3. There is much talk about detecting bias in these standards. However, will the students realize that the teachers themselves are biased, as are the writers of the curriculum? Will they realize there is even bias on the internet search engines, which bring up articles holding to certain views while burying articles with opposing views? Will they be taught to question everyone, including their parents—while accepting what the curriculum says, how the teacher leads, and certain teacher-approved sites on the internet? Students are very impressionable and they tend to love and respect their teachers. This gives instructors great power in the formation of the views the students hold. If the method of teaching is to have students question their own history, traditions, and values, and then come to new conclusions within the classroom—this is wrong! In school, the students are to be given the tools with which to think. They are not to be guided into how to think about things. They go out with their educational tools, add to them their values, personal thoughts, family input, belief system—and come to their own private conclusions. Then they go out into society and try to effect change according to their beliefs. This is the mark of a free society.

If the students are guided by the instructors and curriculum into certain new ways of thinking—this seems to me to be brain-washing. The possibility of this happening to the students came up over and over as I read the standards.

4. A question that continually came to mind as I read these standards concerned the basis of judgment about issues. If you have no moral absolutes—and none were mentioned in the standards—then students could democratically vote for anything. They could come to conclusions such as “might makes right.” It seems that when you are having students question, evaluate, compare, investigate, assess, explore, create, distinguish, determine, construct, etc.—you must have absolute standards of right and wrong in place by which to judge and evaluate. If you do not, what is decided on by the majority might be frightening.

5. I notice that “gender” and LGBTQ and “his/her/their” is given prominence in these standards, even throwing in the mention of homophobia along with anti-Semitism in the discussion of WW II. I would hope that, with all the recognition of groups, the people who see multiple genders as emotion instead of science, and see homosexual practice as going against the moral commands of God would also have their views respected in the classroom. I definitely would not want a student to be unkind to anyone holding to gender views and LGBTQ views, but I also would not want students who disagree with these views to be forced to acquiesce to something with which they disagree. I also would hope the parents’ deeply-held views concerning the morality of such things would not be denigrated.

6. The most troubling sections of the standards were the 8th grade and the 9-12 Civics section. These sections seemed to teach American history without many facts of American history—and Civics, without even discussing how our government system works. This is what leads me to believe that the writers of these standards envision a different United States than what was founded in 1776. Leading students en masse in newspeak is not how we are to effect change in a free society. Such standards as the following give me concern. “Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time.” (9-12. Civ. 15) “Analyze multiple sources and cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy.” (9-12. Civ. 17) (Again—a lot depends on who is leading this discussion, and what the curriculum says.)

7. Considering the talk of CRT today, I was troubled by the following. “Describe the many facets of their identity (Including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.” (8.19) “Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.” These could be rather harmless, but given the “victim-oppressor” mentality today, they could be openings to teaching students that they are in one of those groups. This next quote seems definitely to be leaning toward having students see themselves as in the “victim” or “oppressor” group: “Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.” (9-12.ECI. 16) In teaching about this, will the ways society has tried to address inequalities be mentioned, such as free healthcare to Natives, increased scholarship opportunities to minorities, etc.?

8. In the overview, I read “Anchor standards establish the universal vision that defines what students should understand and be able to do.” Who is determining what the students should understand and be able to do? Is it the instructors and authors of the curriculum? This seems like the wrong direction for schools to take. It seems to allow the school to infringe on the rights of the parents to lead their children in understanding of facts. Parents and grandparents want educators to just teach the facts, let the students come to their personal understanding of issues based on their world view, and let them continue to live in a free country that gives them the right to act according to their values and conscience. It seems the writers of these standards have a vision of a different country—where everyone thinks the same, owns the same, believes the same. That is called Tyranny. I am fearful of my children and grandchildren someday living in such a nation. These standards seem to empower instructors, via the curriculum and the accepted views in the educational world, to lead students toward unified thinking.

Because of these concerns, I felt compelled to comment. Please remember—your children and grandchildren will also live in tyranny if we allow the government and its educational institutions to teach our children what to think. Please reconsider these standards. They do not seem to foster free thinking.

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards

Fiana Shapiro <imaginethehours@aol.com>

Tue 11/9/2021 9:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing to say that I support adoption of several of the new New Mexico social studies standards, which support environmental education and place-based learning about students' local environment.

Here are some that I support in particular:

Fifth Grade

Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment Anchor Standard

- 5.23. Demonstrate how physical maps reflect the varied climate zones, landforms, bodies of water, and natural resources of the Western Hemisphere.
- 5.26. Use geographic and place-based vocabulary to communicate locations and navigate from one place to another.
- 5.28. Examine how the physical environment influences human population distribution and land use.

Fourth Grade

- 4.23. Explore how geographic factors influence locations of settlements and use of natural resources (land, water, minerals, plants, animals) to meet their basic needs.

Third Grade

- 3.26. Identify the components of the Earth's biosystems and their makeup (e.g., air, land, water, plants, and animals).

Sincerely,
Fiana Shapiro
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

JOANN VULLO <joannvullo@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please inform the group that they are hijacking a theory name and an elected course from Harvard Law School! No child in K12 is eligible for Law School. Ignorance divides us and if we don't learn from history, the mistakes made will be repeated. We cannot erase these mistakes and can only work to do better. The song, teach the children well Mandate that parents attend a class of their own where information can be discussed, reference material required!

Regards,

Joann Vullo, graduate of Tularosa High School, where we learned history facts and how laws were made and changed, not fairy tales.

Also graduate from Tx Tech where American History and Political Science was required of all degrees with nothing omitted, just the facts!

[EXTERNAL] I AM AGAINST TEACHING CRT IN NEW MEXICO SCHOOLS!

Sylvia Mock <sylvia_mock@outlook.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:19 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

A careful examination of New Mexico's proposed social studies curriculum shows there are numerous components of that curriculum which disturbingly reflect Critical Race Theory (CRT). Large numbers of Americans of all political leanings oppose CRT and its divisive approach to history. Therefore this proposed curriculum needs to be significantly revised or completely abandoned.

CRT is not America's actual history. Rather, it is a worldview, unsupported by the evidence, in which all of America's key institutions are inextricably rooted in white supremacy. It is an activist agenda demanding the destruction of those institutions.

Sylvia Mock

Power House Real Estate

Business: (505) 352-5800

Mobile: (505) 239-0548

www.Move2Albuquerque.com

[EXTERNAL] Stop dividing our students!

Lisa Hayes <weeziesdream@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 6:04 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am against the proposed changes to the curriculum. I don't want CRT, or whatever you will call it, taught in the schools I help support and provide for. There is no room for all this hate to continue, stop it now! Teach the subjects, not the opinions of those who are trying to push their agenda. Our schools are broken, it is time to say enough!!!!

Lisa Hayes

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies curriculum

Barbara Witt <bwitt12@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 6:40 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I disagree that Critical Race Theory should be taught in school. Our history as a nation is not perfect in terms of economic and human rights; however, this curriculum embraces a distorted view that Americans are racist and everything can be expressed in terms of the oppressor and oppressed. Instead of encouraging division and victimhood, our children should be encouraged to understand that we are all Americans and everyone has opportunities for economic advancement based on principles of family, work and education.

As parents, we must have a say in what is taught to our children. Below is a link to a video which I hope you will watch and ponder before you decide what should be taught.

Thank you,
Barbara Witt

https://m.facebook.com/story.php?story_fbid=3347994181902048&id=322728757761954

[EXTERNAL] Adding Personal Finance Education to the Curriculum of our Public Schools

Elaine Sullivan <elaine@cybermesa.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 7:05 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Governor Michelle Lujan Grisham and Mr. John Sena,

I am writing on behalf of the Board of Directors of the Alliance for Local Economic Prosperity (AFLEP) to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Our Board of Directors passed a resolution in support of this critically important addition to the education needed by all our New Mexico students. Please help our young people to have the strong personal finance knowledge that will benefit them and our state throughout their lives. Please help us join most of the states in the U.S. that are recognizing the value of this part of a student's education.

Thank you,

Elaine M. Sullivan, Board Chair
Alliance for Local Economic Prosperity (AFLEP)
P.O. Box 421, Santa Fe, NM 87504
505-988-9708

[EXTERNAL] Error in 9-12 Social Studies US History

Mitchell Freedman <mfreedman@theaskacademy.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 7:37 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The following statement in the US History Social Studies 9-12 contains an error. It presently states:

"...the role of Arizona supreme court decision on Native Americans, their disenfranchisement under Arizona constitution and subsequent changes made in other state constitutions regarding Native American voting rights - such as New Mexico, 1962..."

The Court forced the State to give Native Americans who lived in pueblos and reservations the right to vote in 1948, which was the result of Miguel Trujillo's federal district lawsuit. In prevailing, NM and AZ had to give full voting rights to Native Americans. Before the lawsuit, if a Native American was residing outside the reservation or pueblo, the Native American had voting rights. If living in the reservation or pueblo, none. That is why Trujillo, who the Commission may wish to add as a person to know either in NM History (where I taught it last year) or Gov Politics (where I taught this year), though US History would be good, too.

I think the error is from Utah, which was the last state to give Native Americans voting rights, which was in 1962.

Otherwise, so far, so good!

Mitchell J. Freedman
The ASK Academy
Rio Rancho, NM 87124
November 10, 2021

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Opposition to Revision of Social Studies Curriculum

Billie Waters <billiefwaters@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Subject: Opposition to Revision of Social Studies Curriculum

I am opposed to the proposed changes being considered which add critical race theory and revisionist history to the curriculum. These ideas are divisive and use language such as "inequality," "racial injustice" and "unequal power" to teach our children that they are instigators and victims of a flawed system. This is cultural Marxism which divides rather than unites our country. The Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Standard as well as Inquiry Standard will support categorical division of individuals and set students up to depend on government for survival. No student should be taught hatred against another student. This is a biased agenda which does NOT ever belong in our public schools.

Billie Waters

[EXTERNAL] Comments on New Mexico's draft standards for K-12 social studies from the Thomas B. Fordham Institute

David Griffith <dgriffith@fordhaminstitute.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:08 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

The New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) has drafted a much-needed update to its current K-12 social studies standards, which the Thomas B. Fordham Institute rated “mediocre” in a recent report. Among the issues noted in that analysis were the following:

- In general, the New Mexico social studies standards are poorly organized and difficult for teachers to use.
- The civics standards lack detail and don't cover important topics such as federalism or the electoral process at the high school level.
- U.S. history content is split across grade 5, grade 8, and high school, meaning the country's founding is consigned to grade 5 and there is no coverage of the last hundred years until high school.

The draft social studies standards partially address these issues. For example, the new standards are organized by grade level for grades K-8 and by course in high school, making them more accessible to teachers. And the 8th grade standards now cover U.S. history from the 15th century to 1920, meaning there is more scope for addressing the Founding Era at an age when students can appreciate.

That said, the new standards have unfortunate gaps. For example, the last 100 years of U.S. history, including the second World War, the Cold War, and the African American Civil Rights Movement, are still deferred until high school. And perhaps most important, nearly every standard in the high school civics course provides little or no guidance on the specific content that students should be learning.

For example, the current draft suggests that high school civics students:

9-12.Civ.18. Investigate relationships among governments, civil societies, and economic markets.

9-12.Civ.26. Analyze historical, contemporary, and emerging means of changing societies, promoting the common good and protecting rights

9-12.Civ.30. Investigate challenges and opportunities within and between different government entities in New Mexico.

This consistent lack of detail means, for example, that there is no mention of the legislative, executive, or judicial branches in high school civics. Nor is there any mention of bedrock principles such as due process and equal protection. Nor is there any mention of the Bill of Rights (much less, specific amendments or Supreme Court cases).

To be fair, some of these topics are theoretically addressed in earlier grades and/or in the high school U.S. History course. But of course, there are many nuances that fifth graders cannot fully appreciate. Some concepts will inevitably be missed or misunderstood the first time they are introduced. And in practice, high school history teachers must balance many competing priorities, which is why most states (including New Mexico) require a separate civics course in high school.

Common sense suggests that this course should center on the U.S. Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and the inevitable challenges and trade-offs associated with governing according to the principles embodied therein. But that doesn't mean these things go without saying, or that there is no benefit to specifying the most important content.

In short, while the proposed standards are a clear improvement over the current version, the Thomas B. Fordham institute urges further improvements, starting with a more detailed account of the content to be covered in high school civics.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Kendra Powell <kendra_pow@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:17 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (16 KB)

social studies standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 9, 2021

To the NMPED,

I am a parent of 3 elementary children in the Artesia Public Schools. I have many concerns about my children's future and the country that they will grow up in. They live in a very diverse culture and have many friends. They do not see their friends as black, brown or white. They don't care what their friends look like; they just want to play and have fun. When CRT became a hot topic this past year, I found myself researching it. To my surprise CRT teaches that whites are racist and can't be anything but racist. In other words, whites are incapable of righteous actions on race! My kids don't even know what race means and you are telling me that they are automatically born racist. Children are not born racist; they are taught racism. However, I can choose not to teach racism and choose to teach them to be children of God. I can teach them to treat every human being as they would want to be treated.

I have evaluated the new social studies standards and there are several areas of concern. I notice starting in kindergarten, children are taught identities. This raises the question of how do you plan to identify these children and what gives you the right to label them with certain identities? Then children are taught that they are different and diverse, but don't be mean to each other based on these differences. Which leads me to wonder what in the world are you teaching them that they would feel the need to be mean to each other in the first place? Every year the new social studies standards show teaching children identity and diversification and then tell them not to place judgement or be mean to each other. It's funny how many of us learned social studies and somehow got through it without judging our peers and feeling like they are the ones that did us wrong. We are not responsible for what happened in the past. As of now, kids get along well with each other no matter how diverse, but I have the feeling that once you teach them whatever you plan to teach, that the kids will no longer get along and you will create a society of judgement and persecution.

Another area of concern is the teaching of what was left out of the Bill of Rights, but when do you teach what is in the Bill of Rights and what the Bill of Rights protects? When do you teach what is in the Constitution? When do you teach how the Constitution was derived and what our founding fathers were trying to protect? When do we teach pride in the USA and our state of NM? It appears; you are teaching the opposite of pride and more concerned in teaching hatred. Unity comes from being proud of who we are as individuals and as a country and the obstacles we have overcome to make this a better place to live and a desirable place for all individuals to want to live here in our great nation. Sounds like you are trying to distance everyone versus unite everyone.

I would like to know exactly what you plan to teach about the Ku Klux Klan and white supremacy and oppression? I understand that this topic can be spun in many directions to fit your narrative. I also notice the teaching of Juneteenth or Black Independence Day which may lead to the conversation of Black Lives Matter. This is a very touchy subject, and I cannot guarantee as a parent that I'm going to like your opinion that may be taught to my children.

Words such as: group identity, oppressed, oppressor, power, inequity, injustice, inequalities, unequal power all lean towards Critical Race Theory. Much of these standards are based on opinions. What opinion is represented and what are you wanting to teach is the question. If you are teaching my opinion, then I might agree, but if you are not, then I have a real big issue with it and I don't want it taught to my children! Then comes the discussion of gender and sexuality. What exactly do you plan to teach in this area? Then I found these words in the social studies standards: "Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression." THIS IS CRITICAL RACE THEORY! Going through these standards, all the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies are teaching CRT.

I am extremely concerned that The Social Studies Standards, once the Rule approval process has taken place-including a 30-day public comment period, will be codified under NMAC 6.29.11 and will continue to be mandated for students in grades k-12. I have also learned that if any of the standards are amended, that neither the school officials nor the parent body will be allowed to look at the amendments. This is unjust! You will be forcing parents to remove their children from the public school system to keep them from being taught critical race theory and hatred of mankind! I hope you will reconsider the social studies standards and remove all critical race theory teachings.

Sincerely,

Kendra Powell

[EXTERNAL] In regards to K-12 Social Studies standards

Lauren Buckles <lbuckles06@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:59 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To all members of the NM Public Education Department ,

CRT is a belief in systematic racism where everything is tied solely to a system in which people of color are seen as underprivileged, while Caucasians ("white" people) have all the privileges of life. As someone who is in a mixed race family, teaching our children ideas based in CRT is a slippery slope. It requires a belief that a person inherits the guilt of their ancestors. It's in essence saying if someone's father was a thief, then the children must pay for the father's misdeeds. That kind of thinking is, at best, a medieval concept. It's unfair, especially since the children haven't done anything to warrant the title of thief. As it pertains to racism, isn't singling out all caucasians ("white" people) in itself racist? There is not one society that hasn't taken advantage, or suppressed another society for gain. The Romans did it to literally everyone they encountered. The Spaniards did it to the Latin Americans. Egyptians conquered and enslaved countless people groups as well. Even the Native Americans did it to each other...yet, the label of oppressor is almost explicitly tied to the white race. Whites or people of European descent didn't invent the concept of conquering another country or using slavery as a way of cheap labor. Lumping people together because of race that's linked to events in history is irresponsible. A person's moral character defines them, not their heritage or skin color. Using a curriculum based on CRT will destroy the unity we Americans have fought hard to build over the years. There is a reason everyone is clamoring to come here. We are the land of opportunity for every culture. It doesn't matter where we originated. We are a likeminded people who believe in personal freedom. Teach history, even the uncomfortable parts, but don't lay the sin of oppressed and oppressor at the feet of one race when all races are guilty.

A concerned parent,

Lauren Buckles

[EXTERNAL] PED Social Studies Standards

Eli Briody-Pavlik <ebriodypavlik@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

I write to express my support for the updated social studies standards that are under discussion before PED. As we grow in the future as a state, we must improve our curriculum to include new developments and more complete understandings of our past. The new curriculum will help us do that.

Thank you,
Eli Pavlik
Farmington, NM

[EXTERNAL]

Christina Archunde <eeyore365@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

You will not add this kinda crap into our children's learning. Teaching children to judge by the color of skin or by their heritage is WRONG period. I don't even understand how you can even begin to think it's okay. Have we not learned anything from the past that division in any form is not good. Seriously this is not okay.

[EXTERNAL] In Favor of Proposed SS Standards

Flora Sanchez <sanchez.village47@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:27 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am in full support of the Draft NM Social Studies Standards as provided as 21-15540.

I have carefully reviewed the proposed standards and am impressed with the scope of the revisions to the current standards and importantly of the emphasis on critical analysis and critical thinking from elementary through high school.

I served on the NM State Board of Education from 1996 - 2004. During my tenure, the board received regular testimony from educators and historians that NM Social Studies standards lacked substance and neglected or glossed over important aspects of NM history. The

In my memory the only standards receiving more comment were the science standards. And importantly the comments were, with very few exceptions, in favor of deeper study of NM's history.

It is most unfortunate that the current political climate, rife with misinformation, has resulted in so much negative comment. The truth is that it is the lack of knowledge of and appreciation for a true and accurate accounting of history that creates division. Teaching facts builds bridges between people. In addition, and most importantly, through history we can learn how past societies, systems, ideologies, governments, cultures and technologies were built, how they operated, and how they have changed. ... All this knowledge makes students more rounded people who are better prepared to learn in all their academic subjects.

From my own personal experience, having attended NM schools first through twelfth grades, I know firsthand that lack of knowledge and understanding of our complex history created many issues for me. And as a teacher, throughout my 25-year career, I saw the same issues in my students. It is time that the standards be upgraded and improved.

Please do not be dissuaded by the negative hyperbole. Please pass these standards.

Flora M. Sanchez

5838 Isleta Blvd. SW

Albuquerque, NM 87105

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Curriculum Standard Revision

Fay Yao <fyaogm@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:34 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Fay Yao <fyaogm@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: Mr. John Sena, Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department

Dear Sir,

I respectfully submit this written comment for the Committee on Social Studies Curriculum standard revision.

I am Fay Yao, National Representative of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance, Albuquerque Chapter, and a retired Albuquerque Public School educator. I had the pleasure of working at many levels of public education, from elementary through high school, and in the Title One Homeless Program. The Chinese American Citizens Alliance is one of the oldest Civil Rights organizations in the country, founded in 1895, about the same time as the NAACP.

There's a new kind of awareness that history is complicated; it has to do with justice and historical accuracy in the great American story. We are now aware that the teaching of American History has left out some of each. There is an urgency to right the justice and the accuracy.

Asian Americans have been treated as outsiders for too long. Asian Americans has been the scapegoats for various issues throughout our history. Chinese Americans in particular, suffered the 1882 Exclusion Act, the lynching and massacres of Chinese immigrants in 1871 in Los Angeles, to most recently being blamed for COVID-19. Asian Americans were vilified in the '80s during the US auto crisis,' the time when the US car industry crashed in the '80s. It could not compete with imported cars from Japan. Many unemployed auto workers blamed Asian Americans. During that period, in the year 1982 to be specific, two white Detroit auto workers who were laid off, brutally killed a Chinese American Vincent Chin who was out for his bachelor party, mistaking him to be a Japanese. Vincent Chin was beaten to death with a baseball club outside of a McDonald's. The two killers ended up pleading guilty to manslaughter and receiving only a $3,000 fine and three years' probation.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt used Executive Order 9066 during WWII to incarcerate people of Japanese descent in isolated internment camps from 1942-1945 in response to the attacks on Pearl Harbor. Many of those Japanese are immigrants or are second and third generations born in the United States.

To help our students and to help New Mexico teachers integrate the study of Asian American history and cultures into their classrooms. We would like to present the roles that Asian Americans have played within the larger history of the United States—and why this history is important for all Americans to know.

Early Chinese immigrant workers laid much of the tracks for the Central Pacific Railroad through the foothills and over the high Sierra Nevada, much of which involved hazardous work with explosives to tunnel through the hills. The completion of the Transcontinental Railroad opened the West, expanded the economy of the United States. Early Chinese immigrants also contributed to the agricultural and fishing industries.

Throughout history, Asian Americans contributes to the American landscape in arts and culture; civil rights, public service and politics, entrepreneurship and business leadership, infrastructure, military & national security, public health, and science and technology.

Therefore, Asian American story is an American story. All the struggles and the contributions – they need to be presented for all to beware, face the realities and learn from each other, to empathize, to sing praises, to mourn, to recognize all of the humanities that transpired. To bridge understanding, and to build solidarity.

The Chinese American Citizens Alliance, together with the Asian American communities at large would like to join effort with the NM State PED and educators and parents to develop lesson plans toward this matter. We would like to keep in communication with pertinent committees and educational leaders to accomplish this goal of enriching the New Mexico State Social Studies curriculum.

Sincerely,

Fay Yao
Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards--Approving and asking that Economic Standards be focused on skill building

K Elise Packard <kelisepackard@icloud.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the extensive work invested.

With these proposed standards our students will gain a strong self understanding as well as an appreciation of the complex history and cultural patterns that compose our social fabric.

We need citizens who can operate our of confidence in their cultural identity and who understand that social justice is always a work in progress, requiring our strong participation.

I suggest that the Economic Standards be revised to focus on building capacity to understand money and manage personal finances. Our state suffers from embedded generational poverty. Strengthening financial acumen will enable our students to break patterns that make them victims of those who take advantage of ignorance and limited experience. Building personal finance skills will provide a practical way of creating social equity.

Thank you for your consideration of this input.

Elise Packard, PhD

[EXTERNAL] Opposed to New Social Studies Standards

Travis Johnson <johnson.l.travis@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:44 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Marguerite Martinez <margra80@yahoo.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it may Concern,

I am opposed the proposed social studies standards. Specifically the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards. Kids do not need to be taught to identify with specific groups. They notice the differences on their own. They do not act on them unless taught to do so. The standards appear to serve the purpose of dividing and categorizing our youth on ethnic and cultural lines. By 7th grade we see that students are engaged in an exercise that would, "Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices. (apparently from the 1490 to the 1590s) an era where none of these children are to blame for the injustices nor should they feel victimized by this distance past. The curriculum seems to serve the purpose of establishing classes of oppressors and oppressed based on demographic or cultural groups. Note the following:

5th grade, "Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are"

6th grade, "● 6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures."

7th grade, " 7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.

I do not believe that historical injustices should not be taught. On the contrary, they should be, history is not there for us to like or dislike. It simply is what it is. The issue I have is that it appears to be used to classify based on color of skin, religion, or demographic. Oppressor and victim. I believe that rather than making the cultural, or demographic lines in bold, we should be trying to erase them by teaching children that they are not defined or limited by their culture or demographic. In the proposed curriculum By 9th grade, this school of thought appears to be complete, inappropriately confirming that people are defined by their demographic, see below.

9th -12th grad "Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity ● 9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups."

We should be teaching that the keys to success are hard work, innovation, education. Our children live in a free world. Life may not be fair however, there is reward for hard work ,innovation, and good character. Children are not limited, or owed something based on the melanin content of their skin, but created equal. They are certainly not limited based on history from the 1490s or 1590s but live in a time where they have opportunity.

I am deeply disturbed by this curriculum that begins with classifying dividing students based on cultural and demographics before they have learned to read. MLK would be appalled. "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character." The proposed curriculum teaches the opposite.

We have an opportunity to teach character (values) and integrity not to mention, love, joy, peace, forbearance, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control. Against such things there is no law.

My mother, a white woman was raised in a converted pig shack with no running water. If we judge based on her demographic she would be seen as more fortunate than most. She was not... I can't look at my children and teach them that their identity is based on their demographic. Schools should not either. You see, demographics are not absolute truth and do not define us. There exist countless examples throughout history where people suffered and overcame regardless of the color of their skin, religion, or cultural affiliation. Please do not bolden the lines based on these demographics. Instead, empower our youth by highlighting the ability to succeed based on character.

Thank you,

Travis Johnson

1001 Acapulco Ct Rio Rancho, NM 87144

(505)331 5576

[EXTERNAL] feedback on Social Studies standards

Mary Jean H. Lopez <maryjeanhl@msn.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (38 KB)

SS standards letter.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please review attached comment. Thank you.

MARY JEAN H. LOPEZ

11 Cedar Creek Road, Placitas, NM | (505) 235-4277 | maryjeanhl@msn.com

Nov. 10, 2021

John Sena, Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to provide comment on the proposed repeal and replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies standards which will be heard on Friday, Nov. 12, 2021 at the NMPED Public Hearing.

I am a lifelong retired educator who taught in the public schools and university and was also the former director of Bilingual Education at the NMPED. I am also a bit of a history buff as well. As a former teacher of bilingual education a number of years ago, I recall having to seek out materials and information on my own about the contributions and conflicts experienced by New Mexico's peoples. Very little was available. I see these new standards sequentially codify core ideas K-12 of what "students should know and be able to do" with increasing complexity. This rewrite gives all students the opportunity to learn about all of New Mexico's history. It is indeed gratifying for me to see this change.

It is critical that all children be able to see themselves reflected in the curriculum that is taught in the public schools. Not only that, but they must also be given the tools to process, analyze and evaluate this information in an unbiased way. These standards do this by systemizing this content in a sequential and comprehensive manner for all children in our schools.

Thank you for offering the opportunity to comment and my compliments to the NMPED specialists who wrote them. They are very good.

Sincerely,

Mary Jean H. Lopez

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico PED revision.

Kaye Kennedy <kaye.kennedy524@icloud.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:59 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I oppose the proposed revision to New Mexico schools social studies curriculum. Although stated this is not CRT, it has all the jargon and buzz words of CRT. Children should never be put in the position of defending their God given race. Children aren't born racist stop the indoctrination. I believe the proposed revisions will hurt and endanger students.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Dennis O'Toole <dodotoole09@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:00 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena,

I am writing in support of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, the new replacement social studies standards.

I long ago retired from teaching Pre-K through Elementary School classes, but maintain a deep interest in what is happening in our public schools today. The proposed social studies standards are more inclusive and comprehensive in scope than the old ones. I like the emphasis on critical thinking, which will help students discuss opposing points of view based on consideration of the relevant facts.

I ask the Public Education Department to adopt these standards, with whatever minor changes it thinks appropriate. Thank you to the committee for all its hard work.

Sincerely,

Gertrude O'Toole
Santa Fe, NM
trudyotoole@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] proposed social studies standards feedback

Skyler Hraber <hraber.skyler@nmschoolforthearts.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:11 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Danielle Sullivan <dsullivan@nmschoolforthearts.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

A group of us, many of whom have grown up with the current NM social studies standards, have been examining the proposed social studies standards. We would like to demonstrate our support of these new standards and comment on what we find effective about these proposed standards.

We believe that children should be taught about the real, truthful history of the state and country that they are growing up in.

As a kid who went to elementary school in New Mexico's public school system, I was taught a very white-washed, sugar-coated version of history. I learned that in 1492, Columbus stumbled upon a few mean Native Americans, and then Thanksgiving happened, and then Native people and colonizers were friends. I briefly learned that slavery happened, and then Lincoln made it illegal, and then Martin Luther King jr. delivered "I Have a Dream" in Washington, and Obama became president and racism is mostly fixed now! Obviously, the truth of the racism, colonization, and oppression embedded in the history of both the US and New Mexico is much more violent, brutal, and nuanced than this narrative pushed on students.

Unlearning this narrative is frustrating given that it has largely influenced kids' perception of the world during their basic educational years. When learning math, children first learn to count, then add, subtract, multiply, and divide. You build onto the information already given instead of change it. We think that social studies should be taught in a similar way. Rather than substituting truths as kids are learning about history, New Mexico's students should be taught the building blocks to deal with the brutal truth of our history. We're not asking to teach calculus to kindergarteners; but we are asking that kindergarteners are given the skills to learn calculus later on.

We really appreciate that the proposed standards begin to address the idea of introducing diversity in perspectives to classrooms from an early age. We deeply believe that implementing these standards will help students in New Mexico begin to have a meaningful connection to the truth of our community's histories and how those histories influence our state and country today.

Thank you for your time and consideration of our feedback.

Sincerely,

Elena Bunker Ruiz

Hailey Chanler

Annabella Hill

Skyler Hraber

Magdalene Sanchez

Clara West

[EXTERNAL]

Veronica Gonzalez <vlgbazan@hotmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:14 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

If I find out you are teaching CRT there will be a law suit. I hope and pray you listen to the parents and not do what you think. You should do.

Sent from Samsung Galaxy smartphone.

Get Outlook for Android

[EXTERNAL] Found another error: 9-12 Social Studies 3C Gov plus a substantive point

Mitchell Freedman <mfreedman@theaskacademy.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:17 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

4. Analyze the historical sources and ideals of the structure of the United States government, to include: principles of democracy; essential principles of a republican form of government; code of law put forth in the Code of Hammurabi; separation of powers as expressed by the Baron of Montesquieu; checks and balances as expressed by Thomas Hobbs;...

It is spelled Hobbes. Hobbs is of course a city in New Mexico. :)

My comment regarding Gov class standards is this, regarding 3A Gov:

You mention Federalist Paper no. 51, but not Federalist Paper nos. 10 and 37. You should include those two as Madison talks about factions in 10 and makes clear the "principal task of modern regulation" is to regulate the various economic interests that arise in any civilized society. In 37, Madison admits the language may be obscure in the constitution because the founders were themselves compromising, and this helps students make more sense of McCulloch v. Md and Gibbons v. Ogden, which you should also include.

I would dump the Federalist Paper nos. 78-83 to make up the room as Marbury settles judicial review in a manner far more definitive (though one makes good arguments from Hamilton in the Fed Papers in those numbers for judicial review; but again unnecessary).

Mitchell J. Freedman
The ASK Academy
November 10, 2021

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Kathy Brook <kathybrook@comcast.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:18 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments on the proposed new social studies standards for K-12. In general, I support them.

Children in the public schools should be able to see how people like them fit into and contribute to US and New Mexico history and society and they should learn to be respectful of people who may be different from them in a variety of ways. (It is clear that the perspectives of major groups within the US and New Mexico have been left out of the social studies curriculum in the past.) As they grow and develop, children should become aware of the challenges that we have faced as a nation and a state and the ways in which we have succeeded and failed at meeting those challenges.

Students should be able to understand multiple perspectives about issues and form their own opinions about those issues. Teachers should generally be in the position of challenging the student to think more deeply about the issues.

Identity is complicated and can be deeply personal. In a classroom, it is probably not appropriate to insist that students reveal things about themselves that are private -- but they can discuss these issues using history and literature.

Kathy Brook
Dona Ana County

[EXTERNAL] Feedback rule, PED

Terry McKinley <ripmck@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (13 KB)

Letter against Proposed SS Standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: Feedback rule, PED, <Rule.FeedBack@State.nm.us>

As an educator, mother, grandmother, and an American who is very concerned with the degree to which some will go to create divisiveness in our society I strongly disagree with the proposed new Social Studies Standards by the State of New Mexico.

Right now in our state and in our country our children are in need of the best education possible in the areas of reading, writing, and mathematics. Teachers, parents, and students are working hard to try and make up ground that has been lost. In truth, I find these new standards to be open to too much opinion but I also feel that they should not be brought forward at this time if at all. We need to focus on the most important skills for all of our students and take the time to research, review, and discuss fully what these standards will actually look like in the classrooms before they are introduced. I believe at the very least there should be a pause in the introduction of these standards. If there is nothing wrong with them this request should not be a problem.

Ms. Terry McKinley

Deming, New Mexico

575-494-1035

[EXTERNAL] ATTE: John Pena re: comment 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies standards change

Jeanne Tatum <jbetatum@postinbox.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:37 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (25 KB)

comment Social Studies standards.odt;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please consider the attached document as submission of my written comments concerning the social studies standard replacement.

Thank you,
Jeanne Tatum

November 09, 2021

Mr. John Pena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Re: Comments concerning Proposed Rulemaking Proposed repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies, to update the social studies standards

Dear Mr. Pena,

I am a former school board member in the state of NM (1995-2000). I have reviewed the proposed changes and also the comments made in regards to the proposed changes. Please accept this email as my comment against the standards change.

I sincerely hope the PED will strongly consider the resolutions submitted by the various school boards, administrators and teachers in requesting more time and study. Our education system has been in turmoil and upheaval for a year and a half between the public health edicts and the change in secretary of education. The “boots on the ground” as it were, are doing their best to keep the students engaged and learning. Enforcing divisive standards at them at this point is completely counter-productive to their success in teaching our children. So please, give the teachers and school boards the respect they deserve by considering their opinion.

With that said, ultimately, I do not agree with the proposed changes in the social studies standards. I believe the standards being proposed are based not on educational theories but on a secular, political legal theory that abdicates personal responsibility for behavior. This has no place in basic education for K-12 students. I do not believe in using education as a political football. I would prefer leaving the standards as they are, or better yet, review prior year standards for reinstatement as opposed to what has been brought forward for approval. Personally, as a high school and college student during the era of “Affirmative Action”, I can attest that decisions made for individuals concerning their acceptance into school, or workplace, based on gender or race instead of merit, are incredibly divisive. Basing an educational standard on essentially that same operational theory is ridiculous and completely political. Not only does it have no place in our educational system, it has no legitimate place in society.

There are many concise arguments in the comments against these proposed standards and rather than reinvent the wheel, I will just join in agreement with the following comments (realizing that pg numbers references might change as more comments are posted):

Maggie Tyndorf, pg 106 of 1080, exhibit 0073
Arleen Standiford, pg 109 of 1080, exhibit 0075
Eloy Macha, pg 227 of 1080, no exhibit number
Jereme Woodruff, pgs 238-246 of 1080, exhibit number 0110
Stephen Kennedy, pgs 412-413 of 1080, exhibit number 0254-0255
Camille George-Florez, pg 432 of 1080, exhibit number 0272
Dr. Ann Garcia, pg 574 of 1080, exhibit number 0348
Danny Parker, pg 601-613 of 1080, exhibit number 0369
Janalee Martinez, pg 614 of 1080, exhibit number 0370

Dave Tofsted, pg 817-822 of 1080, included in Robert Wood, exhibit number 0530
Tammy Davis, pg 852-853 of 1080, exhibit number 0390
Michael Campbell, pg 1011 of 1080, exhibit number 0574

In closing, I reiterate, please do not accept the proposed social studies standards change. I realize the rush to accept these and put them in place by the 2022-23 school year is to appease the current state administration and the progressive agenda. However, I suggest you look at the election results from Virginia and realize that what you pass today can easily be overturned with the next administration. Save our children and teachers the turmoil, step back from the politics and make a serious decision based only on the education needs of our children and not the political needs of a declining progressive administration.

Sincerely,
Jeanne Tatum

[EXTERNAL]

Susan Casey <betrayed4.sc@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:44 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 10, 2021

Do NOT put CRT into our Social Studies curriculum! Do NOT put CRT into our schools in any form. As parents and grandparents of Los Lunas and Belen school children, we are TOTALLY OPPOSED TO CRT. It is devious, and it teaches students to divide people into oppressed and oppressive. The theory is completely contrary to our Constitution. We are all equal under the Constitution! There are NOT divided groups that oppose one another!

Please make sure my voice is heard!

Thank you.

Susan A Casey

Los Lunas, NM

betrayed4.sc@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards Update

Emily Pedone <epedone@lcps.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:51 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am strongly in favor of updating and improving the NM Social Studies standards. I believe that they are long overdue, and we must ensure that students are learning from standards that reflect our best knowledge of historical events and their current effect on how they live their lives today. Teaching from outdated and inaccurate state standards does much more harm than the uncomfortable conversations the new standards may spark.

Thank you!

Emily Pedone
AES Facilitator
Picacho Middle School
She/Her/Hers

[EXTERNAL] Letter in Support of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Geneve Villacres <geneve.villacres@omf.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:56 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (131 KB)

OMF_FinancialLitteracySupportLetter.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

Please find our letter attached in support of enhancing k-12 social studies to include financial education.

Thank you,
Geneve

Geneve Villacres | VP/Director Government Relations
916.747.7791 | Geneve.Villacres@omf.com

OneMain Financial®

Email Disclaimer

This E-mail contains confidential information belonging to the sender, which may be legally privileged information. This information is intended only for the use of the individual or entity addressed above. If you are not the intended recipient, or an employee or agent responsible for delivering it to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any disclosure, copying, distribution, or the taking of any action in reliance on the contents of the E-mail or attached files is strictly prohibited.

November 11, 2021

John Sena
Policy Director
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Re: Public Comment for 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Dear Mr. Sena:

On behalf of OneMain Financial, I write in support of including strong personal financial education standards in the K-12 Social Studies benchmark proposed in the current rulemaking for 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

OneMain Financial is the largest personal lender in the country and a leader in the financial wellness space. Our lending services give individuals and families options for meeting financial emergencies and improving their credit profiles through financial education. As such, we want to ensure the success of the communities in which we live and operate. Through our customers' experiences, we have found that financial literacy is critical to long-term financial stability, and early access to programs that create financial capability is essential.

Lacking access to financial education can be detrimental to individuals' financial success, and there is an urgent need to address financial wellness in New Mexico and across our country. A 2018 Federal Reserve Survey found that 40% of all Americans do not have $400 in emergency savings. Further, less than half of U.S. adults (47%) say they have a budget and keep close track of how much they spend (NFCC), and more than half (54%) don't have enough money set aside to cover three months of unexpected expenses (SLGE). Introducing financial literacy curriculum early on in students' education will better prepare them to budget, manage debt, and evaluate investment products.

Strong financial education standards will provide students with life-long skills needed to create financially independent communities throughout New Mexico.

We appreciate your time and consideration on this matter.

Sincerely,

Geneve Villacres
VP/Director Government Relations
OneMain Financial

[EXTERNAL] In support of the proposed NMPED Social Studies Standards

Michaela Gallegos <mlgallegos77@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:59 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear members of the NM PED:

I am writing today to express my support of the proposed social studies standards. I am a parent with two students in the Albuquerque Public School District. My children are mixed ethnicity and I appreciate the new standards incorporating age appropriate lessons on community, history, and critical thinking. They learn best when they can relate to the subject matter. They see themselves and their commnuty in the proposed standards. I am grateful to the teachers who helped develop these proposed standards.

I ask that you approve the proposed social studies standards.

Thank you for your service to our state and children.

Respectfully,

Michaela Gallegos (she/her)
725 Quincy Street NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110
505-506-6688

I work after 8pm for convenience. Please do not feel obligated to respond immediately to emails sent late in the evening

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies curriculum 2021, for Nov. 12th PED meeting

Kaarina Jager <jkaarina@hotmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Kaarina Jager <jkaarina@hotmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom This May Concern:

As a prequel, I support studying the facts in 1. New Mexican, 2. American and 3. World History as well as systems of government and civics (4. politics) and resulting 5. economies, especially in New Mexico/United States of America, highlighting common points in various states, countries and cultures. If anything needs to be strengthened in the revised curriculum, it is the education how to establish strong, harmonious two parent families with children that support education!

Scrap the 122 pages of proposals and instead study the following:

Then, Optional, FIRST: God needs to be back in the schools. Morning Devotion and Ethics studies are to be optional but are to include the majority/minority of the population's ideologies and practices (Christianity/Judaism/Islam/Buddhism/Confucianism/Hinduism etc.) and highlight the similarities in various faiths: serving God, family, nation and world ---- peacefully.

SECOND, optional: Philosophies, including atheism, based on the above, can be compared and contrasted in the past and present as far as results in the lives of people's go: constitutional rights of people in various countries, religious and economic freedoms actualized or not. Atheism is to be studied as far as its consequences since the 19th century. Karl Marx and subsequent followers of atheism/central planning created dominating ideologies like Fascism (Italy), National Socialism (Germany) and International Socialism/Communism in the Soviet Union, currently practiced in China, North Korea, Venezuela, Cuba and in varying degree in many countries, murdered millions and oppressed people more than any other ideology in human history.

Our students need to understand that unless we know history and learn from history, we are bound to repeat it.

Sincerely,

Kaarina Jager
Roswell, NM

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Terrence Goldman <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Terrence Goldman
1232 41st ST
Los Alamos, NM 87544-1915

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment on New Rules

Tiffany Burningham <tburningham@criptext.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:43 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a resident of the state of New Mexico and have many, many grievances with regard to the way our school boards have been handled, how our state is being run and the criminal acts that have been allowed to go on.

As a member of the public I disagree and do not condone the actions of our leaders or the changes they are proposing.

Keep CRT out of our schools. School board officials are ELECTED by the people of their communities. The state has no right to intervene. School boards should be the ones to propose changes that the public can then agree to or reject.

This needs to be voted down. Hard NO to the proposed changes.

Thank you,
T. Burningham
NM Resident

Sent with Criptext secure email

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Curriculum Changes

Daniel Conklin <dcajna888@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:50 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I firmly believe the proposed "standards" are misguided and ultimately harmful to the student's education. Even if I supported the basic themes, I oppose the new curriculum. It dilutes what already appears to be thin gruel, and would unquestionably cannibalize studies more important to future success. e.g STEM (or vocational, a curriculum addition that should be explored).. The facts speak for themselves. Despite the continued substantial growth in money and other resources spent on public education, the vast majority of our New Mexican students still can't read or do math at any where near grade level. Once out in the "real world", any potential sense of enhanced self-worth obtained through ethnic, cultural or identity studies will quickly evaporate in the face of that person's inability to read and the realization that they lack the basic skills needed to succeed. If they are at all self-aware, they will not be thanking PED.

Sincerely,
Daniel Conklin

[EXTERNAL] Feedback Re: Social Studies Standards

Patsy Nelson <patsyncnelson@msn.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:55 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

My children attended and my grandchildren currently attend public schools in NM. I am also a member of the NM League of Women Voters. I fully support the revised social studies standards because they include important updates to more fully include the experiences of ALL people in NM. They also encourage students to assess more thoroughly the information they receive from various sources.

The statement by the League of Women Voters succinctly expresses my opinion, as follows:
The League of Women Voters of New Mexico supports the proposed social studies standards. They impart accurate representations of our complex history and develop the civic and analytical thinking skills essential to thriving in our diverse society. As a multicultural, multilingual and majority-minority state, New Mexico's public education system must provide students an understanding of the nature of democracy in learning environments that respect diverse cultures and perspectives.

This social studies curriculum will develop a broad understanding of history and foster an awareness of the rights, privileges and responsibilities of participation in a democratic society. Students will learn to manage resources for the benefit of both present and future generations.

Thank you for accepting my feedback,

Patsy

Patsy Nelson
505-228-5087

[EXTERNAL] new standards

donna thiersch <djthiersch@comcast.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:58 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I reviewed the standards and they look and feel they are right for our students. Thank you for allowing me an opportunity to let you know this progress for our young learners. thank you donna thiersch

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Loretta Goatcher <jazegr@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:59 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Fighting racism with more racism is Racist. This is what CRT is teaching, racism.

How about giving our children an education with the freedom on how to think and not what to think.

Thank you.

Loretta Grissom

Registered voter

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Maellen Blodgett <blodgett bunch6@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello.

I am writing in response to the proposed changes to our public school Social Studies programs.

I am completely against dividing our children against one another by telling them one race is superior to another.

I am completely against telling our children that the amount of melanin in one's skin is more important than their character.

I am completely against indoctrinating our children with the idea that their skin color will determine their outcome.

Equality is a great idea in that all people in America have the same opportunities to do what they want and to become who they want to be. We already have this here. Equity is when we all have the same outcome- and that is just not realistic. It is obvious that the person who works hard, shows up on time, and is willing to learn something new, will do much better than the person who doesn't show up to work, doesn't try hard, and refuses to learn and grow. If you push equity, both those people will get the same pay and move up the ladder at the same time. If you push equality, the hard worker will get paid more, as they both have the same opportunity to work hard and grow in their jobs, but one chose not to.

Please stop dividing our children, communities, and country with this 'race is critical to life' mentality. CHARACTER is what counts! Stop ruining our state more than it already is!

Sincerely,

Maellen Blodgett

87111

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Anun McCormack <mccormack.anun@nmschoolforthearts.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

I am a student in New Mexico specifically Santa Fe

i have a few comments on the new social studies standards, they are as follows:

- I enjoy the early development of social acknowledgement so young in kids, I think it is a wonderful step in the right direction.
- There are some goals I feel could be unachievable for younger kids like understanding scarcity, how do you think teachers are going to be able to achieve this
 - The concept of climate change should be addressed in schools, especially if the climate crisis gets worse. The most appropriate age to address this I think would be middle school students.
- How do you plan to prepare teachers for these new standards that you have written
- I'm concerned about the students understanding these standards, how do we as a state asses these standards

[EXTERNAL] DO Not Put CRT in New Mexico's Schools

Sarah Johnson <sarah.abq@me.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:08 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

I am writing to demand that the New Mexico does not change its Social Studies curriculum to include Critical Race Theory. I am against the NMPED proposed changes to NM Social Studies for our schools. Please hear the voices of many hundreds and thousands of concerned parents who are against this change.

Sincerely,

Sarah Johnson

[EXTERNAL] NM Resolution PED Social Studies

Anna Johnson <annajohnson381@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Joe Cotton <HobbsNAACP@gmail.com>

 1 attachments (303 KB)

2021 Resolution NM Ped Social Studies.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Greetings,

The Resolution for NM PED Social Studies from the NM State Conference NAACP.

Be Blessed!

Anna Johnson

Eddy County Branch Secretary

NM State Secretary

NM State Membership Chair

(925) 349-8692

annajohnson381@gmail.com

NAACP

NM State Conference NAACP
P. O. Box 3804
Hobbs, NM 88241

NM PED Social Studies

WHEREAS the current social studies standards in New Mexico were last revised in 2009 and have numerous strengths and cover a wide range of topics; and

WHEREAS the proposed new social studies standards adds to the current standards without removing anything from those standards; and

WHEREAS proposed new standards provide age/grade appropriate, comprehensive, fact based, culturally inclusive, realistic coverage of social studies over time and disciplines; and

WHEREAS critical thinking and respect are emphasized throughout; and

WHEREAS students are encouraged to look at the influences involved in getting them, their families, community, state, country, and the world to where it is today without “making other people feel bad” while demonstrating “respect for the feelings of other people who are similar or different”; and

WHEREAS our children are our future and they must be prepared for citizenship in a diverse global environment; and

WHEREAS the proposed standards will prepare children to be active participants in their future and society; and

WHEREAS students, teachers, parents and the community must be provided education on the standards so they will have an understanding of historical truth and inclusion that might not be part of our education and life experience; and

WHEREAS New Mexico students must be prepared as informed, critical-thinking, respectful global citizens; now therefore BE IT

RESOLVED that the New Mexico State NAACP endorses the redeveloped NMPED Social Studies Standards which focus on knowledge, skills and dispositions critical to ensure ALL students in New Mexico are college, career, and civic ready.

[EXTERNAL] AGAINST the repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Chatterley <jlochatterley@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:15 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Jared Chatterley <jared.chatterley@trinidad.co.gov>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in opposition to the proposed standards that incorporate elements of Critical Race Theory for 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies. The new language contains content that is divisive, partisan, and unbalanced. If there needs to be improvement in the state standards, it should be more carefully considered. While we need to teach the ability to be kind and think freely, the type of language proposed is incredibly biased and leans toward leftist thinking--not free thought.

Lori Chatterley, CMO

City Commissioner

Raton, New Mexico

jlochatterley@gmail.com

lchatterley@cityofraton.com

[EXTERNAL] Santa Fe Branch NAACP comments on NMPED draft Social Studies Standards

NAACP Santa Fe <naacpsfnm@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:19 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (234 KB)

SF Branch NAACP edits to NMPED Draft SS Standards.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: New Mexico Public Education Department

From: Santa Fe Branch NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People)

Re: Proposed Social Studies Standards

November 10, 2021

To Whom It May Concern,

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed Social Studies curriculum standards. The Santa Fe Branch of the NAACP (through its Education Committee) has carefully reviewed the proposed Social Studies standards. We are honored to lend our support for these thoughtful and inclusive standards. The amount of research and reflective thought involved in this process is evident.

As a local branch that supports education for all children (especially those in New Mexico), it is refreshing to see standards that reflect true and equitable representation of the people of our state, country, and the world. We feel that the standards will greatly aid in preparing our future leaders to be knowledgeable, informed citizens.

In our quest to ensure the inclusion of all communities, we are attaching some specific, detailed feedback that we hope will be as thoughtfully considered as the proposed Social Studies standards reflect.

Please see the attached document for additional details and proposed edits.

Sincerely,

*Louis Levin, PhD, President
Santa Fe Branch NAACP*

The NAACP mission is to secure the political, educational, social, and economic equality of rights in order to eliminate race-based discrimination and ensure the health and well-being of all persons.

Grade Level/ Subject Area	Proposed Standard	Proposed Edits
Kindergarten	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.21. Explain why and how people move from place to place within a community. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Include immigration and involuntary movement
First Grade	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.8. Investigate how people work together to accomplish a common task and how this benefits and challenges people when working together. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • At end of sentence add "across cultures'.
	Theme 2: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.9. Compare life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.9. Compare life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.
	Theme 2: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.13. Investigate significant events, people, and observances in history, and discuss their effects on local and national communities. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Insert "...effects on diverse local..."
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.18. Create geographic representations to identify the location of familiar places and demonstrate how these representations can help us navigate from one place to the next, provide directions, or trace important routes. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Include maps of Indigenous tribes and nations pre-Columbian times
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.19. Identify the common symbols used on maps for man-made structures and physical features. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Include maps of Indigenous tribes and nations pre-Columbian times
Second Grade	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 2.24. Generate a definition for your region of the US by identifying unique features. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Include maps of Indigenous tribes and nations pre-Columbian times.
Third Grade	Theme 4:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The history of the technology of the Acequias system of irrigation and factors that are affecting it now,

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.25. Explain how physical and cultural characteristics of world regions affect people, and examine geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations. 	including water rights and planned usage and climate change. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> The knowledge that Indigenous people are of many tribes and cultures, and are alive and contributing to the development of the State of New Mexico and United States
Fourth Grade	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.10. Investigate how different groups have influenced the ways that state issues are viewed and resolved. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.10. Discuss the Haudenosaunee/Onondaga Nation agreement as forerunner to US Declaration of Independence. The Haudenosaunee consist of the Mohawk, Oneida, Onondaga, Cayuga, Seneca, and Tuscarora nations. The Onondaga Nation lies in the middle of the Haudenosaunee territory and is also known as the Central Fire. The Central Fire is a term used to describe Onondaga as a place where the Hoyá•neh (Chiefs) meet in a Grand Council.
	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.11. Describe the different groups of people that have settled in New Mexico throughout history and describe their traditions and effects on New Mexico culture. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.11. Describe the different groups of people (Indigenous and explorers/pioneers and immigrants) that have settled in New Mexico throughout history and describe their traditions and effects on New Mexico culture.
	Theme 5: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.24. Explain why individuals and groups during the same historical period differed in their perspectives towards significant historical events. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> "...why diverse individuals..."
Fifth Grade	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.27. Using a map, identify and locate the 50 states in the United States and know the capitals of each state along with the surrounding U.S. territories. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Insert at end of sentence "...territories and how the U.S. acquired those territories..." Discuss the means by which the U.S. acquired and maintains these territories past and present
	Theme 5: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> "in main identity groups" is nebulous. Specification needed.

	Theme 5: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Insert "...how diverse groups"
Sixth Grade	Theme 2: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.29. Describe how the people impact the local environment. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.29 Delete "the" before people.
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.41. Describe the distribution of resources among classes in the feudal hierarchy of European and Asian societies. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Add African dynasties, Egyptian, South African, South Asian, Indigenous people worldwide
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.43. Analyze the significance of innovations such as scientific, mathematical, and technological in Middle Eastern and Asian societies. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Expand to include African, Asian, other Indigenous societies and Central and South American empires contributions that are concurrent with those mentioned.
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.44. Explain how religion and philosophy shaped European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the postclassical period. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Expand to include African, Asian, and Indigenous in Central and South American empires contributions that are concurrent with those mentioned
	Theme 6: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.51. Use maps to explain how encounters and exchanges linked the world. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.51 Insert "...exchanges with diverse groups..."
	Theme 6: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.54. Examine and explain how the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Insert "...between diverse groups and..."
	Inquiry 26: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> At end of sentence add ", including race, gender, disability, national origin"
Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14 (Is voting access implicit in "voting"?)

Seventh Grade	government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc).
	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.20 Insert "...to define the cultural and economic demographics of..."
	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.24 Modify "....activities, resources, progress and sustainability."
	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25 At end of sentence add "for diverse groups"
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.58. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the political and religious motivations of Spaniards as they encounter the land and peoples of the Americas. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.58 Insert "...political, economic and..."
	Theme 5; <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.70. Describe key figures that have made significant contributions to an individual culture. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.70 Change "culture" to plural "cultures".
	Theme 6: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.78. Analyze primary and secondary to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area) that would become) New Mexico. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.78 Delete ")" after "the area"
	Theme 7: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.86. Explain the role of human movement in shaping societies in New Mexico in the past and present. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.86 Change "movement" to "migration"???
	Theme 8: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Maps are crucial for a visualization of in/out migrations
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.12. Insert "...groups and individuals have..."

Eighth Grade	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.13. Engage in discussion, debate, or academic conversation analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.13. Insert "...multiple and diverse viewpoints..."
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally and engaging in positive civic behaviors in classrooms, schools, and the broader community. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.21. Insert "which negative stereotyping..."
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.22. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.22. Insert "...opportunities diverse people..."
	Theme 1: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.27. Define a region by identifying its human and physical features. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.27 Insert "...human characteristics and..."
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.40. Use maps and other primary sources to analyze the economic specializations of the 13 colonies. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.40. Use maps and other primary sources to analyze the economic specializations of the 13 colonies including trading partners
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Change "...by the role of religion..." to "by religion"
	Theme 5: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.56. Critically read the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.56 Insert "...narratives and whose rights were..."
	Theme 6: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.61. Compare and contrast Indigenous Peoples' assimilation story with later immigrants' stories. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.61 At end of sentence add "and slave narratives".
	Theme 7:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.67 Insert to begin sentence with "Describe the institution of slavery and indentured servitude and

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.67. Identify and explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the North and the South. 	identify..." unless this should be included under Theme 8.
	Theme 8: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.71. Generate research questions about the nature of civil wars in general, and the role of border states/territories in the US Civil War specifically. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.71 Insert "...general, the US Civil War, and..."
	Theme 8: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.76 Is this where a student should understand the Underground Railroad or might that that be included under 8.79?
	Theme 9: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.79 Insert at end f sentence ", including Jim Crow laws."
	Theme 9: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.80. Describe why different people may have different perspectives of the same historical event; multiple interpretations should be considered in order to avoid historical linearity and inevitability. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.80 Insert "...people and groups may..."
	Theme 9: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.83 Insert "...the historical, contemporary..."
	Theme 10: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.86. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within the United States during time periods of mass immigration. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Slave trade?
HS Civics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.15. Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.15. Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time. Critically read amendments following The Bill of Rights contemporary, and future opportunities and obstacles.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.36. Participate in civil discourse to promote greater understanding around historical, 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.36. Insert "...greater intercultural understanding..."

