the American Revolutionary War as a tool to support tribal sovereignty.
- 8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years’ War (French and Indian War).
- 8.47. Synthesize text and non-text evidence to persuasively express a perspective on the events leading to the American Revolution.
- 8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution
- 8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.
- 8.50. Use primary source texts and artifacts as evidence to describe daily life in the 13 Colonies by featuring individuals with diverse identities and different perspectives.
- 8.51. Generate historically relevant questions and hypothesize sources needed to make an argument about diverse individuals’ ability to participate in the war effort (for either side)

The message is there are no absolute facts/truths.

Wilson is the first named President. He was a Progressive aka Marxist. What of Lincoln and the Emancipation Proclamation, the Gettysburg Address, the Second Inauguration address, and what Reconstruction might have achieved but for his assassin?

What of Washington’s restraint in not ascending to be a King? What other leader in the history of the world stepped aside after leading a revolution?

What happened to E Pluribus Unum?

The word liberty appears zero times in the draft standards document, while the word power appears 40 times.

The word story/stories 10 times. Who will write/publish these stories? The Michael Brown story of "Hands Up, Don't Shoot" has been debunked, yet it continues to be used in contemporary narratives, such as in documents discussing JuneTeenth.

8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.

8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

We are asking students to create fabricated history?

Shouldn't we highlight/emphasize aspirational events in the history of the United States, with the Declaration of Independence being "the" aspirational document/event in our history?

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies curriculum

Anthony klesert <tklesert@mac.com> on behalf of cklesert@mac.com <cklesert@mac.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:23 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I support the proposed new NMPED Social Studies Standards and urge you to implement them. The United States of America is a great country; great enough to face the truth about our past, both the admirable and the shameful. How can we continue to grow and improve as a people if we don't take an honest at how we got here, note the many achievements and sources of pride, but also acknowledge the failures and the room for improvement? History lessons that only make us feel good about ourselves are not history, they are fairy tales. Worse, they are propaganda.

Thank you.

Claudia Klesert

929 Adams St NE

Albuquerque, NM 87110

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed social studies standards

Oriana Sandoval <orianarsandoval@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:24 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED:

I am writing as a parent of children who attend public schools in the APS district, as well as a graduate of New Mexico public schools to voice my strong support for the updated social studies curriculum standards.

The proposed standards achieve the following important objectives:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

Furthermore, it is imperative that the PED update their social studies standards in order to comply with the landmark lawsuit, Yazzie/Martinez v. State of New Mexico.

Additionally, the state's standards for the K-12 social studies curriculum have not been updated since 2001. This means that New Mexico students are missing 20 years of education research, teaching best-practices, curriculum updates, and more.

We must ensure NM's students receive the education possible.

Sincerely,

Oriana Sandoval

[EXTERNAL] Support for adopting new K-12 Social Studies Standards

Sunflower H Chirieleison <SChirieleison@salud.unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:24 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent of two APS middle school students and a health care provider, I strongly support the adoption of the newly drafted K-12 Social Studies Standards. The newly drafted standards focus on inclusion, social justice, and tribal sovereignty, which I believe are paramount to sustainable futures for our children and our communities.

Thank you for your consideration,

Sunflower H. Chirieleison, MPT, SCCE
Physical Therapist
Rehabilitation Services
The University of New Mexico Hospitals
2211 Lomas Blvd NE
Albuquerque, NM, 87106
SChirieleison@salud.unm.edu

[EXTERNAL] TESTIMONY SENT AT 3:25 PM

Evelyn A. Early <earlyea@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:26 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

rule.feedback@state.nm.us

I am Evelyn A. Early, Ph D and retired diplomat. My grandson Jordan F. Early, who is 75 per cent indigenous, is a kindergartener in Montezuma school. I want to thank the school and its staff for all they do for our students – particularly at a time when there are no substitutes available—overextending our teachers. (Full disclosure: I am Anglo ; my adopted daughter is Honduran and thus Jordan is majority South American indigenous. I am Jordan’s legal guardian. _

I am writing this because I must leave at 3:20 to pick up my grandson and there are dozens of people ahead of me in the public hearing. I am writing this quickly and wish I could have been more comprehensive.

I strongly support the effort to update our social science standards and hope that parents appreciate that most teachers are not/not “pushing their own narrative” and indeed if they are , they should not be in the classroom. As I listen to testimonies which are tossing around terms like identity and culture, I wish I could have spoken in the hearings to the importance oof such concepts in exploring the diversity of the US and of NM.

In fact, as a diplomat one of our most important messages was the diversity of the US. Another message was the important role of freedom of speech, judgement , and healthy skepticism in American society. Like many others, Jordan does not have the grandmother described by Dr. Sabloff and Jordan will learn much from the APS. I am delighted that Jordan can go to the Albuquerque Indigenous program tomorrow!

When I hear comments like certain kinds of “theories” teach that “our nation is bad” I am reminded of all the times as a diplomat that foreign nationals told me after some presentation that presented both sides of a topic, that they were impressed by the American practice of looking at all sides of an issue and by our allowing freedom of expression.

Indeed, one of the practices that makes our nation a shining light for the world is our practice of allowing open discussion and of protecting the rights of minorities to express their identities.

I find it ironic that two trends that have made our nation great – allowing our people/our students to discuss social and other issues, and furthering our understanding of our national diversity – are two trends being attacked today in this hearing.

Thank you to the PED and to all the educational community for developing these standards and for allowing an open discussion of same.

Thank you to all the people who took the time to testify and for those of you who oppose the idea of open discussion in classes (using terms like indoctrination for same) and who oppose study of diversity, I hope that you might take a moment to ponder how this has made our nation great.

--

Evelyn A. Early
earlyea@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment on Social Studies Standards

Mike Loftin <mloftin@homewise.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:26 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

New Social Studies Standards

My name is Mike Loftin and I am the CEO of Homewise, a non-profit community development financial institution that has helped over 5,000 New Mexico families purchase their first home. We support adding personal finance standards to the social studies standards as a way to help our children develop financial skills that will serve them well throughout their lives.

Over 75% of households who come to Homewise for help in buying a home cannot qualify for a good mortgage when they first contact us. Our financial coaches work with them to improve their credit, increase their savings, and/or reduce consumer debt. Sometimes this process takes months and sometimes it takes years. Much of the time the need to for this financial coaching was caused mistakes made in getting and using credit that damaged their credit history or burdened them with excessive, and, at times, predatory debt. A better understanding of personal finance could have prevented many of these mistakes and avoided unnecessary financial hardship.

We urge the Public Education Department to include personal financial standards into the social studies standards that you are considering.

Thank you.

Mike Loftin

Chief Executive Officer

phone: 505.660.3354 (mobile)

www.homewise.orgEmail: mloftin@homewise.org

[EXTERNAL] Proposed repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies sifter-diesels.0y@icloud.com <sifter-diesels.0y@icloud.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:28 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As the parent of an APS high school student I fully support the update to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is long overdue for an update to the NMAC, Social Studies, and now we have the opportunity to better represent the state's diversity in our academic content, to help reduce division and prejudice in future generations. As Winston Churchill paraphrased George Santayana "Those who fail to learn from history are doomed to repeat it." We must learn history from the various perspectives involved to have a clear understanding of how our past effects our present. This is how we improve our chances for a better future, united for all.

Sincerely,

Tony G.
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] social studies doug puryear <mkpdp@live.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:28 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

this is real progress, great. help the teachers implement it.
thanks

Doug Puryear

Alma Means Soul: a novel

Your Life Can Be Better: Using Strategies for Adult ADHD

[EXTERNAL] Opposition to rule changesBen Harvey <benh@jjhc.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am strongly opposed to all the rule changes being considered today. The new social studies standards are full of critical race theory. The rule changes for school board members make it even more difficult for school board members to do their jobs.

Unfortunately I believe that regardless of the type or quantity of comments you receive today, you will pass all rules regardless of public opinion.

Ben Harvey

Get Outlook for iOS

[EXTERNAL] Subject: 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Penny Bird <pennybirdsd@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:30 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>Cc: Vigil, Francis <indigeducation1@gmail.com>; Samuel Villarreal Catanach <samyuel.c@gmail.com>; Pino, Sarah <sarah_pino@msn.com>; Patrick Werito <patrick@dlenm.org>; Loretto, Arlene <lorettoarlene@yahoo.com>; Felice Lucero <lucero.felice4@gmail.com>; Shannon Johnson <shanjohnson4@yahoo.com>; simonec@pojoaque.org <simonec@pojoaque.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I was able to make public comments during the hearing, but three minutes are not long so shorted them. Attached are my comments in full. Please document them for the record. Thank you.

November 12, 2021

John Sena, Director
NMPED Policy Division
300 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am a retired educator of over 40 years in public, BIA /BIE and higher education. One of my earliest teaching experiences was teaching Pueblo History when esteemed historian from Jemez Pueblo, Joe Sando, was not able to teach during one year at the University of New Mexico. It provided me time to look into the New Mexico (NM) history that was being taught in NM's schools, as I knew Native American (NA) history was not being taught while I was in school. I found the subject area seriously lacking information about the tribes in NM much less those of indigenous people in the United States and around the world. This early experience was brought back to light from the study conducted by the Indigenous Education Study Group when we were contracted by Eight Northern Pueblos to conduct a study on NM's public schools. We produced a document titled Indian Education 2025, with findings and recommendations that were/are important for the NMPED to consider. The focus groups we conducted of teachers, administrators, parents and NA students in public and charter schools brought forward issues of educational importance in all areas. Especially vocal were the students who shared their stories about the old texts, misinformation and lack of information about their communities. Therefore, in remembering those voices, I am totally in favor of adopting the proposed Social Studies Standards (6.29.11. NMAC, Social Studies).

My reasons for supporting the proposed standards are many, in particular the following:

- The standards have needed revision for many years, 20, is the last I heard;
- Much has happened in NM, the United States and the world that are not given attention in the current NM social studies standards;
- Not all people are included in the current standards; it is still a "conquerers" type perspective that is prevalent;
- The proposed standards not only address the recent Yazzie/Martinez suit and ruling, but the teaching of NA history which was a priority of tribes when the Indian Education Act (IEA) of NM was legislated. As the first Assistant Secretary for Indian Education in 2003, one of the first actions we undertook was to partner with the Museum of Indian Arts and Culture to begin the development of a history curriculum that would stay true to tribal knowledge and perspectives; this is still a need that has to be shared with all schools in NM; and,
- Knowing some of the teachers and faculty who assisted with the development of the standards, they are well respected professionals and they are respected professionals who are to be trusted in the development of the proposed standards.

I have reviewed the standards, and while I would include much more on the NA topics if I were to teach them again, this is a step in the right direction. For one, I appreciate that students are given more credit for learning and developing thinking and communication skills that are so important to discussing the important matters that impact our communities, our people, our knowledge of history, economics, government, policy development, etc. They can learn to sift through too much bad information and get to the heart of matters with genuine reflection and interaction with their peers to better solve and live in the future they are helping to build. Most importantly, as an officer in the New Mexico Tribal Language Consortium, and many other speakers of our treasured Native languages, much of the social studies standards can be taught in our languages. This is a positive and valuable way to partner with NA communities and parents in the schools. It is the subject area that can delve into our history, government, philosophy, policy, culture and environment, and at long last put our knowledge on an equitable level of curriculum that can be taught to all students.

I appreciate the work that has been given to the proposed standards and urge the NMPED to adopt them as a working document that we may all learn from. Thank you for considering my thoughts and comments.

Respectfully,

Carlotta Penny Bird

(Carlotta Penny Bird)

Citizen of Santo Domingo Pueblo, New Mexico and the United States of America

[EXTERNAL]

Hayley Klein <hsnowklein@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:31 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached comments on the Proposed Social Studies standards.

Thank you for allowing us the opportunity.

Hayley Klein

Date: November 12, 2021

To: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary Designate
Policy Division
NM Public Education Division
300 Don Gaspar Avenue
Santa Fe, NM 87501

From: Hayley Klein, parent and concerned citizen

I thank you for the opportunity to provide comment. I do believe history can be taught in a more engaging and thoughtful way in our public schools. As a person who grew up in the system and finished high school in a private international school, I was able to see differences in teaching methods. Having raised a child in the public school system who is profoundly interested in history I can see that he might have had better opportunities at certain points in his education to learn and analyze history in a way more effective than just memorizing dates. I would argue that any weakness in the system was much less about the current standards than teachers who were more or less engaged in the subject matter.

I was surprised to see the standards jump from approximately 30 pages to 130 pages. In my mind, this is far too much to process as a set of standards. How can we not identify our standards in fewer pages? My interpretation of the proposed standards is more a what-to and how-to teach outline of a system of beliefs that upend a lot of progress our country has made in bringing people together over the last several decades. There are many points in the proposed standards that imply certain positions are commonly accepted as the dominant trait of our society.

Throughout the document, the proposed standards point out division and negativity:

- “Inherent bias in maps” as opposed to understanding our boundaries, how they were formulated and what they mean to us culturally.
- “Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality” – a very interesting subject, but what about also examining the other side of that, the road the country has taken to break barriers.
- “The Red Scare” is excellent subject matter, but is part of a larger story of a relationship among superpowers of the time. The Red Scare is one piece of the larger story.
- Gun violence is also an interesting subject, but why isn’t the standards more along the lines of our Constitution and current national issues that challenge our Constitution.
- How did the writers of the proposed standards determine which historical figures to mention by name as a standard to understand? I can think of many historical figures who were instrumental in shaping our country in positive and negative ways who are not named here. Why?
- Proposed standards for the Kindergarten level begin with establishing differences among students, which does not feel age appropriate and begins a long educational career for every student by focusing on what sets up apart from one another more than bringing young people together.

There are many examples of standards throughout the document that seem to focus on just one side of large and significant pieces of our history with the intent to point out division and imply one side is wrong and one side is right. Moreover, many of the standards identified in this proposal are merely assignments, which are not standards but directives to teach a specific lesson in a specific manner. This does not allow flexibility for our educators to deliver the best education and form of teaching for the environment in which that teacher works.

I am discouraged to see that a document is expanded by 100 pages and still misses so much of our history and progress to focus on specific messaging about negativity, division and oppression rather than encouraging conversation about the positives and negatives of every piece of our history. In an honest conversation about any history there are many sides and many lessons to learn. All of it is critical to our worldview. Unfortunately, these standards read as very single-minded and give the system too much in the way of identifying and categorizing our youth into over-simplified arenas rather than celebrating our character traits that contribute to American society and how they bring us together.

Thank you for your consideration of New Mexicans' concerns.

Hayley Klein
hsnowklein@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] New proposed social Studies Curriculum

Becky Hurford <hurfordbc@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:32 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED,

It certainly appears to me that this new curriculum will only create division, miss-trust and strife in families, communities, our state and our nation. Certainly the curriculum needs updating, but that should consist of updated information on events founded in solid, time proven, fact, with equal representation of both sides of the events, without bias.

It is the pervue of parents alone to teach their children their heritage and identities, their world view, how they might respond to events concerning them, and certainly any gender or sexuality issues.

Our children are failing because they are not being taught up to date facts in every subject, and how to think, rather than what to think. The goal of education should be to prepare children to work hard, be honest, treat others well, be people of character, show respect to others, respect authority, strive for excellence and give others a helping hand. They particularly should be taught truth, taught to value truth and taught to demand truth. There will be no time for an excellent education if focuses are drawn elsewhere. This new curriculum will do exactly that.

Thank you,
Rebecca Hurford

[EXTERNAL] social studies curriculum changes

MARGUERITE DIMAS <margdimas@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired educator and psychologist, I heartily endorse the new changes to the social studies curriculum. I recommend that there be a strong teacher education component.

Marguerite Dimas, MS, LPCC
Santa Fe, NM 87507
505.690.7881

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

David Greenberg <dgreenberg@neanm.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena,

I am writing in support of the revised New Mexico social studies standards. I am a former New Mexico educator. I taught high school social studies, including US and World History. The inclusion of ethnicity, culture, and identity is a welcome addition to the state social studies standards. Thanks to the NM PED and the Revision Committee for their hard work improving and revising the standards to bring them up to date, and to ensure they are relevant and culturally responsive for students throughout the state.

I encourage our state to adopt these revised standards as soon as possible,

Dave

--

Dave Greenberg
Executive Director,
Center for Community Schools
NEA-New Mexico
410-236-7978

Like our NM Community Schools Facebook

Join NEA-New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on Proposed Social Studies Standards

Kristy Crockett <kristy_crockett@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 11, 2021

Mr. John Sena

Policy Division

New Mexico Public Education Department

VIA E-Mail

My name is Kristy Crockett, I am the parent of a two students, 1st and 9th graders, currently enrolled in Artesia Public Schools. I am also a lifetime resident of New Mexico. I am a college graduate with years of post-secondary studies in science, accounting, and business management.

I want to express my concerns about the proposed social studies standards. First, I want to address my concerns with comments made by NMPED staff.

Dr. Gwen Perea Warniment, Deputy Secretary of Teaching, Learning and Assessment, stated in an interview on November 10th with KRQE news, "I want to be very clear; the standards do not have any critical race theory. They are not taught in a K-12 setting." She also stated in this interview that historical accuracy and CRT are two different things and are often confused.

I find these statements by Dr. Perea Warniment troubling. There is a significant difference between historical facts and a theory.

Merriam-Webster defines

theory

- : as an idea or opinion that is presented as possibly true but that is not known or proven to be true
- : an idea or set of ideas that is intended to explain facts or events
- : a hypothesis assumed for the sake of argument or investigation
- : an unproved assumption

facts

- : something that truly exists or happens
- : something that has actual existence
- : a true piece of information
- : a piece of information presented as having objective reality

To suggest that historical accuracy can be confused with critical race theory (CRT) is asinine. Comments like this are a direct reflection of how out of touch the leadership of our state education system is with the residence in our state.

I am glad we can agree that CRT is a theory that should not be taught in a K-12 setting. I respect our education system for their desire to improve the standards used in our schools. New Mexico has a long history of being one of the worst states for education. This reputation plagues our high school graduates along with their ability to acquire scholarships and opportunities within post-secondary schools. Improving the quality of education in our state needs to be a priority.

The proposed changes to the social studies standards, while viewed as inclusive by NMPED, are extremely concerning to me as a parent. I've read these proposed standards numerous times(yes I printed every page), and each time I am appalled by the bias language, negative connotations, distorted singular point of view, and direct elimination of historically important people, places, and dates. The proposed standards have been written in assignment format, directing exactly how and what is to be taught to students. Curriculum standards were designed to offer guidance and factual bullet points of importance.

The following standards are direct examples of the issues I mentioned above:

K.4	2.13	5.10	6.15	7.11	7.74
K.5	2.15	5.12	6.16	7.21	7.76
K.22	2.16	5.30	6.20	7.28	7.78
K.23	2.27	5.31	6.22	7.38	7.82
K.24	2.28			7.47	7.92
K.25	2.29			7.49	7.93
	2.5			7.59	7.94
1.12	2.6			7.60	7.98
1.23				7.61	7.103
1.3	3.11			7.68
1.4	3.12			7.72
	3.27
	3.28
	3.29
	4.25
	4.26
8.5	8.34	9-12.Civ.17		9-12.US.13	9-12.US.35
8.7	8.35	9-12.Civ.32		9-12.US.14	9-12.US.36
8.12	8.37	9-12.Civ.38		9-12.US.15	9-12.US.37
8.16	8.43	9-12.Civ.40		9-12.US.16	9-12.US.38
8.18	8.46			9-12.US.17	9-12.US.39
8.19	8.48			9-12.US.18	9-12.US.40
8.20	8.49	9-12.WH.34		9-12.US.19	9-12.US.41
8.21	8.5	9-12.WH.35		9-12.US.20	9-12.US.42

8.23	8.55	9-12.WH.36	9-12.US.21	9-12.US.50
8.29	8.58		9-12.US.22	9-12.US.53
8.30	8.66	9-12.NMH.18	9-12.US.23	9-12.US.56
8.32	8.68	9-12.NMH.26	9-12.US.24	9-12.US.69
	8.69	9-12.NMH.27	9-12.US.25	9-12.US.83
	8.70	9-12.NMH.47	9-12.US.26	9-12.US.87
	8.72	9-12.NMH.48	9-12.US.27	9-12.US.95
	8.74		9-12.US.28	9-12.US.104
	8.76	9-12.Econ.24	9-12.US.29	9-12.US.106
	8.78	9-12.Econ.27	9-12.US.30	9-12.US.113
	8.79	9-12.Econ.48-175	9-12.US.31	9-12.US.116
	8.80		9-12.US.32	9-12.US.118
	8.81	9-12.ECI.13	9-12.US.33	9-12.US.122
	8.83	9-12.ECI.14	9-12.US.34	9-12.US.123
	8.90	9-12.ECI.16		9-12.US.129
		9-12.ECI.18		9-12.US.130
		9-12.ECI.19		9-12.US.132
		9-12.ECI.21		9-12.US.134
		9-12.ECI.22		9-12.US.135
				9-12.US.136

In the proposed standards from Kindergarten to High School:

- the word “group” or “group identity” appears 26 times
- approx. 35 of the standards are written as assignments
- the words “oppressed” or “oppressor” appear multiple times

Please know I am not against making changes to our curriculum to include the cultural diversity of our state, country, or world. I come from a multicultural family.

One of my issues with some of the proposed standards listed above remove student ability to choose assignment topics, this is what makes education fun. The diversity of project topics and class presentations are how our students learn to respect each other and they learn how to express themselves. The wide variety of essays written, and projects created are intriguing. I love to see and understand our world through the eyes of others. Standards that facilitate an expressive opportunity for every student are essential.

The proposed standards will place education in a very small specific box which will result in a generation that will lack imagination, individualism, diversity, acceptance, and respect for others.

The proposed standards remove essential values that teach fairness, loyalty, patriotism, good citizenship, fair play, and trustworthiness. In elementary schools we need to reinstate standards that teach children to take turns, share, and accept responsibility for their actions. The proposed standards are so focused on teaching young children to identify their groups and evaluate other people into group identities that we've missed the basic foundations of creating respectable human beings.

Civics, Economics, Geography, History, and Cultural/Ethnic Diversities are vital to the future of our society, the good and bad. People that came before us made mistakes. They also triumphed. From chaos and conflict, heroes arose. We had leaders with visions and dreams that impacted our world. No one is perfect. No generation will ever be perfect. We can teach cultural, ethnic, and racial diversity without forcing the ideology and political views of either side. When we stop teaching the whole story from multiple viewpoints, it stops being social studies.

I have read the following public comments in detail, and I agree with the suggested edits proposed. Please consider the recommended edits submitted in the following individuals and the email address comment was submitted:

- Danny Parker – dannykpark@gmail.com
- Artesia Public Schools - Social Studies Department
- Michael Campbell – camp_pecos@gmail.com

Thank you for your consideration on these matters,

Kristy Crockett

Concerned Parent

kristy_crockett@yahoo.com

November 11, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department

VIA E-Mail

My name is Kristy Crockett, I am the parent of a two students, 1st and 9th graders, currently enrolled in Artesia Public Schools. I am also a lifetime resident of New Mexico. I am a college graduate with years of post-secondary studies in science, accounting, and business management.

I want to express my concerns about the proposed social studies standards. First, I want to address my concerns with comments made by NMPED staff.

Dr. Gwen Perea Warniment, Deputy Secretary of Teaching, Learning and Assessment, stated in an interview on November 10th with KRQE news, "I want to be very clear; the standards do not have any critical race theory. They are not taught in a K-12 setting." She also stated in this interview that historical accuracy and CRT are two different things and are often confused.

I find these statements by Dr. Perea Warniment troubling. There is a significant difference between historical facts and a theory.

Merriam-Webster defines
theory

- : as an idea or opinion that is presented as possibly true but that is not known or proven to be true
- : an idea or set of ideas that is intended to explain facts or events
- : a hypothesis assumed for the sake of argument or investigation
- : an unproved assumption

facts

- : something that truly exists or happens
- : something that has actual existence
- : a true piece of information
- : a piece of information presented as having objective reality

To suggest that historical accuracy can be confused with critical race theory (CRT) is asinine. Comments like this are a direct reflection of how out of touch the leadership of our state education system is with the residence in our state.

I am glad we can agree that CRT is a theory that should not be taught in a K-12 setting. I respect our education system for their desire to improve the standards used in our schools. New Mexico has a long history of being one of the worst states for education. This reputation plagues our high school graduates along with their ability to acquire scholarships and opportunities within post-secondary schools. Improving the quality of education in our state needs to be a priority.

The proposed changes to the social studies standards, while viewed as inclusive by NMPED, are extremely concerning to me as a parent. I've read these proposed standards numerous times (yes I printed every page), and each time I am appalled by the bias language, negative connotations, distorted singular point of view, and direct elimination of historically important people, places, and dates. The proposed standards have been written in assignment format, directing exactly how and what is to be taught to students. Curriculum standards were designed to offer guidance and factual bullet points of importance.

The following standards are direct examples of the issues I mentioned above:

K.4	2.13	5.10	6.15	7.11	7.74
K.5	2.15	5.12	6.16	7.21	7.76
K.22	2.16	5.30	6.20	7.28	7.78
K.23	2.27	5.31	6.22	7.38	7.82
K.24	2.28			7.47	7.92
K.25	2.29			7.49	7.93
	2.5			7.59	7.94
1.12	2.6			7.60	7.98
1.23				7.61	7.103
1.3	3.11			7.68
1.4	3.12			7.72
	3.27
	3.28
	3.29
	4.25
	4.26
8.5	8.34	9-12.Civ.17		9-12.US.13	9-12.US.35
8.7	8.35	9-12.Civ.32		9-12.US.14	9-12.US.36
8.12	8.37	9-12.Civ.38		9-12.US.15	9-12.US.37
8.16	8.43	9-12.Civ.40		9-12.US.16	9-12.US.38
8.18	8.46			9-12.US.17	9-12.US.39
8.19	8.48			9-12.US.18	9-12.US.40
8.20	8.49	9-12.WH.34		9-12.US.19	9-12.US.41
8.21	8.5	9-12.WH.35		9-12.US.20	9-12.US.42
8.23	8.55	9-12.WH.36		9-12.US.21	9-12.US.50
8.29	8.58			9-12.US.22	9-12.US.53
8.30	8.66	9-12.NMH.18		9-12.US.23	9-12.US.56
8.32	8.68	9-12.NMH.26		9-12.US.24	9-12.US.69
	8.69	9-12.NMH.27		9-12.US.25	9-12.US.83
	8.70	9-12.NMH.47		9-12.US.26	9-12.US.87
	8.72	9-12.NMH.48		9-12.US.27	9-12.US.95
	8.74			9-12.US.28	9-12.US.104
	8.76	9-12.Econ.24		9-12.US.29	9-12.US.106
	8.78	9-12.Econ.27		9-12.US.30	9-12.US.113
	8.79	9-12.Econ.48-175		9-12.US.31	9-12.US.116
	8.80			9-12.US.32	9-12.US.118
	8.81	9-12.ECI.13		9-12.US.33	9-12.US.122
	8.83	9-12.ECI.14		9-12.US.34	9-12.US.123
	8.90	9-12.ECI.16			9-12.US.129
		9-12.ECI.18			9-12.US.130
		9-12.ECI.19			9-12.US.132
		9-12.ECI.21			9-12.US.134
		9-12.ECI.22			9-12.US.135
					9-12.US.136

In the proposed standards from Kindergarten to High School:

- the word “group” or “group identity” appears 26 times
- approx. 35 of the standards are written as assignments
- the words “oppressed” or “oppressor” appear multiple times

Please know I am not against making changes to our curriculum to include the cultural diversity of our state, country, or world. I come from a multicultural family.

One of my issues with some of the proposed standards listed above remove student ability to choose assignment topics, this is what makes education fun. The diversity of project topics and class presentations are how our students learn to respect each other and they learn how to express themselves. The wide variety of essays written, and projects created are intriguing. I love to see and understand our world through the eyes of others. Standards that facilitate an expressive opportunity for every student are essential.

The proposed standards will place education in a very small specific box which will result in a generation that will lack imagination, individualism, diversity, acceptance, and respect for others.

The proposed standards remove essential values that teach fairness, loyalty, patriotism, good citizenship, fair play, and trustworthiness. In elementary schools we need to reinstate standards that teach children to take turns, share, and accept responsibility for their actions. The proposed standards are so focused on teaching young children to identify their groups and evaluate other people into group identities that we’ve missed the basic foundations of creating respectable human beings.

Civics, Economics, Geography, History, and Cultural/Ethnic Diversities are vital to the future of our society, the good and bad. People that came before us made mistakes. They also triumphed. From chaos and conflict, heroes arose. We had leaders with visions and dreams that impacted our world. No one is perfect. No generation will ever be perfect. We can teach cultural, ethnic, and racial diversity without forcing the ideology and political views of either side. When we stop teaching the whole story from multiple viewpoints, it stops being social studies.

I have read the following public comments in detail, and I agree with the suggested edits proposed. Please consider the recommended edits submitted in the following individuals and the email address comment was submitted:

- Danny Parker – dannykparker@gmail.com
- Artesia Public Schools - Social Studies Department
- Michael Campbell – camp.pecos@gmail.com

Thank you for your consideration on these matters,

Kristy Crockett
Concerned Parent
kristy_crockett@yahoo.com

[EXTERNAL] SUPPORT Revised Soc Studies Standards

Lois Meyer <lsmeyer@unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:37 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Lois Meyer <lsmeyer@unm.edu>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The pushback against the revised Social Studies standards is deeply disturbing, or should be, to anyone who cares about meaningful and Constitutionally "sufficient" education for all NM public school students, as the Yazzie-Martinez lawsuit requires.

It is sadly ironic that on Nov. 4 the ABQ Journal (pA13) publicized Rep. Rebecca Dow's (Republican, Truth or Consequences) scathing claim that the revised standards encourage "division and victimhood among our diverse populations," and instead "students should be encouraged to understand we are all Americans and everyone has opportunity for economic advancement based on the principles of family, education and work."

If her claims are true, how does she explain today's ABQ Journal article (pA5) "in honor of Veterans Day", that "Black service members who fought on behalf of the nation during World War II were denied benefits or prevented from taking full advantage of them when they returned home from the war." Or the stunning new NMPBS documentary, American Exile, to be broadcast Nov. 18, documenting two Chicano Vietnam vets who were multiply honored and medaled for heroism but who suffer disabling PTSD, and 50 years later have recently received deportation letters, which they are fighting. If deported, all their military benefits will be terminated. Both of these unconscionable anti-vet actions are now challenged by Democratic legislation. Just where are the "opportunities for economic advancement" Rep. Dow claims "every American has"?

It is her kind of demeaning unhistorical approach that the Yazzie-Martinez lawsuit demands the State of NM correct immediately in order to stop damaging the education of over 70% of public school students, especially those who are economically disadvantaged, English learners, Native American students, and Special Education students. These students have never been taught a content the tells their truths in ways that are meaningful to them.

I'm struck that today we see multiple billboards in ABQ saying that one of our private schools teaches "not what to think, but how to think." This is exactly what our school curricula should teach by presenting documented truth, even multiple versions of contested truth, and enabling students to probe and question and seek the best answers they can, until more accurate truth is uncovered. This is not some "socialist" approach or philosophy; rather it is the finest processes of historical thinking and investigation.

It seems clear that Rep. Dow and others of her Republican colleagues could benefit, not by spouting "what to think", but by humbling setting about to learn "how to think," and therefore, how to legislate and govern.

Lois M. Meyer, PhD, Professor Emerita
Dept. of Language, Literacy & Sociocultural Studies, UNM
Tel: 505-225-0022

[EXTERNAL] Comment on K-12 Social Studies Standards-OPPOSE Ryan Hedin <rhedin79@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing to oppose the adoption of the new k-12 Social Studies standards. As a parent of three children currently enrolled in public school I cannot express enough my disappointment that the PED is so obviously using our kids to advance a political agenda.

As a parent I want to immerse my kids in history, good and bad, and do not shy away from teaching them about the human rights injustices that have occurred in our country. However, it has become quite clear reading the proposed standards that what the PED is doing is not engaging school aged kids on our country's troubled history, rather they are moving to adopt more of the divisive tactics that seek to divide kids by race, gender, ethnicity etc.

Additionally, having social studies standards formulated by social justice academics does not lend credibility to this process or to the standards. If I am not mistaken, the common core standard adoptions took almost a year to complete. Why is this being rushed?

I strongly urge the PED to rework these new standards and to include a more diverse group of stakeholders that truly care about New Mexico's school children rather than advancing a political agenda.

Ryan Hedin

[EXTERNAL] Commentary

Judith Flores Carmona <judithfc@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon, I'm Dr. Judith Flores Carmona. I fully support the proposed social studies standards. I am the Interim Director of Chicano Programs and associate professor of education and borderlands and ethnic studies at New Mexico State University.

These updated standards are a step forward in addressing the Yazzie/Martinez ruling and mandates, furthermore, it is a timely and needed change for New Mexico students to feel included and represented in the curriculum, to feel like they belong and that their diverse experiences and realities are accurately reflected in their educational experiences historically and currently. In my over 20 years of teaching experience and in my current work with the Las Cruces Public Schools and Cuba Independent School District—I am certain that most teachers I have worked with are ready to change the narrative to one that is inclusive and equitable for all students.

However, teachers and school leaders need a Higher Education that prepares them for a new education, a culturally relevant and sustaining professional development, and new content and materials that reflect all of New Mexico's voices... and we are prepared to partner in this work with the state's school districts. I thank you on behalf of all the teachers, parents, and students whom I've been in contact with these last 9.5 years in New Mexico. I love this state and it is time for a change. Gracias. Thank you.

Dr. Judith Flores Carmona

Associate Professor (she/her/s/Dra)

Interim Director of Chicano Programs

(575) 646-4206

Borderlands & Ethnic Studies Affiliated Faculty

Honors College Faculty Fellow

NMSU Faculty Grievance Review Board

[EXTERNAL] GACC Public Comment - Social Studies Standards and Personal Finance

Terri Cole <tcole@greaterabq.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:41 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Norman Becker <becker_norm@yahoo.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

Please find attached the Greater Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce's public comment on the proposed social studies standards. Please let us know if we can be of any assistance during this process.

Thank you for your consideration,

Terri

November 12, 2021

Dear Mr. Sena,

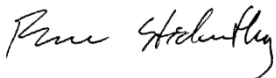

The Greater Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce is writing in support of K-12 personal finance standards that currently do not appear in the draft social studies standards but that have been proposed by Think New Mexico. These standards seek to equip our students with some of the most practical lifelong skills we want all New Mexicans to have: the ability to manage their resources to live lives of stability and security and, as in the case of many of New Mexico's children, break the cycle of generational poverty.

Financial literacy skills are incredibly important: they give people the know-how to achieve financial stability and the independence and self-reliance that come from that. According to the Council for Economic Education's 2020 Survey of the States, New Mexico is one of just five states where personal finance is not already included in state standards; all of our neighboring states – Arizona, Colorado, Texas, and Utah – have K-12 personal finance standards that help their kids grow into educated consumers and empowered stewards of their resources.

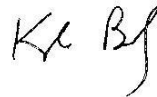

Introducing these concepts to our students as soon as they enter a kindergarten classroom makes sure more of our students are prepared for success as they enter the workforce, whether that's immediately after high school or later on – so that they can be armed with the knowledge they need to avoid and manage debt, become homeowners if they choose, send children of their own to school, and be ready for retirement one day in the future.

We thank you for your consideration of these standards that teach such important skills, and for your continued service of New Mexico's kids.

Sincerely,

Bruce Stidworthy
Education Reform BIG Chair, GACC
President and CEO, Bohannon Huston

Kyle Beasley
Immediate Past Chair, GACC
Senior Vice President, Bank of Albuquerque

Robert Chavez
Sector Advocacy Teams Chair, GACC
Executive Vice President/COO, Sandia Laboratory
Federal Credit Union

Marsha Majors
Board Member, GACC
President/CEO, US Eagle Credit Union

Michael Rogholt
President, Century Bank

CC: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary-Designate, New Mexico Public Education Department
Norm Becker, Chair, Greater Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors
Terri Cole, President and CEO, Greater Albuquerque Chamber of Commerce
Fred Nathan, Executive Director, Think New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Social studies

Tira Barral <bydawn@mac.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:41 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I just read the New Mexico Social Studies Standards, and it screams Critical Race Theory. It was reported, on the news, that this is not CRT. NMPED can give it different names, but it doesn't change the content. The content teaches racial stereotyping starting in Kindergarten.

Some examples are... "Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity. K.14. Identify how individuals are similar and different."

K.22 - K.25

Theme 2: Cultures within our communities. 1.9 to 1.13

Theme 3: Making choices. 1:14 -1:17

Culture should be taught at home, by family, and not in schools. Growing up, we never saw color, race, or differences. All that mattered was having friends. It is my job, as a parent, to protect my children from this ideological curriculum. I will not allow them to be subjected to racial profiling. The color of their skin should not be part of their education. No child should ever feel different from their peers. I believe this curriculum will teach segregation, hate, racism, and victimization.

I don't want to, but if this is what is going to be taught, then I will have to pull my children out of school. Homeschooling will be the norm.

Please do not allow our state to go down this road.

One more thing, by not having this meeting in person, it tells me that the NMPED is avoiding meeting with parents. It speaks loudly that parents don't have a say if their kids are in public schools. The only option is for zoom. Please don't give excuses that it's due to keeping everyone safe from Covid. It's a sad and disturbing reality that we have come to this.

Sincerely,
Dawn Barral
Santa Fe

[EXTERNAL] K-12 Social Studies standards (6.29.11 NMAC)

Jorge Esparza <jesparz823@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

My name is Jorge Esparza, a first generation American, and I'm appalled by the push to bring division to our schools and our children.

My parents were legal immigrants to this great country. My mother is now a naturalized citizen, who graduated with a Bachelors degree in Business Administration. As a single mother, she worked hard and made something of herself and set a great example for me to follow. Even though we went through some hard times, not once did she teach me that my skin color, culture, or ethnicity was a barrier to my success. She did not teach me that others had an advantage over me because of their skin color, culture, or ethnicity. She taught me to get an education, work hard, and make wise decisions. Nothing was guaranteed.

I'm proud to say that her example and life lessons have been instrumental in my success. My success is not just my own. It is a result of so many people of different skin color, culture, and ethnicity that have helped me along the way.

Equity is not equality. Equity is impossible to obtain because it completely removes the individual's dreams and ideas of success. My idea of success is not the same as my neighbor's, but equity pushes for the same outcome regardless of the individual's desires, choices, and hard work. It punishes those who strive for more.

Our children's grandmother, their mother and I have worked to show them the American dream, and we are proof that it exists.

We already see the detriment of the ideas that come within the proposed rule in other parts of the country. Please do not repeat the same mistake here in New Mexico. I hope you take the time to read this message and make a decision that will protect the American dream for future generations.

Thank you for your time,
Jorge Esparza
Proud to be an American us

[EXTERNAL] Push back against the Pushback

Jim Harvey <jim.abqpaj@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please find enclosed our response to the latest wave of racism in New Mexico.

Jim Harvey, MPH, MSHA, CDAPC
Executive Director,
Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice
202 Harvard SE
Albuquerque, NM 87106
505-268-9557
jim.abqpaj@gmail.com

The Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice

202 Harvard Drive SE ..Albuquerque, NM 87106...505/268/9557...www.abqpeaceandjustice.org

Memorandum

To: NM Public Education Department

From: Jim Harvey, Executive Director,
Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice

Date: 12 November 2021

RE: New Standards Proposed for Public Education

On behalf of the Albuquerque Center for Peace and Justice, this letter comes to express our concern over the apparent blatant disregard for the value of inclusion of Black/African American presence in the fabric of history as it should be represented in all aspects of public instruction.

African Americans have historically struggled with the devastating and albeit inherit effects of post traumatic slave syndrome resulting directly from years of enslavement and the subsequent systemic racism that follows us to this day. African Americans have long been forced to over compensate in order to achieve any success in an educational experience where we could not find ourselves as relevant participants in the fabric of history. Despite this challenge, the contributions of a people who have been abused and maligned and ignored have proved to be significant.

In New Mexico in particular, the African American presence was long ignored to such an extent that for years Black people were considered statistically non existent. This practice gave way to the reference to New Mexico as a “tri-cultural state”, counting only Anglos, Hispanics and Natives. Not a great feeling when you are looking to find important data that actually counted your presence and none was to be found. Equally damaging to how we see ourselves in this society was that the Black economic and cultural footprint was and still is large and cannot, should not be ignored. Yet it remains a struggle to be counted as part of this society in every way.

As an African American living in New Mexico I am alarmed but not surprised that local republicans would protest the pending inclusions of historical references to the African American presence in history, science and all other relevant discussions that include African Americans. That they (the republicans) would attempt to frame their opposition in the context of “critical race theory” is also shameful and dishonest. This protest is nothing more than confederate driven racism and I expect nothing less from the PED leadership and influencers to do the right thing and dismiss these baseless allegations as what they truly are; racist, dishonest, mean-spirited, antithetical to the pursuit of true and inclusive history and damaging to a people already suffering the long term and inherent effects exclusion. The confederates (republicans) are resorting to methods intended to erase us. We expect the PED to stand firm and resist the racist demands that are poisoning the environment. Our futures depend on good judgement.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Cortney Powell <powellcortney11@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

I am writing as a New Mexico teacher and parent. I am not in support of approving the suggested Social Standards and implementing the curriculum into our schools. I do feel that the content is one sided and biased. Students should be given the facts and be allowed to view history the way that they see it instead of how a curriculum or teacher teaches it. Although the intention may be good, I believe it is a very slippery slope and will result in a great divide in our schools, communities, state, and nation.

If this change gets approved, I, as well as many other good families, will be withdrawing my children from the public school. I will not support my children being taught a one way view.

Thank you for taking the time to read my email. Please make decisions that better our education by denying this change in Social Studies.

Cortney Powell

[EXTERNAL] Oppose New Social Studies Standards

Jeremy Standiford <jeremy.standiford@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi,

I am writing to you to express my opposition to the proposed new social studies standards. These standards are Marxist, left-wing politically biased and don't belong in our school curriculum.

Voters in Virginia did not want this type of "curriculum" in their schools and voted overwhelmingly Republican in the last election. The same will happen in New Mexico if these rules are allowed to go into effect.

Sincerely,

Jeremy Standiford
1003 Birch LN
Carlsbad, NM 88220

[EXTERNAL] Fw: As a parent of a first and fifth grader I am deeply concerned about...

Melissa Thompson <melthompson1@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org <socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent of a first and fifth grader I am deeply concerned about the New Mexico social standards proposals I feel that the proposals are unnecessary and racist. I don't want my children to look at people and immediately begin to identify them as their race.

K 22, K 23, K 25 communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of the group identities. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not. Describe their family history, culture, and past two current does contributions of people in their main identity groups.

2.28 describe ways we are similar and different from people.

3.27, 3.28 let the kids discuss themselves and teach them facts.

5.12 5.30 5.31 Dash these are racist and promote kids to single others out.

These concepts should not be discussed with kinder kids in school.

I believe that the proposed social studies standards will divide all the kids and make them not get along. The standards are ridiculous for these kids to follow and not age-appropriate. Please referred to the proposed edits by Artesia school district.

Thank you Melissa Thompson

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment for 11/11 public hearing for the proposed repeal and replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, Mandisa Routheni <mcroutheni@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

In regards to the public hearing for the proposed repeal and replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies:

I first want to thank PED for taking a necessary look at the standards especially in regards to meeting some of the solutions laid out in the Yazzie versus Martinez ruling. I am a parent of two young children going into the school system, a product of the New Mexico school system, vice president of a nonprofit Juneteenth renaissance Institute and have a background in education as well as an Africana studies graduate from the University of New Mexico.

My family is six generation Black New Mexican and my mother is white so I know firsthand being aware of our history that includes multiple voices, diverse perspectives and inequality is the best way to build families, communities, and a state that is in unity. Not talking about racism creates racism, talking about racism, sexism, etc does not create it but is a way for us to move forward. Children come to school with their beautiful identities and that is all the standards are proposing is that we include that within the curriculum which is only a small step towards including that in our wider world and how teachers interact and how our school systems function.

It took me until college to learn the real history of New Mexico, I never grew up knowing about other Black people in New Mexico history or even indigenous New Mexican history which includes brutal things such as slavery. Without knowing these things people will not understand the world around them, how to move forward with compassion, and how to create a world that actually lives up to the constitution of New Mexico and the United States .

I applaud PED and hope that they stand firm away from bullies, threats, and those seeking to undermine the progress forward of our educational system to include all children, all stories, and to give the best of the best to our best of the best: our children.

Thank you

Mandisa Routheni

--

Mandisa Routheni

“The well-being of mankind,” Bahá’u’lláh wrote more than a century ago, “its peace and security, are unattainable unless and until its unity is firmly established.”

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the Proposed Replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Pamela Campbell <paminsantafe@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Pamela Campbell
1117 N. Plata Circle, Santa Fe, NM 87501
Paminsantafe@hotmail.com

November 12, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena;

Please consider this letter to be my formal comments on the proposed repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. I am a concerned citizen, alarmed at the lack of an inclusive and accurate history of our nation and the division we are now experiencing. I can think of no better way to engender a civil society and heal the wounds that have been caused by the lack of equality in our nation than to begin to educate our children in a more honest and inclusive way. Therefore, I am writing in support of the proposed social studies standards. I want to commend the PED for undertaking these revisions, and I was impressed by the scope of work undertaken by the committee that drafted them. I believe the K-8 standards and the framework of the 6 strands works beautifully. If I were to teach to these standards, I can envision how I or an experienced teacher might do so effectively engaging students. Had my generation been taught to these standards, I am convinced we would have a healthier democracy. While I found the high school standards also admirable, they could be better organized to ensure a clearer presentation. In their present form, there is a lot of repetition.

These standards respect the intelligence of children, concentrate on teaching critical thinking, evaluation of the credibility of data sources, and values that respect differing cultures and perspectives.

In closing, I urge the department to adopt the bulk of these standards, with refinements. I hope the department will stand up to those who seek to preserve the old approach to teaching social studies and history, that is Eurocentric and fails to enable children to face the challenges that are ever-present in their daily lives. Children need to master the standards outlined in this regulation to prepare to be effective citizens and problem solvers.

Respectfully,
Pamela Campbell

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.1.9 NMAC, General Provisions

Cathryn Johansson <cajohansson@me.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:53 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To New Mexico PED:

I am writing as a parent of four school-aged children. I am concerned over the proposed changes to the Social Studies curriculum for New Mexico public schools. I have read all of the pages of the 6.29.1.1 proposed changes and what stood out on every single page was "reconciliation" and "equity" and "take action". These words carry so much more meaning and political insinuations than other word choices. They are not neutral. Also, the Anchor Standards and Performance standards listed for History were very vague in the implementation.

However, most concerning was that there seemed to be a political bent to the standards (just a few examples below):

- "evaluating the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States"
- "examining the history of guns in America...and the consequence of gun violence"
- "assessing the short and long term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people"
- "evaluating what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States"

These new standards smack of revisionist history, one sided political views and worldviews. New Mexico students deserve the whole truth, not just one view of it, and certainly not a biased view. That is not education. That is brainwashing.

Sincerely,
Cathryn Johansson

[EXTERNAL] Feedback 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Sandy Richter <srichter@eot-nm.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Sandy Richter <srichter@eot-nm.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Feedback 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Sandra Richter, Resident and Parent of Students in New Mexico Public School Systems

Please consider extending the review time of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies Standards. I believe there are more Educators and Parents who want to be heard; the recent COVID lifestyle restrictions may have prevented many from being involved thus far.

I want students in New Mexico to learn about US and State history from different perspectives without divisive language. Not including the significance of July 4th, 1776, and Martin Luther King in our history lessons seems incomplete to me. Allowing sexual orientation lessons to be presented to elementary students seems like the government wants to parent our children instead of allowing the parents to do so.

To keep our country as a free country involves teaching our children history, both the good and bad. We want our youth to repeat what has been good and generous about our country and to prevent them from repeating what has been negative and oppressive.

Please give us more time to add and subtract from the proposed 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies Standards. A change is needed but not one that continues to divide us.

I do not support 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies Standards in its current form.

Thank you.

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: The contents of this email message and any attachments are intended solely for the addressee(s); and may contain confidential and/or privileged information and may be legally protected from disclosure. If you are not the intended recipient of this message or their agent, or if this message has been addressed to you in error, please immediately alert the sender by reply email and then delete this message and any attachments. If you are not the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any use, dissemination, copying, or storage of this message or its attachments is strictly prohibited.

[EXTERNAL] Re: Subject: 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Penny Bird <pennybirdsd@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:55 PM

To: Vigil, Francis <indigeducation1@gmail.com>Cc: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Samuel Villarreal Catanach <samyouel.c@gmail.com>; Pino, Sarah <sarah_pino@msn.com>; Patrick Werito <patrick@dlenm.org>; Loretto, Arlene <lorettoarlene@yahoo.com>; Felice Lucero <lucero.felice4@gmail.com>; Shannon Johnson <shanjohnson4@yahoo.com>; simonec@pojoaque.org <simonec@pojoaque.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I messed up on the signature line though; oh well. I'm glad you were able to get in there. I waited almost an hour and a half, then got kicked out about 15 minutes later, but that was on my end as my server does that at times when I am on a meeting. You take care and be well. Penny

On Fri, Nov 12, 2021 at 3:38 PM Francis Vigil <indigeducation1@gmail.com> wrote:

I also provided comments, and I will clean up my comments, and send those later.

I appreciate your voice and leadership in this arena.

Thank you Dr. Bird!

On Fri, Nov 12, 2021 at 3:30 PM Penny Bird <pennybirdsd@gmail.com> wrote:

I was able to make public comments during the hearing, but three minutes are not long so shorted them. Attached are my comments in full. Please document them for the record. Thank you.

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Suzanne Skasik <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Skasik
6301 Indian Schools Rd NE
Albuquerque , NM 87111

[EXTERNAL] Feedback for Rule 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Sahaj Khalsa <sahajs@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good Evening,

As a former High School US History teacher, I write to thank you for the work on these updated standards and speak in favor of them.

Despite the attacks that this is "CRT" or supporting "Marxism", the reality is they are simply an update that recognizes reality. It is important for us to acknowledge the totality of our shared history while ensuring we no longer prioritize one group over another.

The notion that we have to keep the same standards as we used to have, or to abide by the knowledge and people of the past, is simply not rooted in reality. To demonstrate that, we can turn to one of our Founding Fathers, Thomas Jefferson, who said, "I am not an advocate for frequent changes in laws and constitutions, but laws and institutions must go hand in hand with the progress of the human mind. As that becomes more developed, more enlightened, as new discoveries are made, new truths discovered and manners and opinions change, with the change of circumstances, institutions must advance also to keep pace with the times. We might as well require a man to wear still the coat which fitted him when a boy as civilized society to remain ever under the regimen of their barbarous ancestors."

This quote is on panel four of the Jefferson Memorial, because it is that important.

Please continue with the change and don't allow us to remain under "the regimen of [our] barbarous ancestors".

Thank you,

Sahaj S. Khalsa

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed social studies standards

Ellen Pinnes <EPinnes@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I have read through the proposed social studies standards and I support their adoption. On the whole, they strike me as setting out a positive framework for promoting knowledge acquisition, critical thinking and good citizenship in our students. I wish standards like these had been in effect when I was in school!

The proposed standards will foster understanding of the world our students live in, its historical antecedents, and how history affects current conditions and events. They appropriately broaden education from a narrow, Anglo-centric worldview to increase understanding of other times and cultures and how they have influenced and continue to influence our society today.

We in New Mexico, who pride ourselves on our vibrant and multicultural state, should know better than anyone how important it is for our students to gain a broad base of knowledge about the world, the different people in it, and the forces that shape it. The proposed standards will support acquisition of that knowledge along with the analytical skills to evaluate it.

Ellen Pinnes

[EXTERNAL] :Comments on the Proposed Repeal and Replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Tami Elkins <telkins@bulldogs.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 3:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr. Sena,

I am writing in opposition to the proposed repeal and replacement of the social studies standards. These changes are not uniting but are very divisive. Respect and value of others should be first and foremost and there should not be an emphasis on identity and group identities. That grouping is beginning in kindergarten and continues and grows throughout the grade levels. As a teacher within the Artesia school district, our district has taken the time to go through all the standards and have rewritten them omitting this grouping and divisive language. I strongly encourage you to review and considered these changes before codifying these standards.

Thank you for our consideration,

Tami Elkins

[EXTERNAL] I agree and approve of the new Social Studies standards being proposed Carol Campbell <carolabqnm@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a former high school English teacher, I find the new proposed standards refreshing. These standards are forward thinking and will help students understand their world. I don't see anything that would denigrate one culture over another but instead see how each child can be proud of who they are. I could see the need for all 4 areas, history, geography, civics and government and economics and wonder how did some of these students make it to high school.

These proposed standards are so much more specific than the old ones which could be described as wishy washy because the Benchmark is left up to instructor discretion.

Thank you for helping our young people become more aware of themselves and our state and country and our place in the world.

Carol Campbell

All the best, always :) Carol

*"... there's no so blind - As those who will not see - And to those who lack the courage -
And say it's dangerous to try - Well they just don't know that love eternal will not be denied..." Moody Blues*

Click to give

[http://theanimalrescuesite.greatergood.com/clickToGive/ars/home?
gg_source=ctgtabs&gg_medium=sitenav&gg_campaign=trs](http://theanimalrescuesite.greatergood.com/clickToGive/ars/home?gg_source=ctgtabs&gg_medium=sitenav&gg_campaign=trs)

[EXTERNAL] Say NO to CRT

Teri Barela <3atbarela@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:02 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attention PED: Please note that we ask that you vote against instilling racist, divisive, teachings into our schools.

Sincerely,

The Barela Family
Bosque Farms, NM

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Curriculum changes

Jamie Searcy <jamerlynski@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Board,

As a retired educator, I know how important and necessary it is that we give all students a solid education, which includes an accurate portrayal of our nation's history in all of its glory and its wrongs. We must teach students to think critically and to look at all perspectives and all sides.

The new curriculum proposed changes will do just that, so I am highly in favor of your board accepting the professionals' suggestions.

Thank you,
Jamie Searcy

[EXTERNAL] new social studies standards

Nora Reed <messagefromkathlene@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:04 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

What we are seeing with the objections to "Critical Race Theory", which is a university-level topic not taught in K-12, are a classic moral panic. Across the country, people are organizing on facebook and on telegram, often in groups run by hate groups such as the Proud Boys, to join public comments such as this one and attempt to create an appearance of consensus against intersectional education. I highly recommend that everyone here makes a point to educate themselves about moral panics and takes those particular comments with a significant grain of salt. (Feel free to email me if you want reading recommendations on this, I don't want to be the guy who sent you a 27 page cited email.)

Personally, as a graduate of a New Mexico school, looking at the new standards was heartening to me, because looking back at my education, the portions where my teachers went off-book and taught a more intersectional view of history. These new standards will make that experience available to more students, and I expect that these students will have more information and be able to be more engaged with their history and their communities as adults. Thank you to everyone who thoughtfully came up with these new standards and for all of your time.

--

Nora Reed

[EXTERNAL] Approve Proposed Social Studies Standards Rule As Written Sharon Eklund <sharon.eklund@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

PED Officials,

I implore you to implement the Social Studies standards as written. The future rests on the shoulders of today's students, and only truth can provide them the tools they need to lead!

Thank you,
Sharon Eklund

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Ped proposed curriculum

Hockey Fan <carriej_76@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My comments are- stick to reading, writing , math and science. Kids shouldn't be ashamed of how they were born, who they are. Get this ridiculous junk out of the schools. We are last in education, spend more time on actual school subjects!

Thanks

Carrie Lujan

Get Outlook for iOS

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Curriculum Review

Rob Lennick <Rob@jewishnewmexico.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:06 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

BY EMAIL*PLEASE DISREGARD PRIOR EMAIL – SENT IN*ERRORNOVEMBER 12, 2021*RE: Public comment on New Mexico Social Studies Standards*To Whom it May Concern:

On behalf of the New Mexico Jewish Federation, we are pleased to submit our recommendations on our state's social studies standards for K-12. We thank the committee for its efforts to continuously improve the draft.

We greatly appreciate the State's process to improve social studies standards for New Mexico students, the hard work of the committee on this draft, and the opportunity to comment.

Thank you very much in advance for sharing the attached review with the writing committee and for your consideration of these suggestions.

Sincerely,

Robert B. Lennick

Rabbi Dr. Robert B. Lennick
Chief Executive Officer
The Jewish Federation of New Mexico
Direct Line: 479-616-7372
rob@jewishnewmexico.org

Institute for Curriculum Services (ICS) on behalf of The Jewish Federation of New Mexico
Review of the proposed 2021
New Mexico Social Studies Standards
November 2021

General Comments:

We appreciate the dedication and hard work by this group of New Mexico educators to make strong social studies standards for New Mexico students. We appreciated the addition of the new structure of six content/inquiry areas and the structure of a backbone for the overall standards of anchor standards and themes within a course.

The standards for the six high school courses are not all written consistently, so they should be standardized across courses to support districts, schools, and teachers in creating their syllabi and ensuring they have enough information on what they should be teaching. The standards for the high school courses of Civics, Economics, Geography, New Mexico History, U.S. History, World History, and Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies all have both anchor standards and performance standards. However, the standards for the courses New Mexico History (8 Themes) and U.S. History (16 Themes) also have detailed Themes that list the specific content to be taught, and these themes are lacking in the other courses. The standards for the course of World History lacks a list of themes comparable to U.S. History. Instead, World History has a table of "Sample Themes" and "Sample Topics" organized into five time periods on pp. 121-122. If these Samples are a step in the direction of creating Themes, this work should be completed before the standards are finalized so that core sections: anchor standards, performance standards, and themes are consistent for each course.

To better reflect the diversity of New Mexico, "religion" should be added as an identity marker and "religious minorities" added to several standards. Religion and religious minorities do appear in some standards, however they are missing from demography standards and many performance standards that center on examinations of diverse cultural narratives. Not referencing religion explicitly erases the direct lived experiences of students for whom religion defines culture. Including religion empowers students to take pride in their identities and supports a more robust understanding of New Mexico's cultural diversity. There is an inherent relationship between religious and cultural heritage for many students in New Mexico.

The standards offer some valuable coverage of antisemitism and the Holocaust, but the coverage of Jews and Judaism is otherwise absent. There are no performance standards that include narratives of Jewish diversity, presence, or contributions in New Mexico and the United States more generally. This is concerning because there is more to Jewish American history and experience than antisemitism and the Holocaust, just as there is more to African American history and experience than slavery. This is particularly unfortunate for New Mexico, which has had a Jewish presence since the late 16th century when descendants of Conversos (forced or voluntary Jewish converts to Christianity) arrived from Mexico. This is more than half a century before the official 1654 founding date for the American Jewish community. Some Conversos continued Jewish practices in secret or later reclaimed Judaism. According to a 2014 demographic study, four percent of New Mexico Jews had ancestors who were Crypto-Jews and eight percent overall self-identify as Latino, mixed race, or non-white. Those suspected of being “Judaisers” or Crypto-Jews were subject to arrest, imprisonment, torture, and trial by the Spanish Inquisition.

An early Spanish governor of New Mexico was a descendant of Conversos. Don Bernardo López de Mendizábal was appointed 1659. In 1663, he and his wife, Doña Teresa Aguilera y Roche, were indicted by the Inquisition in Mexico City for allegedly practicing Judaism in secret among other crimes. Don Bernardo died in prison in Mexico City in 1664. Doña Teresa was imprisoned for 28 months and tried in Santa Fe. She was the only woman tried by the Inquisition in what would become the United States. The evidence she amassed in her defense remains one of the only female accounts of life in colonial New Mexico. Other notable Jewish New Mexicans include: Henry Jaffa who helped found the city of Albuquerque and served as its first mayor; education reformer and activist Flora Langerman Spiegelberg; the elected Chief/Governor of the Acoma Pueblo Solomon Bibo who married an Acoma woman Juana Valle; renowned feminist artist Judy Chicago; and Congressman Steve Schiff, among others.