HS Economics	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.17. Explain how and why people make choices to improve their economic wellbeing. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.17. Insert "...their individual and group economic..."
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.25. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.25. Insert "...trends, policies and practices impact..."
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.41. Explain the effect of advancements in technology and training on economic growth and standards of living. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.41. Insert at end of sentence "living across diverse groups."
HS New Mexico History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.11. Insert "...regional, national, and..."
	Theme 2: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.19. Examine the changes in the Plains of New Mexico as irrigation and cattle ranches expand into the territory. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Black towns of SE New Mexico
	Theme 2: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Challenges by Reyes Tejerena/Courthouse event at Rio Arribia
	Theme 6: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> NMH.47 and 48. Something is wrong here. Should this be a single sentence?
Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.42. Analyze the persistence of the "Lost Cause of the Confederacy" narrative and its long term effects 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include the legacy of Jim Crow laws

HS U.S. History	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a “war to free the slaves,” and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include the legacy of Jim Crow laws and other legislation that impacted communities long after the end of slavery
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.45. Explain how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Acknowledge as not the only factor that led to the Civil War
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.46. Explore the similarities and differences between reform movements in the United States in the early to mid-19th century. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Reconstruction efforts and how they ended
	Theme 4: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women and African Americans. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard.
	Theme 5: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.52. Explore African American economic, political, sociocultural (educational, artistic, literary) responses to emancipation and Reconstruction. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include areas throughout the country that were African American-founded cities
	Theme 5: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	Theme 14: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.128. Evaluate the significance of the 1990 American Disability Act 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.128. I think the official title is Americans with Disabilities Act. Please double check. I suggest that U.S. History should include: identify and analyze major trends, issues and advances in health care and health disparities past, present and future (e.g. access, experimentation w/o consent, and social, economic and health care disparities).
	Theme 14: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include efforts prior to Black Lives Matter movement

	Theme 14: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.130. Examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include the lasting social impacts of legislation that aided in the persistence of unequal treatment of individuals in the LGBTQIA+ community
1450 - 1770	1450–1770: The First Global Age Emerges <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (Topics may include but are not limited to Fall of Constantinople, Reconquista, Inquisition, War of the Roses, Columbian Exchange, Ayiti (Taino), Tenochtitlan (Aztec), Cajamarca (Inca), Mestizo, Songhai Empire, African Diaspora, Safavid Empire, Renaissance, Julian v. Gregorian Calendar, Scientific Revolution, Protestant Reformation, Counter Reformation, Absolute Monarchies, Elizabethan Age, Glorious Revolution, Iroquois Confederacy, Enlightenment, Qing Dynasty, Tokugawa Shogunate, etc.) 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
HS World History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.WH.16. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include involuntary immigration
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.WH.31. Analyze and evaluate multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include the treatment of those in countries other than the US (ex. the aborigine)

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.17. Compare and contrast the various origins (Indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in the United States. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include other groups throughout the world (ex the aborigine)
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.20. Examine historical and contemporary cultural, economic, intellectual, political, and social contributions to society by individuals or groups within an identity group. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Include local organizations and groups as well
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We fully support this standard

[EXTERNAL] Comments on NM Social Studies Standards

Fae Ordaz <ordaz.fae@nmschoolforthearts.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:20 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Claire Christensen <christensen.claire@nmschoolforthearts.org>; Danielle Sullivan <dsullivan@nmschoolforthearts.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom This May Concern,

Hello, we are students from the New Mexico School for the Arts wanting to provide comments and feedback on the draft of the proposed NM Social Studies Standards for teachers. After reviewing and examining the draft, here are the comments we have made to be considered for review:

- The word identity is used too loosely, and maybe too early in education. It needs to be defined so that each individual can examine their own identity and that relating to the people around them, their family, and the environment.
- I think that with the addition of examining the qualities of good leadership, it is equally important to examine the qualities of bad leadership.
- One thing that is important, just as important as being aware of other people's emotions, is to learn how to debate and appropriately disagree in the right context. A skill that should be taught earlier.
- It is important to describe the land, but also where it came from, and how the American Government got to acquire the land.
- Along with creating questions, it is necessary to provide opinions on situations as well and to learn how to back up the opinion with evidence and source.

Thank you,

Fae Ordaz and Claire Christensen

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies curriculum change

Wendy Chiarelli <wendychiare@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:28 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am appalled at the social studies curriculum change that is being considered. It has many parts that are CRT focused. CRT is divisive to all American people and is unsupported by evidence. CRT makes racism where there is none. It creates new racism. It does not solve problems, but creates more hostility and claims things are true that are not true.

While American history has its share of "uglies" that should be examined, there is no need to make something from nothing, to make problems that simply did not exist, to divide us more and create new unfounded problems.

Our purpose in educating is to tell the facts, examine the problems and look for new solutions. It is not to support an agenda.

Let us not switch to this curriculum which is not factual or solution oriented.

Wendy Chiarelli
Rio Rancho

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Social Studies Standards

Kitty Miller <gatita@swcp.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (15 KB)

Letter on social Studies.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached please find a letter with my comments.

Kathleen A. Miller

Kathleen A. Miller
2720 Joe Sanchez Rd SW
Albuquerque, New Mexico 87105
gatita@swcp.com

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena;

I am writing in support of the proposed revised social studies standards, 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, for New Mexico public education schools (K-12). I am a retired attorney, with many years of experience representing Native American nations and tribal members in New Mexico, Arizona, and Oklahoma. I have taken all required courses to teach social studies at the secondary level. I also have served as a guardian ad litem and on the New Mexico Citizen's Review Board for children in foster care, I taught a program called "Roots of Empathy" in the Albuquerque Public Schools for two years and have volunteered in the public school system for many years.

As an attorney, I am very concerned with the need for more education about our governmental system and how it developed, particularly the role of the courts and the treatment of individual and minority rights. As a mother and grandmother, I am very concerned with the need for children of different backgrounds to learn about each other. Most of all, I want our children to learn to develop a deep understanding of our history, including the roles of slavery and territorial annexation of indigenous lands, and to learn to analyze and contrast different viewpoints in order to be more informed in their own decisions. Our democracy depends on it.

I want to commend the PED for undertaking these revisions. The revisions will promote a different and deeper understanding of the various forces that shaped our country, including economic forces which have led to the increasing inequality of our economic system. They will also accustom students to analyzing different viewpoints, understanding the underlying data, and evaluating credibility of different sources. These skills are essential for any citizen of a democracy, whether they are a pipefitter or a professor. Contrary to some of the criticism, there is nothing new or startling about the standards. They are the same standards accepted in the philosophy of history and employed in institutions of higher learning throughout the world. We cannot continue to disadvantage our children to satisfy those who have developed a mistrust of all higher education.

Respectfully,

Electronically signed November 10, 2021

Kathleen A. Miller

[EXTERNAL] Letter of comment on NM SS curriculum

Casey Hays <casey.hays@hotmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

Attached is a letter voicing my opposition to the social studies standards and benchmarks as they are currently written, especially in reference to the section entitled, Ethnicity, Cultural and Identity Studies.

Thank you for your time.

Casey Hays

A concerned NM citizen, former educator and parent

November 10, 2021

REF: New Mexico Social Studies Curriculum proposed changes

To Whom It May Concern:

After a careful examination of the proposed NM social studies curriculum standards and benchmarks, I have come to the sincere conclusion that the Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies addition to these standards and benchmarks is very inappropriate in that it reflects multiple qualities of Critical Race Theory. These CRT characteristics are littered throughout the standards, but are most directly reflected in the ECI sections, so I will comment on these.

The ECI sections focus very heavily on differences rather than similarities shared by fellow Americans, and this is quite disturbing. There appears to be a subtle attempt to revive racial hostility that is most definitely not present in the minds of kindergarteners, first graders, etc. ... not until a teacher plants the idea in fertile minds based on a required standard. The vast majority of the standards in the ECI section do not encourage unity as Americans regardless of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, etc. Instead, they promote the differences and attempt to reject commonly held American traits in favor of introducing aspects of division and a need for reparation and reconciliation to be incorporated, something that should not be addressed with children who are not part of this national problem. National likenesses that make us Americans and encourage diplomacy should be the focus for the health of our future nation, rather than overtly emphasizing qualities of diversity over unity.

Further, this section attempts to commence a study in segregation and sectionalizing American students into subgroups that leads to a breakdown of American ideals. We are a diverse country, yes. But as American citizens, teachers should be leading by example that we are one nation of unique and diverse people, but indivisible. It is not a teacher's responsibility or duty to help a student find and explore their unique identities or "affinity groups." Too many of these ECI standards are too broad, leaving wide open space for an activist teacher with an agenda to mold young minds with his/her ideology before they even understand who they are or what their role is in this world. The vast majority of these ECI standards are simply ideology rather than historical facts. It is not the place of educators to teach ideology to children that differs from the parents' perspective which they are trying to instill in their children based on a range of factors.

There are many standards addressing "diverse groups" yet there is no explanation of what types of people these groups consist of. Again, these types of standards divide, exclude "un-diverse groups" which I can only assume are the white students in the room, and create a sense that not all groups are important, but only those that "someone" has deemed as diverse, again with no explanation of who is included. Are poverty-stricken white children included? What about wealthy African-Americans? Are they excluded by the privilege of wealth? Who are these diverse groups and why is the focus on diversity without expressing how these diverse groups come together in unity to make one nation? This section of benchmarks appears to have been poorly analyzed and clearly lacks important qualities that must be addressed to complete the study of diversity. For example, much progress has been made since the inception of this nation to improve racial tension, and yet this is not the focus. And where this is not the focus, an opportunity for CRT teaching exists.

Frankly, the ECI section should be scrapped. It does not teach history; it teaches ideology. Many of the standards lend trigger points for activist teachers (of whom there will be many in this state) to press an agenda or some form of indoctrination of CRT on impressionable minds, which is unhealthy for the future of America.

Outside of the ECI segments of these benchmarks, there is also concern about the references to reasons for police brutality and inferences that capitalism is somehow inadequate, and that students should create an action plan to reach equity and rewrite the Constitution and or Bill of Rights, in essence reject American values in striving for something different. History teachers should teach history, not abject utopian ideas. Again, these standards are inappropriate, and leave too much room for ideology to be taught rather than facts.

Finally, school is not the place to teach controversial and sensitive subjects related to sexual activity, orientation or transgender studies or movements. School is not the place to explore or discuss such private matters, and this national push to sexualize our children at earlier and earlier ages and call it ethnic, cultural and identity studies is unethical on the part of the Department of Education. Some subjects need to be left in the hands of parents, and anything dealing with sexuality is one such topic.

There is a fierce debate over biological gender currently. Parents have the first and foremost right to teach their children their beliefs and thoughts on such matters based on their personal beliefs, religion, morality, etc. LBGQT studies are inappropriate at the primary and secondary school levels when children are impressionable and confused about sexual ideas or not yet mature enough to embrace such ideas, even at high school level. These standards that ask even kindergarteners to explore “identity” which can have various interpretations in our current social climate, lend too much power to educators to indoctrinate innocent minds with ideas that are not in line with those of parents. Teaching historical facts and allowing students to assess them critically based on their own thoughts, ideas and personal experiences is the ONLY job of history teachers. Implementing required and specific standards that address, identity, affinity group assessment, and diversity crosses a line that veers away from history lessons and moves into a category of activism and critical race theory thinking.

Every single one of us is diverse and unique in the eyes of God. This should be the message. This curriculum appears to imply that only certain ethnic groups are diverse because of race or ethnicity and that America has not progressed to a better place throughout history. The focus of social studies curriculum should be to teach historical facts accurately, not identity, and most definitely not ideology.

Casey Hays

A concerned former teacher and parent

501 Rosewood Dr.

Clovis, NM 88101

575-693-7357

[EXTERNAL] Comment on 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Carmen Bolin <4fourjesus@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:53 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it concerns:

I am half Hispanic and half Anglo American. Having grown up in New Mexico in an Hispanic community, I am very familiar with prejudice (directed at me simply because I was half Anglo).

When distinctions are made based on one's ethnicity and/or skin color, only bad comes of it.

Critical Race Theory is very dangerous, inciting hatred from one race towards another simply because of what race he was born.

I am STRONGLY OPPOSED TO THIS DANGEROUS THEORY being brought into New Mexico classrooms. Let's, instead, work towards unity, where everyone is equal in God's eyes and in the State's eyes.

Thank you,

Carmen Bolin,

2138 Hwy 48

Capitan, NM 88316

575-937-8651/Carmen

[EXTERNAL] Comment on 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Daniel Bolin <danbolinm@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 12:55 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Critical Race Theory is, in fact, a theory, and a bad one.

Do not indoctrinate our children with this hate propaganda.

Dan Bolin

[EXTERNAL] K-12 Social Studies standards (6.29.11 NMAC)

Byron Zahm <coveredabove@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please reject the proposed changes. Let's focus on what brings us together, not what would divide.

Byron Zahm

CoveredAbove@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] comment

john wymore <jdwymore@comcast.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Response to Rep. Rebecca Dow

Two of the genetically inherent characteristics of Homo sapiens are short sightedness and xenophobia. They have endured, deep in our psyche, because of just one thing: safety. Consider short sightedness. To take care of the present situation immediately was a matter of life and death, particularly to offspring. Therefore to give thought to what we might call today collateral damage or to pause and consider perhaps greater benefit in the future almost always was disastrous. There was always a price to pay, later; but it meant nothing as long as off-spring could survive long enough to produce their own issue. So natural selection made us not to even think about it. Thus getting the world's population to confront climate change is extremely difficult. As well as not protecting the Amazon for the sake of its imminent commercial value to an ever increasing population.

Xenophobia helps to accomplish the same thing. Encountering someone not from your tribe or even family was always an uncertain situation. The safest thing was and still is to assume the worst and do what ever it takes to remain safe and most of all protect offspring. So just as with short sightedness it worked to keep babies and care takers alive. Today paranoia is viewed as a mental health issue, but it is still the default position because it is the safest stance. As humans developed social organization the number of Others you could trust grew, and societies even made laws about how Others are to be treated. And that, of course, remains open to interpretation. The result is racism, and the difficulty is the fact that the basic feeling, xenophobia, is inherent. Some societies struggle to overcome it, some still encourage it. Authoritarian leaders are adept at exploiting it. One of the favorite moments in the musical South Pacific is when the song, You Have to Be Taught, was sung. (Many people thought it too progressive) It was once removed from the score, but it has returned and is now cherished. But the assumption within those lyrics is wrong, diametrically wrong. The original assumption was that babies are born "good", sociable, and innocent. Not the case. They are inherently and in a very primitive fashion suspicious and inclined to withdraw into the embrace of the caretaker, often the mother, but that's not required. So one of life's great ironies is that what we have to be taught is to overcome xenophobia and learn good judgement. If not directly confronted by family and society it will endure because, once again, it is the safest for the individual. The irony here is that if not confronted it will tear modern, diverse, societies apart .

I was born in 1932 and graduated from high school in 1950. Could we say that during that time there as a "nation wide movement" to instill racism into the minds of children ? That sounds absurd. Yet during most of that time public schools were segregated — de facto if not by policy. Do you ever wonder what were black children being taught during those years?

For me, from first grade through fourth grade, classes were white as could be. In rural Iowa what would you expect ? I don't recall any thing like history being taught. We were learning the tools — readin', writin', and 'rithmetic. But part of that primary curriculum was learning songs. At that time the Great American Song Book (such a formally designated compilation actually didn't exist yet) consisted to a large extent of the songs of Stephen Foster. This is what I remember and what we sang:

"I can hear those darkies singing, Old Black Joe"

"how my heart goes weary longin' for de ole plantation"

"Camptown races five miles long, do-da-do-da" and also this, which was not Stephen Foster : who is that "they", anyway?)

What a dance do they do

Lordy, how I'm tellin' you

They don't need no band

They keep time by clapping their hand

Just as happy as a cow chewing on its cud

When it's time to beat your feet on the Mississippi Mud.

Times pass and we have Al Jolson in black face singing, Mammy, how I love ya. Finally some time in the 1970s some people had heard of something called Middle Passage which was the appalling voyage from Nigeria to South Carolina. But like CRT most had no knowledge of what it was. Except Randy Newman, who wrote Sail Away.

In America we got food to eat

Dont have to run through the jungle and scuff up your feet

You just sing about Jesus and drink wine all day.

Sail on, sail on, to Charleston Bay.

So much for music which may be the easiest way to instill mindless habits in children and adults. But there was also radio: Rochester on the Jack Benny show (his raspy ingratiating Yeh sir, mista Benny), Amos and Andy with the characters King Fish, Safire, Lighten, which even had a run on TV. Things were changing tho. Remember Sammy Davis Jr planting a kiss right on the mouth of Carrol O'Connor. "Progressives" whooped, conservatives went "Blech"

We finally got over it all. My goodness we've had a black president, two secretaries of state, many senators and representatives, and large corporation CEOs, all with nearly all the various hues of Homo sapien epidermis.

So why is it that we're having George Floyd, Ahmaud Arbery, Black Lives Matter, and "I can't breathe". Police brutality is an issue again. It looked so much like things had changed. But have they? It seems likely as an entry in Wikipedia says "Racism is a result of complex, changing, often subtle and legal issues—as opposed to the prejudice of individuals. So what should we do? Surely there's research and analysis regarding the subject. Indeed. There has been an accumulation of essays, books, academic papers, some of it by agitators and activists. A large body of it accomplished by scholars. What did they find out? Well to really discover that is a gigantic piece of work in itself. What is most certainly true with that large a body of work is that some of it is worthless toward solving the problem, some of it probably essential when pondering practical policy, law and approaches to the problem.

One of the things this huge volume of work reveals was that white people benefited from the presence of a black underclass. Shocking. Capitalism inevitably benefits from any underclass. Cheap labor. Were not slave owners in America white? All of them? It also emerges in the material that an ideology of white supremacy intersects with the presumably unintentional institutional racism. Hardly surprising.

Critics should take the trouble to plow through it and see what there may be of value. Instead many with political loyalties began their criticism with an attack on so-called progressives. That immediately throws shade upon what follows. Rep, Rebecca Dow, for example (Albuquerque Journal Nov 4) claims to want "thorough public debate" after accusing progressives of "hiding the facts" and "engaging in misinformation" and discovers the damning fact CRT ideology stresses "equity" and a "just economic system". Horrors! Then she raises the objection that progressives chant a mantra that the capitalistic system is inherently unfair and must be replaced by socialism. Please, Ms. Dow if you want to be a lawmaker in this country please make yourself aware that capitalism is unfair that's why to make it work it needs to be regulated and socialism has an inclination toward communism that's why to make it work, it, too needs to be regulated. The most successful countries in the world have been those who have managed to develop mixed economies preserving what works and rejecting the insidious qualities that each, capitalism and socialism, possess. That includes us, BTW.

John Wymore
Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Sasha Sanchez <sasha1447@icloud.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I would like to express my desire to see that CRT is NOT taught in our public school system. It is wrong to tell students that our country is divided by skin color, and that systemic racism truly exists. It does not. And it should not be taught to our New Mexican kids who are already so far behind and every other domain. Please consider my opinion as a mother and a school teacher as well.

Respectfully,
Sasha Sanchez

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Link for Zoom Meeting re Social Studies Standards

Carolyn H. Chan <carochan@aol.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:11 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I understand the public hearing regarding Social Studies Standards has been changed to a Zoom meeting on Friday, November 12, 2021. Please provide the link, passcode, and time for the meeting to Fay Yao at fyao@gmail.com and to Carolyn H. Chan at carochan@aol.com

Thank you.

Regards,
Carolyn H. Chan
Past National President
Chinese American Citizens Alliance
(505) 835-5179
carochan@aol.com

[EXTERNAL] Social studies curriculum NM

Tracie Maxey <clmprod@plateautel.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:13 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To PED of NM,

I am very concerned with the direction of our public education system considering we are RANKED 50TH in the country!!! With that pathetic ranking, why is our focus not on math, science, reading, basic finance/business, health, mechanics/welding - subjects necessary to give students knowledge and skills to gain self worth, pride, and confidence to market themselves and get a good job to support a family; as opposed to an entitled, poor me, I'm oppressed, what can I get for free directive that our country and education system has adopted!

When we have had a black President, the richest woman (Oprah) is black, many black millionaire athletes, black doctors, black entrepreneurs, black military leaders(Colin Powell), Sec of State Condoleezza Rice, just to name a few - why don't we use them as examples of role models to inspire and encourage our students to be the best they can be, as opposed to dwelling on a past of slavery/inequality that has long been prohibited and rectified!!

Socialism/Marxism is a recipe for disaster as has been proven in Soviet Union, communist China, Venezuela, Cuba!

If America is not the land of endless opportunities, then why are people from all over the world flooding our borders?? Our students need the tools (solid education not 50TH), encouragement, and guidance, AND definitely not how oppressed they are, goodness gracious such negativity being fed to our youth, in this land of opportunity.

Noteworthy quote from President JFK: "Ask not what your country can do for you - ask what you can do for your country"

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards

Bison <blackcallidyr@protonmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We literally just voted against a bunch of white hating, crt loving, school board candidates who were puppets of the teachers union. How do you respond? Explicit crt instruction in our schools. You're literally a racist, garbage excuse for a human being.

Sent from ProtonMail for iOS

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies Standards

Brian Hill <fifteenfifty@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

There is entirely too much emphasis placed on "identity groups" and those things that divide us. We are already more divided than a healthy society would be. No one is suggesting sugar coating history; by all means provide an accurate representation of the injustices that occurred. This is not an excuse to train children to find differences among themselves today.

Once upon a time I thought parents who home schooled were misfits at best. Never did I imagine I could seriously consider such a path myself, like I am today.

A concerned New Mexico parent,
-Brian Hill

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Mary Lange <mlange_79@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:24 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear New Mexico PED,

I am writing you today to express my family's concern with the new Social Studies standards that have been proposed. Included in these standards are racist, anti American, critical race theory, Marxist indoctrination. In the introduction to these new standards the PED has stated that our children need to be taught this for "the health of our democracy." This statement shows why New Mexico is last in education. We are not a democracy, we are a CONSTITUTIONAL REPUBLIC. Through my research I have found that the New Mexico PED has spent a lot of tax payer money on fulfilling the 10th pillar of communism. The New Mexico PED has paid Attorney General Merrick Garland's Son-in-Law's company, Panorama Education, to survey our children. An example of one of the survey questions include "how often do you feel that you are treated poorly by other students because of your race, ethnicity, gender, family's income, religion, disability, or sexual orientation?" Questions such as these have introduced a very scary and UN-American idea into our children's mind.

As a native New Mexican I have gone through our state's education system. We were taught the good and the bad about history. I fear that with these new standards our children will be taught to look upon their fellow student as the oppressed or oppressor. We have fought a Civil War. We have passed the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which the Democrats opposed. In the New Mexico public education system I was taught not to "judge a person by the color of their skin but by the content of their character." If the PED institutes these standards we will be filling the content of our children's character with poison. They will be taught to put their fellow human beings into categories based on a racist, Marxist, judgmental theory. As a native New Mexican and proud American, it is instilled in us to have respect for the feelings of people no matter what their race, gender, religion, or sexual orientation. It's what America is all about!

Our history is the tie that binds us together. Please do not institute these divisive standards. We will end up with our future New Mexicans diminished and divided, rather than strong and inclusive.

Thank you for your time today,
Mary Lucas

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Angela Walker <anwalker@sfps.k12.nm.us>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:46 PM

To: Feedback, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

It is crucial to the long-term flourishing of New Mexican students and our state as a whole that we adopt the proposed social studies standards.

These standards will prepare New Mexican youth to think critically, to engage in their community, celebrate diversity, be able to bring their whole selves to the classroom, see the interconnectedness of their education and lives, and lead our state through the challenging years ahead.

I believe that the most patriotic of citizens are able to see both the strengths and the flaws of their country, and have a duty to look reality in the face.

Thank you.

Best,

Angie Walker
she/ella
STEM Coordinator
Curriculum & Instruction
Santa Fe Public Schools
(505) 469-3012
anwalker@sfps.k12.nm.us

*Disclaimer: This message and any attachments are intended for the use of the addresses(s) only and may be confidential and/or legally privileged. If the reader is not the intended recipient, DO NOT READ, notify sender and delete this message. In addition, be aware that any disclosure, copying, distribution or use of the contents of this message is strictly prohibited. The contents of this message, while possibly falling under the exceptions of the Inspection of Public Records ACT [NMSA Chapter 14, Article2] may be subject to inspection by the public.

[EXTERNAL] Education Propaganda

Jared Chatterley <jared.chatterley@trinidad.co.gov>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: jlochatterley@gmail.com <jlochatterley@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in opposition to the adoption of the proposed education standards that incorporate elements of Critical Race Theory for 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies. The new language and proposed curriculum changes are blatantly biased, not consistent with truth or historical facts, and in essence are an effort to promote government sponsored propaganda and indoctrination. The rise of a whimsical social movement based on lies and misinformation does not constitute the need to change education curriculum unless it is to expose critical race and other whimsical social theories and movements as a means by which individuals and organizations destabilize governments and societies.

Regards,

Jared Chatterley

Father of 3

Resident, Raton New Mexico

Jared Chatterley

Director

City of Trinidad, Colorado

Office of Outdoor Recreation

719-680-4078

"A little recreation never hurt anyone." -Professor Horace Slughorn

Harry Potter and the Half Blood Prince

TRINIDAD • TRUE OUTDOORS

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Curriculum

Maya Pappler <mayapappler@abhs.k12.nm.us>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED Legislators,

My name is Maya Pappler, I am an 11th grade student at Amy Biehl High School in Albuquerque, New Mexico. My school has very actively taught us different perspectives other than the white history that is generally taught in public schools. Our humanities courses have given us access to LOTS of information and have absolutely given us the space to develop our own opinions and beliefs. We have been taught historical facts not opinions. I am FULLY in support of the proposed social studies curriculum. It is not radical, nor is it indoctrination, to teach us the messy history of our world and country. Students deserve to feel seen in their classrooms. All of us deserve to have our stories told. If you believe it is indoctrinating your children to teach them about the history of people from different backgrounds and walks of life, you need to reconsider what you have been teaching your children. New Mexico (and America) is diverse and the story of our dark past needs to be taught without rose colored lenses.

Thank You

This message contains information, which may be confidential or privileged, and is intended only for the individual or entity named above. It is prohibited for anyone else to disclose, copy, distribute or use the contents of this message. If you received this message in error, please delete immediately and notify the sender.

[EXTERNAL] Changes to 6.29.11 samuel and kerri utnage <utnages@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:53 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

When reviewing the proposed changes to the Social Studies requirements, found in 6.29.11, I found some things of concern that make me opposed to these changes.

First, We are introducing a relatively new concept, commonly referred to as CRT. This concept is not universally accepted and is causing a great disruption in schools across the country. We should learn from this and not repeat this mistake. Our schools need no more disruptions after the last 2 very difficult years. Second, the proposed studies have troublesome material. A common book used for primary aged children is, Not My Idea, a children's book that called racism "a white person's problem and we are all caught up in it". This is not acceptable as it is clearly racist. Any time any group is singled out by the color of their skin it is wrong, but then to blame that group is what leads to hate crimes, or even worse. The NM PED would be responsible for teaching that racism against people that are white is okay and justifiable. Third, CRT is biased-taught from one viewpoint-not a broad look at history.

Please do not change the current way Social Studies is approached in NM.

Thank you,

Sam and Kerri Utnage
4325 Alpine Ct
Las Cruces, NM 88011
(575)551-8234
utnages@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Accept new Social Studies curriculum .. We MUST teach facts of history

Min Kantrowitz <mkainc@aol.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Students must learn to grapple with the difficulties of the past in order to make wise decisions as citizens!

[EXTERNAL] MESD Social Studies Input

Teresa Salazar <teresa.salazar@mesd.us>

Wed 11/10/2021 1:26 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (553 KB)

MESD SS Response.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Deputy Secretary Warniment,
Attached is the MESD feedback on the NM Social Studies Standards.
Respectfully,
T. Salazar

--

Teresa K. Salazar
Superintendent
Moriarty-Edgewood School District
505.832.4471

Confidentiality Notice: This message is intended only for use by the individual or entity to which it is addressed, and may contain information that is privileged, confidential and exempt from disclosure under applicable law. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient, or the employee or agent responsible for delivering the message to the intended recipient, you are notified that any dissemination, distribution or copying of this communication is prohibited.

MESD gathered feedback from teachers in Kindergarten through 12th grade on the draft standards. The goal was to vet the standards through a professional lens and then provide specific feedback with the hopes of providing NMPED with relevant feedback to guide adjustments to the draft standards. MESD was unable to do a deep dive at each grade level due to time constraints.

K-12 General Positive Feedback:

1. The inquiry standards can be integrated easily into other content standards.
2. The inquiry standards could lend themselves to project-based learning.
3. The standards focus on leadership abilities and qualities.
4. The color-coding of the standards makes it easy to differentiate focus.
5. Standards are teacher-friendly and straightforward. Could easily be put into kid-friendly language.
6. There is a strong relationship between community and self. A concept of interdependence.
7. The ease of use is appreciated: simple and straightforward. Teachers can easily identify and understand what they are to teach based on the breakdown of the various sections and standards.
8. The standards place a stronger emphasis on the ideals of civics, civic action, and civic virtue.

K-12 General Concerns:

1. The standards are very general with little specificity and are left open to interpretation.
2. There is a missing emphasis on evaluating founding documents and analysis work.
3. Concerns around the developmental appropriateness of some standards and teaching certain topics in a public school setting. For instance, past injustices may be too difficult to discuss in the classroom due to their sensitive nature and the lack of clarity written into the standards. Other examples include the use of "hypothetical", "othering", and requiring community service.
4. Some standards are not developmentally appropriate in scope and sequence (Inquiry 1.21.1.3- primary and secondary sources)
5. Some of the standards would be better fitted in a health or science course, such as Multi-Identity Interactions (9-12.US 141, 9-12.140, Theme 5 2.27-2.29)
6. K-5 Global Diversity and Identity -Theme 5 addresses topics that are better fitted for Social-Emotional Curriculum and learning.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Sally Davis <sallyhi.d@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:15 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern in the N.M. Public Education Department,

I am a former public school teacher and now a grandmother of one student in A.P.S., with five more grandchildren headed to public school soon.

I fully support the proposed changes to New Mexico's Social Studies standards. I believe the standards will:

- prepare our young people for the world of tomorrow, for a world of global trade and competition, for jobs where teamwork is more important than ever.
- encourage our young people towards positive social interaction. This is important because more of the jobs of the future lie in positive social interaction, as automation depletes production jobs.
- help students develop a spirit of community. That's especially important in a rapidly changing world where ever smarter machines threaten to dominate our lives.
- allow for a diversity of views.
- teach students that understanding of and tolerance towards other cultures is a strength, patriotic and an American ideal.
- show us it's important to be from a place, a people, and a culture. They will help students to study, value, and preserve their own cultural heritage.
- give students knowledge about how to be sociable, how to get along with each other.
- teach about bridge building between groups that have had trouble getting along in the past.
- will strengthen the idea that the most tribal and the most cosmopolitan communities can co-exist.
- will help our students make good economic choices as adults.
- help students develop a better understanding of themselves and each other.
- help our young people create a world where there is room for everyone and each person is valuable to the group and belongs.
- help our young people understand that freedom and the spirit of community can co-exist.
- set a high bar for knowledge and skills in New Mexico students.
- teach important civic values and will help our students be better citizens.

I do not agree with the state Republican Party's charges that the standards:

- Impose a progressive/liberal bias to historical facts
- Indoctrinate students with the "false theology" that our country has systemic racism and inequity and our capitalistic system must be replaced with a socialist system.
- encourage division and victimhood, and fail to teach we are all Americans.
- do not help students realize we all have opportunities for economic advancement.
- fail to teach what has made America great.

Those arguments reveal the willful blindness of the state Republican Party to facts about

- inequality in the U.S. (See Pew Research's 6 Facts about Economic Inequality in the U.S.)
- opportunities for upward mobility in the U.S. (We rank 27th in the world. See here, here and here.)

The standards are a terrific guide for teachers and will create many inspiring lessons. Kudos to all who developed them. In the words of a first grade standard, they have shown "how people work together to accomplish a common task and how this benefits ... people."

Sincerely,

Sally Davis
418 Vassar Dr. NE
Albuquerque, NM 87106
505-273-4752

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies Standards from a students point of view.

RosaMaria Trujillo <rosamariatrujillo@abhs.k12.nm.us>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED and legislators.

I am a student at Amy Biehl High School. As a student, this will affect my learning and impact how I view the world.

We should replace the current Social Studies curriculum due to the fact that our current curriculum is one-sided and doesn't shed much light on what actually happened like the specific details of how sharply colonization changed the lives of Native Americans and Hispanos on this land. It glorifies all the atrocities that have happened in the US (Kit Carson, Juan de Onate, and westward expansion aka Manifest Destiny, for example). If we switch to these new standards then students will be more open-minded, aware of their history, and realize that there's more to the world than just the US and more perspectives inherent in history.

This message contains information, which may be confidential or privileged, and is intended only for the individual or entity named above. It is prohibited for anyone else to disclose, copy, distribute or use the contents of this message. If you received this message in error, please delete immediately and notify the sender.

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico's social studies standards judymc@cybermesa.com <judymc@nets.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I would like to support the efforts to update the social studies standards for New Mexico schools. My daughter attended Santa Fe public schools years ago and was lucky to have some excellent teachers who taught history and civics in a much livelier and engaging way than the textbooks dictate. There were no curriculum standards for the district then, so great teachers were free to challenge their students. Unfortunately, it was not so great for those kids who had teachers who needed more structure.

Too much of what we teach our children seems to be simple one-sided "fairy tales" in the primary grades. From the lack of historical perspective on the American or american story that is evident in public discussion, it appears many received no further or more nuanced education later in elementary or high school. History and social studies at bottom means stories about our past and present so we can understand where we come from and where we are headed. It seems to me that the more stories and more diverse stories that we listen to, the better understanding we might have. I'm certain our kids are discerning enough to deal with multiple points of view and to get more comfortable with the gray areas. And this to me seems more exciting and likely to engage kids in conversation with their teachers, classmates and families.

I am really tired of "sound bites" and slogans being hurled around as if that constitutes some kind of serious public conversation. I hope that you can look beyond that in your deliberations.

Thank you.

Judy McGowan
Santa Fe, NM

[EXTERNAL] social studies standards

Kari Jensen <jensenk.28@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:31 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

To all who have spent countless hours developing these new standards, kudos to you. As a retired middle grades Social Studies teacher, I welcome the changes you have brought forth. Helping students to become inquisitive, informed and active participants in our society is an important and daunting task, but these standards rise to the occasion, with consideration of ethnicity, diversity and inclusiveness . I welcome these updates.

Kari Jensen
Santa Fe

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Deborah Minor <1dlminor@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear John Sena, Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department

I am writing this to you to voice my opinion on the above matter.

I am completely against these proposed policies having read the draft. It appears that is is full of a new form of racism language, anti-capitalism, anti-police, anti-Hispanic (which I am), anti-American (which I am), anti-gun and just as importantly anti-American. Further more the Constitution and The Bill of Rights are NOT a racist document full of "inequities".

Why do you or others want to "shame" children because of past history, teach it yes, but not with the horrible slant that is being proposed.

I shall close this request now, as I do not wish to become angry about this any further.

Regards,
D. Minor
American Citizen

[EXTERNAL] Social studies proposal

Marie Avery <mcaverymonte@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (871 KB)

0117211105.jpg;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My comments coming through tomorrow via fax to the Secretary of State.

Thanks

M Avery

[EXTERNAL] Curricula changes

Elaine Summerhill <jato791@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom It May Concern:

I am opposed to the changes being recommended to the Kindergarten to 12th Grade Social Studies curricula. The proposed changes are racist in origin and I shudder to think how it may make a Hispanic child feel about themselves and their ancestors as it teaches the that Hispanics and Law Enforcement Officers are inherently bad people. Nothing is further from the truth!

Our educational system is already at the bottom of the barrel in national rankings. Our kids deserve better than this. They deserve an education devoid of radical, race based, politics. Perhaps if more time were spent on the three R's and less on this social justice nonsense, our educational ranking would rise and our kids would actually get a better and much deserved education. I object to my tax dollars being spent to teach racism & bigotry.

My only question is how much are you (collective you) getting in kickbacks from those putting this nonsense out there?

Sincerely,

Mrs Elaine Summerhill

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the proposed changes to the social studies curriculum

XAVIER ZUBIATE <XJZ72@msn.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am against implementation of the proposed social studies curriculum changes. These changes will lead to division among students, encourage students to fall into seeing themselves as victims instead of encouraging them to achieve their true potential. We should be lifting our children up, not pushing them to self loathing or seeing themselves as helpless. These changes are a divisive approach to history and are politically charged. The classroom is not the place for pushing politics and political agendas. Our children are already emotionally overwhelmed. Do not add guilt and helplessness to their plates.

Sincerely,
Mary Zubiate

[EXTERNAL] Proposed New "Social Studies" Standards

MICHAEL DICKER <mpdicker@aol.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM PED,

I wish to object to the proposed change to the "social studies" requirements. This pushing to mandate new material for our children that includes divisive ethnic and identity topics is not only counterproductive, but an impediment to national unity.

The standards contain skewed history, promoted to cause division and is producing serious tribalism. The ideology is destructive to our state, our nation, our children's future, and devastating to any stability.

My family is of mixed ethnic origins, yet we only declare ourselves as Americans — ethnicity is not a factor to emphasize — but character is!! I have contacted many parents outside our state who have experienced first-hand the effects of CRT. Not only have their children been subjected to emotional trauma, but also it has caused significant hostile interaction within the various student bodies.

It is not in best interest of this great state of New Mexico to proceed with the proposed focus on ethnic and identity topics — we are all Americans — who make up the greatest nation on the planet - we cannot afford to continue to divide the nation. Let's get off this self-destructive bandwagon and off the ethnic and identity focus — we can do better than that.

I recommend that we drop this effort and revert back to the previous standard. If we are to rewrite the standard, we should by all means eliminate the ethnic and identity topics at a minimum.

Respectfully,

Michael Dicker, Parent and Concerned

Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Curriculum Changes

Kelley Pounds <kelleypounds@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 2:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a concerned grandparent whose three grandchildren, who are Latino/white, attend school in New Mexico. I am also a lover of history, and I have personally studied New Mexico history extensively. I understand that no matter which country's history we study, there are good and bad issues to address, some of which can be very sensitive and hurtful. However, I believe in teaching whole history, both good and bad, in the context of the people living at the time, and not from a perspective that pits one present-day group of people against another. The current trend in teaching social studies and history seems to be one which designates some students as victims and some as oppressors based on their connection to specific ethnic groups, and this trend unfairly stigmatizes United States history as primarily aggressive and suppressive. This is a one-sided and divisive approach that perpetuates cultural wounds and can make children feel negatively about themselves. I do not believe this current trend, which is attached to critical race theory, is what our children need. A whole-history approach--taught with understanding and empathy for all--is a much better way to empower all students in their learning of social studies and history.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Kelley Pounds
Corona, New Mexico

FW: Letter regarding social study standards

Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (90 KB)

Scanned from a PED Xerox.pdf;

-----Original Message-----

From: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Sent: Wednesday, November 10, 2021 2:44 PM

To: Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: Letter regarding social study standards

FYI

-----Original Message-----

From: Constantine, Consuelo, PED <Consuelo.Constantine@state.nm.us>

Sent: Wednesday, November 10, 2021 2:43 PM

To: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Subject: Letter regarding social study standards

Good day, John -

I hope all is well. Attached please find three letter that came today regarding social study standards.

Thank you,

Consuelo M. Constantine | Executive Assistant Office of the Secretary

300 Don Gaspar Ave. | Santa Fe, NM 87501

C: (505) 309-2801 | Main: (505) 827-6452 Check us out here: NMPED

EQUITY • EXCELLENCE • RELEVANCE

-----Original Message-----

From: PEDxerox@state.nm.us <PEDxerox@state.nm.us>

Sent: Wednesday, November 10, 2021 2:42 PM

To: Constantine, Consuelo, PED <Consuelo.Constantine@state.nm.us>

Subject: Scanned from a PED Xerox

Please open the attached document. It was sent to you from PED

1292 of 2909

6.29.11_Exhibit_0727

Attachment File Type: pdf, Multi-Page

Multifunction Printer Location: Apodaca Bldg 1st Floor South

Multifunction Printer Name: 1st_Floor_South_ALC8055

Public comment in support of the:

Newly drafted K-12 Social Studies Standards 2021

To whom this concerns,

Passing up-to-date, comprehensive and equity-based social studies curricular standards will improve social studies education for all New Mexico students while encouraging critical thinking and exploration of important history and systems in New Mexico, the United States, and the world. The state of New Mexico has demonstrated courage in developing standards in a controversial academic arena that will ultimately encourage civil engagement in a polarized society. The new standards incorporate concepts centering on social justice, tribal sovereignty and sustainable futures that will help protect our children, neighbors and future.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Giselle Piburn', with a large, stylized initial 'G' and a long, sweeping underline.

Giselle Piburn

Santa Fe, NM

Public comment in support of the:

Newly drafted K-12 Social Studies Standards 2021

To whom this concerns,

11/8/21

Passing up-to-date, comprehensive and equity-based social studies curricular standards will improve social studies education for all New Mexico students while encouraging critical thinking and exploration of important history and systems in New Mexico, the United States, and the world. The state of New Mexico has demonstrated courage in developing standards in a controversial academic arena that will ultimately encourage civil engagement in a polarized society. The new standards incorporate concepts centering on social justice, tribal sovereignty and sustainable futures that will help protect our children, neighbors and future.

Sincerely,

Daniel S. Piburn

 11/10/21

Santa Fe,
New Mexico

State of New Mexico

Department of Education

Santa Fe, NM

To Whom It May Concern:

As a parent, a retired classroom teacher, and Director of Curriculum, I am very concerned about the proposed revision of the Social Studies guideline and curriculum. Let me remind you that we are supposed to teach students how to think objectively, not what to think. We are not supposed to interject our political and cultural biases into our classrooms.

In Social Studies we teach about the world as it is, the geography and where it is, regions of the world and where they are and what they look like, history as it really happened (not how we wish it had happened), continents, countries and how they are alike and different, governments and the correct terms to describe how they operate and other factual information.

It is my opinion and what I was always careful to remember that political views and cultural customs and religion were the values taught by parents and the family. We expect educators to instruct our students as equal individuals no matter what they look like, or what culture they represent, or any other differences they may have. We are all American citizens and we should not be trying to be divisive, we should be trying to educate students to be knowledgeable, responsible, contributing future citizens of our country.

126 pages of guidelines is too detailed, too many, too long, and does not allow for schools and communities to have much say in the curriculum presented to their students. It is my hope that you will edit the proposed guidelines to be what they are supposed to be: guidelines. Be careful not to overstep your authority and forget the actual purpose for these guidelines.

Please consider all the parents, students, and teachers of New Mexico. Do the right thing.

Camille George - Flores

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Kathy Cooksey <kathy@ronnykathy.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

CRT is racist, Marxist, and dangerous. It hurts children and should never be required in schools!--

"A happy marriage is the union of two good forgivers." -- Ruth Bell Graham

www.sandiabaptist.org

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards

Dennis O'Toole <dodotoole09@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena,

November 10, 2021

I'm writing in strong support of the newly drafted New Mexico social studies standards, 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. Decades ago I began my career as a public historian teaching American history to high school students in a Boston suburb. Much has changed since then -- history happens, as they say -- and the teaching of American history in our schools and popular culture has hugely changed as well. But these draft standards not only show that the committee that put them together has kept abreast of major changes in the American scene and in New Mexico but have also identified the most pertinent content areas and thinking skills needed by student citizens today.

If I were teaching U.S.history at the high school level today, I would welcome the standards for the way they are articulated and dig into the fifteen theme areas with enthusiasm. They make the teacher's responsibility for organizing lesson plans, identifying the most pertinent teaching materials, and testing and guiding students in their individual development easier to focus on. They will, in short, prove to be highly useful.

Our schools should aim to educate engaged citizens who know how to find and interrogate sources, respect and understand those culturally different from themselves, and listen carefully and think for themselves. These proposed standards, should they become the rules of social studies instruction and be adopted widely across our state, will take us a long way toward achieving these fundamental educational goals.

Yours,

Dennis O'Toole

Santa Fe, NM

dodotoole09@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] No CRT or 1619 project for NM schools ernie.01@comcast.net <ernie.01@comcast.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:20 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Teach, not indoctrinate students.

It is my hope and expectation that decisions will be made based on what is best for ALL students in New Mexico schools in order to promote higher level thinking and rigorous learning. Thank you for your thoughtful consideration of my feedback. This feedback is also attached as a document for convenience. Please feel free to contact me.

Respectfully submitted,

Lori Rogers
505-228-8842

There is only one you!

Create your personalized and precise plan by completing a short assessment: Meology Assessment

Health and Wellness Educator,
CEO and Founder
Health and Wellness by Lori
Shaklee Independent Distributor

Showing people simple steps that yield great results toward reaching optimum health and wellness is my passion. I build relationships ~ I don't want to walk alongside someone for a day, but for a lifetime.

Start your wellness journey by going to my website or contacting me!

Health and Wellness by Lori

"Be kinder than necessary, for everyone you meet is fighting some kind of battle."

Thank you to the group of educators who served to develop the draft of the standards. It is an intense and daunting process. Thank you as well for the opportunity to provide feedback regarding the proposed changes to New Mexico Social Studies Standards.

I served 28 years in public education Pre-K - 12th Grade in New Mexico in various roles including Teacher, Instructional Coach, Principal, and Director of Instruction and Accountability. During my tenure in public education, I served in a leadership role in implementing and assessing Standards Based Instruction. I respectfully submit the following feedback regarding the proposed changes to New Mexico Standards - repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Feedback on specific standards includes standards that are well written and promote critical thinking, complexity of cognitive processes - Depth of Knowledge Levels 3 and 4 addressed, and concepts which are balanced. Additionally feedback includes concerns regarding standards that are not balanced, are leading, biased, subjective, and can not be measured and/or assessed objectively. When instructors and instructional leaders look at data to improve instruction, the data needs to be solid in order to maximize the opportunity for learning.

Performance Standard:

2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad.

Feedback:

How will this standard be measured or assessed?

Performance Standard:

3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.

Feedback:

How will this standard be measured or assessed?

Performance Standard:

4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people's lives and experiences without judgment.

Feedback:

How will this standard be measured or assessed?

Performance Standard:

5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.

Feedback:

What is a "main identity group"? How is "main identity group" defined? Who determines what a "main identity group" is?

Performance Standard:

5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

Feedback:

How are the groups of people referred to determined?

How will this standard be measured or assessed?

Performance Standards:

- 6.5. Identify where and how to locate sources to best answer a research question
- 6.6. Distinguish among fact, opinion, and reasoned judgement in a source. Identify the author's/ authors' perspectives and possible biases.
- 6.7. Identify inherent bias in maps.
- 6.8. Evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
- 6.9. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question
- 6.10. Support a claim using a variety of sources and perspectives
- 6.11. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources.
- 6.12. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic.

Feedback:

Promotes critical thinking particularly in the areas of identifying biases and evaluating credibility. Complexity of cognitive processes included - Depth of Knowledge Levels 3 and 4.

Performance Standards:

- 7.5. Analyze various forms of media to identify polarizing language, logical fallacy, and reasonable judgment.
- 7.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.

Feedback:

Promotes critical thinking.
Complexity of cognitive processes included - Depth of Knowledge Levels 3 and 4.

Performance Standard:

- 8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.

Feedback:

What is the reason for the focus on an individual being limited by belonging to a group (ie. identity group)?
Why is the standard limited to negative perceptions? This is leading.
How will positive perceptions be addressed?

Performance Standard:

- 8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally and engaging in positive civic behaviors in classrooms, schools, and the broader community.

Feedback:

Does this include positive and negative stereotypes? If not, it is leading.

Performance Standard:

8.89. Examine both sides in debate or academic discussion of politics in response to immigration.

Feedback:

Does this standard included legal and illegal immigration? If so it is balanced and promotes critical thinking by looking at all sides of an issue. If not, it should include both as omission of the relevant information eliminates the opportunity for critical thinking and complexity of cognitive processes such as Depth of Knowledge Levels 3 and 4.

Performance Standard:

9-12.Geo.27 Make reasoned ethical judgments about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determine appropriate ways to respond.

Feedback:

Ethical judgments and appropriate ways to respond by whose standards?
How will this standard be measured or assessed?

Performance Standard:

9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.

Feedback:

Biased language - What about the history of knives, fists, swords, etc. as compared to other world powers and the consequences of knife, fist, sword, etc violence on American society past, present, and future?

Performance Standard:

9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.

Feedback:

Omission of relevant information - does this standard address anti-illegal immigrants or anti-legal immigrant sentiment? It should be both. Omission of the relevant information eliminates the opportunity for critical thinking and complexity of cognitive processes such as Depth of Knowledge Levels 3 and 4.

Performance Standard:

9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.

Feedback:

Biased language - Why are Native Americans and African Americans singled out?

Performance Standard:

9-12.US.140. Analyze US government policies to reduce climate disruption.

Feedback:

How will science be incorporated during analysis?
Opportunity for critical thinking and complexity of cognitive processes through the use of multiple sources for information.

Performance Standard:

9-12.US.141. Compare and Contrast the response and plan of the US government during the Covid-19 pandemic with the AIDS epidemic and the 1918 influenza.

Feedback:

How will science be incorporated during analysis?

Opportunity for critical thinking and complexity of cognitive processes through the use of multiple sources for information.

How will a situation that is still in progress be compared to past responses?

HS World History - Sample Topics by Time Period:

1945–Future: Global Interconnections Accelerate (Topics may include but are not limited to Nuclear Age, United Nations, Universal Declaration of Human Rights, NATO, Space Age, Apartheid, Fall of Soviet Union, Globalization, Information Age, Social Media, Nationalism, Global Influence (U.S.A, China, Russia), International Unions (EU, AU, USAN, ACD), Economic Growth of the Global South, War on Drugs, War on Terror, Rwandan Genocide, September 11th, Afghanistan War, Iraq War, Arab Spring, Great Recession, Equity Movements, Climate Change, Indigenous Environmentalism, Green Revolution, Greenbelt Movement, Paris Agreement, Covid-19 Pandemic, WHO, NAFTA/CUSMA, etc)

Feedback:

How will science and data from multiple sources be incorporated?.

Opportunity for critical thinking and complexity of cognitive processes through the use of multiple sources for information.

Performance Standards:

9-12.WH.2 Evaluate the credibility of sources from a range of media (print, internet, audio, visual) by examining origin, author, context, content, and corroborative value.

9-12.WH.3. Gather relevant information from credible sources representing a wide range of views and note inconsistencies in the information.

9-12.WH.4 Develop claims and analyze counterclaims about the significance of historical events using evidence that draws directly and substantively from multiple sources.

9-12.WH.5. Analyze evidence to detect inconsistencies within the evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims.

Feedback:

Opportunity for critical thinking and complexity of cognitive processes if origin, author, context, etc is discussed and how it can impact view/perspective in reporting.

Performance Standards:

9-12.WH.33. Investigate cultural and historical developments within societies with attention to belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology.

9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.

9-12.WH.35 Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.

9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.

9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

Feedback:

Is this designed to target a specific group(s)?

Language is biased and leading.

Performance Standard:

9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.

Feedback:

Is this designed to target a specific group(s)?

Language is biased and leading.

Performance Standard:

9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

Feedback:

What about the cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language those assimilating offer to a group to which they are assimilating? Is it all a loss? What are the benefits those assimilating offer?

Language is biased and leading - implies those assimilating are less than and have nothing to offer.

New Mexico students deserve robust opportunities for learning which include critical thinking as well as opportunities for higher level thinking. We have a unique opportunity to increase the level for which students analyze, discuss, and apply learning in critical areas of learning. In order to maximize the learning opportunities standards should be balanced, objective, and measurable.

It is my hope and expectation that decisions will be made based on what is best for ALL students in New Mexico schools in order to promote higher level thinking and rigorous learning. Thank you for your thoughtful consideration of my feedback. This feedback is also attached as a document for convenience. Please feel free to contact me.

Respectfully submitted,

Lori Rogers
505-228-8842

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed rule 6.29.11

Anita Statman <anita@gopnm.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Robert Aragon <robert@gopnm.org>; Steve Pearce <steve@gopnm.org>

 1 attachments (426 KB)

RPNMtoPED3.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached please find the comments from the Republican Party of New Mexico. We will be in attendance on zoom Friday at 1pm to testify.

Regards,

Anita Statman

Vice Chair for Congressional District 3

Republican Party of New Mexico

Anita@gopnm.org

505-490-0141

Newmexico.GOP

Facebook.com/Republican Party of

New Mexico

November 10, 2021

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Comments on the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

Mr. Robert Aragon, first Vice President of the Republican Party of New Mexico will present our public testimony on Friday, November 12th.

On behalf of the Republican Party of New Mexico I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only two choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.

3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of “justice and fairness,” unequal power relations, “past and current injustices,” although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)
4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)
5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)
7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)
8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)
9. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)
10. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)
11. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Anita Statman". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first name "Anita" and last name "Statman" clearly legible.

Anita Statman,
Vice Chair for Congressional District NM-3
Republican Party of New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Comments on 6.64.20 ruling

Celia Einhorn <celia.einhorn@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Celia Einhorn, Supercomputing Challenge, here

I wonder

If the meeting in Marby Hall can be Zoomed and recorded?

If the committee has had discussions with state CS and education departments...wouldn't it be wonderful if they could collaborate on a couple of courses?

If the Supercomputing Challenge is considered an endorsed professional development?

I love seeing this endeavor as it is a long time coming

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed rule 6.29.11

Anita Statman <anita.sffrw@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: a_e_doherty@yahoo.com <a_e_doherty@yahoo.com>

📎 1 attachments (423 KB)

SFFRWtoPED.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached, please find the comments from the Santa Fe Federated Republican Women.

Regards,

Anita Statman

President, Santa Fe FRW

Regional Director, Northern New Mexico, NMFRW

Executive Committee NMFRW

1225 Parkway Dr, Suite C, Santa Fe, NM 87502

505-490-0141

www.SantaFeFRW.com

_@Statman_Anita

anita.sffrw@gmail.com

November 8, 2021

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

RE: Comments on the Proposed Social Study Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

Ms. Anne Doherty, Education Committee Chair of the Santa Fe Federated Republican Women will present our public testimony on Friday, November 12th. Please advise as to the process and time.

On behalf of the Santa Fe Federated Republican Women I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights laws by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

Specifically, I urge Michelle Lujan-Grisham's NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action, and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepare students for life after school.

Here are a handful of the most egregious new standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only two choices. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.

3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of “justice and fairness,” unequal power relations, “past and current injustices,” although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)
4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)
5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)
7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)
8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)
9. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)
10. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)
11. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement back the blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms, our military, or in our country. We emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

You may reach me at anita.sffrw@gmail.com or 505-490-0141 regarding providing testimony.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Anita Statman". The signature is written in a cursive style with a large, stylized initial "A".

Anita Statman, President
Santa Fe Federated Republican Women &
Regional Director of Northern New Mexico, New Mexico Federated Republican Women

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Curriculum

Katie Hammack <katie_hammack@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good Afternoon,

I am writing this email to object to, in the most strenuous way possible, the proposed changes to the Social Studies curriculum for our New Mexico students.

I have read over the proposals and find that this subject matter is far more suited to a collegiate elective course than to a High School curriculum.

I do not object to having our students think critically about problems our nation faces, but they are better able to learn and discuss this reasonably at an older age.

I also do not agree that these are the issues that need to be discussed regarding our nation's history or current events. The far left ideology being pushed by these conversations is totally inappropriate. True history should be taught and our children should learn from both it's successes and it's failures.

Perhaps some examples of the evils of communism/socialism could be addressed so they can see how truly abhorrent your ultimate agendas are.

Sincerely,

Katie Hammack
Mother of a Student Who Will Not Be Taught This Trash!

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies changes and CRT

Jan Smith <jazzy10188@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Moore (Dr.), Kenneth "Ken" <kenneth.moore@alamogordoschools.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have reviewed this proposal and offer the following:

1. There is a very heavy teaching of world history through out all the grades.
2. United States history is very light and is intermingled with world history.
3. New Mexico history is so intermingled with world history that it is hard to tell where one leaves off and the other begins.
4. There is no instruction pertaining to the Declaration of Independence, Bill of Rights and the Constitution of the United States. These are the basics of our country.
5. History as well as other areas is almost all about the Civil War, slavery and group and gender identity. There is no balance.
6. There is actually instruction within concerning redesign of the Constitution and political institutions. This does not belong at all. It is purely political in nature.
7. The United States of America is a republic not a democracy and if one would teach the the Declaration of Independence, Bill of Rights and the Constitution, one would see this. The difference between the two should be taught.
8. The proposal is not clear about what would be taught about the levels of government from local to national, how they are elected, the process, the difference of the three branches of the national government, what they do, how bills are made, the process of passing them to the other branches and of course the Supreme Court.
9. I realize that when our President of the United States rejoined the Paris Climate Accord, that we also are bound to follow the United Nations Directives as to education of our children which includes teaching how to protest when those around them will not join in the Climate Change agenda they want. This is made clear in each and every level, from 1st grade through 12th grade, by this "applying a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts." And, "Human-environmental interactions and sustainability by assessing how social, economic, political and environmental developments at global, national, regional or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures." This is purely political and does not belong in our education system. We can teach our children to be critical thinkers without teaching them when and how to protest when they don't get their way.
10. Gender identity, personal identity and group identity do not belong here.
11. In short, this policy is heavy on world government and history and does not teach American History or Civics that would be helpful for our children living in these United States of America. After all, we are Americans and deserve a better policy in teaching our history.
12. Systemic oppression, why are we teaching this. Yes we had slavery, several different peoples came here as slaves and indentured salves but thankfully we have been consistently working out of that for many years. This should be taught as part of our history.
14. History and geography are important, but should be taught so that we have a basis of learning from the mistakes.
15. I think we can do better than this and give our children a good education without ramming incomplete global history down their throats.
16. This policy leaves so many openings for CRT to be taught on the sly as well as openly.

I have made comment concerning CRT to Dr. Moore of Alamogordo Public Schools and he asked me to please share my comments with you. Those comments follow:

"I am expressing my disapproval of any kind of or resemblance of this theory to be taught at any level of education in our schools. I see no good outcome of this teaching. I see that the only outcome will be installing racism within our children which will continue upward and outward into our families and community. Why in the world would we pit our children against each other, against moms and dads, against siblings. Why would we want any of our children to think of themselves as being less because of their skin color. Why would we want our children to think of themselves as bullies because of their skin color. Why would we, how dare we, and shame on us for even thinking this is a way to teach children of any age.

If your goal is to make our schools top in the nation, this CRT theory is the one way that will keep us from reaching that goal. When I attended APS, we were top in the nation as far as education. We did that by teaching reading, writing and math along with science, history, geography, and civics. We were taught to be critical thinkers.

Our children are frustrated, bored and angry. They are tired of going over and over the same information that they have been over and learning for years. There is more to education than teaching to the test. Children crave learning new things. Challenge them, don't social engineer their hearts and confuse them. Let our children have the opportunity to become educated, not socially engineered to have a dark heart.

Thank you for this opportunity to voice my displeasure and concern. If I can be of any help to you, please do not hesitate to contact me."

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Jan Smith
1708 Snow Drive
Alamogordo, NM 88310
575-415-7520

[EXTERNAL] Crital Race Theory

Rebecca Johnston <rajohnston7@icloud.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 3:55 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am a retired New Mexico teacher, having taught elementary special education, 4th grade & 5th grade, & high school special education for a total of 28 years. I am strongly against teaching Critical Race Theory in our schools. We need to teach the basics, as well as the history of your country & the world.

Please take this under consideration.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Johnston

[EXTERNAL]

Kimberlee Aguilar <kimberleeaguilar@icloud.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 4:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We oppose critical race theory being taught to children in the education system
Robert and Kimberlee Aguilar.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies public comment

Christina Herrera Furst <chfurst@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 4:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED and legislators,

I have taught high school history for thirteen years and teach my students how to think critically, not what to think.

That means providing them with multiple viewpoints and so they can make their own informed opinions. That means teaching them how to evaluate credibility and reliability of sources, and, with something like this public comment activity, the importance of reading through the standards before they try to develop an opinion.

I support my children and my students learning to consider how others were affected by decisions made in the past. I support my children and students learning how to see beyond their own experiences and identities and consider the perspectives of those who are different from them (whether that be people of a different religion, ethnic group, racial group, sexual orientation, etc.).

As humans, identity plays a huge role in how we interact with others and the choices we make. To ignore that fact is disingenuous. Identity and power dynamics have been mobilizing forces throughout history. That's a fact. To ignore that fact and purposely omit it from the dialogue and standards is irresponsible and puts politics ahead of teaching kids how to think critically. These young people will be making decisions in just a few short years--shouldn't we let them practice these vital democratic skills before they are asked to do so as voting adults?

I have read through and support adoption of the new standards.

Thank you,
Christina Herrera Furst
Social Studies/Humanities teacher at Amy Biehl High School
2021 Finalist for NM Teacher of the Year

(I do not see evidence that many of the dissenting commenters have read the actual standards. While critical race theory is repeated, I have not seen any reference to a specific standard that they take issue with.)

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies changes

Melinda Lewis <melindaabq@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 4:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The idea that teaching the truth about white Europeans decimating Native populations and the truth about the existence of slavery and all its abuses is "politicizing" history is utter nonsense. Some Anglos and Hispanics just don't want to acknowledge the relationship among the races and the privilege that we Whites have enjoyed, including the teaching of a very slanted view of history, up until now. The PED should approve changes that teach a more accurate, factual, and culturally aware version of history and economics.

Melinda J. Lewis (she/her)
10017 La Paz Dr NW
Albuquerque, NM 87114

505-255-7637--home (landline with answering machine)
505-506-5966--cell

"If a dog will not come to you after having looked you in the face, you should go home and examine your conscience." Woodrow Wilson

[EXTERNAL] Re: SS Standards

Lee White <whitel@lovingschools.org>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am sharing some feedback that our social studies teachers have shared with me.

History is defined as a chronological record of, the subject matter of, a branch knowledge of significant events, natural phenomena, or explanation of past events that defines history. However, imparting the knowledge (teaching) of history involves more than just content knowledge. The proposed new standards for New Mexico fall somewhat short in truly defining what should be definitively taught, without such a definition oftentimes leads to opinions being infused. History, is just that, a factual account of past events. As educators, we believe the facts must be shared in an impartial, neutral way in which the audience is afforded the opportunity to understand the impacts that these events have had over time.

Furthermore, we feel that New Mexico has played an important role throughout the history of North America and the impacts that have occurred are noteworthy enough to be included and not left to opinion or options, examples of such events are the use of Navajo Code Talkers, the Bataan Death March and the Manhattan Project. These events deserve to be readily shared with every student in New Mexico, as well as the rest of the country to highlight their overall significance. The new standards do not identify them and thus, would be left to chance by teachers who value their importance.

Overall, the wording throughout the new standards remains vague and left for interpretation. Thus, will some teachers impart knowledge that is beyond the mental and social development of the student for the grade level that they are assigned? We recognize that a scripted resource is not appropriate, nor is it feasible, so we feel that the committee's recommendations of the use of "power standards" should be considered to ensure that a proper scope and sequence can be properly formulated.

We feel as though additional time is needed to appropriately review the standards and implement quality changes that are age appropriate. Updating standards should be considered, but adequate time must be provided to ensure that the intent and implementation is readily apparent to every stakeholder.

Lee White
Superintendent
Loving Municipal Schools
(575) 745-2010
(575) 745-2002 (Fax)
whitel@lovingschools.org (email)
Providing students the skills to thrive!
I'm All In!

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Rule Feedback

Kenneth W. Bewley <kbewley@risd.k12.nm.us>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:02 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (16 KB)

Professional Development Plus Delta on S.S.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

These are not general comments.

These are the notes taken during an all-day session of social studies teachers with specific notations and suggestions.

Confidentiality Notice: This e-mail, including all attachments, is for the sole use of the intended recipient(s) and may contain confidential and privileged information as defined under FERPA. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure or distribution is prohibited unless specifically provided under the New Mexico Inspection of Public Records Act. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender and destroy all copies of this message.

ELEMENTARY

POSITIVES

CONCERNS

Standards and topics give students more of a global perspective as opposed to a more local perspective

- Inquiry based standards tie into already taught Reading and Writing ELA standards
- Standards and topics are continued throughout the different grade levels
- Geography standards (5.24, 5.25, 5.27) are written specifically and give teachers the directive to effectively lesson plan
- Standards are easy to cite

Some standards are too big to grasp for the grade level they are in (ex: Inquiry 26: K.4: Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems)

- Some of these standards are too wordy or not grade level appropriate
- Wording needs to be the same or very similar for each grade level, instead of changing the wording so much
- Some of the upper elementary grade standards should be taught BEFORE some of the lower level standards (aka, the 3 branches of government should be taught before how some other governments work)
- Standards are too broad, with no direction for teachers on what to focus on specifically (ex: Theme 2: 3.14: Explain how world events impact New Mexico and the US, both in the past and today)—How does that fit into Global Immigration and Migration? What is the time frame for past and today? What specific world events?
- Doesn't give students enough of a basis for certain topics (like US government) for middle and high school teachers to build on
- Connecting the different levels of verbiage used in order to build on each other
- Theme's don't connect to the performance standards that are under them
- Some standards are not measurable (ex: 3.27)
- No way to spiral backwards like ELA and Math because the topics and themes jump around too much
- Need more built in review

MIDDLE SCHOOL

Positives

Tends to focus more on philosophical and social shifts in “ways of thinking” during historical periods.

Example: 6.37, 6.40, 6.44

- Allows for a deeper examination into world religion.

Ex: 6.54, 6.44

- Greater examination into global economics. Ex: several strands on trade

- Introduces an opportunity to cover Meso-America

Concerns

Many standards are horribly vague and leave entirely too much room for interpretation. Ex: “6.36. Evaluate the factors that allowed classical civilizations to thrive”... This standard is attempting to cover a massive period of time that includes potentially dozens of civilizations.

- Although it introduces Meso-America, there are no clear guidelines on what should be covered

- There is a massive shift away from the “civilization” model, which leaves many uncertainties on which civilizations to use as examples. This is seen in 6.31 and 6.32 where the prompt is asking is describes aspects of “Eastern” and “Western” societies. Many civilizations covered either do not fit in this mold (Egyptian society has both “Western” and “Eastern” cultural/political traits), or could possibly be replaced due to having similar “Eastern” themes (discussing only China and not Mongolia, for example).

- Several standards are labeled as being color-coded to “Geography”, yet they are not geography related standards. These are 6.26, 6.27, and potentially 6.50.

- Little focus on social structures, day-to-day happenings of ancient societies, and a seemingly complete removal of “historical persons”.

Standards are vague and are up to interpretation of the teacher example Current injustices, injustices by who, social identities

Teaching identity and about modifying identity by personal choice or external forces

The constitution and three branches of government are missing

Concern of Civil war standards. These should be rewritten.

Students are missing out on vital information that is currently being taught successfully. World Geography has completely been removed as a focus, and this is something that students desperately require. They come to 7th grade with little to no knowledge of the world outside of what is comfortable and familiar. This is why students need World Geography.

	Students must also learn about completely necessary topics that is currently taught in 8th grade U.S. History. They will be missing out on the early colonial period, the Constitution, Declaration of Independence, branches of government, Louisiana Purchase, and more.
--	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

HIGH SCHOOL

Positives

Concerns

	After reviewing the new standards being presented, it is evident that they are vague, and lacking in vital information that is currently being taught, and controversial. History is teaching the facts of the past. As teachers, it is not our jobs to influence the student perspectives, but to allow the student to analyze information and form their own conclusions. These new standards are forcing a socio-political agenda on our students, and expecting us to be the ones to implement it. These necessary topics will be replaced by a push towards social identity that is vague and subjective in nature. We simply wish to teach students the vital information about history and culture that is objectively true, and allow students to form their own opinions on this information. We want students to walk away from our classrooms feeling informed by truth and a greater understanding of the outside world. Throughout the standards are repetitive examination, and investigations, on cultural, economic, political, social factors, religious, gender. Question is where to start, in reference to timeframe. We could make an entire class of the Korean and Vietnam Wars. All minorities and woman rights took place not just Native Americans within our state. Value is relative. It is hard to tell someone what their culture is. We do not like this as we have done family history reports and students/parents complain that they need to discuss their family problems...i.e. dad is in jail, mom left the
--	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

	family so we decided not to do the family history reports any longer 3 Branches of government has been removed, there is just a focus on local and state government.
--	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Questions:

1. High School Geography – would this be expected to be its own class, or could they merge the geography into the various histories they connect with? How are they going to make sure they geography gets taught when it doesn't now in most classrooms?
 2. Ethnic, Cultural, & identity studies – Is this expected to be its own course? As noted above this could replace Sociology – many of the same ideas
- With no curriculum or textbook adoption, how are we going to make sure teachers are all hitting the same standards with the same material and content

[EXTERNAL] Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Revisions

Jennifer Timme <jennifer.timme@carlsbadschools.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Washburn, Gerry C. <gerry.washburn@carlsbadschools.net>

📎 1 attachments (105 KB)

CMS Proposed SS Standards Revisions (1).pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide feedback on possible edits and revisions in regards to the proposed new social studies standards. As a district, we conveyed a team that included representatives from the different grade bands in order to look at the vertical alignment and the cross curricular expectations, as well as grade level appropriateness of the standard. In some cases, we have recommended a more neutral language.

We appreciate the opportunity to have input in the process and to continue to be involved in developing standards that impact instruction and ultimately knowledge and achievement of our students.

Sincerely,
Jennifer Timme
Curriculum and Instruction Team

Jennifer Timme
Director of Curriculum & Instruction
575.706.5336
Carlsbad Municipal Schools
jennifer.timme@carlsbadschools.net

Teamwork Makes the Dream Work!!

This is a staff email account managed by Carlsbad Municipal Schools. This email, including any attachments, is for the sole use of the intended recipient(s) regarding the business of the Carlsbad Municipal Schools and may contain confidential and privileged information protected by federal and state law. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure, or distribution is prohibited. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender by reply email and destroy all copies of the original message.

Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Standards Edits and Revisions

Proposed Draft Standard	Proposed Change/Edit Rationale
K
Inquiry 22: Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions K.1- Recognize a compelling question. K.2- Identify the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.	In review of the current ELA standards, they are not asked to do this until first grade RL 1.1. In Kindergarten RL.K.1 reads with prompting and support that they ask and answer questions. Concerned they are not cognitively ready for the way the proposed standard is written. A similar standard was written in 7th grade and explained “compelling question” as a big idea. It seems more appropriate to describe “big ideas” in kinder than work towards “compelling questions.”
Economics 8: K.17 Explain what scarcity is and how scarcity affects the accessibility of goods and services.	Vocabulary (scarcity) is not grade appropriate for kindergarten.
1st
Inquiry 22: 1.1 Explain why a compelling question is important.	RL 1.1 students are just taught to recognize a question. Rewrite more simply: Explain why a question is important.
Inquiry 23: 1.3 Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.	Compared to ELA standards, students learn about sources in 3rd grade. Even then, they are not asked to differentiate between primary and secondary.
Inquiry 26: 1.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and or global problems.	Take group or individual action to help address local problems.
Inquiry 26: 1.6 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.	Change vocabulary to grade appropriate cognitive abilities. State more simply.
Historical 16: 1:10 Compare fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past.	Identify fact and opinion in stories and narratives. Students are just learning facts and opinions and narratives.
2nd
Inquiry 23: 2.3 Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.	These are 3rd grade ELA standards.
Geography 11: 2.23 Compare the human and physical characteristics of two regions in the US.	If comparing, it should include living things, i.e. habitat and food chain ideas which are more basic, then build to political systems, religions, etc. The students have not been taught what is in a region yet.
Ethnic Cultural, and Identity Studies 21: 2.28 Describe	Describe ways we are similar and different from other ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.	people.

Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Standards Edits and Revisions

3rd
Inquiry 23:3.1 Identify disciplinary ideas associated with a compelling question.	Identify civic, economic, geographical and historical ideas as they relate to a compelling question.
Inquiry 23:3.3 Determine the credibility of one source.	Please compare the expectation of this standard, which is grade appropriate, to the expectation of “source” questions in earlier grades that are more advanced. Need to vertically align the expectations to the “source” questions to be more grade level appropriate.
5th
Inquiry 25: 5.5 With teacher direction, construct responses to compelling questions supported by reasoning and evidence.	Would like to see earlier questions regarding compelling questions to be written with the “teacher directed” This addresses the cognitive and skill ability vertical alignment addressed in previous standards.
Civics 3: 5.12 Describe how inequality in the US laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.	Describe how inequality in the US has laid the foundation for some of the conflicts that continue today. Concerns that this standard needs specificity in order to define inequality otherwise is subject to opinions.
History 15: 5.17 Use of primary and secondary sources to acquire historical information.	The concept of primary and secondary sources is not introduced in ELA content standards until 7th grade.
Economics 5:19 Explore examples from Western Hemisphere to illustrate the role of scarcity historically and in current events.	Should include an example to further explain what is being asked. As written it is awkward and hard to understand.
History 17: 5.29 Identify the beliefs, experiences, perspectives and values that form points of view about civic issues.	Identify how beliefs, experiences, perspectives and values contribute in forming points of view about civic issues.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 19: 5.30 Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.	Change “main” to “various”
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 19: 5.31 Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.	Explain how who we are today is a culmination of our past and present experiences.
6th
Inquiry 23: 6.7 Identify inherent bias in maps.	Include an example for better understanding of how and when this occurs.
Inquiry 26: 6.15 Describe the many facets of the	Describe how family history and culture connects us to student. identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	the collective history and culture of other people.

Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Standards Edits and Revisions

7th
Inquiry 22: 7.1 Develop compelling (big idea) questions about relevant topic of interest.	Example of vertical alignment and need for (big idea) to be added to previous grades asking the same thing.
Inquiry 23: 7.5 Analyze various forms of media to identify polarizing language, logical fallacy and reasonable judgment.	Part of this question is not addressed until ELA high school standards i.e. logical fallacy.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 19: 7.49 Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/identities.	Describe the relations between the cultural heritages of key figures
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 19: 7.60 Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal relations on the development of group identities and cultures.	Spaniards taking the lands of the Indigenous people and how that carries into today's world.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 19: 7.61 Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.	This is one assignment.
Civics 2 Processes, Rules and Laws: 7.62 Use figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies.	Omit “figurative language” simply describe
Civics 2 Process, Rules and Law: 7.63 Hypothesize how the policies of the Spanish monarch in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region.	Change “hypothesize” to describe or determine
History 14:7.78 Historical change, continuity, context and reconciliation.	Missing the word “source”
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity 19: 7.82 Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.	Define.
Civics 3: 7.83 Analyze US policies on expansion into the Southwest, including how they reflected US civic ideals of the time and conflicted with existing inhabitants of the region.	Change the word conflict to “impact of”
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 19: 7.93 Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group.	Opinion. What evidence would be used?

Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Standards Edits and Revisions

Ethnic, Cultural and Identity 19: 7.94 Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.	One assignment
8th
Inquiry 25: 8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.	“Historical fiction” should be replaced with accurate texts
Inquiry 26: 8.20 Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	This is not inline with the theme of Early US History.
Inquiry 26: 8.23 Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action toward mending, healing and transforming the future.	Omit mending and healing Replace with “to transform the future”
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity 20: 8.49 Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.	Change “nascent” to early Change “hypothesize” to discuss Change “how gender roles were impacted” to “how gender roles determined the role of religion”
History 14: 8.56. Critically read the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time.	Change to Critically read the Amendments made to the Constitution and compare/contrast the first ten Amendments to later amendments.
Ethnic, Cultural, Identity 20: 8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era.	Rewrite for less inflammatory language: Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents during the Reconstruction Era.
HS Civics
Inquiry 25: 9-12.Civ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies.	Change evocative to expressive
HS Economics

Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Standards Edits and Revisions

9-12 Econ 24 Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.	Compare and contrast economic systems
HS Geography
Geography 13: 9-12 Geo 26 Predict future social, political, economic, cultural, spiritual and environmental opportunities, and obstacles associated with movement, population, decision-making and perspectives in a given place or region.	Omit
HS NM History
9-12.NMH.13. Connect various disputes that occur as a result of Article X being stricken from the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.	Underlined parts in these 2 standards are repetitive and confusing
9-12. NMH.17. Examine the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken.
9-12.NMH.26 Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.	Determine the issues that affected some people’s access pertaining to the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
9-12-NMH.47 Demonstrate historical causation by using	INCOMPLETE
9-12.NMH.48 multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of Civil Rights era in New Mexico.	Combine 47 and 48
HS US History
9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a “war to free the slaves,” and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people.	Change “ war to free the slaves“ to “war of economic equality”
9-12.US.50 Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification,Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius with Reconstruction.	Analyze the Reconstruction efforts and determine their short and long-term effects.
9-12.12.US.53 Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.	Identify the ways in which gender roles were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.
9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.	Evaluate the following concerning the economic system of the United States: efficiency, equity, and equality.

Carlsbad Municipal Schools Proposed Social Studies Standards Edits and Revisions

9-12.US.8.3 Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany.	Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world.
9-12.US.8.7 Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.	Examine the ways in which gender role norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s
9-12.US.10.4 Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia.	Analyze how the perceptions of racism, sexism, and “othering of people groups have changed over time.
9-12. US.10.6 Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.	Analyze the impact of the Cold War on social movements and activists in the United States.
9-12 US.12.9 Explore the movement against police brutality.	Current event
9-12 US.13.2 Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present and future.	Current event
HS World History
9-12.WH.3.4. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions and long-term effects of oppression.	Analyze the complex relationship between culture and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions and long-term effects of their places in society.

[EXTERNAL] Rule Feedback Social Studies kenneth bewley <kbewley@sbcglobal.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:04 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

I am sending this from my personal E-mail, but I do work in the Roswell ISD.

Just one general comment to make. I was sitting in with our Social Studies teachers as they parsed through the standards in detail.

The overall focus of the standards focuses almost exclusively on how we are divided as people and emphasizing those differences to the exclusion of what should join us together as Americans.

[EXTERNAL] Re Repeal and Replace NM SS Standards

Darlene Fortier <darlenebikes@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Greetings,

My name is Darlene Fortier and I teach 2nd grade at Salazar Elementary School in Santa Fe.

As a professional licensed to “educate and graduate” in the state of New Mexico, I have pledged to teach the truth and let the students form their own opinions from multiple perspectives.

In our second grade classroom, I facilitate critical thinking which I see as the act of taking in information from multiple perspectives and making informed decisions on such thus formulating an individual awareness of diverse experiences, community, and self. It is not my job to tell the students how or what to think but to analyze the information presented. I am wholly invested in the new Social Studies Standards as I see them as thoughtful pathways to an understanding of the timeline of humanity in our space in this landscape.

We are a diverse people in New Mexico, with many cultural backgrounds that deserve our historical events to be explored, age appropriately, as to not gloss over interactions but present them in a manner that is educational and not punitive. It is us teachers, the professionals in education that we are, that could use these guides to achieve said awareness.

Imagine the young people of our communities growing and shifting in their perspective and being called upon to be allies of all cultures in our communities and reconcile with our past as a necessity for social justice.

By adopting the New Mexico Social Studies Standards, we are giving our children the opportunity to think for themselves and create new pathways by defining our future together.

We must trust our future, our children, to move forward in their wisdom.

I see nothing but gain in the vision of these insightful Social Studies Standards, written from the view of all of our lenses, which are varied, eventful, and yes, often fraught with strife, as a means for reconciliation and a keen sense of “Critical Consciousness and Perspectives” (p. 24, 2nd grade).

Best,

Darlene

Darlene Fortier (she/her/hers)
2nd Grade Educator
Teach Plus NM Fellowship Alumna
Teach Plus Senior Research Fellow
NMTLN Liaison
NEA AR
505.439.8184

my recycled art @

“All acts of kindness are lights in the war for justice.” – Joy Harjo

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies Standards Public Comment

Bethany Cooksey <bethany@ronnykathy.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:11 PM

To: gregg.schmedes@nmlegis.gov <gregg.schmedes@nmlegis.gov>; meredith.dixon@nmlegis.gov <meredith.dixon@nmlegis.gov>; petersen_b@aps.edu <petersen_b@aps.edu>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I do not support the proposed 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies. This curriculum contains dangerous and divisive teachings, specifically Critical Race Theory.

Thank you.

Bethany

--

The eternal God is your refuge, and his everlasting arms are under you. He drives out the enemy before you; he cries out, 'Destroy them!' - Deuteronomy 33:27

[EXTERNAL] New SS Standards

Judy SMITH <Jchasmith@msn.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I support a clear eyed, honest history education. The fact that some people interpret things differently: but there is a difference between fact and belief.

Students need to learn critical thinking skills and understanding the difference between fact and belief is an important life time skill .

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] social studies standards

Carol Schrader <c.e.schrader@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a parent of a student who recently graduated from the SFPS as well as an art teacher in the schools. I find my students know very little about current history, and I think it is very important to bring the standards up to date. Please support keeping our state current and relevant and supporting relevant public education.

Carol Schrader
505 660-4246

[EXTERNAL] CRT

SUSAN HILL <snucci@aol.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:36 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please discontinue CRT teaching in our public schools. It only causes division and feelings of inadequacy. It is high time schools concentrate on reading writing and arithmetic, and leave the politics, & sex etc to the families.

Susan Hill
Edgewood, NM

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] I SUPPORT the proposed Social Studies standards

Elizabeth Dyer <ed71558@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 5:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for this moment to voice my opinion about the importance of the proposed changes.

As a mother, an advanced practice nurse for 37 years and a citizen of our multicultural state, I wholeheartedly support the proposed changes to the PED Social Studies standards.

Children need to learn that no race, no gender, no nationality has preordained power over any other. All humans should be held to the same standard and given the same opportunities. History is multifaceted and complex. It is foolish to state otherwise. Financial education can be so powerful. Everyone should understand about compounding interest and lending practices.

Please, let's embrace what we were mandated to do with the Yazzie/Martinez court order.

Thank you,
Elizabeth Dyer
Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] CRT in New Mexico schools

Louise Cox <zazupitts2020@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 6:04 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a grandparent, I DO NOT want CRT in any shape taught in our schools here in the State of New Mexico. Division is a horrible thing for human beings. Our Constitution declares that WE ARE ALL CREATED EQUAL.

We know that division and hatred is TAUGHT not something we are born or raised with as children.

Louise Cox Walker
Voter

[EXTERNAL] social studies standards

Leo Sandmann <leosandmann@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 6:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (65 KB)

Social studies standards.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 9, 2021

To the PED,

I am a father of a kindergartener, a second grader and a fifth grader in the Artesia Public Schools. I am appalled by the new social studies standards that obviously teach Critical Race Theory! I do not feel like it is your responsibility to teach my kindergartener her identity. The statement in these standards that states teach identity and then teach the kids not to be mean to each other, makes me wonder what in the world did you tell these kids that would make them want to be mean to each other? The words that are used in these social studies standards such as: group identity, inequality, oppressed, oppressor, power, white supremacy, and inequality are all teaching Critical Race Theory. All the standards under the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies are appalling! When you teach a society to judge and persecute their fellow mankind for something their ancestors did years ago, you will divide that society and they will learn to hate one another only increasing violence and death all because of something that was taught in school. This will increase gang violence and shootings. We do not have racial violence in our small city but once you are done brainwashing all our children, I am certain we will live in a society of violence and judgment of one another. The specific standard that states: "Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression" is definitely Critical Race Theory! CRT basically says that all white people are racist and are born racist as if a baby has no other choice. So a baby born in a mixed marriage is half racist? Should they judge themselves? How confusing to a young child to come home believing that her father is oppressed and her mother is the oppressor because they are a different race. CRT is an opinion, not a fact. If you believe in God, then you cannot believe in CRT because God did not create racism; people did.

Social Studies should teach pride in the United States, pride in our great state of New Mexico and pride in our flags. Unity comes from being proud of who you are and how far we've come and what we have had to overcome to become this great nation that everyone wants to live in. We should be teaching the Constitution and the Bill of Rights and freedom for all mankind. We should be teaching equality instead of inequality. We should be teaching our children how to stand up for our rights. We should not be teaching political views such as CRT.

Please reconsider removing all the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies and any other studies that teach Critical Race Theory. Please do NOT mandate these social studies standards in our public schools. Please allow our school administrators and parents to re-evaluate any changes made to these social studies standards. Parents need to be able to make an informed decision about their child's education.

Thank you for your consideration,

Leo Sandmann

Artesia, NM

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Holly Siebert <holly.siebert@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 6:44 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED,

I am a parent of three children of which two attend public schools here in New Mexico. The third will be attending when he is old enough. I am also a born and raised New Mexican, graduate of the New Mexico school system including UNM, tax payer, and active member of this community, as well as active in my Childrens school's parent teacher organization.

This email is to request you not adopt new social studies curriculum that is modeled on the theory that all people are either oppressed or oppressors. This is an idea that is not only hurting our country as a whole, but has documented negative effects on children who are put in either group. Our children need to be taught, at home and at school, to value and appreciate all people including understanding there is value even in the imperfect history we share with the world. The basis of the new curriculum devalues and isolates people based on ancestry and labels rather than inspires.

Please include my request when the comments for the upcoming PED meeting November 12, 2021.

Thank you for your consideration.

Holly Siebert
APS Parent
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] No CRT in Social Studies!

STEVEN SANCHEZ <sider662@aol.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 6:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a parent of 4 school aged children.

We absolutely do not want crt in any way shape or form to be implemented in our schools.

We need to teach our children how to love and not divide.

I will fight this with every legal tool available.

Steven Sanchez

[EXTERNAL] In Favor of the New Social Studies Standards

Rachel N. Rodriguez <rachelnrodriguez@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 7:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening.

As parents of two former APS students and one current APS student, we write to express our full support of the new, revised social studies standards.

We support the inclusion of concepts such as democracy and advocacy, the importance of asking good questions, and distinguishing the difference between fact and opinion, for example.

We urge you not to be distracted by the alarmists whose fear-based interpretation of the changes belie the true intention behind this effort.

Thank you kindly.

Rachel N. Rodriguez, MPA, MSW and Victor J. Rodriguez
505.417.1343

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Jeanette Reed <supermamaw2007@yahoo.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a grandparent of school age children I have to state that I am vehemently opposed to teaching Hispanic children about the cruelties their ancestors perpetuated on others if that is the ONLY thing they are being taught. The schools absolutely CANNOT pick & choose what History is to be taught!! If they are going to be told about the "destruction and occupation by Spaniards" they also need to be taught about the "destruction and occupation" by the white people towards the Native Americans in America i.e Wounded Knee, Sand Creek etc., as well as the horrendous treatment of the Chinese in building the railroads, the taking on young Irish children who were sold into slavery under the guise of "domestic help", the Italians and Slavs in the coal mines etc. etc. etc.!!!

It is absolutely unconscionable that these children are to be taught that their ancestors were cruel & vicious and therefore they are as well. The same holds true for Law Enforcement officers!! To teach children that they are bad people is influencing them in such a negative manner that these children will grow up hating anyone who is in Law Enforcement - as many in the young generation already believe - thus the targets on the backs of these folks.

This type of teaching ABSOLUTLEY CANNOT BE TAUGHT TO OUR CHILDREN!! It is destructive & detrimental to everyone!!

Jeanette M. Reed

[EXTERNAL] Currently Proposed Rule Changes, Social Studies

Lynn Brandvold <lynnbrandvold@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:13 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The proposed changes to New Mexico K-12 social studies are nothing more than critical race theory. CRT can do no good and a great deal of harm. At one time, the dream of many was that Americans would do away with diversity and develop an American culture consisting of the best features of all the cultures here. This would put an end to racism. Instead, what we have now is more and more fragmentation of the the citizenry in the name of diversity. This rule will worsen the situation not help. New Mexico is second from the bottom of states in education in STEM subjects not to mention reading and writing. This is where the emphasis should be and could result in educated high school graduates prepared for college or jobs in industry.

Democrats have made a living from creating factions by telling the people that they are victims and are owed something. In the old America you got ahead through hard work. Now apparently it is far more important what faction you come from rather than your labor and abilities. Schools need to concentrate on teaching the basics. American deserve an education; not a bunch of political claptrap rammed down their throats.

Lynn Brandvold

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Jack Welch <johnwelc1957@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Sir/Madam:

I support the adoption of the proposed social study standards.

Thank you,

Gayle A. Trantham

[EXTERNAL] Taxpayer, parent, New Mexican voicing my opinion

Katie Carta <katiecarta@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:53 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I do not want my 4 children to be taught that they are inferior because of their genetic make up. Nor to teach them that any one person is any better or worse because of their genetic make up. Critical race theory has no place in our schools.

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory

Thelma Jo Riddle <newmextj@hotmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 8:58 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

It is a proven fact that history repeats itself; we must be prepared for such negative teachings. What is accomplished by changing the history books to create more animosity and negativity?

None of the people alive today lived through the slavery years; many of them do not even know their ancestors and did not care until this was brought on by the election. What are we accomplishing to create such a monster where upheaval and hate live among us?

We should be teaching our children to work together and to be united where everything is for the benefit of our country and our people. How will the children feel in the classroom when they are singled out as the “bad” and yet they had nothing to do with what their forefathers endured.

What picture are you truly trying to paint?

I have heard many stories of how many of the slaves felt protected and cared for in a way they never would have had if it hadn't been for their masters. Maybe we need to rephrase the books and not call them “masters” and maybe call them “caretakers/caregivers”?

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies

Angelica Gurule <guruleangelica83@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:07 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Although our history can be ugly at times it is imperative it is taught to our children truthfully. I do not agree with the changes proposed social studies curriculum.

Thank you,

Angelica

--

Angelica V. Gurule

Sustainable Environmental Resource Management

University of Malta / James Madison University '10

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC social studies

Johanna DePalma <johannadepalma@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:19 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM Public Education Department,

This feedback is in regards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies curriculum proposed change.

America like every nation that has existed is replete with examples of the most heinous behaviors that humanity can imagine, including slavery, war, and the dehumanization of various people, among others. These injustices however, should be examined through the lens of America's stated high ideals, and the steps taken and progress made in realizing those ideals. American history is also rich with stories of sacrifice and achievement, such as having people in government with vastly diverse backgrounds and ethnicity.

I believe our focus in educating our children about the world and our history should absolutely include diversity, but those lessons should be about how diverse we are, and not how diverse we aren't such as the 1st minority woman elected as the Lieutenant Governor of the State of Virginia or the 1st woman Elected as the Vice President of the United States of America. Our social studies curriculum should increasingly focus on how we as a nation and as ONE people strive for excellence. Our children's education should not teach them that their parentage automatically puts them at a disadvantage or in a position of privilege; neither situation is true. Our children's education should prepare them for a future where overcoming the challenges faced by our nation and our ONE people is to the benefit of all.

Focusing on racial and gender identity as lasting issues has the very real possibility of deepening divides along those identity lines. Critical Race Theorist Ibram X Kendi infamously said "The only remedy to past discrimination is present discrimination, the only remedy to present discrimination is future discrimination." While the proposed curriculum is not labeled "Critical Race Theory", it is nonetheless cut from the same cloth, and seeks to inure our children with the concepts of victimhood vs. privilege. This is narrow-minded and politically motivated. The organizations consulted for this curriculum are neither unbiased nor did they seek input from any competing organizations to attempt to draft a curriculum that accounts for competing viewpoints. Rather than teach our children to think critically, this curriculum seeks to teach our children that the only "correct" way of thinking is along identity lines.

I cannot in good conscience support the implementation of this curriculum in our TAXPAYER FUNDED schools for the almost certain harm it will do to our children and their futures.

Sincerely,

Phillip and Johanna DePalma

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standard

Dr. LMC <lchrist217@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:31 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this email to comment on the NM Social Studies standards that are being proposed to the NMPED. I write to you as a Black woman. I write to you as a teacher in New Mexico. I write to you as an active Independent voter. I write to you as a New Mexican. Finally, I write to you as an American.

I implore the NMPED to not succumb to the false narrative that teaching ALL of US history will have negative outcomes for young people and presents a "liberal bias" to history. The good, bad, and ugly facts that comprise the history of the United States of America should be taught so we, as a country, do NOT repeat the mistakes we have made. The US Constitution is a living breathing document that has had amendments added to it because the original document did NOT provide equal rights and the freedoms to pursue happiness to ALL citizens. More importantly, New Mexico has the 2nd highest population of Native Americans of the 50 states and the 2nd largest percentage of Hispanic people per capita of the 50 states. A white washed version of history is not the reality these populations live.

New Mexican children NEED to know that America already had people on this continent when it was "discovered". That America was built on land stolen from Native Americans and built by African slaves. That railroads that first crossed our country were built by Chinese. That the US Civil War was about economics and slavery. That the Dakotas were split when added to the Union because of slavery. That women were not allowed to vote until 1920. That the Voting Rights Act of 1965 still has not prevented states from finding ways to make it more difficult for minorities to vote. All of these historical facts are what make up the history of our country. When we face the truth of where we have been, then we can have a better chance of standing united to walk down life's path together.

Respectfully submitted,
Lisa Christopherson, MA, ABD.

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory for Social Studies Adoption

Thelma Jo Riddle <newmextj@hotmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

It is a proven fact that history repeats itself; we must be prepared for such negative teachings. What is accomplished by changing the history books to create more animosity and negativity?

None of the people alive today lived through the slavery years; many of them do not even know their ancestors and did not care until this was brought on by the election. What are we accomplishing to create such a monster where upheaval and hate live among us?

We should be teaching our children to work together and to be united where everything is for the benefit of our country and our people. How will the children feel in the classroom when they are singled out as the "bad" and yet they had nothing to do with what their forefathers endured.

What picture are you truly trying to paint?

I have heard many stories of how many of the slaves felt protected and cared for in a way they never would have had if it hadn't been for their masters. Maybe we need to rephrase the books and not call them "masters" and maybe call them "caretakers/caregivers"?

Sincerely,

Thelma Jo Riddle
A Concerned Citizen

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies curriculum

Donald Wilson <lunwil88@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a nEw Mexico resident and voter I strongly approve of the ne Social Studies Curriculum. The present generation of children and students need to learn about the diverse history and culture of pour state and nation, so that they can participate with knowledge and understanding in their future lives that ref;lects a true perspective of our diverse community. School curriculums should be updated and revised periodically to ensure they reflect the commonalities and developments of the present time.

Donald Wilson

3101)ld Pecos Trail, Unit 911

Santa Fe, NM 87505

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Fwd: In Favor of the New Social Studies Standards

William Tallman <w.tallman5909@comcast.net>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As the grandparents of two former APS students and one current APS student, we write to express our full support of the new, revised social studies standards.

We support the inclusion of concepts such as democracy and advocacy, the importance of asking good questions, and distinguishing the difference between fact and opinion, for example.

We urge you not to be distracted by the alarmists whose fear-based interpretation of the changes belie the true intention behind this effort.

Thank you .

Sen. Bill Tallman and Rebecca H. Tallman

[EXTERNAL] Comments

Anna Tew <tewcute@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 9:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I oppose the teachings of critical race theory and anything that resembles the doctrine. It does not belong in our schools.

I have 5 kids, 3 Currently in the NM public school system. If you vote for CRT, I will pull them out and homeschool them.

Anna Tew

[EXTERNAL] PED say NO to teaching CRT in public schools

Rebecca Holets <pianistrh@hotmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:01 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Public Education Department,

Please reject the currently proposed rule changes regarding Social Studies in public schools Grades K-12. The rule changes include terms like equity, reconciliation, and diversity without defining what is meant by those terms. These terms warn of critical race theory proposed by writers like Kendi and DiAngelo. Their ideas, while claiming diversity and understanding, are instead racist toward students of all ethnicities, requiring that students be judged by outward appearances instead of their character. The ideology calls good, evil; and evil it calls good.

Critical race theory is born directly of the Marxist-Leninist ideology that sets people of different backgrounds against each other, instead of being for common values. The Marxist worldview directly caused the murders of tens of millions of human beings in just the last century. Our schools have no business indoctrinating kids into this worldview/religion.

Please reject this ideology in schools.

Sincerely,
Rebecca Holets, a NM citizen

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Standards

Rod Honstein <rhons@mac.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:13 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I'm writing to request that the proposed new standards be rejected. While I agree that social studies course content needs to be occasionally updated, I strongly object to the institutional brainwashing of students by a radical worldview that is biased and divisive and designed to create an atmosphere of victimhood and persecution. While we should always have "respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me", the primary function of school should be to insure that when students graduate, they have a solid foundation in reading, writing, math, civics, science, etc. Perhaps "respect" should be primarily taught at home?

It appears that the proposed standards weave in socialism, racism toward non-minority groups, extreme environmentalism, and globalism. These benchmarks have students "develop pride in his/her/its identity, history, culture, region by incorporating a community-based approach while preparing students to be a part of a global environment."

Further, students may be asked to "[a]ssess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement". This is a key tenet of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Note that supporters of these proposed standards go to great lengths to deny they have anything to do with CRT. Perhaps, then, it's just a coincidence that these standards and CRT have much in common. The standards ask students to assess these "CRT" tenets and to "identify and analyze cultural, differently-abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities." Whew! Can we be more "woke" than this?

CRT is blatant in the standards, especially where the students are to learn how America is supposedly racist in its very framework (from the discredited 1619 project). Students are to "[d]escribe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today." What a bunch of, uh, baloney. And this is mainstream history? More like radical leftist propaganda.

The standards include alarming new benchmarks, specifically targeting Spanish settlers in the United States, writing regarding historical thinking that students should "Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards."

The proposed draft notes that it wants to "Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures" Regarding the territorial period of New Mexico, the rules aim to "Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period."

Also, students are to use "evidence from primary and secondary sources to compare and contrast the impacts of European colonization on Indigenous populations."

The proposed curriculum appears to attempt to demonize conservatives, having students "Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people."

Also, apparently demonized in the new curriculum are guns and gun owners. The rule states that students are to "examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future."

Included in the proposed rule is a move to have students examine "anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present."

I could go on and on, but it is apparent the objective here is not to update social science standards, but to completely rewrite the subject matter in a way that would make Howard Zinn or Noam Chomsky proud. Again, I urge you to reject these proposed standards and try again.

[EXTERNAL] Proposal of the contents of Critical Race Theory for all New Mexico School grades

Frank Pecoraro <fjpecoraro@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

New Mexico Public Education School Board members- Critical Race Theory does not explain well why we have racial conflicts, and is actually divisive. A better theory is needed which can explain Race in a way that brings harmony between the races, and real progress in meeting the needs of Minorities. We also need to preserve patriotism which is actually a virtue. It does not have to be a negative thing when properly understood.

Frank J. Pecoraro, M.S.

[EXTERNAL] Draft of Social Studies Standards

Amy Gee <geeamy83@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 10:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr. Sena,

I read through the NMPED proposed draft of the social studies standards for teachers and quite frankly this is garbage. Parents across the country are speaking out about this indoctrination in the schools and this will do nothing to positively support our already failed public school system in New Mexico.

I pulled my two elementary-aged children out of the public school system this year because I do not want their minds filled with hate. Although, private school is very expensive, I rather make the sacrifice for my children now because no amount of money will be able to undo the damage this progressive agenda will cause. In my family, we teach our children to treat others with respect and judge others by the content of people's character not their skin color. This curriculum will only breed hate and discrimination.

I do not want my tax dollars going to this nonsense. It is time to start upholding our Constitution which is NOT a racist document. The founding fathers were brilliant men who knew this day would come and gave We The People a way to fight back against government tyranny. The Constitution should be taught in the schools not Critical Race Theory or Social Emotional Learning or whatever other sneaky name you want to call it. History should not be erased because it then repeats itself as we are currently experiencing.

I respectfully request the Governor and the NMPED give up on this failing agenda and start doing right by New Mexicans. A good start would be implementing school choice to begin the long-road of rebuilding our education system and repairing the damage caused to the social and emotional health of our youth. The tax dollars should follow the child and the parent's voice should be respected in this process.

Amy Gee
Albuquerque, NM

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Rule re: CRT for Social Studies pklind51 <pklind51@gmail.com>

Wed 11/10/2021 11:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am totally against this rule. It will only lead to more divisiveness among the various ethnicities. Unity vs. further animosity should be encouraged. Therefore, i do not support this rule under any circumstances.

Sent from my Verizon, Samsung Galaxy smartphone

[EXTERNAL] No

Mariah Rael <rael2003@icloud.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi I am a concerned parent/citizen I do not agree with this new critical theory in our kids education. This does not matter and it will cause more harm to our children and it is not a good thing.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Alfredo Lujan <alujan@montedelsol.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:50 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I applaud the committee that has revised social studies standards that promote critical thought, reflection, and truth-telling: equity in the classroom. Here I include an excerpt from a chapter I have written for Deep Reading, Deep Learning. It will be published by the National Council of Teachers of English. It is apropos and coincidental to the revised social studies standards: “The colonist writing I read in my 1950’s through 1970’s school years was the curriculum of the time. I learned and was occasionally proud that I had memorized the right answers to the indoctrinated sorta-truth. My forefathers were from England and the original 13 colonies. They came across on the Mayflower and landed at Plymouth Rock. My ancestors were told, Go west, young man.’ Manifest Destiny by Divine Providence. That’s how we ended up in the Southwest. Oh, ok – check – I got it right on the multiple-choice test. But it didn’t make sense. The Truth was yet to be told. We struggle with it, even now, 250 years after being conceived as a nation [New Mexico -- 109 years]. The Indigenous people [have] been here at least 15,000 years. In that timeline, our nation, [our state], its literature, and its pedagogical practices are still being born, thus, still developing in this 21st Century, and that includes the disruption of colonial texts – not the elimination, mind you -- just the Truth-Telling of our national story through the attestation of our heterogeneity. The assimilation attempt to make us all the same by having us learn by heart the Pledge of Allegiance, the Preamble to the Declaration of Independence, or by studying other sacred national documents failed. Yet, we became and remain loyal American citizens. But we woke up. At some point we realized ‘We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness’ meant white men over the age of 21 who owned land were equal; everyone else, not so much. There was no mention of women, Native Americans, or other people of color; and we later learned that our BIPOC ancestors couldn’t vote. It was only through the Emancipation Proclamation, Women’s Suffrage, and other Civil Rights movements that females, LGBTQ+, and Black Indigenous People of Color moved closer to equality. It was only through the anti-establishment and counter-culture movements that we awakened. Those shifts have resulted in narratives that augment the traditional American canon.”

The committee that has revised the standards has thought through diversity and inclusivity. Standards that truth-tell our history “pose no threat to anyone; they are integral to our national literacy, and they affirm the American heritage of all.” This is equity in the classroom. Kudos to the committee. – Alfredo Celedón Luján, Teacher, Monte del Sol Charter School; President, National Council of Teachers of English

--

Alfredo Celedón Luján
Monte del Sol Charter School
505-670-2339 - cell
alujan@montedelsol.org

M.A. Letters
M.A. English
Golden Apple Fellow
President, National Council of Teachers of English

Teacher of English, basketball and volleyball

Disclaimer: This message and any attachments are intended for the use of the addresses(s) only and may be confidential and/or legally privileged. If the reader is not the intended recipient, DO NOT READ, notify sender and delete this message. In addition, be aware that any disclosure, copying, distribution or use of the contents of this message is strictly prohibited. The contents of this message, while possibly falling under the exceptions of the Inspection of Public Records ACT [NMSA Chapter 14, Article2] may be subject to inspection by the public.

[EXTERNAL] New social studies

Tana Garnett <tana@garnettins.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:45 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am absolutely outraged of the idea of adding in this CRT! Or any version of it. I as a Hispanic Indian female native New Mexican find this disgusting that this idea is even being entertained. Let children be children. With ideals like these it's no wonder kids are becoming more depressed, more school shootings, and kids are afraid to talk to each other for fear of offending someone! A teacher should not be indoctrinating our children. There are good and bad in every dynamics of life and precessions. Kids should be able to see that for themselves. I also feel that by adding this to the curriculum you are setting us back to the fifties! Instead of moving forward! Step out of the city and remember being a child and being care free we need that for our kids again. If this is implemented it will be disappointing and we will move our kids across the state line

Thank you,
Tana Haase-Garnett

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards

Rebecca Tallman <abbytallman@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:07 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in support of the new social studies standards. Students enrolled in New Mexico schools should be given full opportunity to learn about our nation's history and plans for the future without suppression due to conspiracy theories or interference from outside sources.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Rebecca (Becky) Tallman

c ~ (505) 610-4565

The words we share with one another matter.
The assistance, comfort and blessings we offer to one another matter.
The considerations we extend to one another matter.
How can we believe otherwise?

[EXTERNAL] Support for Social Studies Standards

Jan Thompson <janthompson0817@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:41 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I strongly support the proposed revisions to the social studies standards as prepared by PED. It is important that citizens know their true history to prevent repeating the same mistakes and to instill pride in the things we got right. Balanced truth-telling should be the goal.

-Jan Thompson

(pronouns: she/her/hers)

5243 Cochise Trl.

Las Cruces, NM 88012-9737

(575) 888-0886 (voice or text)

<https://www.facebook.com/jan.thompson.77312>

Piro-Manso-Tiwa Ancestral Land

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Curriculum

dksmith.thevibeguy@gmail.com <dksmith.thevibeguy@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:43 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am totally against these proposed curriculum changes. Our children need to be taught sound mathematics, science, English, and solid critical thinking, NOT CRITICAL RACE THEORY. You will only continue your path of destruction by implementing this garbage.

—Dennis Smith
Bernalillo County resident Taxpayer

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Ah, just saw the new proposed standards and realized yesterday I was looking at old ones

Mitchell Freedman <mfreedman@theaskacademy.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:46 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I was wondering why the standards looked so familiar, as I thought to myself, this is only a tweak at best. I just got through looking at the very different standards, and I email to say, Bravo for most of it.

My only suggestions or queries are:

1. HS US History: When you write about labor struggles in the late 19th Century, may I ask you to be more specific as much of that history is not known, and most textbooks, outside of The Americans from Holt Reinhart, do not go into any detail at all. Historically speaking, our nation had the worst labor strife in the western world in the period of 1870-1935. We should be more specific about The Great Railroad Strike of 1877, Haymarket 1886, Pullman Strike of 1894, for examples. Those examples will help teachers who don't use a textbook get their bearings.
2. HS US History: I am intrigued the proposed standards return US History in High school to starting at preColumbian era. Right now, HS History begins post Reconstruction. I began my year, though, with the motivations for the Civil War, and then had the students watch the four hour Reconstruction series on PBS. I felt that set the tone for what I have been including with regard to the significance of racial stratification that continues thereafter.
2. My overall concern for the Civics/Gov/Politics is it is very airy and vague in its phrasing compared to the current standards. I am thinking there is not a textbook that will help get teachers who may not be as versed in Gov Politics to get a bearing. Am I missing something as to why the proposed standards are phrased in the way they are? To me, you may get radically different interpretations among teachers with the way the standards are written.

Mitchell J. Freedman
The ASK Academy
November 11, 2021

[EXTERNAL] rule support

donna thiersch <djthiersch@comcast.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:54 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We have many educators and social workers in our organization. We support this Social Studies plans to keep our children safe and informed to progress in their future of learning and living among different cultures and folks. thank you Donna Balsamo

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed social study rule

Jonathan AuBuchon <aubuchonj@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:06 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM PED,

Here are my comments related to

TITLE 6 PRIMARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION CHAPTER 29 STANDARDS FOR EXCELLENCE PART 11 SOCIAL STUDIES

6.29.11.1 ISSUING AGENCY: Public Education Department, hereinafter the department.

[6.29.11.1 NMAC – Rp. 6.29.11.1, 12/14/2021]

The standards talk about civics, economics, geography, history, ethnic/cultural/identity, and inquiry. While all of these topics are important within education, I am concerned that standards are being developed to evaluate our children's understanding that is subjective. This is especially evident in the language used in the history and ethnic/cultural/identity standards. Use of the terms equity/inequity or reconciliation provides opportunity for a large array of topics. How we view civics, economics, geography, and history influences our ideas behind equity and inequity and reconciliation. And while this should spark discussion and an opportunity for each student to express his/her views of civics/economics/geography/history it is troubling that a standard is being written that suggests there is a right/wrong way to look at this. It is further troubling to find words such as ally or identify group within the standards as if the desire is to promote a certain viewpoint rather than just to inform our children.

My recommendation is that this proposed standard be rejected and the current one be kept or revisions to this standard be met to make it less subjective and more generalized. The standards at the state level should be broad and should focus on civics, economics, geography, and history. I would recommend that ethnic/cultural/identity and inquiry standards be removed. I would further recommend that standards under civics, economics, geography, and history be relegated to main topics and not focused on the weeds. For example, the following are some of the geography standards proposed for high school:

"The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and religion by: (a) analyzing and explaining the reciprocal relationship between physical and geographical locations, and the patterns and processes humans create within them; (b) explaining and evaluating the process of place-making and the development of place-based identity; and (c) identifying, defining, and explaining the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions"

These three elements could simply be replaced with "the student shall demonstrate an understanding of how location and place influence societal structures" This provides more freedom for each teacher to have an open conversation in their classroom and allows students to develop their own ideas on the relationship between say location and religion. Schools and teachers should be allowed the freedom to take a broad standard and apply it to their specific situation and these standards tend to get into the weeds and promote a social agenda that focuses on what is wrong with America. While this should be a part of the natural discussion in the classroom, it should not be mandated but rather fostered by teachers who are willing to present facts about history, civics, geography, and economics and help their students to develop opinions both positive and negative.

Again, in summary I strongly recommend that these standards be removed or modified severely so that the focus is only on the topics of history, civics, geography, and economics and that the standards be fact-based broad statement rather than specific social viewpoints.

Sincerely,

Jonathan AuBuchon, concerned parent and citizen
Rio Rancho, NM

[EXTERNAL] Revision of NM Social Studies

Kaye Kennedy <kaye.kennedy524@icloud.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Revision of NM

I am a mother of LCPS students and HIGHLY DISAGREE with the revision of the NM Social Studies Curriculum and any other revision related to CRT!!!!

KEEP CRT OUT OF OUR SCHOOL SYSTEM!!!!!!

Mother of LCPS

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Standards

Gina Simmons <bosue82@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:13 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

-To Whom It May Concern:

The new Social Studies Standards being proposed are dangerous for our children and our communities in New Mexico and nationwide. They promote Critical Race Theory and the LGBTQ agenda. I do not support these standards.

Critical Race Theory is both divisive and detrimental because it makes an individual's moral worth subject to their skin color. Minorities are taught that they are oppressed and whites are taught that they are the oppressor from the day they enter this world until now. This is wrong for everyone.

I grew up in the South during the time of desegregation. It was a fight that needed to be had, but it was ugly. In the end, it did accomplish what it set out to do. It made ALL races equal in the eyes of the law and institutions. These new Social Studies Standards and CRT will completely obliterate what was accomplished all those decades ago.

Critical Race Theory is a Marxist theory and, as such, is working to promote Marxism in our schools and communities. There is NO individual that has ever flourished under this ideology.

CRT will push an ideology and create an atmosphere that does not allow for questions, discussion, disagreement or growth. This is not what education is about. Students should be free to question and learn from differences. Anything less is not education but indoctrination such as we see in China, Russia, Iran and North Korea. We are not those countries. We are America, founded on the principle of freedom of speech, freedom of ideas and the God given right to disagree and make our own choices.

I encourage you to look at these regulations and not be pushed by the current culture that demands compliance. Our children should not be taught agendas or ideologies. They should be taught basic academics (reading, writing, math, science, geography, civics, history) and the real history of these United States, the good and the bad.

I have grown up in a free America (not perfect but free) and I want no less for our children today. They should not be subjected to fear, division, mistrust, hatred, anger or humiliation over things they cannot control.

I also ask that you reconsider the decision to cancel the in person comment time. It is important that every citizen have an opportunity to speak if they so desire. Our government is for the people, by the people and of the people. We have the right to speak.

God Bless you and God Bless America,
Sue Simmons

575-751-0724

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on the Proposed Social Studies Standards

Doug Ghormley <dpghorm@theevca.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:15 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (964 KB)

2021-11-10 Letter Requesting an Extension to Proposed Social Studies Standards.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please find an attached letter from the Estancia Valley Classical Academy, a state-chartered charter school.

Thank you,

Dr. Douglas Ghormley
Estancia Valley Classical Academy
Governing Council, President

Estancia Valley Classical Academy

PO Box 1780 / 110 State Hwy 344
Edgewood, NM 87015
(505) 431-EVCA (3822)
theevca.com
facebook.com/TheEVCA
instagram.com/TheEVCA

TRUTH AND VIRTUE UPHOLD THE REPUBLIC

10 Nov 2021

To Whom It May Concern:

On October 21, 2021, the Governing Council of the Estancia Valley Classical Academy passed a motion to request that the New Mexico Public Education Department extend the deadline for public comment on the proposed Social Studies standard to July of 2022.

Sincerely,

Dr. Douglas P. Ghormley
Estancia Valley Classical Academy
Governing Council President

[EXTERNAL] social studies standards

Dale Emmert <emmert.idealnm@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:17 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi, I am a retired teacher and I whole heartedly support the new social studies standards. Ethnic, cultural and identity studies and inquiry skills will benefit all students.

My only concern is that so many social studies teachers are not prepared to teach in these areas and parents are not educated about what inquiry/critical thinking skills are and why they are important for a democracy.

Dale Emmert, Las Cruces

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] Social studies curriculum

rnifeder <rnifeder@comcast.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:21 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My family is opposed to the proposed social studies curriculum being considered. This curriculum has aspects that endorse critical race theory and is not what we want to have as a requirement for our children to learn. This theory is decisive and destructive and should not be taught.

Inez Feder

[EXTERNAL] proposed social studies curriculum nikki hernandez <nikkihdz@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena,

My children attend the Rio Rancho public schools. As a parent I do not approve of the proposed social studies curriculum. You can't teach against racism by teaching racism. My children are Hispanic and white. I do not want them to be taught to hate themselves. Government and civics needs to be brought back into the high school curriculum. All Americans should understand the constitution and their rights.

Sincerely,

Nikki Hernandez

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies

DAVID ILGEN <DAVIDILGEN@msn.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent of a student, I am calling for a complete rejection of the standards as written. A rejection of language that is associated with CRT. While you may not be calling this CRT, this is just a thinly veiled way of getting it into the classroom. The standards should reflect efforts at cooperation rather than division which the racist CRT agenda invites. Go back to the drawing board PED and give our kids a curriculum that is fair and balanced, not racially charged a Leftist leaning.

David Ilgen

Get Outlook for Android

[EXTERNAL] NO CRT

Susan Yeager <suyeag@mac.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:30 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

You may call it what you wish but my children and grandkids will not learn this ... we need to learn truth good bad and ugly and learn how to navigate it with wisdom and kindness. We will not stand for children being told they are inherently bad because of the color of their skin any child any color... this is wrong and we can't wait for the season to vote.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory

Jena Blomquist <jenaquist@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:47 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Greetings,

My name is Jenny Blomquist. I have two children in our public school in Magdalena, New Mexico. Our school is very small and serves families of all races that come seeking education for their children, without regard to race. Even though our school is small it, as all schools across our country, faces huge challenges. Today, the newest challenge to our school is whether to resist the force of political peer pressure and face financial punishment from my government, or to bend the knee in submission to a popular trend.