Here is a partial list of resources on the history of Jews in New Mexico so that the writers can see the importance of including religion and Jews in the New Mexico standards:

- A Long Journey: The Hidden Jews of the Southwest | NMPBS
- New Mexico Jewish Historical Society
- New Mexico Jewish History | Jewish Virtual Library
- Spanish Inquisition in the New World | Times of Israel
- The Jewish Federation of New Mexico
- Centro Sefarad of New Mexico

Note the references to some ethnic and cultural groups are not always consistent. Of the 50 references to Indigenous peoples, nations, cultures, or groups, there are four times indigenous is not capitalized. There are four references to Native Americans, one to Native peoples, and perhaps those standards should also use Indigenous peoples, or at least, when historically appropriate, use both terms “Native Americans/Indigenous peoples.”

Recommended Edits:

Kindergarten

P. 14, Kindergarten, Inquiry, Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action, Change: “K.4. Take group or individual action to help address local, and/or regional, ~~and/or~~ global problems.”

Comments: It is standard pedagogical practice to start this age group on more developmentally appropriate and manageable problems conceptually, which usually focus on solving problems in their family, classroom or school. The next standard K.5 focuses on problem solving in the classroom, as is developmentally appropriate. Given that the following standard requires students to “use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms,” it would be excessive to expect kindergarten students who are just learning how to address civic problems to apply their skills on the global scale. This edit creates more alignment with K.18 and K.21 which refer to places familiar to kindergarteners in the classroom, school, and community.

First Grade

P. 18, 1st Grade, Inquiry, Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action, Change: “1.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, and/or regional, ~~and/or global~~ problems.”

Comments: It is standard pedagogical practice to start this age group on more manageable problems conceptually, which usually limit students to the local or regional level. Given that the following standard requires students to “use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms,” it would be excessive to expect first grade students who are just learning how to address civic problems to apply their skills on the global scale. Elsewhere, in very developmentally appropriate ways, we see first grade students asked to try to solve problems in their family (1.11, 1.14), classroom (1.6), school or local community (1.11, 1.13, 1.18).

P. 21, 1st Grade, Theme 5: Multi-Identities, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity, Change: “1.24. Explain how student group and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.”

Comments: The distinction between student and individual identity in this standard is unclear. Students should understand that individuals have unique identities as individuals and as members of larger group identities. Both individual and group identities contribute to each student’s unique identity.

Second Grade

P. 23, 2nd Grade, Inquiry, Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action, Change: “2.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, and/or regional, ~~and/or global~~ problems.”

Comments: It is standard pedagogical practice to start this age group on more manageable problems conceptually, which usually limit students to the local or regional level. Given that the following standard 2.6 requires students to “use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms,” it would be excessive to expect second grade students who are just learning how to address civic problems to apply their skills on the global scale. For developmental appropriateness, second grade students are asked to try to solve problems in their classroom (2.6), school or community (2.19).

P. 23, 2nd Grade, Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles. Theme 1, We the People, Change: “2.10. Examine and compare ~~the~~ key American democratic constitutional principles to constitutional principles in neighboring countries in North America, including but not limited to: majority rule and minority rights, representative government, one person one vote, free and fair elections, rule of law, equality before the law, individual rights and responsibilities.”

Comments: This standard does not give clear directions to students and teachers on either the principles to be covered or the regions to compare.

The focus of the second grade standards is the area of the United States, Canada, and Mexico as the countries that make up North America (2.21, 2.22), and since the course of study for this grade has this geographic focus, so too should this civics standard.

Also unclear are what is meant specifically by “the American democratic principles.” Providing a short list will make this standard easier to understand and implement. These are suggestions, which the committee can refine.

P. 26, 2nd Grade, Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Change: “2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without passing judgment on being mean or making others people feel bad.”
Comments: The wording of this standard is unclear, not grammatical, and inconsistent with other standards which emphasize the same skill (for example, 3.27 and 4.25). The main point of the standard is to prevent students from making negative judgments of others. Rewording this standard in accordance with the language in standard 4.25 brings it closer to achieving this goal. (“4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people’s lives and experiences without judgment.”)

Third Grade

P. 28, 3rd Grade, Theme 1: Citizenship, Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, Change: “3.8. Explain how ~~the~~ democratic principles (individual rights, religious freedom, rule of law, economic freedom) have motivated people to migrate ~~then and now~~ throughout America’s history.”

Comments: The period to which this standard refers is undefined. Pull factors like America’s democratic principles have motivated migration to the country for various reasons over the past 245 years, from religious freedom to economic freedom and opportunity, and the standard should reflect this range.

Also as currently written “the American democratic principles” is ambiguous and it would be better to specify. Providing a short list will focus the standard and make it easier to understand.

P. 29, 3rd Grade, Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration, Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Add: “3.11. Analyze how human settlement and movement impact diverse groups of people in New Mexico and the U.S. and how the cultural aspects of a region, including but not limited to ideas, religions, beliefs, language, artifacts, methods, and technologies, spread beyond its borders.”

Comments: This is a strong standard, requiring students to understand the ways in which the cultural traits of themselves and their peers come to spread beyond their original borders. In order to help define these aspects which students should consider, this list of specific categories should be added.

P. 31, 3rd Grade, Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Change: “3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making passing judgment on someone else ~~feel badly.~~”

Comments: The wording of this standard is unclear and inconsistent with other standards which emphasize the same skill (for example, 2.27 and 4.25). The main point of the standard is to prevent students from making negative judgments on the personal identities of others. Rewording this standard in accordance with the language in standard 4.25 brings it closer to achieving this goal. (“4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people’s lives and experiences without judgment.”)

P. 31, 3rd Grade, Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “3.28. Understand the concept of identity, be able to explain their own multifaceted identity, and compare ~~Compare~~ and contrast their own and different cultural ~~identity~~ identities (including but not limited to race, ethnicity, religion, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, class, age, and disability) with other people and groups.”

Comments: This standard should clarify that students should 1) first be able to explain the concept of identity, 2) then explain their own multifaceted identity, and then finally 3) compare their identity to different identities. The vertical alignment with the K, 1st 2nd and 4th grades on this anchor standard grows student skills in this area, and the 3rd grade standard should provide a sufficient scaffold to grow student skills by being both more inclusive, and by helping them gain skills on this topic.

It is important to clarify for students and teachers that all aspects of a student’s identity should be addressed, and not essentialized to only race. Accordingly, the additional suggested identity categories should be included.

Understanding differences between cultural perspectives is a crucial skill for students in a diverse learning environment. Therefore, it would help to specify the various dimensions of cultural identity that students should consider by including this list of identity categories. The Jewish community supports adding religion to this list here in 3rd grade and elsewhere in the standards so that religious minorities, such as Hindus, Muslims, Sikhs, and Jews are also included in diversity.

Also, the wording of this standard makes it difficult to understand whether the student will be required to compare only a) their own cultural identity with various other cultural identities with only their own, or b) simply to compare a variety of different cultural identities generally. We recommend that the standard detail the specific tasks, as suggested above.

4th Grade

P. 36, Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Change: “4.24. Explain why varied perspectives towards significant historical events of different individuals and groups during the same historical period and why their perspectives differed ~~in their perspectives towards significant historical events.~~”

Comments: Students should explain the varied perspectives of groups before explaining why they differ.

5th Grade

P. 40, 5th Grade, Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US, History 16. Historical Thinking, Add: “5.14. Analyze the cause of the American Revolution and the effects that individuals and groups (including women, and racial, ethnic, and religious minorities) had on the conflict.”

Comments: This is an important standard for students in 5th grade, although the wording is unclear as to which effects to focus on. If the standard intends to include perspectives from outside the traditional narrative of events during this period of history, including women and racial, ethnic, and religious minority groups will help open the door for considering the many ways in which members of these groups participated in the American Revolution.

For example, during the war, it is estimated that some 9,000 African American soldiers fought for the rebellion, while around 20,000 were in service of England, including some who served directly for General Cornwallis. In addition, Sons of Liberty member Haym Salomon was a Polish-born Jew of Sephardic descent who became one of the most prominent financiers of the cause of Independence.

P. 40, 5th Grade, Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US, History 16. Historical Thinking, Add: “5.15. Analyze the causes of the Civil War and the effects that individuals and groups (including women and racial, ethnic, and religious minorities) had on the conflict.”

Comment: This is an important standard for students in 5th grade, although the wording is unclear as to which effects to focus on. If the standard intends to include perspectives from outside the traditional narrative of events during this period of history, including women and racial, ethnic, and religious minority groups will help open the door for considering the many ways in which members of these groups participated in the Civil War.

By the end of the conflict, it is estimated that around 200,000 African American soldiers enlisted with the Union Army. While discriminatory practices persisted in the military and in the North generally, these soldiers played decisive roles in many key battles and by the end of the war, 16 of these men were awarded the Medal of Honor for their bravery. Both the Confederate and the Union armies were joined by smaller numbers of Jews, Indigenous peoples, and Mexican-Americans who, for diverse reasons, saw fit to support the cause of the North or South. Specifying some types of group identity in the standard will open the door to teaching these other perspectives.

P. 41, 5th Grade, Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Retain: “5.29. Identify the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues.”

Comment: In keeping with two of the guiding principles for these standards as laid out in the introduction, this standard helps students understand how their own multifaceted cultural backgrounds may inform their positions on civic issues.

P. 42, 5th Grade, Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Change: “5.31. Explain ~~how~~ that the way in which groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.”

Comment: This is a very strong standard that will resonate with many New Mexico students given the state’s diversity. The proposed edits help clarify the purpose of the standard.

6th Grade

P. 46, 6th Grade, Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures, Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning, Change: “6.27. Compare cultural, political, and religious characteristics of early river valley and other ancient civilizations.”

Comments: The current wording limits this standard to only the four early river valley civilizations, and excludes other ancient civilizations generally taught in middle grades; those in the Eastern Hemisphere, including ancient Israel, Egypt, and Persia, and in the Western Hemisphere, including Aztecs, Maya, Toltec, and Olmec civilizations. Note, these Western Hemisphere civilizations were covered in the previous versions of the New Mexico standards, but not here.

Ancient Israel is the civilization in which Judaism arose and is significant to Jews and Christians alike. For Christians, it is the birthplace of Christianity. It is standard practice to teach ancient Israel as part of the origins and development of ancient civilizations. Ideas like, “Freedom under the law,” and “social responsibility for others in need,” find original historical expression in Ancient Israel. If this standard omits ancient Israel, this is likely to lead to gaps in student knowledge when studying world religions, art, literature, and music. Ancient Israelite civilization gave rise to monotheism, a core ideology underpinning Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. This small addition will ensure that ancient Israel and other key civilizations will be taught in this grade.

P. 47, 6th Grade, Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations, Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions, p. 47, Delete:

“6.31. Describe cultural and political structures in classical eastern societies.

~~6.32. Describe cultural and political structures in classical western societies.”~~

Comments: Language standard is repeated in 6.31 and 6.32. Either delete the duplicate and renumber, or return the missing standard.

P 47, 6th Grade, Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Add: “6.35. Evaluate the lasting impact of philosophy, art, science, and technology of Classical Greece, Rome, ancient Israel, India, and China.”

Comments: This standard omits a central ancient civilization, ancient Israel, previously taught in this grade. If this standard omits ancient Israel from this list of Eastern Classical Civilizations, students will have gaps in their knowledge when studying world art, literature, and music that references the Hebrew Bible and Judaism and Christianity. Ancient Israel is the civilization in which Judaism arose, and later, Christianity. Both religions had significant impacts on culture, so the civilization which birthed these religions is important to understand. It is standard practice to teach ancient Israel as part of the origins and development of ancient civilizations.

P. 48, 6th Grade, Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Retain: “6.40. Describe the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explain their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period.”

Comments: This strong standard should be retained because it is standard in ancient civilization history courses to teach the origins of world religions and the cultures in which they arose, such as Judaism, Confucianism, Buddhism, Christianity, and Islam.

P. 48, 6th Grade, Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Retain: “6.44. Explain how religion and philosophy shaped European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the post-classical period.”

Comments: This strong standard should be retained because it is standard in ancient civilization history courses to teach how the relationship between religion and philosophy shaped societies in the post-classical period, such as covering Islamic and Byzantine empires.

P. 50, 6th Grade, Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE-1300 CE, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Add: “6.52. Examine instances of conflict, oppression, persecution, human rights violations, massacres, and genocide in Medieval times as well as responses to these violations.”

Comments: Introducing instances of these violations in the Medieval times in an age appropriate manner is crucial for students’ ability to think about similar events in modern history, especially given that the precursors of many kinds of oppression and conflict today can be found in this period. At the same time, given the events of the time, the concepts of “persecution” and “massacres” should be included as well and are particularly relevant concepts for describing the Inquisition and Crusades.

P. 50, 6th Grade, Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE-1300 CE, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Retain: “6.54. Examine and explain how the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society.”

Comments: This is a strong standard which encourages students to consider the effects that cross-cultural exchanges have on shaping the history of different societies. Not only is this a strong analytical skill generally, the interactions between these three specific religious groups had reverberations through Europe and the world for centuries.

In the 8th century when the Umayyad Caliphate conquered large swathes of the Iberian Peninsula, they brought with them classical works from Greece and Rome translated into Arabic. Medieval Spain became a hub of cultural transmission, entering a period some scholars refer to as Convivencia, in which Christians, Muslims, and Jews lived together in relative peace. The introduction of this classical material from the Mediterranean into the European world set the stage for later developments such as the Renaissance and the Enlightenment.

Additionally, the interactions between these groups lay out a variety of examples of ways in which a minority culture relates to the majority culture in which it finds itself. These range from the politically and theologically based protected status of Christians and Jews in Muslim Spain, to the Church-sanctioned massacre of Jewish communities by Crusaders on their way to fight in the Holy Land, and the Inquisition and expulsion of Jews and Moors (Muslims) from Spain and Portugal in the 14th and 15th centuries.

7th Grade

P. 54, 7th Grade, Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “7.26. Analyze how groups maintain their cultural heritage and how we see this heritage through the symbols, traditions, religions, and culture of our state.”

Comments: “Religions” should be added to the examples of cultural heritage in this standard. The state’s religious diversity includes Catholics, Protestants, Baptists, Methodists, Mormons, Jews, Muslims, and Native Americans/Indigenous peoples.

The current formulation avoids referring directly to religion as a marker of culture by subsuming it in the cognate terms “symbols” and “traditions.” However, not referencing religion explicitly erases the direct lived experiences of students for whom religion defines culture. This especially the case for members of religions such as Islam, Sikhism, Judaism, and Hinduism, among others, that are built around daily religious practices and time-dependent practical actions (e.g., daily prayer, dietary laws, use of a distinct religious calendar, etc.). Excluding reference to religion also ignores distinct Native American religious practices such as the ritual use of peyote by the 250,000 member Native American Church.

P. 54, 7th Grade, Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies, 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “7.27. Define and explain the present demographics of our state, including but not limited to race, ethnicity, religion, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, class, age, and disability.”

Comments: This is an excellent seventh grade standard and should be retained. Adding the markers of identity “race, ethnicity, religion, nationality, gender, sexual orientation, class, age, and disability” will make this standard clearer and more robust overall. Including the additional identity markers will better support student understanding of New Mexico’s diverse and changing population and prepare students for deeper engagement with the standard that follows (“7.28 Evaluate how society’s responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.”).

Finally, the proposed additions bring this standard into alignment with coverage of demographics in other standards. For example:

- P. 119, High School World History, 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.”

- P. 122, High School Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies, 9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.”

P. 56, 7th Grade, Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Retain: “7.49. Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/ identities.”

Comments: This is a strong seventh grade standard that should be retained as it empowers students to take pride in their identities. Recognizing multiple layers of intersecting identities is equally essential for students to gain a robust understanding of New Mexico’s cultural diversity.

P. 56, 7th Grade, Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Change: “7.50. Identify ways ~~what students want the world to see when their culture is on display in which accepted narratives about pre-contact Indigenous cultures have led to negative perceptions of those cultures,~~ and how to address negative perceptions.”

Comments: There are two issues mixed in this standard, 1) learning about pre-contact Indigenous cultures in the era 1200 BCE - c. 1500 CE, and 2) being respectful in how this history is depicted from the perspective of Indigenous peoples today. The current wording only addresses Indigenous students (“their culture”) rather than all students. This is an important standard that should be met by all students, and so re-worded.

If the goal is to consider how Indigenous peoples today want pre-contact Native American culture depicted, this would be worth addressing in the ethnic studies standards.

This standard should be revised to align more closely to the theme’s chronology. Asking students to confront the negative perception of Indigenous cultures that emerged from generalized narratives of European contact helps develop the tools necessary to explore and share authentic narratives from many perspectives. This empowers students to consider the challenges of addressing negative perceptions more generally.

P. 59, 7th Grade, Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE), Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “7.71. Explore the ways in which events of the Spanish colonial period influence personal, familial, and societal cultures in the modern day.”

Comments: As in standard 7.50, this important seventh grade standard is disconnected from the chronology of Theme 5. To support student success, the standard should be centered in the Spanish colonial period. Doing so allows students to develop a better understanding of the ways the past affects contemporary lived experience.

P. 59, 7th Grade, Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE), Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display, and conclude how to address stereotypes (not specific stereotypes themselves).”

Comments: This is an important seventh grade standard that should be retained. To avoid introducing specific stereotypes, the standard should state clearly that stereotyping is to be considered only conceptually. Introducing individual stereotypes to the classroom may reinforce negative perceptions of individuals and groups, potentially creating a hostile classroom environment that is harmful for students.

P. 60, 7th Grade, Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Add: “7.87. Analyze maps and charts from the Western expansion period to understand interactions between multiple cultural groups including racial, ethnic, religious, and national groups.”

Comments: The identity markers race, ethnicity, nationality, and religion should be added as examples of cultural groups in this standard. Providing examples supports student learning by ensuring the consideration of the broadest range of narratives possible. The proposed additions also bring this standard into alignment with other standards such as:

- P. 119, High School World History, 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.”
- P. 122, High School Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies, 9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.”

P. 60, 7th Grade, Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Change: “7.88. Analyze land use patterns of ~~Anglo-Americans~~ newcomers during the American Westward expansion period.”

Comments: Replace “Anglo-Americans” with “newcomers” because the term Anglo-Americans leaves out other peoples who moved into the region during this timeframe, including African Americans, Mexican Americans, and other immigrants. The use of “Anglo-Americans” in this standard lacks sufficient nuance and is unclear for this period. The term “newcomers” encompasses a broader range of groups and experiences, making the standard more inclusive of diverse narratives. The proposed change also brings this standard into better alignment with standard 7.87.

P. 61, 7th Grade, Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “7.93. Identify how stereotyping (not specific stereotypes themselves) influences social perspectives about members of a group.”

Comments: This is an important seventh grade standard that should be retained. As in standard 7.72, this standard should state clearly only the concept of stereotyping should be considered rather than specific stereotypes. Introducing individual stereotypes to the classroom may introduce or reinforce negative perceptions of individuals and groups, potentially creating a hostile classroom environment for students.

P. 61, 7th Grade, Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces; consider external and visible, and internal and invisible markers of identity.”

Comment: This is a vital seventh grade standard that should be retained. To support critical thinking about identity and empower students to develop pride in their identities, this standard should recognize that identity includes external (visible) and internal (invisible) markers. Religious identity, for example, may be expressed through visible signs (head coverings, kippah, yarmulke, hijab, khimar, chador, niqab, burka, turban, tzitzit (Jewish ritual fringes), cross, kirpan, Star of David, etc.) and/or through internal expressions of belief.

P. 61, 7th Grade, Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Add: “7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion of race, ethnicity, language, and religion among other identities into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.”

Comments: “Race, ethnicity, language, and religion among other identities” should be added to clarify the types of cultural diffusion to be considered. Providing examples supports student learning by ensuring the inclusion of the broadest range of narratives possible. The proposed additions also bring this standard into alignment with coverage of demographics in other seventh grade geography standards.

In the case of religion, it is general practice to cover religious diffusion in middle school world geography courses. This coverage includes examinations of the spread of religion (through proselytization, conversion, or other forms of cultural diffusion) and the movement of members of religious groups (through migration, population transfer, conquest, expulsions, or diaspora). In turn, the spread of religious groups is the catalyst for other types of cultural diffusion.

P. 62, 7th Grade, Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Change: “7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, ~~rights~~ rites, and norms may have changed over time.”

Comments: Please correct the spelling of the second instance of the word “rites” in this standard.

8th Grade

P. 67, 8th Grade, Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE - 1750 CE), Economics 7. Economics Systems and Models, Change: “8.33. Draw diagrams or make models to illustrate the impact of the European colonization of the Western Hemisphere from contact through the mid-18th century, including the Transatlantic slave trade, on contemporary economic systems, significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the Western Hemisphere.”

Comments: The focus on contemporary economic theory makes this performance standard overly advanced for eighth graders. To remedy this challenge, the standard should be situated in the historical specifics of this era and the standard should be changed to focus on economic systems. Making these changes supports the critical thinking skills needed for future-focused learning. Illustrating the impact of European colonialism in the Western Hemisphere on contemporary micro and macroeconomic realities empowers students to better understand current systems and associated challenges.

P. 69, 8th Grade, Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE - 1787 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, “8.49. ~~Develop research questions~~ claims based on primary and secondary sources about the role of impact of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); ~~and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.”~~”

Comments: To ensure better understanding of the complex role played by religion in the 13 Colonies, this standard should be separated into two. One performance standard should focus on the impact of religion on emerging American identity. The second should analyze how gender roles were shaped by religion in the 13 colonies.

The requirements for this performance standard are beyond the level of other eighth grade standards. This makes it difficult for teachers to implement in meaningful ways. Providing clearer directions and limiting the standard’s scope to the impact of religion on American identity in the 13 Colonies brings the standard into better alignment with eighth grade standards overall. The proposed changes also align with Inquiry Standard 23: “Gather and Evaluate Sources, 8.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for the author’s bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic” (p. 64).

P. 69, 8th Grade, Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE - 1787 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Add: “re-number standards. Develop claims based on primary and secondary sources about how religion impacted gender in the 13 colonies.”

Comments: As noted for standard 8.49, the evaluation of how religion in the 13 Colonies shaped gender roles should be included as a separate standard. Treating this important topic separately supports deeper student learning.

In keeping with the 6-8 Inquiry Standards, the proposed standard should require students to develop claims on how religion affected gender roles in the 13 Colonies based on reliable primary and secondary sources. Clarifying the requirements helps support student acquisition of critical thinking skills and will yield better student outcomes overall. Connecting to people’s lived experiences also gives students the tools to develop stronger historical consciousness.

P. 69, 8th Grade, Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE - 1787 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Add:

“8.50. Use primary source texts and artifacts as evidence to describe daily life in the 13 Colonies by featuring individuals with diverse identities and different perspectives including Indigenous peoples, marginalized racial, ethnic, and religious minorities, women, and people of different social classes.”

Comments: This is an excellent eighth grade standard and should be retained. Adding examples of the types of voices that should be considered makes this standard clearer and more robust overall. Providing examples also supports deeper engagement with how individuals and groups experienced life in the 13 Colonies by giving students opportunities to connect with a broad range of cultural narratives.

P. 70, 8th Grade U.S. History, Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE - 1815 CE), Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, Add:

“8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today, including but not limited to: freedom of religion, speech, and the press; the right to legal due process; the right to bear arms; the Three-Fifths Compromise; “Indians not taxed” and Native American exclusion from representation in the U.S. Constitution; fugitive slave laws; territorial expansion; naturalization laws; and the Monroe Doctrine.”

Comments: This is a strong eighth grade standard that should be retained as it requires critical thinking about how societies develop over time. Since the standard asks students to cite specific examples, the standard should provide guidance on how to fulfill the standard. This guidance should include both beneficial precedents such as the First Amendment right of freedom of religion as well as harmful precedents such as the Three-Fifths Compromise and U.S. Constitution Article 1, Section 2, "excluding Indians not taxed" from both representation and taxation until the 1924 Indian Citizenship Act. Providing the proposed guidance ensures that students assess the legacy of the Early Republic critically and from multiple perspectives.

P. 70, 8th Grade, Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE - 1815 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Add: “8.57. Support a claim about the influence of diverse ideologies and religion on politics, society, and culture in early U.S. history.”

Comments: Religion should be added to this eighth grade standard because of the impact of religion on early American politics, society, and culture. This period coincides with the Second Great Awakening whose theological innovations challenged existing societal norms. Women gained influence in the public sphere as missionaries and charity workers. New religious ideas inspired slaves to demand freedom. The Second Great Awakening also led to social reforms that anticipated the late-19th century Social Gospel.

P. 71, 8th Grade, Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE - 1850 CE), History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Change: “8.61.

Compare and contrast Indigenous Peoples’ assimilation ~~story~~ narratives with later immigrants’ ~~stories~~ assimilation narratives.”

Comments: This excellent eighth grade standard provides students with the opportunity to develop stronger historical consciousness. The standard would be improved by using the word narratives rather than story/stories. Use of the plural (narratives) acknowledges that there is no singular script and encourages students to be inclusive of diverse perspectives. Additionally, the word “story” can have the connotation of a fictional retelling. The word “narrative” is neutral and is commonly used to describe historical perspectives.

P. 71, 8th Grade, Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE - 1850 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Change: “8.66. Describe immigrant ~~and emigrant~~ groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender imbalance (or balance) ~~(dis)proportionality~~ had on immigrant/emigrant community’s cultures in the United States during the first half of the 19th century.”

Comments: This is an important standard that offers an engaging approach to learning about an often ignored aspect of American history. Use of the word “emigrant” is unclear in the context of this standard since the standard’s focus seems to be on the cultural effects of gender on newcomers to the United States. To avoid any confusion the word “emigrant” should be removed.

The noun form disproportionality is not used very often, and a simpler word, gender imbalance conveys the same meaning and is easier to understand. Gender imbalance is a disparity between males and females in a population.

In order to encourage students to be inclusive of diverse narratives, the standard should use “cultures” plural rather than the singular form “culture.” While there are certainly commonalities in immigrant experiences, there are important differences as well. For example, political turmoil pushed Jews and non-Jews to come to the United States from Germany in this period, but Jews faced the added challenge of being non-Christians. Because it was perceived that men were more likely to be targeted by political violence and/or find employment, and because emigration of single women was discouraged, men initially comprised the majority of German Jewish immigrants. The gender imbalance meant that Jews faced challenges finding appropriate marriage partners. Non-Jewish Germans did not face this hurdle. The standard should empower students to think critically about these differences.

To support student success, the standard should be revised to fit the theme’s chronology. Narrowing the standard’s chronological focus allows students to develop critical thinking tools needed to recognize historical patterns that can be later connected to broader historical narratives.

P. 73, 8th Grade, Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE - 1877 CE), History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency, Change: “8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups including African Americans, Jews, Catholics, Southern and Eastern European immigrants, and political opponents among others through informal institutions; consider how Klan and other white supremacist groups changed tactics over time.”

Comments: By directly addressing the often overlooked history of white supremacy in the United States, this strong eighth grade standard helps students develop tools necessary for understanding systemic oppression and for challenging the systems that maintain it. Adding examples of the types of groups targeted by white supremacists during Reconstruction and subsequently is in keeping with the Social Studies Standards Re-development Guiding Principles' call for developing and utilizing a future-focused historical orientation. Highlighting the intersection of anti-Black racism and other prejudices supports student understanding the broader nature of white supremacy and the threat it continues to represent.

P. 74, 8th Grade, Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Retain: "8.86. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within the United States during time periods of mass immigration."

Comments: This is a strong standard which highlights the many motivations various groups had for migrating to the United States. Particularly in the period specified in this theme, the demographics in the United States changed dramatically due to various events abroad as well as conditions within the country, and this period was crucial to laying the diverse groundwork for the makeup of the country today.

This standard is well aligned with and builds off of standards in high school as well as earlier grades, particularly:

- Theme 1: Citizenship, Civics 3. Dispositions and Democratic Principles, 3.8 (p. 28)
- Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, 9-12.US.55 (p. 111)
- "9-12.US.61. Analyze social, political, and economic reasons groups migrated to and within the United States, including push and pull factors (p. 111)

P. 74, 8th Grade, Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Retain: "8.88. Make personal connections to immigration stories and experiences--both in the past and present."

Comments: This is a strong standard that should be retained. Connecting contemporary lived experience to past events supports critical thinking in history. The standard also encourages each student to develop a deeper understanding of their identity and culture while leaving space for learning about others.

There is a period missing from this standard. Please add a period at the end of the standard after the word "present."

P. 74, 8th Grade, Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Change: "8.89. Examine ~~both sides~~ multiple perspectives in debate or academic discussion of politics in response to immigration."

Comments: The term "both sides" should be changed to "multiple perspectives." The history of immigration during the period under study is too complex to be reduced to two sides. The standard should be expanded to include multiple perspectives. Responses to immigration were similarly complex as are current academic discussions. Requiring a more nuanced examination will support student learning about immigration.

P. 75, 8th Grade, Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and ~~Identify~~ Identity, “8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.”

Comments: Please correct the typographical error in the Anchor Standard.

High School Civics

P. 77, High School Civics, Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action, Change: “9-12.Civ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, state, regional, and national ~~global~~ problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place.”

Comments: High School Civics focuses on the United States, and so the focus of this standard should be on the local, state, regional, and national levels.

High School Economics - No Comments

High School Geography

P. 86, High School Geography, Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region, Retain: “9-12.Geo.19. Explain and evaluate the process of place-making and the development of place-based identity.”

Comments: This is an important standard that recognizes the significance of place to identity.

P. 86, High School Geography, Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Add: “9-12.Geo.22. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, religion, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.”

Comments: In addition to being one of the most widely diffused dimensions of culture, religion has historically facilitated the diffusion of each of the other dimensions listed in this standard. Including religion in this list will give students the skills to explain historical facts such as the predominance of Islam in Indonesia, or the propagation of literacy in Europe following the Protestant Reformation and the advent of the printing press.

P. 86, High School Geography, Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Retain: “9-12.Geo.23. Describe, analyze and compare how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time.”

Comment: Similar to standard 9-12.Geo.19, this is a strong geography standard which helps students develop an understanding for how places and regions change and develop in response to the process of place making. This can include the creation of sacred sites, and how different societies interact with the natural environment.

P. 86, High School Geography, Geography 12. Movement, Populations, and Systems, Add: “9-12.Geo.26. Predict future social, political, economic, cultural, spiritual/religious and environmental opportunities; and obstacles associated with movement, population, decision-making, and perspectives in a given place or region.”

Comments: This standard should add “religious” to its list of perspectives and opportunities. While spiritual describes a subset of what we would recognize as the sphere of “religion,” the term itself is much more inclusive of what the standard requires the student to consider.

High School New Mexico History

P. 89, High School New Mexico History, 26. Take Informed Action, Change: “9-12.NMH.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and state ~~global~~ problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place.”

Comments: High School New Mexico History focuses on New Mexico and its position within the United States, and so the focus of this standard should be on local, regional, and state level problems.

P. 95, High School New Mexico History, Theme 6: Civil Rights, History 15. Cause and Consequence, Change: “9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using”

Comments: This performance standard is missing information. Please add the missing details to complete this standard.

High School U.S. History

P. 98, High School U.S. History, Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action, Add: “9-12.US.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, state, regional, and national ~~global~~ problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place.”

Comments: By definition, U.S. History focuses on the United States, and so the focus of this anchor standard should be local, state, regional, and national problems. Global problems are beyond the scope of the anchor standard, and should be addressed elsewhere.

P. 100, High School U.S. History, Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution, History 15. Cause and Consequence, Add: “9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste on diverse groups of people in the United States.”

Comments: This excellent high school history standard should be expanded to recognize the broader implications of racialized slavery and caste for society and culture in the United States. Adding the term “diverse groups of people” encourages students to think about the externalities of slavery and caste that go beyond the destructive impacts on the enslaved population, their descendants, and people of color more generally.

Examples range from the historical experience of ethnic and religious groups perceived as non-white, to the negative economic and social effects of slavery and caste on the United States as a whole. Privatization of once public amenities such as swimming pools and the defunding of public education and the social safety net are outgrowths of slavery and caste that affect diverse populations.

Additionally, the proposed change brings this standard into better alignment with other U.S. history performance standards, particularly:

- P. 100, Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution, History 15. Cause and Consequence, “9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans.”
- P. 101, Theme 3: Westward Expansion, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, “9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants.”
- P. 102, Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, “9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women and African Americans.”

P. 100, High School U.S. History, Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution, History 15. Cause and Consequence, Add: “9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery from the revolutionary period.”

Comments: This is an important high school history standard which provides students with tools to analyze the operation and impact of systems of power. It is unclear how the current version of the standard aligns to the theme which is focused on Revolutionary United States. To support student success, the standard should be revised to fit the theme’s timeline. Narrowing the standard’s chronological focus allows students to develop critical thinking tools needed to recognize historical patterns that can be later connected to broader historical narratives. This is in line with the high school U.S. history inquiry standards, in particular P.98, High School U.S. History, Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions, “9-12.US.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose).”

P. 100, High School U.S. History, Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution, History 15. Cause and Consequence, Add: “9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans, and enslaved Africans, women, and religious minorities among others.”

Comments: This excellent high school history standard should include the additional markers of identity “women, and religious minorities among others” to ensure that students explore a broad range of narratives. Ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States had equally important and lasting impacts on women and religious minorities, neither of which are referenced in this theme. Evaluating these additional identity markers will also help students build a stronger historical consciousness.

Finally, the proposed additions bring this standard into alignment with coverage in other standards, such as:

- P. 102, High School U.S. History, Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, “9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women and African Americans.”
- P. 119, High School World History, 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.”
- P. 122, High School Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies, 9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.”

P. 102, High School U.S. History, Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Add: “9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women, religious and ethnic minorities, and African Americans.”

Comments: To be as inclusive as possible of the broadest range of narratives, the current standard should be expanded to reference religious and ethnic minorities. By the onset of the Civil War, the United States had experienced decades of large-scale immigration that resulted in the transformation of the religious and ethnic makeup of the country with approximately 10% of the population foreign-born as compared to one percent in 1830. The period also witnessed a large migration of Irish Catholics and relatively sizable migration of Jewish Germans. For example, Jewish Germans began to arrive in New Mexico in the late 1840s and early 1850s. Concentration in the growing industrial centers led to larger participation of ethnic migrants in the Union Army. Just over 23% of the Union forces were foreign-born. About 400,000 Union soldiers were German-born or of German descent and approximately 150,000 were Irish Americans. They were joined by Jews, Italians, and Latinx Americans including the many who served in the Latinx-led New Mexico Volunteer Infantry.

P. 103, High School U.S. History, Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Change: “9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast the aims and failures of Reconstruction with global historical reconciliation and other U.S. reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction including but not limited to reparations for Japanese American internment, forced sterilizations, and the Tuskegee experiment among others.”

Comments: This standard intends to discuss how the U.S. failed to address reparations for enslaved African Americans following Reconstruction. However, the suggestions here are not parallel, and should be changed to include other U.S. reparations efforts that are comparable in some manner. The standard should begin with the Theme's main focus, Reconstruction, and students should first be able to articulate the aims and failures of Reconstruction before explaining comparisons.

Any parallels should be clear and accurate comparing, victim to victim, perpetrator to perpetrator, and "denazification" is not parallel, as it was a political process focused on rehabilitating perpetrators.

The Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius also does not fit here, but would be beneficial to study in a standard on the treatment of Indigenous People in New Mexico and the United States or in high school world history and should be moved to those courses.

P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Retain: "9-12.US.55. Examine immigration policy in the United States over time."

Comments: This is a strong standard which, through its examination of U.S. immigration policy, highlights the American immigrant experience. Particularly in the period specified in this theme, as demographics in the United States changed dramatically, policies grounded in white supremacist and eugenicist thought led to policies that reinforced systemic bias against Asians, Southern Europeans, Jews, and other Eastern Europeans.

This standard is well aligned with and builds off of standards in high school as well as earlier grades, particularly:

- P. 28, Theme 1: Citizenship, Civics 3. Dispositions and Democratic Principles, 3.8
- P. 74, Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, 8.86
- P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 15. Cause and Consequence, 9-12.US.61.

P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Change: "9-12.US.56. Evaluate the economic system of the United States during the period 1865-1920 in terms of its rapid industrialization, distribution of wealth, labor practices and protections, and economic justice. ~~what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.~~"

Comments: The standard as written is too broad, hard to teach, and well beyond the high school level. The standard should be rewritten, providing greater specificity and a narrower scope. The transformation of the U.S. economy during this period from rural to urban, agrarian to industrial, and consequent impact on the treatment of workers should be taught and then evaluated in terms of labor practices and protections and economic justice.

In its current form, it is also not clear how the standard applies to this era and applies to the Theme. This increase in specificity would meet the anchor standard requirement while supporting thematic learning more directly.

P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Change: “9-12.US.57. Examine ~~contemporary~~ labor struggles and populist movements in the United States ~~and around the world~~ from 1865-1920.”

Comments: In order to align this standard to the theme more precisely, the analysis should focus specifically on labor struggles and populist movements in the United States because this is a course on United States history. The above changes clarify that the focus is on analysis of American labor history. This also supports development of historical consciousness that can be applied to broader historical narratives and contemporary events. This would meet the anchor standard requirement while supporting thematic learning more directly.

P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 15. Cause and Consequence, Retain: “9-12.US.61. Analyze social, political, and economic reasons groups migrated to and within the United States, including push and pull factors.”

Comments: This is a strong standard which highlights the many motivations various groups had for migrating to the United States. Particularly in the period specified in this theme, the demographics in the United States changed dramatically due to various events abroad as well as conditions within the country, and this period was crucial to laying the diverse groundwork for the makeup of the country today.

This standard is well aligned with and builds off of standards in high school as well as earlier grades, particularly:

- Theme 1: Citizenship, Civics 3. Dispositions and Democratic Principles, 3.8 (p. 28)
- Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, 8.86 (p.74)
- Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, 9-12.US.55 (p. 104)

P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives,

Change: “9-12.US.63. Analyze the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the Civil War, ~~and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native Peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women.~~”

Comments: The standard as written requires students to evaluate two separate and somewhat disconnected issues. To support better acquisition of content and analytical skills, the standard should be separated into two. One performance standard should analyze westward expansion after the Civil War. The second should analyze the impact of the 14th Amendment. Splitting this standard also avoids the possibility that the analysis of the 14th Amendment will become a secondary consideration.

P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Add: “renumber standard, Evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on African Americans, Native Peoples, and Asian and European immigrant men and women.”

Comments: As noted above, evaluation of the impact 14th Amendment included in the current version of standard 9-12.US.63 should be its own separate standard. The 14th Amendment radically transformed the United States in ways that continue to reverberate through American society. As such, requiring a separate consideration of the impact of the 14th Amendment is in keeping with the goal of developing critical thinking skills and applying them to examinations of long-term processes.

African Americans should be added to the proposed standard because of the 14th Amendment’s origins in radical reconstruction following the Civil War and because of the profound impact it had on African American citizenship. Including African Americans in the proposed standard will also provide additional opportunities for comparison.

P. 105, High School U.S. History, Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Delete: “~~9-12.US.65. Determine the effectiveness of post colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule.~~”

Comments: This performance standard goes beyond the time frame of the current theme (1890–1920) and is overly complex for a high school U.S. history course. The content to be studied here is unclear. Is this standard meant to address U.S. intervention in the Caribbean, Latin America, or the Philippines, for example. The use of “post-colonial institutions” for the time frame 1890–1920 is not clear, and is it possible the standard means to say “pre-colonial institutions?”

Given the post-World War II chronology of decolonization and its global focus, this standard would be a better fit for discussions of imperialism in a high school world history course, and should be deleted from U.S. history.

P. 106, High School U.S. History, Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Change: “9-12.US.78. Examine the role of ~~colonial peoples~~, women, Indigenous peoples, American ethnic minorities and African Americans during World War I.”

Comments: This high school U.S. history standards should focus on marginalized and underrepresented groups that served in the American forces in World War I. As currently worded, the standard goes beyond the scope of high school U.S. history in ways that make it unclear what teachers should cover. Narrowing the focus supports deeper student understanding of the contributions of underrepresented and marginalized people to the American efforts during World War I. Alternatively, this standard could be included in high school world history where it is a better fit.

P. 107, High School U.S. History, Theme 11: World War II, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Change: “9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between white supremacist thought and racist ideology and hierarchy ~~the racial social order~~ in both the United States and Germany during this period.”

Comments: This standard makes important connections between racism and antisemitism in the United States and in Nazi Germany during the period under discussion. The term “racial social order” is however too broad for students to make meaningful connections between the two. Students may also lack adequate knowledge of the history of European racialized antisemitism and anti-Jewish violence that forms the basis of Nazi racial ideology to gain critical insight. For example, students may fail to understand how Nazi racialized antisemitism became the model for all Nazi policies toward those considered “non-Aryans” including people of color. With this in mind, the standard would be improved by narrowing its focus to ideas with which students will likely be more familiar. Basing the requirements on discussions of white supremacist ideology, which is central to both Nazi racial ideology and American racism, makes the chances for success more likely. Finally, the proposed changes are better aligned to standard 9-12.US.99 which follows.

P. 108, High School U.S. History, Theme 11: World War II, History 15. Cause and Consequence, Retain: “9-12.US.99. Explain the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the Holocaust.”

Comments: Understanding the roots of the Holocaust is essential for understanding the causes and consequences of World War II and should be retained in this strong U.S. history standard.

P. 108, High School U.S. History, Theme History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Add: “9-12.US.102. Evaluate the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Jewish Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals.”

Comments: Jewish Americans had to deal with short and long-term consequences of the war which annihilated six million of their fellow Jews, including many relatives. These consequences included consequences ranging from hiding their Jewish identity for safety, assimilation, to a growth in religiousness, and traditional practices. Jewish American Holocaust survivors had to deal with the short- and long-term consequences of the war, ranging from post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), years in displaced person’s camps, the challenges of changing countries and languages, and the death of all or most of their immediate and extended families. The impact of the war on Holocaust survivors, and second and third generation family members is a well-studied topic.

Just as there are intergenerational impacts of war on Japanese Americans and Native Americans, so too are there impacts of war on Jewish Americans. Accordingly, Jewish Americans should be added to this standard.

P. 108, High School U.S. History, Theme 11: World War II, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Change: “9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including ~~anti-Semitism~~ antisemitism and homophobia.”

Comments: Understanding the systemic nature of prejudices including antisemitism and homophobia supports the development of strong historical cons should be retained in this U.S. history standard.

Most scholars have shifted to writing antisemitism as one word because it is a distinct concept referring to hatred of Jews and there is no such human quality known as “Semitism” to which one can be opposed. We recommend this change to reflect current scholarship on the subject. Antisemitism is a term akin to homophobia, a noun, and we recommend following this convention in the writing of this keyword term. For some examples of media adopting the scholarly convention, see <https://www.jweekly.com/2020/08/06/dropping-the-hyphen-why-this-publication-is-changing-its-spelling-of-antisemitism/> accessed 11/02/2021, and <https://twitter.com/APStylebook/status/1385687075635204100> accessed 11/02/2021. The ADL, the oldest organization dedicated to fighting hatred, also follows this convention now: <https://www.adl.org/spelling> accessed 11/02/2021.

P. 108, High School U.S. History, Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Change: “9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements, ~~and~~ and activists, African Americans, Jewish Americans, and other minorities in the United States.”

Comments: Disproportionately targeted during the Red Scare were Jewish American and African American leftists, and this should be explicitly stated in the standard.

The Red Scare and McCarthyism in the United States had dramatic effects for left-wing social movements and those that supported them, and they also had a profoundly negative effect on minority communities. For example, in 1947, President Truman signed Executive Order 9835, which established a program for federal employees requiring an oath of loyalty after an investigation of their political affiliation. On the Attorney General’s List of Subversive Organizations was the National Negro Congress and the Council on African Affairs - both organizations which were fighting to expand civil rights. Being affiliated with these or other groups caused many to lose their jobs and be barred from working again in their industry.

The Black left was a major target of red scare attacks. Black unions were particularly targeted. See <https://www.jacobinmag.com/2020/05/mccarthyism-red-scare-civil-rights-movement> accessed 10/19/21.

These attacks also targeted other minorities such as Jews. The Attorney General’s List of Subversive Organizations included the School of Jewish Studies of New York, NY, and the 1959 list included additional Jewish organizations as well. Jews were disproportionately targeted during the Red Scare. For example, six of the ten of the Hollywood Ten were Jewish, and prosecutors frequently mentioned interrogating Jews who had anglicized their names. See <https://www.thejc.com/culture/features/hunting-communists-they-were-really-after-jews-1.10702> accessed 10/19/21. In education, for example, about 90% of the teachers blacklisted from teaching in the public school system due to their alleged membership in subversive organizations were Jewish. See <https://jwa.org/teach/livingthelegacy/jewish-radicalism-and-red-scare-introductory-essay>

For these reasons the standard should be changed to include this dimension.

P. 109, High School U.S. History, Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Delete: “9-12.US.112. Explore the impact of the Cold War on Indigenous peoples around the world.”

Comments: This United States History standard should focus on Indigenous people in the U.S., and not world history. This standard allows for the examination of the impact of the development of atomic weapons and uranium mining on Indigenous peoples in New Mexico and the United States and its territories. See <https://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article=1027&context=aujh> and <https://www.atomicheritage.org/history/native-americans-and-manhattan-project>, and ““They Are Ancestral Homelands”: Race, Place, and Politics in Cold War Native America, 1945-1961,” by Paul C. Rosier <https://www.jstor.org/stable/4485893>.

P. 110, High School U.S. History, Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, “9-12.US.120. Analyze the causes, course, and impact on American politics and society of new social and political movements, including consideration of the role of protest, advocacy organizations, and active citizen participation, focusing on the 1950s through 1990.”

Comments: This standard is overly broad and should state a date range that covers the Civil Rights movement’s start in the mid-1950s to the passage of the Americans with Disabilities (ADA) Act in 1990. Another standard covers LGBTQ rights in the 1968-2008 period (9-12.US.130. “Examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes.”)

P. 111, High School U.S. History, Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Retain: “9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.”

Comments: This is a strong standard which, through its examination of contemporary anti-immigrant sentiment, highlights the greater history of the American immigrant experience. Particularly as demographics in the United States move toward a “majority minority” population, immigration policies reinforce systemic bias mirror those of earlier periods.

This standard is well aligned with and builds off of standards in high school as well as earlier grades, particularly:

- P. 28, Theme 1: Citizenship, Civics 3. Dispositions and Democratic Principles, 3.8
- P. 74, Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE - 1920 CE), Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, 8.86
- P. 104, High School U.S. History, Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920, History 15. Cause and Consequence, 9-12.US.61.

P. 111, High School U.S. History, Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, “9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans, and African Americans, refugees and immigrants.”

Comments: Refugees and immigrants should be included in this otherwise excellent high school history standard. According to the Annie E. Casey Kids Count Data Center, for the last decade approximately 20% of children in New Mexico are foreign-born or have one parent born outside the U.S. Adding refugees and immigrants makes the standard more inclusive.

P. 111, High School U.S. History, Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Change: “9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, ethnicity, class, nationality, religion, gender, sexual orientation, and disability differently abled.”

Comments: For consistency, these standards should address a parallel list of identity markers and types of diversity as found in other standards like 9-12.WH.34, and 9-12.ECI.14.

P. 112, High School U.S. History, Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present, History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency, “9-12.US.138. Evaluate the effectiveness of the federal government’s response to international and domestic terrorism in the 21st century.”

Comments: This vital standard should also include evaluation of the federal government’s response to domestic terrorism. Domestic terrorism, particularly right-wing and white supremacist acts of terror have been on the rise since the 1990s. According to the Center for Strategic and International Studies (CSIS) there were 893 terrorist attacks and plots in the United States between 1994 and 2020, Fifty-seven percent were perpetrated by right-wing terrorists, 25% by left-wing terrorists, and 15% by religious terrorists. Ethno-nationalists, and terrorists with other motives accounted for the rest. According to the Washington Post, targets of domestic terrorism in recent years include a representative cross-section of the U.S. population including Blacks, Jews, immigrants, LGBTQ individuals, Asians and other people of color. Including domestic terrorism in this standard provides an important point of comparison and supports critical thinking about a complex and growing problem.

High School World History, Sample Topics by Time Period

Note: World History lacks a list of Themes comparable to U.S. History and New Mexico History. If the table of "Sample Themes" and "Sample Topics" organized into five time periods on pp. 121-122 is a preliminary step to creating final Themes, this work should be completed before the standards are finalized.

P. 114, High School World History, column two Sample Themes by Time Period, 1300-1500: Global Encounters and Exchanges Grow, bullet six, Change: “~~Major global trends from 1000-1500 CE.~~”

Comments: This appears to be a placeholder. The theme listed, major global trends during the time period, is too vague and should be replaced with more specific guidance on the themes to be covered from 1000-1500 CE.

P. 114, High School World History, column two Sample Themes by Time Period, 1450-1770: The First Global Age Emerges, bullet six, Change: “~~Major global trends from 1450-1770~~”

Comments: This appears to be a placeholder. The theme listed, major global trends during the time period, is too vague and should be replaced with more specific guidance on content from 1450-1770 CE.

P. 114, High School World History, column one Sample Topics by Time Period, 1450–1770: The First Global Age Emerges, Add: “1450–1770: The First Global Age Emerges - (Topics may include but are not limited to Fall of Constantinople, Reconquista, 1492 Edict of Expulsion or Alhambra Decree, Inquisition, War of the Roses, Columbian Exchange, Ayiti (Taino), Tenochtitlan (Aztec), Cajamarca (Inca), Mestizo, Songhai Empire, Transatlantic Slave Trade, African Diaspora, Safavid Empire, Renaissance, Julian v. Gregorian Calendar, Gutenberg invents printing press, Scientific Revolution, Protestant Reformation, Counter Reformation, Absolute Monarchies, Elizabethan Age, Glorious Revolution, Iroquois Confederacy, Enlightenment, Qing Dynasty, Tokugawa Shogunate, etc.)”

Comments: The 1492 Edict of Expulsion should be added to the list of topics of this era. The expulsion from Spain at the end of the 15th century of the country’s Jews and the forced conversion of Jews to Christianity is particularly relevant to New Mexico’s Jewish community, of whom 4% count themselves as descendants of Spanish Jews.

Prior to the Christian reconquest of Spain (Reconquista), Jews and Muslims were integral to the cultural, political and economic life of a rich and diverse Spanish culture. During the hundred years prior to the expulsion of the Jews from Spain in 1492, there began persecutions, pogroms, forced conversions, and massacres against Jewish communities. Due to the Alhambra Decree, or Edict of Expulsion of 1492, between 40,000 and 100,000 Jews were expelled and forced to leave Spain. It gave the choice between expulsion and conversion to Catholicism. About 250,000 to 300,000 Jews, or about a quarter of the Spanish population, had to convert to Catholicism or flee Spain, and Muslims were also expelled shortly afterward in the next few decades. See <https://www.npr.org/sections/parallels/2014/12/25/371866778/after-522-years-spain-seeks-to-make-amends-for-expulsion-of-jews> and this primary source describing the expulsion, scroll down the page to read it

<http://www.sephardicstudies.org/1492account.html> accessed 10/18/2021

The Transatlantic Slave Trade should be added to the list of topics of this era, as the triangular trade of slaves, sugar, and rum with New England, Europe, Africa and the Caribbean is a critical part of world history during this era and had a large impact on international relations at that time and in later eras.

One of the largest changes in this era was Johannes Gutenberg’s invention of the printing press with movable type in 1439, and the start of the printing revolution with its rapid diffusion of knowledge via print.

P. 114, 1750–1923: Revolution, Democratization, and New Empires Spread, High School World History, column two Sample Themes by Time Period, Add: Add bullet after bullet three:

- “Expansion of slavery and the abolition of slavery 1750 to 1888”

Comments: In world history, at present, there is not a bullet on the theme of slavery. The expansion of slavery internationally in the British, French, Spanish, and Portuguese empires, and its eventual abolition, concluding with abolition in Brazil in 1888 should be listed as a specific theme. This large international topic and theme should be included and slavery outside the United States and U.S. history should be a topic for high school students.

P. 115, High School World History, column one Sample Topics by Time Period, 1900–1980: Conflict & Self-Determination Expand, Change: “1900–1980: Conflict & Self-Determination Expand (Topics may include but are not limited to Mexican Revolution, World War I, Armenian Genocide, 1918 Pandemic, Treaty of Versailles, Panama Canal, Global Great Depression, Nationalism, Japanese Empire, World War II, Holocaust/Shoah, Greek Civil War, Rape of Nanking, Chinese Revolution, Pinochet in Chile, Cuban Revolution, Asian Independence Movements, Nonviolent Resistance Movements, Sykes-Picot, League of Nations Mandate System, Nation State of Israel, Middle East Conflicts, Partition of India, U.S. Civil Rights Movement, African Independence Movements, Fall of Saigon, Cambodian Genocide, Tiananmen Square, League of Nations, Cold War)”

Comments: We appreciate that the Shoah is included in this list of topics, but we suggest the much more well-known name of the “Holocaust” be added, either together with Shoah, or instead of Shoah.

The League of Nations Mandate System created following WWI should be added to this list of topics because of the large impact it had on the history of the Middle East. The League of Nations divided Ottoman lands between the British and the French after World War I. Britain was given the Palestine Mandate on land comprising modern-day Israel, the West Bank, Gaza, and Jordan. France was given a mandate on land comprising Syria and Lebanon. The mandate system was established under Article 22 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, and entered into force on June 28, 1919, though implementation and refinement took place over the next several years. See https://avalon.law.yale.edu/20th_century/leagcov.asp accessed 10/18/2021.

The official country name of the State of Israel in Hebrew is Medinat Yisrael, or “State of Israel” in English.

If this list will remain as is, it would help to organize it in chronological order. It appears to be quasi-chronological at present, but not consistently so.

P. 115, High School World History, column one Sample Topics by Time Period, Retain: “1945–Future: Global Interconnections Accelerate (Topics may include but are not limited to Nuclear Age, United Nations, Universal Declaration of Human Rights, NATO, Space Age, Apartheid, Fall of Soviet Union, Globalization, Information Age, Social Media, Nationalism, Global Influence (U.S.A, China, Russia), International Unions (EU, AU, USAN, ACD), Economic Growth of the Global South, War on Drugs, War on Terror, Rwandan Genocide, September 11th, Afghanistan War, Iraq War, Arab Spring, Great Recession, Equity Movements, Climate Change, Indigenous Environmentalism, Green Revolution, Greenbelt Movement, Paris Agreement, Covid-19 Pandemic, WHO, NAFTA/CUSMA, etc)”

Comments: The Universal Declaration of Human Rights should be retained because it is important to learn about how the international community has created this statement on the principle of human dignity and the value of human rights. International understandings of human rights developed out of world reaction to the Holocaust, and this connection is important to retain. See <https://www.un.org/en/about-us/udhr/history-of-the-declaration> accessed 10/18/2021.

High School World History

P. 117, High School World History, Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems, Add: “9-12.WH.16. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, religions, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.”

Comments: “Religions” should be added to this list of topics that diffuse. Standard content in world geography courses is to cover the diffusion of religion, both expansion diffusion, how religions themselves spread across space and time (through persuasion, proselytization, or other forms of cultural diffusion), and relocation diffusion, the diffusion of members of religious groups (through migration, population transfer, conquest, diaspora, or expulsions).

P. 118, High School World History, History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation, Retain: “9-12.WH.19. Trace political, intellectual, religious, artistic, technological, economic, and social developments in historical periods as well as within individual societies.”

Comments: Religion is a critical category of culture in world history and religious developments should be retained in this world history standard.

P. 118, High School World History, History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives, Add: “9-12.WH.30. Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, national, regional, racial, ethnic, religious, class, and gender, sexual orientation, and differently abled.”

Comments: Perspectives in history are informed by many more categories than just the ones mentioned in the standard, as the wording points out. However, religion is easily as fundamental a category through which to view the world as any of the others listed, not only in understanding history but also on the part of the students who come to the material from their own backgrounds. For many, such as Sikhs, Muslims, and Jews, religion is the fundamental category which determines group perspective.

For consistency, this standard should address a parallel list of identity markers and types of diversity as do other standards cited earlier. See General Comment regarding references to Indigenous peoples.

P. 119, High School World History, History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency, Add: “9-12.WH.33. Investigate cultural and historical developments within societies with attention to religions, belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology.”

Comments: Religions play an important role in power dynamics, and cultural and historical developments within societies, and for historical accuracy, should be included in this standard.

P. 119, High School World History, History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency, Add: “9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.”

Comments: For consistency, these standards should address a parallel list of identity markers and types of diversity, as other standards. Sexual orientation is included in standards 9-12.US.136 and 9-12.US.130, and should be added to standards 7.27 and WH.30.

P. 119, High School World History, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Change: “9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (~~including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary~~) of identity groups, including but not limited to racial, ethnic, gender, sexual, national, class, and/or religious groups, push and pull factors, and origin or migration (Indigenous, forced, voluntary) in World history.”

Comments: This standard is about identity and not about types of migration. The three categories presented in this standard as types of identity are vague, and are difficult for students to connect to their own backgrounds. For example, are refugees seeking asylum from war, genocide, or persecution, voluntary or forced? Providing a list of more specific identity categories will help students think more clearly about the origins of other students’ as well as their own identities and origins. Adding push and pull factors, and whether origins include Indigenous, or forced or voluntary migration are helpful factors to add after first considering identity categories.

P. 119, High School World History, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Retain: “9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.”

Comments: This is a strong standard that reflects the fact that religions play an important role in power dynamics, and cultural and historical developments within societies, and for historical accuracy. Religion is often a central component of ethnic identity, and this standard as written ensures proper representation of the diversity of New Mexico.

P. 119, High School World History, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History, Retain: “9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.”

Comments: “Religious identities” should be retained in this ethnic studies standard. Syncretism between Indigenous and Christian religions play an important part in New Mexico, historically and today.

Religious identity intersects with racial, ethnic, gender, cultural, and other social identities that cannot be reduced to simple racial categories, but in fact contribute to the intra-ethnic diversity found in New Mexico’s diverse demographics. Membership in a religious group is often an important part of ethnic identity among American immigrant communities, and a central component of understanding their persecution and immigration to the United States, as is clearly demonstrated by the Yazidis from Syria and Iraq, and the Maronite Christians from Lebanon.

High School Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

P. 122, High School Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity, Add: “9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, sexual orientation, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.”

Comments: For consistency, these standards should address a parallel list of identity markers and types of diversity. This proposed addition brings this standard into alignment with coverage of demographics in other standards, including p. 111 High School U.S. History, “9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.

[EXTERNAL] comments on proposed social studies rules

Paul Hopkins <drpaulhopkins@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dar Mr. Sena:

Having carefully reviewed the proposed rules for social studies curriculum in New Mexico I wish to congratulate the committee's careful and helpful work. I believe the proposed rules are, in general, a wonderful update of our current curriculum guidelines. I have been a resident of New Mexico for 30 years, and my daughter and my daughter in law are both teachers. I know that they welcome these proposed changes, as do I.

Specifically, I applaud the intention to encourage students to think critically. I also believe that the emphasis on acknowledging the facts of our history, good and bad, are necessary for students to be good citizens. Finally, I am grateful that the wide diversity of races, ethnicities, and various groups in our state are acknowledged and included.

Thank you for this good work.

Paul E. Hopkins
9616 San Bernardino NE
Albuquerque, NM 87109
505-379-9753

[EXTERNAL] Supporting Proposed Change aztrab <aztrab@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Board of Education,

As a long time New Mexico higher education instructor and a graduate of a NM high school, I am writing to express my strong support for the proposed standards and the addition of the new categories of ethnic, cultural and identity studies and inquiry. I do believe that such inquiry will help students learn to think deeply, ask good questions and evaluate sources of information, which, in the current world, where we are bombarded with information from every direction, is a critical skill in being able to be informed and responsible citizens.

There are many things we need to repair in our educational system, but without question providing education that is culturally and linguistically responsive in a state that is known for its diversity, its multi-lingual and multi-cultural populations, is paramount. The time has come to make this work equally for everyone. Providing this will not completely solve the problem, but it will help a great deal.

I applaud the work of PED and have great respect and faith in this proposal to create a model for the country in multi-cultural inclusion.

Thank you all for your work and for taking comments.

Alice Trabaudo

IRW Instructor, Full Time

Note: This is sent from an electronic device. Please excuse any misspellings or autocorrect errors.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Standards

Bo Keppel <bokeppel80@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing as a member of (NOT a spokesperson for) the Santa Fe Branch of the NAACP and as a former educator who taught students at the pre-school, elementary, secondary, community college, and university levels, as well as students incarcerated, at the time, in a state prison.

I have participated in the careful review of the new Social Studies Standards by PED and must agree with the overall view of the NAACP, Santa Fe Branch, that these standards are a vast improvement over those previously held. The principles of commitment to diversity, equity and inclusion clearly motivated those who were involved in the development of these standards.

Ignoring the truths of the past does not prepare youth to be responsible adults. Rather, presenting those truths in context, supporting students in understanding the meaning and significance of what has occurred, encouraging them to question, research and assess are valuable skills which engaged citizens use.

I strongly support these new Social Studies Standards. Thanks to those who worked hard and long to develop them and thanks to PED for allowing extensive presentations from the community.

Sincerely,

Bo (Roberta L.) Keppel

[EXTERNAL] PED

Sean <scarter0313@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:08 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you all so much for your time and creating this forum. I have a son who will soon be going to school and I appreciate the changes revised but I believe it is not enough.

There is a lot being left out in the curriculum. German school children will learn about the Holocaust for an average total of a bit more 20 history class hours in either school year 9 or 10. Along with a mandatory

It is important for our children here in the US to learn the impact of the choices the folks in this country have made.

If the curriculum is going to touch the Reagan Era I want my son to be taught about how the cold war destabilized latin america and who profited from the proxy wars that were funded by bringing crack into black communities across america. Adding to that I want them to understand how the lies told by the US administration led us to a series of wars that have similarly destabilized the middle east. I also want him to understand the Clinton Era.

I want my son to be taught about how indiscriminate the violence was during the Jim Crow era and I want it to be very clear that these acts of violence were terrorism.

I want my son to come home from school and tell me about the Tulsa massacre that i had to learn about on a fiction tv show or how the MOVE bombings in philly decided to drop bombs on the move organization and letting a two blocks of homes owned by black folk to be burned down. These events not only highlight how far we as a country have grown but also how much work we have to do.

I believe our children should understand that the effects of slavery didn't end after the civil war, nor juneteenth nor because of mlk or because we've had a black president.

Also I think that anyone who is opposing these changes are an example of what happens when you aren't educated properly and education would go a long way to enlighten folks. I want to encourage folks to understand that critical thinking isn't synonymous with critical race theory; it's just the conclusion that's made when you learn how to think critically.

These proposed changes are a good start and I support them but with the caveat that I believe there is more work to be done.

--

Sean Carter Villatoro

301-250-6896

Portfolio | LinkedIn

[EXTERNAL] Part 3 of Comments to Social Studies Standard

David Tofsted <dtofsted@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:10 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Michael S. Potts <michaelspotts1951@gmail.com>; Rick Reynaud <rick@verde-environmental.com>; Amy Barela <Amy@gopnm.org>; Juan D. Garcia <garciajd1955@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

This email is written as the comment period on the Social Studies revisions is ongoing. What appears clear is that there are two groups of people who are talking almost exclusively about two different aspects of the proposed revised standards.

The one group is applauding the inclusion of elements in the standards that will recognize the histories of indigenous peoples in the social studies standards. The reasoning behind the inclusion of these aspects of history is that these elements were previously included in a simplified or false form or ignored altogether. In this regard the updated standards are a step in the right direction.

The other group is concerned over aspects of the standards that focus students on identity groups and seek to promote group activism. Yet to my hearing, none of the advocates for the expansion of information and insights into histories are talking about this concern over activism.

Therefore, removal of these identification criteria in the standards and an over-attention on advocacy and/or standards that would lead students into this "social justice warrior" mode would not affect the interests of citizens advocating for the expansion of views of history.

Let us look at some specific passages that are of concern with regards to these advocacy issues.

In the KINDERGARTENER curriculum are the following passages under the F. Inquiry portion:

- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by:
 - (a) taking group or individual action to help address local, regional, or global problems; and
 - (b) using deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about, and act on, civic problems in their classrooms.

My problem with this paragraph is that these students do not yet know how to read. (1) How can they possibly have any sense of proportion, or understanding of "deliberative" or "democratic" procedures? When were these taught? They are nowhere else described in the curriculum. (2) What is the basis of believing that these students will have any sense of what constitutes a local, regional, or global problem? This standard, along with those of several succeeding years with similar language, is completely inappropriate for children of this age.

(3) Such attempts to manipulate our children to become advocates of certain "civic problems" almost compels us, the tax paying public, to ask WHERE such children are coming up with these "problems" and whether they are being directed into these by their teachers.

Throughout these standards there is an attempt to begin by leading students to see their "identity group" or groups, then to see how their identity group is distinct from others. Then to see how their group might be at a disadvantage to that of other groups. Then to seek to join in to seek "equity".

For example, "The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building by explaining how the treatment of people, past and present, shaped group identities and cultures." seeks to force students to join in this "EQUITY" objective. 6.29.11.14.E.3.

Then, "(5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by:

- (a) describing the many facets of student identity, including family history and culture, and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups;
- (b) identifying their family and personal cultural identity, determining how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorming how to address negative perceptions; and
- (c) explaining the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems. 6.29.11.14.F.5.

In this paragraph one finds a forced student requirement to self-identify with a particular affinity group, look at possible negative perceptions of that group, and then plot to take actions to address this issue as a problem.

In the process of this dogmatic view, where is the source of these opinions coming from? What books are being used to understand these issues? Is this simply JINGOISM writ small, in terms of ethnic groups or intersectional identity groups?

And if a student should find herself/himself in a classroom where the ethnic identity of the majority of students is different from their own, and the teacher shares the ethnic identity of the majority, what is to protect this student from the majority? This clearly is wrong, and may not happen in every instance, but what is the point of establishing a segmented and separated set of objectives by different groups within a single classroom.

In particular, consider 6.29.11.15.E.1 seventh grade standard states: "Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by: (1) analyzing how groups maintain their cultural heritage and how we see this heritage through the symbols, traditions, and culture of New Mexico."

This objective is problematic because many of us who migrated here during our lifetimes do not share any portion of the "heritage" of New Mexico through its "symbols, traditions, or culture." Cultural heritage is important, but our cultures extend outside this state to embrace all of America. Thus this objective is restrictive in that it focuses on only New Mexico. Where is the equivalent objective that directs students' attention beyond only this state to that of the culture of the United States as a whole? Or Western Civilization as a whole?

6.29.11.21 [US History] in para. A.3.kk mentions police brutality. Yet where is Cancel Culture mentioned. Where is the "Moral Majority" be discussed? Where is the T.E.A. Party and its objectives of balanced budgets and limited taxation mentioned?

Thus there are significant elements of current society and recent history that are being ignored or glossed over or deprecated relative to indigenous students.

Yet the problem with this entire curriculum is that even though it attempts to claim to follow Yazzie and Martinez in fact the Yazzie-Martinez ruling emphasized the need to ensure our students are career or college ready. Yet the inquiry standards do nothing to ensure our students know better how to read or write.

Let us also go back to our US Constitution. There, the focus was on EQUALITY. Likewise, our civil rights laws are based on EQUALITY. Yet these standards only mention "equality" one time. Yet they mention INequality seven times, and also mention "equity" numerous times. Thus the focus of these standards is NOT on American values of ensuring equality but on an overly emphasized objective of "EQUITY" which is NOT called for in the New Mexico State Constitution or in the Yazzie-Martinez ruling. Yazzie-Martinez was completely focused on EQUALITY and NOT EQUITY. Thus these standards are biased toward a particular political (SECTARIAN) ideology.

As I have stated previously, the New Mexico State Constitution specifically disallows SECTARIAN schools from being funded through our tax dollars. This standard is blatantly biased towards a specific SECTARIAN viewpoint. Also, based on the recently passed legislation, if the rights of state citizens have been denied by state employees, then it opens up the state to be sued by citizens for redress, with awards in excess of $2 million per incident. By passing this new standard you have opened up our state to a significant lawsuit that denies students and their parents by instituting this biased curriculum on our young people.

Regards,
David Tofsted

Virus-free. www.avg.com

[EXTERNAL] Public CommentBill Renfro <bill.renfro@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:16 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the NM PED Social Studies Draft Standards Committee

I am writing in support of the proposed standards for the teaching of social studies in public education K thru 12 in the state of New Mexico. I agree with the statement, "The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people develop the ability to make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world."

I applaud the efforts of the committee in developing standards that are open and inclusive in a multicultural state. I am impressed that you approach social studies and history with a search for truth based on the most factual propositions possible from multiple points of view and open listening to the stories of all cultures and all ethnicities in New Mexico with equal response.

Thank you for your work!

Rev. William C. Renfro, PG (Professional Geoscientist)
Member of the Congregation at St. Andrew Presbyterian Church
Albuquerque, New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on CRT social studies & indoctrination

Marcie May <m.m.marcie2012@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:16 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; John.cardinale@hearst.com <John.cardinale@hearst.com>; Suzey Gao <snlgao2020@gmail.com>; Audrey_D_Trujillo@hotmail.com <Audrey_D_Trujillo@hotmail.com>; Joanna King <kingrules@gmail.com>; Kevin King <keloki.mail@gmail.com>; Dave <David.F.May@gmail.com>; Casey Petersen <caseysmayl@gmail.com>; matrimcauthon <vidsforacause@protonmail.com>; Dennis Smith <DennisKSmith@protonmail.com>; Anette SNL <anet4j@ymail.com>; John Rockie <johnandraquell@hotmail.com>; Monique Ramacciotti <jmramacciotti@msn.com>; Veronica de la Garza <hdlg1@msn.com>; stefani.lord@nmlegis.gov <stefani.lord@nmlegis.gov>; Ethel Maharg <mayormaharg@hotmail.com>; Dave APS Robbins <dobbins10@comcast.net>; Dave Jones <emildave@gmail.com>; Tom Mead <meadtu@mindspring.com>; webstaff@koat.com <webstaff@koat.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED:

As an educator both public and private and Home Educator for over 32 years, I have seen many assets of CRT that have been deeply embedded throughout my teaching career, in the public schools, whether under that name or not.

In my classrooms and those of my friends, I've seen teachers of all ethnicities treat each child with respect across all ethnic backgrounds, which is what we would all want.

One thing we have seen over the past decade or so is a concerted migration of the lack of respect that NMPED and our Public Schools have had for Parents of children. Even in your corporate standing in Dunn & Bradstreet, both APS and NMDPE have been called the ULTIMATE PARENT. I find that offensive, though it reflects the under current manifesting through this new document. "Parents are the problem." Also, the United States is the problem.

Growing up in Chicago, IL, we were really blessed to have such a rich mixture of culture's and diversity. We all had one thing in common- we were Americans.

But slowly as we see today n we've seen, even among our young adults, that this is something to be ashamed of. That there is also something to be ashamed of about - our country, our personal family values. And much of this has been from subversive teaching from the public schools.

A basic overview and comparison of the former standards show the removal of basic history in order to implement a more radicalized agenda designed to further promote this divide. By Design.

I have to say that in campaigning with multiple candidates across the state over this past year that I have made many friends and have seen the same kinds of questions and concerns regarding our Public Schools.

From the South Valley in Albuquerque to the northern reaches of Wagon Mound two tier C in Alamogordo people are all voicing the same opinion. That is that the public schools are sadly lacking teaching basic skills. The introduction of teaching social studies was to replace the teaching of History. This was a socialist agenda.

I agree with the one zoom speaker today that said that critical race theory is trying to be the the father of the children. Having children focus on their feelings rather than on basic facts and truth about people is the purpose of social studies.

There is a blip on the 5th grade curriculum about teaching about the Constitution but then it is followed up about how awful United States is. That's an obvious attempt to demonize the country by those pushing critical race Theory - a country that they are wishing to destroy. The founder of critical race Theory it's also making beaucoup bucks and is one of the influencers of the school boards of America who labeled parents as domestic terrorists. I've got a problem with that.

We need only take a look at the history of the Native Americans in the school system with the Native Americans and boarding schools for the Indians here in New Mexico. The children were taken out from the homes and were separated from the parents.

By golly, they were going to show them how barbaric their Indian Heritage was. So they put them inside boarding schools, with no parents to protect them. And today we have so many who have been really damaged because they lost their family unit and they were told that their life was bad. The young men that are now fathers have no basic skill sets that they can use and are now reliant on others to show them the basic ways to use the land. It is sad because they have lost their history. This is from their words not mine. This is from testimonies from one of the one of our Native American friends on the rez.

Personal testimonies of people sharing where they were abused as children both physically psychologically and sexually were rampant on the reservation and at these Indian schools. And stunning Indian School Road. A reminder to what happened. That was multiple ages doing the abusing.

When a public entity decides that they are going to try to wipe away the culture religion and family values that are deeply held traditionally with a group of people there only seems to be one reason to do that. And that is to separate children from their parents to push their own agenda.

Hitler did this very effectively targeting children during the teenage years to radicalize them into his Nazi identity. I see very similar tactics in this especially because it is so highly politicized and we are already seeing the fruit of what is going on.

You cannot hide the lgbtq radicalized agenda that is targeted towards our children. There's currently even A Gay Men's Choir who has a song that says we're coming after your children. It's pretty popular. It's very disturbing.

At this point there's not very much I would trust any public school to do with any child that is very good especially from New Mexico period we are now number 51 out of 50 states according to Forbes magazine. We can't seem to get this formula right except to become the worst possible state for education.

You can put two and two together and see that there's an agenda to take our children away from the parents so that these powers that be can do whatever they want. There is a lot of trafficking in our state and introducing hyper sexuality education in the classroom teaches children that anybody can discuss sexual activity with them because that's okay makes them vulnerable to sex trafficking It leaves them vulnerable to attack and it leaves them unprotected.

This needs to stop.

Frederick Douglass known as The Runaway Slave became free because a woman took the time to educate him and taught him how to read. After he started teaching the other slaves to read is when his master started to beat him into submission. When he finally realized what was going on, he fought back.

Freedom for children doesn't come by making them feel like they are a victim. It comes by educating them and giving them the tools to survive and to succeed in life.

Constant inward navel gazing will only train them to look why they cannot succeed. Trying to live life by not being mean cannot be a goal. Sometimes you have to do what's right. Abusers play on this tactic to make their victims feel like they are being mean. And then making themselves look like a victim. This kind of indoctrination training is purposeful and dangerous throughout this critical race Theory social studies indoctrination.

The goal? It will only train them to be jealous of what others have more than they have instead of how can they make do and make more from what they have. This is the inherent problem in the public school system today.

The critical race Theory or whatever you want to call it is bent on creating victims instead of Victor's in our Public Schools. No one has everything handed to them on a silver platter.

In fact adversity "can" make people great. But, it's not a given. Training children to always be a victim is training them to fail.

And that is what this critical race Theory curriculum is teaching children to do. Fail. because the world and everybody else on the planet owes them something and they will never be able to do anything otherwise until everyone does what they want. That's a failing strategy.

And New Mexico has all the statistics to prove just that. Like I said it's been this way for a long time and adding more fuel to the fire is not going to help our children 1iota.

Sorry socialism studies needs to be removed. Teach children history so that we can learn from our mistakes in the past. That is what is missing. Teach them but they don't have to go down the path of destruction.

Encourage them to go on the path Less Traveled. We've wasted so many years of children's lives talents and dreams because they've been sitting around waiting for someone to give them a handout.

They need the validation from their parents not a government Institution. And they need the tools from the school to get the job done.

But this is not been the agenda of the radicalized left and the teachers unions. That needs to change.

I suggest parents pull their children out of this public school system because it is a failing system. Albuquerque Public Schools gets almost two point two billion dollars according to Dun & Bradstreet through Albuquerque Public Schools District 12 and nmped. Where the hell is this money going? And where is it coming from? That was in the year 2020! All we hear is we don't have any money and we don't know what we're doing. Well you don't know what you're doing. You guys need to become accountable for every dollar wasted and thrown into some kind of Abyss that is hell bent on destroying our children and how they see themselves. Stop indoctrinating children and stop grooming them to fail!

And stop teaching them that it's okay to Kill The Unborn. These guys are the closest to that age and when you tell them that these guys are just a few years away from that the age of abortion. They get the message. Their life is not worth living. Except for a few dollar bills that get put in your pockets.

Children deserve better.

That is the problem with our Public Schools.

A system dominated by teachers unions and special interest groups to promote their political agenda. They don't have the best for the children in mind in my humble opinion.

Thank you,

Marcie May

[EXTERNAL] Parent comment on the Social Studies standards

Joyce Brinton Anderson <brintonchick@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

My name is Joyce Anderson. I am a parent of students in the Los Alamos District. I am also a former social studies teacher here in New Mexico and in Arizona. As a school teacher I taught grades 7 -12, and I have taught all of the social studies subjects over the years: American History, World History, History of Civilization, geography, economics, civics/American government, Arizona History, and New Mexico history. I have also taught children in some capacity eg: public schools, Sunday School, substitute teaching, and private tutoring for over 25 years.

I know the changes to the social studies standards have been very controversial. I have a few thoughts based on the published draft of the document.

On page 9, some of the guiding principles listed for the new standards include: social justice, equity and diversity. All three of these things point New Mexico teachers and students to a “zero-sum game” approach to social studies, which will pigeon hole students based on inter-sectional definitions and reduce students and the concepts presented in social studies into narrow categories. Social justice is based on anger and retribution and forces us to judge actions, ideas and people of the past by today's ridiculous standards of behavior and double speak. The principle of equity also forces the “zero-sum game” mentality to be used in teaching and developing lessons. Under the principles of equity the only way one group “wins” is for others to lose. Taking such a narrow view of social studies is wrong, and wholly un-American.

First, I am concerned on the heavy emphasis of identity and cultural groups as victims. While it is important to acknowledge different groups and how they impact history and economics, the way this set of standards is written emphasizes differences rather than similarities. This approach also perpetuates the notion that no one can escape their victimhood class or rise above their circumstances. This divisive approach will only serve to increase tensions between students. And as unpopular as it is, European culture must be included in social studies as the majority of students in the United States can trace their ancestry back to Europe in some capacity. It also seems as if these standards seek to blame Europeans for most of the things left-wing activists have deemed problematic in the 21st Century. I did not see any mention of how native peoples used violence, slavery, to oppress each other (because that did happen in the course of history). If we want our kids to learn about the past, then lets learn about ALL of the past, and not assign blame to one group or side.

Second, specifically in the 5th grade standards is a requirement that students describe how “inequity in the US laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.” This statement is reflective of the “anti-racist philosophies”, which are in fact, racist and assumes that systematic racism is part of every day American life in the 21st Century. Systematic racism is not part of every day American life, there might racist people, but the American system is not racist. I did not see any mention of the history of the Democrat party and its role in the rise of the KKK, segregation, Jim Crow laws, and the Civil War either.

Third, in the high school history standards there is a standard to examine gun violence in the US without talking about the Second Amendment. Such a oversight will lead to one-sided and biased discussions, curriculum choices and does not give students the whole picture of this issue.

These are just some examples, there are many more tucked into the pages of this document. Over all my take away is that the new standards tear down America, the foundation and founding documents of the United States, and present Americans as the worst people in the world. The United States has the longest in-use Constitution in the world today. The principles espoused in our foundation and founding documents are eternal and universal and such that countries all over the world have sought to imitate them.

I'm not suggesting we take a “Pollyanna” view of the United States, its history and economics, and government at all. We absolutely need to talk about the ugly parts of history and economics, governments and so on, but we also need to talk about how we have matured and advanced as a society “to form a more perfect union”. We need to drop the obsession with identity studies and inter-sectional victim groups. We need to emphasis our similarities as Americans and how we approach the issues we face as a nation instead of dividing us based on skin color, sexual orientation and so on.

To conclude, I am asking the the PED not adopt these standards as written and take them back to the drawing board, remove the divisive elements and present a more complete approach to social studies. Perhaps ask teacher and parents who are not activists to participate in the second draft of these standards.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Joyce Anderson
Los Alamos, NM

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Against Social Studies

CeliaCortez <CeliaCortez@protonmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Sent from ProtonMail for iOS

----- Forwarded message -----

From: CeliaCortez <CeliaCortez@protonmail.com>

Date: On Fri, Nov 12, 2021 at 2:09 PM

Subject: Fwd: Against Social Studies

To: PED.helpdesk@state.nm.us <PED.helpdesk@state.nm.us>

Cc:

1) I sat through the webinar, while there are many that offered their support of this new program, there are many parents are against it. My hope is that public education listens to the "users" of their services, not just the social justice warriors that took the time to speak today.

2) The schools in NM do not rank well versus the nation. We must focus on the foundations, reading, writing and math before we attempt to teach complex issues of race.

3) The new social studies is nothing more than "social justice" pandering. I grew up here in Albuquerque, part of the three ethnicities of NM, I always knew the role the Indians, Spaniards and Mexicans played in our history. I was however, never taught that the Spanish side of my history was bad versus the Native side; this program will create more division. I have never thought of myself or my family as "marginalized" and creating this will only create individuals that do not try to overcome.

4) Too much emphasis is placed on sexual orientation in grade and middle school is inappropriate.

5) Many of the assignments also appear to be creating a "social justice" individuals who uses "rioting" and "protesting" rather than use of the legislative process.

Celia Cortez

505-629-8995

CeliaCortez@ProtonMail.comSent with ProtonMail Secure Email.

[EXTERNAL] New SS Curriculum

Brock W <utah.buck@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am a parent in APS and i am against the proposed curriculum for Social Studies. It is a pushed agenda. It doesn't matter if your political views are left or right, right now, we are a divided people. The left think the right is wrong and the right think the left is wrong. We are coming out of a pandemic where our teachers are completely overwhelmed with trying to catch their students up to the current grade level. This is not the time to be changing curriculum and overwhelming our teachers more than they already are. This is not the time to be creating more division in our community. This is the time to hunker down and show love and encouragement to all sides of the equation until things become somewhat more normal.

I will pull my children out of public school if this gets approved. Please do not make these changes and risk losing all the good families in the school system.

Thank you
Brock Wiberg

[EXTERNAL] Against rule changes and additions to social studies curriculum

Kelsey Collins <kelseyccollins@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a concerned parent, I am against the rule change for the Suspension of School Boards. This is government overreach plain and simple. We need to keep local control in the hands of locally elected officials.

I am against the new suggested social studies standards. Identity/ gender identity does not have a place in social studies. These new suggestions are a clear example of a political party forcing their beliefs on the rest of the public. These new standards would be teaching students what to think instead of how to be critical thinkers.

Kelsey Collins
Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] In support of the social studies standard updates

Yvette Johnson <skyperson15@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:23 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening,

I support the draft of proposed social studies updates. Growing up in New Mexico, these topics and this view came way later than school age. I think we need all students to be able to look at our nations and state's history and consider the impact it's had on the people here. This goes for students with family going back generations in NM, and those who may have just moved here for blue skies and more affordable cost of living. This is the history of our place.

History is by nature political. So we should remain as unbiased as possible, but know that bias always occurs. These standards go a way towards reducing that bias and allowing space to ask hard questions.

Our students today will be our citizens, leaders, parents, and community of tomorrow. If we want tomorrow to be more just, then we need to have conversations about justice in schools.

Thank you.

Yvette Johnson-Rodgers

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Louis Thornton <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:25 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Louis Thornton
1475 Rodeo RD
Santa Fe, NM 87505-6813

[EXTERNAL] Social studies changesAnita Lewis <falcons2@q.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:28 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am writing to urge the approval of the new social studies curriculum. It will encourage students to think for themselves and give them facts about the true history of ALL the people of this country. For too long the social studies curriculum in this country has focused from the viewpoint of only the white people of this country.

Encouraging students to become active in doing age appropriate activities to improve their community is a positive thing! We have long needed more of this.

Goodness knows we have a huge problem in this country with too many people accepting what they are told - ignoring facts and not knowing how to reason logically for themselves. The new social studies curriculum should begin to help to remedy this situation.

Anita Lewis
Registered Voter
Albuquerque NM

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] I support New Social Studies Standards. I recognize that teachers will need training to implement the Standards.

susan selbin <sselbin@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:30 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: susan selbin <sselbin@hotmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My questions and comments:

*Do texts and other teaching materials exist that support the new Social Studies Standards?

*Training will be needed for educators to present the curriculum as intended and not be tainted by any personal bias a teacher may hold. Visits to classrooms to observe teacher performance will be important.

Those parents who say the curriculum usurps their role/right to teach values and behaviors to their own children do not seem to recognize that most parents have not done that consciously or well in the past. This could be because they're not trained to do so and their reluctance to do so.

If presented skillfully by teachers, these new Social Studies Standards:

- promote critical thinking and inquiry skills.
- present at the appropriate levels the good and bad of our history to develop an informed youth and informed future voter.
- present the complexities of a multi-cultural society to members of that society so they develop respect and understanding of others' cultures and their relationship to the responsibilities of citizenship to ensure respect for other cultures.
- prepare teachers to discuss and respectfully address diversity in race, cultures, and sexual/gender orientation.

I support adoption of these New Social Studies Standards. However, more time may be needed for educators and school boards to review and respond to the standards. This kind of review should continue early in 2022. Then teacher training must be a key component prior to introduction of the curriculum in the 2022-23 school year.

Thank you.

Susan Selbin

Former Special Education (LD) Teacher

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Subrina Miller <p.s.miller4@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:31 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent of a 10th grader at Artesia High School, I am deeply concerned about the new Mexico social studies standard proposals.

The founding principles of our country begin with;

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed, by their Creator, with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness."

These proposed new standards are anything BUT truth. They are divisive and seek to reestablish segregation by telling some of our kids that they are inherently bad simply because their skin is a certain color while telling other kids that they can never achieve what others are capable of achieving simply because they have a different skin color.

This is wrong and immoral.

These are just a few of the examples of standards that I find problematic as a parent. Standard 9–12 US 104 is using terminology such as "state sponsored persecution" and teaches our young people that the cards are stacked against them so why try.

The Artesia school district has proposed a change to that same standard that illuminates the singling out of any one group and still addresses how perceptions have changed over time.

Standard 9–12 US 123 is wrong and singling out and focusing on conservatism which does not belong in the classroom. It is also very subjective and could be very harmful to the students who would consider themselves conservatives.

The Artesia school district has proposed to change to 9–12 US 123 but also looks at political impact through the different time periods. The Artesia school district has proposed to change to 9–12 US 123 that also looks at political impacts through the different time periods without causing divisions among students in the classroom.

Standard 9–12 ECI 16 is utterly ridiculous and teaches young people that the status that they are born into dictates their path in life. This is an un-American concept and should not be taught in any of our schools.

The majority of the proposed social studies standards create more division in our society than we already have and it's completely unnecessary. No one is denying that the US has made many mistakes in our past but we have learned from them. Our kids should be taught about these mistakes but they should also be taught about the great changes that we have made and the equality that has widely been achieved in our great nation.

In closing, I strongly oppose these new social studies standards and I will be withdrawing my student from the public school system if these are taught in Artesia Public schools.

Subrina Miller

Artesia, New Mexico

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Support for new curriculum

Ruth Warner Carrillo <ruthalicia.warner@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:32 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I was very pleased to see the proposed changes to the social studies curriculum.

I believe these changes will deeply benefit the children of New Mexico.

Times have changed and it's important that we shift away from Eurocentrism, and teach our students how to be analytical.

I have heard that there is a lot of opposition to these changes, and fear that many folks from out of state are rallying, even though these changes are not at all radical. I urge you to listen to the people who live in New Mexico and who care for our children and our future (in spite of still having a Colorado area code, I have lived and worked in New Mexico for the past 9 years and consider it home).

Thank you for listening to my comments. And KUDOS on the new curriculum. Please approve it.

Ruth

--

Ruth Warner

1034 La Font Rd SW

Albuquerque NM 87105

ruthalicia.warner@gmail.com

303.669.5758

[EXTERNAL] Written statement to accompany public statement on Nov. 12 hearings on Social Studies Revisions rainhousejoan@tularosa.net <rainhousejoan@tularosa.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: rainhousejoan@gmail.com <rainhousejoan@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thanks-you for your consideration

Joan E. Price

Tularosa, New Mexico 88352

Public Comment NMPED Nov 12, 2021

Joan E. Price

Thank you for this opportunity to submit suggestions to you as a trained artist and educator, a substitute teacher in our public school system for ten years, and an active member of a environment sciences based organization based in southern New Mexico, Jornada Research Institute, integrating the study of the archaeological, ethnohistoric, historic and natural resources AND committed to the protection and preservation of these resources so that current and future generations may benefit from their research and educational values.

I strongly advocate increased funding for the arts of music, painting, drawing, theater and dance, trade programs, funded field trips to important historical and natural sites that have educational relevant regional components to the core standards that document the evidence the full abilities of humans for thousands of years. For example, the recent publication of the find of prehistoric sloth interaction with humans at White Sands National Monument and the Prehistoric interpretive trail that will be open to the public with supplemental materials. Buses to this site need significant funding for these vital activities in education. (1)

(1) Jen McDonald, May, 2016

<https://www.kmsd.edu/site/default.aspx?DomainID=312&FlexDataID=3316&ModuleInstanceID=1237&PageID=383&PageType=3&RenderLoc=0&ViewID=6446EE88-D30C-497E-9316-3F8874B3E108>

The question that many people have asked in regards to this situation is, why are education in the arts so important? With data collected from numerous studies, it has been found that students that took four years of arts classes scored a whopping 91 points higher on their SAT tests than those who did not. Arts programs have also helped decrease the dropout rate from schools. In many instances, arts classes provide motivation for students to keep attending school, which means students with long standing arts educations have higher graduation rates than those who do not partake in arts classes. Arts education is not only important in high school, but it has been found to have a large, positive impact on elementary school children. Visual arts classes taken in elementary school help develop a child's motor skills, which are crucial and help develop these skills when children use tools such as scissors, pencils, and paintbrushes. The same also happens with language skills. By identifying colors, shapes, and descriptive words, and then discussing it with a friend or teacher, children can develop their social skills, and help increase their vocabulary at a young age. Education in music at a young age is also very important. Playing music at a young age helps connect both hemispheres of the brain, which creates long-lasting improvements in listening and communication. Children who practice a musical instrument for at least 30 minutes a week have been found to have more developed brains than other children their age who do not.

Having an education balanced in core subjects and the arts can greatly improve student's grades, and life, creating a better future for a well-rounded environmentally aware healthy person. However, the cuts being made to schools over years in favor of core subjects driven by STEM standard have a profound hidden cost in terms of physical health, bodily coordination and mental health that decline later living experience. (2)(3)

To continue, the more recent history of New Mexico with its indelible stamp on New Mexican identity and cultural celebration came from educator and activist Edgar Hewitt, an archaeologist, who brought the first women archaeologists into the field as well as the Antiquities Act of 1906, and his astounding legacy as founder and first director of the Museum of New Mexico; the first president of New Mexico Highlands University in Las Vegas; a significant role in the formation of Bandelier National Monument, Salinas Pueblo Missions National Monument and Chaco Culture National Historical Park. The indefatigable Hewitt leading a remarkable movement of artists, writers and talented early archaeologists and ethnographers initiated the Laboratory of Anthropology, the Maxwell Museum of Anthropology and The School of American Archaeology in Santa Fe.

Archaeology, anthropology and ethnohistory are bridges to a long history of water and land management in New Mexico and the American Southwest that represents communities of people, ancestors of indigenous peoples today, that were always striving for balance and adjustment to sometimes radical changes such as climate changes and resource extinction. And along with the increasing respect for the ancient ways of life has been the well documented critical observations necessary to create solutions is far more impressive than previously thought in academic circles.

We are on a warp speed technocultural change at this point that requires a long and deep view of our past contrasting the "tele-everything" (2) of educators looking at the future for our early learning years.

With fully developed senses of hearing, vision, hand and eye coordination, strong bodies and options of nutritious foods, early humans were fully capable in a way that is being lost today. I am talking about a balance fully informed by where the sun rises and sets which today's students often do not know. I am talking about the plant and animal cultivation and harvesting that required a discipline awareness of natural time and seasons which young students today are isolated from in climate controlled housing, architecture and school buildings.

I commend the new standards that include ethnic, cultural and identity studies and inquiry" and "address the increasingly diverse perspectives and histories of the peoples of New Mexico." But also I would like to recommend a full complement of the human communities of thousands of years as evidenced in the findings offered by educational nonprofits such as Jornada Research Institute of Southern New Mexico, a vast prehistoric region of profound importance in scientific findings.

The proposed standards expand on four "strands" of social studies that Warniment described as pillars of these standards. The four are history, geography, civics and economics.

Two key words are found throughout your current recommendations for standards are very narrow and do not fully represent the complete picture of human experience in our state. The words "technology" and "economic" are included as standards in almost every grade level from K through 12.

These social studies topics are consistently defined in terms of contemporary banking and money management and digital platform information technologies as if revolutionary advancement began within the last some 400 years rather than thousands of years ago.

But we find patterns of prehistoric human behavior somewhat like plateaus where a “technological” advancements has a ripple effect on “economic” behaviors in a steep rise and then plateau out as adoption of use is integrated into communities. These early and long lasting relationship have a immeasurable impact on the New Mexican sense of place and identity.

The science and disciplines of archaeology and anthropology are closely integrated in several other areas of social studies in particular the environmental sciences. They integrate several fields of studies and challenge higher level thinking skills when formulating questions for further understanding.

Thus, these professions addresses numerous aspects of our New Mexico curriculum as outlined in the New Mexico Standards and Benchmarks, as well as Common Core State Standards and Next Generation Science Standards, all of which we strive to address with students. It reaches deep into core curricular areas of science, history/prehistory, social studies and literature and complex mathematics evidence by extraordinary basketry and fabrication of untold diversity of of woven household and hunting tools.

Our findings have been mandated by a series of federal laws from the 1906 Protection of Antiquities Act through numerous succeeding laws to the 1990 Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act. Our findings and reports are relied upon by the Environmental Protection Agency and in southern New Mexico, vast federal land management holdings including the military reservations, the national forest service, the national park service and the bureau of land management.

The university systems and higher education house large departments of undergraduate and graduate level programs that detail the extraordinarily long history of human occupation and creative solutions in New Mexico. Over 25 different science-based career jobs are found in archaeology and its related occupations, four careers in cultural resource management and five in education and museum curation. Numerous private companies are active throughout the New Mexican preservation economy particularly in the southern region under Cultural Resource Management funding contracts on state and federal lands.

Integration of several fields of studies and challenging higher level thinking skills when formulating questions for further understanding of the individual human life complemented and augmented numerous aspects of our New Mexico curriculum as outlined in the New Mexico Standards and Benchmarks, as well as Common Core State Standards and Next Generation Science Standards, all of which we strive to address with students. It reached deep into core curricular areas of science, history/prehistory, social studies, literacy arts and complex math skills implemented especially in the woven baskets and intricate fabrics of prehistoric peoples.

The critical observational skills, the constantly improving methods that are advanced in many cases take place on the field. Hands-on slow and sensitive uncovering of vital clues in soil compaction, textures and layers of time, fragments of plant and animal bones and seeds, and woven materials, flaked and modified stones such as obsidian, fragments of imported jewelry and finely painted imported ceramics and of course much more are brought into to the modern digital classification and data analysis in great detail and are presented in numerous academic conferences across this state and the great American southwest that millions of American cities, towns and village communities. Our methods of analysis have become evenly divided between sensitive sifting of soils and technological examinations in the laboratory. It is of no small importance that emphasis on STEM suffers the lack of hands on experience outside in a variety of weather conditions and seasons that provide a professional perspective on the ancient mind.

Has the 11 years since the last revision of social studies content and standards prepared our young adults to envision a wise and balanced response for the next 11 years of rapid social changes such as pandemics, climate change, water shortages, atmospheric and land degradation before the next revision?

Certainly PARCC testing and the billion dollar companies Pearson Education, ETS (Educational Testing Service), Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, and McGraw-Hill do not feature the thousands of years of human cultures in New Mexico to the degree suggested by the archaeological findings over thousands of years in New Mexico and does not currently include archaeological activity in New Mexico to anywhere near the actual timeline of adaptations created by humans here. The proposed changes to this social studies revisions do not reflect the New Mexico identity.

Yet with New Mexico demographic and environmental decision making up for final review , these powerful companies continue to lobby New Mexico for digital resources contracts for their materials and the state will need to select proposals for Instructional Materials without informed regard to the changes that are in store for the identity and resilience of New Mexican families and our public education system.

Most importantly, the water resources tied to food agriculture of our current, past and prehistoric eras and the Native American legacy the numerous cultures whose inventions and oral history itself integrated with legendary skills in oral history and ties to the water environments we study today. over thousands of years brought the current culture to the eve of the digital revolution.

As one teacher in Albuquerque Public Schools, Colin Norwalk, rightly said in the public hearings about the present proposed revisions, there is a substantial change in subject material beginning in current textbooks beginning with the “reconstruction era. Now it will go back to the Pre-Columbian civilizations and APS does not have the resources.” If the new materials are all digital, real cost will be more health problems as well.

I commend the changes with the topics and standards of ethnic studies and history of Native American and so on, but there needs to be more time to put resources for the teachers in place. The NMPED publications department call for proposals will begin in December 2021 and I believe those material should be reviewed very carefully in light of the current revisions.

Thank-you for your consideration,

Joan E. Price

Tularosa, New Mexico

Additional Notes (2), (3), (4), and (5) and specific examples of expanded subject materials for southern New Mexico.:

Settlement strategies around central natural features of 12,000 foot high Sierra Blanca, for example, with thousands of archeological sites and artifacts including solar observatories and shrines, extensive trade routes used for over three thousand years, and local architectural features indicate a great deal of affinity with contemporary indigenous peoples.

Witness the now famous “Clovis point” discovered by cowboy George McJunkin, a black archaeologist and historian of his time that was then proven to revolutionize the entire fabric of mobile hunting cultures and their intimate relationship to the game animals. Along with scrapers, blades, drills and needles, the Clovis point was part of a generalized tool kit that human beings used to flood into a still-new land.

Witness the obsidian trade originated from the largest volcano in the world, the 40,000 foot high Jemez Mountain that spewed molten obsidian revolutionizing the human communities that discovered it along the Rio Grande, invented the specific methods to create and add the stone, finished or unfinished, to a cache of invaluable collective wealth.

For example, David Greenwald, an archaeologist of 40 years choose to teach his young son how to construct a pit house, acutely aware of local building materials, the most widespread passive solar dwelling for hundreds or thousands of years in the American southwest not to mention the finely tuned practices of fire building, plastering the walls, drying, storing and reconstituting grains and meats and critically weaving floor mats, nets and baskets for carrying, remarkable painted ceramic containers of profound symmetrical sense of spherical environments and so on. Perhaps it gets mentioned on one page of the social studies pedagogy. And probably the teacher did not have the choice of handouts, classroom or playground activities to accompany that long dismissed training of vital natural perceptions and sensory coordination (in today’s perceptions brain exercise and neurosynaptic firings and pathways) that would create a sense of a balanced universe to relate to.

Lisa Sparks, a lithics specialist, insists that her student learn how to make the atlatl and tracking skills as she simultaneously introduces them to the skills of flintknapping stones of appropriate types and locations in the regional environment and the requirements of family organization to send out hunters and perhaps bring back meat for feasting on a small or community level.

(2) 2017 Jean Twinge, Professor of Psychology, San Diego State University, National Institutes of Health and the Russell Sage Foundation In a new paper published in Clinical Psychological Science.

In just the five years between 2010 and 2015, the number of U.S. teens who felt useless and joyless – classic symptoms of depression – surged 33 percent in large national surveys. Teen suicide attempts increased 23 percent. Even more troubling, the number of 13- to 18-year-olds who committed suicide jumped 31 percent.

Around 2012, something started going wrong in the lives of teens much more likely to experience mental health issues than their millennial predecessors.: the sudden ascendance of the smartphone. , smartphone ownership crossed the 50 percent threshold in late 2012 – right when teen depression and suicide began to increase. By 2015, 73 percent of teens had access to a smartphone across two different data sets. We found that teens who spent five or more hours a day online were 71 percent more likely than those who spent only one hour a day to have at least one suicide risk factor.

(3)

<https://www.pewresearch.org/internet/2021/02/18/experts-say-the-new-normal-in-2025-will-be-far-more-tech-driven-presenting-more-big-challenges/>

Asked to consider what life will be like in 2025 in the wake of the outbreak of the global pandemic and other crises in 2020, some 915 innovators, developers, business and policy leaders, researchers and activists responded. Their broad and nearly universal view is that people’s relationship with technology will deepen as larger segments of the population come to rely more on digital connections for work, education, health care, daily commercial transactions and essential social interactions. A number describe this as a “tele-everything” world.

Notable shares of these respondents foresee significant change that will:

worsen economic inequality as those who are highly connected and the tech-savvy pull further ahead of those who have less access to digital tools and less training or aptitude for exploiting them and as technological change eliminates some jobs; enhance the power of big technology firms as they exploit their market advantages and mechanisms such as artificial intelligence (AI) in ways that seem likely to further erode the privacy and autonomy of their users; multiply the spread of misinformation as authoritarians and polarized populations wage warring information campaigns with their foes. Many respondents said their deepest worry is over the seemingly unstoppable manipulation of public perception, emotion and action via online disinformation – lies and hate speech deliberately weaponized in order to propagate destructive biases and fears. They worry about significant damage to social stability and cohesion and the reduced likelihood of rational deliberation and evidence-based policymaking.

86% said they expect that the evolution of digital life will continue to feature both positives and negatives” “ that could reconfigure fundamental realities such as people’s physical “presence” with others and people’s conceptions of trust and truth.”

They wondered, too, if humans can cope effectively with such far-reaching changes, given that they are required to function with “paleolithic emotions, medieval institutions and god-like technology,” in the words of biologist E.O. Wilson.

(4) 1994 Philip Agre UCLA Humanities professor prediction

Agre was a child math prodigy who became a popular blogger and contributor to Wired. Now he has been all but forgotten in mainstream technology circles. But his work is still regularly cited by technology researchers in academia and is considered foundational reading in the field of social informatics, or the study of the effects of computers on society.

More profoundly, though, Agre wrote in the paper that the mass collection of data would change and simplify human behavior to make it easier to quantify. That has happened on a scale few people could have imagined, as social media and other online networks have corralled human interactions into easily quantifiable metrics, such as being friends or not, liking or not, a follower or someone who is followed. And the data generated by those interactions has been used to further shape behavior, by targeting messages meant to manipulate people psychologically.

(depression, thinking about suicide, making a suicide plan or attempting suicide). Overall, suicide risk factors rose significantly after two or more hours a day of time online.

But some vulnerable teens who would otherwise not have had mental health issues may have slipped into depression due to too much screen time, not enough face-to-face social interaction, inadequate sleep or a combination of all three.

(5) 1985 Public education critic Neil Postman

Published Amusing Ourselves to Death: Public Discourse in the Age of Show Business. Postman asked the central question. "What happens when media and politics become forms of entertainment?"

American education has drifted away from its founding narratives of democracy and Individual rights, replaced by the narratives of economic utility, the view of school's highest purpose as preparation for the workplace and the belief in technology as the measure of humanity's progress.

In "Amusing Ourselves to Death," Neil Postman's nightmare is that the content of education will come to be determined by what can be turned into entertainment. Where does effective pedagogy end and mere entertainment begin? Currently, education is in a period of transition between dominant media, moving away from print and toward electronic. Generations of television-raised students who do not read for enjoyment, who cannot spell, and who seem to have shorter attention spans, are filling classrooms. The new cognitive style fostered by electronic media could be called "empathy at a distance." People get excited about things that they cannot do anything about. College faculty trained in the ways and skills of print media, are told to teach students something.

Postman pointed out, over thirty years ago, For the television generations, school is an experience of sensory deprivation. By the time they become adults, they will be restless and unsatisfied, without quite understanding why. In class, the students' attention can be held for 15 or 20 minutes with a lecture, but then it is time for something new--it can be a handout, a video, a student report, or a small group exercise. Several themes can be kept going at once, as in a variety show. However, on the positive side students are found to be still curious and responsive to ideas, abstractions, and issues that they do not see on television. This is perhaps the best hope for educating them. (NKA)

We're living in the aftermath of ignoring people like Phil Agre and Neil Postman. Librarians tell me that high school students only want to read history in the format of "graphic novels". They are "afraid to go outside” and “they don’t want to ruin their fingernails” and, in my experience in the art classrooms , they don’t know where the sun rises or sets, they need to be taught where the warmest places of the playground during a cold recess day, they are supposed to have free unstructured time to let out their energy.

[EXTERNAL] CRT and Diversity in school

Sharon Sadler <sesadler1@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I want to voice my opinion on CRT and Diversity in the Los Alamos public schools. I have 4 grandchildren in the system.

I am dumbfounded at the dumbing down of our schools. You need to go back to basics and actually teach our children reading, writing, math, history (true not revisionist), science etc.

Leave the diversity training to the parents.

I have always considered our teachers to be the best and brightest, however, this has sorely opened my eyes to the asininity of the education system.

Please, do not add this CRT and Diversity training into the school system.

Thank you,

Sharon Sadler

sesadler1@msn.com

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11NMAC, Social Studies

JohnnieA <jraldrich@earthlink.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired teacher who worked, during my 40-year career, at every educational level from 7th-grade English to Graduate Studies in Business Management, I write in strong support of the suggested changes in the Standards for Social Studies in New Mexico public schools.

The subjects approached in the "inquiry area" at each grade level are hugely important in our lives in these technologically-dominated times when we are bombarded by dis- and misinformation from multiple sources.

The "financial literacy" lessons proposed by Think New Mexico to begin in Kindergarten are equally important in producing adults who will live successfully, at least in terms of money management, in a world full of those who would separate us from our incomes.

I also appreciate the emphasis given to the practical knowledge of the organization of our government at national, state, and local levels. The number of adults who cannot name even basics like the 3 branches of our government is appalling.

However, I am also sympathetic to the pleas of various teachers, administrators, and school boards who have written to request, for very good reasons, that the implementation of these standards, if they are accepted, not begin in the 2022-23 school year. Especially concerning is the need to plan the specific steps needed to present the standards in classrooms. Equally important is the search for and purchase of appropriate source materials for classroom use. We should not add such a burden to teachers and administrators when they are, at present, fully dedicated to trying to repair deficiencies caused by the special requirements of the Year of COVID-19.

Thank you for your attention to my opinion -- and to the teachers/administrators who developed the new Standards.

Gratefully,
Johnnie R. Aldrich, Ph.D.
Las Cruces

[EXTERNAL] Comments on 11/12/21 NMPED Social Studies Public Hearing

Lorenzo <lawrenceosen@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Lawrence Osen. I am a retired California middle and high school Social Studies educator (1987 - 2015). I have lived in Dixon, New Mexico for the past five years; a part time resident beginning in 2000.

In 2008 I served on the California History-Social Science Curriculum Framework and Evaluation Criteria Committee and understand the difficulties and complexities experienced during the Standards adoption process

Unfortunately I just learned about the Social Studies Standards adoption process yesterday after returning from a lengthy trip to California.

For 25 years I was an active member of the California Geographic Alliance working to promote the teaching and learning of geography. In 1999 I served on the AP/College Board Course Development Committee for AP Human Geography. In addition I was an active member of the California Association of Bilingual Education, National Council for Geographic Education and California Council for the Social Studies throughout my career.

I highly value the inclusion of National Geography Standards in New Mexico's proposed social studies standards and advocate for a required high school world geography course (one semester minimum).

New Mexico shares many characteristics with California and other states in this richly diverse Southwest region. From indigenous peoples to Spanish conquest, Mexico and eventual US nationhood, our regions share a similar history recently focused on water scarcity. For the past five years I served our community as a Commissioner on La Acequia del Llano which continues to provide me with an opportunity to reflect on the interdisciplinary nature of this agricultural irrigation technology and culture systems.

Four themes dominated my 15+ years of teaching 8th grade U.S. History: U.S. cultural and physical geography; the contributions of indigenous peoples and the historical impacts of slavery; the U.S. Constitution - our Rights and Responsibilities; and current events tied to world geography.

I advised two Model United Nations delegations that ultimately participated in the 2014 and 2015 international conference in New York City. Preparing our students for careers in an increasingly connected, complex world is absolutely critical.

Based on my teaching and life experiences, ethnic, cultural and identify studies are very relevant and important to include in the standards. Also, inquiry based learning is essential to foster critical thinking in students. SHEG Teaching Like a Historian curriculum is an excellent resource for teaching teaching using primary and secondary sources, multiple perspectives.

In the late 80s I was trained as a bilingual educator in Bakersfield. My first assignment was a bilingual 5/6 class of students whose parents were mainly farm workers. Many of the issues that came up in today's public hearing were relevant then. Ideally we will empower and equip our students with the skills and knowledge necessary to create life long learners and engaged, educated citizens.

Using the Anti-Defamation League's Anti Bias/Prejudice and the Southern Poverty Law Center's Teaching Tolerance curricula I continued to infuse myriad themes world and U.S. history units that address our differences and similarities. My stepfather, a Creek/Choctaw Native American, provided me with numerous insights gained from his experiences teaching middle and high school in Watts, Los Angeles in the 70s and 80s. He often reminded me of the ongoing challenges facing social studies teachers living in a multiethnic, multicultural and ever changing society.

Valued Resources:

National Geography and Civics Standards
SHEG Teaching Like a Historian
ICivics
AP Human Geography
SPLC's Teaching Tolerance
UN Sustainability Goals

I strongly urge the NMPED to accept the New Mexico K-12 Social Studies Standards. AND I also am in favor of extending the public comment period to allow individuals like myself, who were not aware of the comment period time frame, additional time to read, review and reflect on the proposed NM Social Studies standards revision.

Lawrence Osen
Retired Social Science Educator

PO Box 364
Dixon, NM
505-579-4635

[EXTERNAL] Feed back on new social studies standards

David Escamilla <davidescamilla50@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the policy division of NMPED

My name is David Escamilla. I am a parent of two students Kindergarten in a second grader. I am concerned about the new social studies standards. I don't think kids should learn these new standards. I believe this is something the kids should be learning from their parents.

The new standards as they are proposed raise alarming concern for me as a parent.

9-12.US.129 - Explore the movement against police brutality

- I am not OK with this standard being taught to students this is another issue the kids need to learn and discuss with your parents.

9-12.US.132 - examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past present and future.

- Again this is an issue with the standard, examining the history of guns in America should not be taught in schools as it allows for teacher political influence on students
- This standard is bias and written from one point of view. There isn't a standard that examines the positive history of guns in America.
-

I respect the decision to upgrade the social studies standards for our schools. I believe there are more important issues that our students are not being taught such as math and reading. Our students are behind and we are currently ranked 50th in education. Should we be spending time arguing about social studies standards and changes rather than teaching the basics and allowing our students to succeed.

[EXTERNAL] RE: Social Studies Revised Standards 2021

Megan Lee <m.lee@laschools.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

Thank you for your efforts to improve and streamline the New Mexico Social Standards standards. I wanted to give my feedback regarding the third grade standards and some concerns in general. I have been in education for 27 years, 15 of which here in NM as a principal, a district curriculum coordinator and classroom teacher. I have taught 2nd, 4th and 3rd grades in NM.

1. In general, I am concerned that the new set of standards does not provide enough specific examples of bullets under each standard which leaves them too vague and subject to interpretation.

If we do not have guidance, grade to grade there will not be consistency and equity for students. One teacher may teach different things.

Specifically: Under Theme 1: Citizenship The Anchor Standard is a student demonstrates an understanding of Civic Dispositions and Principles and the performance standards 3.8 Explain how the democratic principles motivate to migrate then and now. Examples? Religious freedom? Pilgrims? No examples are given. and 3.9 says how to be a responsible and active citizen in a democracy, again no bullet points like, vote, know and follow the laws.

2. Whereas if we list for example Theme 4 Our Changing World, Geography 11, Location , Place and Region, 3.25 talking about landforms, resources would connect to why people live near water sources for examples or different kinds of resources.

3. It concerns me that under Civics, Government has been removed. I think it is critical that third graders be exposed to and introduced to the concepts of government such as local, state, tribal and national governments. I felt the Benchmark IIIAs third grade performance standards were more comprehensive.

Lastly, I am very supportive of adding themes of global diversity and identity. I am completely committed to social justice and presenting through read alouds as appropriate for third grade-presenting difficult topics of history like slavery, discrimination based on gender and color. I like the wording of the previous History Content Standards which is very comprehensive.

I do not feel 3.27 is a standard that is balanced. We have to present the truths - good and bad and this only presents one point of view. 3.28 seems fine and 3.29 should include exposure to people and groups that have made poor decisions too to show the complexity of humanity.

In addition, I actively use the Houghton Mifflin Social Studies book 2005 edition. Its units are easy to use and developmentally appropriate for third grade. Unit 1 Community and Geography , Unit 2 America's early Communities, People Move Place to Place, Community Government, Making Economic Choices. It comprehensively covered the previous NM standards well.

I believe that decisions on the approval of these standards should be postponed until they are more comprehensive, the wording is easier for all to understand and easier to teach to provide consistency and equity across NM. I would recommend spending more time upfront rather than something people will not be able to use. I would be happy to help if needed.

Thank you for your attention and soliciting feedback. It is very much appreciated.

Respectfully,
Megan Lee

Megan Elizabeth Lee
Third Grade Teacher
Chamisa Elementary School, Los Alamos Public Schools
301 Meadow Lane
White Rock, NM 87544
505-663-2482

This email has been sent from a verified laschools.net user.

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Curriculum

Elizabeth Ortega <diamondliz55@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I propose that you drop the new proposed Social Studies Curriculum and stick to the time honored, true historical curriculum. This new appendage to CRT is actually an attempt to indoctrinate students to diverse, inappropriate, deviant lifestyles that are diametrically opposed to their cultural and religious upbringings, for most children. Stop trying to use the education system to indoctrinate children to diverse cultures, communism and pagan beliefs!

Miguel Ortega & Family

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Julia Williams <nonny.48@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

This letter is to express my dissatisfaction with the State of NM for trying to teach anything that even resembles Critical Race Theory to our students. Here we are in NM at the bottom of the heap in testing, proficiency etc. and you want to push some Marxist ideology on our children? How about teaching the basics of reading, writing and arithmetic so our children can compete or even excel in the real world..

We live in a very diverse and racially mixed state. What are you going to do? Tell a racially mixed child one day to hate their Anglo side and love their Native side. Another day you're going to tell the Black child to hate his Anglo side. This is garbage!!! Our children are having a hard enough time growing up with everything that is going on in the world without your help demeaning and degrading their very being because of their race..

Children go out on the playground to play and they don't look to pick out a color to play with! They want to play!!! They don't care if another child is pink, purple, or orange. STOP trying to separate our children by color.

Why don't you teach Social Studies as Social Studies? The facts as facts and the truth as truth - warts and all. God gave us all brains to use and I think these children can figure these things out. Oh, I forgot! You don't want them to think because then you can't control them! We have smart, beautiful children in this state. I would like to see them excel at their highest potential.

You'd better be careful what you wish for with this Marxist ideology. I grew up in and have visited dictatorships, communist nations and democracies. Where people are told what and how to think, there is no peace and no joy. It is like the walking dead!!! - very dark and depressing!

For the sake of our children,PLEASE do away with this Critical Race Garbage!!!

Sincerely,

J K Williams

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards Feedback

Kersti Tyson <kerstityson@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Secretary Steinhaus, Public Education Department Staff Members, and Standards Writers:

Thank you for the work you have done to develop new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico.

For my remarks, I am speaking as a private citizen, a graduate from NM’s Public Schools and the mother of a child who is currently attending a public school in NM. As a teacher, a teacher educator, and learning scientist, I know the importance of standards for guiding instruction to ensure NM’s students have access to curricula and learning opportunities that will prepare them for living and thriving in the 21st Century, in our ever evolving society. In addition, as we reckon with the incredible disruptions the pandemic has had on individuals, our communities and societies across the world, as well as respond to the findings and remedies identified in the Martinez/Yazzie lawsuit, I believe that education as we have known it will be forever changed. NM is at an imaginative moment. We have the opportunity to boldly redesign our education system so that our students can finally experience equitable and just learning opportunities that will help them to craft and contribute to the more just societies of tomorrow. Our standards need to be expansive and must build on current knowledge and research about how people learn. The proposed Social Studies Standards fall disappointingly short in this area.

An important innovation in the field of education has been naming practices that children develop over the course of k-12 education as they learn core disciplinary content in each grade. In 2010 the Common Core State Standards for Mathematics named eight practices (<http://www.corestandards.org/Math/Practice/>) that children should have access to developing as the learn the content described k-12. Similarly the Next Generation Science Standards (NGSS), first published in 2013, also articulate a set of “crosscutting concepts” and Science and Engineering Practices (<https://www.nextgenscience.org/three-dimensions>). The National Council for the Social Studies published a framework, "College, Career, and Civic Life (C3) Framework for Social Studies State Standards: Guidance for Enhancing the Rigor of K-12 Civics, Economics, Geography, and History" which also articulates a set of core practices that students need opportunities to develop as they engage in social studies and social science curricula. New Mexico’s Social Studies Standards must include this standard of practice, namely we need to name a compressive set of practices in addition to naming content. Doing so acknowledges that learning social studies is not a set of discrete components, but an integrated whole that will be an important part of shaping NM’s children’s - and citizens - identities, knowledge and skills for participating in local and global 21st Century contexts.

Many other states have adopted and improved this best practice. New York State’s Social Studies Standards not only articulate a set of social studies practices, they also describe them developmentally for grade bands (<http://www.nysed.gov/common/nysed/files/programs/curriculum-instruction/ss-framework-k-12-intro.pdf>; pp. 14-21). Massachusetts’ Standards for History and Social Science (<https://www.doe.mass.edu/frameworks/hss/2018-12.pdf>; see pages 23-25) also name a comprehensive set of practices. The MA standards also identify a comprehensive set of "Guiding Principles for Effective History and Social Science Education" (pp. 13-16) as well as articulate the “Scope, Sequence and Content of the Grades and Courses," providing crisp focus areas for each grade (pp. 17-19). The MA standards are clearly grounded in research and provides direct links to rich resources that will help to expand MA students opportunities to learn and develop practices in comprehensive ways over time. NM’s teachers and students need our Social Studies Standards to reflect the best practice of articulating practices that will help ensure our students can thrive in the 21st Century.