We trust that those in charge of curriculum and school policy have the best intentions for our children and that they are safe not only from physical harm, but radicalized theories that jeopardize their futures as successful and happy adults. In regards to this racist trend that has come to be named Critical Race Theory, I can say in complete honesty that my children have had lasting friendships since kindergarten with kids of all skin colors. Our school is about as interracial as it gets and I do not believe our kids to be in danger of any type of racial discrimination.

However, if CRT is accepted into our school as curriculum, my children, who are both mixed blooded americans but very much "appear" to be white, will be grouped into an "identity" that really has very little to do with their identity as Americans. They will be labeled as the "bad guys".

How can this possibly serve to bring us together when its entire teaching is to divide us? I have read the PED draft and that is exactly what it is. This will divide us as a nation by forcing children into very uncomfortable conversations where some of them are considered "the bad guys" based on the amount of melanin in their skin, and others are considered "the victims' ", no matter how impressive their own personal accomplishments may be. In a future where CRT is taught to our future generations, I worry that we will be more divided than ever. Unique not as individuals, but grouped as tribal identities. In its most basic nature, CRT is Totalitarian and Communist and has no seat in our classrooms. Should real history be taught in schools? Of course. Should we all be aware of the plight of the indians and the nature of slavery in the US? Of course. And largely, IT IS. But including in that curriculum where as a class activity, children are told to identify themselves as white or black, yellow or brown, privileged or unprivileged, good or bad, is almost certainly a bad thing. That is how we not only keep racism alive but enliven it.

As parents, we are challenged to be more involved in our kids' education and now it's more important than ever, even though it is not necessarily more doable for most of us. Our only options become to either allow an already overreaching government to indoctrinate our kids without regard for parental consent and hope for the best, or to pull them from school completely and homeschool. I am not describing a small measure of people here.

Thank you for your attention,

J.Blomquist

[EXTERNAL] I vote no for CRT proposals

Ron Z <ronzawis@abq.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:50 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I vote no for CRT proposals. I will work hard to remove any elected officials that support this socialist stance.

Ron Zawistoski

[EXTERNAL] Teach the history that this country has gone through whether it is good or it is bad. Some say CRT is bad but it is our countries history. If you don't teach CRT it is censorship. Our children deserve the truth.

Jerry Criner <ur606@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:24 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thanks

Jerry

Sent from Yahoo Mail on Android

[EXTERNAL] Comment from SEL4NM re. revised Social Studies Standards

Amy Franklin <amymcconnellfranklin@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Ramirez, Cynthia <ramirez@techabq.org>; Ali Moore <ali@futurefocusededucation.org>; Sona Magdalena Saiz Alaniz <m.soalaniz3@gmail.com>; Kathy Price <kathypricenm@gmail.com>; Lynne McMahan <lynne.mcmahan@prescott.edu>; Hunt, Michele <mhunt@anansi.acstaos.org>; Nina Feliz Gonzales <ninafeliz@unm.edu>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

NM Social Studies Standards

Comment by founding leadership team of SEL4NM.org

The Purpose of Education

Schools have a responsibility to create classroom environments and school cultures that support equitable outcomes for all learners. Participation in our increasingly complex, rich, diverse democracy requires competence in social, emotional, cultural, civic and academic capacities.

Schools can intentionally develop competency in these five domains through direct instruction supported by learning environments that foster connection, belonging, and inclusion and embrace a diversity of perspectives and lived experiences, providing practice in meaningful engagement with complex, real world problems.

Learning happens when students feel safe, seen, connected and respected. Students' cultures and lived experiences need to be recognized, embraced, and celebrated. Schools need to provide inclusive, culturally responsive classrooms led by informed teachers who regularly reflect on their own positionality and biases.

By nurturing self awareness, identity and a sense of belonging based on a realistic understanding of the complex history of the United States, schools provide an environment in which students feel safe and seen. A culture of safety and belonging encourages students to think critically, to analyze information, to bring forward their own ideas, dreams, thoughts and take action. Schools that provide reliable practice in collaborative problem solving foster the capacity and habit of taking meaningful action based on information and analysis. Students need a supportive environment to develop a sense of agency - the skills, confidence, and willingness - to make a difference, individually, interpersonally, institutionally, globally.

The proposed revised Social Studies standards helps us all understand social systems and oppression. Analyzing social forces is hard work. We need young people equipped with personal skills - self and social awareness, a sense of identity and belonging, the ability to self manage, to feel empathy, to demonstrate resilience. They need practice in creating and maintaining positive relationships and in making responsible and compassionate decisions in order to to access and critically analyze information, feel motivated to take social action and engage in the struggle to achieve justice and equity consistent with the promises of our democracy.

The leadership team of SEL4NM supports the proposed revised NM Social Studies Standards as a critical contributor to our vibrant democracy.

The founding Leadership Team of SEL4NM,

Amy McConnell Franklin

Cynthia Ramirez

Kathy Price

Ali Moore

Sona Saiz Alaniz

Michele Hunt

Nina Gonzales

Lynne McMaha

Resources

<https://www.edutopia.org/article/how-sel-can-help-make-schools-feel-more-inclusive>

<https://drive.google.com/file/d/1-jCQ4WRzAhMVaBYA8wWknQfpTIW9WNIL/view?usp=sharing>

[EXTERNAL] CRITICAL RACE THEORY IS CRITICALLY DIVISIVE AND, THUS, CRITICALLY WRONG jess holmes <jess.t.holmes@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Since the days of Martin Luther King, we, as a society, have truly endeavored to teach inclusivity to all and to end discrimination forever. The idea that teaching divisive critical race theory would better human relationships is absurd... it will actually exacerbate the ugliness that prevails when one race considers another race to be inferior. We should be moving away from thoughts and ideas that point out cultural differences and accusing people of being guilty of transgressions that occurred before they were even conceived. If, for example, I had a father that was incarcerated for some crime, I would certainly be affected by it but I would not be guilty of his transgression. The teaching of CRT is doing just that... accusing youth of being guilty for something that perhaps their ancestors did or did not do. Of course we must know our history and what has transpired before but we must not be forever tainted by our skin color and our "accidental" birth... Yes, we must know real history so that we will not repeat the errors that occurred, but we must do it in a way that uplifts and not accusatorily condemns. Learn from the past... take the best and move forward...

Instead of teaching divisiveness, therefore, we must be concentrating on teaching our youth the very principles upon which this Country was founded. We must stress the preamble of the Constitution of the United States that states: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." In addition, there are certain inalienable Rights as stated in the Bill of Rights and those include the right of free speech, of free assembly, of free press and free religion... in short, freedoms that were never found in those countries from which the settlers of this country fled. They came to this Country to escape the inequities of their homelands and to find freedom for themselves and their families. This Country was not, as certain divisive groups would have us believe, founded on slavery. Slavery was unfortunately an inherent and abhorrent practice throughout the history of the world from the time of the Egyptians to today in ALL parts the world and was something our society experienced and abhorred. Our ancestors fought a civil war to end that inhumane and inglorious practice. Therefore, we must be teaching our youth that the practice of slavery should not be tolerated under ANY conditions and that they should be grateful that our Country is no longer encumbered by those practices. We got away from that when the Civil Rights Act of 1964 specifically outlawed discrimination based upon race, color, religion, sex and national origin.

I urge you, therefore, to encourage the youth of our Country to move forward... in a positive way... to promote the tenets upon which this Country was founded... to once and for all put an end to racial division and teach us all to be color blind... that no matter our ancestral background, we are all equal and enjoy the same equal opportunities to better ourselves and this Country. Martin Luther King said it for us all... "All men are created equal..." Who are we, then, to begin to undo those beautiful words and return to the pre-civil rights era of creating cultural divisions... CRT is the ugly elephant in the room that would have us all, our children included, believe that we are not all created equal...

Thank you and I trust you will regard this letter as a positive step toward the educational future of our children,

Jess Holmes

Sent from Mail for Windows

Virus-free. www.avg.com

[EXTERNAL] Ped -hearing: NMAC 6.29.11, Repeal and replace Social Studies Curriculum, NMAC 6.30.6., repeal and suspend authority of local school boards and required training 6.60.11

Kaarina Jager <jkaarina@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:46 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom This May Concern:

Regarding the Social Studies Curriculum, NMAC 6.29.11, I already sent you my response: Emphasis should be on shared values and mutual prosperity as well as cooperation between religions, races, ethnicities, genders by loving and serving each other.

Regarding NMAC 6.30.6, continuing the suspension of local school board authority: the strength of education is in local control of curriculum and personnel. I feel extremely sad for the future of New Mexicans as this already failed model of central planning and control is being continued. Since I hail from Scandinavia, where there is a long tradition of local government control in healthcare and education, I know that the results are superior and the people are among the happiest in the world.

Regarding NMAC 6.60.11, I would love to know what the required training entails since I volunteer in the schools.

God Bless You in your important mission.

Sincerely,

Kaarina Jager
Roswell, NM

[EXTERNAL] New social studies curriculum proposal

Robert Schenk <rlmaschenk@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:57 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am the grandmother and legal guardian of a kindergartner and I am strongly opposed to the PED plan to teach our children that not all people are created equal, that because of the color of some people they are inherently evil, that some people will always be victims keeping them from becoming the best they can be. Teaching our children that the United States is an evil country is outrageous. Our family has never ever been given special privileges because of our color, we became who we are because we worked hard and never gave up. I plan to teach my grandson to work hard and appreciate this great country. If this law is passed we will pull him out of public school. Stick to teaching children life skills, not someone's opinions.

God bless America.

Margaret Schenk

[EXTERNAL] Strong support for the new Social Studies Standards

Michelle Valverde <mvalverde30@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:27 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

11/11/21

To the New Mexico Public Education Department Leadership. Thank you for the opportunity to provide input. I strongly support the new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico. These standards are long overdue and desperately needed for several reasons: 1) they will help NM comply with the Yazzie/Martinez court ruling; 2) they will expose all students in NM to accurate historical events and processes; 3) this will lay the foundation for critical analysis and positive actions that are not possible now due to the lack of correct and comprehensive information; 4) students will be better prepared to participate in our democracy; 5) educational outcomes such as increased engagement and attendance as well as improved graduation rates and college completion rates will improve given the documented evidence for this type of an approach (more rigorous, inclusive, and accurate). Improved educational outcomes are linked to other health, economic, and social benefits so now is the time for NM to take this important step in propelling our state forward.

Respectfully submitted,

Michelle Valverde, Ph.D.

Education Policy Analyst and Youth Leadership Development Facilitator mvalverde30@gmail.com

(575) 312-4875

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

T-Knox Properties <tomsco@pvtm.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:39 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am against the proposed social studies standards for our public schools in New Mexico. The parents in Virginia were also against the arbitrary and heavy-handed proposals to the education system there.

Regards. Tommy Scroggin

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Do not play politics with education

Elizabeth Bennett <lizben@nmsu.edu>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:54 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am writing to express my concern regarding a letter sent by the GOP to the Public Education Department requesting a change in Social Studies standards. I support the belief that the standards build bridges between groups, teach important civic values and teach students how to think, not what to think. I also believe in the value to teaching an accurate history despite the challenges of grappling with our nation's troubled past.

I hope you all continue to serve with integrity and thoughtfulness opposed to allowing a fear mongering political play to influence your decision making.

Thank you.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New social studies rules

Madelyn Jones <wethepeoplenewmexico@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:57 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We stand with the parents that believe that it isn't the role of education to indoctrinate students in their beliefs on matters of social interaction.

Critical thinking is a part of education. Critical theory is not. The word theory means an idea being put forth that requires investigation of all possibilities of outcome to prove its validity or its failure. Social studies does not fall into that category especially at the beginning of attending a school environment being reserved to the high school level but better at the college level.

Young brains are not ready for abstract thinking until they have learned established information. The failure of Common Core is proof of that. The PED is over stepping its authority that belongs to School Boards. Establishing curriculum is in their job description.

[EXTERNAL] Views of a licensed educator jsauer000 <jsauer000@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:58 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I do not recommend adoption of CRT in any curriculum as it will be incomplete and one sided in its approach and at best, based on opinion only and therefore theory only. The study and instruction of CRT will not include instruction on the world's governments use of people's.

Lastly, may I remind those non-science majors that the term 'race' is a man-made term. There is but one family and specie of human. There is no such thing as Homosapien-asiatus, homosapien-crackeritus, etc. Every culture of people has baggage.

Focus on improving reading and mathematics skillsets.

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Social Studies Standards pnlgrano@aol.com <pnlgrano@aol.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

Below is my feedback on the Proposed Social Studies Standards:

- Page 31, Section 3.29: Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world. Comment: Who are the people or groups that have been identified throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world in this curriculum? This can be very subjective as some people might think that someone or some group has brought more justice and fairness to the world while some people may think the opposite. For example, some people may think that Vladimir Lenin brought justice and fairness to the world because he led the communism revolution in Russia and that communism is fair and thereby he brought fairness to the world. Also, what is the definition of justice and fairness that is being used? For example, some may argue that it is fair to take from people who have worked hard for their money (taxes) and give to others who choose not to work (welfare).
- Page 33, Section 4.7: Examine and evaluate the rules, laws, and authorities that keep people safe in New Mexico. Comment: Is there any discussion on rules, laws, and authorities that do not keep people safe in New Mexico? For example, "keep people safe" may be subjective. Will there be any discussion on rules, laws, or authorities that don't really keep people safe in New Mexico (e.g., early release for some violent criminals, COVID mandates, etc.) but are implemented because they feel good, are good politically, etc?
- Page 39, Section 5.12: Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. Comment: Is this section going to be based on Critical Race Theory (CRT)? If so, I do not support this section. If this section is going to be taught equally from the perspective that inequity existed before the United States and that all races and cultures have been perpetrators of inequity (and not just the Europeans and the United States), then this section is ok.
- Page 57, Section 7.610: Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices. Comment: What does is this section's definition of "heal." If it is reparations, then I do not support this. What injustices does this section refer to and who does this section refer to in regards to those who caused injustices? For example, if this section focuses on Europeans causing all the injustices, then I do not support this section.
- Page 75, Section 8.90: Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies. Comment: What is the definition of "anti-immigrant" policies? For example, the Chinese Exclusion Act of 1882 is an example of an "anti-immigrant" policy that warrants study, but building a border wall to secure the US border is not. If building a border wall is going to be used as an example of an anti-immigrant policy, then I do not support this section.
- Page 95, Section: 9-12.NMH.54: Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry. Comment: This is a conclusion based on opinion. Who says that NM is a good location for the space industry? Perhaps it is, perhaps it isn't. Recommend this be changed to: "Identify what may make NM a good location for the space industry and why NM may not be a good location for the space industry."
- Page 96, Section 9-12.NMH.55: Give examples of the different types of sites and activities that would make people want to tour aspects of our state. Comment: Should teach the opposite point of view as well. Why wouldn't people want to tour our state (possible examples being: crime, COVID mandates, inadequate public transportation, etc.)
- Page 104, Section: 9-12.US.56: Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States. Comment: What exactly is going to be taught in this section? I do not support the promotion of socialism and taking from people who have worked for what they have and made good life choices to give to those people who do not work, expect handouts, feel that society owes them something, and make poor life choices.
- Page 105, Section: 9-12.US.69: Examine the ethics of the suppression of civil liberties during times of conflict and war, past and present. Comment: Will there be discussion of this topic during other times in history/present? What about the suppression of civil liberties during a pandemic? Is the government justified in removing civil liberties during a pandemic?

- Page 111, Section: 9-12.US.129: Explore the movement against police brutality. Comment: Strongly disagree teaching this section as it is very one-sided. Will there be any discussion about people not complying with police and justified use of force by police? Will there be a police officer present to actually discuss what his/her job is like and the challenges that are faced? Will this section discuss the good that police officers do?
- Page 111, Section: 9-12.US.135: Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Comment: Will there be any discussion on people being held accountable for their actions or will this section focus on blaming others rather than the individual for his/her problems?
- Page 122, Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. Section 9-12.ECI16: Comment: Is this based on race (e.g. white privilege)? If so, I strongly disagree with this section in that it will promote that white people have everything handed to them and have special privileges while everyone else does not. Will Affirmative Action be taught in that some groups are given privilege by the government at the expense of other group(s) (e.g., hiring quotas based on race or gender)?

It is difficult to know what will actually be taught without seeing what text books will be used to teach Social Studies. I recommend letting the public comment on the text books that will be used to teach Social Studies so that the context and material being taught can be analyzed by parents.

If any part of this curriculum is based on Critical Race Theory (CRT), I strongly disagree with this being used to educate kids. Anything based on CRT should not be used in the teaching of Social Studies.

Thank you for allowing public comment on the proposed Social Studies Curriculum.

Paul Grano

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies

WbarJ Wells <kuntryfam@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As regards the Public Education Department's proposed social security curriculum.

CRT founder Derrick Bell wrote,

" The whole liberal worldview of private rights and public sovereignty mediated by the rule of law needed to be exploded"

If the United States and its political system are so terrible, capitalism and the safety nets provided by taxpayer dollars for those who cannot care for themselves so inequitable why do the poor from every part of the world want to come here?

Why teach differences and emphasize that which divides instead of finding commonality in order to find unity?

As a black parent expressed to his local school board "Teaching a child today that he has grievances against another child because of something that happened 2 centuries ago is morally wrong. Refuse this agenda and let racism die the death it deserves."

Critical Race Theory is designed to destroy our society, your proposal contains far too many similarities to CRT to be successful in aiding our state to progress with harmony and unity between our ethnic groups.

Every culture in history has its errors and faults; the United States Constitution has provided for the injustices of the past to be overcome through the basic paradigm of individual rights and protection from the rule of the mob.

Jimmie Wells

PO Box 21

Claunch NM 87011

[EXTERNAL] Revised social studies standards

J Burgess <burgessjk@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:14 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I totally support the proposed new standards for the social studies curriculum and oppose efforts to suppress the changes. The new standards were developed by dozens of New Mexico educators from all over the state, who identified deficiencies in the old standards. More than 60 K-12 New Mexico educators volunteered their time to draft, debate and revise explicit and grade-appropriate new standards. The status quo will not prepare our students for successful lives in the 21st century. Embrace the change, don't fear it.

Respectfully, a retired educator,

J Burgess

[EXTERNAL] Re: Think New Mexico's Additional Public Comment on 6.29.11 NMAC abenicio@thinknewmexico.org <abenicio@thinknewmexico.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:18 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: 'Fred Nathan' <fred@thinknewmexico.org>; kristina@thinknewmexico.org <kristina@thinknewmexico.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

Think New Mexico has reexamined the original recommendation submitted as public comment and identified high school economics standards within Section 18 of 6.29.11NMAC that fall under microeconomics. Microeconomics focuses on the individual and their behavior within an economy. Personal finance makes a perfect substitute, as this focuses on the individual and their financial decision-making based on macroeconomic factors (e.g. inflation, supply and demand). Think New Mexico would like to recommend that the following standards be removed and substituted with the previously proposed personal finance standards:

6.29.11.18 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL ECONOMICS AND PERSONAL FINANCE:

A. High school economics and personal finance.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
 - (a) applying understanding of economic concepts and systems to analyze decision-making and the interactions between consumers, businesses, governments, and societies;
 - (b) gathering and evaluating sources to explain the relationship between economic decisions and environmental consequences;
 - (c) using cost-benefit analysis or marginal analysis to evaluate an economic issue;
 - (d) evaluating how economic principles influence choices and can produce varied outcomes for different individuals or groups;
 - (e) explaining how and why people make choices to improve their economic well-being;
 - (f) evaluating the market value of income earned through wages and other activities associated with saving and investing;
 - (g) comparing the costs and benefits of saving, using credit, or making certain types of financial investments; and
 - (h) evaluating how and why individuals choose to accept risk, reduce risk, or transfer risk to others.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic systems and models by:
 - (a) analyzing the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services;
 - (b) evaluating economic theories for their compatibility with democracy;
 - (c) comparing the advantages and disadvantages of major economic systems found around the world;
 - (d) critiquing inequalities that exist in economic systems;
 - (e) using economic data to evaluate the positive and negative aspects of American capitalism in relation to other economic systems;
 - (f) analyzing how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico;
 - (g) critiquing the impact of globalization on New Mexico and its citizens;
 - (h) evaluating the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities; and
 - (i) evaluating opportunities for economic diversification that can significantly impact state and local conditions.
- ~~(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of money and markets by:~~
 - ~~(a) explaining how buyers and sellers interact to create markets and market structures;~~

- _____ (b) _____ evaluating how a variety of factors and conditions in a market determine price and the allocation of scarce goods and resources;
 - _____ (c) _____ evaluating the role played by competition in the market;
 - _____ (d) _____ evaluating the role of financial institutions in a market economy;
 - _____ (e) _____ analyzing the role of money in the economy;
 - _____ (f) _____ critiquing specific government policies or regulations initiated to improve market outcomes and the consequences, intended and unintended, experienced by individuals, businesses, communities, and states;
 - _____ (g) _____ generating possible explanations for a government role in markets when market inefficiencies exist;
 - _____ (h) _____ evaluating the causes and implications of market failures;
 - _____ (i) _____ explaining how governments establish the rules and institutions in which markets operate at the local, state, tribal, national, and international levels;
 - _____ (j) _____ using economic indicators and data to analyze the health of the national economy in relation to other countries;
 - _____ (k) _____ evaluating how fiscal and monetary policy choices have economic consequences for different stakeholders in a variety of economic conditions;
 - _____ (l) _____ evaluating foreign and domestic issues related to United States economic growth overtime; and
 - _____ (m) _____ explaining the effect of advancements in technology and training on economic growth and standards of living.
- _____ (4) _____ The student shall demonstrate an understanding of global economy by:
- _____ (a) _____ explaining how current globalization trends and policies affect economic growth, labor, markets, rights of citizens, the environment, and resource and income distribution in different nations;
 - _____ (b) _____ explaining how economic conditions and policies in one nation increasingly affect economic conditions and policies in other nations;
 - _____ (c) _____ evaluating how geography, demographics, industry structure, and the rules of economic institutions influence a nation's economic development;
 - _____ (d) _____ analyzing why a country might participate in global trade;
 - _____ (e) _____ connecting how trade agreements between nations have short- and long-term effects; and
 - _____ (f) _____ constructing an argument about how global interdependence impacts individuals, institutions, or societies based on documented evidence.

This also addresses the recommendation to eliminate some standards to ensure that teachers have the time and flexibility to cover the new personal finance material well.

Many thanks for your consideration.

All the best,

Abenicio Eliray Baldonado, MPA | Education Reform Director

Tel: (505) 303-4769

Fax: (505) 992-1314

www.thinknewmexico.org

Think New Mexico
1227 Paseo De Peralta
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Follow us on Facebook and Twitter

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Sara K <skeeney@swcp.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:21 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing in support of the proposed Social Studies standards that New Mexico will be adopting. It has come to my attention that because the standards include examination of historically documented racist history in our country, some groups are pushing back and claiming that the standards are based on Critical Race Theory--without any accurate definition of what Critical Race Theory is. Arguments using the term CRT are highly politicized right now and lump a number of concepts together and proclaim them negative, based on a fear that learning any negative aspects of our history will cause students not to love and respect our country. Students are much more likely to love and respect their country when they learn about the values of freedom and human dignity in instances of failure or uneven application and of instances of correction, than if they are only presented with an inaccurately rosy version of our history.

As a retired principal, I am deeply concerned that Social Studies standards--which have been well thought out and carefully designed to remedy some gaps that may have existed in the past, will be diluted due to political pressure. Going by the axiom, "My country, right or wrong; if right, to be kept right; and if wrong, to be set right," why wouldn't we want our children to learn the ways that privilege for some has been codified in policy to the detriment of others? The question of what is a just and equitable society is an outstanding inquiry for our students and future leaders to engage in, and their debate must be informed by accurate history about successes and failures in the past.

New Mexico is under legal mandate through the Martinez-Yazzie lawsuit to improve education for all groups. The proposed Social Studies standards will move our state forward in more accurately acknowledging the history, suffering and contributions of all groups.

Please do not dilute the standards under confused fears of an inaccurately understood label of CRT. Thank you.

Sara Keeney
1112 La Font Rd SW
Albuquerque, NM 87105

505-379-3392

[EXTERNAL] Comment for new Social Studies Standards

Melinda Reynolds <mindypadillareynolds@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:23 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I would like to register my support of the new Social Studies Standards. As a retired educator, I am accustomed to following grade level standards for each subject. After having read through the new draft, I found it clear, and concise, with a smooth fluency from one grade to the next. I especially liked the continuity of the inquiry strand. With so much misinformation from numerous sources, it's important for students to learn from an early age how to distinguish between accurate and inaccurate information by identifying the sources. Critical thinking is more important now than at any time in our history. I also appreciate the emphasis on diversity of cultures and their contributions to society in a state like ours. It would be helpful to increase the emphasis on conflict resolution throughout the curriculum.

Thank you for your work.

Melinda Padilla Reynolds, NBPTS
Retired from Los Lunas Public Schools

[EXTERNAL] Support for Proposed Social Studies Standards

Allison Lemons <lemons.allison.k@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena,

I am a grandmother of two boys in the public school system in Santa Fe, grades 2 and 5. As such I strongly support the proposed social studies standards.

I am a graduate of St. John's College, Santa Fe, which I attended because I wanted to learn how to think critically. My K-12 public school education in Michigan failed to do that. I believe the proposed social studies standards will improve critical thinking skills and also promote the mutual understanding of people from different cultures, religions, and economic statuses. This understanding is crucial if we as a species are going to work together to solve the problems facing us.

Sincerely,
Allison Lemons

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards for New Mexico's K-12 students

Lorilynn Violanta <lynnviolanta@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:31 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the Public Education Department,

As New Mexico resident, I am writing in strong support of the proposed new standards for social studies for New Mexico's K-12 students. Considering we are in a time where civic discourse is so polarized, it is incredibly important for our children and youth to build their critical thinking skills and apply a higher level of inquiry about historical events rather than just memorizing names and dates. We must provide students with different perspectives of experiences and events throughout history to help them understand how our past shapes the world we see today. And while we may all come from different backgrounds, we must work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals. As we know in New Mexico, our individual differences make our collective community stronger. Please support the new social studies standards.

Thank you,

Lorilynn

--

Lorilynn Violanta

lynnviolanta@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] The proposed standards for social studies

Kathryn Tijerina <kathtijerina@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:32 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My comments on the proposed standards are:

- More emphasis on Native American Tribes as governments and how they interact with other governments like the State of NM and the U. S.
- Needs more recognition of Native Americans living off of tribal lands. Over 75% now live in urban and rural areas away from reservations. Their level of support and their experiences are very different. School children need to be able to identify with them, since the large majority of Native school children in NM come from these families.
- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

Thanks you for your work on these standards and your outreach to the community.

--

Kathryn

Kathryn Harris Tijerina, JD

(505) 819-8967

2807 Don Quixote

Santa Fe, NM 87505

kathtijerina@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Becky Argo <bargo@bulldogs.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:34 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Social Studies Standards 2021

1. WRONG dates and information

- a. Theme 2 History 14 8.32 “Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.”
 - Major European explorers explored in the 15th AND 16th Century.
 - The new guidelines DO NOT list any names of specific explores.
 - 15th Century = 1400’s so Portugal and Spain up to Columbus.
 - 16th Century = 1500’s Portugal, Spain, & France should also be included in the standard. They are not included after this standard either.
 - b. Little to no guidance on content specifics (people, places, dates, events)
 - c. None of these important people or events are mentioned: Pocahontas, Juan Ponce De Leon, William Penn, Anne Hutchinson, George Washington, James Madison, John Locke, The Prophet and his brother Tecumseh, Five Civilized Tribes, Trail of Tears, Indian Removal Act, Manifest Destiny, just to list a few, Hiram Revels, Blanche K. Bruce (African American Senators during the Revolution), Dred Scott, John Brown, Fredrick Douglas,

2. Written as Assignments, not Content Standards

1. History 16 8.48 “Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution”

-The wording of this standard implies teachers are to have already taught the

-Causes of the American Revolution (which should be a standard, BUT IS NOT under these new proposals)

-the demographics (I don’t know what this means here. Like the geography and location of the battles of the American Revolution?)

-and the results of the American Revolution.

THEN tie all of that together and compare it to Revolutions that came after ours. Which ones? As a veteran teacher, the answer here is the French Revolution.

New Teachers will not know this, and neither will teachers who have strictly taught from a textbook.

2. 8.30 “Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.”

-I don't know what content I am supposed to teach here.

-“Support a claim” What claim? Anyone's ideas? Or historical fact? This Assignment would require many weeks of teaching indigenous lifestyles and histories from around the world PRIOR to writing a response.

-“Global Problems” How broad can one be? There must be more direction and specifics for teachers to be cohesive across the state. This is a U.S. History standard, not World History.

3. “Biased Maps”

Anchor Standard

-8th 6-8 Inquiry 23 8.5 “Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory.”

a. Maps are not biased. They have facts of space and time but are inherently UNBIASED in nature and design. They reflect time periods. Forcing Bias into mapping is BIASED!

4. U.S. Histories overlap 400 years. No need for H.S. history to travel back to the Columbian Exchange! That's an 8th grade standard/time-period, and should stay that way

All I ask is that teachers be given standards NOT Assignments. Standards which guide and provide specifics for the content of historical people, places, events, times, eras, and into the future. I ask for standards that are UNBIASED. Standards that let history teach itself. I have never had to explain the evils of the Trail of Tears, The Long Walk, slavery, the Holocaust, The Spanish Inquisition, or any other human travesties as my students are thinkers and have always been able to think and reason on their own. The way the new guidelines are written is taking away students' right to think and formulate their own opinions. Many historical events are filled with human evil, and it's easy for students to pick that out. Many human events are also filled with grace, compassion, love, change, and these are the events omitted from the new social studies guidelines.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Re-Development of the Social Studies Standards

Scott and Nancy Stall <scottandnan@outlook.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:49 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr. John Sena,

The proposed Re-Development of the Social Studies Standards should never be allowed into public schools. These standards express very one-sided opinions which are presented as singular facts. It is the job of educators to present the facts to our students, not opinions. Please stick to teaching facts and let our children decide how to interpret them.

There are many examples of the proposed standards stepping across the lines of education and into areas that would be considered propaganda.

For example, the plug for gun control in 9-12. US.132. is completely out of line in educational standards. If a curriculum is to present the downside of gun ownership, it should present the positives as well.

How can curriculum, without knowing each student's family, history and personality, teach them how to have pride in their identity or to consider historical context in mending, transforming and healing future interactions? Are our teachers now to become psychiatrists?

Cultural differences have always been celebrated in our melting pot, and to have this curriculum teach children that culture offers "privilege or systemic inequity" will be crippling to the process of letting them become successful. There is no greater place in this world than the United States to offer opportunity to all people that are willing to work hard. It is what made America stand out as an example to the world.

Regarding separating children into cultural groups, what of those that are from multiple cultures? Who is to define what "group" they should belong to? Why not celebrate the fact that we are all united as Americans so we can learn to come together to improve this great nation?

Teaching our children that there is continued oppression that arose from slavery will only tear the people of this country apart. The practice existed long before Christopher Columbus set foot in North America. People of all cultures throughout history were captured into slavery. Hundreds of thousands of American men died in the Civil War fighting to end slavery here, yet we are being told that, if you are white, you are an oppressor, and if you are black, you have no power. I've never oppressed anyone, and no skin color can make you that person. You want to make our children believe that their skin color will define who they are and how they treat others. Why would you want to oppress our children by making them believe that? To tell a child that, because of their race, they are unequal takes us back to the days of slavery.

There are so many things in these standards that are not beneficial for our students. In addition to the items above, these standards include detailed assignments, taking teaching out of the hands of our educators. How can anyone think that a group of people that are not in the classroom every day with our children can know how to best teach them?

Please do not allow adoption of the proposed Re-Development of the Social Studies Standards.

Kind Regards,
Nancy Stall

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Rule Changes

Mona Koerner <monakoerner@centurylink.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:49 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Policy Division, NM-PED,

Here are my comments on the proposed rule changes for primary and secondary education standards for excellence social studies.

Social studies is the study of human action in society. Therefore, it is important that students learn what constitutes human action. Prior to the amalgamation of various fields such as history, philosophy and economics into the lump of "social studies" there was a clear distinction about what action had taken place i.e. history is about facts that can be documented and cross-referenced to tell a story of what people "did" and the result of those actions. This is separate but related to philosophy which is what some "think" should be done or explains what is to be done. Students need to clearly distinguish between reality and theory.

Another important aspect of social societies must be the recognition that only individuals act. Yes, they act in the context of various social associations such as family, community, business, government but only individuals can make moral decisions to act or not act. When individuals choose to act collectively they can do so with great benefit or great harm and a robust history curriculum will study major figures of the past and how they acted in certain circumstances.

Our students need to learn responsibility and courage to be responsible citizens in a free republic. Thus, they must understand individual choice.

It is for these reasons, I recommend deleting all "Ethnic, cultural and identity standards." as written. These standards are divisive and not appropriate in a nation that calls itself "United".

Please also remove references to "take action" - these appear to relate to a type of groupthink mentality.

Please remove references to an "identity group" and "equity". A country based on the rule of law must measure fairness and justice by whether the law is applied equally to all individuals. "Equity" as used here refers to something else and is not appropriate.

"analyzing the persistence of the "lost cause of the confederacy" narrative?" What is that? Please remove.

"evaluating what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States" - you mean dreaming of utopia? isn't this history standards? This should be: "compare and contrast the efficiency, benefits and costs of economic systems that have been implemented."

"exploring the legacy of "othering" in the United States" - what? delete this

"assessing the ...impacts of conservatism" only conservatism? Don't you mean:" the impacts of various political philosophies?" Why are they not studying the impact of progressivism? post-modernism? communism?

"history of guns compared to other world powers" - how about examining the Second Amendment to the Constitution. What does it say? Why was it included? Why is it important?

"the health of American democracy... protect American democracy"- what is this? delete.

"immigrant sentiment" ? replace with a study of immigration policy and how it has changed over time.

"radicalized labor and caste systems, such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America" - for United State History? remove this. it is not US History.

And in general remove any references to analyzing the effect of policies on certain groups unless it is necessary to understand those policies and their consequences. Otherwise, all analyzing should be in reference to how individual action was shaped or changed or how individual action shaped or changed things.

Sincerely,

Mona Koerner

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Rachel W. Banister <rachel2387@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Say no to CRT. Critical race theory is false and should not be taught in schools.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Ronald Oakes <ron@ron-oakes.us>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in response to the subject proposal

As an introduction: I am a first-generation New Mexican, whose parents moved to New Mexico from other parts of the United States in the late 1950s. I grew up in the Alameda area of Albuquerque's North Valley and attended Albuquerque Public Schools throughout my childhood, graduating from Cibola High School in 1984. My race and ethnic heritage is white/Northern European.

Before I get into any specific comments, I will make some general historical observations about my own education during the 1970s and 1980s. In that time, most of the New Mexico history and cultural education I received was during my elementary school years from 1st to 5th grade. Starting in the 6th grade, most of my social studies and history was either focused on cultures outside of the United States, including ancient history, the classical cultures of Egypt, Greece, and Rome, or US and world history from a very European or even Anglo (English Colonial) perspective.

At least between the cultural offerings readily available in the state, and my elementary school years, as well as the unique pervading culture of Albuquerque and New Mexico, I learned perhaps more about New Mexico and Southwestern non-Anglo culture and history than many of the people I have met in the roughly 27 years I spent living in Illinois and California between 1989 and 2016.

I am not an educator, though I have family who are teachers in New Mexico, but not in Social Studies. I am a parent to one now grown child who was educated in Illinois and California.

I have looked over the proposed updated Standards for Excellence in Social Studies. Overall, I find them to be a very good proposal that both addresses the weaknesses that were present when I went through the New Mexico education system and updates them for the twenty-first century.

I especially applaud the parts that encourage students to learn critical thinking and discernment skills. I am well aware that these skills, especially in relationship to areas involving race, culture, and sexual and gender identity, are extremely controversial right now.

But I believe it is right, proper, and necessary that these skills are cultivated, taught, and encouraged in public and private schools. Our future generations need to be taught how to think on their own and make their own decisions and form their own opinions. They should not be taught what to think either by their parents, or by any educational system.

A few specific sections that I either think are exceptional, or have specific comments on include:

- Section 6.29.11.11 E(2) – 3rd grade History section on community building
- Section 6.29.11.11 F(4) – 3rd grade Inquiry section on reasoning
- Section 6.29.11.12 D(3) – 4th grade History on historical perspective
- Section 6.29.11.12 D(4) – 4th grade History on power dynamics
- Section 6.29.11.12 E – 4th grade Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity standards. This whole section is outstanding
- Section 6.29.11.14 F(1)a – 6th grade Inquiry section on identifying primary and secondary sources. This is becoming an essential skill with the Internet making so much information, filtered information, and disinformation available.
- Section 6.29.11.14 F(2)b – 6th grade Inquiry section on distinguishing fact, opinion, and reasoned judgment. As with the previously highlighted section, this is also an essential skill with the Internet and other media having such a large quantity of opinion and other non-factual information mixed in with factual reporting without clear distinction.
- Section 6.29.11.14 F(3)d – 6th grade Inquiry section on analyzing diverse points of view.
 - Section 6.29.11.14 F(5)b – 6th grade Inquiry section on identity.
- Section 6.29.11.15 A(1)b – 7th grade Civics on levels of government. I especially appreciate the inclusion of the tribal governments.
- Section 6.29.11.15 A(1)c and d – 7th grade Civics on US government systems and also covering Mexican independence as a closely related topic and as an issue related to New Mexico governance.
- Section 6.29.11.15 A(2)b and c – 7th grade Civics on the Spanish, Mexican and US governance of New Mexico pre-statehood, again as closely related topics.
- Section 6.29.11.15 D – 7th grade History looks to be much more focused on New Mexico and the southwest, which is very good.
- Section 6.29.11.16 D(5) b and c – 8th grade History on slavery, the KKK and related topics. These topics are highly politicized by groups who do not understand them or do not wish them to be taught because they show their (and likely some of my) ancestors in a bad light. But these are very important topics for every American to learn about and understand. These standards must be maintained with at least the wording that is currently present, if not stronger wording that makes it clear that slavery was not some sort of a beneficial bargain for the African slaves, and that there was no reasonable justification for the actions of the white supremacists in the 1880s, 1950s and 1960s or now.

- Section 6.29.11.20 – High School New Mexico History. I am very glad to see this requirement added, and while I did not read the entire section in detail, what is there looks good. I'll admit to having no idea what is, or would have been, in section X of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hildago since it was barely covered in my U.S. History education – mostly just mentioned as the document that ended the Mexican American War, which itself wasn't much more than a footnote between the War of 1812 and the Civil War.
- Section 6.29.11.21 A(1)c – High School US History section on the impact on indigenous nations.
- Section 6.29.11.21 A(1)d – High School US History section on the "lost cause" narrative
- Section 6.29.11.21 – High School US History. In general I would like to see something to encourage at least 15th through mid-19th century US history be taught with at least acknowledgment of what else was going on in areas that would eventually become parts of the United States.

It is somewhat easy for students to get focused on the events happening on the eastern seaboard in the 17th and 18th century and not correlate these to the events that they may also have learned about that were going on in the areas that later became New Mexico, Texas, California, Alaska, or Hawaii at the same time. In many cases due to the nature of travel and communication in those eras, these events may not have always impacted each other. But I believe it is still important for a solid understanding of history to at least be exposed to the idea that they were happening around the same time.

Thank You

Ron Oakes

514 Black Bear Loop NE

Albuquerque, NM 87122

+1 619 592 0123

ron@ron-oakes.us

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies changes in public schools

Carol Markham <cmarkm9@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:58 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

All parents (grandparents, neighborhood parent-teacher groups) must always be considered before the "state" makes changes. Much time to allow for these changes must be made, rather than trying to "slip" these changes in without much thought and input. Stop and think and discuss first. If too many people want to speak, then schedule more meetings. Lots of feedback means many people need to be heard.

Respectfully,
Carol Markham

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment on NM PED Social Studies Draft Standards (11/11/21)

Rev. Roger Scott Powers <pastor.standrewabq@aol.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (146 KB)

Public Comment on NM PED SS Stds -- Roger Powers.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

PUBLIC COMMENT ON NM PED SOCIAL STUDIES DRAFT STANDARDS (11/11/21)

I have read the entire draft of the New Mexico Social Studies Standards, and I am very impressed. What an enormous undertaking to establish grade-appropriate K-12 performance indicators for 26 anchor standards weaving together the six strands of civics and government; economics; geography; history (N.M., U.S., and World); ethnic, cultural and identity studies; and inquiry! The drafting team clearly put great thought and care into them, and I want to express my appreciation for their excellent work. I fully support the adoption of these standards by the NM PED.

I was pulled into the draft right from the beginning when I read the definition from the National Council for Social Studies: “Social studies is the integrated study of the social sciences and humanities to promote civic competence. . . . The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people develop the ability to make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world.”

Given the growing threats to democracy in the United States, social studies as defined above is needed in our schools now more than ever. I appreciate the way the new standards promote the development of students’ critical thinking skills and encourage their active civic participation. I agree with the statement in the introduction that “a rigorous social studies education is necessary to prepare students for success in the 21st century and is critical for the health of our democracy.”

The Social Studies Standards also acknowledge that we are a diverse country (racially, ethnically, and culturally). Rather than gloss over our differences, the standards see our differences as a learning opportunity. They seek to empower students to develop pride in their own identity, history, and culture, while at the same time learning to value and respect the identity, history, and culture of others different from themselves. Given the deep divisions in our country, building bridges of understanding across the lines that divide us is critically important if we are to keep the United States united.

The standards also seek to teach history from multiple points of view, incorporating Anglo, Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, African American, and other cultural perspectives. This multifaceted approach to teaching history should give students a fuller, more accurate picture of events of the past, which is important in equipping students to understand and face the challenges of today and tomorrow.

To be sure, the standards are ambitious. If social studies teachers across our state are able to implement them, New Mexico students will benefit greatly. I believe the content would be of benefit to adults across our state as well. Assuming the standards are adopted, perhaps the curriculum that is developed could include prompts to encourage parental involvement. And if the curriculum could be posted online, it would then be available to New Mexicans of all ages.

Rev. Roger Scott Powers, Pastor
St. Andrew Presbyterian Church
Albuquerque, NM

Rev. Roger Scott Powers, Pastor
St. Andrew Presbyterian Church
5301 Ponderosa Avenue NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110
505-881-9626 (church office)

PUBLIC COMMENT ON NM PED SOCIAL STUDIES DRAFT STANDARDS (11/11/21)

I have read the entire draft of the New Mexico Social Studies Standards, and I am very impressed. What an enormous undertaking to establish grade-appropriate K-12 performance indicators for 26 anchor standards weaving together the six strands of civics and government; economics; geography; history (N.M., U.S., and World); ethnic, cultural and identity studies; and inquiry! The drafting team clearly put great thought and care into them, and I want to express my appreciation for their excellent work. I fully support the adoption of these standards by the NM PED.

I was pulled into the draft right from the beginning when I read the definition from the National Council for Social Studies: “Social studies is the integrated study of the social sciences and humanities to promote civic competence. . . . The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people develop the ability to make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world.”

Given the growing threats to democracy in the United States, social studies as defined above is needed in our schools now more than ever. I appreciate the way the new standards promote the development of students’ critical thinking skills and encourage their active civic participation. I agree with the statement in the introduction that “a rigorous social studies education is necessary to prepare students for success in the 21st century and is critical for the health of our democracy.”

The Social Studies Standards also acknowledge that we are a diverse country (racially, ethnically, and culturally). Rather than gloss over our differences, the standards see our differences as a learning opportunity. They seek to empower students to develop pride in their own identity, history, and culture, while at the same time learning to value and respect the identity, history, and culture of others different from themselves. Given the deep divisions in our country, building bridges of understanding across the lines that divide us is critically important if we are to keep the United States united.

The standards also seek to teach history from multiple points of view, incorporating Anglo, Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, African American, and other cultural perspectives. This multifaceted approach to teaching history should give students a fuller, more accurate picture of events of the past, which is important in equipping students to understand and face the challenges of today and tomorrow.

To be sure, the standards are ambitious. If social studies teachers across our state are able to implement them, New Mexico students will benefit greatly. I believe the content would be of benefit to adults across our state as well. Assuming the standards are adopted, perhaps the curriculum that is developed could include prompts to encourage parental involvement. And if the curriculum could be posted online, it would then be available to New Mexicans of all ages.

Rev. Roger Scott Powers, Pastor
St. Andrew Presbyterian Church
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] Public Remarks Social Studies Standards

Camellia Termini <ctermini87@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:07 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon everyone,

My name is Camellia Termini & I am a visual artist and art educator, currently teaching middle school in Belen. I am very much in support of adopting the new Social Studies standards. While my own K-12 public education experience took place in Maryland where I grew up, my family roots are in New Mexico. From an early age, my mother ingrained in both my sister, who went on to earn her PhD from UNM, and my brother, who received his Masters in Physical Education from UNM, the importance of understanding and reflecting upon the complex history of our people in the United States, and how New Mexico came to be.

Growing up in Maryland, and the history of our state regarding enslaved people and Maryland's role in the the Civil War at the Mason Dixon line provided me a different perspective of America's history starting in the 4th grade. We were fortunate to be within close proximity to such historical sites such as Fort McHenry, Mount Vernon, and Gettysburg. In the 4th grade, we learned about Maryland History, which included a close look at the lives of Africans who were taken from their homeland and enslaved for generations to build our Nation. I remember visiting Mount Vernon on a field trip, and we viewed the "slave quarters", which were simply presented as nothing. In 7th grade, our class visited the Blacks in Wax Museum in Baltimore. The image of my Black classmates hysterically crying from the reality of what was presented to us remains etched into my mind. As with our visit to the National Holocaust Museum, in which I remember lighting a candle with my friends after we viewed the room full of a mountain shoes from Jews who were murdered by Nazis. At 12 years old, we were old enough to handle this.

When I studied to be an art teacher, our professor, Dr. Joan M. Gaither communicated how each child should be able to identify with an artist in your classroom, nearly every lesson. We are developing young minds of the future, who are conflicted with what they see in the media, silenced by assimilation, oppressed by states like Texas who choose to shield their population from reality. The Confederacy lost, it's over, and the symbolism of the South has now been reappropriated to represent that of hate and white supremacy. We cannot ignore the history, and the magnitude of generational trauma that Black, Indigenous, Latinx People across the land that Spanish Conquistadors first invaded, which have led us to our divided community today. And no, the removal of statues does not erase anyone's history.

We must prepare our youth for success in the future. And with that comes acknowledging the truth of where they are from, and how we got here. Black, Indigenous, Latinx children are born old enough to recognize their own heritage & ethnicity. Why don't people want children to see where we are from & how we got here? You can't hide sugarcoat the truth forever.

Thank you,

Camellia Termini, visual artist & middle school art educator, Belen, New Mexico.

Visual artist, Art educator & Photographer

<https://gcc02.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.camelliaetermini.net%2F&data=04%7C01%7CRule.Feedback%40state.nm.us%7C5351ff5585eb450b00cd08d9a53e0fe1%7C04aa6bf4d436426fbfa404b7a70e60ff%7C0%7C0%7C637722508239672857%7CUnknown%7CTWFpbGZsb3d8eyJWljiMC4wLjAwMDAiLCJQIjoiV2luMzliLCJBTiI6I1haWwiLCJXVCI6Mn0%3D%7C1000&sdata=30f7YekVVhkssQ6cQ5JmA9AAX7Ca1d4QTCvPH7IGbj8%3D&reserved=0>

Sent from my eyePh0ne

[EXTERNAL] Comments on 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Stephen Theiss <stth4817@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

I ask that the current social studies curriculum not be replaced with the proposed curriculum. The proposed curriculum contains extremely vague language that does not adequately detail exactly what will be taught to our children. It also contains subjective material that serves no practical purpose in providing our children with the basic knowledge they need to become productive members of society. Finally, the proposed curriculum also appears to target conservative political views in such a way that is inappropriate for the classroom and could be easily seen as political propaganda.

Here are three examples of program standards that need more clarification as to what will be taught:

- Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.
- Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.
- Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.

What is meant by the students' main identity groups? Will my child be expected to stand up and state their race, sexual orientation, gender identity, etc.? The first two examples are for students in elementary school. How is an elementary aged child going to know what their 'main identity groups' are? Is the teacher going to provide them a list or tell them? Not to mention, it is completely inappropriate to have children become hyper focused on their race or sexual orientation when they are of elementary school age.

The proposed curriculum contains too many standards that serve no practical purpose in the lives of our children. My child does not need to be taught how to "express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad". It is not the primary job of a social studies curriculum to teach children morals. Morals are instilled in children by their parents. There is practical knowledge in learning how the government works, the history of the country, world history, and economic principles. This knowledge can be applied to students' lives for years to come. Being able to "demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures" does not provide any sort of practical, real-world purpose. Many of the program standards contain platitudes that are subjective in nature and will depend greatly on the world-view/opinion of the teacher. These will provide inconsistent lessons and can easily merge into teachers forcing their opinions on students rather than teaching widely accepted, factual social studies topics.

It is appropriate for me to tell you where I sit before I tell you where I stand. I am a registered republican. The section of U.S History entitled "Rise of Conservatism, 1968-2008" (page 110, Theme 14) is greatly concerning to me. Why is there no theme that examines the rise of neo-progressivism? What exactly are the "short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people"? I do not trust every teacher to be disciplined enough to keep their own political views out of this discussion. The republican party has been in existence since the 1800s, it was a prominent party in the early part of the 1900s, why is it important to only examine conservatism after 1968? This theme and all of its performance standards are completely subjective and highly debated topics that I do not trust all teachers to present fairly. It could very easily evolve into anti-conservative propaganda that is inappropriate for the classroom. I am all for having controversial issues discussed and debated in school, but this curriculum provides no insight as to how these topics are to be handled. In fact, some of them insinuate that only one side of the argument will be promoted.

Here are some examples of performance standards that, as they are worded now, lead me to believe that they are going to be taught with a heavy bias on one side of the argument:

- Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans.
- Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems
- Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.
- Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future

The first standard insinuates that the ideals and principles in the Constitution and Bill of Rights affected diverse groups differently than everyone else. This is simply not true. The ideals and principles were obviously not applied equally amongst all racial groups. That is true. However, the ideals and principles themselves were not what impacted diverse groups, it was how they were applied. For the second standard, why are students asked to critique economic inequalities rather than examine them? You may think that this is splitting hairs, but it is the difference in teaching students how to think for themselves rather than telling them what to think. The standard starts from the viewpoint that economic inequalities are inherently bad rather than allowing students to study them and come to that conclusion themselves. As for the third standard, it also starts from the viewpoint that assimilating to a culture is a bad thing. That is some people's opinion, not a widely accepted fact. I would never move to France and expect for the entire country to adapt to me. If I don't learn French, I would find it extremely difficult to succeed there and it does not mean that I lose the ability to speak English. This standard is ridiculous and should be removed. Finally, the last standard assumes that the history of guns in America is the sole reason that there is gun violence. This is also highly debatable and absolutely has no historical standing that makes it undoubtedly true.

The proposed social studies curriculum is a step in the wrong direction for the education of New Mexico children. If put in place, parents should have full access to students' classrooms so that they can see exactly how these vague performance standards are taught. The material is highly subjective and appears to only support one side of many hotly debated topics in society today. Many of the standards look to be designed to teach children what to think instead of how to think. Teachers should be providing students with practical knowledge that can be applied to real-world situations. They should not be required to focus a significant amount of time on platitudes that provide the students with no useful knowledge.

--

Stephen Theiss
303-881-3980
stth4817@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] moving forward on social studies standards

Richard Wood <rlwood@unm.edu>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:10 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED and Legislators:

I write in strong support of the new draft standards for social studies curriculum in public schools in New Mexico:

https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/wp-content/uploads/2021/09/21-15540-Draft-NM-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-8_31_21-508-fmt.pdf

As a professor of sociology at the University of New Mexico, I have reviewed the proposed standards. Overall, I find them to be carefully crafted, appropriately pitched at different age levels, and well-oriented toward student learning as citizens in our diverse democracy. They ask students from all communities to understand contributions from their own and other communities to the complex development of society in New Mexico, the United States, and globally. They do so in ways that encourage complex thinking, not the kind of simplistic ideologization that the critics of ‘critical race theory’ portray (and themselves engage in!). Especially good is the focus on ‘inquiry’ in place of memorization; this encourages student engagement in complexity that undercuts narrowly racialized thinking.

I know critical race theory, both use and criticize different elements of it in my own research work. These standards are not ‘imposing CRT’ but rather reflect careful thinking about race, ethnicity, religion, culture, etc. in America. Let’s not allow curricular decisions to be polluted by polarizing and politicizing them in the service of narrow partisan politics. If anything here is to be changed, PED might shift some of the (to my eye) at least marginal over-emphasis on “identity” (see p. 16, 21, 26, 120, 122) and instead: a) preserve some good focus there on building positive identities in all communities; and b) better emphasize shared, cross-identity projects in favor of truly multi-racial democracy in our children’s time. That’s where we are headed, and these standards will help us get there.

Sincerely,

Richard L. Wood

Professor of Sociology

Former Senior Vice Provost and Interim Provost
University of New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Support for Proposed Social Studies Standards

Carmen Lopez <carmenschmitt97@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:11 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: Policy Division, Public Education Department, New Mexico

Dear Dr. Steinhaus,

I am a Navajo parent of three children in New Mexico (two in elementary and one in high school) and I am writing to support the new Social Studies Standards. My twin sons were born in 2010 and are currently in the 5th grade and that the current social standards that teachers utilize today are from 2009 and do not account for current events in the last decade or reflect diverse perspectives, point of view, and stories of all New Mexico peoples is problematic. This is like using a 10 year old text book to teach social studies to children today! It is irresponsible to send high school students to college with such outdated standards from our home state.

I am an active participant in the Rio Rancho School District's Native American Parent Association and I have also followed the Martinez v. Yazzie lawsuit that calls for culturally and linguistically response teaching in our public schools.

The new social study standards will help move toward the culturally and linguistically responsive education that Public Education Department must adhere to and moreover will celebrate and more accurately represent the rich diversity (racial, ethnic, social, Tribal) of New Mexico history (past, present and future).

Lastly, in my early career in education I taught United States History and American Politics and Government to high school students. To be effective teachers requires standards to be current otherwise our teachers are forced to teach with outdated curriculum and outdated modes of instruction, they are forced to use 10 year instructional tools. It is imperative that the New Mexico social studies standards are updated to prepare our children for college, career and civic engagement.

Thank you,
Carmen Lopez

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed social studies standards

Elene <elenedom@aol.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:14 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for considering our comments. I am concerned to see that our email addresses are being published along with comments. In my experience with other governmental entities, this has never happened before. In our contentious time, I'm afraid this will open people to harassment and doxing. PLEASE, please remove email addresses from public view!

I especially appreciate the commenters who have taken the time to really read through the proposed standards in detail and make meaningful suggestions, as opposed to simply repeating buzzwords. There is a huge amount of material in the standards, and I'm not sure any of us have been able to fully digest them in a short time.

In fact, the standards contain so much that I almost wonder if they're more aspirational than practical. Can we really teach so much material in the time available?

My first thought on scanning over the standards was that classes based on them would be so much more interesting than the ones I took in my youth, which were largely a matter of memorizing dates, with relatively little attention paid to why an event happened or how it might be affecting us in the present. I would like to take these classes myself! The lessons I remember from elementary school social studies are the ones about how kids actually lived in different countries, stories set in real life, not dry statistics. It sounds to me like that's the kind of thing you are trying to include.

I can vaguely understand why the people who think critical race theory is a real issue might be set off by some of the language, though from reading their comments, that seems mostly to be a matter of misunderstanding. However, their charge that the standards are somehow racist is way off base at best. And their references to Marxism show clearly that Americans need to learn history more thoroughly.

It seems to me that the standards aim to help kids better understand themselves and others, and to have context about their place in the world and how they relate to other people in our state and country. Taught effectively, I expect they would result in New Mexicans being kinder and more empathetic toward each other.

Some have said "just teach the facts," and I can certainly agree with that, but the raw facts do show that different groups of people have had very different experiences throughout our history, with some having a much harder time than others. That's simply reality, and there's no reason to pretend otherwise. It is not "revisionist" to tell what really happened. What is really "revisionist" is to perpetuate soothing myths like the story kids are usually told about Thanksgiving. We can get beyond such fairytales and get grounded in reality, so that we can move into the future together as a state.

Truth might be challenging, but it is necessary.

Sincerely,

Elene Gusch
Albuquerque

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: Confidential information, such as identifiable patient health information or business information, is subject to protection under state and federal law. If you are not the intended recipient of this message, you may not disclose, print, copy or disseminate this information. If you have received this in error, please reply and notify the sender (only) and delete the message. Unauthorized interception of this e-mail is a violation of federal criminal law.

[EXTERNAL] proposed social studies standards

Elaine Best <elainebest@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am very impressed with the proposed social studies standards. I support the standards wholeheartedly. I wish I had been taught that when I was in school.

We are a diverse society and it is important to recognize and celebrate that fact. It is also important to understand our history, both the aspects we can be proud of and past actions that were negative. We must understand the past so we do not repeat our mistakes.

Thank you,

Elaine Best

106B County Rd 84D

Santa Fe, NM 87506

[EXTERNAL] CRT is just wrong!