Thank you for considering my feedback,
With regard,

Kersti Tyson, Ph.D.
(505) 818 7510
kerstityson@gmail.com

C3 Framework Organization

Dimension 1: Developing Questions and Planning Inquiries	Dimension 2: Applying Disciplinary Tools and Concepts	Dimension 3: Evaluating Sources and Using Evidence	Dimension 4: Communicating Conclusions and Taking Informed Action
-----------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------

Developing Questions and Planning Inquiries	Civics	Gathering and Evaluating Sources	Communicating and Critiquing Conclusions
	Economics
	Geography	Developing Claims and Using Evidence	Taking Informed Action

History

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards

Robbie Powell <powellrobbie1@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:41 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a resident and medical provider of the Albuquerque area. I am against the implementation of Social Justice ideologies for the schools. Purposefully demonizing any group of people, no matter their gender or race, will always be wrong. You never get any taller by cutting others down. The only way forward is by mutual respect and shared responsibility. The proposed standards are seated in directing hate.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed repeal and replace-integrated 6.29.11 NMAC 1

J Zapien <jlzapien@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:41 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

PROPOSED REPEAL AND REPLACE - INTEGRATED
6.29.11 NMAC 1

Dear NM PED,

Our concerns happen to sign with Las Cruces parent, Rick Reynaud attached below this statement. It is disheartening to see the depths of history being "replaced". As a parent of 5 children we know the value of history's truth even when shameful and ugly. It is only through teaching without embellishments or adding to/deleting history that we see the beauty of this American country where all men are created equal and can say, "we the people" proudly unashamed of who we are individually knowing we overcame our family history whatever it may be. Our children (whose ethnicities consist of Hispanic, and White) are being raised and taught that it does not matter how you look but what your character shows. They are being raised to be American, proud Americans not divisive in "choosing" a race/identity. If these standards are changed, our children will miss out on the true "Just" system that makes up the USA. We live in the greatest country of the world and diminishing/canceling history does not change it. When we are willing to learn from them, our past mistakes make us stronger but we can't learn if we don't know. Teach the ugly truth.

Please scrap these standards and revert back to the previous standards.

Sincerely,
Jose and Jennifer Zapien
Citizens, Rio Rancho, USA

"here are my comments. I have attached a marked-up copy to my email that I hope you can include in the record, but if not here is my Summary:

Begin remarks:

These standards contain history based on a negative view of our Nation. Here's an excerpt-example from the proposed U.S. Anchor History High School standards:

"Evaluating what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States;" So we don't have a "just" economic system in the U.S.?

The U.S. is and has been the standard of excellence for true Justice in the world, economically and otherwise. The U.S. Constitution, the greatest achievement of mankind, is derided by these historical revisions. This is the basis for my voluminous objections to these revised standards.

My overall recommendation: Scrap this and revert back to the previous Standards. If the standards are to be re-written, then the divisive and utterly non-productive ethnic/identity standards must be dropped. Negative assessments of this nation proclaimed as "matters of fact" must not be tolerated.

V/R

Rick Reynaud

[EXTERNAL] New History Framework

Tom K <tsking@bu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:42 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

2168 Ridgeview Circle
Santa Fe, NM 87505

November 12, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue
Room 121
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Re: New Social Studies Framework

The Department and its advisors are to be commended for the truthful and reasonable approach in the new state frameworks for the teaching of history. We must represent in a balanced and truthful manner what historically has happened in our nation, which deeds are worthy of honor, and what events should teach us how we have also often erred in our treatment of others. The framework provides ample perspectives to allow students to reflect upon and appreciate our communal heritage and inheritance in accord with their respective levels of maturity and understanding.

Thank you,

Sincerely,

Thomas S Kingston, PhD
Former Superintendent (Retired) of Schools
Chelsea and Belmont, Massachusetts
Retired Professor, Boston University

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment in Support of 6.29.11 NMAC

Alisa Diehl <alisa@nmpovertylaw.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:42 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Melissa Candelaria <melissa@nmpovertylaw.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon, my name is Alisa Diehl and along with my colleague, Melissa Candelaria, we are attorneys with the New Mexico Center on Law and Poverty and legal counsel for the Yazzie Plaintiffs in the Yazzie/Martinez lawsuit.

On behalf of the New Mexico Center on Law and Poverty, we thank and acknowledge our educators, local experts, and community leaders for their work to revise and update the social studies standards to accurately reflect the cultural diversity that school curriculum has either ignored, or that has perpetuated offensive stereotypes of our communities and families.

We urge PED to adopt the standards, and in so doing, take this important first step to address the Yazzie/Martinez decision and order.

Our students come from rich and diverse cultures, languages, and histories – more than three quarters of them are children of color and over 14 percent are English language learners. They deserve a gold standard education that provides an accurate reflection of who they are and prepares them to be successful, engaged, and productive citizens.

In the Yazzie/Martinez case, the Court held that the state violated the state constitution by failing to provide a sufficient and uniform public education that allows all students the opportunity to be college and career ready. The Court also found that the goal of an adequate education is one that prepares school children to be functioning members of the civic, cultural and economic aspects of our society.

In addition, the court emphasized the state's duty to provide a culturally and linguistically responsive education to students, and held that the state has failed to comply with the New Mexico Indian Education Act, the Hispanic Education Act, and the Bilingual Multicultural Education Act. According to the court, the state's failure to ground our education system in a multicultural framework violated the law and our students' right to a sufficient education.

Adoption of the revised social studies standards would enrich the K-12 curricula with diverse perspectives and accurate histories of New Mexico's families and communities, and begin to ensure that our students receive a culturally responsive education as required by our statutes and constitution.

Thank you for this opportunity to comment.

--

Alisa Diehl

Senior Education Attorney

NM Center on Law and Poverty

301 Edith Blvd NE

Albuquerque, NM 87102

(505) 255-2840, Ext. 128

[EXTERNAL] New PED social studies standards

Betsy Diaz <diazbetsy7@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Public Education Department Staff,

I worked with children and families from a variety of cultural backgrounds and poverty for most of my working career. In doing so, I found ways to expand opportunities for helping others in their classes or in the hospital to learn more about the various cultural practices and beliefs of each of us. Making room for that in a state's standard curriculum contributes to the social health of all adults and children concerned. It also supports the development of an appreciation for challenges people from different backgrounds encounter in their lives, laying a foundation for resiliency in their lives.

Such curricula need to be developmentally appropriate for students to be able to internalize the lessons learned and to practice skills of finding strengths in peers and adults around them. They can learn much when they are helped to learn about others interests, talents and their ways of handling problems. I found that there were many ways to weave these into existing curriculum and school experiences. As a teacher in kindergarten in a non-public school, I invited my students' parents in to teach us about their work. That included an Hispanic pharmacist, a couple who owned a florist's shop, a writer, a developmental pediatrician who described what a baby visiting the class was learning, a Native American medicine man, et cetera. Parents and children loved what they learned. One mother married to a Chinese man helped the class celebrate an amazing Chinese New Year, complete with 7 Happiness Fried Rice, a dragon dance, red packets with pennies and the chance to learn many interesting facts and words. These lessons were combined with lessons and practice in learning how to respect things that were different for us. We learned and practiced how to respect each other in the class.

Were there times when we discussed the times of oppression? Yes. We tried to make those experiences developmentally appropriate too. While sponsoring a Native American Kids group at a public school, Native American mothers helped to plan activities for the whole school in addition to creating Native American experiences for their students in an after school setting. One mother's son had made a video of his Navajo grandparents describing The Long Walk in their native language. We made that available to all 5th grade classes with this young high school student presenting the video to expand on the information in the subtitled video. For a few years at the school where I worked we arranged for a Native American chaplain at Menaul School to spend a day with me as a counselor, visiting with classes throughout the school to do presentations about preventing bullying. Buddy Monahan did that through Native American stories and discussion of incidents of prejudice he personally knew of.

The Social Worker and I also taught children basic skills of conversation and getting to know others as individuals to prevent and correct teasing and bullying. As children used these skills with us in classrooms, they were able to expand them to recess and bus settings. Gradually, a number of children used these skills in learning to interact with students with special needs in respectful, friendly, helpful ways, respecting their strengths.

We also took time to talk about the Holocaust when exhibits were in town, and what it meant for people to experience slavery and genocide. These lessons contained time for children to ask questions about why these situations occur. Around Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Day, we showed films of civil rights marches, and discussed how people of color were, and as with Native American people are treated unjustly. We also introduced our students to people in oppressed groups who were resilient and leaders. Our African American principal asked me to learn the African American anthem to sing in classes with her. We discussed restrictions of voting, for women, and other disenfranchised groups.

I think that all of these topics can be well taught to children, even in kindergarten as long as we design them to be developmentally appropriate. They must be taught with constructive social skills which many children coming to school have not yet sufficiently developed. They lack conversational skills, problem solving and conflict resolution skills, and imagination skills which make learning about lives of people different from their lives difficult. The Native American mothers and I held a wonderful multicultural assembly at the elementary school with Spanish/English classes performing, 5th grade girls doing a Maori Indian stick game, a grass dance done by one of our boys, and a Navajo girl in her regalia introducing herself by her clans and singing a song in Navajo. We also sponsored a Memorial Day assembly with children reading poetry of African American, Native American and Mexican writers, as well as an Anglo child reading "In Flanders Field". Community 1st responders, veterans and Pueblo tribal Honor runners who were veterans were honored at this event.

Class meetings, conflict resolution training, restorative justice experiences, and in my experience, making music together to learn self behavioral regulation in addition to teaching of manners, conversational and imagination skills also need to be part of this kind of curriculum. (I used American Orff Movement and Music activities - with no instruments to teach basic classroom behavioral skills for a number of years in grades K-3.) Without self regulation and basic constructive social skills, it is hard for children raised with technology and violent media to develop the brain skills which promote understanding of others and compassion.

Sincerely, Betsy Diaz Ph.D/Counseling Psychology, Retired teacher, counselor, and many other professional work with children

[EXTERNAL] NM PED Proposed Rule for Social Studies Standards

Julie Einerson <einerson@q.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see my attached comments regarding NM PED Proposed Rule for Social Studies Standards.

Thank you.

Julie Einerson

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed Social Studies standards. Overall I think the proposed standards look more like specific curriculum requirements instead of overarching standards. The standards appear to me to be extremely political in nature. New Mexico is already dead last in education in the entire country adding complexity of the very political “standards” instead of focusing on the basics of education, reading, writing and math. Get those right instead of worrying about diversity and equity. I am opposed to the changes to the New Mexico Social Studies Standards.

I believe there needs to be an extension of the public comment period on these standards to allow more parents and teachers the opportunity to comment.

I have concerns about the items below.

1.12. Examine and identify cultural differences within a community.

We should not be focusing on differences and teaching our children to focus on differences, but instead on what we have in common, what brings us together. We live in a great Country where people have come from all over the world to come together with a common purpose to become citizens of the United States of America. We should be teaching our children about the great history we have as citizens of this Country. Humans naturally recognize differences; they don't need to be taught to focus on those differences. Instead, why not focus on how we all should treat each other with respect and caring no matter what our differences.

5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.

Inequity? This Country was not founded by perfect people, they made mistakes, they adjusted and up until 2008 we had made enormous strides to advance our common purpose as Americans. Why don't you teach the children instead that although our Founders were not perfect, they were great men and women who established a Country based on ALL men (used as a generic term to include all people) are created EQUAL. Never in history has a government been established with EQUALITY for ALL being the primary tenant until the founding of the UNITED States of America. The conflicts today are caused by a small number of groups who are bent on separating us as citizens of this GREAT Country into tribes instead of people with a common purpose to improve our Nation and then help those throughout the world who need our help. This divisive tactic has been used throughout history in any country where a tyrannical form of government took over. Divide and conquer, and through these standards YOU are trying to be part of that. Look at history, teach our children about history. What happened in Russia, what happened in Germany, what happened in China? Tens of millions of people lost their lives at the hands of tyrannical governments & rulers who used the divisiveness of “inequity” to pull a people apart and conquer them from within. Wake up before it's too late for us and teach our children what really happened in those countries and how these governments, unlike ours, until recently, oppress the people to control them.

7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.

Give me a break. Instead of instilling a victim mindset, “Oh woe is me, I've had such a rough life.” Why don't you focus instead on great people from New Mexico who overcame all odds to succeed? Give the children examples of real New Mexican heroes who succeeded. Teach them that they can be anything they want to be in this Great Nation, that's what makes America great. No matter how bad your circumstances are you can succeed and do anything. Get rid of this altogether!

8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.

Again, this is another way to be divisive and to separate us into tribes. Replace it with "Brainstorm what do we have in common as New Mexicans and as citizens of the U.S. What role can I play to improve my State and Country. Remember "divide and conquer" that isn't what we want our children to be.

8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.

Why not instead teach the children about all the people who were instrumental in freeing the slaves, the Christian Abolitionists, the people who ran the Underground Railroad to the Union soldiers who gave their lives to free people from slavery to the President who ultimately gave his life to free people from slavery. All races and religions came together with a common purpose to free fellow citizens from slavery. Not divided, but UNITED.

9-12.Civ.15. Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time.

The Constitution of the United States and the Bill of Rights are brilliant timeless works that assure the citizens of this great Country retain our rights as individuals protecting us from a tyrannical government run by men who change with the wind. Instead look at what is the Constitution and go through it in depth and discuss why a people need to be protected from a centralized government.

9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality

Unbelievable! A fraction of all police officers may have issues, the majority are brave men and women who lay their lives on the line every day and sacrifice to protect citizens.

This should be replaced by Explore how Police officers risk their lives daily to protect citizens from lawless criminals. This specifically needs to be removed because it forces the teaching that the police are bad instead of the heroes they are.

9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.

This is a direct assault on our 2nd Amendment rights to keep and bear arms which was specifically put in place for the citizenry to be able to protect itself from a tyrannical government. In every case when guns were taken from the citizenry of a country the people were soon after taken over by a tyrannical communist regime.

Why not instead examine what changes in education in schools may have led to increases in violence in America, what other outside societal changes, i.e. changes in movies', TV content, etc.; the advent of violent gaming, the breakdown in the family; the removal of God from the schools, etc. It is not the law-abiding citizens who are participating in violence, it is the criminals.

9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.

9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups

Both of these are another method of teaching divisiveness instead of what unites us.

9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.

I completely disagree with the premise that the United States has systemic inequity.

Thank you.
Julie Einerson
P.O. Box 1677
Tijeras, NM 87059

[EXTERNAL] proposed PED Social Studies Curriculum changes

Carol Ingersoll <ingersollcarol@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

My husband and I are strongly opposed to the proposed changes in the state standards for the social studies curriculum in the public schools. We want the children of New Mexico to be responsible adults who respect the differences of all cultures in our state and country and to value the unique democracy that our nation was founded on. While the PED states that CRT is not reflected or included in the proposed changes, that does not appear to be true. The changes strongly represent a CRT approach to social issues and historical events. Please continue working on the proposed changes in order that our children will not be presented social and historical information as viewed through a clearly progressive ideological lens. The entire democratic system of America is founded on equal rights and opportunities for all individuals, and when history and social learning is presented through the ideological lens of a political position which utilizes progressive buzz words and ideology, our children, our state, and our nation are all cheated. New Mexico can do so much better. Our educational standing record is abhorrent, and these proposed standards will fail to raise our children to a higher educational level. Please leave political ideology out of our schools and encourage all of our children, regardless of history, race, or gender, to be successful and productive members of a democratic society which values individual accomplishment and national pride.

Sincerely,

Carol Ingersoll

[EXTERNAL] Teaching racism to our children

Marie Strickler <mstrick005@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The best way to create animosity among people is to point out their differences and harp on past injury. This is precisely what CRT and other such programs do.

I am very much opposed to any curriculum that promotes resentment vs fellowship. "United we stand,divided we fall". Our children must see themselves first as Americans, no matter their skin tone, or how they got here. We are one nation made up of many races and cultures, that is our unique strength!

"E Pluribus Unum" (Out of many, one)

Lets help our children appreciate what unites not what divides.

Marie Strickler

Farmington resident

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the NM Public Education proposed Social Studies standard nbartlit@aol.com <nbartlit@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: nbartlit@aol.com <nbartlit@aol.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Rule.feedback@state.nm.us

November 12, 2021

I have been listening to the NM Public Education Public Education's hearing today on Zoom. I appreciate the opportunity to listen, learn the points of view, and also view again the proposed standards. My name is Nancy R. Bartlit. I have lived in Los Alamos, NM since 1962, birthed and raised two children who both attended Los Alamos schools, UNM, and live in Albuquerque. They have given us three grandchildren, one of whom is a senior in the engineering department.

I speak in favor of revising the Social Studies standards since so many events have taken place since they were adopted. But, I do believe that some items have been overlooked in the draft of the proposed standards. I believe the history covering more ethnic history to complete the stories of New Mexico's heritage are important. Let me describe a few:

As an author of a book on New Mexico's role in the Pacific Theater during World War II, and a lecturer on the subject for 16 years under the umbrella of the NM Humanities County and the Historical Society of NM, I am most familiar with the role of New Mexico's heroes during that War. The groups I talk about are persons whose ethnicity and different languages were important to the success of the War. These include the Hispanics who were in the NM National Guard who were sent to protect the Philippines (and kept the Japanese from taking Australia because of their valor, but paid the price of 3.5 years of being Japanese prisoners of war with only half the men coming home). These stories include the Navajo U.S. Marines who developed a code within a code which stopped the Japanese from learning of U.S. military troop movements and who had to keep their sacrifice and valor secret for years after the War was won. And the scientists and U.S. military who were sent to Los Alamos and other parts of New Mexico to work on the atomic weapons to try end the war in Europe, and then the war in Asia. The Jewish scientists or those with Jewish wives and sent to Los Alamos were essential to the development of the nuclear success in time to save the lives of a planned, but cancelled, new invasion of Japan.

And, I did early research on the men of Japanese descent who were sent to Santa Fe Internment Camp – 4,555 – within the years 1942-1946 (yes, 1946!) which I have taught in NM schools along with the other stories listed above. I have the suitcase of one survivor who just passed away last month at 101. The new standards downplay the efforts of New Mexico's role to end WWII, and the emphasis of the stories mentioned above in the present Social Studies standards which the legislature passed a motion to be taught to NM students. When I interviewed veterans of WWII, especially the men on the Bataan Death March, they asked me to keep their stories alive and teach them to the next generations. I am doing that as I prepare to upgrade my book, written with Professor Everett M. Rogers, my UNM professor for my Masters' Thesis in International Communication. I earned a BA from Smith College in History and taught in Japanese schools for two years 13-15 after the end of the War.

I have served as the President and VP of the Los Alamos Historical Society and as the Chairman of the Los Alamos County Council. For ten years I worked toward Los Alamos being selected by the U.S. Dept. Of Interior to become a Manhattan Project Headquarters in order for our history to be preserved for future generations to understand what happened in the middle of the 20th century. The town now has a history museum, science museum, and National Park Service center to tell the story, and visitors keep coming. There is much material to use for study.

The new proposed standards do not also suggest a study of the Japanese culture (as is America and German culture) which is so important for understanding WWII and what happened in Imperial Japan, with as strong handhold on the society as the Nazis in Germany. The lasting effects of Japanese cruelty in Asia has not been forgotten in contemporary Asia. It is a shock after 80 years of Japan's attack, not only on Pearl Harbor, but islands all around the Pacific.

I try to explain the events abroad as I try to explain what happened to the Japanese American community during WWII. My public talks are often full or even have standing room. There is so much interest of what happened in NM. It is important for the social studies program continue to give WWII and its aftermath is still necessary.

I do believe in the new standards teaching critical thinking and how to research primary sources, and other techniques, with a chance to discuss and debate these historic events.

One last point. I hope that Roberts Rules of Order are taught in all our schools. I have used Parliamentary procedure for my leadership roles. I learned them initially in Junior High student council and am now a member of the Santa Fe Parliamentary Unit. Roberts Rules are the basis of how our democracy works, protecting the voice of the minority, but learning how the majority can come to a conclusion best for the community. To parle came from our French heritage and brought from our English and Scottish founders when they came to America. Let's teach these guidelines and those from our Native American heritage. So rich a heritage.

Thank you for listening to my views,

Nancy R. Bartlit
113 Monte Rey Drive North
Los Alamos, NM 87547
505-672-9792 home/office

Co-Author with former UNM Professor Everett M. Rogers, "Silent Voices of WWII: When Sons of the Land of Enchantment Met Sons of the Land of the Rising Sun," Sunstone Press: Santa Fe, 2005. Approved by the NM Board of Education as a supplemental text for high school. Now in revision with Pajarito Press LLC.

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Isaac Lopez <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Isaac Lopez
3318 Luna Drive
Las Vegas, NM 87701-9733

[EXTERNAL] Proposed change in Social Studies standards

C D Goetz <cuttercattle@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a product of the public school system in New Mexico. We have got along well without studies that run down our shared culture in New Mexico or the United States.

Schools should be in the business of teaching reading, writing and arithmetic.

Schools have no business dividing students by social, economic or gender class.

No change is necessary. Butt out.

Sincerely,

Charles D. Goetz

15287 Highway 187

Williamsburg, NM 87942

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Commentary on NM PED Social Studies Standards

WALD, MARISSA <mwald@cnm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern at the NM PED,

I submit the following comments as a Full-Time faculty member at Central New Mexico Community College teaching geography. I hold a PhD in Geography from the University of Arizona and have been teaching geographic concepts since 2007. (I am also the parent of two elementary-aged children and I make these comments with them and all children in mind.)

I want to register my strong SUPPORT for the new NM PED standards for social studies. First, I see a concerted effort in the standards throughout the K-12 education to prepare students to effectively evaluate information for bias and truly understand how inquiry and evidence works. We are facing a national crisis in this regard, and I am proud to support standards that teaches students to be informed consumers of information and data.

Second, I am proud to see that spatial analysis is embedded in the K-12 social studies curriculum, which adds rigor, quantitative analysis and job-ready skills into the curriculum. Geographic information and other spatial data use is a growing field for which we need to prepare students with geographic habits of mind. With dangerous misinformation, like "flat earth theory" circulating, the best way to educate our kids spatially is to have them engage with maps and globes from an early age.

And third, regarding the more contentious issues that many of the individuals have raised in this meeting, whether you like it or not, these issues of race, sexual orientation (which are not addressed until high school), and ethnic identity are part of living in this country. You can put your head in the sand, and pretend that they don't impact you, but instead I'd rather live in a state where students engage with complex issues in the context of a classroom, where they can learn from others, try on new ideas, investigate different facets of those ideas, work out the evidence. Let's not send our students into the world (or into my classroom in higher education) without any engagement with the issues that matter. Let them be exposed to evidence and give them the confidence to come to their own understanding. That's what these standards do.

I'm happy to support them.

Sincerely,
Marissa T. Isaak Wald

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies proposed standards, public input

Linda Hudson <lindahudson703@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon, I am attending the zoom session but you may not get to me to hear my views before 5:00:

I am Linda Hudson a newly elected School Board member to the Moriarty Edgewood School District. I am a 74 yo mother and grandmother who has volunteered in after school Bible Club's in the MESD for over 20 years.

I too am concerned with the direction PED is taking our Public education and I believe it is government over reach not in the best interest of New Mexico's children seeking a public education. This curriculum is biased and politically driven. It also goes against parental authority and usurps it by PED implementing CRT, LGBTQ, transgender identity etc into their K-12 children's education. Public school should educate and prepare our children for a future of their choice whether their college bound or not with the ability, and skills to excel in their life paths choice. Let's educate and not indoctrinate our children, teaching them to think for themselves and not be told what to think.

I also disagree with the mask mandating of children in school and eliminating parents being able to enter their child's school. Some of our schools actually look and operate like a prison.

I am also very concerned about your rule standard regarding the possibility of school board suspension(s).

Thank you for this opportunity to express my position on these proposed standards.

As a final comment, as a woman of faith I am going to share a scripture from the Bible regarding the extreme importance God places on His children. Matthew 18:6 "but whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to stumble, it is better for him that a heavy millstone be hung around his neck, and that he be drowned in the depth of the sea."

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Lorraine Lowther <lorraine.lowther@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

NMPED,

My name is Lorraine Lowther, and I am the mother of three children that will be impacted by these proposed changes within the Las Cruces School District.

I oppose the proposed standards as written. Please extend the time to discuss some of the divisive curriculum, expand the personal finance aspect, and omit the sex education aspects of the curriculum.

Thank you,

[EXTERNAL] Support for updated social studies standards

Songtree Pioche <songtreep@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

Good afternoon. My name is Songtree Pioche. I am Taos Pueblo and Oglala Lakota. I am zooming in from San Juan County, the original lands of the Diné. I am the Vice Chair of the Native American Democratic Caucus of New Mexico, Vice Chair of the Democratic Party of NM, and Chairwoman of the Aztec Indian Education Committee.

I am a mother of 3 children (2 special needs) currently in and graduated from the NM public school system. Ethnic and cultural Identity studies empowers our students to understand their cultural core values and issues that affect our Indigenous communities. With this true understanding students will be inspired to civic engagement efforts of meaningful change. I want to express my praise and gratitude to all those involved in this effort to update the social studies standards.

I am in full support of this effort and would like to see it approved and adopted. Any delays are unacceptable and against a court mandate.

Respectfully,
Songtree Pioche
Vice Chair-Native American Democratic Caucus of NM
Vice Chair- Democratic Party of San Juan County
Chairwoman-Aztec Indian Education Committee

[EXTERNAL] Support for new proposed standards for social studies

Holly Mata <mata.holly@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To our NM Public Education Department:

I am writing to share my strong support for the new proposed standards for social studies. As a public health specialist and educator, I am grateful for the time and attention that have gone into making sure our curricula are culturally and linguistically relevant and reflect the diversity of our state and nation.

I join with many of my colleagues throughout the state in sharing my appreciation that the new standards do the following:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

As a grandparent, a teacher, and a community member, I appreciate the opportunity to provide input and I thank you for all you do.

Respectfully,

Holly

--

Holly Mata, PhD, MCHES, CPH
Alamogordo, NM
575-551-1458

[EXTERNAL] Student Comment on Social Studies

KRockett <krockettfitness@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the policy division of NMPED

My name is Jose Lopez and I am a student and Artesia Junior High School. I am a child that lives in same-sex partnership household. My parents are both Hispanic.

I am deeply in very concerned about the social studies standards as they are proposed.

I want to learn about World War II and another historical events and how they have impacted the world I live.

The list of standards that I strongly disagree with is extensive, here are a few of the standards from my list but this list is not conclusive, and only represents a small selection.

9-12.US.130 - examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQ+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes.

- I do not wish to learn about the LGBTQIA+ community as a subject within my schools. Discussions about these relationships and this movement are topics that are discussed with my mother inside my home.

9-12.EIC.22 - evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st-century American society.

- This standard reads like it would cause my peers to see my racial identity first. And not the person I am.

9-12.US.53 - identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.

- Why does this have to be taught in my class? Gender and sexuality isn't something I want to study in school

I think with my statement by saying this, the standards have me worried I believe it may cause issues with my peers did you not understand or agree with me. I find the diversity and division to be troublesome.

As a student that would be taught these standards, all I wish for New Mexico public schools is to make changes to the standards that reflect the history of our world and society and not social political sexual and gender priorities.

Thank you for letting me comment,
Jose Lopez
Student

[EXTERNAL] In support of the new Social Studies Standards as written Penelope Loyd Sment <penelopesound@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello! My name is Penelope Loyd Sment and I am a freshman in high school in Albuquerque Public Schools.

As a student, and someone who is actively being affected and taught by these standards I want to say I am glad to see the standards amended- it is nice to see us take a much needed step forward.

My fellow students and I deserve an education based in truth.

I don't want imperfections and mistakes to be hidden from us. I want to face the facts about discrimination and our sometimes ugly history bravely and understand the context in the world I live in so that we can make meaningful change in the world.

From what I heard on the PED's Proposed Social Studies Standards Public Hearing zoom call, there are a lot of people worried about their white kids feeling ashamed and hating themselves because the standards finally teach the truth about systemic racism in America.

However, as a young white woman I look forward to learning the real history of systemic racism and how we got to where we are now, in order to help right our historical wrongs.

Furthermore, I think, as students in the US, we can at least expect one thing- to learn actual facts.

We should be able to rely on our schools to help us learn real history because we all know the history in the books was written by the white victors. Right now, it seems that there are several groups of people of color who didn't get to take part in that story of history and I think I would like to hear their stories too. I don't appreciate anyone telling me that I can only hear one side of history.

If you're going to listen to anyone, it should be the students. Several of my friends and peers strongly agree with what I am saying now.

We don't want history to be censored and white washed. And we know that racism, homophobia, other discrimination, and unjust practices within our system exist so it's not fair for our schools, who we depend on to teach the truth and history based on facts, don't.

I want to say thank you for the work you do and for having the motivation to make some much needed improvements to our state education standards. Thank you so much for listening to me and I hope you have a lovely day.

--

Penelope Loyd Sment

penelopesound@gmail.com

(505)-506-9986

Inevitable Epiphany Blog (penelopesound.com)

Pronouns: She/Her/Hers

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Stephanie Wenner <stephaniewenner@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:55 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED,

As a parent of New Mexico students (elementary and middle school aged), I am writing to voice my concerns about the proposed update of the Social Studies curriculum in New Mexico. Throughout the proposal, the language used suggests principles of Marxism and Critical Race Theory are a priority. This language and these thoughts have no room in our schools and no room in our country.

Instead of focusing on "Equality" for all as an endpoint, we should be encouraging our students to do their best work no matter what. The emphasis should be placed on our unity as Americans with opportunity for economic and power advancement based on education, hard work and family structures that support one another. Why are so many people migrating from their homelands and trying to get into our country? It is because America is the land of opportunity and not because it is a country filled with hatred, racism and oppression. The great Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. famously stated that we should not judge anyone by the color of their skin but by the content of their character. In our family, we teach our children that it doesn't matter what your skin looks like, but that what you do with the skin that God gave you, does matter. THIS is what the children of our state should be taught.

I hope and pray that you will consider all sides before choosing a curriculum that will affect so many.

Thank you,

Stephanie Wenner

[EXTERNAL] In favor of proposed SS Standards

Barbara Lazar <barblazar@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:55 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for your commitment and work at creating learning standards that provide students with a fuller and more inclusive world view and global perspective.

I would like to see more and specific reference to teaching the Holocaust in 6-12.

Thank you for the opportunity to give positive support. I hope these go through and are implemented.

Barb Lazar

Middle school Humanities teacher and librarian

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed Social Science Standards

Harold Delaney <haroldddelaney@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:56 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

41 Eastridge Road
Edgewood, NM 87015
November 12, 2021

Dear staff of the New Mexico Public Education Department,

I am writing to offer comments on the proposed new Social Studies Standards.

I am concerned that the proposed standards, instead of promoting civic competence by in-depth study of the history, rationale and strengths of American democracy, will focus much more on themes of oppression and victimization. This is suggested by the choice of the “major historical themes” listed in the very first “guiding principle” of the new curriculum. Primacy is given to ideas of “power, class conflict, struggle, geo political impact, social justice, equity and diversity.” Although the term “critical race theory” does not appear in the document, six of these seven ideas (all except “geo political impact”) are indeed key components of critical theory.

I note in my more detailed comments in the attached document numerous other places in the proposed standards where the ideas of oppression and victimization are highlighted (please see my 30 comments on specific sections of the proposed Social Studies Standards in the attachment to this email). While shortcomings of American history should be acknowledged, much more time should be devoted to communicating the strengths and philosophy underlying our system of government and the ways in which we have benefitted from the heritage of Western civilization. Instead of acknowledging the benefits of the Anglo or European heritage of the United States of America, the guiding principles refer to the “Eurocentric cultural script” only to assure readers that the new social studies curriculum will ensure divergence from such an approach. The tools that are stressed in the guiding principles are tools that get at “authentic stories” of “power and oppression.” This focus again is directly linked to critical theory and will, I believe, tend to promote a mindset of being a victim of oppression among New Mexican students. Rather than appreciating the strengths and blessings of the past, the last two guiding principles stress a “future focused application.” I believe instead the focus of a social studies curriculum (which the National Council of Social Studies says should draw on disciplines such as anthropology, archaeology, history, religion and law) should be on the past rather than the future.

Other major concerns with the proposed new Social Studies Standards are:

- 1) that Western civilization is not given explicit priority over Eastern civilization (while I realize that in the past the curriculum may have focused on Western civilization to the total exclusion of other cultures, I believe it is still important that students primarily learn the heritage of Western civilization and only secondarily be introduced to other major world civilizations);
- 2) that Western religion is introduced only tangentially and somewhat negatively, e.g. during the colonial period the role of religion is suggested to be limiting gender roles (Performance Standard 8.49, p. 69).

The treatment of religion is well illustrated by the Performance Standards relating to the period of 600 CE to 1300 CE. Rather than discussing the many strengths of this era, the focus is on “conflict, oppression, human rights violations, and genocide” in Medieval times (Performance Standard 6.52, p. 50). There is no mention of the tremendous heritage of this era such as the Thomistic synthesis which gave rise to universities in the West, or the natural law tradition that underlay much of the development of the laws in England and the United States. Indeed, the only mention of the word “Christian” or “Jew” in the entire document is in the context of the encounters of these groups with Muslims between 600 and 1300. There is no discussion of the ways in which the Judeo-Christian heritage shaped laws, governmental structures, or civil society generally in American history.

A final concern is the presumption throughout that a child’s identity is primarily a matter of the autonomous choice of the individual child (e.g., “how they want to present themselves to the world” as in Performance Standard 6.16, p. 45). The possibility of an intrinsic or transcendent basis for defining one’s identity is nowhere mentioned, even though that is the perspective of the religious traditions that profoundly shaped the lives and identities of many if not most Americans throughout the history of our country.

I urge the Public Education Department to reject the new Social Studies Standards as currently proposed. As recommended by an editorial in the Albuquerque Journal yesterday (November 11, 2021, page A12), substantial revisions incorporating changes recommended by the public are needed before the Social Studies Standards should be considered for adoption.

Sincerely yours,

Harold Delaney, Ph.D.

Emeritus Professor of Psychology
University of New Mexico

Attached: Delaney comments on proposed Social Studies Standards

New Mexico Social Studies Standards

Table of Contents

Introduction	8
Kindergarten	14
Inquiry	14
Theme 1: Roles and Responsibilities	14
Theme 2: Myself and My Community	15
Theme 3: Needs and Wants	15
Theme 4: Spaces and Places	16
Theme 5: Social identity	16
First Grade	18
Inquiry	18
Theme 1: Living, Learning and Working Together	18
Theme 2: Cultures Within Our Communities	19
Theme 3: Making Choices	20
Theme 4: Interactions with Our Physical Environment	20
Theme 5: Multiple Identities	21
Second Grade	23
Inquiry	23
Theme 1: We the People	23
Theme 1: We the People (Continued)	24
Theme 2: Looking in Our Past	24

Theme 3: What We Make and Use	25
Theme 4: Cultures and Environment	25
Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions	26
Third Grade	28
Inquiry	28
Theme 1: Citizenship	28
Theme 1: Citizenship (Continued)	29
Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration	29
Theme 3: Global Issues and Events	30
Theme 4: Our Changing World	30
Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity	31
Fourth Grade	33
Inquiry	33
Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present	33
Theme 2: Migration and Settlement in New Mexico	34
Theme 3: New Mexico Trade and Industry	35
Theme 4: Resources and Land Use in New Mexico	35
Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity	36
Fifth Grade	38
Inquiry	38
Theme 1: Development and Establishment of U.S. Government	39
Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US	39
Theme 3: Human Rights and Economic Development	40
Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment	41
Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces	41

Sixth Grade	44
Inquiry	44
Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	45
Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures	46
Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations	47
Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations (Continued)	48
Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies	48
Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks	49
Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE–1300 CE	50
Seventh Grade	52
Inquiry	52
Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico	53
Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico (Continued)	54
Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE)	54
Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE)	55
Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE)	56
Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE)	58
Theme 6: The Mexican Period (1821 CE – 1850 CE)	59
Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE)	60
Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE)	61
Eighth Grade	64
6-8 Inquiry	64
Theme 1: Geography & Indigenous Peoples of North America	66
Theme 2: Age of Exploration and Exploitation (c. 1400 CE – c. 1500 CE)	67
Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE)	67

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE)	68
Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE – 1815 CE)	70
Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE – 1850 CE)	71
Theme 7: Sectionalism (1830 CE – 1860 CE)	72
Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE)	72
Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE)	73
Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE)	74
HS Civics	77
Inquiry	77
High School Civics	78
High School Civics (Continued)	79
HS Economics	81
Inquiry	81
High School Economics	82
HS Geography	85
Inquiry	85
High School Geography	86
High School Geography (Continued)	87
HS New Mexico History	89
Inquiry	89
Theme 1: Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo	90
Theme 2: New Mexico’s Territorial Period	91
Theme 3: Statehood and Functions of State/Tribal Governments	92
Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars)	92
Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars) (Continued)	93

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War	93
Theme 6: Civil Rights	95
Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico	95
Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico (Continued)	96
Theme 8: Resource Management and Mineral Resources in New Mexico	96
HS U.S. History.....	98
Inquiry	98
Theme 1: U.S. Origins and Origin Stories	99
Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution	100
Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876	100
Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865	102
Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877	103
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920	104
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920 (Continued)	104
Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920	105
Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I	105
Theme 9: Conflicts and Transitions, 1920–1929	106
Theme 10: Great Depression and The New Deal, 1929–1941	107
Theme 11: World War II	107
Theme 11: World War II (Continued)	108
Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975	108
Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975 (Continued)	109
Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements	109
Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements (Continued)	110

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008	110
Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008 (Continued)	111
Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present	111
Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present (Continued)	112
HS World History	114
Sample Topics by Time Period	114
Sample Themes by Time Period	114
Inquiry	116
High School World History	117
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	121
Inquiry	121
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	122

Introduction

Social studies is the integrated study of the social sciences and humanities to promote civic competence. Within the school program, social studies provides coordinated, systematic study drawing upon such disciplines as anthropology, archaeology, economics, geography, history, law, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, and sociology, as well as appropriate content from the humanities, mathematics, and natural sciences. The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people develop the ability to make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world.

-Definition of Social Studies (National Council for the Social Studies)

“Democratic societies rely on high-quality social studies instruction, cultivating students who delve deeper into issues and problems that vex humankind” (Hatti, Stern, Fisher & Frey, 2020). A rigorous social studies education is necessary to prepare students for success in the 21st century and is critical for the health of our democracy. Foundational to a rigorous social studies education is a set of high-quality social studies standards.

However, in order for the standards to best be implemented, each district in the state must engage students in a rigorous and relevant K-12 social studies program. It will also require an articulated district curriculum which connects students to the social world through informed instructional experiences led by teachers who are committed to active civic participation. This represents a bold step toward a vision of social studies for all of New Mexico’s students.

Additional information can be found at <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/instructional-materials/new-mexico-content-standards/>.

Overview of the Standards

New Mexico social studies standards, with anchor standards and performance standards, are mandated for students in grades K-12. The social studies standards include six strands: (1) civics and government, (2) economics, (3) geography, (4) history, (5) ethnic, cultural and identity studies, and (6) inquiry. The strands are organized by anchor standard. Anchor standards are the core ideas, at the heart of a discipline, to be implemented across a K-12 social studies program. Anchor standards establish the universal vision that defines what students should understand and be able to do, with increasing complexity as described in the performance indicators, each school year. Students get multiple opportunities to engage with anchor standards via the grade-level performance indicators. Anchor standards remain the same through all grades and courses. Anchor standards 1 through 21 are discipline-based, and anchor standards 22-26 are inquiry-based. Anchor standards are then unpacked via performance indicators. Performance indicators are specific grade-appropriate content to be mastered by the end of a specific grade. They are concise, written descriptions of what students are expected to know and be able to do at a specific stage of their education. They emphasize the essential knowledge and skills in each discipline.

Each set of grade level standards begins with a set of inquiry standards. The inquiry standards define key skills within social studies. These standards are meant to be used in concert with the content standards throughout the course of study, whenever appropriate. How these standards are integrated into the curriculum is a school and classroom decision.

These standards were developed with the following guiding principles in mind:

- Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo political impact, social justice, equity and diversity through content standards designed to teach these topics in developmentally appropriate ways;
- Developing student agency and leadership, employability skills, critical thinking applied to histories, stories and the long-term impact of political decisions;
- Ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives;
- Identifying tools to share authentic stories including the study of relationship between power and oppressor;
- Supporting the development of a strong critical historical consciousness representative of many perspectives while allowing students to maintain his/her/their own cultural integrity while learning about others;
- Empowering students to develop pride in his/her/their identity, history, culture, region by incorporating a community based approach while preparing students to be a part of a global environment;
- Utilizing historical events from a future focused orientation;
- Developing a future focused orientation that allows students to be critical thinkers in considering historical context in mending, healing, and transforming future interactions.

How to Read the Standards

Color Coding of the Standards

The standards are color-coded to allow for quick identification of the inquiry/content area of the standard.

Civics (Blue)	Economics (Yellow)	Geography (Green)	History (Purple)	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies (Orange)	Inquiry (Red)
-----------------------------	----------------------------------	---------------------------------	--------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------

How to Read the Document

Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc). 7.15. Describe the relationships of tribal, state, and local governments with the national government under the federal system (tribal sovereignty, state constitutions, 3-branches of government, checks and balances, legislative process, etc).
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.16. Explain how tribal, state, and local government agencies work to sustain resources in New Mexico. 7.17. Discuss New Mexico's economic limitations, barriers to development, and successes. 7.18. Examine the pros and cons of economic development in New Mexico.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.19. Construct maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources. 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. 7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics. 7.22. Use paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.23. Describe factors affecting location of human activities, including land-use patterns for local, regional, and state communities. 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted.

The K-8 standards and some high school standards are organized by theme.

The performance standard identifies what students should know and be able to do.

The standards are organized around anchor standards. Anchor standards outline key ideas within the social studies discipline.

Anchor Standards

The standards document is organized using a set of anchor standards. The purpose of anchor standards is two-fold. 1) They highlight key disciplinary concepts and ideas within social studies and 2) Create cohesiveness within the document by showing learning progressions from kindergarten to high school aligned to a set of anchor standards.

Civics	Economics	Geography	History	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	Inquiry
Anchor Standard 1 Civic and Political Institutions	Anchor Standard 5 Economic Decision Making	Anchor Standard 10 Geographic Representations and Reasoning	Anchor Standard 14 Historical Change, Continuity, Context and Reconciliation	Anchor Standard 19 Diversity and Identity	Anchor Standard 22 Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions
Anchor Standard 2 Processes, Rules and Laws	Anchor Standard 6 Incentives and Choices	Anchor Standard 11 Location, Place and Region	Anchor Standard 15 Cause and Consequence	Anchor Standard 20 Identity in History	Anchor Standard 23 Gather and Evaluate Sources
Anchor Standard 3 Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	Anchor Standard 7 Economic Systems and Models	Anchor Standard 12 Movement, Population and Systems	Anchor Standard 16 Historical Thinking	Anchor Standard 21 Community Equity Building	Anchor Standard 24 Develop Claims
Anchor Standard 4 Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	Anchor Standard 8 Money and Markets	Anchor Standard 13 Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	Anchor Standard 17 Critical Consciousness and Perspectives		Anchor Standard 25 Communicate and Critique Conclusions
	Anchor Standard 9 Global Economy		Anchor Standard 18 Power Dynamics, Leadership and Agency		Anchor Standard 26 Take Informed Action

Kindergarten

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.1. Recognize a compelling question. ● K.2. Identify the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.3. Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.4. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● K.5. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Theme 1: Roles and Responsibilities
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.6. Communicate the purpose of rules. ● K.7. Explain how the rules help us work together.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.8. Identify the consequences of following and not following rules. ● K.9. Identify authority figures and describe their roles.

Theme 2: Myself and My Community

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● K.10. Identify the local, state, and national symbols (e.g., flag, bird, song)
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● K.11. Compare traditions found in communities over time.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● K.12. Demonstrate an awareness of community leaders (teacher, principal, Mayor, Tribal Leaders)
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● K.13. Sequence important events in your life.● K.14. Identify how individuals are similar and different.

Theme 3: Needs and Wants

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● K.15. Distinguish between a need (basic needs like food, clothing, and shelter) and a want.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● K.16. Identify examples of goods and services.● K.17. Explain what scarcity is and how scarcity affects the accessibility of goods and services.

Theme 4: Spaces and Places

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.18. Create maps of familiar areas, such as the classroom, school and community.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.19. Recognize and identify signs and symbols around their town and community and indicate location of places, people and things. ● K.20. Identify the differences and similarities between a globe and a map. Explain the purpose of a map and/or globe.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.21. Explain why and how people move from place to place within a community.

Theme 5: Social identity

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.  ● K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not. ● K.24. Identify how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things. ● K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.

First Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 1.1. Explain why a compelling question is important. ● 1.2. Generate supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 1.3. Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 1.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 1.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● 1.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Theme 1: Living, Learning and Working Together
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 1.7. Explain and provide examples of how people play important roles in society.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.8. Investigate how people work together to accomplish a common task and how this benefits and challenges people when working together.
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 2: Cultures Within Our Communities

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.9. Compare life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.10. Compare fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past. 1.11. Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among past, present, and future using family, school, or community events.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.12. Examine and identify cultural differences within a community.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.13. Investigate significant events, people, and observances in history, and discuss their effects on local and national communities.

Theme 3: Making Choices

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:
Therefore, the student is able to:

Economics 6. Incentives and Choices

- 1.14. Examine choices that families make due to scarcity, and identify costs associated with these choices

Economics 8. Money and Markets

- 1.15. Identify examples of a producer and a consumer.
- 1.16. Examine how earning money through work is related to the purchase of goods and services.
- 1.17. Examine decisions that people make about spending and saving money

Theme 4: Interactions with Our Physical Environment

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:
Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 1.18. Create geographic representations to identify the location of familiar places and demonstrate how these representations can help us navigate from one place to the next, provide directions, or trace important routes.
- 1.19. Identify the common symbols used on maps for man-made structures and physical features.
- 1.20. Use a variety of maps to locate specific places, and identify major landforms, bodies of water, and other places of significance around the United States.

Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region

- 1.21. Explain how man-made structures are all examples of how people modify the physical environment to meet needs and wants.

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 1.22. Explain how people interact with their physical environment in ways that may have a positive or a negative effect on natural resources.

Theme 5: Multiple Identities

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity

- 1.23. Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways.
- 1.24. Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.

Second Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.1. Explain why a compelling question is important. ● 2.2. Generate supporting questions across the social studies disciplines related to compelling questions.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.3. Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● 2.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Theme 1: We the People
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.7. Evaluate how American society has changed through rules and laws. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.8. Understand the purposes and structures of government (tribal, local, state, national government)
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.9. Assess how the contributions of diverse individuals' have helped develop our national identity.  ● 2.10. Examine and compare the American democratic principles to neighboring countries.

Theme 1: We the People (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life

- 2.11. Examine and understand the qualities of good leadership.

Theme 2: Looking in Our Past

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 2.12. Describe events in North America that illustrate how people from diverse cultural groups attempted to work through conflicts to solve a problem.
- 2.13. Compare diverse world communities in terms of members, customs, and traditions to the local community.
- 2.14. Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among years and decades using a timeline of local and national events.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 2.15. Identify and compare the diverse North American cultural groups of the past and today.
- 2.16. Evaluate the effects of people, goods and ideas that diffused from one world community into other world communities and the effects of the people, goods and ideas on these communities.

Theme 3: What We Make and Use

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:
Therefore, the student is able to:

Economics 5. Economic Decision Making

- 2.17. Examine how consumers react to changes in the prices of goods and how this influences economic decision making and the use of money.
- 2.18. Explore how communities share resources and services with other communities.

Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models

- 2.19. Investigate what resources are available in the community, how available resources differ in communities, and what resources are obtained from neighboring communities.
- 2.20. Identify different types of jobs performed in the community.

Theme 4: Cultures and Environment

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:
Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 2.21. Using maps, identify and locate the United States, Canada, and Mexico as the countries that make up North America.
- 2.22. Identify and locate the bordering states to New Mexico and understand that New Mexico is in the Southwest.

Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region

- 2.23. Compare the human and physical characteristics of two regions in the United States.
- 2.24. Generate a definition for your region of the US by identifying unique features.

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems

- 2.25. List at least three different waves of migration to the Western hemisphere in chronological order. (Movement)

Theme 4: Cultures and Environment (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 13. Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 2.26. Describe ways in which individuals and groups use or save natural resources.

Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity

- 2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad.
- 2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building

- 2.29. Demonstrate respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me.

Third Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.1. Identify disciplinary ideas associated with a compelling question. ● 3.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.3. Determine the credibility of one source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.4. Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.5. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.6. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 3.7. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Theme 1: Citizenship
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.8. Explain how the democratic principles motivate people to migrate then and now.

Theme 1: Citizenship (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life

- 3.9. Explain how to be a responsible and active citizen in a democracy.

Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems

- 3.10. Evaluate the reasons for migration and immigration and the effects on people, culture, and ideas in world communities.
- 3.11. Analyze how human settlement and movement impact diverse groups of people and how the cultural aspects of a region spread beyond its borders.
- 3.12. Analyze the movement of Indigenous groups, including the removal and return of Indigenous people throughout New Mexico and the US.

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 3.13. Explain how world events impact New Mexico and the US, both in the past and today.

History 16. Historical Thinking

- 3.14. Use a timeline to analyze connections among historical events, including how human settlement and movement impacted diverse groups of people.

Theme 3: Global Issues and Events

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.15. Examine the various ways people earn a living to meet their basic needs of food, clothing, and shelter, and how this has changed over time in various world communities.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.16. Investigate who receives the goods that are produced in various world communities.
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.17. Explore the concepts of surplus and scarcity in relation to resources for various world communities. ● 3.18. Explore the basic economic concepts of supply and demand ● 3.19. Explain how supply and demand influence prices and trade. ● 3.20. Describe how technological developments in transportation and communication influence trade over time. ● 3.21. Identify currency, credit, debit, and checks as the basic means of exchange in Western society. ● 3.22. Compare currency, credit, debit, and checks in the United States to other world money systems.

Theme 4: Our Changing World

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.23. Create a model to demonstrate how geographic factors influence where people settle and how some people make adaptations to the environment to make a location more suitable for settlement. ● 3.24. Identify and use the mapping tools of scale, compass rose, grid, symbols and mental mapping to locate places on maps and globes.

Theme 4: Our Changing World (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region

- 3.25. Explain how physical and cultural characteristics of world regions affect people, and examine geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations.
- 3.26. Identify the components of the Earth's biosystems and their makeup (e.g., air, land, water, plants, and animals).

Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity

- 3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.
- 3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building

- 3.29. Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world.

Fourth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.1. Explain how a compelling question represents key ideas in the field. ● 4.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.3. Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.5. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 4.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.7. Examine and evaluate the rules, laws, and authorities that keep people safe in New Mexico.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.8. Explain how democratic principles guide local, state, and sovereign governments. ● 4.9. Demonstrate understanding that state symbols, holidays, traditions, and songs represent various cultural heritages, natural treasures, and the democratic values of New Mexico.

Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.10. Investigate how different groups have influenced the ways that state issues are viewed and resolved.

Theme 2: Migration and Settlement in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.11. Describe the different groups of people (Indigenous and explorers/pioneers) that have settled in New Mexico throughout history and describe their traditions and effects on New Mexico culture.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.12. Describe the interactions between Indigenous people and European settlers including agriculture, cultural exchanges, alliances, and conflicts
History 17. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.13. Create a timeline that depicts the events and the changes in New Mexico culture through contact with explorers and settlers.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.14. Examine the changes in governance of New Mexico (Indigenous, Spanish, Mexican, Texan, Confederate, US)

Theme 3: New Mexico Trade and Industry

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 4.15. Explain the impact of using natural resources on the local, county, and state economy.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 4.16. Explain how trade and industry in New Mexico is impacted by surrounding economies (Mexico, AZ, CO, TX).● 4.17. Research and create a list of products, goods, and services that New Mexico imports and exports.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 4.18. Explore the significance of agriculture and livestock industries in New Mexico.

Theme 4: Resources and Land Use in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 4.19. Examine and synthesize (combine) data from at least two types of maps (physical, topographical, or thematic maps) to support a claim about the regional divisions of New Mexico, and compare and contrast its diverse geography.● 4.20. Using a variety of maps, investigate and compare how New Mexico's political boundaries have changed over time.● 4.21. Apply geographic tools of title, grid system, legends, symbols, scale and compass rose to construct and interpret maps.● 4.22. Describe and identify the regions and four provinces that make up New Mexico's land surface.

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.23. Explore how geographic factors influence locations of settlements and use of natural resources (land, water, minerals, plants, animals) to meet their basic needs.
--------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.24. Explain why individuals and groups during the same historical period differed in their perspectives towards significant historical events.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people’s lives and experiences without judgment.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.26. Explain connections among historical contexts and people’s perspectives at the time.

Fifth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.1. Identify the disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a compelling question. ● 5.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.3. Determine the credibility of multiple sources.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.4. Identify evidence that draws information from multiple perspectives and sources in response to a compelling question.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.5. With teacher direction, construct responses to compelling questions supported by reasoning and evidence.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.6. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 5.7. Use a range of consensus-building and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in the classroom.

Theme 1: Development and Establishment of U.S. Government

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.8. Identify and explain the structure and function of the three branches of government.
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.9. Analyze how different individuals and groups influenced the creation and interpretation of the foundational documents.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.10. Explain how the principles of the Declaration of Independence became unifying ideas of American Democracy.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.11. Evaluate how the Bill of Rights shaped the rights of U.S. Citizens.

Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.13. Examine history from the perspective of the participants.

Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.14. Analyze the causes of the American Revolution and the effects individuals and groups had on the conflict. ● 5.15. Analyze the causes of the Civil War and the effects individuals and groups had on the conflict.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.16. Create and use a chronological sequence of related events and timelines to organize and analyze cause and effect relationships. ● 5.17. Use primary and secondary sources to acquire historical information.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.18. Explain the connections among historical contexts and people's perspectives during major historical events in the US.

Theme 3: Human Rights and Economic Development

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.19. Explore examples from the Western Hemisphere to illustrate the role of scarcity historically and in current events. ● 5.20. Analyze how economic success is defined differently by various communities in the US (then, now, and in the future). ● 5.21. Identify and compare the major natural resources of the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Caribbean or South American countries, and determine the major industries of those countries in relation to available resources.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.22. Examine products that are imported and exported into markets within the United States based on demand for these products, noting how this affects the United States economy.

Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 5.23. Demonstrate how physical maps reflect the varied climate zones, landforms, bodies of water, and natural resources of the Western Hemisphere.
- 5.24. Using maps and globes, identify the regions within the Western Hemisphere and locate major physical features within each region.
- 5.25. Demonstrate how the states are organized including time zones and the regions of the US.
- 5.26. Use geographic and place-based vocabulary to communicate locations and navigate from one place to another.

Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region

- 5.27. Using a map, identify and locate the 50 states in the United States and know the capitals of each state along with the surrounding U.S. territories.

Geography 13. Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 5.28. Examine how the physical environment influences human population distribution and land use.

Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 5.29. Identify the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19.
Diversity and Identity

- 5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.
- 5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

Sixth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.1. Distinguish primary and secondary sources by correctly identifying the author, type of document and date of publication of the text in relation to the historical event described in the text. ● 6.2. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers. ● 6.3. Categorize questions as compelling (main topic) or supporting questions. ● 6.4. Pose self-generated relevant questions to be answered by historical inquiry that allow for multiple avenues of exploration.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.5. Identify where and how to locate sources to best answer a research question ● 6.6. Distinguish among fact, opinion, and reasoned judgement in a source. Identify the author's/ authors' perspectives and possible biases. ● 6.7. Identify inherent bias in maps. ● 6.8. Evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.9. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question ● 6.10. Support a claim using a variety of sources and perspectives ● 6.11. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources. ● 6.12. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.13. Use applicable presentation technology to communicate research findings or other significant information. ● 6.14. Create maps, charts, infographics or digital media that communicate research findings or other significant information

Inquiry (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. ● 6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. ● 6.17. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems

Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.18. Create and use maps, globes, and graphs to gather, analyze, and report geographic information.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.19. Identify how natural forces shape Earth's environments and regions.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.21. Demonstrate relationships between personal events and historical events.

Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building

- 6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.

Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions

- 6.23. Identify the social structures of early humans.

Economics 9. Global Economy

- 6.24. Analyze the economic impact that surpluses of food and goods have on the growth of civilizations.

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 6.25. Compare environmental and geographic attributes of locations of the earliest human settlements.

Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region

- 6.26. Compare cultural and technological innovations of one Mesoamerican and one South American civilization.
- 6.27. Compare cultural, political, and religious characteristics of early river valley civilizations.

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 6.28. Describe how the local environment impacts cultures and technology.
- 6.29. Describe how the people impact the local environment.

Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.30. Analyze the impact that the Agricultural Revolution had on hunter-gatherers and nomadic peoples.

Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.31. Describe cultural and political structures in classical eastern societies. 6.32. Describe cultural and political structures in classical western societies. 6.33. Compare and contrast classical forms of government and political structure to our current United States government and political structure.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.34. Identify rights and responsibilities of citizens and noncitizens in civic participation within the governmental systems such as monarchy, democracy, republic, and oligarchy.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.35. Evaluate the lasting impact of philosophy, art, science, and technology of Classical Greece, Rome, India, and China. 6.36. Evaluate the factors that allowed classical civilizations to thrive.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.37. Identify the political and social issues that lead to the development of new philosophies during the classical period. 6.38. Compare strategies used by classical civilizations to maintain their empires. 6.39. Compare causes of decline in the Roman, Han, and Gupta empires.

Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Content Standard

Therefore, the student is able to

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity

- 6.40. Describe the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explain their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period.

Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making

- 6.41. Describe the distribution of resources among classes in the feudal hierarchy of European and Asian societies.

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems

- 6.42. Explain the reasons for the expansion of trade routes and territories in Sub-Saharan regions.

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 6.43. Analyze the significance of innovations such as scientific, mathematical, and technological in Middle Eastern and Asian societies.
- 6.44. Explain how religion and philosophy shaped European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the post-classical period.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 6.45. Explain what led to the emergence of European feudalism.

Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.46. Describe how trade networks and the transfer of goods and ideas linked post-classical societies. ● 6.47. Explain the role of trade in the development and growth of societies.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.48. Explain how the interaction between producers and consumers in the trade networks satisfied economic wants and needs.
Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.49. Use maps to represent the movement of key religions and philosophies over time.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.50. Compare the transportation innovations made to travel over challenging routes and establish trade routes.

Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE–1300 CE

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 6.51. Use maps to explain how encounters and exchanges linked the world.

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 6.52. Examine instances of conflict, oppression, human rights violations, and genocide in Medieval times as well as responses to these violations.

History 15. Causes and Consequence

- 6.53. Analyze social, political, and economic effects of the Black Death on Europe.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 6.54. Examine and explain how the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society.

Seventh Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.1. Develop compelling (big idea) questions about a relevant topic of interest. ● 7.2. Create supporting questions from credible sources to expand upon the compelling question.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.3. Identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts, and oral traditions. ● 7.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for fact, opinion, author's bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic. ● 7.5. Analyze various forms of media to identify polarizing language, logical fallacy, and reasonable judgment. ● 7.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.7. Use primary and secondary sources to develop an argument and cite specific textual evidence to support the claim. ● 7.8. Make connections between current events, historical materials, and personal experience.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.9. Present student-developed texts communicating thinking and understanding, including but not limited to written text, oral presentation, visual representation, and multimedia. ● 7.10. Engage in academic discussions analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity.  ● 7.12. Explore opportunities to be an ally and describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally. ● 7.13. Engage in positive civic behaviors to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and communities.

Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc). ● 7.15. Describe the relationships of tribal, state, and local governments with the national government under the federal system (tribal sovereignty, state constitutions, 3-branches of government, checks and balances, legislative process, etc).
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.16. Explain how tribal, state, and local government agencies work to sustain resources in New Mexico. ● 7.17. Discuss New Mexico's economic limitations, barriers to development, and successes. ● 7.18. Examine the pros and cons of economic development in New Mexico.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.19. Construct maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources. ● 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. ● 7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics. ● 7.22. Use paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.23. Describe factors affecting location of human activities, including land-use patterns for local, regional, and state communities. ● 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted.

Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.26. Analyze how groups maintain their cultural heritage and how we see this heritage through the symbols, traditions, and culture of our state. ● 7.27. Define and explain the present demographics of our state. ● 7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.

Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic-Decision Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.29. Demonstrate how early humans compete and/or cooperate to gather and use resources.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.30. Analyze patterns of migration of early people as they settled across New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.31. Analyze land use patterns of early humans in New Mexico and the Southwest region. ● 7.32. Explain how building technologies are designed to respond to the constraints and freedoms of the environment. ● 7.33. Explain how early people adapted to the environment to develop sustainable agricultural practices.

Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.34. Explain the importance of artifacts and oral histories in understanding how prehistoric people lived. ● 7.35. Describe the technical limitations of historians and archaeologists studying the distant past.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.36. Explain the use of artifacts in dating and understanding the lives of prehistoric peoples. ● 7.37. Describe the similarities and differences between nomadic and semi-nomadic lifestyles

Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.38. Describe the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights, and responsibilities.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.39. Summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence. ● 7.40. Explain barriers to trade and how those barriers influence trade among individual people and cultural groups.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.41. Analyze land use patterns of Ancestral Pueblo, Mogollon, and Athabaskan peoples. ● 7.42. Connect cultural adaptations of the Pueblo and Diné people to today

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.43. Identify the housing and religious structures of both the Navajo and Apache.  ● 7.44. Compare and contrast Athabascan technology, agricultural practices, and settlement patterns with those of the Pueblos
Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.45. Discuss the importance of resource shortages on the lifestyles of the Mogollon and Ancestral Puebloans. ● 7.46. Create research questions about art/architecture of the Mogollon and/or the Pueblo Ancestors. ● 7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.48. Analyze who have been key figures that have contributed to an individual culture, and what they did. ● 7.49. Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/ identities. ● 7.50. Identify what students want the world to see when their culture is on display, and how to address negative perceptions.

Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.51. Compare and contrast global and historical government systems to the US federal system.
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.52. Demonstrate the impact of competition and/or cooperation as people gather and use resources. ● 7.53. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the economic motivation of Spaniards as they enter the lands of and interact with the peoples of the Americas.
Economics 9. The Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.54. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate connections between the economy of Spain and those of indigenous people.

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.55. Analyze maps and charts about the Age of Exploration to understand the movement of people, goods, and ideas across the world.
--------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.56. Interpret the cultural differences between Spaniards and Indigenous peoples.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.57. Describe the interactions between the Spaniards and Indigenous Peoples.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.58. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the political and religious motivations of Spaniards as they encounter the land and peoples of the Americas. ● 7.59. Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures. ● 7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.

Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws

- 7.62. Use figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies.
- 7.63. Hypothesize how the policies of the Spanish monarchy in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region.

Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making

- 7.64. Use primary sources to identify formal and informal actions that impacted local, tribal, and Spanish empirical economies during this time period.

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 7.65. Analyze maps and charts from the Spanish Colonial period to understand El Camino Real as a significant corridor for movement of people, goods, and ideas.

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 7.66. Explain how differing perceptions of places, people, and resources affected events and conditions in New Mexico during the Spanish Colonial period.
- 7.67. Evaluate practices of land usage and ownership between Indigenous peoples and Spaniards.

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 7.68. Compare and contrast the revolts and resistance movements under Spanish rule.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspective	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.69. Discuss, debate, or hold academic conversations about both positive and negative evidence of Spanish influence in New Mexico today.
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.70. Describe key figures that have made significant contributions to an individual culture. ● 7.71. Explore personal, familial, and societal cultures in the modern day. ● 7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display, and conclude how to address stereotypes.

Theme 6: The Mexican Period (1821 CE – 1850 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.73. Examine how conflict over land, culture, and social class led to Mexican independence from Spain.
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.74. Identify and summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.75. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate connections between the economy of New Mexico and Mexico during the Mexican period. ● 7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact they had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.77. Compare various maps and/or geographical data to describe how the movement of people influenced the division and control of resources.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.78. Analyze primary and secondary to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area) that would become) New Mexico. ● 7.79. Generate an evidence-based argument that demonstrates how troubles between Texas and the government of Mexico impacted New Mexico.

History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.80. Cite textual evidence to interpret the factors that led to resistance and rebellion in Mexico during this time, and debate the aftermath. ● 7.81. Compare historians' interpretations of the reasons for the Texas-Santa Fe Expedition.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.

Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.83. Analyze US policies on expansion into the Southwest, including how they reflected US civic ideals of the time and conflicted with existing inhabitants of the region.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.84. Identify activities that had an impact on territorial and Indigenous economies. ● 7.85. Investigate the correlation between the territorial and Indigenous economies considering how they are impacted by federal policies.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.86. Explain the role of human movement in shaping societies in New Mexico in the past and present. ● 7.87. Analyze maps and charts from the Western expansion period to understand interactions between multiple cultural groups. ● 7.88. Analyze land use patterns of Anglo-Americans during the American Westward expansion period.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.89. Support a claim about the intent of the United States in its westward expansion. ● 7.90. Evaluate the significance of short- and long-range trails throughout the lands gained in the Mexican Cession.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.91. Categorize causes and consequences of the U.S. military invasion of Mexico.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.92. Compare and contrast primary and secondary sources in conjunction with modern-era events to explore the impact of land ownership throughout New Mexico History.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group. 7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice  external forces.

Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.95. Evaluate New Mexico’s transition into a US territorial government from the perspectives of the various groups residing in the territory at the time.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.96. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate the economy of territorial New Mexico from various perspectives such as wealthy/poor and immigrant/Indigenous, etc.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.97. Analyze maps and charts from the Early American Territorial period to explain how differing perceptions of places, people, and resources have affected events and conditions of the past.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.99. Analyze land use patterns of Americans during the territorial period in New Mexico

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.100. Describe how cultures were challenged by the coming of new groups to New Mexico.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.101. Identify causes and consequences that gave rise to U.S. government policies impacting the territory of New Mexico.

Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.102. Use a variety of sources to contextualize and explain the impact of localized conflicts and other events throughout New Mexico.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.

Eighth Grade

6-8 Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.1. Develop compelling (big idea) questions about a relevant topic of interest. ● 8.2. Create supporting questions from credible sources to expand upon the compelling question.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.3. Identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts, and oral traditions. ● 8.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for the author's bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic. ● 8.5. Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory. ● 8.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers. ● 8.8. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question ● 8.9. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources. ● 8.10. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic. ● 8.11. Make connections between current events, historical materials and personal experience. ● 8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.

6-8 Inquiry (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions

- 8.13. Engage in discussion, debate, or academic conversation analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues.
- 8.14. Create maps, charts, infographics, or other visual media that communicate research findings or other significant information digitally or on paper.
- 8.15. Develop informational texts, including analyses of historical and current events.
- 8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
- 8.17. Use applicable presentation technology to communicate research findings or other significant information.
- 8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.

Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action

- 8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.
- 8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.
- 8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally and engaging in positive civic behaviors in classrooms, schools, and the broader community.
- 8.22. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results.
- 8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.

Theme 1: Geography & Indigenous Peoples of North America

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.24. Use digital literacy to research and create a presentation about a specific Sovereign Tribal Nation or Indigenous Peoples group of North America through the five themes of geography: location, place, movement, human-environment interaction, and region. ● 8.25. Identify the major rivers, mountain ranges, and climatic regions of North America within the lands now known as the United States, Canada, the Caribbean, and Mexico.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.26. Give specific examples to illustrate how one Indigenous culture or many Indigenous cultures in one region have been shaped by their environment and natural resources available to them. ● 8.27. Define a region by identifying its human and physical features.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.28. Explain how human activities and physical processes influence change in ecosystems.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspective	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.30. Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.

Theme 2: Age of Exploration and Exploitation (c. 1400 CE – c. 1500 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.31. Describe the causes of exploration and expansion into the Americas, by the Europeans during the 15th Century.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.

Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 7. Economics Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.33. Draw diagrams or make models to illustrate significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the Western Hemisphere.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.34. Synthesize information from two or more different types of maps to support a claim about the global context of colonization.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.

Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.36. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within North America through the lens of the 13 colonies and the movement of people there.
Geography 13. Human-Environment Interaction	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.37. Engage in academic discussion around how the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.38. Use evidence from primary and secondary sources to compare and contrast the impacts of European colonization on Indigenous populations.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.39. Discuss the interactions and exchanges of resources, ideas, arts, and culture between and among different civilizations in the colonial period.

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.40. Use maps and other primary sources to analyze the economic specializations of the 13 colonies.
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.41. Compare and contrast the efforts of the American and British governments to gain the services of African Americans during the American Revolutionary War. 8.42. Evaluate the incentives for supporting the British or American side from the perspective of enslaved and free African Americans before and during the American Revolution.

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established. 8.44. Develop a claim about how opinions regarding the Proclamation Line of 1763 might have varied depending on an individual's occupation and geographic location.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.45. Evaluate the effectiveness of Native American alliances during and after the American Revolutionary War as a tool to support tribal sovereignty. 8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War). 8.47. Synthesize text and non-text evidence to persuasively express a perspective on the events leading to the American Revolution.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies. 8.50. Use primary source texts and artifacts as evidence to describe daily life in the 13 Colonies by featuring individuals with diverse identities and different perspectives. 8.51. Generate historically relevant questions and hypothesize sources needed to make an argument about diverse individuals' ability to participate in the war effort (for either side).

Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE – 1815 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.52. Examine how challenges the government faced as a result of the Articles of Confederation resolved at the Constitutional Convention. 8.53. Make a claim to evaluate how individuals and groups addressed specific problems at various levels to form a new republic.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.54. Identify parallels in language or intent (construct or content) between Enlightenment philosophies and the ideas expressed in the Declaration of Independence. 8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.56. Critically read the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student-developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.57. Support a claim about the influence of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture in early U.S. history.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.58. Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity.

Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE – 1850 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.59. Identify policies of this era that define the relationship between federal, state, and tribal governments through treaties, court decisions, and land acquisition statutes.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.60. Describe a human-created environmental concern related to western expansion, including different contemporary perspectives and other historical context from this period.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.61. Compare and contrast Indigenous Peoples' assimilation story with later immigrants' stories.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.62. Analyze the motivations and impacts of western expansion and the settlement of the United States. 8.63. Use graphic organizers to illustrate the causes and effects of the Mexican American War and its consequences on residents living in the "new" U.S. Territories. 8.64. Use maps and other primary sources (such as the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo) to examine determination of geophysical and geopolitical boundaries between the U.S. and Mexico.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.65. Evaluate the efficacy of formal US policies of expansion, their effects on Sovereign Tribal Nations' ability to self-govern, and Indigenous resistance efforts to preserve tribal sovereignty.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture.

Theme 7: Sectionalism (1830 CE – 1860 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.67. Identify and explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the North and the South.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.68. Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.69. Use primary and secondary sources to examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.

Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.71. Generate research questions about the nature of civil wars in general, and the role of border states/territories in the US Civil War specifically.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.72. Summarize a significant economic warfare initiative of the Civil War through creative expression 8.73. Explain how Union Army strategies and other socio-economic changes at the end of the Civil War led to an economic depression in the Southeast United States.

Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.74. Generate research questions, brainstorm sources, and gather evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War (Guerra Civil Estadounidense). ● 8.75. Use examples to support an argument about the importance of science and technology during the Civil War period.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation. ● 8.77. Use primary and secondary sources to make an argument about the impact of the Western Campaign on Indigenous peoples

Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era. ● 8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.80. Describe why different people may have different perspectives of the same historical event; multiple interpretations should be considered in order to avoid historical linearity and inevitability.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions. ● 8.82. Use data to describe demographic shifts as a consequence of the Civil War and Reconstruction.

Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.

Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.84. Investigate the causes and effects of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture that are associated with immigration and migration.
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.85. Analyze the benefits and challenges that are associated with rapidly growing urban areas as a result of industrialization.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.86. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within the United States during time periods of mass immigration.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.87. Analyze the development of the women’s suffrage movement over time and its legacy. 8.88. Make personal connections to immigration stories and experiences-- both in the past and present
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.89. Examine both sides in debate or academic discussion of politics in response to immigration.

Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identify

- 8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

HS Civics

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Civ.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Civ.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Civ.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Civ.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose. ● 9-12.Civ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Civ.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Civ.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

High School Civics

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

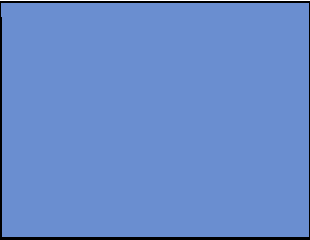

Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions

- 9-12.Civ.13. Distinguish the powers and responsibilities of local, state, indigenous, national, and international civic and political institutions.
- 9-12.Civ.14. Develop claims about the purpose, processes, strengths, and weaknesses of the U.S. government.
- 9-12.Civ.15. Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time.
- 9-12.Civ.16. Analyze the role of groups without formal decision-making power in influencing change in the U.S. government.
- 9-12.Civ.17. Evaluate multiple sources and cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy.
- 9-12.Civ.18. Investigate relationships among governments, civil societies, and economic markets.
- 9-12.Civ.19. Distinguish historical and current types and systems of government in the U.S. and abroad.
- 9-12.Civ.20. Use data and evidence from multiple perspectives related to federal policy toward Indigenous groups to develop an understanding of Indigenous/U.S. relations over time.
- 9-12.Civ.21. Evaluate the way America's founding principles and constitutional structures have influenced initiatives and revisions to foreign policy over time.
- 9-12.Civ.22. Research multiple sources to think critically about how the U.S. should conduct itself in international relations.

Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws

- 9-12.Civ.23. Evaluate procedures for making governmental decisions at the local, state, national, and international levels in terms of the civic purposes achieved.
- 9-12.Civ.24. Evaluate sources to determine how people use and challenge local, state, national, and international laws, to address a variety of public issues.
- 9-12.Civ.25. Evaluate public policies in terms of intended and unintended outcomes and related consequences.
- 9-12.Civ.26. Analyze historical, contemporary, and emerging means of changing societies, promoting the common good and protecting rights.
- 9-12.Civ.27. Evaluate the US justice system over time and its impacts on policy, society, economics, and individual rights.
- 9-12.Civ.28. Explain the unique features and processes of New Mexico's constitution.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.29. Evaluate the contributions of New Mexico’s diverse populations to it’s governmental structure and outcomes. ● 9-12.Civ.30. Investigate challenges and opportunities within and between different government entities in New Mexico.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.31. Analyze the impact and the appropriate roles of personal interests and perspectives on the application of civic virtues, democratic principles, constitutional rights, and human rights. ● 9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels. ● 9-12.Civ.33. Apply civic dispositions and democratic principles when working with others. ● 9-12.Civ.34. Analyze founding documents and their impact on national unity over time. ● 9-12.Civ.35. Evaluate the tensions between personal interests, different cultural groups, and civic responsibilities or the common good overtime.
High School Civics (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.36. Participate in civil discourse to promote greater understanding around historical, contemporary, and future opportunities and obstacles. ● 9-12.Civ.37. Use historical data and evidence related to various actors’ interests and motivations to determine their influence on contemporary issues. ● 9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted overtime and how they currently shape policy debates. ● 9-12.Civ.39. Develop strategies for evaluating multiple perspectives about current events, and policy issues. ● 9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them. ● 9-12.Civ.41. Apply an effective questioning strategy to evaluate sources intended to inform the public, and consider the effects of choices made by media organizations (including internet social platforms), on elections and social movements. ● 9-12.Civ.42. Evaluate sources and determine potential bias in the media and how that impacts government decision-making. ● 9-12.Civ.43. Evaluate the effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society. ● 9-12.Civ.44. Analyze rights and obligations of citizens in the United States.

-
- 9-12.Civ.45. Critique leadership strategies through past and present examples of change-makers.
 - 9-12.Civ.46. Plan and demonstrate some ways in which an active citizen can effect change in the community, state, nation, or world.
 - 9-12.Civ.47. Evaluate citizens' and institutions' effectiveness in addressing social and political problems at the local, state, Indigenous, national, and/or international government.
 - 9-12.Civ.48. Take informed action to improve your community.

HS Economics

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Econ.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Econ.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Econ.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Econ.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.Econ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Econ.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Econ.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

High School Economics

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making

- 9-12.Econ.13. Apply understanding of economic concepts and systems to analyze decision-making and the interactions between consumers, business, government, and societies.
- 9-12.Econ.14. Gather and evaluate sources to explain the relationship between economic decisions and environmental consequences.
- 9-12.Econ.15. Use cost-benefit analysis and/or marginal analysis to evaluate an economic issue.
- 9-12.Econ.16. Evaluate how economic principles influence choices and can produce varied outcomes for different individuals or groups
- 9-12.Econ.17. Explain how and why people make choices to improve their economic well-being.
- 9-12.Econ.18. Evaluate the market value of income earned through wages and other activities associated with saving, and investing.
- 9-12.Econ.19. Compare the costs and benefits of saving, using credit, and or making certain types of financial investments.
- 9-12.Econ.20. Evaluate how and why individuals choose to accept risk, reduce risk, or transfer risk to others.

Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models

- 9-12.Econ.21. Analyze the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services.
- 9-12.Econ.22. Evaluate economic theories for their compatibility with democracy.
- 9-12.Econ.23. Compare the advantages and disadvantages of major economic systems found around the world.
- 9-12.Econ.24. Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.
- 9-12.Econ.25. Use economic data to evaluate the positive and negative aspects of American capitalism in relationship to other economic systems.
- 9-12.Econ.25. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico.
- 9-12.Econ.26. Critique the impact of globalization on New Mexico and its citizens.
- 9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 9-12.Econ.28. Evaluate opportunities for economic diversification that can significantly impact state and local conditions.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 9-12.Econ.29. Explain how buyers and sellers interact to create markets and market structures. • 9-12.Econ.30. Evaluate how a variety of factors and conditions in a market determine price and the allocation of scarce goods and resources. • 9-12.Econ.31. Evaluate the role played by competition in the market. • 9-12.Econ.32. Evaluate the role of financial institutions in a market economy. • 9-12.Econ.33. Analyze the role of money in the economy. • 9-12.Econ.34. Critique specific government policies/regulations initiated to improve market outcomes and the consequences, both intended and unintended experienced by individuals, business, communities, and states. • 9-12.Econ.35. Generate possible explanations for a government role in markets when market inefficiencies exist. • 9-12.Econ.36. Evaluate the causes and implications of market failures. • 9-12.Econ.37. Explain how governments establish the rules and institutions in which markets operate at the local, state, tribal, national and international levels. • 9-12.Econ.38. Use economic indicators and data to analyze the health of the national economy in relation to other countries. • 9-12.Econ.39. Evaluate how fiscal and monetary policy choices have economic consequences for different stakeholders in a variety of economic conditions. • 9-12.Econ.40. Evaluate foreign and domestic issues related to United States economic growth overtime. • 9-12.Econ.41. Explain the effect of advancements in technology and training on economic growth and standards of living.

Economics 9. Global Economy

- 9-12.Econ.42. Explain how current globalization trends and policies affect economic growth, labor, markets, rights of citizens, the environment, and resource and income distribution in different nations.
- 9-12.Econ.43. Explain how economic conditions and policies in one nation increasingly affect economic conditions and policies in other nations.
- 9-12.Econ.44. Evaluate how geography, demographics, industry structure, and the rules of economic institutions influence a nation's economic development.
- 9-12.Econ.45. Analyze why a country might participate in global trade.
- 9-12.Econ.46. Connect how trade agreements between nations have short and long-term effects.
- 9-12.Econ.47. Construct an argument about how global interdependence impacts individuals, institutions, and or societies based on documented evidence.

HS Geography

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Geo.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Geo.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Geo.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Geo.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.Geo.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Geo.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Geo.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

High School Geography

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning

- 9-12.Geo.13. Analyze and evaluate the characteristics and purposes and uses of geographic tools, knowledge, and skills.
- 9-12.Geo.14. Create maps to display and explain the spatial patterns of culture and environment.
- 9-12.Geo.15. Analyze and interpret geographic characteristics of cultures, economies, and political systems.
- 9-12.Geo.16. Interpret geographic representations to evaluate and explain changes over time.
- 9-12.Geo.17. Apply geographic knowledge and geospatial skills to interpret the past and present in order to make informed decisions.

Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region

- 9-12.Geo.18. Analyze and explain the reciprocal relationship between physical, geographical locations and the patterns and processes humans create within them.
- 9-12.Geo.19. Explain and evaluate the process of place-making and the development of place-based identity.
- 9-12.Geo.20. Identify, define, and explain the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions.

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems

- 9-12.Geo.21. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of human movement (migration, immigration, emigration) and settlement patterns at the local, national, and global scale.
- 9-12.Geo.22. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.
- 9-12.Geo.23. Describe, analyze, and compare how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time.
- 9-12.Geo.24. Analyze and predict how location, place, and region impact the evolution of human perspectives and identities.
- 9-12.Geo.25. Identify, evaluate, and predict how particular historical events and developments shape human processes and systems in a given place/region over time.
- 9-12.Geo.26. Predict future social, political, economic, cultural, spiritual and environmental opportunities, and obstacles associated with movement, population, decision-making, and perspectives in a given place or region.

High School Geography (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 13. Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 9-12.Geo.27. Make reasoned ethical judgments about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determine appropriate ways to respond.
- 9-12.Geo.28. Analyze shifting U.S. government environmental policies and regulations in response to changing human environment interactions.
- 9-12.Geo.29. Evaluate the consequences of human-made and natural catastrophes on global trade, politics, and human migration.
- 9-12.Geo.30. Assess the reciprocal relationship between physical environment and culture within local, national, and global scales.
- 9-12.Geo.31. Evaluate how economic globalization and the scarcity of resources contribute to conflict and cooperation within and among countries.
- 9-12.Geo.32. Analyze how the forces of cooperation and conflict within and among people, nations, and empires influence the division and control of Earth's surface and resources.
- 9-12.Geo.33. Assess how social, economic, political, and environmental developments at global, national, regional and/or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures.

HS New Mexico History

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.NMH.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.NMH.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.NMH.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.NMH.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.NMH.9. adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.NMH.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.NMH.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

Theme 1: Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.13. Connect various disputes that occur as a result of Article X being stricken from the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.14. Determine why it was necessary for the U.S. to purchase the land acquired by the Gadsden Purchase, instead of obtaining it by warfare.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.15. Examine the different perspectives from the peoples of New Mexico, and the United States at the time of annexation. ● 9-12.NMH.16. Dissect the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and evaluate how the different people of New Mexico were addressed and impacted by the document.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.17. Examine the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.

Theme 2: New Mexico's Territorial Period

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.19. Examine the changes in the Plains of New Mexico as irrigation and cattle ranches expand into the territory.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.20. Describe the introduction of the Chinese population into New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.21. Assess the changes of the land and society initiated by the railroad system, along with the immigrant population it brought to the New Mexican territory. ● 9-12.NMH.22. Explain how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.23. Examine the causes and effects of the Civil War, and the battles that ensued within New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.24. Explain how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.25. Probe the beginnings of the Native American boarding school system, and the ramifications that it had on Indigenous communities in New Mexico and abroad.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA.

Theme 3: Statehood and Functions of State/Tribal Governments

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.28. Compare and contrast the similarities and differences between the three branches of the federal and state governments.
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.29. Analyze the requirements for statehood. ● 9-12.NMH.30. Debate whether or not New Mexico's constitution supports bilingualism.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.31. Define sovereignty, and distinguish ways in which the different Native American tribes in New Mexico conduct governmental affairs.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.32. Evaluate efforts from the people of New Mexico to become a state, and analyze outside perspectives to the entrance of New Mexico as a state.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.33. Contrast the rights given to people that live within a territory vs. a state.

Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.34. Discuss the sequence of events that led to the Great Depression and the implementation of New Deal Programs in New Mexico.

Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.35. Summarize the impacts that artists have had on our state, and why so many artists choose to live in New Mexico.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.36. Interpret data/evidence to conduct periodization of key events and contributions by key people to the events that occurred during the early 20th century.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.37. Analyze the causes and effects of the Dust Bowl in New Mexico, and how it changed or eliminated communities in our state. 9-12.NMH.38. Demonstrate ability to use relevant historical evidence to synthesize information regarding the impact of nuclear weapons on people around the world.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.39. Demonstrate historical argumentation by using various resources and perspectives to show the impact of World War II on the people of New Mexico, and the impact that our citizens had on the war.

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.40. Summarize how the U.S. and Soviet Union emerge from World War II as superpowers, and articulate the difference between communism and capitalism.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.41. Identify the military bases and weapons testing sites in New Mexico.

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 9-12.NMH.42. Analyze the pros and cons of New Mexico's role in the production of uranium fueled weapons built during the Cold War.

History 16. Historical Thinking

- 9-12.NMH.43. Identify the beginnings of the arms race between the Soviet Union and the U.S.
- 9-12.NMH.44. Uncover what types of activities took place, and what products were produced at Los Alamos National Laboratory and Sandia National Lab during the Cold War and beyond.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.NMH.45. Give examples of how New Mexicans played an active role in military service during the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

Theme 6: Civil Rights
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.46. Demonstrate contextualization and interpretation of key events that took place within Native American communities during the Civil Rights Era.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using ● 9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.49. Compare organizations engaged in Civil Rights work. ● 9-12.NMH.50. Demonstrates interpretation of critical changes in New Mexico's segregation laws.

Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.51. Illustrate the ways in which the movie and technology industries contribute to our state's economy. ● 9-12.NMH.52. Connect the activities of the federal government in the state of New Mexico during both the Cold War and WWII, to our current economy. ● 9-12.NMH.53. Identify the main sources of income for tribes.
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.54. Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry.

Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.55. Give examples of the different types of sites and activities that would make people want to tour aspects of our state.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.56. Analyze how New Mexicans maintain an agricultural industry being that we are one of the driest states in the country.

Theme 8: Resource Management and Mineral Resources in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.57. Use multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of how water management has changed over the centuries in New Mexico. ● 9-12.NMH.58. Develop an argument showing the importance of preserving historical sites and New Mexico's resources.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.59. Appraise the value of New Mexico's historical sites to our state's culture.

HS U.S. History

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.US.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.US.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.US.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.US.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.US.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.US.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.US.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

Theme 1: U.S. Origins and Origin Stories

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.13. Examine the course and consequences of the Columbian Exchange.
- 9-12.US.14. Describe the evolution and short and long-term consequences of racialized labor and caste systems such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America.
- 9-12.US.15. Analyze how various Indigenous nations changed as a result of European settler colonialism.
- 9-12.US.16. Examine the involvement of Indigenous nations in the colonial wars and evaluate the consequences for their societies.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.17. Explain the ways that Indigenous nations expressed and transmitted their beliefs and values.
- 9-12.US.18. Compare and contrast the different ways in which Indigenous people have resisted, survived, and adapted to maintain their patterns of community life.
- 9-12.US.19. Compare and contrast the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism vs. classic colonialism.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.20. Explain the common elements of Indigenous societies.
- 9-12.US.21. Analyze facets of Indigenous social, political, and economic organization.
- 9-12.US.22. Analyze relationships between Indigenous peoples and Spanish, English, French, and Dutch colonizers.
- 9-12.US.23. Examine the interactions between English colonizers and Indigenous peoples in the 13 Colonies.

Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.24. Determine the importance and utility of rights versus responsibilities. ● 9-12.US.25. Determine the characteristics of a revolution and evaluate the American Revolution as compared to the French and Haitian Revolutions.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.26. Investigate the causes and effects of the Revolutionary War on diverse groups of people in the United States. ● 9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery. ● 9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.30. Describe the Constitutional Convention, the roles of specific individuals, and their conflicts and compromises. ● 9-12.US.31. Explore the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States.

Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.32. Examine the short- and long-term impact of settlers, pioneers, frontiersman, and homesteaders on the United States and on sovereign Indigenous nations.

Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787-1876 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 9-12.US.33. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and short and long term effects of U.S. territorial expansion.● 9-12.US.34. Examine the ways in which the United States acquired new territories, including purchases, annexation, treaties, and war.● 9-12.US.35. Explain the importance of the Transportation Revolution of the 19th century.● 9-12.US.36. Analyze the effects of industrial growth throughout antebellum America.● 9-12.US.37. Describe the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural South, explain reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyze how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● 9-12.US.38. Analyze the convergence of the expansion of colonialism through territorial acquisition and the expansion of chattel slavery in acquired territory.● 9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants.● 9-12.US.40. Explore forms of resistance, adaptation and cultural preservation practiced by enslaved and colonized peoples during this period.● 9-12.US.41. Assess the impact of Federal policy towards Indigenous nations.

Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Content Standard

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.42. Analyze the persistence of the “Lost Cause of the Confederacy” narrative and its long term effects.
- 9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a “war to free the slaves,” and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people.

Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865 (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Content Standard

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.44. Analyze critical policies and events leading to the Civil War and connections among them.
- 9-12.US.45. Explain how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.46. Explore the similarities and differences between reform movements in the United States in the early to mid-19th century.
- 9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women and African Americans.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.48. Analyze major factors that determined the outcome of the Civil War.

Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.49. Evaluate the long-term consequences of the end of Reconstruction and the rise of Jim Crow on formerly enslaved people and their descendants.
- 9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.51. Analyze the short- and long-term effects of the end of the Civil War and Reconstruction period.

Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865-1877 (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.52. Explore African American economic, political, sociocultural (educational, artistic, literary) responses to emancipation and Reconstruction.
- 9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.54. Explore the efforts of the federal government and African Americans to forge a new political and social order after emancipation.

Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard
Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.55. Examine immigration policy in the United States over time.
- 9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.
- 9-12.US.57. Examine contemporary labor struggles and populist movements in the United States and around the world.
- 9-12.US.58. Explore the short- and long-term effects of the Jim Crow era on African Americans in both the North and the South.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.59. Explain the various causes of the Industrial Revolution.
- 9-12.US.60. Make connections among the important consequences of the Industrial Revolution.
- 9-12.US.61. Analyze social, political, and economic reasons groups migrated to and within the United States, including push and pull factors.

Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920 (Continued)

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard
Therefore, the student is able to:

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.62. Evaluate the effects of the entry of women into the workforce after the Civil War and analyze women’s political organizations.
- 9-12.US.63. Analyze the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the Civil War and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native Peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women.
- 9-12.US.64. Examine the ways that the Great Migration changed America, exploring the ways that African Americans adapted and resisted.

Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.65. Determine the effectiveness of post colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.66. Analyze the causes and course of the growing role of the United States in world affairs from the Civil War to World War I.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.67. Examine the ways in which art, journalism, literature, and cultural artifacts served as forms of resistance and contributed to the anti-imperialist movement. ● 9-12.US.68. Examine the legacy and evolution of turn of the century imperialism, including the short- and long-term effects in Latin America, Asia, and the Pacific.

Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.69. Examine the ethics of the suppression of civil liberties during times of conflict and war, past and present. ● 9-12.US.70. Analyze the role of the United States in the world and the balance of foreign and domestic priorities. ● 9-12.US.71. Determine the utility or futility of war.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.72. Distinguish between the long-term causes and triggering events that led the United States into World War I. ● 9-12.US.73. Explain the course and significance of Woodrow Wilson’s wartime diplomacy, including his Fourteen Points, the League of Nations, and the failure of the Versailles Treaty.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.74. Evaluate major reform movements and reformers during the Progressive Era. ● 9-12.US.75. Evaluate the inclusivity and exclusivity of Progressive Era reform movements. ● 9-12.US.76. Analyze the campaign for, and the opposition to, women’s suffrage in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. ● 9-12.US.77. Analyze the strategies of African Americans to achieve basic civil rights in the early 20th century. ● 9-12.US.78. Examine the role of colonial peoples, women, Indigenous peoples and African Americans during World War I.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.79. Explain what Progressivism meant in the early 20th century through the ideas, actions, and experiences of Progressive leaders. ● 9-12.US.80. Analyze the governmental policies of the Progressive Period, determine which problems they were designed to solve, and assess long and short-term effectiveness. ● 9-12.US.81. Analyze the role and conduct of the United States during the war.

Theme 9: Conflicts and Transitions, 1920–1929
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.82. Explore the ongoing conflict between traditionalism and modernity in American society today, making connections to the movements, ideas and experiences of the past. ● 9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.84. Assess how new technology in transportation, communication, and finance impacted American society.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.85. Explore the arts, entrepreneurship, and philanthropy of the Harlem Renaissance and its connections to the Great Migration. ● 9-12.US.86. Evaluate the passage of the 19th amendment from the perspective of diverse groups in American society including white women, African American women, Native Americans, and Asian Americans. ● 9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.88. Examine the conflict between traditionalism and modernity as manifested in the major political and economic events in the first two decades of the 20th century.

Theme 10: Great Depression and The New Deal, 1929–1941

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.89. Assess the degree to which New Deal programs have been maintained or dismantled over time.
- 9-12.US.90. Evaluate the impact of New Deal programs and policies on diverse groups of people in America, including African Americans and Indigenous peoples.
- 9-12.US.91. Determine the effectiveness of the United States government in averting and responding to similar economic disasters.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.92. Describe the multiple causes and consequences of the global depression of the 1930s.
- 9-12.US.93. Assess the impact and legacy of New Deal relief, recovery, and reform programs.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.94. Examine the lives and experiences of Mexicans during the 1930s and the relationship of the United States to Mexico.

Theme 11: World War II

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period.
- 9-12.US.96. Explore the ethics of and arguments for and against the use of nuclear weapons past and present.

- 9-12.US.97. Explore the legacy of “othering” in the United States, including boarding schools, internment camps, and detention centers.

Theme 11: World War II (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.98. Analyze the events that led to World War II, the major battles of the war and its consequences, and the conferences of Allied leaders following the war.
- 9-12.US.99. Explain the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the Holocaust.
- 9-12.US.100. Explain the reasons for American involvement in World War II and the key actions and events leading up to declarations of war against Japan and Germany.
- 9-12.US.101. Assess the social, political, and economic transformation of the United States during World War II.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.102. Evaluate the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals.
- 9-12.US.103. Examine the ways in which gender roles changed and stayed the same for women during the war.
- 9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia.

Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.105. Examine the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America.
- 9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.

Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.107. Examine the factors that contributed to the Cold War. ● 9-12.US.108. Evaluate the policy of containment as a response by the United States to Soviet expansionist policies. ● 9-12.US.109. Analyze how U.S. foreign policy during the Cold War shaped conflicts in Asia and the Americas. ● 9-12.US.110. Analyze the roots of domestic communism and anti-communism in the 1950s, the origins and consequences of, and the resistance to McCarthyism.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.111. Analyze the impact of the Vietnam War on the Vietnamese people and on the United States. ● 9-12.US.112. Explore the impact of the Cold War on indigenous peoples around the world. ● 9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.114. Summarize the diplomatic and military policies on the War in Vietnam of Presidents Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon.

Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.115. Research and analyze issues related to race relations in the United States since the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. ● 9-12.US.116. Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO. ● 9-12.US.117. Evaluate the influence of 1960s cultural and artistic movements from past to present day.
History 15: Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.

Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.119. Analyze the origins, evolution, and goals of the African American Civil Rights Movement and Black Power Movement. ● 9-12.US.120. Analyze the causes, course, and impact on American politics and society of new social and political movements, including consideration of the role of protest, advocacy organizations, and active citizen participation.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.121. Evaluate accomplishments of the Civil Rights movement and how they served as a model for later feminist, disability, and gender rights movements of the 20th and 21st centuries. ● 9-12.US.122. Analyze the important policies and events that took place during the presidencies of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon.

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people. ● 9-12.US.124. Examine the short- and long-term impacts of criminal justice policy implemented during the presidencies of Ronald Reagan and Bill Clinton. ● 9-12.US.125. Examine the push-pull relationship between progressivism and conservatism in America over time. ● 9-12.US.126. Evaluate whether the Cold War definitively ended in 1991.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.127. Analyze how communist economic policies and U.S.-sponsored resistance to Soviet military and diplomatic initiatives contributed to the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991.

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.128. Evaluate the significance of the 1990 American Disability Act. ● 9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality. ● 9-12.US.130. Examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.131. Analyze the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics.

Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future. ● 9-12.US.133. Analyze the current state and health of American democracy and create an action plan to protect American democracy. ● 9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. ● 9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.

Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.137. Analyze some of the major technological and social trends and issues of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.
- 9-12.US.138. Evaluate the effectiveness of the federal government’s response to international terrorism in the 21st century.
- 9-12.US.139. Examine contemporary civil rights struggles.
- 9-12.US.140. Analyze US government policies to reduce climate disruption.
- 9-12.US.141. Compare and Contrast the response and plan of the US government during the Covid-19 pandemic with the AIDS epidemic and the 1918 influenza.

HS World History

Sample Topics by Time Period	Sample Themes by Time Period
1300–1500: Global Encounters and Exchanges Grow (Topics may include but are not limited to Pueblo, Dine’ (Navajo), Apache, Seminole, Culhua-Mexica (Aztec), Maya, Arawak, Andean Civilization, Mali, Ethiopia, Great Zimbabwe, Swahili Coast, Byzantium, Medieval Scholasticism, European Exploration, Mongolian Empire, Ottoman Empire, Ming Dynasty, Asian Exploration, Trans-Saharan & Indian Ocean Slave Trade Networks, Black Death, Crusades, Divine Right of Kings, Mandate of Heaven, Arabic-Latin Translation)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Interregional system of communication, trade, and cultural exchange ● Rise of the Mongol empire and its consequences for Eurasian peoples, 1200–1350 ● Growth of states, towns, and trade in Sub-Saharan Africa between the 11th and 15th centuries ● Patterns of crisis and recovery in Afro-Eurasia, 1300–1450 ● Expansion of states and civilizations in the Americas, 1000–1500 ● Major global trends from 1000–1500 CE
1450–1770: The First Global Age Emerges (Topics may include but are not limited to Fall of Constantinople, Reconquista, Inquisition, War of the Roses, Columbian Exchange, Ayiti (Taino), Tenochtitlan (Aztec), Cajamarca (Inca), Mestizo, Songhai Empire, African Diaspora, Safavid Empire, Renaissance, Julian v. Gregorian Calendar, Scientific Revolution, Protestant Reformation, Counter Reformation, Absolute Monarchies, Elizabethan Age, Glorious Revolution, Iroquois Confederacy, Enlightenment, Qing Dynasty, Tokugawa Shogunate, etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Transoceanic interlinking of all major regions of the world from 1450–1600 led to global transformations ● European society experienced political, economic, and cultural transformations in an age of global intercommunication, 1450–1750 ● Large territorial empires dominated much of Eurasia between the 16th and 18th centuries ● Economic, political, and cultural interrelations among peoples of Africa, Europe, and the Americas, 1500–1750 ● Transformations in Asian societies in the era of European expansion ● Major global trends from 1450–1770
1750–1923: Revolution, Democratization, and New Empires Spread (Topics may include but are not limited to Industrial Revolutions, American Revolution, French Revolution, Romanticism, Napoleon, Latin American Revolutions, Monroe Doctrine, Mexican Independence, Unification of European Countries (Italy, Germany), Imperialism, Social Darwinism, Berlin Conference, Leopold and the Congo Genocide, Battle of Adwa, Suez Canal Construction, Boer Wars, Australian Frontier Wars, New Zealand Wars, Mughal Empire,	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Causes and consequences of political revolutions in the late 18th and early 19th centuries ● Causes and consequences of the agricultural and industrial revolutions, 1700–1850 ● Transformation of Eurasian societies in an era of global trade and rising European power, 1750–1870 ● Patterns of nationalism, state-building, and social reform in Europe and the Americas, 1830–1914

Meiji Restoration, Opium Wars, Taiping Rebellion, Boxer Rebellion, Sepoy Rebellion, Russian Revolution, etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Patterns of global change in the era of Western military and economic domination, 1800–1914 ● Major global trends from 1750–1923
1900–1980: Conflict & Self-Determination Expand (Topics may include but are not limited to Mexican Revolution, World War I, Armenian Genocide, 1918 Pandemic, Treaty of Versailles, Panama Canal, Global Great Depression, Nationalism, Japanese Empire, World War II, Shoah, Greek Civil War, Rape of Nanking, Chinese Revolution, Pinochet in Chile, Cuban Revolution, Asian Independence Movements, Nonviolent Resistance Movements, Sykes-Picot, Nation of Israel, Middle East Conflicts, Partition of India, U.S. Civil Rights Movement, African Independence Movements, Fall of Saigon, Cambodian Genocide, Tiananmen Square, League of Nations, Cold War)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Causes and global consequences of World War I ● Search for peace and stability in the 1920s and 1930s ● Causes and global consequences of World War II ● Major global trends from 1900 to the end of World War II
1945–Future: Global Interconnections Accelerate (Topics may include but are not limited to Nuclear Age, United Nations, Universal Declaration of Human Rights, NATO, Space Age, Apartheid, Fall of Soviet Union, Globalization, Information Age, Social Media, Nationalism, Global Influence (U.S.A, China, Russia), International Unions (EU, AU, USAN, ACD), Economic Growth of the Global South, War on Drugs, War on Terror, Rwandan Genocide, September 11th, Afghanistan War, Iraq War, Arab Spring, Great Recession, Equity Movements, Climate Change, Indigenous Environmentalism, Green Revolution, Greenbelt Movement, Paris Agreement, Covid-19 Pandemic, WHO, NAFTA/CUSMA, etc)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Post-World War II reconstruction, new international power relations, and colonial empires break-up ● Search for community, stability, and peace in an Interdependent world ● Major global trends since World War II ● Long-term changes and recurring patterns in world history

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas in world history.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.2. Evaluate the credibility of sources from a range of media (print, internet, audio, visual) by examining origin, author, context, content, and corroborative value. ● 9-12.WH.3. Gather relevant information from credible sources representing a wide range of views and note inconsistencies in the information.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.4. Develop claims and analyze counterclaims about the significance of historical events using evidence that draws directly and substantively from multiple sources. ● 9-12.WH.5. Analyze evidence to detect inconsistencies within the evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.6. Present arguments and explanations that reach a range of audiences using print and oral technologies (e.g., posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, maps) and digital technologies (e.g., Internet, social media, and digital documentary).
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.7. Evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems. ● 9-12.WH.8. Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems. ● 9-12.WH.9. Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts.

High School World History

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.10. Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems. ● 9-12.WH.11. Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts. ● 9-12.WH.12. Evaluate methods people use to create, change, expand, or oppose systems of power/authority.
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.13. Evaluate the impact of global interconnectedness on international economic stability and growth. ● 9-12.WH.14. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.15. Analyze and explain the reciprocal relationship between physical, geographical locations and the patterns and processes humans create within them.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.16. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.17. Assess how social, economic, political, and environmental developments at global, national, regional, and/or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures.

High School World History (Continued)

Anchor Standard
The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:
Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.WH.18. Identify significant transformative moments in world history, analyze the reasons behind their transformative nature, and explain how they continue to shape contemporary global interactions.
- 9-12.WH.19. Trace political, intellectual, religious, artistic, technological, economic, and social developments in historical periods as well as within individual societies.
- 9-12.WH.20. Identify patterns of continuity and change over time in world history, focusing on patterns both within and between historical eras.
- 9-12.WH.21. Examine how historical events and developments were shaped by unique circumstances of time and place as well as broader historical contexts.
- 9-12.WH.22. Identify individuals, groups, and events in New Mexico's history that have influenced or were influenced by events in world history.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.WH.23. Identify and evaluate multiple causes and effects of historical events within world history.
- 9-12.WH.24. Distinguish between long-term and short-term causes in developing historical interpretations.
- 9-12.WH.25. Identify contemporary global issues that influence or are influenced by New Mexicans.

History 16. Historical Thinking

- 9-12.WH.26. Analyze and evaluate the values and limitations of primary and secondary sources of information (including digital) with attention to the source, its context, reliability, and usefulness.
- 9-12.WH.27. Effectively use and integrate evidence from a variety of diverse sources in order to evaluate and develop historical claims.
- 9-12.WH.28. Synthesize historical information to create new understandings.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.WH.29. Use a variety of source materials to compare and contrast treatments of the same topic.
- 9-12.WH.30. Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, regional, racial, ethnic, class, and gender.
- 9-12.WH.31. Analyze and evaluate multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups.

High School World History (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.WH.32. Use historical thinking skills to evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems.
- 9-12.WH.33. Investigate cultural and historical developments within societies with attention to belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology.
- 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History

- 9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.
- 9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.
- 9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.ECI.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.ECI.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.ECI.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.ECI.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose. ● 9-12.ECI.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.ECI.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.ECI.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity

- 9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.
- 9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.
- 9-12.ECI.15. Identify and explore how current traditions, rites, and norms of identity groups have or are changing over time.
- 9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History

- 9-12.ECI.17. Compare and contrast the various origins (Indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in the United States.
- 9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.
- 9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building

- 9-12.ECI.20. Examine historical and contemporary cultural, economic, intellectual, political, and social contributions to society by individuals or groups within an identity group.
- 9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.
- 9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standard

Candice Padilla <7cmpadilla@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:56 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am a mother of 2 APS students.

I would like to say I am opposed to the updated social studies curriculum.

This is CRT updated.

America is a wonderful country, we may have flaws however we have always improved. teaching children to hate our beginning divides and breaks down our country.

My children will not be indoctrinated by activist teachers.

By forcing lgbtq+ identity on young minds cause mental health issues.

Speaking against the right to have guns is against the constitution.

Speaking against police adds to the crime problem.

Making children take a role of victim hurts their future and relationships making children think they oppressed others hurts their mental health.

Thank you,

Candice Padilla

505-450-5131

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Feedback - For Social Studies

BARBARA JORDAN <barbarawhitaker30@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am for the new social studies standards. I would like to begin by quoting Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., "Whites, it must be frankly be said, are not putting in similar mass effort to reeducate themselves out of their racial ignorance. It is an aspect of their sense of superiority that the white people of America believe they have so little to learn." This is from his "Where Do We Go From Here" speech written in 1967.

My son was six years old when he was told by one of his classmates for the entire class not to play with him because he is Black.

This is one step in the right direction for all of our children to be seen and feel included in their academic environment. The lives of our BIPOC and LGBTQIA+ communities are not political statements. Inclusion means everyone and this is step one in the right direction. Thank you.

--

V/r

Barbara A. Jordan

[EXTERNAL] Social studies curriculum

Katie Miller <ktmiller00@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

Please teach the truth. We need to know all of history - not just what looks or sounds better. We need the truth (which should include multiple perspectives of truth not alternative facts) to ensure we do not repeat the negative parts of our history. To limit our social studies curriculum to what feels good or doesn't make anyone uncomfortable, is to underestimate the abilities of our students to learn from it. I hope you encourage our students (the future) to learn and grow and make better choices for New Mexico and beyond.

Thank you,
Katherine Miller
Artesia, NM

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Changes to NM Soc Studies Standards & Benchmarks

Irene El-Genk <irene.elgenk@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

PUBLIC COMMENT RE PROPOSED CHANGES TO NM STATE SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS

As a retired APS Special Education teacher (MA in Sp. Ed) I want you to revisit the new Standards as the proposed changes are inappropriate for our children and grandchildren. Especially K-8 should not be learning about political and sexual topics from their teacher. The changes are based on the assumptions that America has always been corrupt (racist) and has to be reformed by destroying and rebuilding it as a socialist nation (defund the police, outlaw guns, etc). What the NM State government intends is to promote ideas that are based on hatred--not understanding. If this isn't Critical Race Theory (CRT), I don't know what is.

New Mexico schools rank 49th, up from 50th in June, 2021. How will spending a billion or so dollars on rewriting the Social Studies Standards & Benchmarks improve the basic skills (reading, writing, math and science)? It seems that a liberal agenda is at play here.

Although you had a large number of callers on the air today supporting the changes, there are many more New Mexicans who did not call to voice their negative opinion on the proposed standards. Virginia introduced CRT a few years ago and when the Virginians saw what it was bringing about, they went to the polls two weeks ago and threw the scoundrels out!

--

Irene El-Genk

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies public hearing

Gina Goetz <gina_goetz@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Here are my written comments in regards to implementing new social studies standards and benchmarks in NM.

I strongly oppose this new curriculum. I truly believe teaching these standards will cause division between students of our multicultural state. New Mexico has so many rural areas comprised of many cultures. If students are divided by such, you will no longer have enough students to make athletic teams. Let me be specific as to where I grew up. I was taught to be an American, just as my immigrant-family friends from Mexico. We were great friends and teammates throughout our education. We are still friends today. However, if we had been taught that I am inherently privileged and they are inherently oppressed based solely on our skin tone and cultural background, we would've been pitted against each other and never looked beyond our skin color. Children do not see skin tone. When they ARE TAUGHT to see skin tone and make associations based on skin color, we are setting them for a divisive future.

I am 100% opposed to this curriculum being taught at any school in NM

Regards,
Gina Vanlandingham
Caballo

[EXTERNAL] New Curriculum

Jeanette Moss <mossaj2@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:58 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

As I have been reading through the social studies curriculum, I have become concerned by some of the proposed curriculum.

I am concerned about the focus being more on modern day social studies in the younger grades and not enough on history. In the second grade the curriculum states, "Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities and people who do not." My question is what identities are being taught to these 2nd graders? I have four children ranging in age from 5-16. I have witnessed the emotional, mental, and physical pain of the students who belong to the LGBTQ+ community. The LGBTQ+ community has 3 times the number of mental health issues. I am concerned that the students will be introduced to the LGBTQ+ ideology at a young age and that the Mental Health Crisis that I am seeing in the Junior High and High School will move down to the elementary schools with this curriculum. (I very strongly believe that everyone should be treated with kindness.) Has the impact on the student's mental health been looked into? If we are just going to celebrate people's different cultures then I am good with that, but are Christian cultures going to be included?

I'm concerned about the focus on people's different cultures and beliefs. My older kids have had a negative experience with their teachers teaching about different cultures and beliefs. Most of their teachers are not religious, which is fine. The problem is that the teachers do not hesitate to teach and show their disdain for religion in general. This is not appropriate; all cultures and religions should be treated with respect. If the negative is brought up about a religion, the positive aspects should be discussed as well. I want the students to be critical thinkers and that means discussing all sides of an issue. Also, the focus on people's differences is not going to bring people together, but further drive them apart. We should be focused on what we have in common, that is how people make friends, through common interests.

I would also ask that the emphasis on current events be lessened not increased in the classroom, especially in the younger grades. We live in a time where feelings are high in regards to politics. Both of my older daughters have had bad experiences with history teachers. We have had teachers try to push their views on politics both subtly and very forcefully. They have used peer pressure and intimidation to try to force my child to change her views and opinions. They have had the students publicly acknowledge their very personal political views in a classroom and even physically divided them up when discussing different points. This is not helpful, but harmful for the students, my daughter said she had students who have very strong opinions stand in the undecided group because they did not want to be singled out for their views. I would ask that we return to a greater study of history both to learn from it and to try to bring students together instead of causing more division in our country.

This quote from the curriculum stood out to me: "Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today." This quote looks problematic, I'm concerned as to how this is going to be taught. I'm concerned that kids of certain ethnicities will be taught that they are victims and other ethnicities that they are a problem because of their skin color is wrong. We lived in the outskirts of Houston, Texas for 10 years. I have never lived in a more wonderfully diverse place. And I learned over and over again that you cannot judge a person by their skin color, that people should be judged by their actions. We live in a wonderful country where many immigrants and Americans have found great success. Let us not lose the good things this country has to offer. I am well aware of the negative and I don't want it to be whitewashed, but I think an over emphasis on the negative things is going to harm our state.

Thank you for your time,

Jeanette Moss

[EXTERNAL] SS standards

kim lewis <klewisdas@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:58 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>Cc: socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org <socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the policy division of NMPED:

My name is Kimberly Green and I am a mother of 8th, 6th, and 3rd graders. I'd like to take a moment to voice my concerns about the proposed social studies standard changes. I am very concerned that these new standards are a thinly veiled attempt to indoctrinate our children in critical race theory.

CRT is a slippery slope that leads to further racial divides. Racism is defined by merriam-Webster as a belief that race is a fundamental determinant of human traits and capacities and that racial differences produce an inherent superiority of a particular race. CRT is, by definition, racist.

CRT teaches that an individual's race, not their character, is what makes them who they are. This flies in the face of everything Martin Luther King and the whole civil rights movement worked so hard to achieve. MLK's dream of a colorblind world where all races live and work hand and hand is slowly fading into the unknown. The American melting pot is no more. This breaks my heart.

These are a few of the standards I disagree with. 8.12, 8.19, 3.27, 3.28, 6.15, 6.16, 6.20, 6.22, 3.27, 3.28.

There are many more but this is a brief example of my concerns.

Instead of building up a generation of strong, hard working and determined individuals who believe in the American Dream we are pushing people of color into a pit of despair and self pity.

I urge you to reconsider the standards that have been drafted.

Kimberly Green

Klewisdas@yahoo.com

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Please oppose the passage of the new SS Standards

Doris Buckman <dorisbuckman@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:58 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing again because I am uncertain whether my previous emails have gotten through to the PED. I believe this has been rushed through without considering parental input. It is too political for our school systems. I am concerned this is biased and tries to usurp the parents' rights to educate their own children on LGBTQ issues.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards

Amy Coulson <bellcoulson@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am emailing because I am shocked that on standards you wll teach will discuss "global identity" and then go further to teach kids to not think certain lifestyles are wrong. There is so much rich history, and I am worried that adding these "far reaching" standards to seem more, not sure what, is going to take away from the history kids need to know. Also, it scares me to think what type of curriculum will be used to teach these new standards. Second grade shouldn't be discussing identity like what I fear will come from the wording of that theme and standards. Again, I am just not in favor of these new changes. Again, New Mexico has such amazing history and to add these new standards that seem to take away from history that pertains to the majority. Plus, it seems that it could be teaching ideologies.

Thank you,

Amy Coulson

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Judy Messal <judithmessal@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the New Mexico Department of Education. In the early 20th century, I have read, robust social studies curricula were developed in the U. S. to nurture the civic engagement of children of the immigrants entering the country. The educators realized that the children would share their knowledge of history and government with their parents.

Now we have the opportunity to restore a robust social science curriculum to our schools. To know how our governments at all levels operate is critical for people who elect their officials. To know geography and world history helps us comprehend our global neighbors better. To understand societal structures helps us develop our sense of community—from the local to the national level. To tell our own history completely—honoring the stories and perspectives of all our peoples, from Indigenous groups to the most recent immigrants—enriches us. Without such a curriculum we are called upon to be citizens without the proper background.

Judy Messal
11016 Calandrias nw
Albuquerque

Sent from my iPhone

Public Comment in Support of Proposed Social Studies Standards

NMTOY, Alisa, PED <Alisa.NMTOY@state.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Hello!

My name is Alisa Cooper de Uribe, and I would like to elaborate further on my support of the proposed Social Studies Standards. I am the parent of a fourth grade student, I am a first grade teacher at New Mexico International School, a dual language K-8 school in Albuquerque, New Mexico, and am the 2021 NM Teacher of the Year. Thank you for the opportunity for New Mexicans to share their variety of perspectives in this public forum.

I write today in support of the proposed updated Social Studies Standards. As a first grade teacher at an International Baccalaureate Primary Years Programme who has been incorporating the current standards into my six transdisciplinary units of inquiry, I find that proposed changes lend themselves much better to my and my students' explorations of the categories that fall under the umbrella of Social Studies. I admire the depth and breadth of knowledge and expertise of the educators who dedicated time and effort to drafting these standards.

I especially appreciate the inclusion of Inquiry and Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity anchor standards. This will provide important latitude in designing learning experiences with my students that allow them to see that their own backgrounds and current contexts are both relevant to them and a part of our living state and country. Importantly, the proposed Inquiry standards embed critical thinking skill-development and the capacity to determine what is objective by gathering and evaluating sources, including those of the adults in their lives, including me as a teacher. Our students can use these skills throughout their lifetimes as our local, national, and global contexts evolve in history, economics, civics, and geography.

What I strive to offer my students are mirrors, windows, and doors. By that, I mean that I work to promote the inclusion of my own students' stories, so that they can see themselves in the history of our state and country. Those mirrors are so important for students to internalize their inherent worth. By windows, I think about the importance of presenting students with information that goes beyond their realm of direct experience, and by doors, I refer to the opportunities for action that students can feel empowered to make, from reaching out to elected officials to establishing a program to address a need they see. These standards allow for any classroom with social studies to have those mirrors, windows, and doors, and they provide space for students to see even more reasons to feel joyful in their identities, and ways to identify past and present errors that they have the agency to change.

While individual teaching practice may lead to victimization or oppression, the suppression of the diversity of stories can also victimize and oppress. With adequate professional development and access to materials, our educators can use these thoughtful standards to serve their intended purpose of uplifting more identities and voices than before. Professional development and curricular support is certainly key. I know it will take me time to incorporate these standards into my unit, but I know it will broaden the visibility that my students will have in their day-to-day experience.

I am also the mother of a 10-year-old. My fourth grader is a dual citizen of Mexico and the United States. She speaks two languages and is learning a third. She loves our country, is proud to be a New Mexican, and also sees that there are issues that need to be fixed within our democracy. Just one example is how she is often misgendered in public spaces, and how binary stereotypes come up against her own identity. Learning about people, both past and present, who have lived similar experiences and worked to earn acceptance, respect, and rights, not only undergirds her understanding of civics and government, but also undergirds her own sense of validity within our society. Additionally, with family from Mexico who have done seasonal work in the US and some who still work in the agricultural circles of our economy, it has been meaningful to her to see that in addition to the Civil Rights work of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., there are figures related to her own family's civil rights that have done and continue to do the work of ensuring civil rights are upheld.

Again, I support these proposed standards and the opportunities it will open for me to improve my own practice as an educator, and as a parent of a bilingual student who feels both affirmed and validated by seeing elements of herself and her cultural histories in the school setting.

Alisa Cooper de Uribe (she/her/ella)

2021 New Mexico Teacher of the Year

Alisa.NMTOY@state.nm.us

[EXTERNAL] Disagree with Social Study updates

Estefani Hammond <estefani.hammond@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 4:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Greetings,

I am writing to express my disagreeing views with the current Social Study proposals. I was able to view the Artesia Public school rule changes and I am more agreeable with the Artesia Public School rule changes.

As I scanned through the proposed Social Study standards, it has a feel of being politically motivated instead of an educational improvement. It is a shame that the Party in charge of New Mexico would move to indoctrinate our children.

I request that you would allow time for a joint effort to improve the proposed standards and remove the political bias.

Thank you,

Estefani Hammond

[EXTERNAL] Opposition to CRT and CRT type curriculum in NM schools

Paul L Lopez <paul@1220media.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena and New Mexico Public Education Board,

We are writing to you today as very concerned parents. It is our understanding that Governor Michelle Lujan Grisham and the New Mexico Public Education Department (PED) are pushing liberal doctrine as well as Critical Race Theory (CRT) in an attempt to change standards for for K-12 Social Studies.

Social Studies Standards should focus on teaching students why the U.S. and state constitutions are the pillars of our republic and how/why these documents are fundamental to fulfilling the American ideal that all people are created equal; how our governmental structures work and why governmental authority is dispersed among three separate, but co-equal branches; and how our free-enterprise system has resulted in a standard of living that is the envy of people across the globe and which provides a beacon of economic opportunity for all.

The proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards degrade and slander the greatest country on earth. Our countries history in not perfect in terms of economic and human rights, as no country is, but that does not mean we should embrace a highly distorted or biased view that the United States of America is dominated by white supremacists and racists. Rather than encouraging division and victimhood among our diverse populations, Social Studies curriculum should encourage students to realize we are all Americans and we all have opportunities for economic advancement based on the principles of family, education and work. Currently twenty-six states have either adopted or are considering various policies/legislation that would restrict the teaching of CRT or limit how teachers can discuss racism and sexism. Student indoctrination should not be a function of government and politics does not belong in the classroom. A return to basic core fundamentals such as Math, Science, Reading and Writing should be the focus of our schools in particular considering the significant reduction of test scores prior to the pandemic now fueled by significant lost classroom time due to the pandemic.