CONCERNED CITIZEN - FORTRESS <wildweststargazer@protonmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent who attended Del Norte Elementary, Berrendo Middle School, Graduated from Goddard and Attended NM Tech - I am a Lifelong NM'er with deep roots in NM and plan to never leave NM, as it is my home.

CRT and the new "social studies" crriculum being proposed is wrong wrong wrong!

Everything that MLG and politicians have done in past 20 months has ONLY made quality of education WORSE.

NM is last in EVERYTHING and our kids are suffering due to foolish choices by MLG/ Santa Fe (a former PED Director who did not even live in NM??)

Schools are NOT there to legislate or to indoctrinate - they are there to EDUCATE

Leave OUR KIDS ALONE!

J Gomez
2514 N grand
Roswell, NM 88201

[EXTERNAL] My response to the proposed Social Studies Curriculum - let's do this!

Pam Rogers <rogerspamelaa@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:37 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (14 KB)

Letter NMDoE.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

--

Pamela Rogers, MA, LPCC
Santa Fe Sage Counseling Center
1223 S. St. Francis Drive, Ste E
Santa Fe, NM 87505
505 660 0443

11/9/21

John Sena, Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department,
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

I want to thank you for the opportunity to respond to the excellent Social Studies Curriculum upgrade that you all have been working so diligently on for quite some time. I have been very impressed by the curriculum and the possibility for building empathy and understanding in our communities and across the state. I am also a trauma therapist and I know people are currently very stressed out, all over the country, not just our state, for a variety of reasons. For some people, propaganda and conspiracy theories are a way of feeling more in control of an uncontrollable situation, such as a pandemic, and subsequent economic and social challenges. I believe that the backlash that you seem to be experiencing, over much needed and long overdue changes to our school curriculum, can be attributed to that, amplified by partisan politics.

The curriculum invites awareness of cultural differences and encourages children to put themselves in each other's shoes. It's not about shaming and blaming. It's the opposite of that. No one should be afraid of it. As a white mom of two grown Latino sons, who have Pueblo heritage as well, and with two beautiful Latina grandchildren, I appreciate the curriculum immensely. This is us stepping into the 21st century. It must be done. Please do not succumb to bad faith partisan fear mongering. Let's support all our New Mexican children in growing together and healing old wounds. Carry on, good and faithful servants of New Mexico.

Sincerely,

Pamela Rogers, MA, LPCC
159 Calle Ojo Feliz, Unit H
Santa Fe, NM 87505

[EXTERNAL] CRT

sue ingles <inglessue@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

CRT is being practiced in our schools, even if not labeled as such. It is divisive, racist and promotes racism and hate! IT DOES NOT BELONG IN OUR SCHOOLS!

Sue Ingles

Sent from Yahoo Mail on Android

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies in public schools

Bob Dunn <bob@robertdunnrealestate.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:46 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I applaud and strongly support the proposed changes to the Social Studies curriculum for the New Mexico public schools.

I have lived in NM for over forty years.

Bob Dunn, Santa Fe

For

Bob Dunn

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] comments on proposed social studies curriculum standards jerry ortiz y pino <jortizyp@msn.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:48 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I want to go on record as congratulating the volunteers who did such an amazing job of putting these proposed standards together. I also want to vigorously disagree with those who are asserting that these standards are some sort of Trojan Horse for inserting propaganda into our classrooms. That is patently untrue. Instead, the standards are clearly focused on helping young people learn what I believe to be the most important thing they will need as adult members of a Democracy: critical thinking.

I don't believe they are aimed at teaching students what to think but rather how to think; how to assess, analyze and evaluate social and historical information. That is precisely what our society is desperately in need of and what these standards are geared toward. We won't produce involved, caring and determined citizens by feeding them mush, watered-down, sanitized, feel-good, made-up stories of how wonderful every single action in American History or contemporary society is or has been.

Slavery and its legacy; colonialism and its consequences; economic injustice and its victims; sexism, homophobia, ageism--all are truthful parts of our history and need to be presented honestly to students so they will be able to make the type of judgements we will require of them: in the polling booths, around their kitchen tables and in the social interactions they engage in. We can't have clear-eyed decisions made if we have to view everything through rose-colored prisms.

Teaching what happened in the past honestly is not going to automatically produce predictable opinions, values, judgements in our citizenry. There is still plenty of room for divergence, for differing conclusions to be reached and for a variety of actions that we might take now. And that diversity is totally desirable. Civic discourse among differing opinions is what has always produced the best outcomes in a free society. But that discourse; those disagreements, need to be based on honesty and truth, on a genuinely fair presentation of events, historic and current.

Social studies should avoid dealing in myths. This country has done amazing things and continues to be an inspiration for the oppressed of the world. But it has not been blameless in the past and not every decision made in the present is beyond reproach. Our state's students need to learn how to discern when our practice and our policy have diverted from our founding principles--and how to prod us back into alignment with those principles.

Submitted by State Senator Jerry Ortiz y Pino, 400 12th st. NW, Albuquerque, NM 87102

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards

Ana Rivera <analucia123@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am in support of the new Social Studies standards for the state of New Mexico! I am proud that this is being brought to the table and I am proud that our students will be better prepared for their future!

Thank you,

Ana Rivera

Public school teacher abs parent

[EXTERNAL] Proposed social studies program

Mel <mel.eva.grover@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:56 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi,

I am concerned about the proposed 4th grade social studies curriculum. Since the focus is entirely on New Mexico and not the broader country and/or the world, I don't think our children will receive the kind of education that will serve them well in an increasingly globalized world. It would be so much better if New Mexico were only part of the year, not the whole year. I don't want my daughter growing up thinking only in the confines of New Mexico.

Sincerely,

Mel Grover, CRNA

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies "Standards"

Shilo Pennington <notarygirl505@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:23 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am vehemently opposed to NMPED and schools teaching anything in regards to your new proposed changes.

It is not the responsibility of the government (including PED) to indoctrinate students, bring politics into the classroom or teaching critical race theory.

We are last in education, for once do the right thing & do not pass this sham in the name of history.

Shilo Pennington

[EXTERNAL] Support for updated NM social studies curriculum

Bonnie Leigh Reifsteck <bl.reifsteck@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Secretary Steinhaus and others,

I'm writing to express my full support for the updated NM social studies curriculum. There are so many updates from the past twenty years to incorporate into the curriculum, starting with recent historical events and including a more nuanced view of history. Most of us have learned to better incorporate other voices and perspectives in framing history, and I think it's important to reflect this in the curriculum. I appreciate that the updated standards encourage civic engagement, respect and value historical perspectives and well as different races, and promote critical thinking.

In response to many of the critiques of the curriculum, I feel strongly that what is unacceptable and revisionist is to continue to focus on a single narrative of history that excludes other voices and perspectives. That's not history, THAT'S propaganda. And THAT'S divisiveness.

Even if the goal were to unify differences, it's important to honor, appreciate, and reflect on those differences in order to move forward. In reviewing the standards, I feel certain that most of the critiques are not based on the actual standards themselves, but on a feeling of fear without having reviewed those standards.

Thank you,
Bonnie Leigh Reifsteck
Parent

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards for New Mexico's K-12 students

Robert Annett <rannett@me.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:36 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Public Education Department,

I am writing in support for the new standards for social studies now under consideration by you folks at the Public Education Department.

The new social studies standards are an improvement not just in what our children are taught but in how they are taught. In particular, they add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.

As a retired UNM educator, I view these new standards as providing students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history that help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.

Please do not become swayed by the dis-information campaign that is attempting to block these helpful changes to the new standards for social studies that serve our children in NM.

I am fully in support of the new standards for social studies under consideration by the PED and encourage you to approve these standards.

Kind regards

Robert Annett PhD

[EXTERNAL] Social studies.

Mary Gibson <maryyogagirl@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:37 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Our young ones deserve the truth!

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Updating NM's social study curriculum

Charmaine O'Rourke <werecamo@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My husband and I live in Ruidoso, NM. We firmly believe in PED's efforts to update our social study curriculum to build bridges between groups, teach important civic values and teach students how to think, not what to think.

In solidarity,
Charmaine & Mike O'Rourke
114 Nogal Pl.
Ruidoso, NM 88345-7811
575.973.8490 Cell
werecamo@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Roy McKinney <rfmck1@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:42 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing to express my approval of the new social studies standards proposed by PED. The new standard adds two new study areas - ethnic, cultural, and identity studies, and inquiry - to the four existing content areas. We are a multicultural society and do have our own identities - Hispanic, Native American, Black, White, etc., and the subject of ethnicity, cultural, and identity is certainly part of social studies. Our educational standards need to evolve and this is a step in that direction and serves to broaden the overall topic of social studies. We do not live in the 50s and 60s (although that is the timeframe I went through NM public schools) anymore and need to truly recognize our nation's history and how we got here. Our ethnic and cultural history is part of that story. This is especially true in New Mexico. After reading through many of the public comments, it was obvious that many of the naysayers to these changes are concerned with CRT (which is not part of the new standards) and all of its perceived outcomes. Overall, I do not agree with their concerns that this will divide us, indoctrinate our students, make group(s) feel bad, etc.

I view these new topics as icing on the proverbial social studies cake. They go together. Including these additional topics will be challenging for the teachers - they will need clear guidance and training from PED on how to approach them. These subjects (ethnic, cultural, and identity and inquiry) tend to be very personal as opposed to standard social studies teaching of memorizing dates and events. This will make them even more challenging to present in a manner that is understandable, informative, and positive. Subject areas that introduce ambiguity and uncertainty will distract both the teachers and students and need to be reexamined. Because these topics will come at the expense of the four existing content areas, some thought needs to be put into how best to balance the content.

Thank you,

Roy McKinney

[EXTERNAL] Comments On Social Studies Curriculum

Ryan Smith <ryanelizasmith@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

I am a parent to a ten year old who attended APS schools from kindergarten to third grade. We now homeschool, but I am still concerned greatly about the proposed curriculum updates. I have read the PDF file of the proposed updates and have found numerous components of that curriculum which disturbingly reflect Critical Race Theory (CRT). Large numbers of Americans of all political leanings oppose CRT and its divisive approach to history. Therefore this proposed curriculum needs to be significantly revised or completely abandoned.

CRT is not America's actual history. It is a worldview, unsupportable by the evidence, in which all of America's key institutions are inextricably rooted in white supremacy. It is an activist agenda demanding the destruction of those institutions, making children feel bad for their skin color, and putting them against one another in the classroom.

CRT holds that racism is embedded deeply in American life, unconsciously into white American psyches, and that it is impossible for white Americans to understand their own racism or that of the system, let alone to remove it. The only solution: tearing away the only systems that have ever provided widespread liberty and prosperity. As CRT founder Derrick Bell wrote, "The whole liberal worldview of private rights and public sovereignty mediated by the rule of law needed to be exploded."

Listed below are the areas that are of concern:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies there is a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This is classic CRT theology. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continue focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This, too, is classic CRT as the purpose is to divide people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices", although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also classic CRT as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)
4. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students "evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S." This is again classic CRT as it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
5. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. This is another CRT theology component in that America is automatically unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. No positives regarding gun usage by women or minority groups are put forth. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)
7. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. Another classic example of CRT as it stresses racial disparity in terms of inequality. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)
8. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. How about pairing this with a discussion of Communism and the negative impact it has had in Cuba and other Latin American nations. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)
9. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)
10. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

The novelist William Faulkner wrote, “The past is never dead. It’s not even past.” It is true that any social studies curriculum will have its flaws and oversights. History and social studies are inherently controversial subjects. But, selectively “studying” our collective history and requiring it to be taught in a highly politicized and divisive way is wrong and it has no place in our public schools.

All I ask is that New Mexico’s schools do their best to objectively teach America’s real history. Slavery and conquest are certainly part of that, but so is America as a beacon of freedom for people from around the world. The flaws of our Founding Fathers are worth discussing, but so are the miracles of the Constitution, Declaration, and the eventual fulfillment of the “promissory note” for ALL Americans inherent in those documents.

Millions of people around the world have and would still like to come to America because it is a unique nation founded on the idea of liberty, not slavery as the CRT theorists would insist. New Mexico’s social studies curriculum should at least allocate as much time and study to those things that make America a beacon of hope and freedom as those warts which hold us back from building a more perfect union. Our children should never be pitted against each other and taught that each other are lesser than their classmates based on false and dangerous ideologies. The children in New Mexico deserve better.

Thank you for your time,
Ryan Smith

[EXTERNAL] Oppose Critical Race Theory in NM schools

Donna Crawford <donnalee.crawford69@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:46 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I strongly oppose Critical Race Theory being taught in NM schools under the guise of "social studies changes". CRT is a Marxist program that is trying to take over schools all across America. Howie Morales, MLG, Kurt Steinhaus, and all the Dems in the NM Legislature can try to soft-pedal CRT as being "social studies changes", but it's CRT pure and simple. Apparently, the Dems in this state, did not take notice of the election results in Virginia. Parents are sick and tired of the push of socialism affecting their children.

[EXTERNAL] In FAVOR of proposed changes to history and social studies

Catherine Harris <cphunm@unm.edu>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED,

I am deeply in favor of the proposed curricular changes to social studies and history. I am a parent of two school age children and I am firmly in favor of them learning “major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo-political impact, social justice, equity and diversity,” and “ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives.” New Mexico is uniquely located in the United States as the only place where indigenous peoples live on their homelands, where there is respect and knowledge of the Spanish diaspora, and where landscape itself is an economic engine within the context of social and political struggles and histories. I am so proud of the PED for seeking to create intelligent and critical debate among students who live with the legacies of conquest and colonization and who are the hope for decolonization and indigenizing the entire world. These are the histories we need to learn from and I support them being taught.

Thank you,

Catherine Page Harris

Catherine Page Harris, MLA, MFA (she/her)
Associate Prof. of Landscape Architecture
and Art & Ecology
University of New Mexico

<http://catherinepageharris.design>
505 205 5165

I live on the unceded lands of the Tewa/Tiwa people, also the traveling lands of many nations in the Rio Grande rift valley. I recognize and am grateful for the ongoing stewardship and contemporary and past contributions of indigenous people to this land and their rights to sovereignty, respect and safety here. I also wish to recognize the non-humans on this land and their rights to respect and safety.

From: Catherine Harris <cphunm@unm.edu>

Sent: Thursday, November 11, 2021 12:44 PM

To: rule.feedback@nm.state.us <rule.feedback@nm.state.us>

Subject: In FAVOR of proposed changes to history and social studies

Dear PED,

I am deeply in favor of the proposed curricular changes to social studies and history. I am a parent of two school age children and I am firmly in favor of them learning “major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo-political impact, social justice, equity and diversity,” and “ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous,

Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives.” New Mexico is uniquely located in the United States as the only place where indigenous peoples live on their homelands, where there is respect and knowledge of the Spanish diaspora, and where landscape itself is an economic engine within the context of social and political struggles and histories. I am so proud of the PED for seeking to create intelligent and critical debate among students who live with the legacies of conquest and colonization and who are the hope for decolonization and indigenizing the entire world. These are the histories we need to learn from and I support them being taught.

Thank you,

Catherine Page Harris

Catherine Page Harris, MLA, MFA (she/her)
Associate Prof. of Landscape Architecture
and Art & Ecology
University of New Mexico

<http://catherinepageharris.design>
505 205 5165

I live on the unceded lands of the Tewa/Tiwa people, also the traveling lands of many nations in the Rio Grande rift valley. I recognize and am grateful for the ongoing stewardship and contemporary and past contributions of indigenous people to this land and their rights to sovereignty, respect and safety here. I also wish to recognize the non-humans on this land and their rights to respect and safety.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Changes to Curriculum

Linda Starr <lstarr509@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The hearing on Social Studies Changes to Curriculum is tomorrow at 1:00. I am unable to attend this Zoom meeting.

As a former Albuquerque Public School Teacher as well as having taught for a private parochial school (that must still abide by state education standards), I want to comment on Social Studies Changes to a Curriculum that was built in 2009. This was 12 years ago. It is time for drastic changes in our educational curriculum since our times have changed and social issues are part of this change.

Our social net has drastically changed in the last decade, population and demographics. Our cultures need to be widely recognized as Hispanic, LatinX, LGBTQ, Blacks and whites as a minority. These communities all over our state have not been recognized equally with justice for all. We must value all cultures and culture changes and these values need to be respected and taught to our future generations. The landscape has changed with water and soils, flora and fauna becoming endangered because of the human footprint upon the lands and waters of our state.

We should not depend on any teachings of religion except to say that we have a diverse religious community in our state. Church and state are restricted in our national and state constitution to have no place in our public schools. Religion is up to families to educate the children.

Especially also, Science curriculum needs also to be updated since our climate is changing, exploration and developments in outer space have been occurring, and new technologies are being developed every day for a sustainable and healthy environment. We want future generations to be part of the action and solutions to these scientific developments.

I hope that the board will move as well to address falling enrollment, expand apprenticeship programs and continue to improve safety for students against the spread of COVID.

Thank you.

Linda Starr, Albuquerque 50-year resident, currently for 25 years at 87108

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Public Education in New Mexico

Barbara Wisoff <barbarawisoff@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Barbara Wisoff <barbarawisoff@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the Public Education Department of NM:

I went to a mediocre public school K-12 in NJ. I was accepted to 2 Ivy League Universities and chose one of them where I received an undergraduate degree in 1979. Even mediocre public schools in NJ provided a better education than public schools in NM. I raised my 2 sons in NJ and they received outstanding public education. The other contributing factors to my success are that my parents were well educated, and that they fostered a respect for learning in our house.

I would like to add that I loved the police department in the town where I raised my sons. They were and are still well trained in de-escalating conflict and they are well trained in dealing with mental health crises. I should know, my now 35 year old son has a severe mental illness and in many towns the police know how to handle persons with mental illness and when to call a mobile psych team for help. That's because they are educated in these matters and they serve the public, and the public appreciates them for doing their jobs so well.

Here in NM like other states around the country, unfortunately, the Republican Party is determined to keep students and adults ignorant, bigoted, and oppressed via their lies, misinformation, and self serving power grabbing tactics. The GOP perpetuates the "us vs. them" mentality and appeals to individuals' worst traits. The GOP elevates the basest characteristics in people.

I have read a summary of the GOP's letter to the PED and will address their talking points now.

First of all, NM Democrats are corporate Democrats, capitalists, and not Progressive.

Historical events such as the genocide of Indigenous Peoples, lynching of African slaves, murdering of Black populations, murdering of Indigenous school children who were taken from their families and placed in boarding schools, and the domestic terrorist murders committed by white supremacist right wing persons are not biased facts. They are truths, actual events that happened, and a strong light should be shed on them. It is wrong to pretend that we are a great nation that is very different from other countries around the world. We have committed crimes against humanity in our own country and around the world in wars.

No one is trying to replace our capitalist economic system with socialism. Since the Citizens United ruling that gave corporations the rights of individuals which added to their enormous already existing power, our economy is more so unregulated capitalism. We have socialism for corporations, not persons.

The Big Lie(s) are ruining our country. Right wing mouthpieces, lobbyists, and adherents have appealed to the worst fears and prejudices in people. It is the GOP, QAnon adherents, and white supremacists that are stoking division, hatred, and violence.

The wealth inequality and lack of equity in our country and around the globe is so great that we no longer offer substantive opportunities for the majority of poor people to better their situation.

The GOP is a destructive propaganda machine and unless NM calls them out, we have arrived at a very sad time in our history.

It is past due time to improve public education in NM.

Sincerely and hopeful for improvement,

Barbara Wisoff
922 Adams St NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment in Favor of the New Standards for Social Studies

Sheri Williams <ssw@unm.edu>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:58 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Date: November 11, 2021

To: NM PED

Fr: Sheri Williams

Re: Public Comment in Favor of the New Standards for Social Studies

I stand in strong favor of the proposed new standards for studies in civics, economics, geography, and history. The standards include a much-needed focus on historical and present-day issues.

It is imperative that students be allowed to openly engage in examination of the issues regardless of their race, gender, nativity, or class. Ethnic, cultural, and identity studies should not be stifled in a state where more than 70 percent of our school children are kids of color.

If a bill is introduced to halt approval of the standards, it should be promptly overturned or vetoed. While some lawmakers in other states have claimed it is not 'patriotic' to talk about how events from the past shape current experiences, our state can help quell the explosive nature of the discussion by honoring the best hopes of our minority-majority state.

I am counting on the state to support the new social studies standards and increase opportunities for all students to experience academic success, well-being, and full participation in civic discourse.

Sincerely,
Sheri Williams
9419 Village Green Dr. NE, ABQ, NM

Dr. Sheri S. Williams, Associate Professor Emerita
UNM COEHS, Teacher Education, Educational Leadership, and Policy

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Marianne Lappin <mariannelappin@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 12:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am alarmed at the negative comments I hear and read in the paper about the proposed changes. Our country has so often resisted the teaching of truths about our history. I fail to see how the teaching of facts and science is detrimental if you allow students to come to their own conclusions. In essence, that is what education is about - not memorizing and regurgitating data - but learning to constructively review material and use it going forward, "learning how to learn".

So much history has been written since previous revisions and needs to be included, "the good and the bad". Teaching students that events occurred and how they came to occur helps them to move forward. It does not "blame" specific groups of people. Let's give our students the tools and ability to critically analyze information, then subsequently the credit when they have learned to do so.

Marianne Lappin
Las Cruces

[EXTERNAL] Social studies changes

Monique Anderson <moanderson10@me.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I have a 9th grader as well as a 2nd grader. I object to the social studies changes to align with critical race theory. As a Hispanic woman and mother to Native American/ Hispanic children. I don't want them to be taught that they are oppressed because of the color of their skin or their ethnic background. My self as well as my children have been awarded every opportunity to advance in this great nation. The last thing they need is the liberal agenda being pushed upon them. They are not oppressed. Teaching children especially at my sons age is extremely detrimental to his confidence as a minority. I vote against the social studies changes.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] OPPOSITION TONM PUBLIC ED DEPT 6.29.11 NMAC

Barbara Langley <baja@tularosa.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:01 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Parents, Caretakers and Concerned New Mexicans,

This message is to STRONGLY OPPOSE State of NM proposed new material that includes divisive ethnic and identity topics, which if adopted, will be taught to our children, the NM Public Education Department's (PED) proposed K-12 Social Studies standards (6.29.11 NMAC), for the next 10 years. It is not the right of the government nor of Michelle Lujan Grisham and/or any legislators or other elected officials to make the decision to fill our children's minds with lies and untruths, unethical immoral values that will destroy the lives of families and individuals. My taxes along with all other citizens of this state pay taxes to fund our children's education and we have every right to oppose this horrific wrong motive to change the truths and the education taught to our children. YOU have no authority over our children to demand the education system teach such sinful, immoral and destructive lies as is being proposed. We will fight for our children.

Barbara Langley

High Rolls, NM 88325

[EXTERNAL] New NM Social Studies Standards

Elmer Jackson <fudd123elm@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:16 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I support the proposed social studies standards. I'm disturbed by their being mischaracterized as "critical race theory". Asking students to learn about people who are different from them is not "theory" but the practice of learning about ourselves and others. We are all "others" to someone. Culture, skin color or faith practices are not our only differences, but the ability to observe and appreciate those differences enhances our ability to respond to others in our own culture who are differently abled, have different personalities or different values. The new standards will help children to be prepared to for a changing world. They do not make our children wrong for how and where they were raised. They might make them more grateful for their advantages but also notice the advantages gained by other perspectives and experiences. And, as a white male Christian, I believe I must practice being open to ALL "others".

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards

Alex Cook <acook1099@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I disagree with the proposed changes in the strongest sense and that they should not be implemented.

Respectfully,
Alex Valenti

Sent from Yahoo Mail on Android

[EXTERNAL] Redeveloped Social Studies Curriculum

New Mexico Kids! <n.plevin@comcast.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I fully support the NMPED's proposal to include in Social Studies "major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo-political impact, social justice, equity and diversity," and to ensure "divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories." It's hard to imagine how this could even be a debate. Of course, we need to include everyone's stories in our history.

Thank you,

Nancy Plevin

Publisher, New Mexico Kids!

Phone: 505-797-2708

Website: <http://www.newmexico-kids.com/>

Facebook: <https://www.facebook.com/NewMexicoKidsMagazine/>

Instagram: <https://www.instagram.com/newmexicokids/?hl=en>

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory!

D.S <dragonflie63@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attn:

To whom this may concern!

This evil, vile, racist disgusting garbage has no place in any school within our state! Much less our country! Keep this garbage in thee oppressive countries like the Middle East for example or Communist countries like China, NKorea, Venezuela, Cuba and Spain! How dare what the Democrats are doing to our country! I'm a registered Democrat! I'm changing party to Independent! My God! You filthy scum bags are destroying our state our country!

Sincerely
Donna Duckett-Stirling

Sent from Yahoo Mail for iPhone

[EXTERNAL] social studies curriculum

Monica Burton <burtonx6@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 1:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

The public school system has one job, teach the FACTS to our children. It's quite simple. I have no interest in my children being taught, as if it is fact, a THEORY! That is someone's idea of the role that race has played in their own life. It pertains to that one person and cannot be applied to the entire population as fact. We each have our own set of life circumstances completely independent of one another. One "theory" can NOT be used and applied to everyone. THEORY-type classes should be left to college courses. Your job is to teach foundational subjects, not theories. Make no mistake, this will further alienate parents who want a traditional education for their children. As a school board member myself, I see that the "cream of the crop", those parents who CAN give their children the best education, are leaving the public school system in exchange for homeschool or other non-traditional forms of education. This is a time when we have more options than before. People have the resources to go elsewhere if they feel the local school falls short. Please be aware, wake up to this fact or your public education system will consist only of those who lack the resources to do better for themselves, this includes teachers. It leaves schools with a one-sided group of students (and teachers) instead of a crosscut of society. The "haves" vs. the "have-nots". These are unprecedented times, not like one generation ago when families had no choice but the local school. I ask that you strengthen our schools and make them appealing to ALL citizens. I am a hispanic woman who has known all my life that I will get back what I put into something. In other words, hard work pays off! Simple. I have NEVER used my skin color as a crutch. I can't change my race so if it is used as a crutch I will fail. I AM the solution and have EVERYTHING to do with my own success. If I was told I am a victim because of my skin color I would remove myself from the equation of success. Wrong wrong wrong. That is not what I want my children and grandchildren to be taught, that they're at a disadvantage as soon as they're born because they're hispanic. That's a lie. Please do not perpetuate this THEORY to the children of New Mexico.

Monica Serrano-Burton

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Teacher says "NO!" to new standards

Arleen Standiford <arleen.standiford@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:11 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a middle school social studies teacher in Carlsbad, NM. The proposed standards do not reflect our traditional American heritage and have a hidden progressive agenda. I am a conservative American and strongly object to standards that do not reflect the values that many Americans still hold dear.

The revision should be tabled. We don't need this kind of contention right now in our state. We have bigger issues to deal with. Our current standards work just fine for now. This is not an emergency. We can work on revising standards at a later time where we have more agreement and more participation state-wide instead of just from a small group of progressives. To me, it looks very much like a desperate attempt at leftist political extremism and then to have the audacity to ask us teach it to our children?

Please reconsider,

Sincerely,

--

Arleen Standiford
305 West Riverside Drive
Carlsbad, NM 88220

Cell: (575) 725-6155

E-mail: arleen.standiford@gmail.com

This e-mail and any files transmitted with it are protected by the electronic communications privacy act, 18 USCS Sections 2510 ET SEQ. The information contained herein is intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to which they are addressed and may contain confidential and/or privileged material. Any review, retransmission, dissemination or other use of, or taking of any action in reliance upon, this information by persons or entities other than the intended recipient is prohibited. If you have received this e-mail in error, please contact the sender and delete the material from your computer.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards Resolution

Gowan Hays <ghays@doraschools.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (577 KB)

Dora Consolidated _20211111_145118.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached.

Thank you,

Gowan Hays
Financial Manager
Dora Consolidated Schools

Superintendent

Brandon Hays

Principal

Steve Myatt

Financial Manager

Gowan Hays

Board of Education

Jana Roberts, President

Patrick Kircher, Vice-President

Brandon Dewbre, Secretary

Ty Tipton, Member

Kerry Osburn, Member

RESOLUTION

Board of Education, Dora Consolidated Schools

No. 2021/22-04: Request for PED to extend the review and comment period for the adoption of the new Social Studies Standards to July 1, 2022

WHEREAS, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

WHEREAS, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

WHEREAS, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico is of critical importance;

WHEREAS, the Existing Standards are 26 pages in length and the New Standards Draft is 129 pages in length and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

WHEREAS, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

WHEREAS, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

WHEREAS, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

WHEREAS, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

WHEREAS, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

WHEREAS, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

WHEREAS, the Dora Consolidated Schools Board of Education (the "Board") deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Dora Consolidated Schools Board of Education hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

ADOPTED by the Board of Education of the Dora Consolidated Schools, Roosevelt County, New Mexico, at the public board meeting thereof, held this 11th day of October, 2021.

ATTEST: Board of Education:

Jana Roberts, President

Patrick Kircher, Vice-President

Brandon Dewbre, Secretary

Ty Tipton, Member

Kerry Osburn, Member

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC

chandler huston <chandlerhstn@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED,

I appeal to you to not implement the new social studies requirements. It is an open window for schools to take critical race theory to the farthest length. The very definition of theory is an idea not a fact. Our country is tearing itself apart based on theory of national police brutality, racism and socialism over capitalism. We need to give our children common goals that bring them together and not divide them.

My grade schoolers come home and talk about their fellow students by name not by race. We live in a state made up primarily of minorities and my kids don't see color. Nor do I hear stories of other kids experiencing racial profiling. This is what we need to keep in place. It should not matter your race or what your parents do for a living that define you by either making you feel less adequate or entitled but the content of your character. Please keep the focus of our education on the common purpose of individuals character and who they will become versus our countries past mistakes. However I do strongly believe we need to learn from our history so we don't repeat our mistakes but our history is not all bad. Did we not just have an African American President? Who i feel would strongly disagree that he was elected strictly as a toke African American but because of his character and what his goals were. George Washington Carver was another historic African American who is in our history books not because of his race but because of his inventions. If we keep focus on race without a common cause such as making America great we loose ground not gain ground.

Soldiers and first responders go into life threatening situations side by side with persons of different race and religion without thinking twice. This is because they have a common goal that has nothing to do with those things. Precise give our kids the common goal of patriotism to make America even better and stronger.

Sincerely,

Chandler and Becca Huston

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory

Pat Arrington (Commercial Enterprises) <pat@commercial-enterprises.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Paul Valdez <paul@commercial-enterprises.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Interested Parties: I VOTE NO !!

I am against CRT being taught in our public schools, I pay the bills for the school system, I should have a say as what should be taught.

This process is following exactly the Kindergarten in China.

I spent time in China 1975 – this process was institutional requirements to start their disrespect of their parents. The parents are the “government” very young children know. The parents are their trainers about the state of “life”-the Chinese government started their programming of the minds at this age. The young children are taught their parents are the cause of all the problems in the country.

Parents if they have more than one child, would be removed from their job, moved with their children to the farms. The children would not receive schooling, to punish them and the parents from not following the “one child law.

The Teachers Union leadership in USA is requiring this process to be taught to young children, whose mind is open to new doctrine. Teaching that their parents are responsible for all the problems in our society. The sooner the children can understand their parents are “wrong”, the better it is for the Teacher Union leadership. Future voters (you have trained) will go along with any thing that is suggested should be implemented. Wages for teachers and other progressive programs will get a pass vote.

Patrick Arrington
4604 Norma NE
Albuquerque, New Mexico -87109

[EXTERNAL] Policy Division, PED Rule changes

C Huston <abbasgirl55@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:37 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Members of the Public Education Department,

We are writing in regards to the proposed changes to NM State Standards for Social Studies in the public schools. We are not in favor of the proposed changes because the focus is primarily on one's ethnicity. The most important aspect of a person is not their ethnicity but character. Students can learn about the good & bad events in our state and country without focusing only on the effects on indigenous people groups and the African-American. How New Mexicans and all Americans need to be part of the conversation. Every American has value and worth. Each has much to contribute from their unique abilities and experiences.

I was raised in Santa Fe where three cultures exist. It was a wonderfully rich upbringing being exposed to different cultures. Yet, from the school bus, to school, to our community I wasn't focused on race. I saw individuals. In school learning both NM & US history was fascinating to me and I was aware of good decisions and wrong decisions made within each government and society. Yet I continue to be a staunch lover of NM and our country. My husband grew up in New York City in the projects. He played basketball with whoever was available to play with. Race wasn't a criteria. He learned about events in history but was not soured on our country or the state of New York.

We as Americans are a strong nation when we honor and respect everyone, not because of their race but because of the fact that we are all Americans. Nationalism isn't a bad thing. We need a united United States but this curriculum does not aid in this need. For example, if students discuss police brutality will it be evenly handled with the facts that show how most police officers seek to serve and protect? Once again we are back to character. Character determines a person, not their race.

Please decline to pass these changes.

Respectfully submitted,
Vincent & Cheryl Bonino
P O Box 99
Edgewood, NM 87015

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Sandra Borges <sborges1982@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (14 KB)

2021 Social Studies Standards Comments.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached.

Thank you,

Sandra Tapia -Borges

November 8, 2021

NMPED,

I am writing to provide my commentary on the Re-Development of the Social Studies Standards. However, I do believe there needs to be a fair evaluation of the current standards, but it doesn't seem like it is very fair. It seems very one-sided, politically. Reading through the proposed standards, there is evidence of a singular political stance. We need ideas that unite our diverse and culturally rich state does not divide us.

In these proposed standards, the goals of our country, Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness are not clearly stated.

As a first-generation, Hispanic woman, I am appalled at some of the teachings that are proposed in the new Social Studies Standards. The United States of America has allowed my family to pursue the American Dream. My parents are successful business owners in this country and are proud of what they have accomplished. To suggest that the United States of America is inequitable and unjust is terrible, my family certainly does not believe so.

In 9-12 US.56 Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system WOULD look like in the United States.....

WOULD look like? Our economic system has been efficient, equitable, and just for those that have worked hard and strive for a better life.

To suggest that the United States of America is inequitable and unjust is terrible. Groups and group identities are mentioned several times and quite frankly, I am offended. I do not want to be put in a group; I want to be labeled as an American. My parents worked hard to become Americans.

I refuse to be segregated or have a victim mentality. I refuse to have my child taught that she is a victim or is part of a group that is oppressed. I am of Mexican descent, and my husband is of Portuguese descent, and we are proud of our heritage, but we are very proud and so thankful this country allowed our families to succeed. We are not oppressed.

As I went through school, we learned about the history of the United States and sure, some of it is not good, but it's the truth and we have learned so much and have come a long way. I have friends of all races and colors, and we judge people based on their character, not the color of their skin. I hate that the world we live in today is working hard at making my friends of Anglo descent feel guilty for being Anglo.

I currently have a Kindergarten student, and as I read these proposed standards for this grade, I worry.

K.22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.

I want to encourage my child to see how we are all equal and not segregated by group identities. As a parent, I have worked hard to teach my children respect and to be proud to be an American – because that is what we all are – American.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed new social studies standards james martin <jmartinnm@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:55 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (19 KB)

social studies standards--comment letter.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: New Mexico Public Education Department, ATTN, John Sena,

Attached are my comments on the proposed repeal and replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

James Martin
Santa Fe, NM

November 11, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena;

This letter comprises my formal comments on the proposed repeal and replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. I strongly support the proposed new social studies standards. The scope and depth of the work of the committee that drafted them is deeply impressive and demonstrates by itself what a good education can mean. The PED is to be commended for undertaking the project that resulted in these revisions.

My two daughters, now adults with advanced degrees, are alumnae of the Santa Fe public schools, K-12. Being one who has also navigated public schools, I believe generally, as they do, that public schools in the U.S. are among our most remarkable institutions, and are crucial in preparing the great majority of us for participation as citizens in a democracy. As James Madison observed, “Learned Institutions ought to be favorite objects with every free people. They throw that light over the public mind which is the best security against crafty & dangerous encroachments on the public liberty.” That applies to all levels of public education. Equipping public school graduates to be critical thinkers by exposing them to a broad array of subjects and ideas ranging across science, mathematics, vocational training, language, civics and history, should give them at least the beginning of a foundation for the increasingly complex challenges of adulthood.

I start by addressing what is not included within these proposed standards. Some commentators have raised the specter of critical race theory. None of them seem to know what it is, much less try to define it. Nor do any identify where it is supposedly lurking in the proposed standards. Instead, it is being put forward and pummeled as a classic straw man. As far as I am aware, critical race theory, whatever it may be, has never been taught in New Mexico’s K-12 public schools. The proposed social studies standards would not change that. The concerns about critical race theory appear in actuality to be directed toward the teaching of topics such as the individual and national experience of slavery and its enduring aftermath, the oppression of indigenous peoples, and other discomfiting blots on our nation’s history. Their real quarrel, in other words, is with American history itself, not the teaching of it.

There is a lot that is admirable in these proposed standards. Let me emphasize two that I think are particularly significant.

- The re-introduction of “civics” as a cornerstone for responsible citizenship is a valuable response to these times of political misinformation and division. It is reassuring to see both the term and the concept in use again.

- The careful introduction of economic concepts in an age appropriate sequence will provide an intellectual foundation for children to understand economic motives and how policy acts to increase or decrease inequality.

I have a few suggestions I hope will prove helpful.

- I join Think New Mexico in recommending the teaching of personal financial literacy. As they point out, “New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. Personal finance standards teach students essential life skills like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investment in stocks and bonds, and the costs of borrowing. The research shows that students who receive this education are more likely to save money, budget their spending, invest, and obtain more financial aid for college.” Think New Mexico’s recommended changes along these lines should be adopted.
- The theory and history of the “social contract” should be added to the middle school civics strand. The balancing of individual wants and needs against the welfare of society and the country is an important theme underlying not only much of what is taught in the upper grades, but also what students will encounter in whatever manner they experience and deal with public policy.
- The judiciary’s role in government, with a focus on the U.S. Supreme Court and its major decisions, should be included in high school instructional materials. Such materials should address the role of the court in resolving legal and political controversies across the country, and in the importance of these decisions in enforcing civil rights and civil liberties.
- Our nation keeps fighting wars in Asia without knowing much about that part of the world. Instruction on Asia should go beyond the classical periods in China and India. In the geography strand and the colonialism theme it is important to include Southeast Asia, Japan, the Philippines and Korea to provide context for WWII, the Korean, Viet Nam and Afghanistan wars, and ongoing tensions.
- As laudable as the high school standards are, they could be better organized to ensure a clearer presentation. In their present form, there is a lot of repetition.

In sum, I urge the Department to adopt the bulk of these standards, with some enhancement. Children need to master the standards outlined in this proposed regulation to prepare to be effective citizens and problem solvers.

“...if a nation expects to be ignorant & free, in a state of civilisation, it expects what never was & never will be.” —Thomas Jefferson

Respectfully,

James Martin
 Santa Fe, NM
 jmartinnm@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Rules robert pohlman <bobpohlman74@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 2:58 PM

To: HelpDesk, PED, PED <PED.HelpDesk@state.nm.us>; Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (1 MB)

House Republican Caucus Letter Regarding Proposed K-12 Social Studies Standards[96].pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

New Mexico Public Education Department:
Dr Kurt Stenhaus,
Secretary

It is astonishing to me that it is necessary for Republicans in the House to make the kind of appeal they did to the PED. (See attached.)

A lifelong fighter for civil rights, I strenuously object to the current attempts to segregate Americans by race, gender, etc. (and to impute individual behavior to groups, based on immutable characteristics like skin color.)

I know that by the standards of today's extreme left I may be an anachronism, but I am proud of a nation which rose up and gave hundreds of thousands of lives (both white and people of color) to eliminate slavery. I'm proud of a nation that overwhelmingly responded to Dr. Martin Luther King's call for character over color, and passed multiple acts of civil rights legislation.

And I'm proud that when a kindergarten teacher realized she was (unintentionally) conditioning my daughter with a "women's-things/men's things" exercise, she stopped. My daughter is not just a woman, she is a person!

And I'm a person; not a gender, not a color.

I think teaching about slavery and "Jim Crow" is appropriate, and I learned about it in school as every student should, but there is nothing equitable about "equity" in today's parlance. It is clear that a litany of progressive political orthodoxy is being advanced by the PED's Social Studies proposals, to the detriment of "education."

The people don't want progressive or right-wing brainwashing and our kids deserve better.

PED's Social Studies proposals foster division, not unity. They are the very definition of racism. They must be stopped by PED or they will be stopped at the ballot box.

Bob Pohlman
7220 Quail Springs Pl NE
Albuquerque, NM. 87113

State of New Mexico
House of Representatives
STATE CAPITOL
Santa Fe

November 9, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

We are writing to express our strong opposition to the new proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards that are currently undergoing a 45-day public comment period. Our opposition to these new proposed standards is based on our belief they incorporate the fundamentally flawed concepts of Critical Race Theory (CRT), plus they impose a progressive/liberal bias in regards to historical and societal events that are being mandated to be taught to New Mexico students. We, in turn, strongly urge the Public Education Department's (PED) leadership team to make substantial changes to these proposed standards in order to eliminate both of these highly objectionable aspects.

Social Studies education should be focused on teaching students why the U.S. and state constitutions are the pillars of our republic and how/why these documents are fundamental to fulfilling the American ideal that all people are created equal; how our governmental structures work and why governmental authority is dispersed among three separate, but co-equal branches; and how our free-enterprise system has resulted in a standard of living that is the envy of people across the globe and which provides a beacon of economic opportunity for all. It should not, however, be viewed as an opportunity to indoctrinate students with the false theology that our country is systemically racist, all things can be described in terms of oppressor and oppressed, or that our capitalistic system must be replaced with the paternalistic system of socialism.

Sadly, we believe these proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards fail to teach students what has made America great, but instead has followed the path of various historical revisionists who only want to degrade and slander the greatest country on earth. Our country's history is not perfect in terms of economic and human rights, but that does not require altering Social Studies curriculums to embrace a highly distorted or biased view that the United States is dominated by white supremacists and racists. Rather than encouraging division and victimhood among our diverse populations, Social Studies curriculums should encourage students to realize we are all Americans and we all have opportunities for economic advancement based on the principles of family, education, and work.

At least 26 states have either adopted or are considering various policies/legislation that would restrict the teaching of CRT or limit how teachers can discuss racism and sexism. New Mexico should join these other 26 states in rejecting this Marxist inspired theology and not allow a rulemaking process (which is overseen by an unelected bureaucracy which is likely sympathetic to this ideology) which requires no action by the State Legislature to supersede the will of the majority of New Mexicans who oppose the imposition of CRT-inspired theories upon our students.

We have objections to a significant number of the new proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards, however, the specific items listed below are the most problematic and which demand PED's most careful review to ensure substantial changes or outright eliminations are made:

- In Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies --- Proposed 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d) and 6.29.11.23(A)(3)(b): These standards require students to assess how social policies and economic forces “offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity...” and investigate how society should address “systemic inequity.” Such language is classic CRT as it creates and perpetuates the false premise of so-called privilege and systemic inequity. Rather than teaching division and racism, these standards should focus on unity and establishing a shared commitment to the ideals of equality and opportunity. Further, we would suggest that the entire Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies curriculum be scraped and a completely new set of standards be drafted to ensure there is no CRT-inspired theology included in any way.
- For Kindergarten and Other Elementary Grades --- Proposed 6.29.11.8(F)(3)(a), 6.29.11.9(F)(4)(a), and 6.29.11.10(F)(4)(a): These standards encourage kindergarten, first grade and second grade students to “take action” to address local, regional and/or global problems. While this standard may have an altruistic intent, it could result in a situation where these young students are exploited for various political or public policy reasons by adults who want to create the impression their cause is so just that even elementary students support their idea. These young students are highly impressible and their “support” for any effort to address problems can easily be manipulated by teachers and others for their own political/policy benefit. Students who are five, six, or seven years old should never be placed in a situation where they would serve as props in a photo-op organized by activists. These standards should be eliminated.
- Throughout the entire Social Studies curriculum for grades K-8, there are “Anchor Standards” entitled “Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards” which create a platform to focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. It also provides an opportunity, such as in Proposed Standards 6.29.11.11(E)(2), 6.29.11.15(E)(7), and 6.29.11.15(E)(12), for a teacher to impose a singular notion of “justice and fairness,” “unequal power relations,” and “past and current injustices,” although such terms are highly subjective and open to many interpretations. As with many aspects of these curriculum standards under the ethnic, cultural, and identity rubric, this area is rife with mandates that impose a certain set of values and beliefs that are not universally shared by all New Mexicans. Any attempts to lead students towards a specific value system should be completely eliminated from these standards as they can provide students with a biased understanding of complex events.
- High School U.S. History --- Proposed 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b), 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f), 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d), and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e): Although the stated themes related to these standards are “U.S. Origins” and “Early America: The American Revolution and the Constitution,” there are five specific standards whose primary focus is slavery, yet there are no standards on why America fought to gain its independence from England and only two standards regarding the crafting of the U.S. Constitution and its impact on the United States. This “preoccupation” with slavery during the formation of America is consistent with the false assertions of revisionist historians who claim America was founded on the principles of slavery, the so-called 1619 Project. This distorted and absurd assertion has no place in any high school history curriculum, especially when the struggle for religious and economic liberties in early America, as well as why it was essential to extract America from the dictates of a foreign monarch are never considered within the context of these standards. There are numerous other standards within High School U.S. History [Proposed 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k), 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f), 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g), and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)] that echo this apparent obsession with slavery as the economic driving force during our nation's westward expansion. It is solely another effort to indoctrinate students with a radicalized social and political agenda.

- High School U.S. History --- Proposed 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i): This standard calls on students to “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” Such a requirement sounds eerily similar to the principles of CRT in terms of stressing “equity” and “just economic system.” Plus, who gets to define what these terms mean and what specific actions/steps satisfy whatever definition is utilized? Once again, rather than teaching students the principles embedded within our current capitalistic/free enterprise system, there is an obvious effort to encourage students to support some idealistic (socialism) economic system that may never be healthy for the country. This standard should be eliminated and replaced with a standard that provides students with a balanced discussion of the U.S. economic system.
- High School U.S. History --- Proposed 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m), 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z), and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll): All of these standards relate to how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and the 1920s, as well as the activism and experiences of the LGBTQIA+ community during 1968 - 2008. We fail to comprehend the rationale for why high school students are required to learn about how gender and sexuality norms were changing during various historical periods and how is this perspective essential to a student's understanding of U.S. history during these two periods. In addition, why does every student have to examine the activities of the LGBTQIA+ community during a 40 year period? If individual students have an interest in LGBTQIA+ history, those students can conduct independent research in those related subjects. However, to require all students to do so, appears to be just another example of trying to mold students towards acceptance of a personal or social agenda that is highly controversial.
- High School U.S. History --- Proposed 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg): As we have shown above, these proposed K-12 Social Studies Standards are filled with examples of students being mandated to learn about a wide range of progressive/liberal ideals and agendas. Yet, maybe the most egregious example of this indoctrination is the standard which requires the examination of past, present, and future gun violence in the U.S. While understanding the relationship between crime and violence is a worthy subject of inquiry, it is not surprising this standard makes no reference to the constitutional rights afforded citizens to bear arms nor is there any discussion required as to how the proliferation of gangs, drug cartels, terrorist organizations, and other criminal enterprises have resulted in more gun violence within our society nor is there any requirement to help students understand that violence is perpetuated by individuals and not inanimate objects. This standard requires an extensive rewrite to ensure students are provided the “full story” on gun violence as noted above.

We assume proponents of these “reworked” proposed Social Studies standards will argue that CRT is not mentioned any place within these standards and that CRT concepts are not being imposed on New Mexico students. We would strongly disagree (as we pointed out in several bullet items listed above) and would respond that, of course, CRT is not explicitly mentioned within the standards as doing so would generate tremendous opposition from countless parents, taxpayers, administrators, and teachers who are opposed to this radical ideology. Further, any explicit reference to CRT would most certainly doom these proposed standard from ever being approved and implemented. However, the continual and not-so-subtle inclusion of various words and phrases, such as “inequity,” “oppression,” “unequal power relations”, “racism,” and “injustice” are implicit admissions by the drafters of these proposed standards that CRT and it’s flawed vision of America is exactly what they are trying to impose through these Social Studies Standards.

Nonetheless, it is not just the CRT references we find objectionable, it is also the overall progressive/liberal slant or bias these standards are clearly designed to impart during the teaching of Social Studies in grades K-12. Within the proposed standards, there are numerous examples of classic progressive/liberal doctrine being promoted and all of these instances need to be either redrafted or eliminated to ensure New Mexico’s students are not subjected to a slanted view of our nation’s/state’s history and how our government and economic systems work. Specific examples include:

- Examine and evaluate the rules, laws, and authorities that keep people “safe” in New Mexico, but, of course, no mention of which rules, laws and authorities that keep New Mexicans “free.” [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.12(A)(1)]
- Describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)]
- Evaluate how society’s responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.15(E)(3)]
- Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)]
- Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.15(E)(8)]
- Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.16(F)(3)(f)]
- Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the U.S. arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions. Of course, no reference is made in any standard regarding the violence and intimidation provided by radical left groups like Antifa, Black Lives Matter, Weather Underground, The Earth Liberation Front, etc. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.16(D)(5)(c)]
- Demonstrate ability to use relevant historical evidence to synthesize information regarding the impact of nuclear weapons on people around the world. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.20(D)(2)(e)]
- Examine the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America, yet there is no requirement to explain to students how communist rule in Cuba has been negatively impacting that country for decades. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)]
- Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(aa)]
- Explore the movement against police brutality. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)]
- Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)]
- Analyze US government policies to reduce climate disruption. [Proposed Standard 6.29.11.21(A)(4)(t)]

We believe the proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standard, in their current form, fail to provide students with a clear and balanced understanding of why the United States of America and the State of New Mexico should be admired for its many positive attributes. Therefore, we strongly urge PED's leadership to make substantial revisions to the proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards to ensure our students are provided an opportunity to not only learn the fundamental principles on which our republic was founded, but also gain a respectful appreciation of our country's political and economic systems.

We also concur with the request being made by numerous New Mexico public school districts that the public comment period related to these proposed standards be extended to July 1, 2022 in order to give parents, educators, and other interested citizens sufficient time to review and comprehend the many detailed standards contained in this proposal.

Finally, we also strongly encourage PED to submit these proposed standards to the State Legislature for formal hearings to further expand awareness throughout New Mexico as to what and how students will be taught Social Studies in the years ahead.

Thank you for giving our concerns, comments, and suggestions your most serious consideration.

Respectfully yours,

James G. Townsend
House Republican Leader

Rod Montoya
House Republican Whip

Rebecca Dow
Caucus Chair

Randall S. Crowder
State Representative HD 64

Alonzo Baldonado
State Representative HD 8

Ryan T. Lane
State Representative HD 3

Candy Spence Ezzell
State Representative HD 58

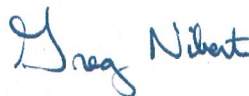

Cathrynn N. Brown
State Representative HD 55

Martin Zamora
State Representative HD 63

Rachael A. Black
State Representative HD 51

Greg Nibert
State Representative HD 59

Randall T. Pettigrew
State Representative HD 61

Gail Armstrong
State Representative HD 49

James R.J. Strickler
State Representative HD 2

Jack Chatfield
State Representative HD 67

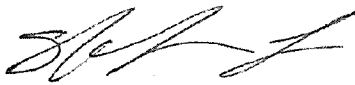

Larry Scott
State Representative HD 62

William R. Rehm
State Representative HD 31

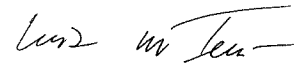

Jane E. Powdrell-Culbert
State Representative HD 44

Stefani Lord
State Representative HD 22

Kelly K. Fajardo
State Representative HD 7

Luis M. Terrazas
State Representative HD 39

Zachary J. Cook
State Representative HD 56

Joshua Hernandez
State Representative HD 60

Jason C. Harper
State Representative HD 57

[EXTERNAL] I am Opposed to Social Studies Standard Proposals

Stacey Turner <stacey@turner.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 3:12 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: kristy_crocket@yahoo.com <kristy_crocket@yahoo.com>; jerretturner@gmail.com <jerretturner@gmail.com>; socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org <socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a parent of two NM high school students and I have grave concerns with the new proposed social studies content standards. The proposed standards seem more like assignments versus true standards, and fail to cover actual events in history. They seem more like a group think tank experiment than history class. Key and important concepts or processes of the federal government are absent from the new standards. There are no references to limited government, separation of power, inalienable rights, federalism, democracy, or checks and balances. It seems as if the people and the events have been removed and the standards are very vague in nature. The standards should reference some of the historical figures and their very important theories. Study of the people and their ideas in history are vital. The proposed standards fail to specifically address some of the most key component instructions of our government.

There are very few standards if any at all that point to the greatness of the United States and its goals of life liberty and the pursuit of happiness. There is a little mention of the great opportunities that our students as Americans enjoy, however there is a heavy focus on the negative side such as how are you limited by your identity. Is that really what we want to teach our kids, to be victims and how limited they are? Where is the mention of the positive efforts of Americans who have worked to help everyone in this nation? It seems as if the standards value the individual more than the collective identity of our whole nation.

Often of the standards lend themselves to being written to a singular political dogma. 5.1 to describe how an equity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.

Many of the guiding principles and the language in the standards are doing the work of the parent. 9-12.US.87 Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms have changed and stayed the same in 1920s America. Sexuality in the past is now a US history concept that needs to be taught? Why? That's my responsibility as a parent not the school's responsibility. It should not be included in history concepts.

The standards talk about identity and bias, such as the reference to inherent bias in maps. How are maps biased? Is it important for a teacher to actively help a student identify their identity group at a Kindergarten level? I feel this is a reversal of how far we have come and all we have taught our kids to be inclusive. 3.28 Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups. My question is, is our identity really based on our culture and our groups?

Understanding gun control debate is important but singling out the consequence of gun violence actually is biased. 9-12.US.132 Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence an American society past, present, and future. If we teach the consequences of gun violence should we not also include the importance of guns and protecting those such as the President of the United States.

As a parent in this state, I do not approve of these proposed standards. Please refer to the Artesia Social Studies Department Edits that were submitted. This was a combined effort of the social studies department at the secondary schools in Artesia. Every effort was made to keep the spirit of the standard while removing language that some perceive as political.

Thank you, Stacey Turner

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: CRITICAL RACE THEORY IS CRITICALLY DIVISIVE AND, THUS, CRITICALLY WRONG

Jess Holmes <jess.t.holmes@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 3:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

----- Forwarded message -----

From: jess holmes <jess.t.holmes@gmail.com>

Date: Thu, Nov 11, 2021 at 8:42 AM

Subject: CRITICAL RACE THEORY IS CRITICALLY DIVISIVE AND, THUS, CRITICALLY WRONG

To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>

Since the days of Martin Luther King, we, as a society, have truly endeavored to teach inclusivity to all and to end discrimination forever. The idea that teaching divisive critical race theory would better human relationships is absurd... it will actually exacerbate the ugliness that prevails when one race considers another race to be inferior. We should be moving away from thoughts and ideas that point out cultural differences and accusing people of being guilty of transgressions that occurred before they were even conceived. If, for example, I had a father that was incarcerated for some crime, I would certainly be affected by it but I would not be guilty of his transgression. The teaching of CRT is doing just that... accusing youth of being guilty for something that perhaps their ancestors did or did not do. Of course we must know our history and what has transpired before but we must not be forever tainted by our skin color and our "accidental" birth... Yes, we must know real history so that we will not repeat the errors that occurred, but we must do it in a way that uplifts and not accusatorily condemns. Learn from the past... take the best and move forward...

Instead of teaching divisiveness, therefore, we must be concentrating on teaching our youth the very principles upon which this Country was founded. We must stress the preamble of the Constitution of the United States that states: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." In addition, there are certain inalienable Rights as stated in the Bill of Rights and those include the right of free speech, of free assembly, of free press and free religion... in short, freedoms that were never found in those countries from which the settlers of this country fled. They came to this Country to escape the inequities of their homelands and to find freedom for themselves and their families. This Country was not, as certain divisive groups would have us believe, founded on slavery. Slavery was unfortunately an inherent and abhorrent practice throughout the history of the world from the time of the Egyptians to today in ALL parts the world and was something our society experienced and abhorred. Our ancestors fought a civil war to end that inhumane and inglorious practice. Therefore, we must be teaching our youth that the practice of slavery should not be tolerated under ANY conditions and that they should be grateful that our Country is no longer encumbered by those practices. We got away from that when the Civil Rights Act of 1964 specifically outlawed discrimination based upon race, color, religion, sex and national origin.

I urge you, therefore, to encourage the youth of our Country to move forward... in a positive way... to promote the tenets upon which this Country was founded... to once and for all put an end to racial division and teach us all to be color blind... that no matter our ancestral background, we are all equal and enjoy the same equal opportunities to better ourselves and this Country. Martin Luther King said it for us all... "All men are created equal..." Who are we, then, to begin to undo those beautiful words and return to the pre-civil rights era of creating cultural divisions... CRT is the ugly elephant in the room that would have us all, our children included, believe that we are not all created equal...