There are many points that are very concerning in the proposed Social Studies Standards. Encourage young children to "take action" to address problems as this may lead to exploitation. The proposed standards also pushes further division by pointing out differences between individuals rather than similarities. The proposed standards sway from the teaching that America was founded on religious and economic liberties, but instead indicate that slavery was a dominating factor. There should also be a balanced discussion of the U.S. economic system, not some idealistic (socialism) economic system.

Also, high school students should not be taught how gender and sexuality norms changed over various historical periods or how this perspective is essential to understanding of US. History during those time periods. If an individual student has interest in LBGTQIA+ history, they can conduct independent research into those subjects rather than molding students toward acceptance of a personal or social agenda. In addition, the proposed standard that requires the examination of past, present, and future gun violence in the U.S. should include the Constitutional rights afforded citizens to bear arms and should include discussion as to how the proliferation of gangs, drug cartels, terrorist organizations and other criminal enterprises have resulted in more gun violence within our society. Violence is perpetuated by individuals , not inanimate objects.

Thank you,
Paul and Michele Lopez

"Pursue and do what is meaningful. Not what is expedient."

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on ads standards chandamay90@yahoo.com <chandamay90@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the policy division of NMPED

My name is Chanda Escamilla as a parent of two elementary students I am deeply concerned about the New Mexico social studies standard proposals. They change history and step in teaching students/our children things that will promote hate and that is filled with lies.

The new standards as they are proposed raise alarming concerns for me as a parent.

K5.31 and 6.22-

Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

Explain how the treatment of people past and present shape group identities and cultures.

- The past is something to learn from not some thing to dwell on or dredge back up hatred and segregation for the child's self or others.

3.27 -

Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.

- Personal identity should not be taught in school we should be sticking to the basics. This is just an avenue to push having different genders that goes against our religious views.

The proposed social studies standards create division hate and further problems that should be considered somewhat resolved the schools have not no right to teach children things about identity guns and hate amongst races these topics are too mature for most of the ages the standards are proposed to and can cause damage to the high school students who are very impressionable.

Sent from my iPhone

Subscribe/Bari Weiss

I Refuse to Stand By While My Students Are Indoctrinated

Children are afraid to challenge the repressive ideology that rules our school. That's why I am.

Paul Rossi

Apr 13 537 199

4/13/2021

(PhotoAlto/Frederic Cirou)

I am a teacher at Grace Church High School in Manhattan. Ten years ago, I changed careers when I discovered how rewarding it is to help young people explore the truth and beauty of mathematics. I love my work.

As a teacher, my first obligation is to my students. But right now, my school is asking me to embrace “antiracism” training and pedagogy that I believe is deeply harmful to them and to any person who seeks to nurture the virtues of curiosity, empathy and understanding.

“Antiracist” training sounds righteous, but it is the opposite of truth in advertising. It requires teachers like myself to treat students differently on the basis of race. Furthermore, in order to maintain a united front for our students, teachers at Grace are directed to confine our doubts about this pedagogical framework to conversations with an in-house “Office of Community Engagement” for whom every significant objection leads to a foregone conclusion. Any doubting students are likewise “challenged” to reframe their views to conform to this orthodoxy.

I know that by attaching my name to this I’m risking not only my current job but my career as an educator, since most schools, both public and private, are now captive to this backward ideology. But witnessing the harmful impact it has on children, I can’t stay silent.

My school, like so many others, induces students via shame and sophistry to identify primarily with their race before their individual identities are fully formed. Students are pressured to conform their opinions to those broadly associated with their race and gender and to minimize or dismiss individual experiences that don’t match those assumptions. The morally compromised status of “oppressor” is assigned to one group of students based on their immutable characteristics. In the meantime, dependency, resentment and moral superiority are cultivated in students considered “oppressed.”

All of this is done in the name of “equity,” but it is the opposite of fair. In reality, all of this reinforces the worst impulses we have as human beings: our tendency toward tribalism and sectarianism that a truly liberal education is meant to transcend.

Recently, I raised questions about this ideology at a mandatory, whites-only student and faculty Zoom meeting. (Such racially segregated sessions are now commonplace at my school.) It was a bait-and-switch “self-care” seminar that labelled “objectivity,” “individualism,” “fear of open conflict,” and even “a right to comfort” as characteristics of white supremacy. I doubted that these human attributes — many of them virtues reframed as vices — should be racialized in this way. In the Zoom chat, I also questioned whether one must define oneself in terms of a racial identity at all. My goal was to model for students that they should feel safe to question ideological assertions if they felt moved to do so.

It seemed like my questions broke the ice. Students and even a few teachers offered a broad range of questions and observations. Many students said it was a more productive and substantive discussion than they expected.

However, when my questions were shared outside this forum, violating the school norm of confidentiality, I was informed by the head of the high school that my philosophical challenges had caused “harm” to students, given that these topics were “life and death matters, about people’s flesh and blood and bone.” I was reprimanded for “acting like an independent agent of a set of principles or ideas or beliefs.” And I was told that by doing so, I failed to serve the “greater good and the higher truth.”

He further informed me that I had created “dissonance for vulnerable and unformed thinkers” and “neurological disturbance in students’ beings and systems.” The school’s director of studies added that my remarks could even constitute harassment.

A few days later, the head of school ordered all high school advisors to read a public reprimand of my conduct out loud to every student in the school. It was a surreal experience, walking the halls alone and hearing the words emitting from each classroom: “Events from last week compel us to underscore some aspects of our mission and share some thoughts about our community,” the statement began. “At independent schools, with their history of predominantly white populations, racism colludes with other forms of bias (sexism, classism, ableism and so much more) to undermine our stated ideals, and we must work hard to undo this history.”

Students from low-income families experience culture shock at our school. Racist incidents happen. And bias can influence relationships. All true. But addressing such problems with a call to “undo history” lacks any kind of limiting principle and pairs any allegation of bigotry with a priori guilt. My own contract for next year requires me to “participate in restorative practices designed by the Office of Community Engagement” in order to “heal my relationship with the students of color and other students in my classes.” The details of these practices remain unspecified until I agree to sign.

I asked my uncomfortable questions in the “self-care” meeting because I felt a duty to my students. I wanted to be a voice for the many students of different backgrounds who have approached me over the course of the past several years to express their frustration with indoctrination at our school, but are afraid to speak up.

They report that, in their classes and other discussions, they must never challenge any of the premises of our “antiracist” teachings, which are deeply informed by Critical Race Theory. These concerns are confirmed for me when I attend grade-level and all-school meetings about race or gender issues. There, I witness student after student sticking to a narrow script of acceptable responses. Teachers praise insights when they articulate the existing framework or expand it to apply to novel domains. Meantime, it is common for teachers to exhort students who remain silent that “we really need to hear from you.”

But what does speaking up mean in a context in which white students are asked to interrogate their “white saviorism,” but also “not make their antiracist practice about them”? We are compelling them to tiptoe through a minefield of double-binds. According to the school’s own standard for discursive violence, this constitutes abuse.

Every student at the school must also sign a “Student Life Agreement,” which requires them to aver that “the world as we understand it can be hard and extremely biased,” that they commit to “recognize and acknowledge their biases when we come to school, and interrupt those biases,” and accept that they will be “held accountable should they fall short of the agreement.” A recent faculty email chain received enthusiastic support for recommending that we “officially’ flag students” who appear “resistant” to the “culture we are trying to establish.”

When I questioned what form this resistance takes, examples presented by a colleague included “persisting with a colorblind ideology,” “suggesting that we treat everyone with respect,” “a belief in meritocracy,” and “just silence.” In a special assembly in February 2019, our head of school said that the impact of words and images perceived as racist — regardless of intent — is akin to “using a gun or a knife to kill or injure someone.”

Imagine being a young person in this environment. Would you risk voicing your doubts, especially if you had never heard a single teacher question it?

Last fall, juniors and seniors in my Art of Persuasion class expressed dismay with the “Grace bubble” and sought to engage with a wider range of political viewpoints. Since the BLM protests often came up in our discussions, I thought of assigning Glenn Loury, a Brown University professor and public intellectual whose writings express a nuanced, center-right position on racial issues in America. Unfortunately, my administration put the kibosh on my proposal.

The head of school responded to me that “people like Loury’s lived experience—and therefore his derived social philosophy” made him an exception to the rule that black thinkers acknowledge structural racism as the paramount impediment in society. He added that “the moment we are in institutionally and culturally, does not lend itself to dispassionate discussion and debate,” and discussing Loury’s ideas would “only confuse and/or enflame students, both those in the class and others that hear about it outside of the class.” He preferred I assign “mainstream white conservatives,” effectively denying black students the opportunity to hear from a black professor who holds views that diverge from the orthodoxy pushed on them.

I find it self-evidently racist to filter the dissemination of an idea based on the race of the person who espouses it. I find the claim that exposing 11th and 12th graders to diverse views on an important societal issue will only “confuse” them to be characteristic of a fundamentalist religion, not an educational philosophy.

My administration says that these constraints on discourse are necessary to shield students from harm. But it is clear to me that these constraints serve primarily to shield their ideology from harm — at the cost of students’ psychological and intellectual development.

It was out of concern for my students that I spoke out in the “self-care” meeting, and it is out of that same concern that I write today. I am concerned for students who crave a broader range of viewpoints in class. I am concerned for students trained in “race explicit” seminars to accept some opinions as gospel, while discarding as immoral disconfirming evidence. I am concerned for the dozens of students during my time at Grace who shared with me that they have been reproached by teachers for expressing views that are not aligned with the new ideology.

One current student paid me a visit a few weeks ago. He tapped faintly on my office door, anxiously looking both ways before entering. He said he had come to offer me words of support for speaking up at the meeting.

I thanked him for his comments, but asked him why he seemed so nervous. He told me he was worried that a particular teacher might notice this visit and “it would mean that I would get in trouble.” He reported to me that this teacher once gave him a lengthy “talking to” for voicing a conservative opinion in class. He then remembered with a sigh of relief that this teacher was absent that day. I looked him in the eyes. I told him he was a brave young man for coming to see me, and that he should be proud of that.

Then I sent him on his way. And I resolved to write this piece.

I am extremely proud to publish this piece by Paul Rossi. If you are a teacher who finds yourself in a similar situation; if you want to speak out but are afraid to risk your job; if you believe that political indoctrination has no place in schools, Paul would love to hear from you.

Write to him at: teachingfortruth@gmail.com

Tonight I'm hosting a Clubhouse room with Paul to talk about why he decided to write this piece and the broader problem of this ideology.

Please join us at 6 PM PST here.

If you think essays like this are important, please subscribe and spread the word:

Type your email...	Subscribe
--------------------	-----------

♥ 537 💬 199 📄

← Previous

Write a comment...

October 24, 2021

Dear Mr. Sena,

I write to you to ask you to embrace the ~~PEW's~~ proposed history and social studies guidelines. History was my first love and I remember being not only stunned, but highly critical of the textbook used the first time I took a college level American history survey course.

The real history of the United States in general and New Mexico in particular should not come as a surprise to even gifted students when they start college. I have no idea whether you are a career civil servant or a political appointee*. Either way, I am sure it has not escaped your notice that the fate of American democracy will be decided in the next few years.

The United States was founded as a monocultural republic (like most republics prior to World War II, including Mexico). There were two preconditions for it to become a
*I am a career civil servant myself (see the enclosed card)

Democracy. First of all, at least a majority of the population had to hold objective truth as a primary value.

Second, and more importantly, no democracy has ever existed anywhere without a commitment to pluralism, which is the opposite of a monocultural ethnostate. The rejection of pluralism leads inevitably to fascism. Therefore, our history and social studies curricula must be informed by critical race theory. The loudest voices in society today demand the exclusion of critical race theory from public education. That by itself is enough to persuade me that it must rather be included.

Sincerely,
Jason Ballenthorn

JASON W. GALBRAITH
ASSISTANT DISTRICT ATTORNEY

845 N. MOTEL BLVD.
SECOND FLOOR, SUITE D
LAS CRUCES, NM 88007

OFFICE: (575) 524-6370
CELL: (575) 636-9730
JGALBRAITH@DA.STATE.NM.US
WWW.DONAACOUNTYDA.COM

GERALD M. BYERS THIRD JUDICIAL DISTRICT ATTORNEY

October 28, 2021

John Sena

New Mexico Public Education Division, Policy Division

300 Don Gaspar Ave Rm 121

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

I have reviewed the proposed guidelines and believe they provide a useful framework for developing history and social studies curricula that is honest, fact-based, respectful of multicultural diversity, and willing to address all chapters in American history and in current society.

I support providing the children of New Mexico an honest, robust, fact/evidence based curriculum in history and social studies that honestly reflects the experiences and contributions of the diverse peoples who have made our state and nation what it is today.

Please consider my opinion supporting these proposed standards.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Shirley A. Davis".

Shirley A. Davis
3045 Buena Vida Circle, #112
Las Cruces, NM 88011

Public comment in support of the:

Newly drafted K-12 Social Studies Standards 2021

To whom this concerns,

Passing up-to-date, comprehensive and equity-based social studies curricular standards will improve social studies education for all New Mexico students while encouraging critical thinking and exploration of important history and systems in New Mexico, the United States, and the world. The state of New Mexico has demonstrated courage in developing standards in a controversial academic arena that will ultimately encourage civil engagement in a polarized society. The new standards incorporate concepts centering on social justice, tribal sovereignty and sustainable futures that will help protect our children, neighbors and future.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Giselle Piburn', with a large, stylized flourish extending to the left.

11/7/21

Giselle Piburn

Santa Fe, NM

October 10, 2021

Dear Mr. Sena: In response to the open comment period concerning the use of "Critical Race Theory" in the NM school curriculum:

Critical Race Theory is largely based on the assumption that the most important thing about you is your race; not your values and morals, not your character and integrity, but only the color of your skin. This idea is presented in a narrative published by the New York Times called the 1619 Project. It further claims that the "privileged" race seeks to exploit the "minority" race, that whites are oppressors and blacks are victims, and that American capitalism exists through oppression. It rejects any notion of Equality Theory, legal reasoning or Constitutional Law. It ignores the documented historical record or the simple fact that America is the freest nation in the world. It looks for racism "critically" and it always finds it. The purpose is to "reframe American History", the method is to replace historical truth with biased opinions, tainted racial ideology, and often, outright lies.¹ In essence, Critical Race Theory is propaganda used to promote racism and to institutionalize it in the Public Educational System.

According to critical race theorists, the central event and driving motivation of America's founders was for the importation and servitude of Africans. Their story begins in 1619, with "a ship, bound for Virginia, carrying twenty enslaved Africans...to be sold to the colonists...the beginning of American slavery". This opening statement is fraught with inaccuracies and outright lies, as is the entire narrative. According to official documents and period publications, the first enslaved Africans were brought to America in 1526 on ships from Spain.² The vessel referenced to in 1619 carried indentured, not enslaved, Africans, some of whom became free land owners when their work contract expired.³ Before colonial settlement, approximately 30% of Native Americans were enslaved by other Native tribes.⁴ In 1655, the first court ruling legalizing slavery came in a case whereby a black man sought, and was granted, ownership of another black man.⁵ The first region in the entire world to outlaw slavery was New England, and by 1804 all northern states had antislavery laws.⁶ America was the first nation in the world to ban the international slave trade and in 1819, enforced it with a squadron of naval vessels stationed off the West African coast to stop the exportation of slaves.⁷ The naval blockade continued until the onset of the Civil War, which was fought to end slavery permanently. Of the 12.7 million slaves taken out of Africa, 43% were enslaved to Portugal and Brazil, 26% to Great Britain, 15% to Spain, 11% to France, and 2.5 % to America. There is not a single nation in the world that, at one time or another, did not engage in slavery. Of the 193 present day countries, 94 of them still practice slavery or have no laws banning it. There are 40 million slaves in the world today and historically, there has been more white slaves than black.⁸

¹ Body and Text of the 1619 Project New York Times

² The Washington Post 09/07/2017

³ Records of historical Jamestown National Park Service 2020

⁴ Indian Slavery in Colonial Times Columbia University 1913

⁵ Johnson v Parker Northampton Virginia Court Record 1655

⁶ Archive Of Historical Records Wallbuilders.com

⁷ The Congressional Record Judd Harmon thesis College of William and Mary 1977

⁸ Archive Of Historical Records Wallbuilders.com

Clearly, slavery is not conditional to race, but it does testify to the evil within the human heart. The overreaching objective of our founding fathers was to honor the Biblical mandate to love and respect each other, and to heed the warning that a "house divided will not stand". This concept is enshrined in the defining document of American history, the Declaration of Independence, stating that "all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights, among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness". These truths are the foundation behind almost everything that Americans believe in and strive for.

We must not allow one sided ideology filled with false information and racial stereotypes to be forced into the minds of our children. It is poisonous and destructive and we have seen it before. Communism and Nazism were also founded on racial intolerance- Hitler claiming Aryan superiority and Lenin a class divided by oppression. The progression of such propaganda is certain- indoctrination is used to create social division which drives the impetus for retribution and weaponizes one faction against another, leading to open lawlessness, then brutal chaos. The new order created by these social experiments resulted in iron-fisted tyrannical rule, a body count of untold millions, and individual freedoms lost forever.

There is a better way and that is by teaching truth. The truth that America did practice slavery, but that it was bitterly contested and eventually crushed. That we have an indelible Declaration declaring equality and freedom for all Americans, with an intact and enforceable Constitution, the overriding law of the land, guaranteeing these rights for all of us. Ask yourself, why do they attack us and not those nations that still condone slavery? Every deceptive strategy in the past has used lies to weaken and overcome the people it wished to control. Our strength and our survival depend on an unbreakable commitment to the truths that built our nation. To let that go is to commit ourselves to the fate of those in the past who let their freedoms slide, inch by inch, into the depths of tyranny.

Mr. Sena- please, carefully consider the impact this curriculum will have on our nation.

Respectfully,

Mr. Stephen Hackett

Placitas NM

October 12, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to comment on the proposed New Mexico Social Studies Standards for 2021. Lest you think I'm some right-wing nut case, I voice my opinions in the following context:

- I am not an educator, but I am a fairly well-educated individual (master's degree), who understands critical thinking and classically liberal ideas.
- I was educated in an era that valued the ideals of Dr. Martin Luther King (ie, the content of a person's character is more important than the color of his or her skin) and the concept of a meritocracy.
- I am the grandmother of two biracial children, and I don't want to see those children harmed by identity politics.
- Rather than take the word of any political group regarding the content of the social studies standards, I actually read all 122 pages of the draft document. I also looked at some of the resources used to develop the standards such as the Social Justice Standards from the Southern Poverty Law Center.

I frankly am appalled by what I read in the draft document, starting with the guiding principles on page 9. These principles reflect Critical Race Theory, which was originally described by Richard Delgado and Jean Stefancic in a book of the same name.

In my opinion, CRT is a dangerous, divisive theory that only looks at human interaction through the "lens" of oppressor and victim. CRT promotes a negative view of American society as inherently racist and evil and ranks people according to a hierarchy of victimhood. In addition, CRT encourages social activism to advance a specific social agenda. Although you might argue that the state does not directly advocate the teaching of CRT, these toxic ideas permeate the standards, and they ultimately harm children.

I could point to several standards that mirror CRT philosophy, but possibly the most egregious example appears in the high school U.S. history section, pages 110-112. The period 1968-2008 is called "Rise of Conservatism" and 2008-present is termed "U.S. in a Global Age." The majority of the performance standards in these sections focus on progressive domestic issues (eg, gun violence, anti-immigrant sentiment, police brutality, etc). Didn't a rather significant event occur on September 11, 2001? Why is there no mention of the 9/11 attacks and the War on Terror?

I have no problem with critically examining U.S. history based on a factual analysis or honoring New Mexico's diverse social fabric. However, I want students to celebrate the uniqueness of the American system and the progress our country has made toward equality and justice for its citizens. A school's job is not to turn students into social justice warriors but rather to develop responsible, productive citizens. Therefore, I oppose the New Mexico Social Studies Standards for 2021 as written.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Katherine Ott". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large, stylized 'K' and 'O'.

Katherine Ott
7512 El Morro Rd NE
Albuquerque, NM 87109
katherine.ott@comcast.net

P.S. You might want to proofread the draft document more carefully. Ronald Reagan's name is misspelled on page 110, and the third bullet on page 9 probably was meant to be two bullets, in that it makes no sense as written.

I am a senior citizen and to me our children of the future have a very tough road ahead of them and I worry about them. Racism has gone too far and should never be gone this far but what can we senior citizens say or do as we are nobody.

I strongly feel our youth today needs Social Studies and know how our USA is run and should be run. How long has a Social Studies class or book been brought to our attention or needs. You fear racism may become more, well look and guess what the people are as they have never paid attention to Social Studies. Yes Social Studies by all means needs to be brought back in to our schools

Thank you
God Bless This Country USA.

©1999 PMI Licensee, Cifco Inc.

Judicial Watch of New Mexico

Bernalillo County - Santa Fe County - Torrance County - Sandoval County - Valencia County
P.O. Box 1452, Tijeras, New Mexico 87059

Office of the President
505-550-1700

10-4-2021

NMPED
300 Don Gaspar Ave
Santa Fe, NM 8701

Opposition to the Woke Critical Race Theory in NM Social Studies

To PED's Social Studies Curriculum Committee, Agent or Assigns:

We are for a strong social studies program grounded in truth. However, New Mexicans have had enough of NMPED forcing their Religion of Equality down the throats of our children!

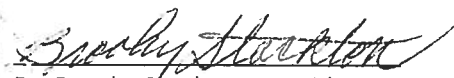

The members of Judicial Watch of New Mexico (private) are strongly opposed to the introduction of woke Critical Race Theory in public education for the following reasons:

1. For New Mexicans are not fundamentally racists. Born, raised, and educated in New Mexico, racism is simply not a problem, but immoral-antichrist-socialism in education is!
2. For CRT is fundamentally a left-wing, Talmudic-Marxist strategy to further divide and splinter Americans.
3. For CRT is at its core racist because it fuels hatred for Anglo-Saxon Americans.
4. For CRT is nothing more than pseudo-controversy to empower affirmative-action to suppress the God-given rights of young white-Americans.
5. This country was founded on the Puritan Ethic and not the impossible-utopian ideal of equality.
6. Public education should be about the three R's and true American history, and not about conforming children to religious, left-wing cultural propaganda, fake history, and secular religious-ideals.

Maybe, NMPED would do better to consider reintroducing the Puritan-gospel with its love and respect for all men back in the classroom. It was William Wilberforce, the white evangelical-British-politician, and John Newton, author of "Amazing Grace," that abolished the black-slave trade in England. A movement that Americans welcomed wholeheartedly.

For this reason and others, stop this cultural-formation nonsense!

Without Prejudice,

Dr. Brooky Stockton, President

To Whom it may concern;

These are my thoughts on CRT (critical race theory).

Critical race theory is Wrong.

When you are all only looking at everything by the color of your skin, That is a racist thing. (Very Racist).

The U.S. census Form is a very racist document.

Race or Ancestral Background is really no business of anyone but me.

You should only be interested in:

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1-are you a U.S. citizen | yes or no |
| 2-do you have a Visa or Green card | yes or no |
| 3-are you illegally here | yes or no |

This is all that should matter to the citizens of the United States, not the color of the my skin or where my ancestors are from. My identity or Ancestral background or (anyone else's) Does Not need to be recorded by any government, society or any organization at all.

Ethnicity and race are interesting and fun to see when you are searching your genealogy.

When the census workers call and want me to identify myself by white, black, Hispanic, Asian, ect.;; (Because I list our family as Americans), I ask them what year they want me to identify where my ancestors come from. Because I can get ancestors from every country.

So in short I come from ALL races, ethnicities & all countries.

CRT is hateful, racist and just plain wrong.

We need to be a people of acceptance.

It doesn't matter what the color of your skin is or where your ancestors are from.

All that matters is, that you are a person. A citizen of the United States of America.

Thank you very much for your time

Barbara Nicholes

November 7, 2021

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Carla Armijo and I'm a constituent from Santa Fe.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

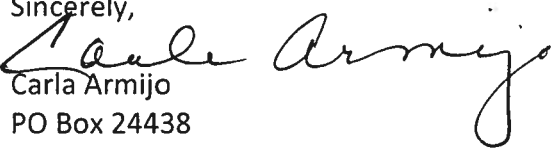

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

I intend to attend a protest on these proposed standards in Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from 1- 3 pm in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

Thank you for your time and attention to this very important matter.

Sincerely,

Carla Armijo
PO Box 24438
Santa Fe, NM 87502

CC: Santa Fe Public Schools
Chairman, Santa Fe School Board
610 Alta Vista Street, Santa Fe, NM. 87505

November 8,
2021

Attention: Mr. John Sena and the N.M. Public Education Department,

I am writing this letter in protest of the N.M. Department of Public Education proposing the Critical Race Theory, CRT, curriculum to be taught in all N.M. Public Schools.

The material discussed in the CRT has no place in the early education of our K-12 grade students here in New Mexico.

Our students have the right to be taught about our American history through the fundamental ideas on which our Constitutional Republic is based. The Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights should never be presented at the public school level thru the lens of racism.

Our children deserve to be taught the true historical history of the country they are living in. They should be encouraged in their educational environment to become a successful, productive young person with respect for and courtesy of others. They should seek knowledge of and understanding for rules and laws to live by, and a goal of becoming a mature and contributing individual as an adult.

Our children should not be taught the most important thing about themselves is their race.

One final comment for your attention follows on the next page.

Our Children belong to THEIR PARENTS, not the public schools. CRT undermines family values and for many students Church values which parents are teaching in their homes.

The New Mexico Public Schools should be educating our children in academics. Let the Parents raise their children in nurturing skills.

Respectfully,
Wendy Saiz
A parent and New Mexico Public
School teacher for 30 years.

Barbara Atencio <nanatencio@gmail.com>

Proposed Social Standards

10 messages

Barbara Atencio <nanatencio@gmail.com>
To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Mon, Nov 8, 2021 at 1:23 PM

To EVERYONE who is working on the so-called new "Social Studies Standards" for New Mexico students:

I read in your opening statements on your web site that these new "Social Studies Standards" and I quote, "Is to ensure that ALL of our students see themselves reflected in the classroom, that our learning environments are culturally and linguistically responsive and that the rich backgrounds and perspectives of ALL New Mexicans come alive in the classroom." From what I read in these new standards you are hardly ensuring ALL students will be treated equally. This is just one example... 9-12.US.123. This will be a question teachers will be told to ask their students, "Assess the short and long term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people." Why wasn't liberalism included in this question? Why are you trying to create divisiveness among our children? Why is it the school's job to pit one group of children against another? I had always held the understanding that teachers were to keep their personal and political beliefs to themselves and teach the basics. We never intended for school systems to usurp our parenting duties and rights in the manner that you are proposing in this curriculum which is so biased. With Covid affecting our students' quality of learning in an adverse manner, teachers should be spending more time on basic core subjects not social indoctrination. What happened to teaching our children to judge an individual on the content of their character and not on the color of their skin or their political or social leanings.

There may be a couple good things in these standards but unfortunately there are far too many other bad examples in the Proposed Social Standards as well. Teacher Wendy Leighton, one of the drafters of these new so called "Social Standards" was quoted in the Santa Fe New Mexican (Sunday Nov. 7, 2021) "We have developed a very thorough, up-to-date, historically accurate social studies standard which will provide a well-rounded education, where ALL stories and voices will be heard,"

Unfortunately the following proposed standards and others listed in the proposal will only consider certain opinions and ideologies from students, far from a "well-rounded education where ALL stories and voices will be heard.": "9-12.US.56". / "9-12.US.129". / "9-12.US.132". Are you now proposing that our already overworked and overwhelmed teachers will now have the duty of indoctrinating our children and usurping any rights as parents to instill our own values at home? As a parent and grandparent I am deeply concerned about where these "proposed social standards" are going and about the future of our children and our society if these standards are implemented in our schools. We feel that this is the same federal government "intervention" that was attempted in the state of Virginia's public schools and was soundly rejected by the voters in their last gubernatorial election. Please do not go through with these changes. It will only bring hurt and harm. Surely you see how these changes are so biased. Please see that this is a bad idea that does not need to be a part of New Mexico schools. New Mexico is better than this. We need ideas that will encourage and inspire our students such as vocational and trade programs for the 80 percent of students who do not go on to higher education or drop out of school completely, so more students will be able to graduate from High School with job skills ready to join the workforce. We don't need to go backwards in the way we treat one another as these proposed "social studies" standards will only cause divisiveness. Why can't New Mexico be a leader in education policies with beneficial ideas and changes instead of following a bad precedent by this administration that will cause more division since segregation.

11/8/21, 1:43 PM

Gmail - Proposed Social Standards

We would also ask that PED listen to all school districts, other parents and educators who are calling for an extension of public comment on these proposed Social Standard changes as the schools have not yet recovered from the shutdown caused by the pandemic. These proposed changes are not only bad but they are an unnecessary burden on our teachers at a time when New Mexico is ranked "dead last" in the United States for the quality of our education system according to the "Wallethub" study.

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Roberta Cheek and I'm a constituent from Santa Fe.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

I intend to protest against this curriculum on Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from ~~7-8~~ 9-10 pm in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

Thank you for your time and have a great day.

Sincerely,

Roberta Cheek
3108 Jacona Circle
Santa Fe, NM 87507
(505) 577-6285

CC: Chairman of the School Board
610 Alta Vista
Santa Fe, NM 87505

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Marshall Cheek and I'm a constituent from Santa Fe.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

I intend to protest against this curriculum on Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from ~~9-12~~pm in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

Thank you for your time and have a great day.

Sincerely,

Marshall Cheek
3108 Jacona Circle
Santa Fe, NM 87507
(505) 577-6285

CC: Chairman of the School Board
610 Alta Vista
Santa Fe, NM 87505

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Sabrina Larsen and I'm a constituent from Los Alamos NM.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices.
6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/ racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

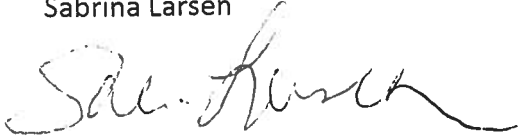

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

Thank you for your time and have a great day.

Sincerely,
Sabrina Larsen

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Sabrina Larsen". The signature is fluid and cursive, with a long, sweeping tail that extends to the right.

2153 Deer Trail
Slarsen5293@icloud.com
505-699-5293

cc.Los Alamos School Board
Administration Office
2101 Trinity Drive, Suite V
Los Alamos, New Mexico 87544

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Patricia Granich and I'm a constituent from Los Alamos NM.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices.
6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/ racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LBGQTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

Thank you for your time and have a great day.

Sincerely,
Patricia Granich.

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Patricia Granich". The signature is written in black ink and is positioned above the printed contact information.

2153 Deer Trail
lilaced21@msn.com
505-670-1479

cc.Los Alamos School Board
Administration Office
2101 Trinity Drive, Suite V
Los Alamos, New Mexico 87544

Mr. John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Jack Carpenter and I'm a constituent from Taos, New Mexico. I served the NMPED as a member of a committee dealing with Special Needs children for 6 years. I have been intimately involved with the Taos Municipal School District for over 35 years as a concerned parent/foster parent of over 140 different children with differing racial background and spouse of a public-school teacher.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards that need to be discarded or changed to eliminate any racial profiling of students and/or their parents:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)

2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood. Basically, this is a teaching racial discrimination in this tri-cultural state when history shows the different cultures working together.

3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of “justice and fairness,” unequal power relations, “past and current injustices,” although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h) . History show Freedom of religion was the catalyst for many to cross the Atlantic Ocean to the shores of what became the United States of America. In addition, many people and families worked against slavery and never owned slaves. However, the various Native American tribes also practiced slavery when one tribe defeated another in warfare.

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i) The economic system of the United States is not perfect. However, it allows anyone who wants to succeed to work toward that goal. The socialist and communist systems allow the elite to have the benefits and everyone else to get the crumbs. Note the number of non-white businesses that were destroyed in the riots of 2021.

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LBGTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. Since when should schools be examining gun violence when guns are inert. They do not go off by themselves, do not load themselves, do not aim themselves. The truth of the matter is humans making the gun a weapon when they pick it up. Teach truth not fiction and untruth 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. These standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again, see the socialist class v class assumption herein. The conflicts that rage today 2021 are the result of political differences not racial differences. It all comes down to if you do not agree with my beliefs, you must be silenced at best or eliminated at worse. 29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? What is the real meaning of this standard? Why not use the involvement of Russian in the Cuba crisis in the early 1960's. Cuba's involvement with the insurrections and murders of innocent citizens of Central and South American countries. This standard is meant to paint the US government in a bad light. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? Sure there was some bad aspects but once again this standard is being used to divide the students by racial background not bring people together. This standard should be changed. 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. Why not add the brutality toward the Native American tribes by other Native American tribes, brutality toward the settlers of the country and this state in various uprising by Native Americans and the Spanish settlers, the brutality between the current government elites and the rest of society. Missing is a discussion on the brutality between gangs. This standard should not single out the police. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

If possible, I intend to speak at the hearing in Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from 1- 3 pm in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

Thank you for your time and have a great day.

Sincerely,

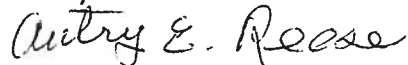

Jack Carpenter
222 Adobe
Taos, New Mexico 87571
jdcgac0151@gmail.com
575.741.0929

To: Public Education Department of New Mexico

Dear Member, We are writing our comments and concerns about the new course in Social Studies you are considering for our classrooms. So often our students are being indoctrinated to a slanted viewpoint instead of being taught true facts. This has been going on for decades about our true historical founding of our great country. This course that you are wanting to implement into our school systems around the state are doing the same thing and we are strongly against it! Our country is NOT systemic racist as so many are proclaiming. For sure there are racists in our country and there always will be but that is entirely different than stating that the whole country is racist. The idea that the white race is superior to others is completely false and against all that our Constitution and Declaration of Independence declares – “All (every race) men (people) are created equal”! Critical Race Theory may not be named as such in this course but the same principles will be taught and that is an evil teaching that has NO place in our classrooms! Every person has the same opportunities in this country if they have the determination to succeed in life. God has given to each of us the exact same kind of brain that functions the same in us all.

In conclusion, we do not want any part of Critical Race Theory or similar teaching in this social studies course! The indoctrination of our children must cease!

Autry E. Reese

Edith J. Reese

As regards the Public Education Department's proposed social security curriculum.

CRT founder Derrick Bell wrote,

" The whole liberal worldview of private rights and public sovereignty mediated by the rule of law needed to be exploded"

If the United States and its political system are so terrible, capitalism and the safety nets provided by taxpayer dollars for those who cannot care for themselves so inequitable why do the poor from every part of the world want to come here?

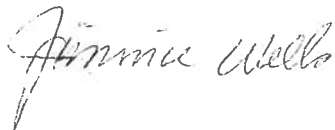

Why teach differences and emphasize that which divides instead of finding commonality in order to find unity?

As a black parent expressed to his local school board "Teaching a child today that he has grievances against another child because of something that happened 2 centuries ago is morally wrong. Refuse this agenda and let racism die the death it deserves."

Critical Race Theory is designed to destroy our society, your proposal contains far too many similarities to CRT to be successful in aiding our state to progress with harmony and unity between our ethnic groups.

Every culture in history has its errors and faults; the United States Constitution has provided for the injustices of the past to be overcome through the basic paradigm of individual rights and protection from the rule of the mob.

Jimmie Wells
PO Box 21
Claunch NM 87011

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Jimmie Wells".

Elizabeth Beers
PO Box 1677
Socorro, NM 87801

November 4, 2021

John Sena, Public Education Department
Policy Division
NM Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Beers

This is critically important if we ever want to end poverty. Wish this training had been embedded prior to stimulus and other incentives that were blown and could have really been used to enhance life!

Mr. and Mrs. David Fox
238 Rio Bravo Drive
Los Alamos, NM 87547

November 5, 2021

John Sena, Public Education Department
Policy Division
NM Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

We are writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

EVEN IN LOS ALAMOS where we had a retail business for 40 years which yielded abundant contact with teens, I came to recognize that understanding of personal finance was not only lacking to an astonishing extent, but was perpetuated by lack of any systematically educated awareness, much less the opportunity to gain a clear, deeper, and thus motivational understanding of its potentials

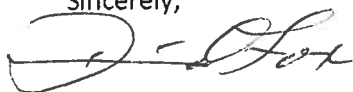

That is why I support Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards which would make sure that every student in the state has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefiting them for the rest of their lives, and in the course of time, benefiting also their parents, other family members and others within their family ties.

I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Personal Finance: a lifetime sport, played for both individual and societies' success as an anti-poverty strategy. Simply put, let's use these revisions to multiply the number of individuals with personal finance skills. IT IS TIME.

Thank you for considering our comments.

Sincerely,

David Fox

Anne Fox

November 1, 2021

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Linda Maynard and I'm a constituent from Hobbs, NM.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

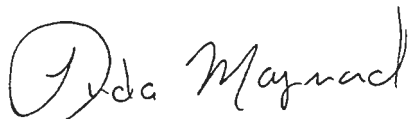

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

I intend to attend a protest on these proposed standards in Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from 1- 3 pm in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

Thank you for your time and have a great day.

Sincerely,
Linda Maynard
1118 W Mesa Verde Dr.
Hobbs, NM 88240
Lmedccna@yahoo.com
928-380-0916

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Linda Maynard". The signature is written in black ink and is positioned to the left of the typed contact information.

CC: Hobbs, NM School Board
Chairman, Hobbs School Board
1515 E Sanger, Hobbs, NM 88240

Joseph E. “Uncle Joe” Knight

POB 599 - Hagerman, NM - 88232

nm_libertarian@yahoo.com

October 9, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Ave., Rm 121
Santa Fe, NM, 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to comment on the proposed Social Studies Standards update.

I see much that, in my opinion, emphasizes the negative, and that pits groups of people against each other by emphasizing differences that divide us rather than common values that unite us.

My main concern however, is with the section on U.S. History. Specifically, I call your attention to:

9-12.US.42. Analyze the persistence of the “Lost Cause of the Confederacy” narrative and its long term effects.

9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a “war to free the slaves,” and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people.

9-12.US.45. Explain how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.

“Lost Cause of the Confederacy Narrative” (aka Lost Cause Mythology) is the name used by certain elements of establishment academia to discredit aspects of history that doesn’t fit THEIR narrative, and the term has become a derogatory, cultural slur meant to denigrate, vilify, and marginalize southerners who have studied their own history. Use of the term is offensive and I object.

I also object to perpetuation of the notion that the war was all about freeing slaves. All four of my paternal 2nd great grandfathers fought for the South and not one of them owned a slave, nor is there any reason why they would fight to defend someone else's right to own slaves. They fought because, as they saw it, a hostile foreign army was invading their homeland. You have no right to teach our children that they were fighting to defend slavery.

I have studied that war for over 50 years, and have read many of the diaries of the rank and file soldiers, and the overwhelming majority, north and south, simply were not fighting over slavery.

Indeed, BOTH presidents have said the war was NOT about slavery.

Abraham Lincoln
President
USA

My paramount object in this struggle is to save the Union, and is not either to save or to destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave I would do it, and if I could save it by freeing all the slaves I would do it; and if I could save it by freeing some and leaving others alone I would also do that. What I do about slavery, and the colored race, I do because I believe it helps to save the Union.

Jefferson Davis
President
CSA

The North was mad and blind; it would not let us govern ourselves, and so the war came, and now it must go on till the last man of this generation falls in his tracks, and his children seize the musket and fight our battle, unless you acknowledge our right to self government. We are not fighting for slavery. We are fighting for independence.

Lincoln himself, in his first inaugural address, expressed a doubt that he had the right to abolish slavery where it existed and voiced support for a constitutional amendment that would have protected slavery where it existed. His Proclamation Emancipation actually said that the South could KEEP slavery if only they would come back to the Union, recognize his authority, and pay their taxes.

I believe this proposal is an example of the worst danger of socialized education – the ability to pervert, politicize, and weaponize history for the sake of contemporary agendas. I must ask that you reject these proposed standards and start over. I object very strongly to your disparagement of my ancestors, and expectation of me paying for it.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Greg E. Wright".

Facebook page: James Lindsay

Website: NewDiscourses.com

Locals.com: NewDiscourses.Locals.com

posted 7/9/2021

James Lindsay

25m

SCOOP: A whistleblower has provided me with the complete list of books for Albuquerque Public Schools in New Mexico. Almost everything is about race, queerness, or derived from Howard Zinn (Critical Historian, revisionist). This isn't education. It's Critical Theory programming.

*social studies curriculum only. Don't be alarmed that no math or science, etc., is on there. It's not meant to be.

Nearly all of the proposed social studies curriculum in Albuquerque, NM, schools is geared around Critical Theory interpretations of American history and social life. The goal would obviously be to make students think negatively about their country and state.

I should also point out how much of the recommended reading list is feminist, which will serve the same Critical agenda. The goal is, yet again, to criticize the existing society (per Marx's "ruthless criticism of everything that exists") to demolish faith and support for it.

Many of these books will be defended as "providing a different perspective/voice," and people will be challenged to say what they think is wrong about alternative perspectives/voices. That's a trap. It's the leveraging of all curricula to Critical Theory ends, which is wrong.

There is a limited time in the curriculum in schools, and everyone knows that. Virtually every book on that list short of the core textbooks is either Critical or easily leveraged to Critical ends. Core civics competency and understanding of the state/nation should be the goal.

Critical Pedagogy regards its mission to indoctrinate for "social justice" and "democratic citizenship" in line with Gramsci's openly communist vision. You can see that here, from Henry Giroux, On Critical Pedagogy. Giroux is one of the most influential Marxian-Leftists in ed.

As I explored here in tremendous detail, for Marxians like the Woke, "democratic citizenship" means "in favor of communism/equity and taking up social activism on its behalf." This school district's curriculum is in line with this Maoist objective.

<https://newdiscourses.com/.../woke-manipulation-democracy/>

Mr. John Sena
NM PED
300 Don Gaspar Ave., Room 121
Santa Fe, NM 87501
November 12, 2021

Since NM's K-12 students are only performing at grade level in life skills math at 20% and in reading at 30%, one would think that would be where the State of NM's education improvement and updates focus ought to be. Instead, NM's PED is opting for drastic changes to social studies in order to implement and indoctrinate socialist and Marxist Critical RACIST Theory into NM's children. 'That which we call Critical RACIST Theory by any other name would still stinketh of racism. America hatred and perverse LGBT agenda.' CRT will be taught with these changes to social studies curricula and still be a pig whether you call it CRT or couch it in words and phrases like: "inequity", "oppression", "unequal power relations", "racism", "injustice", etc. The State of NM has no right to teach other people's children that based on skin color one divided out group are oppressors, and that another divided out group, again based on skin color, are oppressed. This is blatant, ugly racism.

Additionally, there are Marxist NEA indoctrinators right here in NM passing themselves off as school teachers. They openly signed, knowing full well that their names, states, and cities would be made public, the Zinn Pledge to indoctrinate Critical RACIST Theory into NM's school children no matter what subject they teach. These 39 NM "teachers" have vowed to defy school board and parental wishes no matter what. This is a list of their names when last updated (there may be more NM CRT indoctrinators.)

New Mexico

Albuquerque, NM

Allison Brock, Benjamin Imbus, Chris Bouajila, Cody Sinclair, Erick Hernandez, James Martel, Jason Stuart, Kavita Krishna, Keith Morris, Kimber Scott, Kristine Mayle, Lauren Scott, Margaret Montoya, Maria Rogahn, Mary Lou Hall, Pili Burkett, Renae Smith, Ruza Posich, Shelby Clayburn, Tony Watkins, Tracy Carroll, Venessa Urioste Belen, NM Camellia Termini El Prado, NM Jenny Lewis Hatch, NM Mark Thompson Las Cruces, NM Sylvia Bustillos, Teresa Tenorio Los Alamos, NM Margo Batha Rio Rancho, NM Kiran Katira, Mitchell Freedman, Ollie Cline, Shauna Branch Santa Fe, NM Angela Gabriel, Darlene Fortier, Dixmarie Delaneuville, Jennifer J Arlin, Maureen Chase, Theresa Bess Zuni, NM Laurel Smith

What is the State of NM going to do about these militant CRT indoctrinators?

Sincerely, Ruth Ann Peterson, Albuquerque, NM

MR. JOHN SENA, NMPED - Policy Division 11/08/21

I WRITE THIS LETTER IN CONCERNS TO THE CRITICAL RACE THEORY BEING TAUGHT TO OUR CHILDREN. FROM WHAT I HAVE GATHERED IN MY STUDYING OF CRITICAL RACE THEORY, IT IS HARMFUL, DEMORALIZING, AND HARMFUL TO MY CHILDREN. PLEASE DO NOT PASS THIS AGENDA THROUGH OUR SCHOOLS! I AM A RESIDENT OF SAN JUAN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO. THANK YOU FOR YOUR TIME.

SINCERELY,

CLINTON M. FERRER

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: RESPONSE TO MLG'S PED standards

Thoughts on teaching Critical Race Theory ideology proposed by MLG/New Mexico

If America is founded on freedom, then we must understand that freedom begins at home, with love and caring for our fellow humans. Every country in the world seems to have some form of prejudice--class, economic status, religion, skin color, whatever. It is not logical--it is emotional. Those entrenched in prejudiced racist ideology present their ideas as TRUE, and thus can use any manner of excuses and explanations for their beliefs "because they are true." But that is what they are selling--belief. NOT TRUTH. Not only that--their "Truth/belief" is has an agenda we must be aware of.

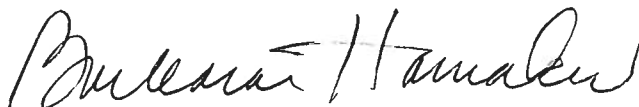

Children's minds are delicate, impressionable, and aware. Kids have very few innocent years to experience their own world presented by their family group before they are forced to navigate the barrage of adult reality foisted upon them from every possible corner of the globe. They are susceptible to a barrage of attitudes, subtle messages, TV/electronic propaganda, and by what we now know as professional brainwashing by big tech. The result--a generation of young adult suicides. How's THAT for caring for our youth? Brainwashing masquerading as TRUTH.

If we are sovereign beings, and I believe we are, then our upbringing springs from and depends upon the intrinsic love from parents/family/early surroundings. Why are we here if we are not to love our children, teach them right from wrong? School could be an extension of that wisdom IF our teachers are themselves carrying that kind of wisdom in their hearts. I read a simple statement recently: "All racism is personal" -- and it seems to me that the proponents of CRT are the racists in this situation. Up close and personal. They appear to hate Americans--and by extension America itself. They want to personally indoctrinate every one of our children. Where is kindness, caring, compassion, and an interest/respect for original thinking as children begin to develop their own minds? "It doesn't matter what your mom or dad said...listen to what we tell you. We know TRUTH."

Critical Race Theory appears to focus on destroying human beings' critical thinking skills, using some dystopian logic masquerading as truth, rather than wisdom, compassion and love. It would seem that CRT theorists have spent decades carefully rehashing/regurgitating Marxist dogma and repackaging it as TRUTH--then infiltrating it into our schools. I can only observe that CRT proponents actually want to destroy America using hate and division to incite violence, thereby undermining the structure of society. This has nothing to do with rational thinking. Instead, CRT demands we fall victim to their distorted views. Theirs is a quest for domination, and we must awaken to this very carefully executed plan before it is too late--maybe it already is. Allowing CRT to be taught in schools to children of any age is criminal.

Are there people who are prejudiced--you bet. Racists? You bet. But it is personal, not a "plandemic" to hate people of another color--unless you try to teach it to children--THAT IS A PLANDEMIC of epic proportions to change a culture. CRT has an agenda. To use a theory developed by racist dogma to force others to agree to victimhood is ridiculous. To learn the enormous lessons of compassion, love and acceptance of humanity in all its foibles is what we should be teaching. NOT a full-blown assault on American citizens.

Barbara Hamaker
Resident of Albuquerque, NM

Jessie Lewis Parent, citizen, community member, and governing committee member

RE: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to obtain input on the proposed repeal of 6.29.11NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11NMAC Social Studies, public comment

November 10, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. John Sena:

I am writing to express my concerns with the proposed draft Social Studies standards curriculum, to express my antipathy for the implied, sometimes explicit racial ideology, and to respectfully request that you

- 1) Extend the public comment period and
- 2) Encourage PED to submit the proposed curriculum to the State Legislature for formal, well-publicized, public hearings.

I have had numerous conversations with parents and teachers who expressed concerns over having inadequate information on the proposed changes and having inadequate time to review the draft standards and the resources used to create those changes. I urge you to extend the review and comment period, and to submit the proposed curriculum to the State Legislature for formal public hearings which the public may attend.

My primary concern with the proposed Social Studies curriculum is an apparent disrespect for our country's foundations and for ALL of its people, ALL people of varying races, creeds, cultures, beliefs, politics, class, background, personal identity, etc.; for which our founding documents were created in the pursuit of constant betterment, where "all [men] are created equal."

Overall and throughout, the curriculum focuses on diversity, inequity, injustice, and oppression. Americans with various and mixed backgrounds, flourish when the focus is on what we have in common. Our duty to teach our children how to get along, to cooperate, to respect others despite our differences; must not be supplanted by a curriculum that disparages their differences, such as who has “oppressed” them?!?!?! The proposed curriculum includes copious focus on slavery and oppression, yet contains no mention of why America fought for independence, no mention of the countless soldiers and citizens who fought to abolish slavery.

The proposed curriculum heavily emphasizes both the “global community” as well as slavery. It stresses human rights’ atrocities and inequities within the United States; yet the curriculum evades addressing the perpetuation of human rights’ violations, human trafficking and slavery amidst the global community. The exclusion of these topics, in itself, is inequitable.

I am concerned with the curriculum’s disrespect for America’s history and our foundational documents. In the current Social Studies curriculum, American History is taught. Our country’s history, as imperfect as it may be, provides evidence from the past that gives us insight into why we must behave as a civil nation. Teaching a broader range of topics is forward thinking, but in ignoring the data, the facts of the past, we risk losing our understanding of why we as a society have changed, and why our most important basic tenets have remained.

- The curriculum should first provide historical context before adding contentious and difficult topics.
- The proposed curriculum must present significant American historical events and figures.
- Children should be taught the meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance, what it means to be a citizen of the United States and that standing together as a nation is important. Students should be allowed to continue the non-compulsory recitation of the Pledge.
- The names of specific documents - “The Bill of Rights” and “The Declaration of Independence” must be capitalized. Treating the names of these documents as common nouns is as disrespectful as addressing our Governor as governor michelle.

I am also concerned with use of language and rhetoric within the proposed standards. An entire section of the Social Studies curriculum is entitled, “Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards”. This is a concocted concept: “Identity Standards”; what is it doing in curriculum? How does NMPED attempt to define what “identity standards” are in education. Are our children to be branded?

Rhetoric such as: “critical consciousness”, “community equity”, “global community”, social identity”, “reconciliation”, and “implicit bias” indicate a politicized educational agenda.

Many terms and concept titles are devices, subterfuge that give an educator opportunity to teach their beliefs over historical facts. There are loopholes within the curriculum where a student's education may be manipulated by a teacher, an administrator, or another to present one's own agenda.

*Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(i)
"...evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S."*

Comment: What standard indicates what/who defines equitable and just economic system?

*Proposed 6.29.11.11(E)(2),
6.29.11.15(E)(7),
6.29.11.15(E)(12) "...justice and fairness", "unequal power relations", and "past and current injustices".*

Comment: While these can be debated and discussed, these topics are highly subjective. For these concepts to be included as an "Anchor Standard" within the topic of "Identity Standards" leaves far too much room for interpretation. A child's identity is formed by their interactions, experiences, their own history; attempting to teach a child what their identity should be by interpretation or another's past is dishonest and manipulative.

Proposed 6.29.11.10(E)(1)(a), 6.29.11.11(E)(1)(a) "expressing a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad..."

Comment: While a student can choose their words, they cannot control how others feel. It is highly inappropriate to make one student responsible for "other people's feelings". This does not belong in curriculum.

*Proposed 6.29.11.15(E)(3)
"society's responses to different social identities lead to access or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including education, healthcare, government, and industry".*

Comment: This seeks to divide students based on what is perceived a social identity. Barriers as well as access, has traditionally, or is optimally, directly related to personal characteristics and may be bolstered by a demographic, not a social identity. Using this rhetoric in educational material has direct potential to be propagandist. Just as Proposed 6.29.11.15(E)(8) "brainstorming ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices" informing young students that they "might heal from...injustices" makes them victims without their consent. Education shall not teach victimization. Why not use the opportunity to teach the benefits of collaboration for a community in duress?!

*Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(gg)
“examining the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence...”*

Comment: To examine the history of guns in America, one would include the Constitution and its Bill of Rights. This examination of history would include the reason Americans have had guns, protected their rights to have guns, and include how this has protected them. An appropriate examination would also include what has happened to citizen’s rights in countries where they do not possess the right to protect themselves, how violence is not extinguished just because rights are removed, and how it is the “violence” of the law breakers that is the problem, not the gun. To use the rhetoric “gun violence” is inappropriate, a gun does not perpetuate violence, a criminal does. This is an important lesson for any student.

Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(ii) “examining anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States...”

Comment: It would be far more appropriate and relevant to discuss “anti-illegal-immigration” sentiment since that is the more pertinent issue. Many Americans are here as a result of immigration and don’t oppose it; on the other hand, students would benefit from learning how unlawful migration affects their nation and their state. They would also benefit from learning about atrocities across the globe that create refugees, and the importance of American humanitarian efforts to aid the people suffering humanitarian atrocities.

Proposed 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d) “...social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement”

Comment: This can be highly refuted. While the media hasn’t been very honest about their reporting, statistics and studies disprove many of the “systemic inequity” arguments. Many opportunities are afforded by individual economics, fortune, merit, tenacity, etc. These things are better indicators of opportunity, not “identity groups”; and I am appalled that education is teaching about “privilege” without talking about how anyone in America is far more “privileged” than others in the “global community”. This does not belong in high school education. Leave the debate for college!

I have attempted to select the most egregious items in the proposed Social Studies curriculum. Admittedly, it has been difficult. Though I take no issue with re-evaluating curriculum to update the most recent events that expand on our history and shape society, I disagree with revising data and omitting facts - basically eliminating evidence needed to determine how we came to behave as we do in today's world. Additionally, I see the manufactured terms and manipulated meanings to teach a conflated agenda as unacceptable.

Some proposals are reasonable updates while others are quite contentious, inappropriate, or otherwise, dishonest and disrespectful. I believe a redraft of the entire curriculum is in order; and each and every occurrence of "Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards" should be removed.

The proposed curriculum fails to provide a balanced history. It fails to provide positive attributes of the United States of America, of the state of New Mexico and of its people. Students in this state should be taught what makes them exceptional human beings, and I will support curriculum revisions that teach Our History: a history that includes the good and the imperfect; a history that shows the dilemmas and perseverance of our ancestors, and a history that celebrates our identities. An understanding of history can encourage students to become responsible citizens within for our state, our nation and within the global community.

[^]and

I appreciate your dedication to education, and to our youth - our future.

Respectfully,

Jessie Lewis

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Elaine Hausman and I'm a constituent from Santa Fe County. I was on the founding parent board of Turquoise Trail Charter School,, and served as Substitute Principal in the first year of operation.

New Mexico is dead last in education, and the proposed social studies curriculum is designed to keep us there. This country was founded by those seeking religious freedom, willing to risk a long journey across a vast ocean in wooden ships propelled only by the wind.

Instead, our children will learn that African slave ships, motivated by greed created this nation.

The new curriculum does not mention our nation's Founding Fathers, i.e. George Washington or Thomas Jefferson. There is no mention of the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. We have no Presidency, no Congress, no Supreme Court. Our kids need honest CIVICS, not hatred and divisiveness.

In the proposed "standards", Diversity is the hallmark of every class level and sexuality a principal issue.

New Mexico already has a curriculum that reflects our values! It needs to be strengthened, not undermined. Loving kindness, competence, being a good citizen, striving for excellence, and helping others are the Values we need to teach our children!

I am asking you to reject these standards, as they promote and instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of Civics, not social action or diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life in the world.

Here are the ten most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces “offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity.” This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the effect of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of “justice and fairness,” unequal power relations, “past and current injustices,” although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)
4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)
5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LBGTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)
7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

8. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

9. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

10. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about teaching students to be good citizens, and that good citizens obey the law? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

Teaching children hatred, victimhood and fear is downright evil! Why would you even want to do that?

I intend to attend a protest on these proposed standards in Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from 9-12 am in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

Thank you for your time, and please consider these heart-felt concerns for the children of New Mexico!

Sincerely,

Elaine Hausman
18 Rockridge Rd.
Cerrillos, NM 87010
505-660-0283

CC:
Chairman, Santa Fe School Board
610 Alta Vista Street, Santa Fe, NM. 87505

1
11/8/21

To Whom it May Concern,

Critical Race theory has its roots in MARXISM. Is this true or not? MARXISM leads to Communism. Karl MARX and Friedrich Engels' writings are purposely written to cause division in society. Critical race theory is designed to do the same. This is the elephant in the room. Dividing people by color, shaming children to be called oppressors or "the oppressed"; are ridiculous and false. History is full of good and bad things, people, events, etc.. All races, countries, groups have oppressed others and have been oppressed by others. Study indigenous people. (ex: Comanches)

God's word says in Romans 3:23, "for all have sinned and fall short of His glory. Yet He forgives. If we are remorseful and change our negative ways and are repentant then we can be forgiven. We are a "Land of the Forgiven". That is what this great nation has done and continues to do. Now, are you perfect?

Teach our children the basics (including cursive) Reading, (which I evidently struggle with) writing & math (w/o the politics). This is something our schools have failed at so far. Teach them what a great city, state, country we live in. Teach them of the opportunities they have, and with hard work and good intentions ALL have a chance to be successful. (we can't give it to them, it has to be achieved.)

Socialism, Marxism, Communism, in all ways fruits and costs fortunes and lives lost.

Educators educate yourself. Drop your ideologies, politics, and allow our children to have a honest education. Prepare them. Parents should always be Encouraged to be involved with their childrens Education and schools should seek out their advice and counsel. You will achieve much more by doing this than by forcing an unwanted idea on them. Remember this is not about you its about our children.

3

Thank you,
A. Sanchez
God Bless

note: I am a veteran who cares about our future generations. They need to be able to be strong in facing the future challenges they will face, yet still be able to make their own decisions.

3514 Vail Ave SE
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87106

26 October 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Ave., Room 121
Santa Fe, NM, 87501

RE: Social Studies Standards

Dear Mr. Sena:

As a high school social studies teacher in New Mexico, I wanted to comment on the proposed standards. I have taught New Mexico History, Government/Economics, United States history (AP as well) but World History is my favorite course to teach. I currently teach AP and regular Psychology.

I find these proposed to be much more inclusive than what we have currently. The standards are also respectful of the experience of teachers and their passions and areas of expertise. Teachers have the choice of teaching material in a way that can help to ensure that our students see themselves in the lessons.

The proposed standards will go a long way in helping New Mexico schools to fulfill some of the Martinez v. Yazzie mandates.

Thank you for your time and attention on this matter.

Respectfully,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Jason H. Rodarte". The signature is stylized with a large, sweeping initial "J" and "R".

Jason H. Rodarte, Ed.D

October 31, 2021

To: John Sena

Policy Division Public Education Dept.

300 Don Gaspar

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Rule 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

CRT ignores what Frederick Douglass said of President Abraham Lincoln: Most Americans of all races have "risen above their prejudices," striving to bring American practice into accord with American principles regarding justice.

CRT demeans African Americans by stripping them of all agency, treating them as simply inanimate objects, helpless victims of impersonal forces. It also essentially absolves politicians of bad policy.

CRT is nothing more than a return to 1850s-style racism as espoused by John Calhoun and Chief Justice Roger Taney in his infamous Dred Scott decision.

It is divisive; it fosters racial hatred by trafficking in racial stereotypes, collective guilt, racial segregation and race-based harassment. It rejects Martin Luther King's hope that we should be judged, not by the color of our skin, but by the content of our character.

I say unequivocally! NO! To any form of Critical Race Theory, or whatever name you choose to give it! Teach History, not victimhood.

Ken Stradling
6200 Lake Shore Dr.
Flora Vista, NM 87415
Farmington, NM District 2

SAR

November 2, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

I write in support of the proposed revisions to the New Mexico social studies standards to be discussed at a public hearing on November 12, 2021.

Like many Americans, I am often disappointed by the public's lack of knowledge of our nation's history, political institutions, and the cultures of the peoples who together make the United States a great nation. Today, nothing is more important than a broad understanding of our civic institutions and their cultural roots.

New Mexico's greatness lies not only in its extraordinary landscapes but also in the depth and complexity of its history—in particular the important roles played by Native American and Hispanic populations, as well as the diverse Anglo-American communities that brought to the state many of the political institutions central to New Mexico's civic life today.

I have reviewed the proposed social studies curriculum and find it to be comprehensive, thoughtful, and balanced. Just as impressive is the extensive consultation that went into its preparation. As in any part of the world, there are elements of history that we find troubling by today's standards. It is important for young New Mexicans to be aware of our state's dark chapters as well as its moral and economic progress. The latter includes New Mexico's success in weaving together diverse peoples into a unique and successful multicultural community. This lively blend of traditions is one of the factors that draws thousands of visitors to the state every year.

I find that the proposed curriculum does an outstanding job of encouraging age-appropriate understandings of history—New Mexican, American, and global—while fostering critical thinking and informed judgment.

I hope that the Public Education Department will approve this well crafted proposal.

Yours sincerely,

Michael F. Brown, Ph.D., President

School for Advanced Research

Post Office Box 2188 Santa Fe, New Mexico 87504-2188 505-954-7200 www.sarweb.org

October 31, 2021

John Sena

Policy Division Public Education Dept.

300 Don Gaspar

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Rule 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

I feel a definition Critical Race Theory is imperative in any discussion about CRT and its varied forms in public school.

CRT ignores what Frederick Douglass said of President Abraham Lincoln: Most Americans of all races have "risen above their prejudices," striving to bring American practice into accord with American principles regarding justice.

CRT demeans African Americans by stripping them of all agency, treating them as simply inanimate objects, helpless victims of impersonal forces. It also essentially absolves politicians of bad policy.

CRT is nothing more than a return to 1850s-style racism as espoused by John Calhoun and Chief Justice Roger Taney in his infamous Dred Scott decision.

It is divisive; it fosters racial hatred by trafficking in racial stereotypes, collective guilt, racial segregation and race-based harassment. It rejects Martin Luther King's hope that we should be judged, not by the color of our skin, but by the content of our character.

I say unequivocally! NO! To any form of Critical Race Theory, or whatever name you choose to give it! Teach History, not victimhood.

Andra Stradling
595-320-0160
Flora Vista, NM 87415
Farmington NM
Farmington Municipal Schools
District 2

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Andra', with a stylized flourish extending to the right.

1/2/21

Mr. John Sena, Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

RE: Reject the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

My name is Alice Judith Ward and I'm a native and a constituent from Silver City. I graduated from Western High School, which is now Silver High. We had teachers that taught us the subjects we needed to learn, cared about us and used morality and values in their classrooms. I am seriously concerned about the move to put CRT into our classrooms and to indoctrinate our children.

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)
5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)
7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)
8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)
9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again, see the socialist class v class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)
10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)
11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)
12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement “Back the Blue”? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

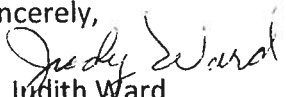

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

I am sorry that I cannot attend the meeting in Santa Fe, Friday, November 12th from 1- 3 pm in Mabry Hall of the Jerry Apodaca Building, 300 Don Gaspar, in downtown Santa Fe.

I urge you to put Christian morals and values first over these socialistic and communistic views. We here in the West do not condone, approve or appreciate those who try to indoctrinate our children who are young, impressionable and whose brains are not mature until the are in their 20's. Please consider our views and eliminate any curricula that goes against them.

Thank you for your consideration,

Sincerely,

A. Judith Ward
4355 Highway 15
Silver City, NM 88061
Judyward_14@centurylink.net
575 388-7830

CC: Superintendent William Hawkins
Ashley Montenegro, School Board President
Patrick Cohn
Dr. Michelle Diaz
Eddie Flores
Mike McMillan
Silver City Consolidated Schools
2810 N. Swan
Silver City, NM 88061

October 31, 2021

To: John Sena

Policy Division Public Education Dept.

300 Don Gaspar

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Rule 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

CRT ignores what Frederick Douglass said of President Abraham Lincoln: Most Americans of all races have "risen above their prejudices," striving to bring American practice into accord with American principles regarding justice.

CRT demeans African Americans by stripping them of all agency, treating them as simply inanimate objects, helpless victims of impersonal forces. It also essentially absolves politicians of bad policy.

CRT is nothing more than a return to 1850s-style racism as espoused by John Calhoun and Chief Justice Roger Taney in his infamous Dred Scott decision.

It is divisive; it fosters racial hatred by trafficking in racial stereotypes, collective guilt, racial segregation and race-based harassment. It rejects Martin Luther King's hope that we should be judged, not by the color of our skin, but by the content of our character.

I say unequivocally! NO! To any form of Critical Race Theory, or whatever name you choose to give it! Teach History, not victimhood.

Sincerely
Aslyn Barney
Lynn Barney

Molly Madden
2312 Calle del Estavan NW, Albuquerque, NM 87104
mollymadden3@gmail.com

October 20, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

rule.feedback@state.nm.us

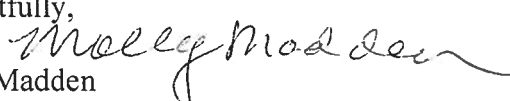

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing in support of the proposed 2021 social studies standards, which I have read in the draft form on PED website. I want to commend the PED for undertaking these revisions, and I was impressed by the scope of work undertaken by the committee that drafted them. I am a retired Belen Schools elementary teacher and have been concerned for many years that with the pressure to get ELA and MATH scores raised, Social Studies has had little attention/time in elementary lesson planning.

The six strands (civics, economics, geography, history, cultural identity, and inquiry) of standards that run through grades K-12 provide an excellent framework for critical thinking, and support students building their understanding of their own agency at their own speed. These standards respect the intelligence of children, concentrate on teaching critical thinking, evaluation of the credibility of data sources, and values that respect differing cultures and perspectives.

I urge the department to adopt these standards. Children need to master the standards outlined in this regulation to prepare to be effective citizens and problem solvers.

Respectfully,

Molly Madden

TheHill.com 5/25/21

One father's stand against critical race theory: We're indoctrinating our children

BY ANDREW GUTMANN, OPINION CONTRIBUTOR — 05/25/21 11:00 AM EDT
THE VIEWS EXPRESSED BY CONTRIBUTORS ARE THEIR OWN AND NOT THE VIEW OF THE HILL.

istock

A month ago, I mailed a letter to all the parents of my daughter's New York City private school, Brearley, asking them to speak up against the school administration's illiberal and indoctrinating antiracism initiatives and divisive obsession with race. That letter went viral and has helped bring about much needed attention to the explosive adoption of critical race theory throughout our country. Having been unexpectedly thrust into the media spotlight, I feel an obligation to dispel several common misconceptions pertaining to this movement.

There appears to be widespread belief that opposition to critical race theory is a view held solely by the political right. This perception is wrong. It is certainly true that the conservative media has almost exclusively embraced viewpoints unfavorable to critical race theory while the liberal-oriented media has been overwhelmingly approving. But our polarized media does not seem to accurately reflect the view of most Americans.

Since my letter became public, I have received several thousand supportive emails and messages from people across this country, including many from self-described Democrats and liberals. The tone of most of the messages sent to me is not at all political in nature; instead, the tenor is one of desperation and powerlessness.

Woke Educators Release Letter Declaring Objective Math a Form of 'White Supremacy'

Here's how parents can push back on the alarming ideology that's infecting our children's classrooms.

Thursday, March 4, 2021

Image Credit: Flickr

Kerry McDonald

Education Social Justice Public Schools School Choice Teachers Mathematics

Mandatory teaching standards that focus on critical theory and identity politics to the detriment of liberalism and individualism are already working their way through state legislatures.

Now, math education itself has been deemed "racist." A group of educators just released a document calling for a transformation of math education that focuses on "dismantling white supremacy in math classrooms by visibilizing the toxic characteristics of white supremacy culture with respect to math."

Among the educators' recommendations, which officials in some states are promoting, are calls to "identify and challenge the ways that math is used to uphold capitalist, imperialist, and racist views," "provide learning opportunities that use math as resistance," and "encourage them to disrupt the disproportionate push-out of people of color in [STEM] fields."

Beyond activism, these recommendations also argue that traditional approaches to math education promote racism and white supremacy, such as requiring students to show their work or prioritizing correct answers to math problems. The document claims that current

CACAGNY Opposes CRT Indoctrination in California Schools

CACAGNY <cacagny.friends@gmail.com>

Thu 6/10/2021 12:27 PM

Today, CACAGNY joined Californians for Equal Rights and 25 other organizations to urge the California State Senate Education Committee to vote down AB 101, a bill that would mandate Critical Race Theory (CRT) indoctrination in California public high schools. There are similar initiatives in New York.

Of course, AB 101 proponents loudly disown any connection with CRT. Such denialism is understandable; it's becoming known that CRT is a hateful, divisive fraud. So they re-package it as ethnic studies, culturally responsive curricula, or social emotional learning, and claim to promote equity, diversity and inclusion, anti-bias, anti-racism, etc. But we are not fooled by such deceptive marketing. By any other name, it's still CRT's agenda of racist divisiveness, racist struggle, and absolutism, in schools, workplaces, politics, and media.

CRT is immoral. CRT is an ideology of collective guilt. CRT says Whites are oppressors, just for being White; Whites are born with White privilege because they have facility with objectivity, rationality, meritocracy, delayed gratification, punctuality, the written word, mathematics. Whites lack empathy, humanity, lived experience, and Whiteness is a parasitic condition. In CRT diversity and anti-racism training, Whites and Blacks -- including grade school kids -- are segregated into opposing groups. Blacks are then led by trainers to attack Whites -- their classmates and colleagues -- for their Whiteness and White privilege, to which Whites must plead guilty. This is immoral. Any ideology that traffics in group stereotypes, group attacks and group confessions is reductionist, dehumanizing, and -- let's say it -- barbaric. In the deepest sense of the word, CRT is immoral.

CRT is anti-American. America is an exceptional experiment in multicultural nation-building. Total strangers who don't even speak the same language can live and work together in trust. This only happens because every individual in America can count on the same protection under the law as his neighbor. Despite past shortfalls, which must be understood in proper historical contexts, we never stopped striving. That we have done exceptionally well on race as a nation is validated by the fact that peoples of all races of the world come and make their home here. But CRT rejects the bedrock of equal individual rights that made America happen. Instead, CRT upholds equal outcomes by race. To enforce equal outcomes by race when such outcomes do not result from equal rights for individuals, as happens for multitudes of reasons, CRT imperiously over-rides equal rights for individuals. Such trampling over individual rights is anti-American to the core.

CRT sells out children in public schools. CRT has become a very rich industry, and with the money comes the ability to corrupt, which it evidently does with gusto. California entered its lockdown already plagued by dismal public education, and at a time when California urgently needs to further address months of additional learning loss caused by failures of its remote "instruction" in public schools, AB 101 alone will make a gift of over $1B to the CRT industry, courtesy of California politicians. This is outrageous. Do California's politicians and educrats even pretend to care about the education of the children any more?

Last but not least, the racial scapegoating that is at the root of CRT animates anti-Asian racism, from anti-Asian racial quotas in education, to the recent explosion of attacks against Asians on streets and subways. Longer term, the oppression Olympics celebrated by CRT enfeebles Asians with the seductive opiates of lowered expectations and learned helplessness. Asians are already susceptible to such manipulations because of historical events, so it is no coincidence that CRT pushes such a self-image of victimhood upon Asians, in culturally responsive school curricula and in progressive political discourse. This is a pernicious trap, extremely difficult to extricate from, with long-lasting, corrosive damage to morale and morality. CRT is very bad for Asians.

We Americans of Chinese descent have especially strong reasons to reject CRT. CRT indoctrination -- under any re-packaging or guise -- must not be allowed in public schools.

CACAGNY 紐約同源會
Chinese American Citizens Alliance Greater New York
PO Box 130024
New York, New York 10013
www.cacagny.org

Category	Level	Fiction/Non-fiction/Etc.	Subject	Title/Author	ISBN	Price	Quantity	Total
Recommended Books	HS	NF	US History	The Diary of Malcolm X: 1964	9780883783511	$23.25		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	Andants/World History	How dare the sunrise: members of a war child	978-0-06-247015-7	$7.39		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	Economics	Naked Economics	978-0-393-35642-0	$12.42		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	Economics	Nickel and Dimed	9780312626086	$12.45		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	Economics	African Americans in the US Economy	9780742543782	$67.15		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	US History	Howard Zinn's Southern Diary	0-786-8203-5328-0	$18.20		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Warriors don't cry	9781116948827	$5.94		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Claudeine Colvin: twice toward justice	978-0-312-06105-2	$9.55		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	Play	US History	Raisin in the sun	978-0-679-75538-3	$5.92		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	US History	A people's history of the United States	978-0062397348	$16.06		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	US History	Voice of a People's History of the United States	978-1608805930	$18.40		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	A young people's history of the United States, Volume 1: Columbus to the Spanish-American War	978-1583227596	$14.42		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	A young people's history of the United States, Volume 2: class struggle to the war on terror	978-1583227602	$15.26		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	NF	US History	A people's history of American empire, a graphic adaptation	9780805087414	$20.00		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	A young people's history of the United States	9781583228692	$16.58		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Feminism	978-1-51930-752-0	$16.75		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Gender Identity	978-1-61930-756-8	$16.75		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Immigration nation	978-1-61930-760-5	$16.75		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Race mixtures	978-1-61930-552-6	$13.14		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	An Indigenous Peoples' History of the United States for Young People	978-0807049396	$13.86		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS	F	US History	Towers falling	978-0-316-26721-7	$5.94		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS	F	US History	Echo	978-0-439-87402-1	$14.51		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS	F	US History	Talking Issues	978-0-14-247298-4	$6.69		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS	Images of primary sources	US History	Freedom over me	978-1-48145-600-6	$13.17		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS	NF	US History	Sitting Bull: Lakota warrior and defender of his people	978-1-41970-731-5	$14.59		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Strike! The farm workers fight for their rights	978-1-55078-997-1	$12.42		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS	Poetry	US History	One last word	978-1-68116-602-7	$13.89		$0.00
Recommended Books	MS/HS	NF	US History	Drowned City: Hurricane Katrina & New Orleans	978-0-544-58617-8	$7.29		$0.00
Recommended Books	HS	F	US History (WWII)	The war outside	978-0-316-31671-2	$8.11		$0.00

October 15, 2021

Dear Mr. Sena,

I welcome the opportunity to comment on the new Social Studies curriculum after having a wonderful teaching career of 25 years in Santa Fe Public Schools, and being selected as New Mexico's Teacher of the Year in 1988. I am so excited about the direction that the new curriculum is taking that I ALMOST would come out of retirement to teach it. I also want to thank the team that worked on this massive assignment which was no doubt time-consuming and required a great deal of discussion and research.

The introduction set the tone for the entire curriculum when it stated that it would be incorporating major historical themes such as class conflict, social justice, equity and diversity. The goal of developing leadership skills and critical thinking was woven throughout the curriculum. I was particularly excited to see events such as the Civil Rights movement, Rise of Conservatism, and the influence of the CIA in Latin America discussed. Teaching history from various points of view such as the Indigenous, Chicano, and African American will only enrich the students' understanding of our world today.

My only concern is that teachers receive the teaching materials including primary sources, to help them as they embark on this new adventure. I hope this comes from school district money and not from the teachers' pocketbooks.

Sincerely,

Judy Crawford

2132 Paseo Ponderosa
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Proposed social studies standards discussed

465N 10-22-2021

Miranda Cy Los Cruces Sun-News
USA TODAY NETWORK - NEW MEX CO

LAS CRUCES - The revising of social studies standards in public schools is a hot topic in New Mexico.

Educators and some community members say the standards are overdue for an overhaul. Some parents and other community members fear the proposed new standards place too much emphasis on how race and racism shaped the nation.

New Mexico Public Education Department Deputy Secretary Gwen Perea Warniment attended the Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education meeting Tuesday to give a presentation on the new standards and the revising process.

The proposed standards expand on four "strands" of social studies that Warniment described as pillars of the standards. The four are history, geography, civics and economics. The new standards would also include ethnic, cultural and identity studies and inquiry.

"We want to have higher expectations for our students in terms of the rigor of how we teach in using application, higher level cognitive tasks," Warniment said.

The standards have not yet been implemented and the state is still asking for public feedback.

Before Warniment's presentation, 18 residents spoke during the public comment portion of the meeting. A handful of parents and other concerned community members criticized

See MEETING, Page 2A

New Mexico Public Education Department Deputy Secretary Gwen Perea Warniment visited the Las Cruces Public Schools Board of Education on Tuesday to give a presentation on the proposed social studies standards and the revision process.
COURTESY PHOTO

Meeting

Continued from Page 1A

the proposed standards, including for implementing "critical race theory" into the school system, for not allocating instruction to biblical history and for teaching the U.S. Constitution at a level that belongs in college.

The new high school guidelines include teaching students to evaluate and be critical of the U.S. Constitution and American political institutions.

"If this proposal is accepted, it will fundamentally alter how our children think about their constitutional rights and freedoms and protections," said Ann Garcia, who introduced herself as a parent, grandparent and concerned citizen.

Warniment addressed that concern specifically when she gave her presentation. She said that the new standards advise starting Constitution instruction in elementary school rather than high school.

"It's critical that that knowledge can be built in elementary," Warniment said. "Specifically at fifth grade, students will evaluate how the Bill of Rights shapes the rights of U.S. citizens. In eighth grade, the Bill of Rights, the standard says to critically read the Bill of Rights and supporting text to determine the narratives that were excluded from the original document in order to understand the history of what happened in the development of the delivery."

Warniment said the instruction in high school is built around the years of analysis and understanding of the Constitution students would now have.

"You don't get to that high level of analysis until you have a very strong foundation in that one document," Warniment said. "We want to have high expectations of our students. We expect and want them to have that level of analysis. Because we want to be able to have them engage in this type of discourse."

Warniment addressed critical race theory, defining it as a theory that views race as a social construct and looks at different sectors of society through a lens that observes how different races are disadvantaged in certain settings.

"Critical race theory should not be in the space of K-12 education," Warniment said. "It purposely is not in the social study standards."

Warniment said that because words such as diversity, equity, power and oppression are mentioned in these standards, people might think that critical race theory is involved. She says it is not.

"That is not critical race theory," Warniment said. "That's being historically accurate and ensuring that there's diversity of representation in the standards."

"We have always understood power and oppression in social studies," she said.

The process

This changing of teaching standards is a regular part of education. Standards for academic disciplines are typically updated about every 10 years to be sure the information students are learning is current.

Although the social studies standards were partially revised in 2009, this is the most significant revision in 20 years.

"It is about time that we update social studies. Not just us, but many, many states across the nation are updating social study standards," Warniment said.

With the combined efforts of 64 educators across New Mexico and taking inspiration from 10 other states' social studies standards, NMPED developed the proposed standards that can be found at <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/literacy-l>

Although the standards are set by the state, the curriculum and instructional materials are adjusted by the district themselves, Warniment explained. How topics are taught, in what order they are taught and what materials are used to teach students are all set by the district, schools and individual teachers.

The NMPED encourages the public to make detailed comments on the revisions and their opinions on them.

On Friday, Nov. 12, NMPED will hold a public hearing from 1 to 3 p.m. in Mabry Hall in the Jerry Apodaca Education Building, 300 Don Gaspar Avenue, in Santa Fe. Speakers will have up to three minutes each to comment.

Aside from the scheduled public hearing, people can submit public comment before Nov. 12 by email to rule.feedback@state.nm.us, by fax to 505-827-6520 or by regular mail addressed to John Sena, policy division, New Mexico Public Education Department, 300 Don Gaspar Ave., Room 121, Santa Fe, NM, 87501.

Miranda Cyr, a Report for America corps member, can be reached at mcyr@lcsun-news.com or @mirandabcyr on Twitter. Show your support for the Report for America program at <https://bit.ly/LCSNRFA>.

CRT a Misnomer

Since 1945, America has been the anti-racist nation (book by Kathleen Brush). The Critical Control Theory is a model by Saul Alinsky as how to create a socialist state (a book the Road to Serfdom by F.A. Hayek). The Critical Control Theory is about obtaining POWER-POLITICS-PREFERENCES versus the Critical Freedom theory of Principles and People (we are endowed by our creator with certain unalienable rights that among these are life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness - these are self-evident truths that all men and women are created equal). CRT and the Critical Control Theory is about Condemnation, Conformity, Cancellation, Captive, Collectivism, Cheating, Coercion, Centralization, Chains, Censorship, Categorical Imperative, Cancel Culture, Corruption, Confusion, Chaos, Conflict, Complaining, Confiscation and no Character. Read the Books by Shelby Steele -Shame, The Content of Our Character, and White Guilt. Also read the books, Blackout by Candace Owens, Red, White and Black by Robert I. Woodson SR, 1620 -a response to the 1619 project by Peter W. Wood, the Hate Crime Hoax by Wilfred Reilly the War on Cops by Heather Mac Donald, and American Marxism by Mark R. Levin.

Critical Control Theory--How to create a socialistic state by Saul Alinsky is based upon tyrannical control before one can obtain a socialist state. The first and maybe the most important are:

1. Health Care-control healthcare (COVID 19 was used to control people and dismantle civil liberties)
2. Poverty-increase poverty to control the poor to make it easier to control the voting for entitlements.
3. Debt-increase the debt to an unsustainable level that way create dependence and more control.
4. Gun Control. Take away the second amendment, so law abiding citizens are disarmed and punished and controlled by a police state.
5. Welfare- allows control of every aspect of life (food, housing, income, travel and freedom)
6. Education -CRT is state-sponsored racist, divisive, violates the Civil Rights Act, and Constitution. CRT teaches young Americans to hate their past, present and fear the future by ordering students to hate—as Hillary said irredeemable and deplorable. CRT affects the integrity of education through misinformation, disinformation and deception. State control education will produce falsehood and lies, while real education produces grace and truth. By controlling education, the state will control the indoctrination and false narrative of history.
7. Religion -control 1st amendment by outlawing God, CRT hates God and wants to dismantle the family and make the State God. The state wants a Godless society and remove the free exercise of faith and belief in freedom of conscience.
8. Military – Control the social engineering with CRT, destroying the morale and mission (Duty, Honor, Country)
9. Property -the taking, redistribution and control of your property by the state. No rights for Farmers, Ranchers, and private homeowners. The state takes /steal your guns so no private defense of person, family, and property.
10. Class warfare -divide and conquer by control over population with taxing -working for state gain.

In conclusion, read the book by Richard Bookhiser: Give me liberty, a history of American's exceptional idea! Individual liberty requires individual responsibility with God over Conscience
God bless Rory L Rank

Handwritten notes at the top of the page.

2

HOW TO CREAT A SOLUTION

BY JOHN ALDRICH

When you are faced with a problem, get to work on it immediately. Do not waste time in thinking about it. The solution will come to you if you work hard enough.

First, define the problem. Write down what you know and what you want to find out. Then, think about the problem from all angles. Consider all possible solutions, even the most obvious ones. Do not be afraid to try something new.

Next, make a plan. Write down the steps you will take to solve the problem. Be realistic and make sure you have enough time to complete each step. If you get stuck, take a break and come back to it later. Sometimes, the solution will come to you when you are not thinking about it.

Finally, check your work. Make sure you have solved the problem and that your solution is correct. If you have time, try to find other ways to solve the problem. This will help you to become a better problem solver.

John Aldrich's 12 Rules for Making the Simplest Solution Work

Handwritten notes at the bottom of the page.

Las Cruces Sun-News Feature

April 21, 2019

WRITER: Matthew Legarreta, 575-646-7953, mattleg@nmsu.edu

SOURCE: Rory Rank, 575-646-3316, roryrank@nmsu.edu

Steve Nance, 575-646-3316, nance57@nmsu.edu

David Greenberg, 575-527-6089, dgreenn@nmsu.edu

Las Cruces middle schoolers learn 'Street Law' from NMSU professors

Students at Lynn Middle School have spent Friday mornings almost every week for the past semester engaged in "Street Law" classes, learning about topics such as civil, family, and criminal law from New Mexico State University criminal justice faculty.

New Mexico has consistently ranked low when it comes to child welfare, with recent findings from the 2017 Kids Count Data Book ranking the state 49th out of 50 for overall child well-being. Dona Ana County in particular has 38 percent of children living in poverty, 8 percent higher than the average for the rest of the state.

Those troubling statistics got the attention of Rory Rank, an adjunct faculty member at NMSU's criminal justice department, who proposed a more direct approach to reaching students in danger of engaging in criminal activities.

"You can do studies, you can do research, you can do data and all this," said Rank, "but the number one thing is action. You have to get out and actually provide the service and get involved."

Rank worked alongside fellow NMSU professors Steve Nance, William Corbett, and Andrea Joseph on developing and presenting the "Street Law" classes to the [grade level] students of Michelle Lucero's social studies class. The goal of the class is to both educate and deter at-risk youth from pursuing and engaging in illegal activity.

"Reaching kids in middle school...it's a place where we can start to address tough issues for children in more troubled backgrounds," said Nance, a visiting faculty member at NMSU and instructor of criminal justice classes at Dona Ana Community College.

Both Rank and Nance come from a deep background of working with kids in the criminal justice system. Nance is a former southern New Mexico warden and police officer, while Rank was a practicing attorney for 30 years, and formerly served as the supervisor of the Juvenile Division at the Las Cruces Law Offices of the Public Defender.

The "Street Law" classes are part of the community school initiative begun by Lynn Middle School in 2017. The program draws in outside resources from the Las Cruces community and brings them directly to the students who need them, in an effort to encourage their overall growth and well-being.

"Really, this whole community school system is an opportunity to harness the wisdom and the assets we have in the community," said David Greenberg, who is the district coordinator for community schools at the Las Cruces public school district, and who helped put together the "Street Law" classes. "And it's all about bestowing that wisdom on our students here at Lynn."

The Mayflower Compact (1620)

 morallaw.org/resources/key-documents/the-mayflower-compact/

The Mayflower Compact

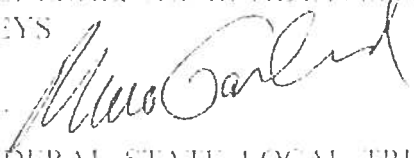

In the name of God, Amen. We, whose names are underwritten, the Loyal Subjects of our dread Sovereign Lord, King James, by the Grace of God, of England, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, e&. Having undertaken for the Glory of God, and Advancement of the Christian Faith, and the Honour of our King and Country, a voyage to plant the first colony in the northern parts of Virginia: do by these presents, solemnly and mutually in the Presence of God and one of another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil Body Politick, for our better Ordering and Preservation, and Furtherance of the Ends aforesaid; And by Virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame, such just and equal Laws, Ordinances, Acts, Constitutions and Offices, from time to time, as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the General good of the Colony; unto which we promise all due submission and obedience. In Witness whereof we have hereunto subscribed our names at Cape Cod the eleventh of November, in the Reign of our Sovereign Lord, King James of England, France and Ireland, the eighteenth, and of Scotland the fifty-fourth. Anno Domini, 1620.

Office of the Attorney General
Washington, D.C. 20530

October 4, 2021

MEMORANDUM FOR DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
DIRECTOR, EXECUTIVE OFFICE FOR U.S. ATTORNEYS
ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL, CRIMINAL DIVISION
UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS

FROM: THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
SUBJECT: PARTNERSHIP AMONG FEDERAL, STATE, LOCAL, TRIBAL, AND TERRITORIAL LAW ENFORCEMENT TO ADDRESS
THREATS AGAINST SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS, BOARD MEMBERS, TEACHERS, AND STAFF

In recent months, there has been a disturbing spike in harassment, intimidation, and threats of violence against school administrators, board members, teachers, and staff who participate in the vital work of running our nation's public schools. While spirited debate about policy matters is protected under our Constitution, that protection does not extend to threats of violence or efforts to intimidate individuals based on their views.

Threats against public servants are not only illegal, they run counter to our nation's core values. Those who dedicate their time and energy to ensuring that our children receive a proper education in a safe environment deserve to be able to do their work without fear for their safety.

The Department takes these incidents seriously and is committed to using its authority and resources to discourage these threats, identify them when they occur, and prosecute them when appropriate. In the coming days, the Department will announce a series of measures designed to address the rise in criminal conduct directed toward school personnel.

Coordination and partnership with local law enforcement is critical to implementing these measures for the benefit of our nation's nearly 14,000 public school districts. To this end, I am directing the Federal Bureau of Investigation, working with each United States Attorney, to convene meetings with federal, state, local, Tribal, and territorial leaders in each federal judicial district within 30 days of the issuance of this memorandum. These meetings will facilitate the discussion of strategies for addressing threats against school administrators, board members, teachers, and staff, and will open dedicated lines of communication for threat reporting, assessment, and response.

The Department is steadfast in its commitment to protect all people in the United States from violence, threats of violence, and other forms of intimidation and harassment.

PAID ADVERTISEMENT

In Response to the article, "Critical race theory, equity and schools," published Monday June 28, 2021, by Myranda Cry

Ms. Cyr's article attempts to explain Critical Race Theory (CRT) and Culturally and Linguistically Responsive (CLR) - unfortunately, Ms. Cyr misses the mark by not explaining: (1) the roots of CRT; (2) its influence on CLR; (3) how the Yazzie / Martinez ruling has been misinterpreted; (4) and how these policies may be in violation of the Civil Rights Act.

The opinions quoted in the article are from a single source which attempts to distance CRT from the recent equity-based policies being implemented in both Las Cruces Public Schools and Gadsden Independent School District through their upcoming implementation of CLR in our educator's professional development.

CRT's inception comes from the work of progressive legal scholars who attempted to develop a set of definitions and ideologies accounting for the role of racism in American Law, along with pushing their opinions as being the preferred way to eliminate racism as part of a larger goal of eliminating all forms of subordination.

CRT's ideology revolves around the assertion that racism is a permanent component of American Society. It argues that racial-dominant groups subvert others through their self-interest, power, and privilege; that racial inequality, whiteness, and racial biases lead to deficit thinking; and that subordination of people is systemic in society and needs to be eliminated through social justice means.

Proponents of this ideology dismiss and diminish the civil rights successes we've attained over the last 60 years. They attack the notion that color-blindness, racial equality, and removal of racial differences, has not made an impact and instead further perpetuated the "status quo with all of its deeply institutionalized injustices to racial minorities" and by "dismissing the importance of race guarantees that institutionalized and systematic racism continues and even prospers."

The American Civil Rights movement itself is a critical moment in history in which whites, blacks, and people of other races and ethnicities have come together for a common cause. Many witnessed the collapse of systemic and institutional racism, and the creation of opportunities for all Americans, African-Americans, Asian-Americans, Hispanic-Americans, and other races and cultures.

The 14th Amendment, The Brown v. Topeka Supreme Court ruling of 1954, the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and other legislation supporting Equal Opportunities have made strides in our American Society by championing 'color-blindness', racial harmony and inclusivity. CRT and CLR violate and go against these strides.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., would be questioning the judgement and wisdom of those who are pursuing the ideologies of CRT.

"Don't judge me by the color of my skin, but by the content of my character," - Dr. King

The LCPS School Board has used dangerous ideology in their drafting of the Ethnic Studies and recently adopted JBC Policy, under guise, misuse, and attempt to redefine, the terms "equity," "cultural fairness," and "social justice."

At our state level, the New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED), recently published its "Culturally and Linguistically Responsiveness Guidance Handbook," which has direct references to this dangerous CRT ideology. This is explicitly seen in the Four Areas of Culturally Responsive Pedagogy: Academic Success, Cultural Integrity, Critical Consciousness, and Equity. NMPED's adoption of this 'pedagogy' perpetuates social inequalities; depicts hostile classroom environments; over-emphasizes culture as the only lens through which to educate; indoctrinates students by encouraging sociopolitical consciousness to critique the cultural norms, values, and morals; and implies that students' cultural and linguistic backgrounds are a deficiency towards their success in the school system.

Our community of Las Cruces has not voiced a need for these ideological policies. With the demographics of Las Cruces, being in line with New Mexico's minority-majority at over 60 percent Hispanic, we need to question whether there is a need for such a policy and if this policy will directly help and improve our students' academic endeavors.

How will these dangerous policies address our student's reading, math, and science proficiencies being below 50 percent? How is shifting from academic-based education to value-based education going to be beneficial to our students and our community?

New Mexico has unique challenges as described in the Yazzie/Martinez ruling. To be clear, 2018 ruling focused on the challenges unique to New Mexico where limited access to Technology in Education did not provide an even level playing field for all students in New Mexico. The outcome of that ruling was to address the technology access challenges in ensuring broadband is available to all students, and technology is available in the classroom as well.

This ruling has been hijacked to justify the pursuit of 'equity-based' policies. Access to technology is not an equity or CLR issue - it's common sense, and our State Legislature has purposely ignore this challenge.

These CRT inspired policies include obscure language intended to confuse the community. Language such as "to validate and infuse student's home culture, language, identity, and socioeconomic status in learning environments" imply that each individual student lacks any capability of success other than their cultural and language backgrounds. Who gets to determine the relevant factors for each student's success, since every family in Las Cruces is unique and different? Will the school district adopt class-groupings through stereotypes?

This is blatant racism.

The redefinition of equity and equality via these policies is profound: equity is defined as "negotiating, re-allocating, and sometimes reimagining resources, opportunities, and supports when equal distribution of these things results in inequitable outcomes that do not adequately meet specific needs and interests of all groups of students."

This blatantly ignores that each individual student is given equal opportunities for success and that each family is empowered to take advance of these opportunities.

The teachings of this ideology should not be forced on anyone in our school system. The divisive concepts perpetuated by this ideology and policies should never be incorporated in any curriculum. Ultimately, parents need to be given the right to approve or disapprove any implementation of this policy in our student's classrooms or infusion into the curriculum.

There have been numerous minorities and those of lower economic means who have thrived in our country - proponents of CRT deny this and imply struggle akin to Cultural Marxism's class struggle and warfare.

Indoctrination of this ideology in our education system goes against the founding principles of this Country.

Our Educators and Students do not deserve this.

Signed - We The People, Concerned Citizens, Parents and Grandparents of Las Cruces, New Mexico

AD PAID FOR BY R. REYNAUD & J. GARCIA - 2862412604 - JILLUNGLF10@GMAIL.COM

Our kids are our future

We demand NM schools stop failing over 70% of our students, who are not proficient in English or Math. Far-left dog-whistler Peter Goodman tells us we should trust the leftists who control the LCPS school board. Surprised Mr. Goodman didn't call LC parents "terrorists" along with "fact-denying ideological zealots". The Proposed Curriculum has NMPED Deputy Secretary Dr. Warniment stating, "There is a lot that has happened and granted we teach differently not just based on facts and we were actually trying to shift away from merely fact-based teaching because that's what we actually have Just in Time Knowledge for." Who are the fact deniers? (Video Time: 1:53:08, 10/19/21 Board mtg).

The board has wasted months passing their Policy JBC "Equity and Excellence" policy (JBC). How is it "equitable" that the majority of our graduates are ill-equipped to pursue their education or be workplace ready? Instead JBC seeks to "infuse" the curriculum with ethnic studies and to group students into identity categories. This is not education. JBC will produce students susceptible to "group think" and future exploitation by partisan politicians.

Real education draws out the hidden talents of individual students. Yet now through a misguided "equity" policy, the current LCPS board will force our schools to teach that individualism is bad; that hard work and striving for excellence (an individual choice) are less important than group identifications.

Candidate Robert Wofford has been an educator for decades and stated that "George Washington is a myth of our youth" view of history (comment from the last debate). How much Marxist/cancel style ideological contamination has been imposed on the past generations of LC students without the parents being aware?

Is this radical, racial and destructive ideology what we want pushed forward in our schools?

Schools need to teach the basics. VOTE conservative.

Ad paid for by J. Garcia.

What Does It Mean to Be “Trauma-Informed?”

The National Child Traumatic Stress Network (NCTSN) defines all trauma-informed child- and family-service systems as “one in which all parties involved recognize and respond to the impact of traumatic stress on those who have contact with the system including children, caregivers, staff, and service providers. Programs and agencies within such a system infuse and sustain trauma awareness, knowledge, and skills into their organizational cultures, practices, and policies. They act in collaboration with all those who are involved with the child, using the best available science, to maximize physical and psychological safety, facilitate the recovery or adjustment of the child and family, and support their ability to thrive.”

In order to create, support, and sustain these elements specifically in schools, a tiered approach is suggested to create an environment with clear expectations for everyone, open communication, and a collective commitment to a safe and nurturing school culture. The tiered approach describes how trauma-informed practices can be applied both universally as a preventative approach and to help those in need of more intensive support. The aim of a trauma-informed tiered approach is to create a school-wide environment that addresses the needs of all students, staff, administrators, and families who might be at risk for experiencing traumatic stress symptoms. There are many ways to weave trauma-informed approaches into the fabric of schools, including strategic planning by administrators, approving trauma-informed policies, staff training, direct intervention with traumatized students, and building knowledge and communication in a variety of domains, all with a focus on creating and supporting academic achievement, behavioral competence, and mental health of all students, families, and staff.

The Challenges

While healing from trauma and loss exposure is possible with the appropriate level of support, before these supports are present many students may experience a range of reactions including behavioral changes, emotional distress, grief, difficulties with attention, academic failure, nightmares, or illness. These reactions sometimes develop into psychiatric disorders, including posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD), anxiety, and depression.² It is critical to highlight that even when a traumatic event does not result in clinical symptoms/behaviors consistent with traumatic stress, it can have a serious impact on the developmental trajectory of a youth across all major domains of functioning (e.g., physical/health, cognitive/learning, behavioral, social/emotional).

Trauma and traumatic stress reactions such as the symptoms and behaviors described above can disrupt the school routine and the processes related to teaching and learning not only for the child who experienced the event, but also for his or her peers, classroom environment, teachers, as well as staff. The ability to read, write, solve math problems, and engage in discussion requires attention, organization, comprehension, memory, the ability to produce work, engage in learning, and trust. These activities also require students to have the capability to regulate their own attention, emotions, and behavior.³ Students traumatized by exposure to violence are at increased risk for displaying emotional dysregulation, disruptive behaviors, declines in attendance and grade point averages, and more negative remarks in their cumulative records than other students. They may have increased difficulties concentrating and learning and may engage in unusually reckless or aggressive behavior.⁴ It is important to note that recent research highlights the unique impact of grief and loss when youth are exposed to traumatic events. Grief and loss reactions can heighten traumatic stress reactions and worsen symptoms such as feeling disconnected from others, strong negative reactions to relationships, and general disengagement from school.⁵

What Does a Trauma-Informed School Look Like?

Trauma-informed approaches within any system aim to adhere to the “4 Rs”:

- Realizing the widespread impact of trauma and pathways to recovery
- Recognizing trauma signs and symptoms
- Responding by integrating knowledge about trauma into all facets of the system
- Resisting re-traumatization of trauma-impacted individuals by decreasing the occurrence of unnecessary triggers (i.e., trauma and loss reminders) and by implementing trauma-informed policies, procedures, and practices.⁹

More specifically, a trauma-informed school system (pre-school – 12th grade) is one in which all administrators, staff, students, families, and community members recognize and respond to the potentially negative behavioral, relational, and academic impact of traumatic stress on those within the school system including children, caregivers, teachers, other school staff, as well as on the system itself. Such a school system provides trauma awareness, knowledge, and skills as part of the fabric of the school culture, practices, and policies and acts in collaboration with those who are involved with the child, including students' families, community agencies, leaders, and law enforcement, using the best available science to facilitate and support the recovery and resiliency of the school community. Specifically, a trauma-informed school promotes a safe and welcoming climate; seeks to create a structured and predictable learning environment that minimizes unnecessary trauma and loss reminders; focuses on building positive and attuned relationships between teachers and students, and among school staff; has anti-bullying and suicide prevention programs; and uses a balanced restorative justice (a.k.a. restorative practices) approach to conflict and conflict mediation with appropriate disciplinary action.

In essence, a school that is trauma-informed recognizes the relationship between and alignment of trauma-informed core areas with social, emotional, and behavioral learning practices, disciplinary response, classroom management, and student and professional supports. It acknowledges the impact that mental health can have across all major developmental domains (physical/health, cognitive/learning, behavioral, social/emotional) both inside and outside of the classroom, as well as how the scholastic experience can influence mental health. Given that the relationship between mental health and academic achievement is bidirectional and highly correlated, a trauma-informed school nurtures this relationship while maintaining its primary focus on educational outcome.

The Role and Goal of this Framework

The NCTSN System Framework for Trauma-Informed Schools provides strategic guidance in order to achieve the vision of a trauma-informed school described above. It is not a prescriptive roadmap for a one-size-fits all approach. Instead, it includes core areas that will help to focus educational system improvements and organizational changes. These core areas can be applied to each of the three intervention tiers to create a trauma-informed environment within the school system while identifying those who are at risk or might need more intensive support to address their traumatic stress or loss symptoms.

System Framework

Although the framework attempts to break down the complexity of a school system and its environment into discrete components, no single core area should be viewed in isolation. Only in totality can the framework serve to help create, support, and sustain a trauma-informed school.¹⁰ The framework for trauma-informed schools that follows applies to Pre/K-12. It is rooted in the Multi-Tiered Systems of Support (MTSS)¹⁰ framework pyramid, which is a multi-tiered approach for the early identification and support of students with learning and emotional/behavior needs. The framework not only infuses all three tiers of the MTSS (see diagram below) with trauma-informed concepts and practices, but it also recognizes and addresses the broader contexts in which these tiers operate: school environment/culture, community, and family partnerships.

CORE AREAS OF A TRAUMA-INFORMED SCHOOL

A trauma-informed school recognizes that trauma affects staff, students, families, communities, and systems. Thus organizational support, partnerships, and capacity-building are essential. The following represent 10 Core Areas for a trauma-informed school system and relevant tiered approaches within each area. Note: ▲1=Tier 1; ▲2=Tier 2; ▲3=Tier 3

I

Identifying and Assessing Traumatic Stress

The school recognizes and values identification of students that are vulnerable to traumatic events as an important prevention and intervention strategy with an intentional and transparent plan to use information to help a student attain educational goals. This requires implementing a tiered approach to identifying students for trauma-related mental health problems when indicated. Such factors include (but are not limited to) significant changes in key developmental domains (physical/health, cognitive, behavioral, social/emotional) as well as disruption in the student's academic performance, attendance, or pattern of school engagement. A tiered approach includes a diversity of strategies beginning with parent and family engagement and sustaining engagement throughout the process.

▲1 Systematically Assessing School-Wide Trauma-Informed Practices. The school employs an organizational assessment that requires identification of trauma-informed policies, practices, and/or procedures to support students and staff.

▲1 Standard Protocols for Considering Trauma-Exposure. School personnel are prompted routinely to consider the presence and/or impact of trauma exposure on student academic and behavioral performance. This includes observing signs, symptoms, and risk factors related to a potential traumatic event, and addressing barriers to support youth facing these challenges. Staff use trauma-related and/or routinely collected data to inform decisions about students in a systematic manner (e.g., attendance, grades, nursing visits, behavioral incidents). Staff meetings, student performance reviews, and other standard protocols for regularly assessing student performance while integrating trauma-informed considerations.

▲2 Trauma Screening for Behavioral Referrals. The school includes as a primary response to behavioral referrals a screening for traumatic experiences and traumatic/loss stress reactions using evidence-based screening tools. When traumatic exposure or traumatic/loss stress reactions are identified, a more comprehensive assessment is conducted to direct future interventions.

▲3 Ongoing Monitoring of Traumatic Stress Responses. The school makes available ongoing assessment that is aligned with ongoing intervention of traumatic stress reactions for students experiencing ongoing academic, behavioral, and mental health challenges.

II

Addressing and Treating Traumatic Stress

Adequate supports are available for all school stakeholders who have directly or indirectly experienced traumatic events or are at risk for exposure. Stakeholders include students, families, teachers, administration, and additional school personnel. Referral and access to evidence-based prevention and intervention resources are available and adapted to the needs of service recipients. Provision of services are systematically linked to protocols for identifying individuals exposed to trauma and loss. Routine reviews of service referral and provision are conducted to ensure effectiveness.

▲1 De-stigmatized Self-Referral Options. Students and school personnel are made aware of support services available. Schools provide options for self-referral that reduce stigma about mental health. Individuals are encouraged to connect with services when necessary. Service options are made available in the community to support privacy preferences.

IV

Partnerships with Students and Families

Trauma and loss involves experiences of powerlessness and isolation that can make students and families less likely to trust school institutions and authority figures or to fully participate in programs created to support their trauma recovery. It is therefore essential to empower students and family members as partners in the creation of a trauma-informed school as well as in the planning of trauma-informed practices. While limits exist for who the school can engage within the student's family directly, a trauma-informed lens recognizes the impact of caregiver, sibling, and other important family member's life experiences in an effort to enhance a school's ability to address adverse life experiences for the student and find practical opportunities to maximally address challenges facing students. Specifically, this supports student engagement academically and addresses potential trauma-related factors that are impacting students at home. Particular efforts should be made to build meaningful partnerships among students, families, caregivers, and school staff in order to better support students who have experienced trauma and loss; and to create, implement, and sustain trauma-informed programs and practices. Students and families are actively engaged in student-specific assessment of strengths and needs and the development of individualized education and treatment plans. Students and families are also actively engaged in school-wide planning and implementation efforts to address trauma, including the development of school-wide policy, protocol, and guidelines to create a trauma-informed school climate and to implement trauma-informed practices. Schools should embrace practices that incorporate peer and parent support and guidance.

▲ 1 Education for Parents/Caregivers. The school, together with community partners, teach parents about the effects of stress and trauma on children's brains and bodies, and instructs them in how to develop skills for coping with stress to bolster student's learning-readiness and a sense of psychological safety (feeling and believing one is safe).

▲ 1 Education for Students. The school provides education to students about the effects of stress on their brains and bodies, as well as stress management strategies such as slow breathing, mindfulness, effective problem-solving, and asking for help.

▲ 1 Engagement in Program Planning and Implementation. The school engages students and families/caregivers in the process of creating trauma-informed schools at all levels. School staff and administrators collaborate with students and families to develop practices that will best address their needs and implement those practices in ways that make them most useful, effective, and accessible. On an organizational level, schools partner with students, families, and caregivers when making decisions regarding the development and implementation of programs.

▲ 2 Families are an important Source for Identifying Students In Need of More Support. Parents and caregivers want their children to succeed in school and often need assistance themselves in learning ways to help their child. Therefore, they are a primary source for identifying students in need of more individualized planning and support.

▲ 3 Engaging Families in Treatment. The treatment process must engage both youth and families as actively as possible. Providers should partner with families to address safety issues and concerns, define their needs and hopes for treatment, explore their role in their child's treatment, and regularly provide input about how their child is doing. A general understanding about issues parents may face such as managing personal stresses, difficulties sleeping, or interpersonal challenges should inform interventions. Families should have an easy and accessible mechanism for providing frequent feedback to the school and to the treatment provider.

V

Creating a Trauma-Informed Learning Environment (Social/Emotional Skills and Wellness)

The school creates a safe environment by promoting healthy interactions among students and staff and teaching social/emotional skills and self-regulation skills. In a trauma-informed approach, the school promotes the wellness of all students, ensuring they feel safe and supported physically, socially, emotionally, and academically. School personnel model healthy social/emotional skills and integrate trauma-informed practices with other tural brokers (members of the student's community tasked with translating cultural practices for school) engage with the school to act as a bridge between school and community, especially when a family is reluctant to engage in health and trauma-informed services. Interventions recognize and address the impact of traumatic stress that can result from societal oppressions such as racism, xenophobia, homophobia, and sexism.

VII

Emergency Management/Crisis Response

The school has clear and well-communicated procedures to address emergencies before, during, and after an event. Trainings and drills that involve students and school staff must be delivered in a trauma-informed manner, which includes special attention to those who have been previously traumatized and adapting protocols to reduce the impact of these exercises. The school develops a comprehensive protocol for all hazards and trains staff, students, and partners in those procedures.

▲ 1 Comprehensive Emergency Operations Plan. Schools consider all threats and hazards, provides for the access and functional needs of the whole school community, considers all settings and all times, and creates a collaborative process for regularly revising this plan. Schools Emergency Operations plans should be developed and maintained by various representatives from administration, staff, parents, and community representatives (e.g., law enforcement, fire officials, mental health practitioners).

▲ 1 Staff and Partners Informed of Emergency Procedures. Staff and partners should be well informed about the Emergency Operations Plan, including the protocol for communications with individuals inside the school and their parents/caregivers. The whole community should regularly practice the plan using different drills and exercises. Staff should also be trained in appropriate early interventions for when an emergency takes place, such as Psychological First Aid.

▲ 2 Threat-Assessment. The school should create and maintain a comprehensive threat assessment protocol which includes a multidisciplinary school threat assessment team for early identification and intervention of potential targeted acts of violence.

▲ 3 Recovery Services. In the aftermath of a crisis, a team of trained professionals, which may include school staff, provides evidence-based and trauma-informed screenings and intervention following the crisis to ensure adequate support for individuals impacted by the crisis. To facilitate recovery, when necessary, the school provides both short-term supports to stabilize students affected by an immediate crisis and long-term supports in the aftermath to facilitate recovery and adjustment.

VIII

Staff Self-Care and Secondary Traumatic Stress

The school trains staff in social/emotional skills that promote the physical, social, emotional, and academic wellness of all teachers and staff, and support school climate of physical and psychological safety. Additionally, schools identify sources of secondary traumatic stress (STS) for teachers and staff and intervene to mitigate and/or manage stress.

▲ 1 Work Responsibilities Consider Self-Care Practices. School administration and key decision-makers consider the impact of school staff assignments, general workload, and exposure to students displaying traumatic stress reactions on staff mental health. Plans for addressing barriers to a supportive professional environment and incorporating feedback from school staff should be implemented. Wellness practices are encouraged and offered regularly to reduce staff stress.

▲ 1 Prevention and Awareness of Secondary Traumatic Stress (STS) in Educators. Schools provide training for staff to understand the signs of secondary traumatic stress and the ways to prevent STS and burnout. A support structure that promotes help seeking should be available to support the self-care of its staff, teachers, and administrators. Offerings of wellness activities and promoting routine health care is another critical component to supporting staff well-being.

vide clear and consistent messages among partners—including all levels of school governance, federal agencies, state and local government—articulating a clear, strong, coordinated message that trauma-sensitive schools are a priority. Schools and districts build and maintain organizational infrastructure, including the support of local “champions,” to sustain trauma-informed practices. These practices include ongoing assessment of the effectiveness of trauma-informed policies, practices, and procedures.

▲ 1 Resource Mapping and Service Access. Schools, community agencies, and state and local governments collaborate to ensure support services are an integral part of trauma-sensitive whole-school environments and that they connect students to their school communities. Further, schools and partners should routinely generate a catalogue of services available at the school and in the community. These services should be based on screening and assessment outcomes and delivered to students with fidelity to evidence-based principles.

▲ 2 Multidisciplinary Team-Based Approaches. The school uses team-based approaches for problem-solving, decision-making, and action planning to support students receiving Tier 2 level intervention efforts. Teams facilitate student eligibility and placement into Tier 2 group interventions, monitor progress and effectiveness of interventions, and collectively collaborate to make adjustments to the student’s intervention plan.

▲ 3 Consultation and Partnership with School Staff and Community Members. Intensive trauma-informed school-based individual and family interventions should include consultation with school staff and wrap-around services. Partnerships in the community that can maintain youth safety and where youth may utilize services should be established in child welfare and residential settings, justice settings, or law enforcement settings.

Creating, Supporting, and Sustaining Trauma-Informed Schools: A System Framework

BACKGROUND AND OVERVIEW

The primary mission for schools is to support students in educational achievement. To reach this goal, we know that children must feel safe, supported, and ready to learn. As schools strive to accomplish this for all students—regardless of strengths, needs, and capacities—schools must recognize the influence of the students' personal experiences on their learning and achievement. Children are exposed to violence and trauma at an alarming rate in the United States. By age sixteen, two-thirds of children in the United States have experienced a potentially traumatic event such as physical or sexual abuse, natural disaster or terrorism, sudden or violent loss of a loved one, refugee and war experiences, serious accident or life-threatening illness, or military family-related stress. Many children, with support, are able to heal and overcome such traumatic experiences. However, a recent report examining the impact of adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) on academic outcomes found that communities with higher ACE scores had higher rates of suspension and unexcused absences and lower rates of graduation from high school and progression to post-secondary school than communities with relatively low prevalence of ACEs.¹ Not only are individual children affected by traumatic experiences, but other students, the adults on campus, and their communities can be impacted by interacting or working with a child who has experienced trauma. Thus, as schools maintain their critical focus on education and achievement, they must also acknowledge that mental health and wellness are integrally connected to students' success in the classroom and to a thriving school environment. This framework illustrates why becoming "trauma-informed" should be an essential component of the overall mission of our education system.

This framework will help schools and sites who partner with schools have a better sense of the areas to address when working towards a more trauma-informed school.

Repeated childhood exposure to traumatic events can affect the developing brain and nervous system, such that the brain is more easily triggered into survival mode even when there is no actual danger present. When areas of the brain associated with survival are triggered and highly activated, the thinking and learning areas of the brain are bypassed and largely “go offline.” Further, exposure to chronic trauma is associated with an increase in health-risk behaviors such as smoking, eating disorders, substance use, and high-risk sexual behaviors leading to teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections.³ In the classroom, behaviors resulting from exposure to trauma can lead to reduced instructional time, suspensions, and expulsions. Long-term results of exposure to violence include reduced graduation rates, along with increased incidences of teen pregnancy, joblessness, and poverty.⁶

School environments that do not recognize when externalizing behaviors and emotional dysregulation of a student are a result of trauma and loss may respond in a punitive and potentially harmful way. Students who have been exposed to trauma are at increased risk of receiving out-of-school discipline.⁷ Historically, schools and districts have responded to a broad range of student behaviors by implementing zero tolerance policies, resulting in suspensions and expulsions for drug use and violence as well as minor infractions such as “willful defiance.” Although zero tolerance policies are aimed at improving safety on school campuses, unintended consequences can result such as greater school dropout and justice system involvement of those who are suspended or expelled from school. Out-of-school discipline also disproportionately affects African American students, who are four times more likely than their White peers to be suspended, a trend that begins in preschool. Schools may also inappropriately respond to defiant behavior by relying on a show of force by police.⁸ Collectively, these well-intentioned policies and practices can undermine feelings of safety for students impacted by trauma and inadvertently contribute to a school climate counter to many principles of a trauma-informed approach.

The Opportunities

Traumatic stress can arise from a variety of sources, both internal to the school environment and external, such as bullying, school shootings, dramatic weather events, community or domestic violence, grief due to loss of a loved one, and even the day-to-day exposure to events such as divorce, poverty, homelessness, abuse and/or neglect. Children and adults can be affected by traumatic stress. Having the tools and strategies to identify, address, and manage traumatic stress empowers all stakeholders involved with the school community, and supports their primary pursuit of educational achievement.⁶

School personnel are uniquely situated to identify, respond to, and be impacted by students’ traumatic stress symptoms due to their central role in children’s lives and their continued assessment of children’s learning abilities and relationships with peers and school staff. The goals of schools that pertain to student learning, test scores, and successful outcomes are directly impacted by children’s traumatic experiences, so addressing students’ trauma and loss symptoms is essential for meeting those goals. School personnel have the ability to change the course of children’s lives while meeting their own systems’ goals through teaching children skills to regulate their emotions and behaviors, partnering with families to strengthen children’s relationships with adults in and outside of the school, and allowing them to develop their academic potential.¹

Trauma-informed schools build resilience by preparing schools to be responsive to the needs of their constituents with seamless, accessible social, behavioral, and emotional supports involving all school community members, as well as access to evidence-based, developmentally appropriate, child and family services. This requires the engagement of all administrators, educators, and staff, as they are each involved with the daily life of students who have experienced trauma and loss.

Strengthening systems is particularly important when working with diverse and vulnerable student populations including ethnically and culturally diverse youth, sexual minorities, developmentally-delayed students, and youth with linguistic diversity. Trauma-informed approaches are most effective when implemented during a student’s initial encounter with early learning systems (e.g., pre-school, head-start) and are sustained throughout their educational experience.

Within each of these tiers are strategies that are critical to creating a trauma-informed school. These include practices that influence the day-to-day interactions among educational staff, students and families, organizational policies and procedures, and community capacity-building strategies. All of these—inside the school and in the family and community contexts—are essential to support the overall culture, practice, and structures for a trauma-informed school. While it is noted that education and mental health perspectives for serving student social/emotional needs may differ, the following framework is intended to integrate these perspectives and highlight the core areas necessary to implement and sustain trauma-informed practices in a school.

Tier 1

Safe Environments and Universally Healthy Students / Creating and Supporting a Trauma-Informed School Community

Schools transform on a number of levels to create and support safe environments that promote healthy and successful students and staff. This foundational work is Tier I of the MTSS pyramid and necessary to support strategies across the entire pyramid.

Tier 2

Early Intervention/Identifying Students and Staff At-Risk

Schools identify and respond to students and staff who are at-risk or have been exposed to trauma and/or loss in ways that meet their unique exposures, experiences, developmental, and personal needs.

Tier 3

Intensive Support

Schools provide support to those students whose behaviors and experiences necessitate intensive interventions and aim to meet their unique exposures, experiences, developmental, and personal needs.

2 Early Interventions. Based on screening results, the school provides trauma-informed, evidence-based, resiliency-building early interventions. Interventions for schools may include cognitive-behavioral or mindfulness strategies, treatments for youth identified at risk for traumatic stress, grief, or depression; or referrals to trauma-informed services that address behaviors such as substance abuse. Schools also provide opportunities for educators to employ in-class supports that address behavior in a trauma-informed manner.

2 ▲ 3 Trauma-Informed Behavior Support Plans. The school's behavioral support planning team incorporates an understanding of trauma, trauma and loss reminders, trauma's impact on key developmental domains, and evidence-based practices for supporting children experiencing traumatic stress into its behavior support planning process.

2 ▲ 3 Trauma-Informed Special Education Services. School-based Individualized Education Plan (IEP) team members incorporate an understanding of trauma, trauma and loss reminders, trauma's impact on key developmental domains, and evidence-based practices for supporting children experiencing traumatic stress into its IEP planning process.

▲ 3 Referring for Services. Educators and school staff refer students to evidence-based trauma-informed treatments as needed when the school is unable to meet their trauma-based mental health needs. The school develops strong relationships with community providers of trauma-informed care.

Trauma Education and Awareness

Professional development for educators, administrators, and allied professionals and partners is routinely offered with the goal that the entire community will share the understanding of trauma's impact on learning and will build student coping and protective skills. This will be done by using a whole-school inquiry-based approach to creating trauma-sensitive schools. Schools and districts work to create local policies that support trauma-informed practices and have adequate staffing to perform screenings, provide services, and create an effective infrastructure to achieve the administrative functions necessary for effective implementation of trauma-informed policies, practices, and procedures.