Thank you and I trust you will regard this letter as a positive step toward the educational future of our children,

Jess Holmes

Sent from Mail for Windows

Virus-free. www.avg.com

--

In GOD We Trust
GOD Bless the United States of America

Jess Holmes, FAIA, LLC consulting architect/planner
524 W. Main. Street
Artesia, NM 88210
575.736.8620
575.736.8621 (fax)
575.748.5207 (Cell)

[EXTERNAL] In Opposition to Proposed Social Studies Curriculum

Barnabas Institute / Center for Christian Community <c4cc@comcast.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 3:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To-Whom-It-May-Concern:

From: JD Vasquez

Date: November 11, 2021

Re: In Opposition to Proposed Social Studies Curriculum

New Mexico is dead last in education and the proposed social studies curriculum is designed to keep us there. This country was founded by those seeking religious freedom, willing to risk a three-month journey across a vast ocean in wooden ships propelled only by the wind.

Instead, our children will learn that African slave ships motivated by greed created this nation.

The new curriculum does not mention our nation's Founding Fathers, i.e. George Washington or Thomas Jefferson. There is no mention of the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. We have no Presidency, no Congress, no Supreme Court.

Diversity is the hallmark of every class level and sexuality a principal issue. Our high school students are asked to "identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century." New Mexico already has a curriculum that reflects our values. That's New Mexico's need.

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed New Statute for Public Schools for kids

TJ CL <tjcl0201@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 3:19 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Tammy. I have read the upcoming proposal to social studies in New Mexico. Your proposal hints too dangerously close to Critical Race Theory. Which in of itself is racist and seeks to further make the public school system even more divisive than it already is. Social studies should be about learning the societal aspects of our country and our world. There shouldn't be any talk of racism or separating our children into different categories based on the color of their skin.

I strongly object to these proposed changes and as a taxpayer in the state of New Mexico feel it is the duty of the PED to change the proposed social studies curriculum to NOT INCLUDE any racism theories. It will further divide this state and this country and will force good teachers out of the educational system when we already have a severe shortage of great teachers.

Please consider changing the social studies curriculum to not include your proposals.

Sincerely,

Tammy Lidyard
tjcl0201@gmail.com
505-452-6426

[EXTERNAL] Teaching Personal Finance

Charles Hyle <cshyle72@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 3:30 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We are writing in support of the proposal to include the teaching of personal finance into the Primary and Secondary Education Standards for Excellence. It is extremely important for all young students, especially those from disadvantaged households, to have these life skills in order to make progress into adulthood and we strongly support this proposal.

Sincerely

Charles and Charlene Hyle
1035 Sierra Del Norte
Santa Fe NM. 87501

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory

Donna Crawford <donnalee.crawford69@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 3:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (11 MB)

VIDEO-2021-11-06-20-16-47.mp4;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

See attachment

Subject: FW: Critical Race Theory

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Lisa Hawkins <lhawkins@fms.k12.nm.us>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:11 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Below are my comments on the proposed Social Studies standards:

DELETES

- K.14. Identify how individuals are similar and different. DELETE This topic asks students to open up about personal subjects that are no business of their peers. We should be teaching children to be united in a community, not how we can pick each other apart by the way they were raised, what beliefs they have, or how they look. We have children that live in a nuclear families and children that live with extended families due to circumstances that children may or may not understand. We do not need to put our students into potentially embarrassing situations.
- K.17. Explain what scarcity is and how scarcity affects the accessibility of goods and services. DELETE New Mexico has diverse socio-economic communities. This topic asks students to identify hardships of their peers or of themselves and could have detrimental consequences to their self esteem and how they see their family or community members. We have students that come to school and say they cannot read at night because they don't have books at home. We have students that take home food bags once a month because food is "scarce" and they depend on a little extra food from the school. Teaching this could point out a deficiency in a student's family and we don't need them to feel badly about themselves.
- K.21. Explain why and how people move from place to place within a community. DELETE What is the purpose of this topic? In my classroom it means that I have students that move from place to place because their mother is a drug addict and they are homeless. They move in with friends one week, then Grandma, another week, then out again. Another child in my class had to be taken by his grandparents because his mother went to jail and his father didn't want him. This is not a topic in which students, especially 5 year olds, need to be discussing nor should understand adult-family decisions.
- K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities. DELETE This looks like a social-emotional learning skill, not a social studies skill. This asks students to find and point out differences amongst their peers and to identify with a group. What groups are these standards expecting kindergarteners to identify with? Children should identify that people are people and we need to work together to build great communities. This wants children to separate themselves into "groups".
- K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not. DELETE What "identities" are these standards trying to teach children? This skill wants children to separate themselves from their peers and have them be part of a "group" that excludes some or all of their peers. This asks students to judge differences between the children instead of finding ways to explain how the children can work together to make great communities. This asks students to single-out their peers when they find a difference in their "identities." This will have a negative effect on the classroom and school community.
- K.24. Identify how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things. DELETE This asks students to bring personal history to the classroom. We have diverse families in New Mexico and there isn't any reason why students need to compare and contrast their lives to their peers. This could be embarrassing to students, this could cause students to be jealous of each other, and would affect attitudes and relationships of students in a class.
- 1.12. Examine and identify cultural differences within a community. DELETE Why do we need to point out differences within our community? We are supposed to be teaching children that we are created equal and should identify each other as such. We should be examined by our character not where we come from or what we identify as.

- 1.14. Examine choices that families make due to scarcity, and identify costs associated with these choices DELETE Forces kids to single out their peers or themselves. We have diverse socio-economic families that suffer from the lack of income and resources. This could be embarrassing to students and would affect attitudes and relationships of students in a class if they knew more about the lifestyles of their peers.
- 1.23. Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways. DELETE This asks students to bring personal history to the classroom. Children do not need to be pointing out the differences or beliefs amongst each other. We have diverse families in New Mexico and there isn't any reason why students need to compare and contrast their lives to their peers. This could lead to negative discussions and would affect attitudes and relationships of students in a class. 6 and 7 years old do not normally find things "interesting" but rather think new things are weird if it is not how their family does things. This could embarrass some students if peers make fun of they way they live.
- 1.24. Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special. DELETE "identity" standards should be taught by families, not learned at school. Giving positive affirmations to students is important and letting students know they matter and are loved. We do not need to be pointing out identities at school, this could have negative impacts with the relationships teachers have with families.
- 2.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. EDIT As a class, create a plan to address a classroom problem. (Take action on local, regional, and or/global problems is too broad a subject to expect second graders to participate in solving. Basic problem solving is appropriate)
- 2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not. DELETE Students are asked to identify themselves in some sort of group. And then it wants them to compare and contrast themselves with their peers. This asks students to bring personal history to the classroom. Children do not need to be pointing out the differences or beliefs amongst each other. We have diverse families in New Mexico and children do not need to be pointing out how different they are from their classmates. This could lead to negative discussions and would affect attitudes and relationships of students in a class.
- 2.29. Demonstrate respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me. DELETE This sounds like a social-emotional skill to teach children to be respectful to one another...no matter what. I do not like how it states "similar and different from me." This is a divisive sentence to teach children. It wants children to recognize and know that they are different from other people and use those differences to identify as a separate group from their peers.
- 3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups. DELETE Cultural identity needs to be taught at home, not school. Educators do not need to have students compare and contrast their family dynamics with their peers or other community members.
- 5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are. DELETE What groups? Is this asking educators to identify (discriminate) groups of people and have the students research the treatment of them? This needs to be specific in what students need to research and once it is specific on who needs to be researched, it sounds like a high school standard, not fifth grade.
- 6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. DELETE cultural identity should be taught at home as well as self esteem. Being proud of where you come from is important, but is the responsibility of educators. We should not be encouraging children to separate themselves into "groups."
- 6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. DELETE cultural identity should be taught at home as well as self esteem. Being proud of where you come from is important, but is the responsibility of educators.
- 6.17. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems DELETE As a 6th grader they need to be focusing on reading, writing, and math so they can become young adults to decide if they want to be social/political activists.

- 6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives. DELETE We should not be encouraging children to separate each other into “groups.”
- 6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures. DELETE This is not specific. “Treatment of people” What people? Is this asking educators and students to identify (discriminate) groups of people and have the students research the treatment of them?
- 7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity. DELETE This is a divisive skill. This will require students to express what stereotypes they have heard which would divide the peers. This would have a negative impact on the relationships students have with their peers and teachers. We should be teaching children the things that unit us, not what divides us.
- 7.12. Explore opportunities to be an ally and describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally. DELETE Educators are not in the business of creating social activists. Educators do not need to be having conversations with children about stereotypes. We should be teaching children the things that unit us, not what divides us.
- 7.27. Define and explain the present demographics of our state. DELETE Children should be taught that we are all people and we should not discriminate against each other based on our race, color, religion, gender, gender, age, national origin, disability, etc. Teaching demographics to children divides the children amongst their peers. This skill sounds like a college level discussion question to use on ARC GIS software.
- 7.28. Evaluate how society’s responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry. DELETE What social identities is this referring to? We live in the United States where our constitution protects our rights. Everyone has a voice and can find access to these “societal institutions.” Children are provided education, NM provides healthcare with Medicaid, we are able to vote for government officials, and I don't know what it is referring to as “industry” as having access or barriers. We all have access to these things and if we respect and contribute to our communities. (Unless you have special circumstances where you depend on someone to care for you.)
- 7.49. Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/ identities. DELETE Not all children have a cultural heritage (I certainly don't) and we do not need to divide students by asking them to identify themselves into a group. This skill is inequitable for all children to participate in (for the first part.)
- 7.50. Identify what students want the world to see when their culture is on display, and how to address negative perceptions. DELETE We do not need to teach children about their cultures and how people may think of their culture negatively. This should be taught at home.
- 7.93 DELETE
- 7.94 DELETE
- 7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time. DELETE This is an exclusive skill that does not incorporate all students to participate. Not all students identify themselves in “groups”. Teaching students to identify themselves into groups separates them from the rest of their peers or community.
- 8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. DELETE Not all students would be able to participate because not everyone identifies with e culture or an identity. This is a divisive skill.
- 8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. DELETE Not all students would be able to participate because not everyone identifies with e culture or an identity. This is a divisive skill. This asks students to have negativel conversations towards their peers or members of their community. We should be teaching unity, not division.
- 8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally and engaging in positive civic behaviors in classrooms, schools, and the broader community. DELETE We have laws and a constitution that protect us from stereotyping and being unable to gain access to these things. Educators should not be telling students who could get in their way, they should be educating students on how to be productive members of their community, have positive impacts in their communities, and explain how these skills will help them engage in positive civic behaviors.

- 8.22. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. DELETE This is not specific. It should have reference to specific events in history or current times. Educators are not responsible for teaching children to become activists. Educators at this grade level should be teaching the history of events when ideas, lifestyles, governments were challenged and how the people addressed those problems and the results that were gained or lost.

- 8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future. DELETE The future of what exactly? This is not specific and is making assumptions on possible people that they need to be healed. What do educators need students to be thinking about how to mend or heal the future of something undefined?

- 8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture. DELETE The skills taught during this time period are specific for the students to understand the history of Expansion and Displacement. This topic is a deep conversation that would be taught in college.

- 9-12.ECI.13 through 9-12.ECI.22 DELETE These standards are divisive to teach young adults. Educators should not be instigating conversations about identity groups, racial constructs, religion, and cultures. These conversations ask students to discriminate against each other or members in their communities instead of bringing the community together. 16-22 are negative in nature and would only promote discussion of discontent intended to divide each other. These sound like they should be taught at a college level. Honestly, the entire Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies social studies program should be deleted.

More Edits and deletions

EDITS

- K.4. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. EDIT As a class, create a plan to address a classroom problem. (take action on local, regional, and or/global problems is too broad a subject to expect Kindergarteners to participate in solving. Basic problem solving is appropriate)

- K.13. Sequence important events in your life. EDIT Sequence an important event in your life.

- K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups. EDIT Describe a person in their family that has helped contribute to their family in a positive way. OR DELETE: What groups are we expecting Kindergarteners to place themselves into? Learning about genealogy is a different grade level standard (was 8th grade when I was a kid) and Kindergarteners should not be expected to know the history of their family and culture. Especially if they come from broken and dysfunctional homes.

- 1.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. EDIT As a class, create a plan to address a classroom problem. (Take action on local, regional, and or/global problems is too broad a subject to expect first graders to participate in solving. Basic problem solving is appropriate)

- 2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad. EDIT Describe and explain a positive characteristic about themselves and another member in their community (class, school, family, town).

- 3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly. EDIT Describe and explain a positive characteristic about another member in their community (class, school, family, town).

- 3.29. Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world. EDIT Identify people who have worked throughout history to bring positive impacts on the world.

- 4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people's lives and experiences without judgment. EDIT Interview a member in the community to find out about their life experiences. OR DELETE IT.

When I read this I see "Nicely ask questions about someone's personal life and try not to make judgments about them.” Teaching manners and respect to students is a social-emotional skill. This sentence above could be expecting children to not use their instincts when learning facts about people. If they meet a stranger who tells them a story that doesn’t sound quite right, fishy, or disturbing, a child could potentially be in a bad situation and not know any better to leave or tell a trusted adult what they found out. If we teach children to think everyone is unique and we need to respect all the information they tell us, then we could be teaching children to let their guards down.

● 5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups. EDIT Demonstrate knowledge of family history by researching their genealogy. OR DELETE: What groups are we expecting fifth graders to place themselves into? Learning about genealogy is an appropriate opportunity to have the children research.

6.21. Demonstrate relationships between personal events and historical events. EDIT Describe how a historical event affected your personal life.

● 7.26. Analyze how groups maintain their cultural heritage and how we see this heritage through the symbols, traditions, and culture of our state. EDIT (Needs to be more specific to New Mexico so educators and students do not need to identify groups to learn about.)

● 8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies. EDIT Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience.

9-12.Geo.27. Make reasoned ethical judgments about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determine appropriate ways to respond. EDIT Make factual judgments about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determine appropriate ways to respond

● 9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using AND 9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico. EDIT Is this meant to be together as one standard? "Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico"

● 9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America. EDIT Examine the ways in which gender norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America

● 9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality. EDIT I’m not exactly sure how to edit this. There are many students that come from dysfunctional families who have had negative experiences with police officers. I can’t think of another way to have students learn about the actions of police officers following the laws (which some may not have been good laws) at the time of the events this time period is referring to (1968-2008)

● 9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future. DELETE Real examination of the history of guns would take longer than a few weeks for students to understand. Due to the politicization of gun violence in recent years, it would be difficult for an educator to have an unbiased approach in teaching this subject and accurate information because this is a huge topic to learn and teach.

● 9-12.US.133. Analyze the current state and health of American democracy and create an action plan to protect American democracy. DELETE What does this mean “state and health of American democracy?” Who wrote this and already determined that American democracy needs protecting?

● 9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present. DELETE This is another divisive topic to be discussing in high school. This has also been a politicization topic in the media and this standard assumes there is only one side to the conversation of anti-immigration. Immigration is already covered in other anchor standards in the high school standards about the past. This standard attacks an anti-immigration idea that not everyone agrees with.

● 9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. DELETE This part that states “a more just and equitable America” doesn’t make sense. I read this as “America is just and equitable, but lets single out diverse groups like Native Americans and African Americans and make it MORE just and equitable for them and not everyone.” We shouldn’t be singling out groups of people because we are all people. The United States is equitable to all people because we all have the opportunity to accomplish what we want to achieve. This standard would make our “land of opportunity” seem as if groups need to have advantages over the rest of its citizens.

Thank you,
Lisa Hawkins

--

Lisa Hawkins
Kindergarten Teacher
Esperanza Elementary
505-599-8676

"Helping Others Pursue Excellence"

This is a staff email account managed by Farmington Municipal Schools. This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the sender.

Confidentiality Notice: This e-mail, including all attachments, is for the sole use of the intended recipients and may contain confidential and privileged information. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure, or distribution is prohibited unless specifically provided under the New Mexico Inspection of Public Records Act. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender and destroy all copies of this message.

[EXTERNAL] NO to the proposed Social Studies Standards

Kristina Naber <kristinanaber@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The proposed standards include additions based solely on opinion... Racism and sexism, gender identities should not be discussed in the classroom. I went through public ed in Albuquerque from K-12 and I did learn about slavery and I do know because of what I was taught how wrong it is... I also learned treating people differently based on the shade of brown their skin is, is also VERY WRONG. Children should not be taught to notice such things. Children inherently do not notice these things. Talking about gender identities and sex should also not be allowed in the classroom.

Our children are our future, our freedom fighters and our legacy... We must do better for them in all aspects of society, especially in the classroom, therefore do not allow this change to the social studies curriculum..

Sincerely,
Kristina

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Comment from David Rogers

Christina Albright <christina.albright@aps.edu>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

David Rogers (505.504.3613) left a message for the Albuquerque Public Schools Board of Education because he thought we were taking comments and wanted to comment on the new Social Studies curriculum.

Mr. Rogers said, in his phone message, that he understood the curriculum included critical race theory (CRT). He does not want to see it include CRT. He thinks that CRT is divisive and should be left to the colleges to teach. He thinks New Mexico has gotten along well with one another for 400 years and we don't need to make things more difficult for young children. He wanted his comments to be heard.

Please let me know if you have any questions.
Thank you for all you do!
Christy Albright

--

Christy Albright | she/her/hers | Albuquerque Public Schools | Board of Education Constituent Services Specialist

Cell: 505.252.3211 | Office: 505.880.3729 | Christina.Albright@aps.edu | PO Box 25704 Albuquerque, NM 87125-0704

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and attached documents may contain confidential information. All information is intended only for the use of the named recipient. If you are not the named recipient, you are not authorized to read, disclose, copy, distribute or take any action in reliance on the information and any action other than immediate delivery to the named recipient is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, do not read the information and please immediately notify sender by telephone or email to arrange for a return of the original documents. If you are the named recipient you are not authorized to reveal any of this information to any other unauthorized person. If you did not receive all pages listed or if pages are not legible, please immediately notify sender by phone or email.

[EXTERNAL] NO to Social Studies Standards change

Joel Naber <joeldnaber76@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The proposed standards include additions based solely on opinion... Racism and sexism, gender identities should not be discussed in the classroom. I went through public ed in Albuquerque from K-12 and I did learn about slavery and I do know because of what I was taught how wrong it is... I also learned treating people differently based on the shade of brown their skin is, is also VERY WRONG. Children should not be taught to notice such things. Children inherently do not notice these things. Talking about gender identities and sex should also not be allowed in the classroom.

Our children are our future, our freedom fighters and our legacy... We must do better for them in all aspects of society, especially in the classroom, therefore do not allow this change to the social studies curriculum..

Sincerely,
Kristina

[EXTERNAL] Kindergarden-12th-Grade Social Studies adam squire <adamcsquire@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

PED:

I strongly disagree with the adoption of the proposed Kindergarden-12th-Grade Social Studies. New Mexicans should not be taught they are oppressor's, racist, and that police are inherently bad people.

I have already pulled my two son's out of public schools because of this slant in teaching. I am concerned for those who do not have the means to homeschool or attend a private school.

Please do not institute this social studies program. New Mexican children have a hard enough time attending your schools which are DEAD LAST IN THE NATION, 50th PLACE!

Sincerely,

Adam Squire

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Feedback

Javier Aceves <acevesj@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:32 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 Social Studies NMAC

Deb <tinybrownwoman@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

I wish to give public comment on the proposed repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

I am in favor of updating and replacing Social Studies.

The Social Studies material is past due for an update. Just like any classroom material is updated to reflect current knowledge, the Social Studies curriculum is no different. We no longer teach that Pluto is a planet. Current and updated science shows us that Pluto does not meet the criteria for a planet. Social Studies standards and curriculum are the same and must be updated to reflect new research in cultural and social diversity.

Thank you,
Deborah Marez-Baca
Retired Abq. Public Schools
6801 Glacier Rd NW, Albuquerque, NM 87114

Be the change

[EXTERNAL] Do NOT Teach the newly proposed Social Race Theory Curriculum in New Mexico

Genevieve Avraham <whitewave7878@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:37 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To The New Mexico Department of Education,

I am deeply concerned by the premise and politics and plan to indoctrinate the children of this generation with ideologies that are so slippery and uncertain which will confuse the minds and hearts and actions of the children whom we, as adults, are responsible to nurture and guide for life, blessings, and success in these formative years.

After previewing the proposed "social studies" curriculum, I see many terms, loaded words, courses of proposed action that undermine history, truth, and God's design for family as proposed in The Holy Bible, that I cannot sit by and allow our children to be tainted and confused by having all surety of a solid foundation of their identity as God created them taken away.

This course of action to teach our children these wishy-washy ways of thinking will only lead to trouble for the families and communities of New Mexico. Please do not force this curriculum through the Department of Education to any schools in New Mexico.

Sincerely,
Genevieve

[EXTERNAL] Public Hearing

Margaret Rodriguez <MagaNana7@outlook.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please do NOT include the proposed Critical Race Theory and Gender programs into the NM Education Curriculum! I have familiarized myself with the materials. I believe they will do more harm than good.

Please do not harm our students in this way. I am a retired teacher, and still substitute teach in the Roswell high schools. Schools should focus and concentrate on the traditional core subjects. The social justice issues should not be presented in the school curriculum. There should be more emphasis on Civics and the Constitution of the United States.

Thank you! Please consider my request.

Sincerely,

Margaret

Rodriguez.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Rule Changes for 6.29.1.9 NMAC, General Provisions

Tony Klesert <tklesert@mac.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 4:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in favor of PED's proposed changes to the State's social studies curricula. Please vote to adopt them.

As I understand it, the new curricula would include an emphasis on "major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo-political impact, social justice, equity and diversity," and "ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives."

That is as it should be in a state with such broad historical and cultural diversity as New Mexico.

Concerns being raised about CRT are baseless, as no part of these proposed changes involve or invoke CRT in any way.

Some people seem concerned that school kids will learn disturbing things about our past history. At a certain level, that concern is understandable.

Studying history can and does often make us proud to be who we are. But studying history also sometimes does disturb us. Some of history will upset us. It may even infuriate us.

But if studying history only makes you feel proud and happy, you aren't studying history - you are being fed propaganda.

Thank you for your attention to this important issue.

Tony Klesert
929 Adams St NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies format in NM schools

Eileen Richardson <eileen@nativewingscoffee.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Are you kidding me??

You haven't learned how parents feel about their children being taught theories of racism or incorrect racist history?

Us mama bears and Papa bears will NOT allow you to indoctrinate our children with this evil teaching.

You don't serve our children by teaching these theories to divide and degrade.

DO NOT allow the Social Studies format you are proposing. If you do you will hear from all of us and be FIRED!

Eileen Richardson

Native Wings Coffee House
7 Avenida Vista Grande, B8
Santa Fe, M 87508

505-316-1669 - mobile

505-397-4748 – coffee house

eileen@nativewingscoffee.com

<https://www.facebook.com/nativewingscoffee>

<https://www.nativewingscoffee.com>

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Karen Carter <kacarter@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Karen Carter, I live in Las Cruces, NM. My daughter attends a public school in New Mexico, as both her father and I did, and I am writing in support of the new proposed social studies standards. They are more historically accurate and representative of the complexity of both New Mexican and US history than the past standards under which I was educated. I appreciate and support this effort to implement standards that seek to encourage our children to think critically about our world and the structures that shape it, as well as encouraging our children to consider others' points of view. We need to encourage our children to be bold and think about how we can improve the world for everyone in it, and these standards support that. Thank you.

--Karen Carter

[EXTERNAL] NO to the social studies curricula proposal

Apryl Marlowe <aprylmarlowe@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:10 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: "HelpDesk, PED, PED" <PED.HelpDesk@state.nm.us>

Date: November 11, 2021 at 5:03:31 PM MST

To: Apryl Marlowe <aprylmarlowe@gmail.com>

Subject: Re: [EXTERNAL] NO to the social studies curricula proposal

Please send your input to this email address if you would like it to be included with all other public comments:
rule.feedback@state.nm.us

NM PED Constituent Services

The information provided is not intended as legal advice and should not serve as the basis for decision-making in specific situations. In addition, this response does not create an attorney-client relationship.

From: Apryl Marlowe <aprylmarlowe@gmail.com>

Sent: Thursday, November 11, 2021 2:17 PM

To: HelpDesk, PED, PED

Cc: M.M.Marcie2012@gmail.com; Jay

Subject: [EXTERNAL] NO to the social studies curricula proposal

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing today to strongly and firmly voice my opposition to the proposed social studies curricula being considered by the PED.

As a mother of two school aged children, and as a tax paying New Mexican citizen I demand that my opinion be heard and regarded- This proposed curricula must NOT be accepted.

The proposed social studies curricula is unjust, unfounded, non-factual, and completely inappropriate as it supports the instruction of critical race theory. It must be rejected.

Sincerely,
Apyl Swainston, PharmD.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Ann Ziegler <annzieg@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Serna,

When we teach with honesty and openness about our history and cultures, we enrich all students' lives. The social studies standards choose to do that, not by making any group feel guilty, but raising each ethnic and cultural group to higher standards of learning.

For kindergartners to be involved in their local communities, understanding how important water is for the future of their communities or how recycling helps their community are basic to becoming responsible citizens.

For high school students to know that New Mexico had a Japanese Internment Camp and how that impacted Japanese families is basic to understanding what is done to innocent people during wars.

I strongly support the social studies standards and the importance of professional development to help all teachers implement them. By listening to the voices on the fringe, who don't want an honest curriculum or want to return to a 1950s based curriculum, New Mexico students would not be prepared for a more diverse and exciting world.

Thank you,
Ann Ziegler, Ph.D.
teacher, teacher educator, parent, grandparent

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

JANIE HALL <janielee16@msn.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:19 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom I may concern.

I am writing to support the adoption of the proposed K-12 social studies standards for New Mexico students.

The proposed standards:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide input regarding these important educational standards.

Sincerely,

Janie Lee Hall

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Dr. Stephanie Mack <stephanie.colemanmack@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening,

I am the parent of an Albuquerque Public School (APS) student who is entirely in support of the Social Studies curriculum proposed changes. The changes will accurately reflect history and provide students with more of an accurate depiction or better portrayal of actual events, historical figures, and perspectives.

Let's all begin to better understand pieces of our true history and the impact that it has on events and lives today.

Stephanie Coleman Mack Ed.D.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Cody Patterson <cody.patterson@carrizogrizzlies.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:31 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>; Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (65 KB)

Social Studies Recomendations - Sheet1.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

Please see Carrizozo's Attached Social Studies Standards input.

--

Cody Patterson
Superintendent
(575) 648-2346
Fax: (575)648-2216

Carrizozo Municipal Schools
K5
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
K.10 Identify the local, state, and national symbols (eg., flag, bird, song)	K.10.1. Recognize and name symbols and activities of the United States, New Mexico, and tribes to include: a. United States symbols to include the flag, bald eagle, monuments. b. New Mexico symbols to include the flag, Smokey Bear, State Bird, chili. c. Tribal symbols and activities to include Feast Days, pottery, arts, storytelling etc. 2. Recognize patriotic activities including The Pledge of Allegiance, The Star-Spangled Banner, salute to the New Mexico Flag.
K.22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.	K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves.
K.25 Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.	K.25. Describe the student's family history, culture, and past.
Add	1. (add to standards) Identify characteristics of culture such as language, customs, religion, and shelter.
2.28 Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.	2.28 Students will describe ways in which they are similar and different from other people.
3.27 Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.	3.27 Express a positive view of themselves without making someone else feel badly.
5.12 Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.	5.12 Delete: Open to teachers opinion.
5.30 Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.	5.30 Demonstrate knowledge of family history culture and past contributions.
5.31 Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.	5.31 Explaining how each student's abilities could contribute to our society.
Grades 6-8
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
7.11 Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity	7.11 Examine the relationship between stereotypes and bias. (Define group identity.)
7.21 Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.	7.21. Select a region of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.
7.28 Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers from various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.	7.28 Describe the obstacles and how people have overcome these obstacles in various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government and industry.

7.49 Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/identities.	7.49 Students will describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/identities.
7.60 Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities.	7.60 Delete: Not a standard. Could be an assignment.
7.61 Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.	7.61 Delete. Not a standard but an opinion. No way to measure this standard.
7.72 Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display and conclude how to address stereotypes.	7.72 Discuss how individuals want to be perceived by others and how to address stereotypes.
7.78 Analyze primary and secondary sources to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area that would become) New Mexico.	7.78 Analyze primary and secondary sources to examine and explain the effects of Mexican Independence on the area that became New Mexico.
7.93 Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group.	7.93 Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives.
8.16 Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.	8.16 Accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
8.19 Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	8.19 Describe the many facets of the student's family history and culture and how they are connected to collective history and culture of other all Americans.
8.46 Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War).	8.46 Analyze the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War).
8.68 Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.	8.68 Research how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war and identify other issues raised that created an impact on citizens of the North or South to support a war.
8.70 Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.	8.70 Examine events of the Sectionalism and Reform Era and how they relate to current issues and events.
8.78 Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formerly perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era.	8.78 Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in former slave states during the Reconstruction Era.
Grades 9 -12 Civics
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
9-12.Civ.38 Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted over time and how they currently shape policy debates.	9.12.Civ.38 Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted over time and how they currently shape policy debates.

9-12.Civ.32 Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels.	9-12.Civ.32 Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" at all levels of government.
9-12.Civ.40 Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them.	9-12.Civ.40 Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to ensure representation for all citizens in the United States form of Government.
Grades 9 -12 NM History
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
9-12.NMH.18 Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in the multiple identity groups.	9-12.NMH.18 Demonstrate knowledge of each student's family history and cultural background and describe how each student's own identity is informed, shaped, and influences the local, regional, and state community.
9-12.NMH.26 Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.	9-12.NMH.26 Determine the issues that affected some people's access pertaining to the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
9-12.NMH.47 Demonstrate historical causation by using	9-12.NMH.47 Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico.
9-12.NMH.48 Multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico (47 and 48 should be together????)	9-12.NMH.48 47 and 48 should be together
Grades 9 -12 US History
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
9-12.US.50 Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullis) with Reconstruction.	9-12.US.50 Analyze the Reconstruction efforts and determine their short- and long-term effects.
9-12.US104 Analyze state-sponsored persecution and "othering" including anti-Semitism and homophobia.	9-12.US104 Analyze how the perceptions of racism, sexism, anti-Semitism, homophobia, and the "othering" of people groups have changed over time.
9-12.US.106 Analyze the impact of the Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.	9-12.US.106 Analyze the affect of the Cold War on social movements and activist in the United states.
9-12.US.116 Examine the evolution of McCarthyism- from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO.	9-12.US.116 Examine Cold War issues including McCarthyism and the Counterintelligence Program.
9-12.US.123 Assess the short- and long-term and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.	9-12.US.123 Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of different eras in the United States on diverse groups of people (i.e. progressivism, separatism, World War I, Great Depression, World War II, Cold War, Postwar Boom, Civil Rights, Vietnam War, Era of Social Change, environmentalism, conservatism, globalization).

9.12.US.132 Examine the history of guns in America as Compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.	9.12.US.132 Examine and explain the specific historical development of and the current relevant context of the 2nd Amendment as well as its relation to a larger pattern of continuity and/or change in American society.
9.12.US.134 Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.	9.12.US.134 Describe and explain the patterns of continuity and/or change of diverse immigrant groups over time and explain the relative historical significance in relation to a larger pattern of continuity and/or change in the United States.
9.12.US.135 Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.	9.12.US.135 Examine social justice movements throughout history designed to improve conditions for Americans including Native Americans and African Americans.
9-12 Economics
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
9-12.Econ.24 Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.	9-12.Econ.24 Describe and explain the relationship between all economic systems including how they affect society. (Traditional economies, Command economies, Mixed economies, and Market economies).
9-12.Econ.48-175 Are missing from original draft.	???????
9-12 Ethnic Cultural, and Identity Studies
Draft Standard	Proposed Change
9-12.ECI.ECI.13 Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.	9-12.ECI.ECI.13 Recognize and value all cultures represented in the-community without perceiving or treating any culture as inferior.
9-12.ECI.ECI.16 Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.	9-12.ECI.ECI.16 (Remove) But if kept change to: Assess how social policies and economic forces affect social, political, and economic opportunity.
9-12.ECI.18 Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.ECI.18 Examine the affect of historical, cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which have impacted some underrepresented populations.
9-12.ECI.21 Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.	9-12.ECI.21 Investigate how identity groups and others attempt to improve society through individual actions, individual champions, social movement, and local community, national, and global advocacy.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Curriculum in Public Schools

Kim Leslie <kaleslie90@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:45 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I oppose any teaching of Critical Race Theory in our schools. CRT's intent is to divide rather than unite. Children should be taught to respect differences among us and to celebrate the things that unite us. We are all citizens of the greatest country in the world and students should be taught to be proud of it, not to seek to destroy it. All peoples should be taught to be proud of who they are, not to make some feel guilty because of the color of their skin. People should be judged not by the color of their skin, but by their character which is the opposite of what CRT espouses.

Thank you,

Kim Leslie

[EXTERNAL] Feedback

Drucilla Rueda <drurueda@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am against the proposed social studies and critical race theory that is being proposed for our NM children

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] proposed social studies standards

Barbara Calef <bfcalef@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The recent local school board election was the most contentious one in my experience. One factor was the extensive misinformation about the proposed social studies standards. I wish everyone would read them! They look excellent to me; I hope our teachers will be given the support they need to fulfill the promise of those standards in the classroom.

Sincerely,
Barbara Calef
4777 Sandia Dr.
Los Alamos, NM 87544

[EXTERNAL] Parent feedback on Social Studies proposal

Linda Chavez <lindachavez567@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

New Mexico Public Education Dept
300 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe NM 87501

Re: New Mexico Social Studies Standards

I'm a mother with two children in Albuquerque public schools, and I've reviewed the 122-pages of proposed changes to NM Social Studies Standards.

While I see some good ideas in the proposals, I also see some bad ideas that indoctrinate students for left-wing social justice goals, and train them to support communism, which has been renamed "equity" to make it more palatable to the public.

New Mexico should resist the racist trend toward indoctrinating children with race- and gender-based social justice beliefs. Specifically, I oppose the proposed high school standards for US History, Theme 13 (Civil Rights) and Theme 15 (US in a Global Age), and also Theme 21 in Ethic, Cultural, Identity Studies (Community Equity Building).

In October 2019, a University of Washington professor published an article in a pedagogy journal that claims children's cartoon character SpongeBob Squarepants is a "violent," "racist," colonizer. University of Washington professor says SpongeBob is 'violent' and 'racist' colonizer .| News | khq.com. This kind of absurd nonsense is the inevitable outcome of your proposals regarding race and equity.

The theoretical background of the NM proposals is Critical Race Theory, a racist theory that falsely claims that racial injustice is the underlying force throughout American history and social injustice. While the term "Critical Race Theory" does not appear in the proposed standards, the CRT poison is at the heart of these proposals. Opinion | If It's Not Critical Race Theory, It's Critical Race Theory-lite - The New York Times \(nytimes.com\)

Critical pedagogy regards its mission to teach students to support social justice goals in line with the openly communist goals of Italian communist Antonio Gramsci, the successor to Karl Marx. The social studies proposals arise from critical pedagogy, which is a branch of CRT.

Please review this letter from the Chinese-American Citizens Alliance of Greater New York (CACAGNY), which opposes teaching CRT in public schools nationally. 9499c73d959b9f49be9689476a990776 \(wsimg.com\). The letter is titled "CACAGNY Denounces Critical Race Theory as Hateful Fraud."

Linda Chavez
parent with two children in public schools
Albuquerque NM
505-470-3316

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Verna Funk <suncountry@pvtnetworks.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:48 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I grew up in the 60's. Many in our community are multicultural families. We need to focus on uniting not dividing. I grew up in a time where division over race was there amongst the people of our state, but we have come such a far and long way. Why would we go back in history to repeat those same mistakes of division and racism, why plant those seeds in the minds of our children?

I love that my children and my grandchildren and great grandchildren did not grow up in a school system that taught them to identify other than Artesia Bulldog's. We were united as a community and it needs to stay that way.

When I read the standards I see division and a lack of true teaching of historical events. Some examples of this are:

7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.

8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.

8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally and engaging in positive civic behavior in classrooms, schools, and the broader community.

If you say this is true why would your K .22-25 standard be teaching kindergarten students to segregate down to their main identity groups instead of simply discussing who their family is and where they've come from. We need to understand the past but we don't need to put it in an identity group box.

I don't want my friends and family to be divided into groups. I hate that. Please take these comments from the communities around New Mexico seriously, and reconsider your standards before they become inserted into our schools. There's a better way to teach culture and diversity and there's a better way to teach respecting of that than what these standards provide. Please consider the revisions from the Artesia school district.

Verna Funk

[EXTERNAL] Oppose

Gabrielle Trujillo <gnt_trujillo92@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:53 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I strongly opposed the new curriculum the State is trying to mandate. Please reconsider!

Sent from Yahoo Mail for iPhone

[EXTERNAL] REJECTION OF PROPOSED RULE 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies Curriculum

JJ West <taggewest@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 5:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (17 KB)

John Sena Public Comment.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

PLEASE SEE ATTACHED LETTER.

John Sena
Policy Division New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501
Rule.feedback@state.nm.us

RE: REJECTION OF PROPOSED RULE 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies Curriculum

To Whom It May Concern;

We are the parents of two students within the Farmington Municipal School District. We are opposed to the new Anchor Strands in the Social Studies curriculum, especially Strand 5: Ethnic, Cultural, & Identity Studies & Strand 6: Inquiry. We ask that teams within every district in our state be given access to every component of the curriculum the state is considering adopting, and to have a voice to our thought processes. This will ensure we as human beings, do not continue promoting an agenda that is proving how our society is organized along racial lines & hierarchies. Equality is having the same opportunities to begin with positive educational outcomes, which is what every single human deserves. Equity is ensuring that the equal opportunities are adjusted to make room for students needing extra support. These should be used in combination with one another, not just creation of an “equitable” education.

Our school districts, as well as the NM Public Education Department, have been reiterating the same sentiments of, “it is important to understand that the new draft Social Studies Standards shouldn’t be confused with critical race theory (CRT), which Farmington Municipal Schools (FMS) does not teach nor does it intend to teach.”-Dr. Eugene Schmidt, Superintendent of FMS. And we, as a community, would like to believe this is the case. However, we have 30+ pages of the draft supporting evidence that these new strands being proposed by the NMPED are, in fact, directly in line with CRT ideology. And, many people in N.M. are not in support of it, to include us parents.

Asking our students (Anchor Strand #5) to assess the social policies & forces of economics to “offer privilege or systemic inequity in assessing social, political, & economic opportunity” causes further divide amongst our cultures. By critically re-examining our history, we are continuing the distrust of our original, organic documentation of facts, & replacing them with narratives to fit agendas. Thus, this does not promote mindfulness of true equality, which is what the Yazzie/Martinez v. State of New Mexico was hoping to accomplish in 2018. They were striving for social equality, not for our students to question their race, the color of their skin they were born with, & how it is used economically, politically, & within our criminal justice system. This is not the cultural relevance this lawsuit was crying out for. The lawsuit did, however, shine a very bright light upon the broken system our state has had for many years within our education system. They were fighting for our kids to receive a sufficient education & the presiding Judge over the case in his ruling stated, “The court ruled that defendants [NMPED] must comply with their duty to provide an adequate education and may not conserve financial resources at the expense of our Constitution.” The court ordered our state to do just that: provide a sufficient education to ALL PUBLIC SCHOOLS for every student. The intended purpose would address the faults that currently exist within our education standards, thus providing an equal & equitable opportunity for all of the cultures within our beautiful State of New Mexico. However, the current proposed standards have many, many flaws that need to be reviewed not just by the NMPED, but more importantly the parents & teachers (the largest stakeholders), so that we are allowed to partner with the education department to guide the re-development of the new curriculum. To meet the needs of each of our cultures.

It is a mistake to continue keeping us out of the loop, hiding the facts, & distorting our public perceptions to fit the state's agenda. We are fighting for our students to learn within the Public Education System that they are Americans, & each one of them should be shown through our education system, the opportunities they each have for advancement of their economic status. This shall be upheld by our Constitution, & based upon the principles of our families, education, & work ethics. This will create & encourage every culture to be seen as relevant & important.

We are not in favor of using terminology as a way to mask the undercurrent of our education system in N.M., which leaves your parents & educators to further distrust our public education department & the systems within. Please protect our children & educators by standing on your moral, ethical, & legal obligations to which you are sworn under oath to do. SERVE OUR CHILDREN & THEIR CULTURES AND WATCH HOW NEW MEXICANS RISE TO MEET THE CAUSE!

With Love & Light,

Jonalyn & Anthony West
Farmington, N.M. 87401

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies Standard - Public Hearing - 11-12-21

Kelly Family <CHEPA3996@msn.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (15 KB)

CRT 11-11-21.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Dr. Steinhaus,

Attached, please find my written statement regarding NM social studies standard proposed by your department, public hearing via Zoom on November 12.

"For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not be compared to it." (Proverbs 8:11). There, Dr. Steinhaus, please be prudent with our children and our tax dollars.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Josie Kelly

In the 1950s, both my parents migrated from Mexico. My father farming cotton and green chili in the Rio Grande Valley, hired local Navajos to plant and harvest the crops. He housed, fed, and paid a fair wage for their labor. Years after my father passed away, the Navajos that had worked for my father still would visit my mom. They would enter our home without saying a word. My mom would fix a meal and feed our friends; upon eating, they would sit in the living room for a while, then as quietly as they came, they left. This ritual went on for years until my mom passed away in 1986. She exemplified not to judge people based on the color of their skin but their character. My family's history taught us to love God so that we may love others as God created them to be, not by the color of their skin. Thank God for my mother's wisdom. She taught us to love God, country, and humanity

Yes, being poor in New Mexico, we had odds stacked against us. However, my mother pushed education; the only one who could stop us from overcoming our obstacles was ourselves. Attending New Mexico's schools, I learned reading, writing, and arithmetic. Sadly, Critical Race Theory (CRT) goes against everything taught at home and school. I never remember that I was oppressing someone from being educated or someone was oppressing me from my education. Why do we want to teach our children about the oppressor and oppressed? One race over the other? Worse yet, be ashamed of the color of your skin? There are many inter-racial families in New Mexico; what are schools teaching the children if their parents or siblings are of a different race within their family?

According to the latest website, "Public School Rankings by State 2021." New Mexico's overall rank is 51 in quality; 49 in safety. Only 86% graduate from high school or seek higher education, and only 27% pursue a bachelor's or higher degree. At this critical point where NM ranks so low on many levels, does NM PED sincerely think the wisest path for our tax dollars is to fund CRT? What does CRT have to do with social studies? Our rich New Mexico history that spans 109 years is rich in a melting pot of the races. New Mexicans are very proud of their rich history.

As a New Mexican, I don't have any children, but my tax dollars pay for our children's education. Therefore, I pray that NM PED will change the CRT course and get back to the 3 Rs of reading, writing, and arithmetic. Would you please leave parenting to parents?

“For wisdom is better than rubies; and all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it.” (Proverbs 8:11) Therefore, NM PED, please be prudent with our children and our tax dollars. Would you mind not funding CRT?

[EXTERNAL] Feedback to proposed social studies changes

Shannon Barnes <shn.barnes@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (46 KB)

[EXTERNAL] Feedback to proposed social studies changes;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

From: Shannon Barnes <shn.barnes@gmail.com>
Sent: Thursday, November 11, 2021 6:21 PM
To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Feedback to proposed social studies changes

Hello,

As a parent to 2 children attending New Mexico schools, I am concerned that the proposed changes to the social studies curriculum will provide children with an inaccurate view of history. We can probably all agree that many of the things that occurred in history were not good, but history has happened and can not be rewritten in school books. It should be up to the parents to have a conversation with their children about their opinions and views of history or anything else that is taught in school. The changes that are being suggested are politically charged, and school is a secular environment. Public schools should provide baseline information to all students and should not impose religious or political beliefs. The proposed standards need significant revisions or total abandonment as they are currently written. It appears as though many teachers and school staff do not support the implementation of the new standards, and that alone speaks for itself on the approval of these standards. Also, the belief that children, beginning in kindergarten, should be exposed to and asked to understand the core tenets of a theory that is taught to graduate students, when many of these same children are not understanding the core skills of the basics is illogical and developmentally unfit.

There are many many other more pressing and important topics that schools must address, especially during times of COVID, then spending staff resource and energy on this, but I greatly appreciate the opportunity to provide feedback.

In brief, here is a rundown of SOME of the problems with the proposed standards:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies there is a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces “offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity.” This is classic CRT theology. 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continue focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This, too, is classic CRT as the purpose is to divide people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous example where a teacher can impose the notion of “justice and fairness,” unequal power relations, “past and current injustices”, although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also classic CRT as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)
4. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This is again classic CRT as it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated in order to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
5. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. This is another CRT theology component in that America is automatically unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)
6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. No positives regarding gun usage by women or minority groups are put forth. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

7. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. Another classic example of CRT as it stresses racial disparity in terms of inequality. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)
8. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. How about pairing this with a discussion of Communism and the negative impact it has had in Cuba and other Latin American nations. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)
9. In the 7thGrade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)
10. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies comment a Birdsong <birdsong.nm@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It Concerns,

As a voter, taxpayer, mother, grandmother, daughter of a WW2 veteran and German-born parents, I applaud all efforts to bring clarity and context in our children's education. We cannot gloss over the truth as we know it.

I understand CRT is not taught in undergrad levels but would be in agreement if it were. Since it's a political hot potato, I hope you ignore those who would restrict our children's education and provide clear context with current information as appropriate for each level.

Our youth are smart and will be able to handle the truth. German & other European educational systems can be examples of how to deal with inconvenient truths.

Sincerely

Kay Morga

11600 Haines Ave NE # 53593

Albuquerque, NM 87112

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment re: Proposed Rule 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Charles Goodmacher, Do Good LLC <doingoodconsultant@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:27 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (30 KB)

Social Studies Standards Comment for PED FIRST draft.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

Please find below and attached my written public comment regarding 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. I have also registered to speak via zoom at the hearing and will deliver a much abbreviated version of this written comment. Thank you very much!

Respectfully submitted,
Charles Goodmacher

6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Personal written comments by Charles Goodmacher, DoingoodConsultant@gmail.com , (505) 450-3155.

Educational standards and the textbooks used to deliver them in my day as a student taught me of America's egalitarian ideals, and yet they glossed over the reality that many of my fellow American kids at the time were suffering enormous injustices along with daily microaggressions. I still believe our nation is better off when we move toward achieving our American ideals, and I proudly exercise my rights as a citizen to work toward the day when no students will ensure injustices large and small simply because they are "different" than the white majority (which is the ethnic box checked for me).

Should ours be an egalitarian society or not? That, I believe is the fundamental underlying central question in this debate about the proposed new social studies standards. This fundamental question is why they have generated a tidal wave of controversy, fueled by massive amounts of purposeful disinformation.

Among the opponents of the new standards, there are politically motivated agitators driving this disinformation campaign. Those efforts are about much more than just the standards themselves. This debate is really about whether we as a state purposefully educate our students about all sides of today's reality and how we came to be here: the good, the bad and the ugly of our society. It is about whether we do what we can to provide the tools they need to understand they can help shape society, rather than only being subject to it.

I stand with those who say we must continue on the long march toward achieving the highest ideals of the founders of these United States of America. We must adopt the proposed standards to educate our students about our work in progress toward freedom and justice for all – and which empower them with the critical thinking tools to decide for themselves as these same questions will be before them throughout their lives too.

Should our students learn about existing inequities (intentional or not) which challenge us to think critically about our own lifestyle and political choices, and how we function within society? I say yes, we should. I applaud these proposed standards and hope they will be adopted.

Many others say no, the standards should not educate our students about the failures and problems we have collectively created – we should only teach about the events, people and factors that have created the current “state of reality” regarding the economic, political, and social systems within our state. A losing school board candidate in Rio Rancho believes that teaching white kids that white people enslaved black people and even today often continue to discriminate against them in systemic ways is wrong. He says it would necessarily make “all white people”, including his own children to start “feeling guilty “for being white.”

All students should experience seeing themselves and the unique contributions made by their family and community. All students should see themselves as equally important as the students who look or speak differently in seats sharing the same classroom. The reality is the much-needed focus on ethnic, and cultural studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their own communities have played in the development of our state and nation.

It is wonderful, therefore, to see 6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:
 - (a) sequencing important events in the student’s life;
 - (b) identifying how individuals are similar and different;
 - (c) communicating a positive view of themselves and identifying some of their group identities;
 - (d) describing ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not;
 - (e) identifying how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things; and
 - (f) describing their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.

At their most extreme, the objectors are so opposed to provisions such as this, saying “Diversity equity and inclusion is bigotry.” This is the claim of at least one recent New Mexico school board candidate. A reporter asked for clarification of that statement about academic content and approach. “You’re saying seeking diversity, equity and inclusion is a form of racism, I asked. Brenner: ‘Racism, yes.’” (<https://nmindepth.com/2021/10/30/trying-to-understand-fear-of-critical-race-theory-and-diversity-programs/>)

The lead agitators and many of their followers fundamentally cannot tolerate even the mere suggestion our current state of reality falls short and that our nation’s experiment as democratic republic is still a work in progress. Some of the disinformation is widely received because it is comforting for individuals within the groups who benefit the most from our social and governmental structures. It seems comforting for some to hear themselves saying all is fine as it is right now – the only thing wrong is the existence of nasty people who challenge that world view. If only, in their view, the “dictatorial” Governor and her Public Education Department would just let things be, we could all be just fine. Sorry, but the problems of the inequitable distribution of political, social, economic and cultural power remain, and they impact us all in unequal ways.

Opponents of the new standards view the modern United States as a nation that has been (and they hope will be) “Great.” Let’s be clear: I too think it is “great.” What I view as greatest about our nation is the diversity of cultures as well as political views and that so many of us try to live with deep respect for, and work for, equal opportunity for the “others” who are our neighbors. We are great because we’re on the road toward achieving the ideals of our founders and it is possible for us to do so. We are great because educators in the classroom and educators in the halls of the New Mexico Public Education Department are working toward our highest ideals with these new social studies standards.

It is logical that followers of the “Make America Great Again” phrase would not want the proposed standards to provide an education and tools for students to think critically about the overwhelming evidence all around us every day and in the historical record.

The standards encourage students to learn how collective action and highly motivated people and communities within our state can move us toward a more egalitarian society. Students are encouraged by the standards to consider that to be a citizen in a complex, multicultural society requires broad understanding of how they personally fit in, and what they might do themselves in response to situations they find themselves in.

“We live in a society where distribution of opportunities, education, and resources is skewed. Those with more to begin with will typically continue to benefit and stay ahead, “ wrote Maia Cortissoz for The New Mexican Nov 7. If we want an egalitarian, the distribution of opportunities, education and resources should be focused on bringing everyone to the same level. Restructuring entrenched systems; difficult, and outside-the-box thinking; is going to be needed if we are ever going to achieve the level of egalitarianism we have long claimed.

I agree with Ms. Cortissoz, and so I applaud the ways in which the new proposed standards emphasize the development of inquiry skills, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates. For example:

6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

F. Inquiry. (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of constructing compelling and supporting questions by: (a) recognizing a compelling question; and (b) identifying the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of communicating and critiquing conclusions by constructing responses to compelling questions using examples.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by: (a) taking group or individual action to help address local, regional, or global problems; and (b) using deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about, and act on, civic problems in their classrooms. [6.29.11.8 NMAC - Rp. 6.29.11.8, 12/14/2021]

All New Mexico students deserve to know that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and must work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals. This process and these standards both move our state and nation close to our democratic ideals.

mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Personal written comments by Charles Goodmacher, DoinGoodConsultant@gmail.com , (505) 450-3155.

Educational standards and the textbooks used to deliver them in my day as a student taught me of America's egalitarian ideals, and yet they glossed over the reality that many of my fellow American kids at the time were suffering enormous injustices along with daily microaggressions. I still believe our nation is better off when we move toward achieving our American ideals, and I proudly exercise my rights as a citizen to work toward the day when no students will ensure injustices large and small simply because they are "different" than the white majority (which is the ethnic box checked for me).

Should ours be an egalitarian society or not? That, I believe is the fundamental underlying central question in this debate about the proposed new social studies standards. This fundamental question is why they have generated a tidal wave of controversy, fueled by massive amounts of purposeful disinformation.

Among the opponents of the new standards, there are politically motivated agitators driving this disinformation campaign. Those efforts are about much more than just the standards themselves. This debate is really about whether we as a state purposefully educate our students about all sides of today's reality and how we came to be here: the good, the bad and the ugly of our society. It is about whether we do what we can to provide the tools they need to understand they can help shape society, rather than only being subject to it.

I stand with those who say we must continue on the long march toward achieving the highest ideals of the founders of these United States of America. We must adopt the proposed standards to educate our students about our work in progress toward freedom and justice for all – and which empower them with the critical thinking tools to decide for themselves as these same questions will be before them throughout their lives too.

Should our students learn about existing inequities (intentional or not) which challenge us to think critically about our own lifestyle and political choices, and how we function within society? I say yes, we should. I applaud these proposed standards and hope they will be adopted.

Many others say no, the standards should not educate our students about the failures and problems we have collectively created – we should only teach about the events, people and factors that have created the current "state of reality" regarding the economic, political, and social systems within our state. A losing school board candidate in Rio Rancho believes that teaching white kids that white people enslaved black people and even today often continue to discriminate against them in systemic ways is wrong. He says it would necessarily make "all white people", including his own children to start "feeling guilty "for being white."

All students should experience seeing themselves and the unique contributions made by their family and community. All students should see themselves as equally important as the students who look or speak differently in seats sharing the same classroom. The reality is the much-needed focus on ethnic, and cultural studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their own communities have played in the development of our state and nation.

It is wonderful, therefore, to see 6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(a) sequencing important events in the student’s life;

(b) identifying how individuals are similar and different;

(c) communicating a positive view of themselves and identifying some of their group identities;

(d) describing ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not;

(e) identifying how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things; and

(f) describing their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.

At their most extreme, the objectors are so opposed to provisions such as this, saying “Diversity equity and inclusion is bigotry.” This is the claim of at least one recent New Mexico school board candidate. A reporter asked for clarification of that statement about academic content and approach. “You’re saying seeking diversity, equity and inclusion is a form of racism, I asked. Brenner: ‘Racism, yes.’” (<https://nminddepth.com/2021/10/30/trying-to-understand-fear-of-critical-race-theory-and-diversity-programs/>)

The lead agitators and many of their followers fundamentally cannot tolerate even the mere suggestion our current state of reality falls short and that our nation’s experiment as democratic republic is still a work in progress. Some of the disinformation is widely received because it is comforting for individuals within the groups who benefit the most from our social and governmental structures. It seems comforting for some to hear themselves saying all is fine as it is right now – the only thing wrong is the existence of nasty people who challenge that world view. If only, in their view, the “dictatorial” Governor and her Public Education Department would just let things be, we could all be just fine. Sorry, but the problems of the inequitable distribution of political, social, economic and cultural power remain, and they impact us all in unequal ways.

Opponents of the new standards view the modern United States as a nation that has been (and they hope will be) “Great.” Let’s be clear: I too think it is “great.” What I view as greatest about our nation is the diversity of cultures as well as political views and that so many of us try to live with deep respect for, and work for, equal opportunity for the “others” who are our neighbors. We are great because we’re on the road toward achieving the ideals of our founders and it is possible for us to do so. We are great because educators in the classroom and educators in the halls of the New Mexico Public Education Department are working toward our highest ideals with these new social studies standards.

It is logical that followers of the “Make America Great Again” phrase would not want the proposed standards to provide an education and tools for students to think critically about the overwhelming evidence all around us every day and in the historical record.

The standards encourage students to learn how collective action and highly motivated people and communities within our state can move us toward a more egalitarian society. Students are encouraged by the standards to consider that to be a citizen in a complex, multicultural society requires broad understanding of how they personally fit in, and what they might do themselves in response to situations they find themselves in.

“We live in a society where distribution of opportunities, education, and resources is skewed. Those with more to begin with will typically continue to benefit and stay ahead, “ wrote Maia Cortissoz for The New Mexican Nov 7. If we want an egalitarian, the distribution of opportunities, education and resources should be focused on bringing everyone to the same level. Restructuring entrenched systems; difficult, and outside-the-box thinking; is going to be needed if we are ever going to achieve the level of egalitarianism we have long claimed.

I agree with Ms. Cortissoz, and so I applaud the ways in which the new proposed standards emphasize the development of inquiry skills, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates. For example:

6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

F. Inquiry. (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of constructing compelling and supporting questions by: (a) recognizing a compelling question; and (b) identifying the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of communicating and critiquing conclusions by constructing responses to compelling questions using examples.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by: (a) taking group or individual action to help address local, regional, or global problems; and (b) using deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about, and act on, civic problems in their classrooms. [6.29.11.8 NMAC - Rp. 6.29.11.8, 12/14/2021]

All New Mexico students deserve to know that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and must work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals. This process and these standards both move our state and nation close to our democratic ideals.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies revision NMPED

Andra Stradling <andrastradling@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:28 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Rule 6.26.11

Educating children a serious matter.
Your social studies revision is only opinions.
There are no textbook references.
Start with the suggestion that the Constitution be rewritten....
And calling our "Democratic Republic" a Democracy.

I feel a definition Critical Race Theory is imperative in any discussion about CRT and its varied forms in public school.

CRT ignores what Frederick Douglass said of President Abraham Lincoln: Most Americans of all races have "risen above their prejudices," striving to bring American practice into accord with American principles regarding justice.

CRT demeans African Americans by stripping them of all agency, treating them as simply inanimate objects, helpless victims of impersonal forces. It also essentially absolves politicians of bad policy.