▲ 1 School Mission and Vision. The schools' academic mission recognizes (formally and in practice) that addressing trauma and behaviors associated with exposure to trauma and loss is key to improving academic outcomes.

▲ 1 Professional Development. Trauma literacy is a key component of professional development for school administrators, teachers, and staff. Building on a strong foundation of therapeutic and crisis management practice in schools, trauma literacy helps staff recognize the continuum of trauma in children and its impact on academic achievement and development. Leadership and staff share an understanding of trauma's stress on the brain and body, student learning, their behavior, and the need for a school-wide approach to develop skills for coping with such stress.

▲ 1 Psychoeducation for Students on the Effects of Stress and Trauma. The school provides health and psychoeducation to students about the effects of stress and trauma on the body; how to develop healthy coping skills for managing stress; promotes associations and activities that nurture healthy peer and family relationships and connections to community organizations; and incorporates practices to increase students' resilience and protective factors. For youth who have recently experienced a loss, the school provides grief-specific psychoeducation and supports. Psychoeducation empowers youth to seek services when necessary.

2 Developmentally Appropriate Trauma-Informed Responses. The school recognizes that trauma can impact development. A child's developmental level should be considered when addressing their educational needs, including classroom structure and individualized supports. For younger students, the recognition that the adults in these children's lives may have to provide additional support to help them thrive. It also recognizes that certain students may have developmental delays or intellectual disabilities that require specialized trauma-responses.

school-wide behavioral programming. Protocols to address bullying, identify threats, harassment, bigotry, inequity, and other behaviors that compromise the safety of the learning environment are clearly outlined and employ a trauma-informed perspective.

▲ 1 Promoting a Safe School Climate & Education about Trauma. By promoting healthy activities and utilizing protective factors that include connections to community organizations and practices to increase students' resilience and coping skills, schools create an environment that leads to healthier student interactions with others and a school that feels physically and psychologically safer for all its members.

▲ 1 Predictable and Supportive Learning Environments. The school uses an understanding of trauma to deepen and augment school-wide practices to create a predictable and supportive learning environment that minimizes unnecessary trauma and loss reminders.

▲ 1 Developing Sense of School Community. The school explicitly connects students and teachers to each other, to the schools' programs, and to the rest of the school community—including the promotion of teacher peer consultation and support models.

▲ 1 2 Teaching Social Skills. The school provides training for staff and curriculum implementation for students on creating, sustaining, and promoting a positive and safe learning environment. Content includes conflict resolution, problem-solving skills, social communication, emotional/behavioral literacy, bullying prevention, and suicide prevention. The school recognizes that unhealthy social conflict between peers can have serious developmental consequences and negatively impact the mental health of all youth involved. Consequently, the school proactively addresses bullying/cyberbullying by educating staff, students, and families in bullying awareness, relevant social skills (empathy, friendship, assertiveness) and effective response and repair strategies. Providing targeted supports for youth at risk of displaying behaviors that adversely impact the psychological and physical safety of others is an important supplement to universal supports.

▲ 3 Safe Spaces for Students. The school develops and designates safe spaces inside and outside of the classroom for students to calm themselves after exposure to trauma and loss triggers. Safe spaces provide opportunities for students to self-regulate when experiencing behavioral and emotional challenges.

VI

Cultural Responsiveness

The school recognizes that there are cultural differences in experiences, interpretations, and responses to trauma. For students seeking help after a trauma, the school ensures that responses of school staff are culturally appropriate. The school also works to actively counteract the effects of historical trauma, societal oppression including implicit and explicit bias, and institutional oppression including eliminating disproportionality in punitive and exclusionary (out-of-school) discipline practices.

▲ 1 Cultural-Responsive Approaches Integrated School-Wide. Professional development and supervision of school personnel are infused with strategies for understanding cultural perspectives and traditions of students and their families, as well as strategies for actively counteracting the effects of implicit and explicit bias on an institutional level and in individual interactions. Connecting with community partners who can enhance cultural responsiveness and support cultural brokering (partnering with a community member to champion trauma-informed practices) is a priority.

▲ 2 Address Systemic Practices Countering Cultural-Responsiveness. The school reviews policies and procedures to identify and address standard practices that may adversely and disproportionately impact specific groups of students and exacerbate traumatic stress or loss reactions. The school also pays particular attention to cultural practices of families, such as disciplinary practices, in a manner that protects the student while respecting and understanding the cultural frame of the family.

▲ 3 Adapting Interventions Using Cultural-Responsive Strategies. Evidence-based practices are adapted to the students and their families in an attempt to reduce stigma and increase effectiveness of service utilization. Cul-

▲ 2 In-School Supports for Educators. Peer supports and stress-management are provided for educators displaying signs of burnout and/or STS. Schools integrate protocols for checking in with educators (in a non-punitive manner) to assess their level of need.

▲ 3 Support Services and Employee Assistance Programs Availability. School staff have access to resources after experiencing potentially traumatic life events or exposure to substantial levels of stress in their professional or personal lives. Access and utilization of these resources are provided in non-stigmatizing ways. Ensure that Employee Assistance Programs (EAPs) and insurance companies offer trauma and loss-specific evidence-based practices.

IX

School Discipline Policies and Practices

The school includes a trauma-informed lens in the review and revision of discipline policies and practices. The impact of traumatic life experiences on students' behavior and home life is considered when administering discipline. Disciplinary actions should be aimed to address the safety of those in the school environment and to utilize available resources to help students learn skills that support reintegrating into the school.

▲ 1 Standard Discipline Procedures Are Trauma-Informed and Equitable. Schools refrain from using zero tolerance policies and out-of-school discipline procedures as a primary disciplinary tool. Schools also refrain from unnecessarily calling on school resource officers (SRO) for punitive responses to student behaviors and integrates SROs into non-punitive school activities to increase trust. Schools should consider whether traumatic event exposure plays a role in student behavior and communicate behavioral expectations and disciplinary actions in a clear and consistent manner. Disciplinary procedures are implemented in an equitable way that eliminates disproportionality in disciplinary practices.

▲ 2 Disciplinary Actions Accompanied by Trauma-Informed Interventions. Students requiring frequent disciplinary actions are assigned appropriate support services to address underlying causes of the behavior. The school coordinates support services with the student's family and gives appropriate referrals as available when required.

▲ 3 Restorative Practices Embedded in Disciplinary Protocols. Best practices for engaging students in repairing situations and relationships harmed by their behavior are integrated into disciplinary procedures (i.e., restorative justice practices).

X

Cross System Collaboration and Community Partnerships

Trauma-informed approaches span all aspects of the school environment, including classrooms, health services, administration, school discipline and attendance, guidance, and extra-curricular programming. Staff collaborate to ensure continuity of trauma-informed practices across student services. The school routinely collaborates with family and community partners for trauma-informed approaches. Schools outreach to community partners, including community mental health organizations, community diversity and human rights organizations, youth-focused groups, law enforcement, child welfare, advocacy groups, military family organizations, and others to (1) increase their knowledge of the impact of trauma exposure on children and youth, (2) share strategies for supporting students impacted by traumatic stress, (3) increase their knowledge of secondary traumatic stress and the personal and professional impact of working with trauma-impacted children, youth, and families, and (4) share strategies for promoting health and wellness in educators and school staff. School leaders participating in community advisory boards or taskforces ensure that schools contribute to collective efforts toward building a trauma-informed community.

▲ 1 Developing and Sustaining Trauma-Informed Policies and Practices. Laws, policies, and funding streams are cultivated and maintained to support schools in the development of an action plan to create whole-school trauma-informed approaches that are organized according to core school operations. The ultimate goal is to pro-

REFERENCES

- ¹ Blodgett, C. & Dorado, J. (2016). A selected review of trauma-informed school practice and alignment with educational practice. California Endowment: San Francisco, CA.
- ² Chafouleas, S. M., Johnson, J. H., Overstreet, S., & Santos, N. M. (2016). Toward a blueprint for trauma-informed service delivery in schools. School Mental Health, 8:144–162.
- ³ Briggs, E. C., Greeson, J. K. P., Lane, C. M., Fairbank, J. A., Knoverek, A. M., & Pynoos, R. S. (2012). Trauma exposure, psychosocial functioning, and treatment needs of youth in residential care: Preliminary findings from the NCTSN Core Data Set. Journal of Child and Adolescent Trauma, 5(1), 1–15.
- ⁴ Foy, D. W., & Goguen, C. A. (1998). Community violence-related PTSD in children and adolescents. PTSD Research Quarterly, 9, 1-6.
- ⁵ Cohen, J. A., Mannarino, A. P., & Deblinger, E. (2016). Treating trauma and traumatic grief in children and adolescents. Guilford Publications.
- ⁶ National Task Force on Children Exposed to Violence (US), Listenbee, R. L., & Torre, J. (2012). Report of the Attorney General's National Task Force on Children Exposed to Violence. Attorney General's National Task Force on Children Exposed to Violence.
- ⁷ Perfect, M. M., Turley, M. R., Carlson, J. S., Yohanna, J., & Saint Gilles, M. P. (2016). School-related outcomes of traumatic event exposure and traumatic stress symptoms in students: A systematic review of research from 1990 to 2015. School Mental Health, 8(1), 7-43.
- ⁸ Smolkowski, K., Girvan, E. J., McIntosh, K., Nese, R. N., & Horner, R. H. (2016). Vulnerable decision points for disproportionate office discipline referrals: Comparisons of discipline for African American and White elementary school students. Behavioral Disorders, 41(4), 178-195.
- ⁹ Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (2014). SAMHSA'S Concept of Trauma and Guidance for a Trauma-Informed Approach. SAMHSA's Trauma and Justice Strategic Initiative.
- ¹⁰ Sulkowski, M. L., & Michael, K. (2014). Meeting the mental health needs of homeless students in schools: A Multi-Tiered System of Support framework. Children and Youth Services Review, 44, 145-151.

Suggested Citation:

National Child Traumatic Stress Network, Schools Committee. (2017). Creating, supporting, and sustaining trauma-informed schools: A system framework. Los Angeles, CA, and Durham, NC: National Center for Child Traumatic Stress.

EDIFY OUR YOUTH

TRANSFORM TO AND FROM WHAT?

Individual liberties require individual responsibilities with God over conscience. Excellence is not an act, but a HABIT. Habits change through a consistence commitment to make right choices. Character is doing the right thing, the right way, for the RIGHT REASONS. Believe to ACHIEVE because a person who walks with integrity walks SECURELY.

MINDSET

THINK, THINK, THINK

The goal is to take a child from a state or well-being from Survival, to Stability, to Success and then hopefully to Significance (having a positive and meaningful life purpose) Success is peace of mind and self-satisfaction in

Priority of _____ Mind/Choice

- ✓ Devoted
- ✓ Dedicated
- ✓ Disciplined
- ✓ Determined
- ✓ Discerning
- ✓ Developed

knowing you gave your best effort to become the best person you are capable of becoming—John Wooden, Pyramid of Success ! We will not love you all the same, but we will love you all the same. Each one of you will receive the treatment you earn and deserve (Principle Centered Decision –making and choices require Responsibility + Accountability = Consequences) This should make a person a better citizen with Character.

THEORIES BEHAVIORAL PSYCHOLOGY

The 6 Stages of Behavior Change

The Transtheoretical or Stages of Change Model

by Zendra Cherry

✓ Medically reviewed by David Susman, PhD on July 23, 2021

Anyone who has ever made and broken a New Year's resolution can appreciate the difficulty of behavior change. Making a lasting change in behavior is rarely a simple process. It usually involves a substantial commitment of time, effort, and emotion.

The Stages of Change

Illustration by P. G. G. Verywell

How to Get Started

Give Me Liberty Or Give Me Death

Patrick Henry, March 23, 1775.

No man thinks more highly than I do of the patriotism, as well as abilities, of the very worthy gentlemen who have just addressed the House. But different men often see the same subject in different lights; and, therefore, I hope it will not be thought disrespectful to those gentlemen if, entertaining as I do opinions of a character very opposite to theirs, I shall speak forth my sentiments freely and without reserve. This is no time for ceremony. The questing before the House is one of awful moment to this country. For my own part, I consider it as nothing less than a question of freedom or slavery; and in proportion to the magnitude of the subject ought to be the freedom of the debate. It is only in this way that we can hope to arrive at truth, and fulfill the great responsibility which we hold to God and our country. Should I keep back my opinions at such a time, through fear of giving offense, I should consider myself as guilty of treason towards my country, and of an act of disloyalty toward the Majesty of Heaven, which I revere above all earthly kings.

Mr. President, it is natural to man to indulge in the illusions of hope. We are apt to shut our eyes against a painful truth, and listen to the song of that siren till she transforms us into beasts. Is this the part of wise men, engaged in a great and arduous struggle for liberty? Are we disposed to be of the number of those who, having eyes, see not, and, having ears, hear not, the things which so nearly concern their temporal salvation? For my part, whatever anguish of spirit it may cost, I am willing to know the whole truth; to know the worst, and to provide for it.

I have but one lamp by which my feet are guided, and that is the lamp of experience. I know of no way of judging of the future but by the past. And judging by the past, I wish to know what there has been in the conduct of the British ministry for the last ten years to justify those hopes with which gentlemen have been pleased to solace themselves and the House. Is it that insidious smile with which our petition has been lately received? Trust it not, sir; it will prove a snare to your feet. Suffer not yourselves to be betrayed with a kiss. Ask yourselves how this gracious reception of our petition comports with those warlike preparations which cover our waters and darken our land. Are fleets and armies necessary to a work of love and reconciliation? Have we shown ourselves so unwilling to be reconciled that force must be called in to win back our love? Let us not deceive ourselves, sir. These are the implements of war and subjugation; the last arguments to which kings resort. I ask gentlemen, sir, what means this martial array, if its purpose be not to force us to submission? Can gentlemen assign any other possible motive for it? Has Great Britain any enemy, in this quarter of the world, to call for all this accumulation of navies and armies? No, sir, she has none. They are meant for us: they can be meant for no other. They are sent over to bind and rivet upon us those chains which the British ministry have been so long forging. And what have we to oppose

Peace In The Valley

Huge selection of Peace In The Valley items.
Yahoo.com

Quotes Patrick Henry

Get better answers and references on Ask.com. Use Ask.com now!
www.ask.com

Find the Car You Want

Find A Jeep In Your Area. View New & Used Local Listings Now!
AutoTrader.com

NY Justice Of The Peace

New York Justice Of The Peace Free Wedding Package By Email
NY_Justice_Of_The_Pe

SAMHSA's GAINS Center for Behavioral Health and Justice Transformation, operated by Policy Research Associates, Inc. (PRA), known nationally for its work regarding people with behavioral health needs involved in the criminal justice system, is soliciting applications from agencies and communities for our national technical assistance opportunity. Interested agencies and communities may apply for this opportunity to train a cadre of professionals in trauma-informed responses.

To find out more about How Being Trauma-Informed Improves Criminal Justice System Responses, please visit SAMHSA's GAINS Center.

The GAINS Center is offering a series of Train-the-Trainer (TTT) events to teach local trainers to deliver its How Being Trauma-Informed Improves Criminal Justice System Responses curriculum. The target audiences for this training program are primarily community-based criminal justice system professionals, including law enforcement, community corrections (probation, parole, and pre-trial services), court personnel, as well as human service providers that serve adult justice-involved populations. Special consideration is being given to applications that demonstrate the inclusion of trainers who train drug court and/or reentry program staff. The GAINS Center will offer the TTT events free of charge to selected agencies and communities between February and August 2022.

To apply for a TTT event, please download the solicitation and submit a completed application form no later than November 12, 2021.

Download the TTT solicitation.

NOTE: All TTT events under this solicitation are currently being planned to be held virtually.

SOLICITATION FOR APPLICATIONS

SAMHSA's GAINS Center Seeks Agencies and Communities to Develop Trauma-Informed Training Capacity

Apply by November 12, 2021

SAMHSA'S GAINS CENTER SEEKS AGENCIES AND COMMUNITIES TO DEVELOP TRAUMA-INFORMED TRAINING CAPACITY

5

RECENT CONTENT

Birthday Eve: The First One

Peers and Volunteers Supporting Recovery: Mountain Top Cares Coalition Battles the Opioid Epidemic in Rural New York

Reducing Collateral

Decision - making

“How Being Trauma-Informed Improves Judicial Decision-Making”

Although prevalence estimates vary, there is a consensus that high percentages of justice-involved women and men have experienced serious trauma throughout their lifetime. The reverberating effects of trauma experiences can challenge a person’s capacity for recovery and pose significant barriers to accessing services. This, in turn, poses an increased risk of coming into contact with the criminal justice system.

The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration’s (SAMHSA’s) GAINS Center for Behavioral Health and Justice Transformation, operated by Policy Research Associates, Inc. (PRA), is nationally known for its work regarding people with behavioral health needs involved in the criminal justice system. As a central component of SAMHSA’s efforts to assist communities in moving toward a trauma-informed continuum to improve outcomes for justice-involved individuals who have experienced trauma, the GAINS Center has developed its How Being Trauma-Informed Improves Judicial Decision-Making training program. This two-hour training is designed specifically for judges and other court professionals. The goals of the training are to:

- Increase understanding of trauma
- Create an awareness of the impact of trauma on behavior
- Understand vicarious trauma and the impact on court professionals
- Develop trauma-informed responses that avoid re-traumatization, increase safety, reduce recidivism, and promote recovery

Trauma-informed court responses can help to avoid re-traumatizing individuals, and thereby increase safety for all, decrease recidivism, and promote and support recovery of justice-involved women and men with serious mental health and substance use disorders. Trauma-informed practices include an awareness of potential vicarious trauma experienced by justice professionals. Partnerships across systems can also help to link individuals to trauma-informed services and treatment for trauma and vicarious trauma. How Being Trauma-Informed Improves Judicial Decision-Making supports these efforts and provides a foundation for trauma-informed decision-making in court settings.

Objectives of the training program:

- Discuss why court professionals should learn about trauma
- List examples of traumatic events
- Define trauma and vicarious trauma
- Discuss how trauma is often ongoing for many individuals in the criminal justice system
- Describe the pervasive impact trauma can have on an individual’s life
- Describe how the impact of trauma can be experienced throughout life and affect behavior and functioning
- Describe how trauma relates to physical health, mental health, and substance use
- Describe how certain behaviors may reflect a person’s attempt to survive
- Describe how a history of trauma may result in problematic behavior
- List ways that the court process may re-traumatize individuals
- Discuss how working in the justice system exposes professionals to secondary trauma that may result in vicarious trauma
- Discuss how vicarious trauma can interfere with a professional’s work effectiveness
- Discuss how to improve policies and procedures to make them trauma-informed
- Identify trauma-informed responses that can be incorporated into court practices how it's contrary to the Constitution, and the Equal Protection Clause and civil rights laws."

"If people become equipped by knowledge and have the courage to stand up on principle, to fight for principles they believe in, there's no way that this radical agenda can take down our nation," she said.

"You should know the truth and the truth shall make you free," Swain said, citing the Bible.

If people, however, allow CRT to advance through the nation's institutions of power and reshape the way the society functions, then state-sanctioned discrimination will soon be instituted by the U.S. government—by the highest echelons of power—weakening and destroying the nation from within, she warned.

"The remedy is the American people standing on principles, standing on values, standing on their history, and being courageous enough to fight back," said Swain.

Joshua Philipp contributed to this report.

Inciting racism serves the political interests of the Democrats who use the CRT to sow divisions between races in order to secure the black votes that they need to maintain their power, Swain said.

Any time some progress is made with race relations, an incident is found “to play up in the media to get Americans all worked up and divided by race. And it’s very easy to do because there’s always something happening somewhere,” she added.

She pointed to the many incidents like police shootings that have been played up by the media, acting to inflame people’s emotions and distract the public “during a time when there’s something in the news that is not favorable to the progressive agenda.”

It makes black people keep feeling like there is so much racism and blames Republicans or white people for being guilty of this racism, Swain continued.

“They are creating a very dangerous situation in this country because they’re demonizing all white people, including themselves and their own children,” she said, adding that hatred, once unleashed, cannot be easily “put back in the box.”

Black Lives Matter (BLM), an openly Marxist organization, was able to capitalize on the public’s reaction to George Floyd’s death and raise millions of dollars for progressive black causes, Swain said. People around the world who care about black people were shocked by the video of Floyd’s death, which was played over and over again in the news and many then donated money to the organization because they believed in the slogan “Black Lives Matter.”

“Black lives do matter, all lives matter,” she said. But “that money did not go into black communities. It didn’t change black lives.”

The Epoch Times has reached out to Black Lives Matter for comment.

Swain went on to encourage Americans to counter the negative impact of CRT by becoming informed about CRT and “where it comes from, and how it operates, and

She pointed out that she was able to achieve success and overcome the circumstances of her birth because she believed that hard work mattered and applied herself as such.

“I did not see myself as handicapped because I was black, poor, a woman,” the professor said. “I took advantage of what America offered.”

Among today’s youth, minorities are being “crippled in their minds because they’ve been told by the political left what they can’t do and they are being handicapped,” she warned.

“They’re not even being held to the same standards that people of my generation were held to at colleges and universities. And as a consequence, they do feel inferior. A lot of what is crippling them is what they have been indoctrinated with.”

In her view, the racism coming from the political left is a forced re-segregation, and the lowered standards being pushed out for racial, ethnic minorities are impeding the development of their fullest potential.

Racism Serves Political, Financial Interests

“The true story of America is a story of blacks and whites working together to overcome that tragic part of our history.”

During the period following the end of slavery, “it was white philanthropy that set up schools across the South, that set up those historically black colleges and universities, and trillions of dollars have been donated since the end of slavery to try to address the past and present effects of slavery,” explained the co-chairwoman for former President Donald Trump’s 1776 Commission.

The civil rights movement itself is a moment in history where whites, blacks, people of other races and ethnicities came together for a cause. “That was powerful,” she continued.

Swain was born during the time of “systemic racism” in the segregated South. She witnessed the collapse of institutional racism and benefited from the opportunities created for black Americans like herself.

“My love of country came about because when I was in school, we were taught civics and patriotism. And I felt like I lived in the greatest nation in the world,” Swain said.

Racism was dying in the United States before President Barack Obama was elected, she said. At that time, the country was portrayed by legacy media as being a post-racial society. “I think that because we were making so much progress, the political left and those that benefit by racism and keeping us divided ... they had to act.”

This was the time when the racial tensions, which divided people, restarted and when standards in classes, especially in public schools, were lowered owing to CRT and the restorative justice agenda being pushed, she added.

Opportunities for black people have never been better than today and ultimately, success depends on a person’s attitude, she said.

Swain shared that as one of 12 children, she had dropped out of high school, married at 16, and had three small children by the time she was 21. Despite that, she went back to school, got a high school equivalency, and went to a community college where she got the first of her degrees.

Another way to counter discrimination at schools is publicity, the professor advised. Students can write articles about discrimination cases and publish them in student media like The College Fix or Campus Reform as there have been cases of universities backing down due to the public outcry over the reports of unfair treatment, according to Swain.

She also recommended that students “always document things that are discriminatory and use that evidence when the time is right.”

History of Race Relations

Barack Obama, 44, center, after President Donald Trump's inauguration, stands at the podium of the Presidential Board of Governors, 1001 G Street, NE, Washington, DC, on Wednesday, Jan. 21, 2017. (AP Photo/Chris Wedel)

“I think America has been so important to the world, that the true history of its founding, as well as the mistakes that were made and just how we address those mistakes, are things that enrich people. And it is something that should not be hidden, and certainly not something that would be a cause of shame,” Swain told Crossroads.

considered oppressors who benefit from undeserved advantages,” Swain told The Epoch Times in an interview on EpochTV’s “Crossroads” program.

“[Whites] are deemed guilty of having set up a system of systemic racism,” she said of one main assumption being drawn from CRT. “The demonization of one group of people because of the color of their skin is something that is discriminatory.”

A lot of white people who are forced into CRT-based training, and forced to confess to being racist because of their race, do not realize that they are protected by the Civil Rights Act of 1964 that prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, and disability, explained the retired professor.

White people are protected in the same way that black people are by civil rights laws, she said. “We’re not a country where it’s acceptable to bully and shame people because of the color of their skin.”

Such acts create a hostile environment at work or may cause psychological harm to children at school, the award-winning author explained, adding that parents have reported depression, trauma, or other problems in their children who had been told that, because of their whiteness or the fact that their ancestors inflicted harm, they are also guilty of oppression.

Moreover, the Equal Protection Clause of the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution guarantees certain protections to all people, even non-citizens.

If a public institution such as a school tries to restrict people’s speech or behavior, it may be also a First Amendment violation, Swain said.

Private schools have more freedom to discriminate than public ones, but students whose rights are infringed can use other bases, such as the student handbook that guarantees students certain rights, to fight discrimination, she added.

Swain suggested that students facing discrimination can also seek help from organizations defending students’ or individuals’ freedom of speech, association, and religious liberty, such as The Foundation for Individual Rights in Education (FIRE) or the Christian Legal Society.

IS CRT LEGAL?

CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS

Critical Race Theory May Violate Civil Rights Act, the Constitution: Dr. Carol Swain

BY ELLA KIETLINSKA June 22, 2021 Updated: June 22, 2021

Print

Critical Race Theory training, which pressures people not to say certain things, take a certain stance, or forces them into some segregated settings, may infringe on people's constitutional rights and even violate civil rights laws, said Dr. Carol Swain, a former professor of political science and law at Princeton and Vanderbilt universities.

The main tenet of Critical Race Theory (CRT) is that the people of the world are divided into oppressors and oppressed, and in the United States, "all white people are

“The students have really opened up and developed a deep bond with these mentors,” said Greenberg. “It has uncovered some really deep issues and struggles students don’t have other outlets to talk about.”

“Teaching these kids about criminal justice will help protect society,” said Rank, “but it also has another impact: restoring young people to healthy, productive lives that are meaningful. It will let them know they have something to offer, and a deeper purpose.”

-30-

Street Law class taught at Lynn Middle School by NMSU faculty members.

Photo is available at

https://photos.nmsu.edu/news/40376/NMSU_MSPs_Lynn_Middle_School_Story_1_04/1619.jpg

CUTLINE: NMSU faculty members Rory Rank (left) and Steve Nance (right) instruct students at Lynn Middle School. Friday, March 8, 2019, on the ins-and-out of "Street Law." (NMSU photo by Matthew Legarreta)

Professors teach middle school students

Photo is available at

https://photos.nmsu.edu/news/40378/NMSU_MSPs_Lynn_Middle_School_Story_1_04/1619.jpg

CUTLINE: NMSU adjunct faculty member Rory Rank teaches students at Lynn Middle School "Street Law" Friday, March 8, 2019, during a class being taught every Friday this past semester at Lynn Middle School. (NMSU photo by Matthew Legarreta)

Professor points at students

NEA-NM Center for Community Schools

NEA-NM Center for Community Schools

2007 Botolph Road

Santa Fe, New Mexico

Letter of Support for La Mariposa, Street Law, and Trauma-Informed Practices in Schools

To Whom It May Concern:

The NEA-NM Center for Community Schools is pleased to submit this letter of support for Rory Rank's grant proposal to fund La Mariposa, Street Law, and other trauma-informed practices in schools.

The Center for Community Schools is an initiative of NEA-New Mexico designed to promote and support high-quality community schools throughout the country. The Center draws on national experts in community schools, improvement science, and a variety of other disciplines to build the capacity of the growing number of community school initiatives, both in New Mexico and nationwide. Our work is funded primarily by grants provided by NEA and is carried out in collaboration with multiple partner organizations and engaged community members.

We have worked with Rory Rank for many years, and we can attest that he is a strong advocate for children. After his long career as a public defender, he has taken on the issue of supporting students who have been exposed to trauma. In that capacity, we have collaborated extensively to ensure that our community school students are receiving trauma-informed programming that they can relate to and engage with. For example, Rory has previously organized a Street Law course at Lynn Community Middle School – one of the highest-need schools in our district – where he and other criminal justice professionals developed a curriculum and acted as guest-teachers to middle schoolers. This course was an astounding success, and I can personally testify to the incredible dedication and passion that Rory demonstrated throughout this project. We are excited to encourage programming like Street Law and La Mariposa in all community schools, as we have seen such programming work very well in community schools in Las Cruces.

We at the Center for Community Schools are deeply grateful for Rory's commitment to youth and community, and offer our total support to his proposal to fund trauma-informed practices in New Mexico's schools.

Sincerely,

David Greenberg

Director, Center for Community Schools

Asset	Old Testament Reference	New Testament Reference
Asset #34: Cultural Competence	Isaiah 11:1-10 The peaceful kingdom	Romans 15:4-13 Live in harmony with each other
Asset #35: Resistance Skills	Proverbs 28:4-5 Those who keep the Law struggle against the wicked	1 Corinthians 10:13 We won't be tested beyond our strength
Asset #36: Peaceful Conflict Resolution	Isaiah 2:1-5 A peaceful future	Matthew 5:9 Blessed are the peacemakers
Asset #37: Personal Power	1 Kings 17:7-16 Elijah feeds the widow and her son	Romans 12:1-8 New life in Christ...be not conformed to this world
Asset #38: Self-esteem	Psalms 139:13 The Lord has formed us	John 8:31-36 Truth will set you free
Asset #39: Sense of Purpose	Isaiah 43:1-7 The Lord restores those called by name	2 Timothy 4:5-11 Paul's charge to Timothy
Asset #40: Positive View of Personal Future	Jeremiah 29:11-12 I know the plans I have for you... a future with hope	Luke 6:20-31 The Beatitudes

Asset	Old Testament Reference	New Testament Reference
Asset #15: Positive Peer Influence	1 Samuel 20 Jonathon and David	Philippians 4:13 Encouragement
Asset #16: High Expectations	Exodus 3-4 God calls Moses	2 Thessalonians 1:11 Warning against falling away
Asset #17: Creative Activities	Psalms 148-150 All creation praises the Lord	Ephesians 5:19-20 Sings psalms and hymns to spiritual songs...
Asset #18: Youth Programs	Ecclesiastes 3:1, 17 There is a time and season for all things	2 Corinthians 10:15-17 Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord
Asset #19: Religious Community	Isaiah 35:1-10 Return of the redeemed to Zion	Romans 12:4-8 One body, many members...
Asset #20: Time at Home	Ruth 1:16-18 Ruth and Naomi; where you go I will go...	Luke 15:11-32 The Prodigal Son
Asset #21: Achievement Motivation	Nehemiah 2:11-18 Restoring the walls of Jerusalem	Hebrews 12:1-2 Run the race set before you
Asset #22: School Engagement	Exodus 31:1-5 Bezalel and Oholiab	Colossians 3:23-24 Do your tasks for the Lord
Asset #23: Homework	Ezra 7:8-10 Ezra studies the Law	John 7:14-16 Jesus teaches in the Temple
Asset #24: Bonding to School	Psalms 27:11 Teach me your way, O Lord	Romans 13:1-3 Being subject to authorities
Asset #25: Reading for Pleasure	Jeremiah 36:1-10 Reading the scrolls in the Temple	Acts 15:22-35 Letter to Antioch
Asset #26: Caring	2 Kings 5:1-3, 7-15 Healing of Naaman	Luke 10:25-37 The Good Samaritan
Asset #27: Equality and Social Justice	Amos 5:24 Let justice roll down...	Luke 16:19-31 Rich Man and Lazarus Matthew 25:34-36 The Ten Bridesmaids
Asset #28: Integrity	Micah 6:8 What does the Lord require...	2 Thessalonians 2:1-5, 13-17 Being chosen as first fruits of salvation; stand firm...
Asset #29: Honesty	Proverbs 16:13; 24:26 Righteous lips...	Luke 23:33-43 Jesus and the two criminals
Asset #30: Responsibility	Ezekiel 18:1-9 Individual retribution	Luke 16:1-13 The Dishonest Manager
Asset #31: Restraint	Numbers 25:1-5 Do not worship Baal	1 Thessalonians 4:3
Asset #32: Planning and Decision Making	Isaiah 1:1-5 Vision of Isaiah	Luke 14:28-33 Counting the cost
Asset #33: Interpersonal Skills	Proverbs 18:16 Gifts open door	1 Timothy 6:18 The good fight of faith

Assets and Scripture

It may be helpful to refer to Scripture to emphasize the importance of each of the 40 developmental assets. Here are some Old and New Testament passages that relate to each asset.

Asset	Old Testament Reference	New Testament Reference
Asset #1: Family Support	Psalms 103:13-14 The Lord has compassion for his children	Ephesians 5:1-2 Be imitators of God as beloved children...
Asset #2: Positive Family Communication	Proverbs 15:1-4 A soft answer turns away wrath...	Ephesians 4:15-16 Grow up in every way... Ephesians 6:4 Do not provoke to anger...
Asset #3: Other Adult Relationships	2 Kings 2 Elijah and Elisha	2 Timothy 1:1-14 Hold to standards of good teaching
Asset #4: Caring Neighborhood	Leviticus 19:18, 33-34 Love your neighbor as you love yourself	Mark 12:31-33 Jesus: Love your neighbor as yourself
Asset #5: Caring School Climate	Ezekiel 34:11-15 God is the true shepherd	Mark 9:37 Jesus: Whoever welcomes the child, welcomes me
Asset #6: Parent Involvement in Schooling	Proverbs 22:6 Train up a child...	Luke 2:41-52 Jesus the boy in the Temple
Asset #7: Community Values Youth	Jeremiah 1:5-8 Call of Jeremiah	Luke 15:1-10 Parables of the lost sheep and coin Matthew 19:13-15 Jesus blesses the children
Asset #8: Youth as Resources	1 Samuel 16 David anointed as king	1 Timothy 4:12 Let no one despise your youth...
Asset #9: Service to Others	Isaiah 6 Vision of God in the Temple	Romans 12:9-13 Marks of a Christian
Asset #10: Safety	Psalms 12:6-8 Protection of the Lord	Luke 15:1-7 The lost sheep
Asset #11: Family Boundaries	Exodus 20:12 Fourth Commandment Proverbs 29:17 Discipline	Hebrews 12:5-13 Do not regard lightly the discipline of the Lord... Ephesians 6:1-4 Honor your father and mother...
Asset #12: School Boundaries	Psalms 7:7-8 Judgement	Titus 3:1-2 Be subject to rulers and authorities...
Asset #13: Neighborhood Boundaries	Leviticus 19:15-18 Do not render an unjust judgment	Ephesians 4:25-28 Speak truth to our neighbors...
Asset #14: Adult Role Models	1 Samuel 3 Call of Samuel	Matthew 1:18-25 Joseph and the angel Hebrews 11, 13:7 Examples of faith

40

DEVELOPMENTAL ASSETS

This chart shows eight areas of human development and groups the 40 developmental assets by these categories. The percentages of young people who report experiencing each asset were gathered from the administration of the Search Institute Profiles of Student Life: Attitudes and Behaviors survey in 312 communities and 33 states.

EXTERNAL ASSETS

asset type

asset name and definition

SUPPORT

- 1. FAMILY SUPPORT — Family life provides high levels of love and support. 70%
- 2. POSITIVE FAMILY COMMUNICATION — Young person and her or his parent(s) communicate positively, and young person is willing to seek advice and counsel from parent(s). 30%
- 3. OTHER ADULT RELATIONSHIPS — Young person receives support from three or more nonparent adults. 45%
- 4. CARING NEIGHBORHOOD — Young person experiences caring neighbors. 40%
- 5. CARING SCHOOL CLIMATE — School provides a caring, encouraging environment. 29%
- 6. PARENT INVOLVEMENT IN SCHOOLING — Parent(s) are actively involved in helping young person succeed in school. 34%

EMPOWERMENT

- 7. COMMUNITY VALUES YOUTH — Young person perceives that adults in the community value youth. 25%
- 8. YOUTH AS RESOURCES — Young people are given useful roles in the community. 28%
- 9. SERVICE TO OTHERS — Young person serves in the community one hour or more per week. 51%
- 10. SAFETY — Young person feels safe at home, at school, and in the neighborhood. 51%

BOUNDARIES & EXPECTATIONS

- 11. FAMILY BOUNDARIES — Family has clear rules and consequences and monitors the young person's whereabouts. 48%
- 12. SCHOOL BOUNDARIES — School provides clear rules and consequences. 53%
- 13. NEIGHBORHOOD BOUNDARIES — Neighbors take responsibility for monitoring young people's behavior. 49%
- 14. ADULT ROLE MODELS — Parent(s) and other adults model positive, responsible behavior. 30%
- 15. POSITIVE PEER INFLUENCE — Young person's best friends model responsible behavior. 65%
- 16. HIGH EXPECTATIONS — Both parent(s) and teachers encourage the young person to do well. 49%

CONSTRUCTIVE USE OF TIME

- 17. CREATIVE ACTIVITIES — Young person spends three or more hours per week in lessons or practice in music, theater, or other arts. 20%
- 18. YOUTH PROGRAMS — Young person spends three or more hours per week in sports, clubs, or organizations at school and/or in the community. 58%
- 19. RELIGIOUS COMMUNITY — Young person spends one or more hours per week in activities in a religious institution. 63%
- 20. TIME AT HOME — Young person is out with friends "with nothing special to do" two or fewer nights per week. 52%

COMMITMENT TO LEARNING

- 21. ACHIEVEMENT MOTIVATION — Young person is motivated to do well in school. 67%
- 22. SCHOOL ENGAGEMENT — Young person is actively engaged in learning. 61%
- 23. HOMEWORK — Young person reports doing at least one hour of homework every school day. 53%
- 24. BONDING TO SCHOOL — Young person cares about her or his school. 54%
- 25. READING FOR PLEASURE — Young person reads for pleasure three or more hours per week. 23%

POSITIVE VALUES

- 26. CARING — Young person places high value on helping other people. 50%
- 27. EQUALITY AND SOCIAL JUSTICE — Young person places high value on promoting equality and reducing hunger and poverty. 52%
- 28. INTEGRITY — Young person acts on convictions and stands up for her or his beliefs. 68%
- 29. HONESTY — Young person "tells the truth even when it is not easy." 67%
- 30. RESPONSIBILITY — Young person accepts and takes personal responsibility. 63%
- 31. RESTRAINT — Young person believes it is important not to be sexually active or to use alcohol or other drugs. 47%

SOCIAL COMPETENCIES

- 32. PLANNING AND DECISION MAKING — Young person knows how to plan ahead and make choices. 30%
- 33. INTERPERSONAL COMPETENCE — Young person has empathy, sensitivity, and friendship skills. 47%
- 34. CULTURAL COMPETENCE — Young person has knowledge of and comfort with people of different cultural/racial/ethnic backgrounds. 42%
- 35. RESISTANCE SKILLS — Young person can resist negative peer pressure and dangerous situations. 42%
- 36. PEACEFUL CONFLICT RESOLUTION — Young person seeks to resolve conflict nonviolently. 45%

POSITIVE IDENTITY

- 37. PERSONAL POWER — Young person feels he or she has control over "things that happen to me." 44%
- 38. SELF-ESTEEM — Young person reports having a high self-esteem. 52%
- 39. SENSE OF PURPOSE — Young person reports that "my life has a purpose." 59%
- 40. POSITIVE VIEW OF PERSONAL FUTURE — Young person is optimistic about her or his personal future. 74%

INTERNAL ASSETS

John Wooden's Pyramid of Success

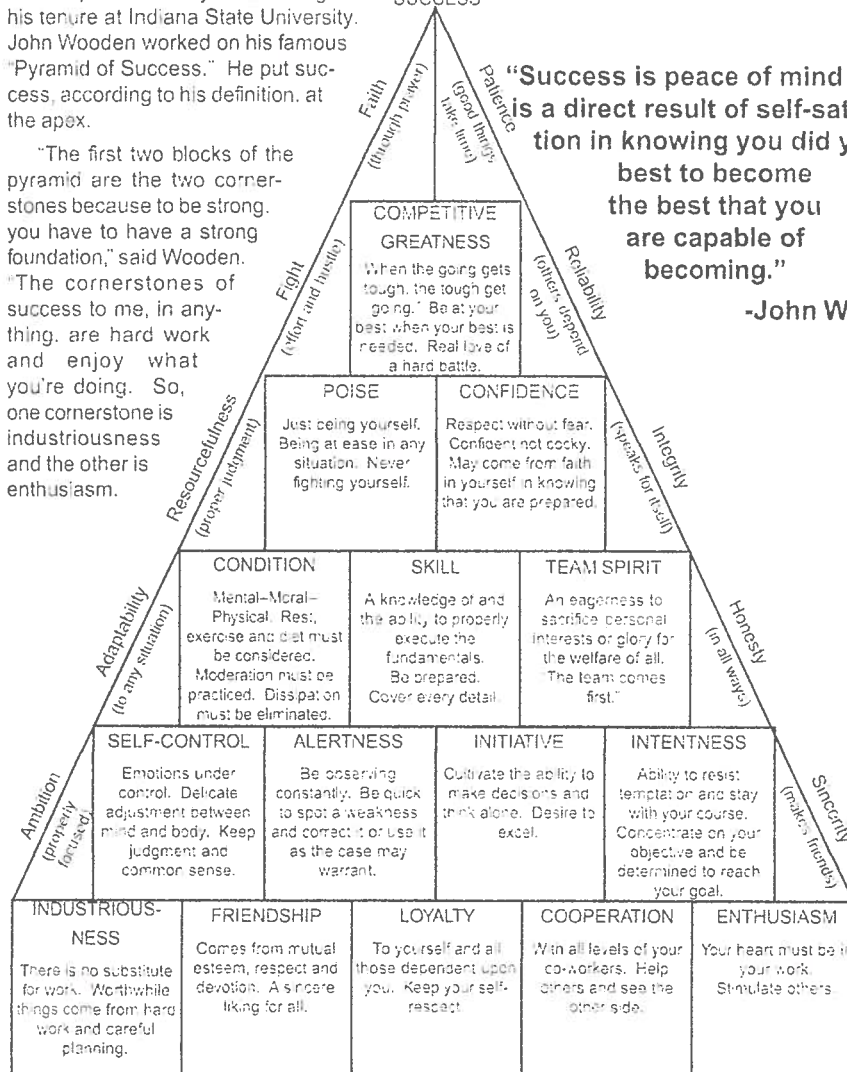

In a period of 14 years, ending with his tenure at Indiana State University, John Wooden worked on his famous "Pyramid of Success." He put success, according to his definition, at the apex.

"The first two blocks of the pyramid are the two cornerstones because to be strong, you have to have a strong foundation," said Wooden. "The cornerstones of success to me, in anything, are hard work and enjoy what you're doing. So, one cornerstone is industriousness and the other is enthusiasm.

SUCCESS

"Success is peace of mind which is a direct result of self-satisfaction in knowing you did your best to become the best that you are capable of becoming."

-John Wooden

Subject: Re: Juvenile direction

I would be happy to discuss Juvenile law with you, The NJDC site is critical to the practice of juvenile law.. The !0 core principle of Defense delivery system is the road map to the practice of juvenile law, read the-NJDC mission and vision statement. Being a Juvenile law attorney is much more challenging than the practice of adult criminal law-----WHY????? overview toward DEVELOPMENTALLY Appropriate Practice: A Juvenile Court training Curriculum----Brain development, Cognitive Development, Moral Development, Identity/Social Development, Adolescent Development in context, Physical/ Biological Development, Disability affecting Normative Adolescent Development, Medical/mental health Development, Immaturity and TRAUMA /Adverse Child Development. Keep in mind the development in a child's Physical , emotional, mental and spiritual development= Holistic wellbeing...US Supreme Court cases-Haley Ohio, Gallegos v Colorado, Kent v US, IN re Gault, In re Winship, Mckeiver v PA, Breed v Jones, Schally v Martin, Roper v Simmons, Graham v Florida , J.D.B v Carolina ,Miller v Alabama , Montgomery v LA. Must have -A developmental Framework for Juvenile cases and A developmental juvenile framework for disposition/sentencing and Post=disposition. Applying principles of adolescent development in delinquency proceedings should be used to train ADA and judge. BOOKS REQUIRED : NATIONAL JUVENILW DEFENSE STANDARDS NJDC ,IN re GAULT booklet and the ROLE OF JUVENILE DEFENSE COUNSEL IN DELIQUENCY COURT NJDC(ethics), My number is 575 915 5091--send me your phone number and office address in Hobbs. Excellence is not an act-but a HABIT. God blesses

"That these are our grievances which we have thus laid before his majesty with that freedom of language and sentiment which becomes a free people, claiming their rights as derived from the laws of nature, and not as the gift of their chief magistrate."

—Thomas Jefferson, "A Summary View of the Rights of British America"

HILLSDALE COLLEGE

Donate
About Hillsdale
Refer a Student

Contact Us
Privacy Policy
Terms and Conditions

Search Term

Search

Advanced

Select a Debate:
NATURAL LAW

For America's Founders, the "laws of Nature and of Nature's God" imply the existence of a universal standard of morality by which actions are measured. Accessible to man through reason, the natural law remains unchanged from age to age, and nation to nation. Even though the natural law yields "self-evident truths," it does not provide easy solutions to constitutional or policy questions. For such questions, prudence—practical wisdom—is necessary, as is a moral education that encourages virtue.

For Progressives, natural law was as illusory as natural rights—a useful fiction for a bygone era—but irrelevant for their day and the future. It could be discarded in favor of a scientific approach to legal and political arrangements that they saw as instrumental to the evolution of government.

FOUNDERS

"When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them."

—The Declaration of Independence

"In a state of nature men are equal, exactly on a par in regard to authority: each one is a law to himself, having the law of God, the sole rule of conduct, written on his heart."

—Gad Hitchcock, "An Election Sermon"

"The great principles of right and wrong are legible to every reader: to pursue them requires not the aid of many counselors."

—Thomas Jefferson, "A Summary View of the Rights of British America"

"True law is right reason, consonant with nature, spread through all people. It is constant and eternal: it summons to duty by its orders, it deters from crime by its prohibitions.... We cannot be released from this."

—Cicero, On the Commonwealth

"To understand political power right, and derive it from its original, we must consider what state all men are naturally in, and that is, a state of perfect freedom to order their actions and dispose of their possessions, and persons, as they think fit, within the bounds of the law of nature."

—John Locke, Second Treatise of Government

"The state of nature has a law of nature to govern it, which obliges every one: and reason, which is that law, teaches all mankind, who will but consult it, that being all equal and independent, no one ought to harm another in his life, health, liberty, or possessions."

—John Locke, Second Treatise of Government

"The universal law of God and nature is always the same."

—Algernon Sidney, Discourses Concerning Government

"Should an act of Parliament be against any of his natural laws, which are immutably true, their declaration would be contrary to eternal truth, equity and justice, and consequently void."

—James Otis, "Rights of the British Colonies Asserted and

PROGRESSIVES

"Some citizens of this country have never got beyond the Declaration of Independence."

—Woodrow Wilson, "What is Progress?"

"Their own special interpretations of liberty, individuality and intelligence were themselves historically conditioned, and were relevant only to their own time."

—John Dewey, Liberalism and Social Action

"Now, it came to me... that the Constitution of the United States had been made under the dominion of the Newtonian Theory.... The trouble with the theory is that government is not a machine, but a living thing. It falls, not under the theory of the universe, but under the theory of organic life. It is accountable to Darwin, not to Newton. It is modified by its environment, necessitated by its tasks, shaped to its functions by the sheer pressure of life."

—Woodrow Wilson, "What is Progress?"

"They put forward their ideas as immutable truths good at all times and places; they had no idea of historic relativity, either in general or in its application to themselves."

—John Dewey, Liberalism and Social Action

"Laws have never altered the facts; laws have always necessarily expressed the facts; adjusted interests as they have arisen and have changed toward one another."

—Woodrow Wilson, "What is Progress?"

"But the Constitution of the United States is not a mere lawyers' document: it is a vehicle of life, and its spirit is always the spirit of the age."

—Woodrow Wilson, "The President of the United States"

"Clearly, all this calls for a reappraisal of values."

—Franklin D. Roosevelt, "Commonwealth Club Address"

"The day of enlightened administration has come."

—Franklin D. Roosevelt, "Commonwealth Club Address"

"You can help build a society where the demands of morality, and the needs of the spirit, can be realized in the life of the Nation."

—Lyndon B. Johnson, "Remarks at the University of Michigan"

US.

"ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL,
THAT THEY ARE ENDOWED BY THEIR CREATOR WITH CERTAIN UNALIENABLE RIGHTS"

- Declaration of Independence, 1776

Do you like having rights the government cannot take away?

Do you like being equal?

Do you like a country with few laws?

Then you want America under God!

"THE RIGHTS OF MAN COME NOT
FROM THE GENEROSITY OF THE STATE,
BUT FROM THE HAND OF GOD."

- John F. Kennedy, 1961, Inaugural Address

"WE BELIEVE THAT ALL MEN ARE CREATED EQUAL, BECAUSE THEY ARE CREATED IN THE IMAGE OF GOD."

- Harry S Truman, 1949, Inaugural Address

"OUR CONSTITUTION WAS MADE
ONLY FOR A MORAL AND RELIGIOUS PEOPLE. IT IS WHOLLY INADEQUATE
T O T H E
G O V E R N M E N T
O F A N Y O T H E R"

- John Adams,

1798, Letter to 1st Brigade, 3rd
Division, Massachusetts Militia

ISBN-13: 978-0-9753455-1-1

9 780975 345511

HISTORY / EDUCATION

last ten years. Have we anything new to offer upon the subject? Nothing. We have held the subject up in every light of which it is capable; but it has been all in vain. Shall we resort to entreaty and humble supplication? What terms shall we find which have not been already exhausted? Let us not, I beseech you, sir, deceive ourselves. Sir, we have done everything that could be done to avert the storm which is now coming on. We have petitioned; we have remonstrated; we have supplicated; we have prostrated ourselves before the throne, and have implored its interposition to arrest the tyrannical hands of the ministry and Parliament. Our petitions have been slighted; our remonstrances have produced additional violence and insult; our supplications have been disregarded; and we have been spurned, with contempt, from the foot of the throne! In vain, after these things, may we indulge the fond hope of peace and reconciliation. There is no longer any room for hope. If we wish to be free-- if we mean to preserve inviolate those inestimable privileges for which we have been so long contending--if we mean not basely to abandon the noble struggle in which we have been so long engaged, and which we have pledged ourselves never to abandon until the glorious object of our contest shall be obtained--we must fight! I repeat it, sir, we must fight! An appeal to arms and to the God of hosts is all that is left us!

They tell us, sir, that we are weak; unable to cope with so formidable an adversary. But when shall we be stronger? Will it be the next week, or the next year? Will it be when we are totally disarmed, and when a British guard shall be stationed in every house? Shall we gather strength by irresolution and inaction? Shall we acquire the means of effectual resistance by lying supinely on our backs and hugging the delusive phantom of hope, until our enemies shall have bound us hand and foot? Sir, we are not weak if we make a proper use of those means which the God of nature hath placed in our power. The millions of people, armed in the holy cause of liberty, and in such a country as that which we possess, are invincible by any force which our enemy can send against us. Besides, sir, we shall not fight our battles alone. There is a just God who presides over the destinies of nations, and who will raise up friends to fight our battles for us. The battle, sir, is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave. Besides, sir, we have no election. If we were base enough to desire it, it is now too late to retire from the contest. There is no retreat but in submission and slavery! Our chains are forged! Their clanking may be heard on the plains of Boston! The war is inevitable--and let it come! I repeat it, sir, let it come.

It is in vain, sir, to extenuate the matter. Gentlemen may cry, Peace, Peace-- but there is no peace. The war is actually begun! The next gale that sweeps from the north will bring to our ears the clash of resounding arms! Our brethren are already in the field! Why stand we here idle? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life so dear, or peace so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take; but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!

28 PRINCIPLES OF LIBERTY

1. The only reliable basis for sound government and just human relations is Natural Law.
2. A free people cannot survive under a republican constitution unless they remain virtuous and morally strong.
3. The most promising method of securing a virtuous and morally stable people is to elect virtuous leaders.
4. Without religion the government of a free people cannot be maintained.
5. All things were created by God, therefore upon Him all mankind are equally dependent, and to Him they are equally responsible.
6. All men are created equal.
7. The proper role of government is to protect equal rights, not provide equal things.
8. Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights.
9. To protect man's rights, God has revealed certain principles of divine law.
10. The God-given right to govern is vested in the sovereign authority of the whole people.
11. The majority of the people may alter or abolish a government which has become tyrannical.
12. The United States of America shall be a republic.
13. A constitution should be structured to permanently protect the people from the human frailties of their rulers.
14. Life and liberty are secure only so long as the right of property is secure.
15. The highest level of prosperity occurs when there is a free market economy and a minimum of government regulations.
16. The government should be separated into three branches: legislative, executive, and judicial.
17. A system of checks and balances should be adopted to prevent the abuse of power.
18. The unalienable rights of the people are most likely to be preserved if the principles of government are set forth in a written constitution.
19. Only limited and carefully defined powers should be delegated to government, all others being retained in the people.
20. Efficiency and dispatch require government to operate according to the will of the majority, but constitutional provisions must be made to protect the rights of the minority.
21. Strong local self-government is the keystone to preserving human freedom.
22. A free people should be governed by law and not by the whims of men.
23. A free society cannot survive as a republic without a broad program of general education.
24. A free people will not survive unless they stay strong.
25. "Peace, commerce, and honest friendship with all nations: entangling alliances with none."
26. The core unit which determines the strength of any society is the family; therefore, the government should foster and protect its integrity.
27. The burden of debt is as destructive to freedom as subjugation by conquest.
28. The United States has a manifest destiny to be an example and a blessing to the entire human race.

Source: Over 150 volumes of the Founding Fathers' writings.
Copyright © 1991, 2014 National Center for Constitutional Studies
All Rights Reserved Email: service@nccs.net Ph: (208) 645-2625

God-Made Rights of God-Made Man

Clarence Manion, dean of the Notre Dame College of Law (1941–1952), stated concerning the Declaration of Independence:

Look closely at these self-evident truths, these imperishable articles of American faith upon which all our government is firmly based. First and foremost is the existence of God. Next comes the truth that all men are equal in the sight of God. Third is the fact of God's great gift of unalienable rights to every person on earth. Then follows the true and single purpose of all American government, namely, to preserve and protect these God-made rights of God-made man.

According to a popular legend surrounding the Declaration of Independence, John Hancock signed his name largely and distinctly so King George could read it without his spectacles. While that may not be true, it is true that one of colonial America's most ardent revolutionaries and rich merchants put his life on the line with his signature. If the revolution was lost or he was caught, he would be hanged by the British.

Certainly, all 56 patriots who signed the Declaration of Independence made the same solemn declaration "with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor." Even in victory, many of the signers endured hardships and losses, as did thousands of other Americans.

John Adams wrote to his wife regarding the meaning of his signature on the document of freedom: "I am well aware of the toil, and blood, and treasure, that it will cost us to maintain this declaration. . . . I can see that the end is more than worth all the means, and that posterity will triumph in that day's transaction."

A few months before signing the Declaration, Patrick Henry addressed the Virginia Convention and declared: "We are not weak if we make a proper use of those means which the God of nature hath placed in our power. Three millions of people, armed in the holy cause of liberty, and in such a country as that which we possess, are invincible by any force which our enemy can send against us. Besides, sir, we shall not fight our battles alone. There is a just God who presides over the destinies of nations, and who will raise up friends to fight our battles for us. The battle, sir, is not to the strong alone; it is to the vigilant, the active, the brave."

When the authors of The Day America Told the Truth took polls in the early 1990s asking people which beliefs they would die for, 48 percent said "none." Only 30 percent would die for God and their faith under any circumstance, and fewer would die for their country. The

God-Made Rights of God-Made Man

Clarence Manion, dean of the Notre Dame College of Law (1941–1952), stated concerning the Declaration of Independence:

Look closely at these self-evident truths, these imperishable articles of American faith upon which all our government is firmly based. First and foremost is the existence of God. Next comes the truth that all men are equal in the sight of God. Third is the fact of God's great gift of unalienable rights to every person on earth. Then follows the true and single purpose of all American government, namely, to preserve and protect these God-made rights of God-made man.

(No subject)

Rory Rank <mr.rory.rank@gmail.com>

Wed 8/11/2021 2:20 PM

To: Rory Rank <rlrank@nmsu.edu>

*Warning: This email originated external to the NMSU email system. Do not click on links or open attachments unless you are sure the content is safe.

Sent from my iPhone

IMPORTANT: RESPOND... DON'T REACT NOR OVERREACT

Cool, Calm, Collected >> H.A.L.T. ... Before making a decision

- Hurting, Hungry
- Attitude, Anger, Agitation
- Lonely, Lost
- Turmoil, Troubled

Make correct choices through valued principles, characteristics to be, and civil amelioration. Chart below for visual thought:

Side notes:

Valued Principles...,

- ✓ Love
- ✓ Joy
- ✓ Peace
- ✓ Patience
- ✓ Kindness
- ✓ Goodness
- ✓ Gentleness
- ✓ Faithfulness
- ✓ Self- Discipline

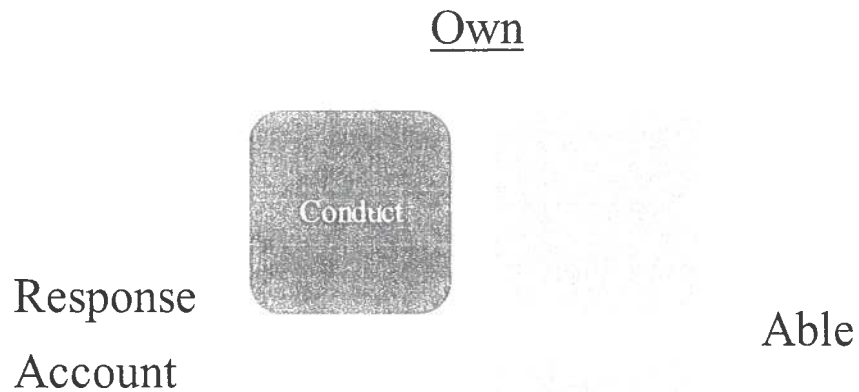

Civil Amelioration

- Covenant
- Compact
- Constitution
- Caring
- Charity
- Contribution
- Cooperation
- Cheerfulness
- Community

Characteristics	...WITH...
TO BE... <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Confident • Committed • Concentrated • Connected • Courageous • Competent • Consistent • Capable • Communicate OF SOMETHING OR OF NOTHING	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <input type="checkbox"/> Love <input type="checkbox"/> Joy <input type="checkbox"/> Peace <input type="checkbox"/> Endurance <input type="checkbox"/> Compassion <input type="checkbox"/> Generosity <input type="checkbox"/> Integrity <input type="checkbox"/> Humility <input type="checkbox"/> Self- Discipline: Doing what you must do and doing it well as possible and ALL THIME EVERY TIME

Now own choices leading visual:

Leading to change:

- Character
- Habits
- Attitude
- Necessary
- Growth
- Excellence

It is the heart of the matter and matter of the servant heart. Leading “reap what you sow” in other words paying the price. Excellent choices and valued principles can produce positive CHANGE. Wrong choices produce negative consequences: despair, disappointment, discouraged, doubt, depression, distress, disillusion, etc. Consequences...what will you choose? Hope is a good thing; might be the best of things and good things never die!!!!

INFORMATIONAL WEBINARS

For information about this opportunity and how to prepare a TTT application, please register for one of the following informational webinar sessions:

- October 27, 2021, 1:00-2:00 p.m. ET
- October 28, 2021, 12:00-1:00 p.m. ET

SAMHSA's GAINS Center for Behavioral Health and Justice Transformation
Funded by the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration

Questions? Please send us an email.

Want to develop your community's trauma-informed training capacity for #CriminalJustice and #BehavioralHealth system staff that work with justice-involved populations? Apply for @samhsagov's GAINS Center's Train-the-Trainer (TTT) events by 11/12!
<https://bit.ly/3DIAeaG>

Click To Tweet

EMPLOYEE LOGIN PRIVACY POLICY

DIGITAL

NEXT STEP