CRT is nothing more than a return to 1850s-style racism as espoused by John Calhoun and Chief Justice Roger Taney in his infamous Dred Scott decision.

It is divisive; it fosters racial hatred by trafficking in racial stereotypes, collective guilt, racial segregation and race-based harassment. It rejects Martin Luther King's hope that we should be judged, not by the color of our skin, but by the content of our character.

I say unequivocally! NO! To any form of Critical Race Theory, or whatever name you choose to give it! Teach History, not victimhood.

The establishment of some grand new curriculum that reflects the 109 year history of New Mexicans is a complete travesty in thinking. Making it seem culturally relevant makes it a complete distortion of reality because of attempting to confine it to some simple minded time frame as if nothing existed before, culturally. Before ever embarking on formalizing anything I suggest looking at Mexican history and the impact the Spanish had when they conquered what was at one time New Mexico by reviewing Carl Lawrence's "The Cross and the Sword". Without the relevance of that history the only culture relevance you would have is to the Native American history of our state which way predates it becoming a state.

I understand the desire to come up with some seemingly, socially just curriculum. The negativity in this curriculum cannot tell the whole story of the greatest of nations.
Read the revision. Where are the positives?

Andra Stradling
Flora Vista, NM 87415

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Curriculum

Monica Brown <mwalsh.brown@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

There is no place in any curriculum in the United States of America to divide us by race. We must examine objectively all aspects of US history and present both the good and the bad. The focus should NEVER be solely on race.

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] No CRT

Brooke McGarry <cbmcgarry@me.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:35 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

I am a mother of 2 kids in the abq school system. I will take them out of public school if crt is agreed to be taught. It is racist and dividing us.

[EXTERNAL] Support for Proposed Social Studies Standards

Barbara Petersen <petersen_b@aps.edu>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Barbara Petersen <petersen_b@aps.edu>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I stand in strong support of the proposed social studies standards. It is essential for all students to have access to our history in their education, both the honorable and the troubling. In all areas of school curriculum, and especially in social studies, our students deserve to understand our past in order to engage in the present and to have the tools to analyze and question. An inquiry approach to learning will strengthen our students and consequently, our community.

Dr. Heather Bassett, the APS Policy Analyst and Government Affairs Liaison, has submitted a letter that includes some concerns for implementation and some insights from practicing educators in APS.

Hopefully, there can be dynamic engagement with educators which will make the adoption and use of the new standards most impactful.

As a board member, I hear the pain of students whose culture and history have traditionally been omitted from the history books, students who are subjected to racism and bias, from peers who have never learned of the essential role of various groups in our history, and from adults who even unconsciously reflect the pervasive impacts of racism.

It is time for us all to be knowledgeable of our past in order to build a better future. The proposed social studies standards are an important step.

Sincerely,

Barbara Petersen

Barbara Petersen
APS Board of Education, District 4
505-288-6404
petersen_b@aps.edu

I WEAR MY MASK IN PUBLIC FOR THREE REASONS:

1. HUMILITY: I don't know if I have COVID as it is clear that people can spread the disease before they have symptoms.
2. KINDNESS: I don't know if the person I am near has a child battling cancer, or cares for their elderly mom. While I might be fine, they might not.
3. COMMUNITY: I want my community to thrive, businesses to stay open, employees to stay healthy. Keeping a lid on COVID helps us all!

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on Social Studies Standards

MITZI ESTES <mitzi.estes@clovis-schools.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:47 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 5 attachments (1 MB)

Social Studies Rulemaking Comments - R. Russ.pdf; SS Comments L. Morris.pdf; SS Standards L Adkins.pdf; Social Studies Feedback M Estes.pdf; Working Group Feedback.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening!

Please find attached feedback from a working group of teachers in our district, as well as feedback from various individuals. We appreciate the opportunity to provide feedback and sincerely appreciate you taking time to read and process the work that has occurred in reviewing the standards.

Thank you!

Mitzi Estes

Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services and Leadership

Clovis Municipal Schools

575.769.4321

Disclaimer: Privileged/confidential information may be contained in this message and may be subject to legal privilege. Access to this email by anyone other than the intended is unauthorized. If you are not the intended recipient (or responsible for delivery of this message to such person), you may not use, copy, distribute, or deliver this message to anyone this message (or any part of its contents) or take any action in reliance on it. In such case, you should destroy this message immediately.

Disclaimer: Privileged/confidential information may be contained in this message and may be subject to legal privilege. Access to this email by anyone other than the intended is unauthorized. If you are not the intended recipient (or responsible for delivery of this message to such person), you may not use, copy, distribute, or deliver this message to anyone this message (or any part of its contents) or take any action in reliance on it. In such case, you should destroy this message immediately.

Clovis Municipal Schools

P.O. Box 19000
1009 Main Street
Clovis, New Mexico 88102-9000
575.769.4300 FAX 575.769.4333
www.clovis-schools.org

Renee Russ, Superintendent
Joe Strickland, Deputy Superintendent of Employee Services
Mitzi Estes, Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services & Leadership
Shawna Russell, Deputy Superintendent of Finance

Mr. John Sena,

Please find below my personal comments pertaining to the proposed Social Studies draft revision currently under consideration through the formal rulemaking process. In addition to the list of statements tied to specific standards, I would also like to express my deep concerns about the process and timeline used to develop the standards and the lack of opportunity for educators and families to engage in authentic, two-way dialogue with NMPED leaders that led to modifications in real time prior to the draft standards being moved so swiftly into the rulemaking process. The massive quantity of feedback that has been submitted through the rule notification portal should be ample evidence in and of itself that more conversations must be had so that common ground and consensus can be reached on this very important work.

Respectfully,

Renee Russ

Renee Russ
Superintendent
Clovis Municipal Schools

Page: 1

OVERARCHING CONCERNS:

1. Definition of "identity". (Not ALL aspects of identity should be explored, introduced, etc. in the public school setting. Acceptance, appreciation, non-judgmental attitude towards others...are appropriate in the school setting.)

The addition of the "Inquiry Anchor Standards" is positive.

Page: 9

Concern: The Guiding Principles are very influenced from the national level, including states that are very different and very distant from NM. Although an understanding of national context is important for developing global citizenship and understanding, there was not enough genuine involvement from a well-rounded group of New Mexicans representing DIVERSE stakeholders.

Concern: With regard to the guiding principles, especially #1 and #2: Many families have multiple cultural and racial connections within the family. Some families fear the manner in which some information is presented (esp. white supremacy, power, oppression, inequity, racial justice, etc.) will be disruptive, damaging, and confusing to children who belong to such families and will be potentially destructive to entire family units - to include both immediate and extended family.

Page: 16

What is the definition of "identity groups" as represented throughout the standards revision? This needs to be clarified.

Page: 21

1.23 What local flexibility is granted in teaching this standard?

Page: 26

2.27, 2.28, 2.29 These are well-written and valuable.

Page: 31

3.28. What is the definition of "cultural identity" as represented in the standards revision?

Page: 36

4.24. Is this as simple as considering point of view and personal experience? If so, please restate to add clarification.

Page: 39

5.12

1. To what specific occurrence is "inequity" referring to in this standard? Or is it referencing any interpretation of what might be considered an inequity?
2. "Laid the foundation" is a subjective/leading statement that inserts a belief or opinion into the standards. As presented, this standard is presented as a generalized FACT and doesn't invite opportunity for the student to examine information and draw their own conclusions about potential cause and effect.
3. Perhaps the standard could be improved with wording such as: "Examine relationships between groups of people throughout the history of the U.S. in order to identify potential root causes for or make connections to conflict existing among groups of people in the United States today."

Page: 42

5.30 What is the definition of "main identity group" and can local decision-making be used here to determine the scope of "main identity group" and "identity groups"?

Page: 57

7.60. Please give more detail - what does this mean: "diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations"? Perhaps it could be worded in a more straightforward manner?

7.61. The use of the word "injustices" immediately incites defensiveness. The intent of the standard seems to be to encourage the ideal of moving forward with improved relations between all people, but the use of "injustices" gives the opposite tone to the standard. Perhaps: "Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might shape the future of the state by drawing from the strengths of all groups and by learning from past events that resulted in negative impacts to one or more groups." If the intention is to build community and advance understanding of and appreciation for ALL New Mexicans, a more positive presentation of this standard would be very beneficial.

Page: 59

7.69. It is clear why this standard is found under Theme 5; however, if we are celebrating the contributions of all groups within New Mexico, shouldn't this standard be replicated in other sections of the standards to reflect widespread appreciation for contributions from all groups?

Page: 82

The scope of content of the HS Economics standards will be valuable for all students.

Page: 113

9-12.US.87. The topic of "sexuality norms" does not belong in a required U.S. History curriculum.

Page: 118

9-12.US.132. This standard feels politically driven, is politically charged and divisive. It does not feel appropriate for HS US History required content. A better topic might be: differing views on gun ownership among Americans and connections to the United States Constitution. Even still, it feels like a stretch to place it in a required history curriculum.

9-12-US.136. "Sexual orientation" content does not belong in required HS US History content. Rather, ethnic and identity studies could be an elective that parents grant permission for their children to take.

Page: 119

9-12.US.141 This has the feel of political propaganda as written. Perhaps it could read: "Research and debate the effectiveness of the response of the United States government to natural disasters and health crises."

Page: 128

This set of standards should NOT be required. These standards would be best suited for elective courses in which parents give informed consent for their children to take the elective.

Page: 129

9-12.ECI.14 See previous notes regarding clarity about the scope and specific definition of "Identity Group".

Clovis Municipal Schools

P.O. Box 19000
1009 Main Street
Clovis, New Mexico 88102-9000
575.769.4300 FAX 575.769.4333
www.clovis-schools.org

Renee Russ, Superintendent
Joe Strickland, Deputy Superintendent of Employee Services
Mitzi Estes, Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services & Leadership
Shawna Russell, Deputy Superintendent of Finance

Board
of Education

Paul Cordova, President
Shawn Hamilton, Vice President
Terry Martin, Secretary
Cindy Osburn, Member
Kyle Snider, Member

To: the NMPED
From: Leigh Morris

I have been educator in New Mexico for over 25 years. I have a background in teaching English and History, as well as, understanding curriculum and assessment. While I understand and support the need for change, I also know that timing plays an integral role to how things are perceived and accepted and I find it disheartening that the NMPED is pushing so hard for the new social studies standards to pass and claiming this has all been done on a “transparent” level.

I believe “transparent” has been an overstatement by the NMPED and thus the NMPED needs to look at what the true meaning of transparency is. When you are transparent you invite trust by revealing that you have nothing to hide, in order to establish that one is honest and credible in their work. There is clear communication; honesty; regular feedback and the admission of being wrong. When looking at transparency in these terms I do not believe this to be the case with the NMPED. If the NMPED has nothing to hide then slowing down this process of establishing new social studies standards would be taken into consideration. Furthermore, I have spoken with several teachers who participated in the standards writing process and not all was “transparent” to them. They will tell you or anyone who asks that they wrote the standards as instructed and then at the last minute they were given the “inquiry” and “identity” standards and told to make them fit. How is that transparent, and why hasn’t this been reflected in any of the public events NMPED has participated in?

I also ask that you have an “expert in grammar/English” read through the final standards as some of these are not worded well and thus reflects on New Mexico.

Please accept my feedback on the proposed social studies standards. I started with the high school standards and worked backwards.

Current Draft Standard	Proposed changes, questions, & comments
The following standards all say the same thing: 9-12.Civ.9. 9-12.Econ.9. 9-12.Geo.9 9-13.NMH.9 9-12.US.9 9-12.ECI.9 Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies.	The standards listed should all be changed to say the same as 9-12.WH.6 Present arguments and explanations that reach a range of audiences using print and oral technologies (e.g. posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, maps) and digital technologies (e.g. internet, social media, digital documentaries)

The following standards all say the same thing: 9-12.Civ.12. 9-12.Econ.12. 9-12.Geo.12 9-13.NMH.12 9-12.US.12 9-12.ECI.12 Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools and out of schools contexts.	The standards listed should all be changed to say the same as 9-12.WH.9 Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out of schools civic contexts.
The following standards all say the same thing: 9-12.Civ.2. 9-12.Econ.2. 9-12.Geo.2 9-13.NMH.2 9-12.US.2 9-12.ECI.2 Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.	I'm not ever sure what this should change to. As an English teacher this is confusing and as a history teacher I'm not sure what you are wanting me to do. Supporting questions to what? What am I inquiring about? I'm engaging in source work for what? This whole standard needs to be clarified it just doesn't make sense and I don't know what the intent of the standard is to start with?
The following standards all say the same thing: 9-12.Civ.11 9-12.Econ.11 9-12.Geo.11 9-13.NMH.11 9-12.US.11 9-12.ECI.11 Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place.	The standards listed should all be changed to say the same as 9-12.WH.7 Evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems.
The following standards all say the same thing: 9-12.Civ.6 9-12.Econ.6 9-12.Geo.6 9-13.NMH.6 9-12.US.6 9-12.ECI.6 Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge	The standards listed should all be changed to say the same as 9-12.WH.4 Develop claims and analyze counterclaims about the significance of historical events using evidence that draws directly from multiple sources. conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitation of both.

The following standards all say the same thing: 9-12.Civ.5 9-12.Econ.5 9-12.Geo.5 9-13.NMH.5 9-12.US.5 9-12.ECI.5 Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims.	The standards listed should all be changed to say the same as 9-12.WH.5 Analyze evidence to detect inconsistencies within the evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims
9-12 Econ.67 At times, citizens, government employees and elected officials do not always directly bear the costs of their political decisions. This often leads to policies who costs outweigh their benefits for society.	This is a statement not a standard.
9-12 Geo. 27 Make reasoned ethical judgements about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments and determine appropriate ways to respond.
9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.	I believe this standard doesn't make sense. It is also insensitive to students who are adopted, in foster care etc. Demonstrate knowledge of one's history and describe how each one's own identity is informed and shaped.
9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.	Determine the issues that affected access to land redistribution during the territorial period.
9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using	Incomplete standard should go with 9-12.NMH.48. Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico
9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico	Incomplete standard should go with 9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico

9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery.	Examine diverse stories of oppression including colonialism and slavery.
9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.	Analyze the Reconstruction efforts and determine its short- and long-term effects.
9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality was changing and unchanged during the 19th century.	Identify the ways in which gender roles have changed.
9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.	Evaluate the following concerning the economic system of the United States: efficiency, equity, and equality.
9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany.	How does this pertain to US history in particular? Needs to be removed.
9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.	Identify the ways in which gender roles have changed.
9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period.	Analyze the similarities and differences that different countries have struggled with racial inequities and make connections to the US.
9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia	Assess how the perceptions of and “othering” of groups of people have changed over time.
9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.	Compare and contrast the Cold War with the other social movements in the United States.
9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.	Examine the obstacles of racial integration in communities and schools, attempts to end segregation, and the impact of the Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.
9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality.	Still on going more of a current event
9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the	Examine the history of weapons in America as compared to other world powers.

consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.
9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.	Examine social justice movements throughout history designed to improve conditions for Americans including Native Americans and African Americans.
9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.	Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, disability and their impacts on legislation.
9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.	Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects on society.
9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.	Compare and contrast various groups of people and their origins in World History.
9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in underrepresentation (or no representation) among people groups.
6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	Describe how family history and culture connects people.
6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	Combine with 15-
7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity	For what purpose? Not a history standard.
7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.	What?

7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.	How is a student supposed to demonstrate this? Needs to be removed.
7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.	Not a standard but an activity.
8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.	Discuss historical people, places, and events of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.	This could take up a 9 weeks on its own. Way to much going on. Remove
8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	Another standard not taking into account students who do not come from families or even know their cultures. Does not seem equitable to all students.
8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.	Remove
8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.	Discuss ways an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have preserved their history.
8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.	Use a map and discuss how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.

Clovis Municipal Schools

P.O. Box 19000
1009 Main Street
Clovis, New Mexico 88102-9000
575.769.4300 FAX 575.769.4333
www.clovis-schools.org

Renee Russ, Superintendent
Joe Strickland, Deputy Superintendent of Employee Services
Mitzi Estes, Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services & Leadership
Shawna Russell, Deputy Superintendent of Finance

Board
of Education

Paul Cordova, President
Shawn Hamilton, Vice President
Terry Martin, Secretary
Cindy Osburn, Member
Kyle Snider, Member

TO: PED Public Hearing of SS Standards

Horace Mann developed 6 guiding principles in education:

1. Citizens cannot maintain both ignorance and freedom,
2. Education should be paid for, controlled, and maintained by the public,
3. Education should be provided in schools that embrace children from varying backgrounds,
4. Education must be nonsectarian
5. Education must be taught using tenets of a free society
6. Education must be provided by well-trained, professional teachers

The application of these principles does not only make the US public education unique but is held to higher standards of responsibility to maintain credibility. It is by trust and respect that parents place the education of their children in the educator's hands.

As an educator of over 30 years, I have never been more worried about public education. The public trust in our system has eroded. The timing and language in some of the proposed Social Studies Standards only adds to this stressful and volatile time in our country. The trust in public education needs to be regained by building on the guiding principles. Education must be free of religious and political ideology so that we can give each child the support and instruction they need to obtain their K-12 education.

First, I would like to ask PED to allow more time to work with the draft of the standards. Some of the Standards are vague, worded incorrectly, and incomplete. This is a draft of social studies standards and is not ready to be considered for a ruling.

Second, we need to remove standards that appear secular (biased by political or religion origins). Schools have improved and developed cultural, linguistic practices that improve public education. When we overstep parental authority and promote instead of support students, we have become biased and diminish trust in our school systems. When including social justice standards focus on the change in behavior, not the assumptions of bias. The focus of some standards on specific groups of people can lead people to automatically assume political bias.

Examples:

5-12 - Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. - Possible restructure - Describe how diversity in values, beliefs, and points of view have shaped and formed historical events.

6.16 - Identify their family and personal cultural identity, ~~determine how they want to present themselves to the world~~, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.

6.22 - Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped identities and culture. Possible restructure: Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world.

7.28 - Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry. Possible restructure: Evaluate how biased words and behaviors and unjust practices, laws, and institutions limit the rights and freedoms of people based on their identity groups.

7.6 Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures. Possible restructure: Compare and Contrast some of the people, groups, and events in social justice history, their beliefs, and ideas that influenced them.

7.82 - Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups. Possible restructure: Develop an action plan that consists of friends, family, and community members to make our world fairer for everyone.

8.20 - Identify facets of personal identity, ~~determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group~~, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.

9-12 U.S. 129. - Explore the movement against police brutality. Possible Restructure: Explore the role of law enforcement in a free society and compare and contrast how that role has changed over time including historical events that have changed the role of law enforcement.

9-12 US 130 - Examine experiences and activism of the LBGTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes. Possible restructure: Examine social movements and activism in US history. (This will open it up to explore several great historical movements that have impacted the US)

9-12 US. 132. - Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future. Possible restructure: Examine the history of guns in America; the Boston Tea Party, 2nd Amendment, gun laws of past and present, trends of Gun violence and impact of future laws in the US.

9-12 US 134. (Again, because you begin the standard with Anti-immigrant sentiment the standard seems politically driven because of current issues). Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present. Possible restructure: Analyze the role of immigration in U.S. History and its impact on U.S. Labor force, economy, population, taxes, housing, etc.

9-12 US 135 - Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people ~~including Native Americans and African Americans.~~ (Your focus on certain groups of people makes this standard bias and one of inequity)

9-12 US 141. Compare and Contrast the response and plan of the US government during the COVID pandemic with the AIDS epidemic and the 1918 influenza. (COVID 19 pandemic is still in progress so you can't compare the response, we are still responding every day) Possible Restructure: Compare and contrast historical disasters that had a major impact on US History.

Third, some standards need to not just focus on a particular sub-group.

8.84 - Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of ~~June~~teenth. Possible additions: include ceremonies and celebrations from all cultures, tribes, etc. in the US and New Mexico.

9-12 US 104 - Analyze state-sponsored persecution and "othering" including anti-Semitism and homophobia? Possible additions: anti-Semitism, people with disabilities, "inferior natives", homosexuals. (Broaden the standard to include a greater study of the prosecutions)

Fourth, the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies section leans toward the current political drama that is impacting our country. The words: systemic inequity, unequal power need to be eliminated from the wording of the standards. Including wording like "self-identified", "determine how they want to present themselves" seems to encourage instead of support students. Education needs to support each individual from whatever background or identity for the purpose of obtaining their education.

One example - ECI 16 - Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. Possible restructure: Assess how social policies and economic forces impact the diversity of cultures, races, and genders in various industries.

The enormous number of standards being added to the Social Studies curriculum will be very difficult to accomplish as well as to evaluate for a public hearing. I appreciate the opportunity to participate and again would like to recommend that additional time be granted to PED, parents, citizens of NM, and educators before these standards become law.

Laura Adkins
Executive Director of Language, Culture,
& At-Risk Services
Clovis Municipal Schools

Clovis Municipal Schools

P.O. Box 19000
1009 Main Street
Clovis, New Mexico 88102-9000
575.769.4300 FAX 575.769.4333
www.clovis-schools.org

Renee Russ, Superintendent
Joe Strickland, Deputy Superintendent of Employee Services
Mitzi Estes, Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services & Leadership
Shawna Russell, Deputy Superintendent of Finance

Board
of Education

Paul Cordova, President
Shawn Hamilton, Vice President
Terry Martin, Secretary
Cindy Osburn, Member
Kyle Snider, Member

To whom it may concern:

Thank you for allowing the public to provide commentary regarding the revised Social Studies Standards that have been published in draft form. Prior to getting into specific recommended revisions, please consider the following:

1. Clovis had four teachers participate in the revision process. While they were eager to have a voice in the changes, there was some disappointment in the process. The teacher that participated in the lower grade revisions, was the most content with the outcome of the draft that was posted. The other three were very concerned, especially at the middle school level. Much of the work that occurred after the standards were written, was not published. All four teachers indicated that this particular work would have helped alleviate the unknown since the standards are written at a very broad level. According to these educators, they spent significant time identifying essential questions, possible resources, and overall narrowing the broad standard to what specifically students needed to know and be able to do. Yet, the time, energy and effort dedicated to this clarification, appears to have not be worthy since it was not also released. As well, the timeline published by the PED, in December 2021 there will be an "Open call for K-12 educators to participate in the development of the NM Instructional Scope (NMIS) for Social Studies. Based on the Instructional Scope that has been created for the other content areas, it appears that a great deal of this work has been started via the standards revision committee last Spring. Our teachers that were involved, are disappointed and frustrated that their work in clarifying specifics of the standards was not also released, even in draft form. They adamantly agree that this would have helped provide clarity to the public.
2. Additionally, the teachers were concerned about not being involved in the development of the Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies strand, as well as the Inquiry strand, for the grade level they participated in. They did, however, create clarifying information and essential questions related to the standards in the Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies strand. There was no input from the grade level teams on the Inquiry standards, as reported by our Elementary Teacher participants.
3. Transparency – I was a bit frustrated with the focus group presentations in the Spring. They were very quickly advertised and put together. I received an invitation to join a Focus Group for Curriculum and Instruction Directors on May 25 for a June 2 presentation. I, as well as two of my colleagues attended this presentation. The Superintendent and School Board Focus Group presentation was scheduled during the Law Conference on June 4. I also attended this presentation. I was a bit concerned that authentic transparency was not occurring when topics shared in the June 2 presentation met with concern from the audience and then were removed from the Superintendent and School Board Focus Group presentation two days later.

Inspire.Innovate.Educate.

4. The Instructional Materials Bureau has done a tremendous job in recent years of ensuring high quality instructional materials, resources and professional development is available for teachers to maximize their teaching in an effort to maximize student learning. I am curious as to the rush into the new standards with no materials available aligned to this paradigm shift, as well as little time for districts to write a curriculum and provide professional development for teachers prior to the implementation of the standards in SY23. The Implementation Calendar published by the PED identifies Professional Development to begin in Spring 2022. Our current K-2 teachers are involved in very intense LTRS training; therefore, I am concerned about their ability to actively participate in Social Studies Professional Development at the same time. While the Implementation Calendar identifies Initial implementation in School Year 2023-24, it also identifies Dec. 2021-Jan 2022 as the time frame for completed re-developed standards to be adopted, posted in the NM Register and disseminated. There is confusion as to what standards will be taught in SY 2022-2023.
5. The high school (grades 9-12) standards have been divided by strand, but how will the standards be set up for classes? It has not been clear if all standards must be taught in required classes, or if some can be assigned to elective courses.

Standards: Suggested Questions/Revisions

How does the PED intend to define common vocabular throughout the standards to ensure equity in learning the standards?

The student is able to:

K.1 Recognize a compelling question. (Example of needing a common definition - How does the PED define compelling? Does it mean persuasive, forceful, compulsive or captivating?)

K.18 Create maps of familiar areas, such as classroom, school and community. – Would this not be an assignment, rather than a standard? Wouldn't it be more important that the student could read a map rather than create one, as a Kindergarten student?

K.22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities. To what end will students be taught “group” identities? In order to communicate about it, the group must be defined. Could it not simply be “Communicate a positive view of themselves.”

K.23 Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not. Perhaps the standard could read “Describe ways they are similar and different from others.”

K.25 Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contribution of people in their main identity groups. Revise to “Describe their family history, culture and past to current contributions of others.”

1.1 Again, identify the definition of “compelling.”

- 1.2 Do social studies disciplines refer to the strands? This needs to be well defined.
- 1.24 Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special. Reword: Identify how each person is unique and special.
- 2.23 Describe ways we are similar and different ~~from people who share identities, and people who do not.~~
- 3.6 and 3.7 I think these standards are great and that we can start teaching these practices in 3rd grade. These standards have been critical to the adult way of life the past few years, especially and even in this process.
- 4.20 Using a variety of maps, investigate and compare how New Mexico’s political boundaries have changed over time. Is this standard appropriate and/or necessary in the Geography strand? As politically charged as our nation is at this moment, this poses a concern for me that teachers will be teaching about the political landscape of NM in fourth grade. I do not believe this is appropriate at this grade level. Again, not knowing the intent of this broad standard leaves me questioning the motive and intent behind this standard.
- 5.12 Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. Whose interpretation of inequity is to be used in this standard? Is this open to teacher interpretation? I do not believe this is appropriate for fifth grade as it is written.
- 5.30 Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions ~~of people in main identity groups.~~ What is the definition of “main identity groups”? Who has defined these groups?
- 5.31 Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are. This is written in an ambiguous manner and is not clear on the goal. Reword: Explain how people’s current and past experiences help determine who they are today.
- 6.7 Identify inherent bias in maps. Unclear as to the main purpose of this standard. To what extent is the bias to be explored and what specific context?
- 6.15 Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people ~~in their self-identified affinity groups.~~ Many middle school students are trying to find themselves; therefore, there “self-identified affinity groups” change frequently, sometimes day to day. I am not confident that this is appropriate for this age group.
- 6.22 Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures. This is very broad; therefore, there needs to be more clarity regarding the “group identities” and then who is going to determine which group identities are included or not?
- 7.11 Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity. This seems to be more appropriate for more mature students. More detail surrounding the intent of this in 7th grade would be more helpful.
- 7.21 Interesting use of “province” which will require vocabulary development regarding the meaning and intent.

7.28 Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry. Reword: Evaluate the challenges and solutions people have had to overcome in relation to societal institutions, such as education, healthcare, government, and industry.

7.47 Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture. This seems to be an assignment to demonstrate understanding of unique characteristics of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.

7.49 Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage (s) and their personal identity/identities. I am not understanding the connection between this standard and the theme of The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes. I do not believe this standard is appropriate as it is written.

7.60 and 7.61 These two standards are vague and not clear regarding the context and specificity that would be needed to determine the outcome. I am curious as to the "look for" when determining mastery in 7.60 regarding "demonstrate". I also believe 7.61 is an activity or assignment rather than a standard.

7.72 Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display, and conclude how to address stereotypes. Reword: Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display and the identify challenges regarding potential perceptions of others. While this is an idea of rewording, I believe this is based on opinion.

7.74 Not clear on the context for "identifying and summarizing the relationship between specialization and interdependence."

7.78 I am not clear on what the student is "analyzing"; perhaps primary and secondary sources?

7.82 Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups. Is this intended to be in relation to Theme 6? Or specifically, what context is this intended to be taught?

7.94 This standard is written as an assignment that would be okay in a sociology or psychology context for older students.

7.103 I am unclear on the context of "groups" in this standard. Is it referring to social or cultural groups (e.g. religious, gangs, school, community, political, racial) or both? Who decides?

7th Grade Teachers will not be able to teach all 103 standards well, even when integrated in the 8 themes.

8.3 In what context are students to "identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts and oral traditions." More important than identifying, locating and gathering reliable and relevant sources, what will the student do with the sources? How will or how can these sources be valuable to students, consumers and society, as a whole?

8.7 Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers. In what context is this standard intended? As written, it is very broad, perhaps identifying the 1400-1900 timeframe would narrow the focus.

- 8.12 Too broad as written. The context of the “diverse groups” may need to be narrowed to the timeframe being addressed at the 8th grade level, in order to bring meaning to this standard at this grade level.
- 8.18 This standard is written as a very involved assignment.
- 8.19 Describe the many facets of their ~~identity (including family history and culture)~~ and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their ~~self-identified affinity groups~~ city, New Mexico and/or United States.
- 8.20 Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world ~~as a person belonging to an identity group~~, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. I continue to be concerned that we are having such a focus on students identifying with a group. Where is the focus on standing firm, as an individual regarding his/her beliefs, values, culture, etc.?
- 8.29 Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/histories. This is an assignment. More important is how students can identify various methods an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people used to record and preserve their history/histories.
- 8.32 Identify key explorers, places and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments. This is very broad. Specific key explorers, places and ideas need to be identified if we want all 8th graders to know specific historical information.
- 8.46 More specificity is necessary if we are wanting all students to understand the context of the significance of the 7 Years’ War.
- 8.58 Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity. The intent of this standard is not clear and could be considered an assignment. Whose definition is referenced regarding the “American national identity”?
- 8.66 Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community’s culture. This too seems to be an assignment. Potentially reword: Research and develop a claim regarding potential impacts that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community’s culture.

High School

Is the intent of the PED for each set of standards to be a required class? If not, how do we ensure equity around the state for students to learn the standards designated as required?

I would advocate that most, if not all of the Inquiry Standards and Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies Standards are appropriate for an elective Sociology class.

There are so many 9-12 standards that it will be interesting how they are expected to be divided. If districts are truly responsible for writing the curriculum for these standards, how do we ensure equity across the state.

HS Economics – 175 standards are incredibly overwhelming for teachers and students; while there are some good standards listed, the most valuable and important are the standards that require students to learn content they will apply very quickly after high school if they are not, already. (e.g. budgets, taxes, income/benefits, savings, interest, inflation, loans, investments, insurances, identity theft); 9-12 Econ.71-118)

NM History

9-12.NMH.47 and 48 may need to be combined; otherwise, neither of them are complete statements.

US History – 136 standards

There appears to be many standards located in the 9-12 standards that would be most appropriate for the 8th grade section of US History. OR, is the intent to reteach much of what was already taught?

9-12.US.53 Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century. Another standard that might work well in an elective Sociology class.

9-12.US.87 Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s. Appropriate for Sociology class, but not a US History class. Wouldn't the "othering" standards best be explored in a Sociology class due to the nature of the social research involved with these topics?

In closing, throughout the document, specifically beginning in Middle School, there is not clarity regarding how some of the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies standards are connected to the theme they are listed under. I believe this will create concern for teachers in stretching to make a connection or require teachers to teach standards in isolation. I continue to be concerned that as written, so many standards focus on students identifying with a group. Where is the focus on standing firm as an individual regarding his/her beliefs, values, culture, etc.? I realize we are social beings, but I am concerned that we are embedding a co-dependency on group identity.

Beginning in the 7th grade, the number of standards per grade level is unrealistic for teachers to teach and students to learn for mastery during one school year. Many of the standards are written as an assignment or an activity rather than a defined level of achievement for competency of specific content. If there is ever a common assessment that students across the state must take, it would be helpful for there to be more specificity on what we want students to know and be able to do.

Thank you for taking time to read and process my feedback on the current Social Studies Standards.

Sincerely,

Mitzi Estes

Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services & Leadership

Clovis Municipal Schools

Clovis Municipal Schools

P.O. Box 19000
1009 Main Street
Clovis, New Mexico 88102-9000
575.769.4300 FAX 575.769.4333
www.clovis-schools.org

Renee Russ, Superintendent
Joe Strickland, Deputy Superintendent of Employee Services
Mitzi Estes, Deputy Superintendent of Academic Services & Leadership
Shawna Russell, Deputy Superintendent of Finance

Board
of Education

Paul Cordova, President
Shawn Hamilton, Vice President
Terry Martin, Secretary
Cindy Osburn, Member
Kyle Snider, Member

Following is feedback from a working group of teachers regarding the Social Studies Standards:

Elementary:

PLUS:	More manageable number of standards, themes, organization
DELTA:	A lot of the middle schools and high school standards are ambiguous without the content ideas and information, timeline for implementation, available resources
OTHER THOUGHTS:	Did the state keep the same additional resources the standard revisions committee created? For MS/HS, how can they effectively get through all proposed standards? Implementing anything new at this point is going to be difficult. Teachers are already having a hard time maintaining student learning and switching at this point will only create more work for teachers.

Middle School:

PLUS:	The layout of the color coding and themes is well organized. One topic per standard. Inquiry standards included Common Core.
DELTA:	8th grade prescribes the exact method of teaching standards (e.g. analyze art media; use digital literacy to teach..., draw diagrams, models, use specific types of maps); Themed timeframes don't consider academic calendars and pacing; Significant explanatory information was left out, to include 7th grade websites and resources; sample topics for the themes/standards
OTHER THOUGHTS:	6th - Lack of clarifying materials makes the standards too broad; 7th = Ethnic studies' standards may create issues because they are so culturally loaded and so broad; 8th - Some standards read like a modification for gifted students.

The History Department at CHSFA reviewed the proposed standards for the upcoming school year. We as a group of disciplined teachers discussed the new standards and developed the follow comments when reviewing the American History Standards

1. Many standards are not specific to what needs to be taught
2. Lacking in details to guide specific Instruction
3. Are not measurable for Data Driven Instruction
4. Some standards focus on world events that do not pertain to American History
5. What new material will be available to aid in educating students?
6. Some standards open topics in which teachers are uncomfortable to teach
7. To many perspectives of culture and race are being pushed into one standard

8. Some of the standards proposed for American History should be focused on in a Sociology class instead of a History classroom

The History Department at CHSFA is aware that the History standards have not been updated for some time. We realize that there could be some change to the standards that would support a more culturally diverse conversation in our classroom. Our vision for teaching History at the Freshman Academy is to ensure all stakeholders are being represented fairly and equally in our school. Thank you for reaching out to the history teachers and we will continue to support the Clovis Municipal School District.

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Christopher Prandoni <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:54 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Christopher Prandoni
1000 Cordova Pl #406
Santa Fe, NM 87505

[EXTERNAL] Suggested Revisions

Leah Pearson <lpearson@lcps.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 6:58 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (61 KB)

Revisions to SS standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please consider the revisions that are attached to this email.

As a social studies content specialist, the need for these new standards is crucial in moving forward to address the needs of our current and future students. All students in classrooms deserve to see themselves within the standards set by the state. All voices and histories are integral in forming a complete picture when presenting history, economics, civics, geography, ethnics/identity while embedding inquiry. This allows for a deep analysis and discussion of the past, present and future.

Thank you for this opportunity.

Leah Pearson
Elementary Social Studies Content Specialist
Las Cruces Public Schools

Sent from Mail for Windows

Revisions to proposed Social Studies standards

6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

A. Civics.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by:
(b) identifying authority figures and describing their roles. (Add)- What does it mean to be a good citizen?

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by:

(a) recognizing and identifying signs and symbols around their town (parks, statues, murals) and community and indicating location of places, people, and things; and

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation (define this) by comparing traditions found in communities over time.

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(f) describing their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups. (how do you do this?)

6.29.11.9 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FIRST GRADE:

A. Civics. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a civic life by explaining and providing examples of how people play important roles in society (parents, teachers, police officers, etc.).

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation (clarify the meaning of reconciliation) by comparing life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:

(a) comparing fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past (about what?); and

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness (what is the definition of this in first grade?) and perspectives by examining and identifying cultural differences within a community.

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(b) explaining how student and individual identities (what is the difference?) are part of what makes each person unique and special.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building (what does this look like?) by investigating how people work together to accomplish a common task, and how working together benefits and challenges (define) people.

6.29.11.10 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SECOND GRADE:

A. Civics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:

(a) evaluating how American society has changed through rules and laws; and

(b) understanding the purposes and structures of government (e.g. tribal, local, state, national). (move to 3rd grade)

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:

(b) examining and comparing the American democratic principles to neighboring countries. (is this appropriate for 2nd grade? If so, what does it look like?)

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a civic life by examining and understanding the qualities of good leadership. (same as first?)

C. Geography.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by listing at least three different waves of migration to the western hemisphere (too specific; should sound like this 'explain why people move from one place to another) in chronological order.

D. History.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness (define) and perspectives by:

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(a) expressing a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad; and (while being respectful to)

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building by demonstrating respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from the student. (one's self)

6.29.11.11 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR THIRD GRADE:

- A. Civics.
- (f) comparing currency, ~~credit, debit, and checks~~ (remove) in the United States to other world money systems.
- C. Geography.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by:
- (a) explaining how physical and cultural characteristics (same as 3a) of world regions affect people, and examining geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations; and
- (c) analyzing the movement of indigenous groups, including the removal and return of Indigenous people throughout New Mexico and the US. (move to 4th grade)
- D. History.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context and reconciliation by explaining how world events impact New Mexico and the United States in the past and today (COVID, war, exploration?).
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:
- (a) expressing a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel bad; and (while being respectful of others)

6.29.11.12 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FOURTH GRADE:

- A. Civics.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by: (where do local and state leaders belong?)
- C. Geography.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by:
- (b) using a variety of maps, investigating and comparing how New Mexico's political boundaries have changed over time (e.g. Gadsden Purchase);

6.29.11.13 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FIFTH GRADE:

- A. Civics.
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
- (a) explaining how the principles of the declaration of independence became unifying ideas of American democracy; and (identify Democratic principles; add Constitution)
- (b) describing how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. (e.g. slavery, civil rights, women's rights, reservations)
- B. Economics.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
- (a) exploring examples from the western hemisphere to illustrate the role of scarcity historically and in current events (war, oil, revolution);
- D. History.
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
- (b) identifying the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues. (be more specific)
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:
- (2) explaining how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are. (clarify, doesn't make sense)

6.29.11.14 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SIXTH GRADE:

- D. History.
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by examining and explaining the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society. Period of time to teach should end at Middle Ages
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(b) describing the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explaining their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period. (move above to history)

6.29.11.15 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SEVENTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic and political institutions by:
- (a) explaining the role (people or institution?) of political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government, including voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, and analyzing issues;
 - (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:
 - (a) Using figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies;
 - (b) Hypothesizing (what does this look like?) how the policies of the Spanish monarchy in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region; and
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
 - (a) describing the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights, and responsibilities; and (which system of government?)

B. Economics.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
- (f) using primary and secondary sources (examples?) to explain the economic motivation of Spaniards as they enter the lands of and interact with the peoples of the Americas;
 - (g) using primary sources (examples?) to identify formal and informal actions that impacted local, tribal, and Spanish empirical economies during the Spanish colonial period; and

C. Geography.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by:
- (a) constructing maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources; (is this necessary?)
 - (d) using paper and digital maps (necessary?) to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the southwest region;
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of human-environmental interactions and sustainability by:
 - (b) describing how environmental events affect human activities and resources; (what about adaptation to environment?)
 - (h) interpreting (analyzing) the cultural differences between Spaniards and indigenous peoples;

D. History.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
- (k) evaluating the significance of short- and long-range trails throughout the lands gained in the Mexican cession (such as trade routes, railroad, military posts); and
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
 - (d) creating research questions about art or architecture of the Mogollon or the Pueblo ancestors;
 - (e) creating a model of Mogollon and Pueblo art or architecture; (are both necessary?)

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

- (14) developing a claim about (change to analyze) the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces; and

6.29.11.16 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR EIGHTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
- (b) citing specific examples of precedents established in the early republic that impact American lives today.

(Add) Explain how government policies were managed in the 1800s.

(Add) Explain the basic structure of American government by analyzing the US Constitution.

- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by investigating comparing (add) the causes and effects of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture that are associated with immigration and migration.

B. Economics.

- south.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
 - (b) ~~identifying and~~ explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the north and the south.
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic systems and models by ~~drawing diagrams or making models to illustrate~~ ~~(explain or analyze)~~ significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the western hemisphere.
 - (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of money and markets by:
 - (a) summarizing a significant economic warfare initiative of the civil war ~~through creative expression~~; and ~~(add) Examine the policies set due to the war outcome.~~

D. History.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
 - (a) ~~identifying key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments; (does this belong in 7th grade?)~~
 - (e) ~~making personal connections (not written as a standard), compare~~ to immigration stories and experiences in the past and present.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
 - (i) ~~generating research questions, brainstorming sources, and gathering evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the battle of Gorieta Pass in the western campaign of the American civil war, also known as “la guerra civil Estadounidense”; and (Replace with – Evaluate the important battles and events of the Civil War.)~~
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
 - (a) ~~drawing a diagram or making a model (explain or create oral history)~~ to illustrate a non-text method an indigenous person or group of indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history; and
 - (b) comparing and contrasting the causes, demographics, and results of the American revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution. ~~(other revolutions?)~~

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by examining history from the perspective of the participants ~~by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies. (add) through primary and secondary source documents.~~
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of identity in history by:
 - (e) describing immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition ~~and develop a claim~~ regarding the impact that gender proportionality or disproportionality had on immigrant or emigrant community’s culture; ~~(add) Examine what different groups experienced during Westward Expansion.~~ ~~(add) Explain how different identity groups experienced the Civil War and make connections to the present.~~
 - (h) using an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth ~~and evaluate the perspective of all who participated. (add)~~

F. Inquiry.

- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by:
 - (a) ~~describing (identifying)~~ the many facets of their identity, including family history and culture, and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups;

6.29.11.19 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY:

A. High school geography.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by
 - (d) ~~interpreting geographic representations to evaluate and explain changes over time; and (remove)~~
 - (e) applying geographic knowledge and geospatial skills to interpret the past and present to make informed decisions. ~~(decisions about what?)~~
 - (c) ~~identifying, defining, and (remove)~~ explaining the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions.
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by:
 - (a) ~~identifying, evaluating, and explaining (remove)~~ the causes, characteristics, and impact of human movement (migration, immigration, emigration) and settlement patterns at the local, national, and global scale;
 - (b) ~~identifying, evaluating, and explaining (remove)~~ the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion ~~to include (add):~~ the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices, traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time;

- (c) ~~describing, analyzing, and~~ (remove) comparing how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time;
- (d) analyzing ~~and predicting~~ (remove) how location, place, and region impact the evolution of human perspectives and identities;
- (e) ~~identifying~~ (remove) evaluating, ~~and predicting~~ (remove) how particular historical events and developments shape human processes and systems in a given place or region over time; and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of human-environmental interactions and sustainability by:
 - (a) ~~making reasoned ethical judgements~~ (how is this measured?) about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determining appropriate ways to respond;

6.29.11.20 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL NEW MEXICO

HISTORY:

B. Economics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:

- (c) ~~connecting the activities of the federal government in the state of New Mexico during the cold war and World War II, to New Mexico's current economy; and~~ (change to- Explain how the activities of the federal government during WWII and the Cold War influenced our current economy.)
- (d) ~~identifying~~ (change) -the main sources of income for tribes.
- (e) ~~Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry.~~ (Replace with- Explain incentives offered by New Mexico that attract various industries.)

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

- (d) ~~explaining how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico;~~ (remove)
- (g) ~~demonstrating contextualization and interpretation of~~ (Replace with- Explain) key events (Add- and identify major figures) that took place within ~~Native American~~ (change to- various) communities during the civil rights era.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
 - (c) ~~probing the beginnings of~~ (Evaluate) the Native American boarding school system, and the ramifications that it had on indigenous communities in New Mexico and abroad;
 - (f) ~~demonstrating historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the civil rights era in New Mexico.~~ (Replace with- Analyze the Civil Rights era and impact in New Mexico.)
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
 - (a) ~~determining~~ (add) Explain why it was necessary for the United States to purchase the land acquired by the Gadsden purchase, instead of obtaining it by warfare;
 - (b) ~~demonstrating historical~~ (Replace with- Create) argumentation by using various resources and perspectives to show the impact of World War II on the people of New Mexico, and the impact that our citizens had on the war;
 - (c) ~~identifying the beginnings of the arms race between the Soviet Union and the United States;~~ (very specific)
 - (d) ~~uncovering what types of activities took place, and what products were produced at Los Alamos national laboratory and Sandia national lab during the cold war and beyond;~~ (Replace with- Explain the importance of Los Alamos and Sandia Labs during the Cold War and today)
 - (e) ~~using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of~~ (Replace with- Analyze) how water management has changed over the centuries in New Mexico; and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
 - (a) ~~examining~~ (Replace with- Evaluate) the different perspectives from the peoples of New Mexico, and the United States at the time of annexation;
 - (b) ~~dissecting~~ (Replace with- analyze) the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and evaluating how the different people of New Mexico were addressed and impacted by the document;
 - (c) ~~determining~~ (add) Examine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period; and
 - (d) ~~appraising the value of New Mexico's historical sites to New Mexico's culture.~~ (Replace with- Discuss important historical sites that contribute to New Mexico's culture.)
- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of power dynamics, leadership, and agency by:
 - (a) ~~examining~~ (Replace with- Explain) the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken;

(b) contextualizing (Analyze)-the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the United States;

(f) demonstrating interpretation of critical changes in New Mexico's segregation laws. (Replace with Explain how laws changed to end segregation.)

6.29.11.21 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL UNITED STATES HISTORY:

A. High school United States history.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

(g) comparing and contrasting global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with reconstruction. (Remove, covered above)

(h) examining (Replace with- Analyze) immigration policy in the United States over time;

(i) evaluating what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States; (Evaluate, what is the frame of reference? Would students know what a 'just economic system' is?)

(j) examining contemporary labor struggles and populist movements in the United States and around the world; (Remove, doesn't belong in US History)

(l) determining the effectiveness of post-colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule; (Confusing; consider removal)

(o) determining the utility or futility of war; (Remove)

(q) comparing and contrasting the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world, such as Weimar Germany; (Why is this in US History?)

(s) evaluating the impact of new deal programs and policies on diverse groups of people in America, including African Americans and indigenous people;

(u) analyzing the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in the United States and Germany during this period; (Redundant, not needed. This is covered in standards below).

(x) examining the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America; (Remove, unclear why this is in US History)

(y) analyzing the impact of red scare ideology on social movements and activists (Remove) in the United States;

(z) researching and analyzing issues (Add 'Explain the impact') related to race relations in the United States since the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965; (vague, where would information come from?)

(hh) analyzing the current state and health of American democracy and creating an action plan to protect American democracy; and (Add 'Evaluate American principles of 1700s and today and see if they hold true to values in the Constitution')

(k) describing (Replace with- Evaluate) the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural south, explaining reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyzing how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor; (Remove specifics)

(p) making connections among the important consequences of the industrial revolution; (connections to what? Chnge to 'Evaluate')

Explain the significance of WWI (Consider adding)

(v) describing the multiple causes and consequences of the global (Add 'Great') depression of the 1930s;

(y) explaining the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the holocaust; (overlap of world history)

(z) explaining the reasons for American involvement in World War II and the key actions and events leading up to declarations of war against Japan and Germany (Add 'Axis Powers');

(ee) analyzing the roots of domestic communism and anti-communism in the 1950s, the origins and consequences of, and the resistance to McCarthyism (Redundant, consider removing);

(ff) researching and analyzing (Add 'Evaluate')- resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and supreme court decisions on civil rights; and

(gg) analyzing how communist economic policies and United States-sponsored resistance to Soviet military and diplomatic initiatives contributed to the fall of the Berlin wall in 1989 and the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991. (Change to 'Analyze fall of communism and the US reaction')

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:

- (c) comparing and contrasting the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism versus classic colonialism; (Hard to understand, is this necessary?)
- (e) evaluating the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans; (Remove)
- (g) explaining the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants; (Remove, redundant)
- (k) identifying the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the civil war, including women and African Americans; (Remove, redundant)
- (o) analyzing the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the civil war and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women; (Separate after 'civil war' to make 2)

Need a standard for causes and effects of American Imperialism (consider adding)

- (v) analyzing the strategies of African Americans to achieve basic civil rights in the early 20th century;
- (w) examining the role of colonial peoples, women, indigenous peoples and African Americans during World War I; (Change to- Examine diverse perspectives and the roles people played during WWI.

(aa) examining the lives and experiences of Mexicans during the 1930s and the relationship of the United States to Mexico; (Why is this here? The focus should be on Mexican Americans, repatriation)

(bb) evaluating the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups, such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals; (Add 'in America)

(cc) examining the ways in which gender roles changed and stayed the same for women during the war;

(dd) analyzing state-sponsored persecution and "othering" including anti-Semitism and homophobia (Add 'in the US');

(ee) analyzing the impact of the Vietnam war on the Vietnamese people and on the United States; (Redundant, consider removing)

(ff) exploring the impact of the cold war on indigenous peoples around the world; (Remove)

(mm) creating an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans; and (Remove)

(k) analyzing the role and conduct of the United States during the war (Replace with- WWI);

(l) examining the conflict between traditionalism and modernity as manifested in the major political and economic events in the first two decades of the 20th century; (Replace with- 1. 'Evaluate social, political, economic changes in society between traditionalism and modernity. And 2. Evaluate social, political, economic changes between traditionalism and modernity through multiple perspectives.)

(m) summarizing the diplomatic and military policies on the war in Vietnam and the Korean War (Add) of Presidents Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon;

(n) evaluating accomplishments of the civil rights movement and how they served as a model for later feminist, disability, and gender rights movements of the 20th and 21st centuries; (Redundant, consider removing)

(o) analyzing the important policies and events that took place during the presidencies of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon;

(p) analyzing the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and George Bush Sr. and Jr. (Add) and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics;

6.29.11.22 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL WORLD HISTORY:

A. Civics. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by:

- (1) assessing options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems;
- (2) applying a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts; and (Remove- These are inquiry standards; this is a repeat)

C. Geography.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by analyzing and (Remove) explaining the reciprocal relationship between physical and geographical locations, and the patterns and processes humans create within them.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by identifying, evaluating, and (Remove) explaining the causes, characteristics, and Evaluate (Add this and make this another standard) impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

- (a) identifying significant transformative moments in world history, analyze the reasons behind their transformative nature, and explain how they continue to shape contemporary global interactions; (Break into 3 standards)
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
- (a) ~~identifying and~~ evaluating multiple causes and effects of historical events within world history;
- (b) distinguishing between long- and short-term causes in developing historical interpretations; (This needs clarification. It is confusing).
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
- (b) effectively using and integrating evidence from a variety of diverse sources to evaluate and develop ~~historical~~ claims (add 'about historical events'); and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
- (c) ~~analyzing and~~ (Remove) evaluating multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups.
- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of power dynamics, leadership, and agency by:
- (a) using historical thinking skills to evaluate ~~historical and contemporary~~ (Remove) sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems, ~~and identify~~ (Remove) challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems;
- (b) investigating ~~cultural and historical~~ (Remove) developments within societies with attention to ~~culture~~ (add), belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology; and
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity studies. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of identity in history by:
- (2) examining the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups (over time) (add); and

HISTORY OF 6.29.11 NMAC: [RESERVED]

6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, filed 6/30/2009, was repealed and replaced by 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, effective 12/14/2021.

[EXTERNAL] New social study standards angiejfam <angiejfam@aol.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:02 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

While I agree with many parts of the new standards, there are also many I don't agree with. Having a first grader tell the difference between fact and opinion is very challenging. They believe everything to be fact and parents should be the primary learning for such things. Another thing, how are maps inherently biased? There are many other things that I don't agree with, but for the sake of time and the number of emails I assume you have to read, I will end with informing you that I am against w the implementing of the new standards.

Angie Farnsworth

Sent from the all new AOL app for iOS

[EXTERNAL] CRT in Our Curriculum

MIKE F <fedor971@msn.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:10 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The decision to teach this highly controversial and deeply flawed ideology will not only have negative consequences to those impressionable children exposed to it, there will be a mass exodus of students from the public schools.

My children will not be subjected to it!

Mike Fedorowich

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Harold Gershenson LAST_NAME <hgershenson@comcast.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:12 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired middle school social studies teacher I am gratified that the Public Education Department is proposing standards that address the issues of diversity and cultural identity, I taught children from many countries as well as the children of immigrants and refugees, and I was struck time and time again how the curriculum was off-base when my "world history" text made scant reference to Asia, Africa, and Latin America. I realized early in my career that my own knowledge was insufficient to properly present the topic I was licensed to teach and that I needed additional education to address my weaknesses. I am pleased that these deficiencies are finally being addressed.

It is tragic that certain parties are using the dogwhistle of critical race theory, to try and stop these reforms. The misuse of the term "critical race theory" as a rallying cry for racist organizations has been well documented in articles in The New Yorker, The Nation, and other well respected journals. We can not let these voices deny our children an appropriate education that acknowledges the rich but complex history of New Mexico, our nation, and the multiple civilizations present and past that have formed the rich pageant of humanity.

Sincerely,

Harold Gershenson, PhD.
Middle School Social Studies Teacher (retired)
3101 La Mancha Dr, NW
Albuquerque,
NM 87104

[EXTERNAL] As necessary improve, but basically keep the proposed Social Studies Standards

Stephen Sachs <ssachs@earthlink.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:16 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED People,

Thank you for fine work on the proposed Social Studies standards. I do not know them in detail, but from what I understand they are basically quite sound and appropriate, though like anything else can be improved with feedback and experience.

I have seen some of the commentary made public so far and would like to add my voice in opposing the NM GOP position:

"According to the N.M. GOP, the standards:

- impose a progressive/liberal bias to historical events
- indoctrinate students with the "false theology" that our country has systemic racism and inequity and our capitalistic system must be replaced with a socialist system.
- encourage division and victimhood, and fail to teach we are all Americans.
- do not help students realize we all have opportunities for economic advancement.
- fail to teach what has made America great.

Blue CD 2 NM disagrees with those characterizations. We believe the standards build bridges between groups, teach important civic values and teach students how to think, not what to think. See all our talking points on the standards here.

Further, the state GOP's arguments reveal their willful blindness to facts about

- inequality in the U.S. (See Pew Research's 6 Facts about Economic Inequality in the U.S.)
- opportunities for upward mobility in the U.S. (We rank 27th in the world. See here, here and here.)"

Not having read them in detail, I have a question that is worth reflecting on. Is there enough included on the experience and voices of the various peoples who live and have lived in New Mexico, especially including Native, Genizaros, African American and Latinex peoples?

Also, a recent set of four volumes combining previous with new research unfold the tremendous extent that American Indians have contributed to the U.S., the West, and indeed the world. At least some of that topic, as well as the contributions of other groups, ought to be included. The volumes I am referring to are in Honoring the Circle: Ongoing Learning from American Indians on Politics and Society, available inexpensively on Amazon, another works tell portions of this story.

Thank you for all your efforts.

Stephen M. Sachs, Professor Emeritus of Political Science, IUPUI, now residing in Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] NO to CRT

Sharis Wolfram <swolframabq@icloud.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

There is no place for CRT to be taught directly OR indirectly to children in US schools.

It is wrong to make children of any race feel they are at some sort of fault for their racial makeup. Martin Luther King Jr. had the right attitude/outlook. People should be judged on the content of their character, not skin color.

History needs to be taught accurately. Lessons can be learned from it certainly. That should be done without making anyone currently living, especially children, to feel responsible for sins of the past.

Here in New Mexico, we have a rich mix of people. Every group makes NM better.

Do NOT pit children against any group.

Foster healthy relationships.

Emphasize good character.

THERE IS NO PLACE FOR CRT IN SCHOOL CURRICULUM.

Sincerely,

Sharis Wolfram

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] I SUPPORT the NEW State Social Studies Standards

Claire Porter <claireporter@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

As a Level 3 middle school US history teacher and 2015 Golden Apple Teacher of Distinction recipient, I couldn't be more excited about the proposed changes to the New Mexico Social Studies State Standards. When I reviewed the proposed updates, I found the new standards to move away from the rote memorization and collection of facts that were abundant in the outdated standards and towards a focus on critical thinking and analysis of information. As our students are increasingly able to instantly look up a plethora of minutia with the help of the internet, it is becoming more important than ever that our students are critical thinkers, readers, and writers. Aside from the higher-order thinking skills the standards will require students to develop, the new updates provide for the mental health of our students by demanding a curriculum that is culturally responsive.

As a parent of two young Black children, I am fully supportive of integrating ethnic studies into the curriculum. As our country is incredibly diverse, Albuquerque included, all of our students need to be able to see themselves reflected in the curriculum in life-affirming ways. It is critical that we teach an accurate history that is inclusive of marginalized people, that teaches about patterns of oppression, and that humanizes oppressed people to avoid perpetuating racism and stereotypes. When the histories of marginalized people are left out of the curriculum, the progeny of those people, the very students in our classrooms or children in our homes, are in turn taught that they are inferior. Whether we decide as a state to teach about race-relations and oppression through these new standards or not, racism IS being taught to our students through the outdated standards and the omission of important stories of marginalized peoples--stories that tell of resistance, of achievement, and of heroic acts of bravery.

While much of US history is uncomfortable, and while I can imagine parents of white children feeling concerned that their children will feel guilty learning some of the racist mistakes of the past, I know that it is important to not perpetuate lies. When the truth in history is taught well, students do not feel guilt or shame, but rather they feel enraged by the difficult portions of our past and motivated to change our collective future for the better....which indeed, is the very goal of a social studies education in the first place.

Claire Porter

Parent and Social Studies Teacher

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Eric Greer <egreer@bulldogs.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:36 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>; Sandoval, Katarina, PED <Katarina.Sandoval@state.nm.us>; Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>; Bannerman, Vickie, PED <Vickie.Bannerman@state.nm.us>; Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Cc: Eric, Greer <egreer@bulldogs.org>

 1 attachments (381 KB)

Social Studies Letter_Greer.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good Evening,

Please find attached my letter reflecting my thoughts on the proposed social studies standards.

Thank you,

Eric Greer
Principal
Artesia High School
1002 W. Richardson
Artesia, NM 88210
Phone: 575-746-9816 Ext. 1561
Fax: 575-746-4365
Email: egreer@bulldogs.org

ARTESIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS – “SUPERIOR QUALITY EDUCATION FOR ALL STUDENTS”

Disclaimer: This message and any attachments are intended for the use of the addressee(s) only and may be confidential and/or legally privileged. If the reader is not the intended recipient, DO NOT READ, notify sender and delete this message. In addition, be aware that any disclosure, copying, distribution, or use of the contents of this message is strictly prohibited. The contents of this message, while possibly falling under the exceptions of the Inspection of Public Records ACT {NMSA Chapter 14, Article 2} may be subject to inspection by the public.

Artesia High School

Mr. Eric Greer, Principal
Mr. Mark McAlister, Assistant Principal
Mrs. Halee Goff, Assistant Principal

1002 West Richardson Ave.
Artesia, NM 88210-1899
Telephone 575-746-9816

Date: November 11, 2021

To: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary Designate
Dr. Gwen Perea-Warniment, Deputy Secretary of Teaching, Learning and Assessment
Ms. Katarina Sandoval, Deputy Secretary, Academic Engagement and Student Success
Dr. Vickie C. Bannerman, Deputy Secretary of Identity, Equity, and Transformation
Mr. John Sena, Director of Policy, Innovation, and Measurement

FROM: Eric Greer

Thank you for the opportunity to weigh-in on the proposed changes to the Social Studies standards. I will keep this response brief and to the point, as I personally know others that have responded detailing some of the concerns that I have expressed in this letter.

Although I have had time to look into the proposed standards, compare them to the current standards, and evaluate what this will look like in the classroom, I have not had the opportunity to delve into this endeavor in a manner in which it is worthy. If I am having this difficulty as a principal, especially with the nature of education recovering from coming out of an extended period of remote learning, how difficult will this be for the educators who are on the front line implementing this task in the classroom? Much of this is because of the vast difference of the length of proposed standards compared to the existing standards. At first glance, without actually looking into the standards, this is a concerning factor.

Another aspect is that many of the proposed standards are not written as standards; they are written as assignments. Furthermore, a deeper look into some of the proposed standards one will see that some of the information is inaccurate. Furthermore, I see that many of the proposed standards are overall poorly written and constructed.

Although I have heard arguments that they do not contain aspects of critical race theory, I do not see how a good number of the proposed standards do not lend themselves toward this position.

I have heard it said that the current standards are in need of a complete overhaul. It is hard for me to see that the current standards are in need a major overhaul. I do not remember the exact quote; however, someone in the New Mexico Public Education Department alludes to the need of this change now, and that the students of New Mexico can't wait any longer. I do see it different. The proposed standards are in much more need of repair than the current standards. There is much work to be done before the proposed timeline. I see that the current standards are in much better shape overall than the proposed standards. Please slow this process considerably and allow proper and adequate time to ensure that new standards, if we truly are in need of them, are developed in a sound manner.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "Eric Greer", with a stylized flourish at the end.

Eric Greer

[EXTERNAL] K-12 Social Studies Standards

Lamaia Vaughn <lamaivaughn@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:44 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the Officials of the New Mexico Public Education Department:

It is in the best interest of New Mexico's children that you support the new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico schools.

These standards will:

- Allow the State of NM to comply with the Yazzie/Martinez court ruling
- Teach all students New Mexico's historical truth
- Improve educational outcomes for our children

Do your part to put quality and equity into New Mexico's education system.

Lamaia Vaughn
P. O. Box 954
Las Cruces NM 88004
lamaivaughn@gmail.com
575-639-3636

[EXTERNAL] Change of History Curriculum

Bonnie Lucero <findingmyway@aol.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My husband and I are against changing the History Curriculum . I can't understand the reasoning behind the change.

Mr and Mrs Mike Lucero

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies in NM

AB Ariele Bauers <arielebauers@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 7:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello Public Servants,

I'm a parent, healthcare professional and small business owner in Albuquerque. I'm white, and am raising my two white sons in the public school system here. I support the inclusion of Critical Race Theory into the NM Social Studies curriculum because this framework helps people develop the critical thinking tools necessary to understand how systemic racism impacts individuals and communities. Our diverse state, with its complicated history of colonization, especially deserves this critical lens. Our kids will build better systems with this foundational knowledge.

Thank you for your work.

Best regards,

Ariele Bauers

3102 Aliso Dr NE

Albuquerque, NM 87110

--

Ariele Bauers

she/hers

Reply | Forward

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Krishawn Greene <krishawn.greene@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:04 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern -

I beg of you to teach the true history of our country. The good, the bad and the ugly. That's what life is all about. WE have all made mistakes in life but what's so amazing about being a human is you get to learn from your mistakes. I certainly have. I teach my children that life is all about continually learning. I teach my kids that when we make a mistake, we apologize and we DON'T make the same mistake. Isn't that what life is about. If this curriculum is taught in Social Studies I will never be able to tell my children we make mistakes, we don't do it again and we learn. The new curriculum does not teach this. We are all doomed if we are not aloud to learn from mistakes. So unless you are perfect, which is not possible, you can never make a mistake again in your life if this is what your willing to teach. History is called history for a reason. It's the past. It's the good, the bad and the ugly and it is hope for growth and learning from mistakes.

Thank you for reading!
Krishawn Greene

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards for New Mexico's K-12 students

LINDA LILLOW <llillow@comcast.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:06 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I support the proposed standards because I believe they:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

Sincerely,

Linda L. Lillow

[EXTERNAL] I support the new social studies standards!

Jagan Butler <jagan.butler@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:06 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear New Mexico Public Education Department,

I feel that the new social studies standards are a big improvement over the previous version. I look back at what was covered when I went to school and what my kids were exposed to and it left out many facts. As a society we need the truth and this includes learning about what we have done right and where we have failed. When we learn about and share our diversity we build the capacity to be more civil and at this time in our history we need this more than ever.

Jagan Butler, MBA

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Halee Goff <hgoff@bulldogs.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:06 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Eric, Greer <egreer@bulldogs.org>; Mark, McAlister <mmcalister@bulldogs.org>

 1 attachments (670 KB)

Social Studies Standards- Public Comment.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening,

Please find the attached letter concerning the proposed social studies standards.

Thank you,

Halee Goff

Assistant Principal

Artesia High School

575-746-9816 Ext. 1544

ARTESIA PUBLIC SCHOOLS – “SUPERIOR QUALITY EDUCATION FOR ALL STUDENTS”

Disclaimer: This message and any attachments are intended for the use of the addressee(s) only and may be confidential and/or legally privileged. DO NOT READ, notify sender and delete this message. In addition, be aware that any disclosure, copying, distribution, or use of the contents of this message is strictly prohibited. The contents of this message, while possibly falling under the exceptions of the Inspection of Public Records ACT {NMSA Chapter 14, Article 2} may be subject to inspection by the public.

Artesia High School

Mr. Eric Greer, Principal
Mr. Mark McAlister, Assistant Principal
Mrs. Halee Goff, Assistant Principal

1002 West Richardson Ave.
Telephone 575-746-9816
Artesia, NM 88210-1899

Date: November 11, 2021

To: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary Designate
Dr. Gwen Perea-Warniment, Deputy Secretary of Teaching, Learning and Assessment
Ms. Katarina Sandoval, Deputy Secretary of Academic Engagement and Student Success
Dr. Vickie C. Bannerman, Deputy Secretary of Identity, Equity, and Transformation
Mr. John Sena, Director of Policy, Innovation, and Measurement

From: Halee Goff

First, I would like to thank each of you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed revisions of the social studies standards. I am providing my comments not only as an educator, but also as the mother of two small children who have the privilege of being educated by highly qualified and dedicated teachers within the public school system. As I assess the proposed changes to the social studies standards, I have a number of concerns that need to be acknowledged and addressed, hopefully.

I choose to have my children educated in the public education system as I firmly and adamantly believe they will receive the best education possible. With that being said, we must also proceed with caution when making sweeping, drastic, and lasting changes to the standards we are teaching our children within that same system. We should never teach with bias, and we should never present opinion-clad standards as truths. These statements are, perhaps, the most applicable to the social studies standards we utilize. We must be open-minded and willing to analyze events in history and societal happenings without bias, without indoctrination, and with facts that enable the young minds in our classrooms to analyze, decipher, infer, and be informed. The proposed standards do not allow for open debate, discussion, and for events to be taught from a factual basis. Instead, the standards are presented from a single focus and point of view. I want my children to learn about the events in society and history that have shaped the country we know today; however, I do not want my children to learn bias and to be subjected to a singular viewpoint.

In addition to the clear bias present in the proposed standards, I have other concerns as well. Many of the standards are not standards, they are single assignments or writing prompts. Once this single assignment is completed, there is no depth remaining for the standard. Although I appreciate some of the single "assignments" or "writing prompts," I am disappointed that these would be considered "standards" which give no room for a deep delve into the heart of what is intended to be taught. By dictating what is being taught and which assignments are to be completed, teachers lose opportunities for differentiation, creativity, and academic freedom. Furthermore, many of the standards contain grammatical, contextual, and syntax errors. As professional educators, we cannot afford for the proposed academic standards to be so poorly written. This is a slight to our profession as well as a loss of credibility. I implore that a thorough and complete edit be completed before any proposed standards are codified.

Ultimately, the decision to move forward with the proposed standards before educators have the adequate time to analyze, research, and dissect the proposal is unjust which will only lead New Mexico schools to providing an inadequate social studies education to our students. Regardless of political and societal views, at the very least, a delay in the adoption of the proposed standards should take place to allow educators, parents, and the community to understand what is in the standards and how these standards will be intended to be taught. We are making a profound and lasting decision that will have an impact on New Mexican students for generations. Is that something we should rush, or should we spend quality time to ensure we are providing the very best education possible? My children, the 3,000 students in my district, and the more than 300,000 students across the state deserve our best. Nothing less. To rush this process is less. Please consider a delay in moving forward with the proposed social studies standards.

Again, thank you for the opportunity to provide comment on the proposed changes to the social studies standards. I sincerely ask that you consider the impact these standards will make on our children today and on the future generations of New Mexican students who will grace our classrooms over the next decades. They deserve our best.

Sincerely,

Halee Goff

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Social Studies Standards berl brechner <bbrech3@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 11, 2021

Comments on proposed:

TITLE 6 PRIMARY AND SECONDARY EDUCATION
CHAPTER 29 STANDARDS FOR EXCELLENCE
PART 11 SOCIAL STUDIES

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this. The standards are a lengthy and complex document, and given pandemic-induced limitations, I would urge a longer period of time for the public's understanding, review and comment than is presently set.

I have reviewed elements of the proposal, and pinpoint some lines and considerations that caught my eye:

p.2 (for kindergarten)

3)The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by:

- (a) taking group or individual action to help address local, regional, or global problems; and
- (b) using deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about, and act on, civic problems in their classrooms.

p.16

(b) critically reading the bill of rights and supporting texts to determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the bill of rights and supporting texts to support a student-developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time;

p.17

(a) developing research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity, also known as "identidad Estadounidense," and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies;

p.29

(d) examining diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery;

p.30

- (m) identifying the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century
- (o) analyzing the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the civil war and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women;
- (gg) comparing and contrasting the communist red scare with the lavender scare;
- (hh) analyzing the origins, evolution, and goals of the African American civil rights movement and Black Power Movement;
- (ii) analyzing the causes, course, and impact on American politics and society of new social and political movements, including consideration of the role of protest, advocacy organizations, and active citizen participation

p.33

- (c) analyzing the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.
- (2) examining the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups; and
- (3) examining the role colonization, assimilation, or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

In here are obscure and distant concepts that seem to create issues that are not issues. So much of this seems to foster a picture of a dreary, Balkanized, unhappy, strife-riven country, where tribes and special groups and genders and races have never gotten along, and where the successes and opportunities here have not made this perhaps the most desirable nation in the world in which to live. In fact, the word “problem” or “problems” appears 44 times in this set of standards. The standards are devoid of any sense of positivism or hope. As a “melting pot” nation, most here recognize our commonalities more so than our differences, and there is no sense of that in this document.

And I have heard the explanation that the Yazzie case requires this kind of differentiation and teaching. No, the Yazzie case demanded that state schools provide the programs and services necessary for students, all students including those who have been underserved, the opportunity to learn and thrive, and challenged the state’s failure to sufficiently fund these programs and services. It did not suggest this kind of curriculum.

What’s here may not be formally described as including Critical Race Theory, but as I watched a PED representative spokesperson on the news on 11/10 trying to explain that this was not Critical Race Theory, I watched her eyes and demeanor, unable to look the camera in the eye as she made her statements on this. Elements in these guidelines represent the stair-steps to those objectives.

Earlier this month in Virginia, a state of huge diversity, a new governor was elected. Regardless of his party or politics, I believe Glenn Youngkin’s words, as he spoke late in the campaign, rang true to a large number of people of that state:

“We all know education starts with curriculum. We will teach all history, the good and the bad. America has fabulous chapters and it’s the greatest country in the world, but we also have some abhorrent chapters in our history, we must teach them. We can’t know where we are going if we don’t know where we came from.
But let me be clear: what we won’t do is teach our children to view everything through the lens of race, where we divide them into buckets; one group’s an oppressor and another group is the victim; and we pitch them against each other ... We know it’s not right. We know in our hearts it’s wrong. We are all created equal and we’re trying so hard to live up to those immortal words of Martin Luther King Jr., who implored us to be better than we are; to judge one another based on the content of our character and not the color of our skin.”

I hope the state of NM will look closely at these standards towards revisions that more closely align with Mr. Younkin’s thoughts.

Respectfully,
Berl Brechner
664 Camino del Monte Sol
Santa Fe, NM

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Social Studies Rule Changes

John Block <john@pinonpost.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:10 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena and NMPED staff:

I am writing today in vehement opposition to the deranged new standards being proposed by the disgraced Michelle Lujan Grisham administration through the New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED).

Forcing racism down childrens' throats in the form of Critical Race Theory (CRT) is just one concern. Other concerns include the teaching of clearly anti-Constitution, anti-gun, anti-conservative, anti-police, and anti-Hispanic prejudice all concern not only me but hundreds of New Mexicans who have reached out to me about this.

These standards clearly encompass Critical Race Theory, a racist indoctrination technique that forces children to use race as a determining factor on the supposed "privilege" they hold in society and how they are inherently either a racist "oppressor" or a subservient victim.

To those who erroneously claim CRT does not exist in the standards, I point you to this passage in the proposal, which reads, children must " [a]ssess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement."

According to Critical Race Theory scholar Khiara Bridges, "CRT recognizes that racism is codified in law, embedded in structures, and woven into public policy. CRT rejects claims of meritocracy or 'colorblindness.' CRT recognizes that it is the systemic nature of racism that bears primary responsibility for reproducing racial inequality."

NMPED's proposed standards include provisions forcing students to "[d]escribe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today." This is sowing seeds of doubt into children's minds on whether the country they live in has racism woven through its very fabric, a false and offensive proposal.

Students are also forced to "determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time." This makes students believe that racism is embedded in our Constitution, another extreme and offensive proposal.

These policies are full of new racist, anti-capitalist, anti-police, anti-gun, anti-conservative, anti-Hispanic, and anti-American sentiments while only mentioning the Constitution to claim it is a racist document full of “inequities.” This is the latest assault on education by the Lujan Grisham administration, but this will not be tolerated.

I also take great offense to these racist proposals having students “Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards,” as well as having students “Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.” This is a direct attack on Hispanics in New Mexico and it is blatantly racist.

If this administration wanted to be so-called “equal” or “equitable” in the teaching of New Mexico history, why have I not read a single word about Native American violence among Spaniards in these proposed standards, such as Popé, who brutally slaughtered 400 Spanish people in the disgraceful Pueblo Revolt of 1680? No, the Lujan Grisham regime would rather pick on Spanish settlers than tell the truth about the bloodthirsty terrorist Popé.

As well, the standards have students “cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy.” The United States is a constitutional republic, not a “democracy.” And focusing on “equity” and “justice” is just propagating more inequity and injustice.

These standards demonize guns and gun owners. The rule states that students are to “Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.” They also demonize police officers by forcing children to “[e]xplore the movement against police brutality.” Also, they are to evaluate the “effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society.”

These, as well as countless other standards, not only teach children false information, such as that the United States is a “constitutional democracy,” but they ingrain racism into children’s minds, which I would contend does not combat racism — it encourages it. But the scandal-ridden, disgraceful Michelle Lujan Grisham regime of shame has slapped concerned parents and community members in the face with total disregard, not only by canceling in-person testimony but by blatantly condescending those opposed to these racist standards.

Lujan Grisham’s lieutenant governor Howie Morales called concerned parents a “noisy minority” in a recent op-ed, while the Governor’s allies at the Santa Fe New Mexican editorial board claimed parents concerned over teaching CRT in the schools is “fake outrage.” The devaluation of parents and their ability to advocate on behalf of their kids by this administration is not only condescending, it is actionable.

I most certainly can attest to you that at school board meetings in my area of the state (which the Lujan Grisham regime doesn't give to thoughts about), parents are fed up with the state ingraining racism into the public school system through CRT and "equity" nonsense.

This state was made great by men, women, and children of all races, all colors, all creeds, and all nationalities who worked TOGETHER — NOT APART to create a prosperous place. The Michelle Lujan Grisham regime's racism is not welcome here.

By picking old wounds and indoctrinating children with this globalist rubbish, it is doing a disservice to not only the people of our state, but it is crippling the future generations of New Mexico by brainwashing them not HOW to think, but telling them WHAT to think based on arbitrary characteristics they cannot control, such as race, sex, and economic status. Shame on the Lujan Grisham regime for even proposing this, and I can guarantee you New Mexicans will not take kindly to racist CRT being forced upon our state's children.

Respectfully Submitted,

John Block

Editor and Founder of the Piñon Post
Native New Mexican and Alamogordo Resident

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Clancey McMillan <clancey.mcmillan@carlsbadschools.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:12 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening,

I'm writing to you this evening just a mere month and a half from taking my position as a school board member in Carlsbad. I wanted to take a few minutes to highlight some of my concerns with the proposed social studies standards. In addition to the concerns I'm going to mention, I would also like to note that now is not the time to be implementing new standards. Parents, teachers and districts are drowning trying to catch our children up from the loss of learning that occurred during covid. Every effort should be focused on meeting the needs of our students and ensuring they are where they need to be academically. While I do not disagree with the reality that our standards need updating, I strongly urge that these proposed standards be postponed a minimum of 6 months to allow districts, parents and teachers to comb through each of the standards and report back to the PED.

I have done my research on CRT, what it is, what it looks like and the advantages/disadvantages. CRT isn't meant to be about race, but about power. It asserts that race and power have been inextricably intertwined and "whiteness" can be interchanged with "oppression". What I've come to realize is that schools across the country have slowly implemented factors of critical race theory within their curriculum, just under the guise of another name. There is always a focus on buzzwords in education and many of the words I'm seeing in these standards are directly related to the foundation of CRT. Any mention of "systemic racism", "white privilege", "oppressed" or "oppressor" are indicative of CRT. My issue with CRT in our classrooms is that it is not based on fact, but rather narrative. Parents are not opposed to our children learning about slavery, racism or the errors we as Americans have committed in our past. Parents are, however, opposed to teaching children of color that they are oppressed and reduced to the color of their skin or that white children oppress their classmates of color simply by being white.

Our kindergarten standards begin with teaching children to identify differences among themselves. Not differences such as boy or girl that children of this age typically notice, but differences in identities and how their families do things. When discussing this portion of the standards with kindergarten teachers, they were all in agreement that these are not things children typically notice at 5. Many children do not even color their own skin the accurate color when depicting themselves. Teaching children at this age to start identifying differences between them based on culture, skin color, family practices or anything beyond what 5 year olds typically understand is a detriment to our children. Initiating a divide at this age will only grow into larger racial divides as they get older.

K.14. Identify how individuals are similar and different.

K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities and people who do not.

K.24. Identify how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things.

The following standards are just a segment of what I have issues with in these standards, but what I would consider the most concerning when it comes to our children.

2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad.

2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities and people who do not.

5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

The following are standards for 6-8 and I have highlighted the standards in which reflect actual CRT terminology:

6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.

6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.

6.54. Examine and explain how the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society.

7.28. Evaluate how society's response to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government and industry.

7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.

7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.

7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display and conclude how to address stereotypes.

7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group.

7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.

8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.

8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era.

8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

Standards for 9-12 are very clearly the strongest argument for CRT and gender theory. The following are what I found the most concerning:

9.12.NMH.49. Compare organizations engaged in Civil Rights work. (Does this include Antifa and BLM?)

9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a "war to free the slaves," and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people.

9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts.

9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.

9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.

9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.

9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia.

9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.

9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality.

9-12.US.129. Examine the experience of activism and the LGBTQIA+ community during this period (1968-2008), including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance and hate crimes.

9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.

9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including, race, gender, sexual orientation and disability.

9-12.US.139. Examine contemporary civil rights struggles.

9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions and long-term effects of oppression.

9-12.WH.37. Examine the role of colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial and religious identities and language.

9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.

9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.

9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry and law enforcement.

9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.

9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial and religious identities and language.

9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national and global advocacy.

9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structure and functions of a 21st Century American society.

Parents are the final authority over their children and have every right to have a say in the things they are being taught in school. A failure of the PED to recognize and address the concerns of each and every parent regarding these standards is a disrespect of our authority as parents. The public education system has the responsibility of teaching our children HOW to think, not WHAT to think. These standards are disappointing to say the least and have no business in our children's curriculum. I strongly urge you to postpone the approval of these standards until parents, teachers and districts have had enough time to review them and give their input.

Thank you,

Clancey McMillan

575-302-9986

Carlsbad Municipal Schools

This is a staff email account managed by Carlsbad Municipal Schools. This email, including any attachments, is for the sole use of the intended recipient(s) regarding the business of the Carlsbad Municipal Schools and may contain confidential and privileged information protected by federal and state law. Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure, or distribution is prohibited. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender by reply email and destroy all copies of the original message.

[EXTERNAL] proposed new social studies standards

Kathleen McCorkell <Immklm612@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We support teaching social studies to our NM students from a wider perspective than has been used in the past. Therefore, we support the proposed changes. Contrary to the claims of some of the proponents of the new standards, these are substantive changes, and will require teachers to make big changes in their lesson plans and instructional materials. Please do not rush implementation. Teachers will need training and support in teaching the new material, and parents need to have a chance to see what will actually be taught, and how the concepts will be presented. As usual, the devil is in the details, and it is reasonable to be concerned about how sensitive subjects will be handled. Just cramming the new standards down the throat of apprehensive parents will create a culture wars train wreck. --Kathleen McCorkell and Lynn Mallory

[EXTERNAL] CRT is wrong

Anthony Jaramillo <pauljaramillosr@me.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:20 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I'm writing in opposition to the Social Studies Rule fir school year 22-23. I sincerely believe that it is wrong to make a child feel guilty or inferior or evil because of the color of their skin. Do you also agree that is wrong to separate children into different groups, based on skin color and ethnicity? And do you agree that it is wrong to identify some children as part of the oppressed class and others as part of the oppressor class. If we can say yes to the first set of questions, that rebuts the idea that parents who oppose CRT don't want their kids to know the truth about slavery and segregation (and more). To the contrary, these parents are saying, "Yes, let the whole story be told, but in a fair and accurate way."

If we can say yes to the second set of questions, that rebuts the idea that proponents of CRT want white children to feel guilty or that they want to incorporate identity politics into the classroom. To the contrary, they are saying, "We have no desire to lay a guilt trip on white Americans."

This is totally divisive and wrong to bring into the schools.

Please do not implement the new social Studies rule.

Sincerely

Paul A. Jaramillo sr
(505)901-0212

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards

Terra Greer <tgreer@bulldogs.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:20 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (18 KB)

SS Standards2021 (1).docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I have taught Social Studies in New Mexico for 16 years, and I stand against passing the proposed standards as they are written now. I know and understand the Social Studies content and standards.

The new proposals do NOT meet National Standards for Social Studies, nor are they aligned. The new standards actually go against the National Standards for Social Studies Teachers. These proposed standards do not allow teachers to uphold the National Standards.

The proposed NM Social Studies standards are written as assignments, not standards. Teachers do not need assignment ideas as standards, this is not the purpose of educational standards. New teachers will need guidelines, standards, people, events, places, to teach history. Assignments are built into curriculums, NOT state standards. Without better written standards, our students will suffer even more in their education in New Mexico. Teachers need standards NOT Assignments.

There are also several of the new proposed standards that are historically and factually wrong.

These Standards should be stopped immediately, and many more months given to correct them. I do NOT agree with passing the standards as is. They need to be greatly modified before they are capable of being released and used in a classroom.

Philadelphia prides itself on being the location where the many rough drafts of the Constitution are kept. There should be many rough drafts of these standards to get them right. As they are written now, New Mexico will get this wrong.

Attached are examples of how the standards are wrong, for 8th US History.

Terra Greer
Artesia Junior High

Social Studies Standards 2021

1. WRONG dates and information

a. Theme 2 History 14 8.32 “Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.”

- Major European explorers explored in the 15th AND 16th Century.
- The new guidelines DO NOT list any names of specific explorers.
- 15th Century = 1400’s so Portugal and Spain up to Columbus.
- 16th Century = 1500’s Portugal, Spain, & France should also be included in the standard. They are not included after this standard either.

b. Little to no guidance on content specifics (people, places, dates, events)

c. None of these important people or events are mentioned: Pocahontas, Juan Ponce De Leon, William Penn, Anne Hutchinson, George Washington, James Madison, John Locke, The Prophet and his brother Tecumseh, Five Civilized Tribes, Trail of Tears, Indian Removal Act, Manifest Destiny, just to list a few, Hiram Revels, Blanche K. Bruce (African American Senators during the Revolution), Dred Scott, John Brown, Frederick Douglas,

2. Written as Assignments, not Content Standards

a. History 16 8.48 “Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution”

-The wording of this standard implies teachers are to have already taught the

-Causes of the American Revolution (which should be a standard, BUT IS NOT under these new proposals)

-the demographics (I don’t know what this means here. Like the geography and location of the battles of the American Revolution?)

-and the results of the American Revolution.

THEN tie all of that together and compare it to Revolutions that came after ours.

Which ones? As a veteran teacher, the answer here is the French Revolution.

New Teachers will not know this, and neither will teachers who have strictly taught from a textbook.

b. 8.30 “Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.”

-I don’t know what content I am supposed to teach here.

-“Support a claim” What claim? Anyone’s ideas? Or historical fact? This Assignment would require many weeks of teaching indigenous lifestyles and histories from around the world PRIOR to writing a response.

-“Global Problems” How broad can one be? There must be more direction and specifics for teachers to be cohesive across the state. This is a U.S. History standard, not World History.

3. “Biased Maps”

Anchor Standard

-8th 6-8 Inquiry 23 8.5 “Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory.”

a. Maps are not biased. They have facts of space and time but are inherently UNBIASED in nature and design. They reflect time periods. Forcing Bias into mapping is BIASED!

4. U.S. Histories overlap 400 years. No need for H.S. history to travel back to the Columbian Exchange! That’s an 8th grade standard/time-period, and should stay that way

All I ask is that teachers be given standards NOT Assignments. Standards which guide and provide specifics for the content of historical people, places, events, times, eras, and into the future. I ask for standards that are UNBIASED. Standards that let history teach itself. I have never had to explain the evils of the Trail of Tears, The Long Walk, slavery, the Holocaust, The Spanish Inquisition, or any other human travesties as my students are thinkers and have always been able to think and reason on their own. The way the new guidelines are written is taking away students’ right to think and formulate their own opinions. Many historical events are filled with human evil, and it’s easy for students to pick that out. Many human events are also filled with grace, compassion, love, change, and these are the events omitted from the new social studies guidelines.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies standards

SM Ramos <smrcmd@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear members of the Public Education Department,

I am writing to you as a parent, grandparent, and volunteer tutor for elementary school children. I am in favor of the proposed Social Studies standards for our public school curricula. This update in the standards is overdue, especially when we consider that the current ones are 20 years old, and many changes have occurred in our nation's culture and history.

I believe the standards help students:

- learn about and celebrate the diverse communities from which they come.
- learn about the unique contributions their ancestors, near and far, have made to the development of this nation.
- learn how various communities have worked together to improve the lives of all.
- help develop children's ability to read carefully and examine facts rather than memorize them.
- to examine various aspects of our country's history and how their lives and the lives of their neighbors have been affected by those events
- help students get ready to become citizen who participate in our democracy

Thank you for your attention and your very important work.

Sincerely,

Sylvia M. Ramos, M.D.

PO Box 7398

Albuquerque, NM 87194

505 401-0601

Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex.

Equal Rights Amendment written by Alice Paul in 1923. Ratified by the necessary 38 states in 2020, Centennial of Woman Suffrage.

[EXTERNAL] PED New Social Studies "Standards"

Robbie Madrid <rharrison@bulldogs.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Social Studies <socialstudiescomment@bulldogs.org>

 1 attachments (13 KB)

NM Standards Letter.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good evening. Please see my attached letter that addresses my stance on the new social studies standards.

Thank you!

November 11, 2021

To whom it may concern (EVERYONE in the state of NM):

Thank you for allowing me this opportunity to express my opinion on the Re-Development of the NM Social Studies Standards. I am NOT in support of these new standards for many reasons. Please continue to read this email to see why these standards should not be adopted.

The most important reason why I am against these new standards is because they are divisive and offer no support for or pride in the wonderful things about our country. The United States, while not perfect, is still an amazing country, and these standards would teach children the complete opposite. Just to let you know a little bit about my own experience in this country: I am "white," and I was raised just about as poor as any kid could be in this state. I am currently a level III teacher, with teaching experience in two states and three school districts. I am also a single-mom of three girls that have been/are currently being educated in the NM school system. Two of my children are half-Black, and my third child is half-Hispanic. All three of my children have thrived in their education, and all three have been loved by everyone in our town. My oldest is currently attending college and is a part of her school's track and field team. She is excelling. My second child is a freshman at our junior high, pulling straight A's, and is a three sport athlete. My third child is in second grade and is also pulling all A's. My multi-colored family thrives not because we promote individual pride in our own..race? Ethnic group? Color of our skin? NO. We thrive because we live in this great land of opportunity, beginning with the unified community in Artesia. I want to continue to live in a place where we can be united by what we have in common, not be divided by how we are different.

Another reason why I am against these new standards is because many of them are not even standards; they are assignments. For that reason alone, these standards cannot be pushed forward.

Furthermore, there are grammatical errors in the new standards, and that is unacceptable. If New Mexico wants to get off the bottom of the education list, the NM PED should be able to present a document that is error-free.

These new standards present a lop-sided view of our country, and that is not what our fore-fathers fought for when they drafted the Declaration of Independence. If we want to teach the children of NM to think for themselves, information cannot be presented as it is written in these standards. Come on New Mexico, we can do better.

Sincerely,

Robbie Harrison
New Mexico Educator

[EXTERNAL] NO to proposed school curriculum

Steve Hackett <sjhackett5@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Educators & Administrators: Please specify, in a written statement, exactly why you would consider indoctrinating the children of New Mexico with hateful, radical ideology, rather than teaching them the true history of our great country. Your aim could not be to instruct, but rather to poison, the minds of vulnerable, innocent children. The proposed "curriculum" is a sick rendition of biased, untruthful, one-sided propaganda designed to create division and resentment, and it most certainly will. Read this deceitful rhetoric yourselves and imagine the impact on your own children's thinking. Not surprisingly, we would see the rise of a generation of misguided misfits seeking retribution on a society they have been indoctrinated to hate. Consider the grave consequences should these lies be taught. How about teaching the simple truths, the values, the ideals that have made us the most equatable, prosperous nation in the history of the world. You can make a valiant contribution, right now, of continuing in the great freedoms we all enjoy by refusing to fall for this destructive attempt to undermine our nation. Respectfully, Mr. Stephen Hackett Placitas NM

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory Should not be taught in school

Clayton Spurgeon <12vford@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED,

Critical race theory should not be taught in our public schools. This theory is a marxist idea and is very racist. Our country was founded on the principals of freedom for all. Any reasonable interpretation of the 14th Amendment and Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 means that implementing critical race theory violates existing laws. The Civil Rights Act specifically prohibits discrimination based on race, sex, or national origin and that is what CRT teaches. Any teaching of CRT will be met with protest and voting out the racist people implementing such marxist ideas. Racist acts should not be tolerated. Teaching kids to treat people differently based on skin color is not what America is and only creates more segregation. This is what so many fought to change in the first place so that everyone could be treated equal. If schools start implementing CRT, our kids will be pulled from public school.

Please stand with Americans by not teaching CRT!!!!!!!!!!!!

Clayton & Kristle Spurgeon
10 Road 2335
Aztec, NM 87410

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Jodi Morris <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:49 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

I was surprised to learn that New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. Concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing are essential life skills. Every student needs this education to be an independent adult.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives.

As a Certified Financial Planner (CFP) and mentor to young adults, I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Sincerely,

Jodi Morris
64 Lodge Trl
Santa Fe, NM 87506

[EXTERNAL] Public comment on standards

Justin Thomas <jthomas916@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 8:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

With education in such disarray in this state why is our focus on reconstructing the social studies standards? Did Virginia not show you how parents feel about the current state of education? Wouldn't your time be better spent figuring out ways how to fund lengthier school days or school years to close educational gaps? Or perhaps find ways to fund family classes to teach the importance of education to parents that find NM education a joke? Why go down the same path of indoctrination?

It did not take long to see the PED's political angle when reading these standards and I only had to get to the little kindergarteners standards to realize what my children might be subjugated to and future New Mexican students. The Inquiry anchor standards K4 and K5 are disgusting. In fact the latter is found in all elementary grades.

K.4. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems.

K.5. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Are you really proposing that we have my 5 year old take individual action to address local and global problems? Or for her to use a democratic procedure to take action on a civic problem? This type of language in the standards allows teachers to influence my children with their subjective outlook on local and global issues. These types of lessons should be taught in the home and not by educators. I want educators to teach my children actual academic content and keep your biases for your own children.

I could continue on about many of the high school standards but I won't. I know your tunnel vision is already set on priming my children to think like you and be divisive. As a concerned parent in this state I will pull my children for homeschooling or place them in a private school if this passes. The money can follow them. Please be mindful of your decisions and listen to everyone's concerns tomorrow. Please put kids' academics before your political agenda.

Kind Regards.

J Thomas

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed social studies standards

Joe Bradley <pulse@sisna.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:02 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I have reviewed the standards published at <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/literacy-humanities/social-studies/> and I am impressed with the high quality of this work.

My child was educated here in the public school system New Mexico. He lived through the events of 2001. I believe we need to teach the next generation about this time and the twenty years since then.

I strongly support adopting these standards. Our children need a broad view of our world. I believe these standards are the best way to make sure they have all the information they need to make well informed choices in the years to come.

Thank you for doing this work. You have my complete support.

Joe Bradley III
102 Williams Street
Santa Fe, NM 87501

[EXTERNAL] comments re social studies standards

Wyn Lewis <wynlewissf@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

From: Wyn Lewis, MA, MPH
214 Sereno Dr.
Santa Fe, NM 87501

11/11/2021

As a native New Mexican, the mother of a child who did K-12 in SFPS, and the grandmother of a granddaughter in pre-K in SFPS, I am writing to offer my strong support for the NMPED proposed social studies standards, including the proposed edits submitted by the Santa Fe NAACP. I would add that on Inquiry # 26 for 7th graders, regarding stereotypes, the concepts of sexual identity and size discrimination be included.

The proposed standards are thoughtfully written to be inclusive of the diverse cultures and communities who live in NM. We can't continue to live under the illusion that it's a "tricultural" state. We are a multicultural and multiethnic state with both painful and gratifying history. Our children, and through them our families, need to learn about all of that history. Teachers will need special training to teach these concepts. I hope their training will include encouraging wonder, questioning and critical thinking as well as imparting a sense of acceptance and respect for others' differences.

My young adult daughter has no strong memories of being taught about economic, cultural or sexual diversity or about negative stereotyping. Some was learned on the soccer field. Some when they read The People's History of the United States as a junior or senior. That late!
My daughter in law, a preschool/special ed teacher, says it's never too early to begin teaching children critical thinking. In fact experts say the foundation begins at age 5.

Thank you so much for all the work you've done to come up with these proposed standards, and for giving us the opportunity to contribute. We all need to accept change!

[EXTERNAL] Opposed to mandatory teaching of critical race theory

Marny Benedict <marnylee@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:13 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I write to express my opposition to presentation of critical race theory in kindergarten through grade 12 social studies programs.

The purpose of our school system is education, not indoctrination. The so-called theory is a fabrication of attitudes proposed by a small portion of American society and it has no place in grade school curricula. I am dismayed that any right-thinking person would deem it otherwise.

Thank you for your kind attention.

Sincerely,
Marny L. Benedict

Los Lunas, NM

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Change to Social Education

Ralph or Susan <snucci@aol.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED Administrators,

Please do not alter classroom teaching, specifically history, by injecting Critical Race Theory as critical to the formation of this country rather than the progress the U.S.A. has made in racial justice. Teaching CRT is political propaganda that promotes hate and division, detracts from intellectual acquirement, and will keep New Mexico at the bottom of the National Education Standards. If CRT is adopted, expect more students to be home-schooled, drop out of school or simply lost.

Ralph Hill

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards comment

Rebecca Sherry <rebeccas42@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi,

I would like to provide this email comment on the proposed Social Studies standards for New Mexico.

I am a New Mexican parent of two school-aged children both attending Albuquerque Public Schools. I am also an educator. And while it shouldn't matter, our family heritage is white European.

Very briefly, I would like to say that I strongly support these revisions, especially the addition of the culture/identity content. One of the reasons I wanted my children to grow up here in New Mexico is because I want them to have first-hand and academic opportunities to learn about diversity in our state and in our nation. We need to move past the tired idea that "winners write the history" and offer our children the tools to investigate the many sides and consequences of our history. Based on my review of the draft standards, I believe that New Mexico is taking a positive step in this direction. Our children will be better educated when they are offered this broader view. I do not see anything in these standards that will have a negative effect on any child's self-esteem or sense of identity unless that is what they hear once they go home.

I hope that New Mexico adopts these standards in the near future and that any revisions maintain the goals of the culture/identity components.

Thank you,
Rebecca Sherry
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] I support the updates to social studies curriculum

Sayrah N <sayrahn@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am a mother of a public school student in Albuquerque. I reviewed some of the 122 page proposed updates to the social studies curriculum. I think these are great updates! I like that it will analyze power and not have a singular Eurocentric view.

Thank you,

Sayrah Namaste

87110

[EXTERNAL] Approval of Social Studies standards as drafted

Patricia Marie <unrulyfairy@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good day!

I am an Albuquerque resident and I support the Social Studies standards as they are drafted.

Thank you,

Patricia Hūband
(575) 642.7979

[EXTERNAL] New Social Studies Standards

Mary Bissell <mcbisselli@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in support of the new Social Studies standards NM Ped has developed with NM teachers.

The proposed standards:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

Thank you for developing such important, robust standards for our students.

A teacher and a parent,

Mary Bissell

Rio Rancho, NM

[EXTERNAL] Proposed repeal and replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Sharon Berman <duodrone@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM Public Education Department,

Hello. I am a New Mexico resident and parent.

I understand that there is a move afoot to repeal the current social studies standards in New Mexico. There is apparently a concern that there is presently a bias toward progressive or liberal themes. This feels sadly like a divisive, political move, most likely spurred on by efforts outside our state. It would be a shame if New Mexico encouraged a regression of knowledge. If anything, we need to move forward. There is more to do! The people of our state are wonderful, brilliant, warm and kind. There is a lot of knowledge. There is a lot of experience. People don't like to move backward. Once you know something, it is practically impossible to unknow it.

Teaching an accurate account of U.S. history, and the historical impact of laws and practices that created systemic oppression of People of Color in our country is necessary. It is necessary because we need a national culture that recognizes and understands the historical racial injustices that have existed, and continue to exist, in our country.

Anecdotally speaking, the social studies our son was exposed to in his public school years was not particularly liberal (he just graduated in May). If you removed the facts about what happened, and what laid the foundation for who and how we are in our state and country, what would remain? There would be many holes. Kids would ask questions. And - we want children to ask questions, right? Engendering kindness, compassion and curiosity is the generous gift that good social studies teaching embraces. Let the teachers do their great work. Let the children learn the facts.

I cannot attend your hearing on November 12, 2021, so am hoping this email will make its way into your collection of public comment and to the eyes and ears of those who decide.

Please don't repeal the statute governing social studies standards. Embrace facts. Don't put us back in the stone age.

Many thanks,

Sharon Berman
53 Camino los Milagros
Corrales, NM 87048
duodrone@gmail.com

Virus-free. www.avast.com

[EXTERNAL] CRT in NM Public Schools

Thomas Holt <thomas.holt@ieee.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I oppose teaching CRT in NM public schools.

[EXTERNAL] CRT is wrong

jwdonal <jwdonal@protonmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

CRT does nothing but make people and children MORE racist. Children need to be taught math, science, writing, and reading. NOT that they should judge people based on the color of their skin or be ashamed because of the color of their skin.

Concerned Bernalillo County Resident

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Rule 6.29.11

Anne Doherty <a_e_doherty@yahoo.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:40 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (57 KB)

Response to 6.29.11.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached please find my feedback about the proposed rule 6.29.11

Thank you,
Anne Doherty

6 Palacio Rd., Santa Fe

November 11, 2021

John Sena,
Policy Division,
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED),
300 Don Gaspar Avenue,
Room 121,
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

My name is Anne Doherty. My husband and I moved to Santa Fe 2 years ago from San Francisco where we lived for 20 years. There we raised our adopted Chinese daughter and I owned a tutoring business, serving to middle and high school aged immigrant students.

For twenty years, our family experienced the rise of Critical Race Theory and Gender Equity - and the damage those policies do to kids. Though I'm sure these programs already exist in New Mexico schools, I can tell you, from my own experience and what my students have told me, that there is no better way for school administrations to appear incompetent and hypocritical than to further adopt these theories into the standards.

More importantly, the outcomes are not what you'd expect.

In kindergarten, our daughter came home from her first day of Black History Month and said, "Guess what! I finally learned something today! It's a good thing we're both white....and it's a great thing we're not black." By the end of the month, she was sleep walking, as she would every February until we finally homeschooled her, because her teachers had driven home that she was "yellow" and not really our child. The two African American girls in class - even the one with the investment banker dad - learned they were members of an oppressed minority. And by 4th grade, all of the kids - even those girls - responded to a picture-prompt of a black boy holding a white girl's hand across a fence by writing that he was her slave. After that, the school woke up for about a day, but the political incentive to stay "woke" was too great. I feel for the black kids who stayed 9 years at that school.

We complained several times and were called racists or talked down to. The teachers said, "We've got to show your daughter she's different." She can see she's Asian for herself. And isn't it a good idea to encourage any adopted child to trust that her legal parents love and care for her and are not her oppressors?

Every year in my tutoring business, three or four of my students would announce that "All white people are racist." I'd ask how they knew this, and they'd say, "School," meaning some book and/or some teacher (usually a white one who, included in the set of “All,” would be a racist, too).

As for the gender equity, I’ve watched several sets of parents go through the nightmare of their child switching genders - and it’s always a nightmare whether the parents are on board with it or not. I’ve also worked with children in “transition.” While I believe all people need love and respect, and that all perceptions need validation, encouraging minors to mutilate themselves and take hormones defies common sense. If the brain doesn’t stabilize until 26 and the drinking age is 21, why encourage already hormonally fluctuating teens to inflict self harm? Encouraging it in grade school is criminal.

Three days ago, a student I see on Zoom told me half the kids in four San Francisco high schools walked out. It seems that since schools meet in person again the number of sexual assaults/harassment has skyrocketed compared to pre-Covid. And, that the administrators of one high school “lost” dozens of complaints - against teachers as well as students. My student, who was visibly shaken, was so indoctrinated he couldn’t understand that if students are encouraged to see even innocent interactions between heterosexuals as assault, and if bathrooms are open to all, and then every other kind of sexual activity is encouraged...well, there’s going to be pandemonium. My advice is keep it simple - focus on basic human biology, which is already hard enough for teens to handle.

As for New Mexico standards themselves:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement asks students to assess how social policies and economic forces “offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity.” This standard assumes there are only 2 choices. Worse, if there is inequity in public systems, is the school system itself not a source of inequity? 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. The focus on differences (which students see and experience all by themselves) encourages them to divide up by group, forcing some to choose one group even if they belong to more than one - a nightmare for mixed race families. Not a good idea for diverse New Mexico.
3. There are numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of “justice and fairness,” “unequal power relations,” “past and current injustices.” Although those terms may have many interpretations, if the school is a system and systems create inequity, is not the school at fault? 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)
4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the birth of America echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project in saying that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society, rather than religious freedom. This is simply wrong. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)
5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students “evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S.” This standard assumes there is no such system in the US, implying that any current system contributes to racism. While my guess is that capitalism is the target, is not the school system also a pre-existing system? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)
6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and the 1920s, as well as examine the activities the LBGTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. A) Why is this a standard rather than an option? B)Following the thread of the other standards, it harks back to blaming oppressors. In fact, technological advancement and incomparable prosperity is what supported these changes. But does it not destroy the victim narrative to realize the world is more prosperous than ever before? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Why are there no standards to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners? Since New Mexico is a mecca for drugs, why not research how how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our state? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

8. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again, bad for New Mexico's mixed race students. The eternal race revolution smacks of Communism, plus kids see through the hypocrisy of that quickly. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

9. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. The whole truth would include the benefits of the occupation as well. 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

10. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about teaching students civics as well as the state and federal constitutions - then, before judging the police, students would know what the police are hired to do. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Thank you for reading this. I'm sure that, like my daughter's school in California, the political incentive for keeping these standards is high indeed. However, the long term results are destructive - for individual kids, for people of color, for families, for poor students, for gay and transexual students. For everyone. New Mexico schools have it tough enough.

So, return to the basics, teach math, provable science and civics. Also listen to parents. They will support you when you respect them, and that will make students happier and teachers' jobs easier.

Yours truly,

Anne E. Doherty

[EXTERNAL] Ethnic Cultures Identity Studies

Hollie Riggin <hollieshandbags@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Ask yourself why more and more parents are pulling their kids out of public schools around NM and other States. Ask yourself why parents are speaking out at school board meetings. Parents are fed up with the Federal Government overreaching and pushing LGBTQ+ and CRT being taught in our schools. I suggest NM PED staff look at the Constitution and see what rights the government role is in education. I am a parent of a child in public school and I absolutely oppose any of this being taught in our schools. Educators job are to teach our kids the core courses and prepare them for life after high school by teaching them how to study, take notes, and deal with tests. They are not there to be their stand in parent/guardian. What gender a child identifies as has no bearing on education and neither does teaching them about how racism affects society. CRT is merely a way to teach kids how to be intolerant of one race over another. It does not help our current inequality issue. In fact, it fuels the fire. It is a Marxism and Socialism tool to change a society towards Socialism by looking for weaknesses in that society. If parents want to teach their kids about the LGBTQ community and foster their child's identity crisis, than so be it. That is their choice and their prerogative as their parents. If parents want to teach their kids how to love others the way God loves all people, then that is their right as parents. Education, right or wrong, good or bad, starts at home. God entrusted us to raise our kids, NOT THE GOVERNMENT!

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies Standards

inwjou@juno.com <inwjou@juno.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:56 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM Department of Education:

Congratulations to the 60 member K-12 writing team on the proposed standards. The two new content areas, Inquiry and Ethnic and Cultural and Identity Studies strengthen the standards.

I studied the proposed standards through the lens of a former Colorado licensed teacher with a strong background in history and anthropology, and as a former media specialist and public librarian who helped students learn research skills to complete history projects. I am also looking at the standards through the lens of a parent and grandparent who wants students to learn real history about real people, with their strengths and flaws, in a manner that is age appropriate for the students. Youth need to see themselves being represented in the way history is taught. My granddaughters learned from 23andMe that their heritage includes indigenous people, and people with Spanish, Latin American and Anglo ancestry. One granddaughter with darker skin experienced racism often. I believe that learning more about her ethnic, culture and identity as defined in the proposed standards would have helped her to develop more confidence and resiliency.

The proposed standards are flexible and provide opportunities for an interdisciplinary approach which uses multimedia resources and local resources and people including but not limited to historians, storytellers, foresters, librarians/media specialists, park rangers, and authors.

I recommend an addition to the performance standard 8.32 on page 67. The standard says, "Identify key explorers, places and ideas from major European explorers of the 15th century and to be able to describe their accomplishments." I suggest taking a broader view and acknowledge also the harms and atrocities that were done in an age appropriate context.

I recommend an addition to performance standard 9-12 WH12 on page 117. Evaluate methods people use to create, change, expand, or oppose systems of power/authority. I suggest adding autocracy oligarchy.

I recommend an addition to performance standard 9-12 EC1.4 on page 121. Evaluate the credibility of the source by examining how experts value the source. I suggest adding a new component that will help students define, evaluation and discredit disinformation.

The proposed standards are designed to help student succeed, to be prepared for the future by knowing how to find, use, and evaluate sources of information, to develop positive and respectful interactions, with others, to be tolerant of diverse thinking, to use critical thinking skills when solving problems and so much more.

Again congratulations to the K-12 Writing Team on the proposed standards! Thank you for your efforts to help NM students become successful navigators of the future.

Sincerely,

Jane Palmer, BA, MLS, MA
Silver City, NM

Top News - Sponsored By Newser

- Belarus Ruler Threatens to Turn Off Heat in Europe
- US Gold Medalist: Racists Pepper-Sprayed Me
- Trump Wins Reprieve on Transfer of Records

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies Standards

Gayle Abrahamson <unordainable@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the New Mexico Department of Education:

As a person with advanced degrees in Religion and Library Services, I commend your efforts to update and revise your standards for the Social Studies curriculum. I trust that others who are more knowledgeable with the curriculum itself are providing valuable feedback. I will limit my comments to the two categories that are being added, namely, Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies; and Inquiry, as far as they pertain to my background.

I applaud the inclusion of Religion and Religious Identity within the broader discussion of culture and identity, both among differing cultures and within those cultures. Far too often, religion is excluded entirely from such discussions due to a concern over proselytizing. We can all agree on the inappropriateness of that activity in public schools, but it can be avoided without also avoiding any discussion of religion at all. An objective, impartial discussion of religion completes any study of culture and identity. To ignore the topic entirely leaves a gap in the overall discussion of culture that cannot otherwise be explained.

Within the category of Inquiry I applaud the application of critical thinking in the discussion of the distinction between primary and secondary sources, including and especially as it applies to digital resources. Every college level bibliographic instruction class begins with similar discussions. Sadly, those discussions frequently take longer than anticipated because far too many students are hearing it for the first time. The lack of such training in the schools is easily spotted among adults in our society when a complaint is lodged by someone who is then unable to define exactly what it is they are complaining about.

The curriculum must be taught in close cooperation with the school media specialists and the local libraries. Librarians are trained to analyze and evaluate information and resources, and are willing to provide such support to their public.

Gayle Abrahamson, MAR, MALS
Silver City

[EXTERNAL] social studies curriculum change

Marina Menchaca <marinaivette31@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 9:57 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom It may Concern:

I am asking that the proposed social studies curriculum change not be passed. It is unclear what will be taught to our children. We are bound to chaos and division if the standards for civics, history, geography, and economics are removed. Do NOT update the social studies standard.

Respectfully,
Marina

[EXTERNAL] Comments on proposed social studies standards

Celia Ludi <celia5238@gmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I applaud the work of the drafting committee, and recognize the earnest commitment of time, effort and concern for students and the future of the state as a whole that the draft represents. It's a long-overdue and ambitious approach to widening the viewpoint of the social studies standards to better prepare New Mexico students to understand and act in the world they live in. I do think the proposed standards could use some pruning and proofing.

1. I think it's important to build on the traditional cornerstones of "social studies", i.e., civics, history, geography, and economics. The elements of the two additional strands of "Ethnic, Culture, and Identity" ("ECI") and "Inquiry" are necessary, but I believe they could and should be woven into the cornerstones instead of being stand-alone strands. Addressing ECI separately may often lead to awkward classroom discussions that appear divorced from instead of integral to the rest of the content. In most cases, the components of the ECI strand naturally fit into other strands and together will ensure that the picture that our students will discover encompasses and recognizes the experiences of all the people who have and do live on this continent. I am also concerned that if there are separate strands for ECI and Inquiry, learning will have to be measured separately as well, and the ECI and Inquiry strands do not have obvious methods of assessment.

I also think many of the standards addressing identity are awkward, especially in the K-6 standards. It's important for students to deepen their understanding of themselves and others through non-judgmental examination and discussion. I foresee a broad need for extensive teacher training on what constitutes "identity" and age-appropriate ways to teach discovery and recognition of identity. Lack of such training could result in teachers inadvertently doing more harm than good in exploring the identity issue in the classroom.

Humans are born curious, about ourselves, each other, and about the world we all have to navigate. The Inquiry components will nurture that curiosity and teach the habit of questioning - not just observing, but asking "why" and "how do we know". In general, the elements of the Inquiry strand do an excellent job of teaching students to be critical thinkers. Some things should be reconsidered, however. For example, the idea of "compelling" and "supporting" questions is introduced in kindergarten, which is fine, but that element is virtually unchanged until third grade; this indicates to me that insufficient consideration has been given to how to implement the teaching.

2. I think in many places the effort to broaden the points of view has resulted in language that is unnecessarily vague and confusing, and ultimately does not provide the necessary guidance to teachers. There are many thoughtful comments, especially from current and former teachers, that identify standards that need to be more specific.

There are other standards that I think are too advanced for the grade level and not built on a foundation of knowledge, e.g., 6.29.22.9, History: "(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by comparing life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today." That seems pretty advanced for first graders, especially since a 6-year-old's idea of the past may be as long ago as last week. But standards that guide the teacher to ask the students to ask older family members about their experiences and bringing that into the classroom would be a very appropriate starting place for a discussion of what constitutes "the past".

Similarly, the Civics strand for second-graders made me blink and re-check the grade: 6.29.11.10: "Civics (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:

- (a) evaluating how American society has changed through rules and laws; and
 - (b) understanding the purposes and structures of government (e.g. tribal, local, state, national).
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
- (a) assessing how the contributions of diverse individuals have helped develop our national identity; and
 - (b) examining and comparing the American democratic principles to neighboring countries."

In general I think the proposed standards, especially for grades 7-12, will result in students and citizens with a much deeper and more sophisticated understanding of the civics/history/economics/geography cornerstones.

I do question phrasing in some places, for instance, use of the term "claim". "Claim" is generally defined as an assertion of truth which may be in dispute or unproven. A claim is therefore different from a fact, which is a statement of verified information. It's important for students to learn the difference, and to be able to marshal evidence to support claims. (Ideally, they would learn to marshal the evidence before making a claim.) Beginning in third grade the Inquiry strand includes the standard "The student shall demonstrate an understanding of developing claims by citing evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions." This is an essential skill, but it's also important for students to understand that some things are settled facts. For instance, the 8th grade standards (6.29.11.6), D History, include: "(h) using text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the north and south to war;". This implies that the cause of the civil war is in dispute. In fact, the secession documents of the southern states specifically cited defense of slavery as the reason for secession (see, for example, "Declaration of the Immediate Causes Which Induce and Justify the Secession of South Carolina from the Federal Union"). "Conflicts over slavery led ... to war" is a fact, not a claim.

The High School US History 6.29.11.2 standards are very ambitious and impossible to cover as a whole or in any depth, even as a stand-alone full-year class. They provide teachers a cornucopia of possible topics to explore, but I question how the assessments will be structured. Put baldly, how will teachers know what will be on the test? I also have some specific comments and suggestions about this section:

- how are A.(1)(f) and A.(1)(k) different, and why is Reconstruction itself only mentioned in its dissolution?
- A.(1)(i) may be better placed in High School Economics (6.29.11.18).
- A.(1)(hh) may be better placed in High School Civics (6.29.11.17).
- A.(2)(k) may be better placed in High School Economics.
- A.(3)(bb) which war?

3. Will high school students be required to take separate New Mexico History, US History, Civics, Economics, Geography, and World History classes? What about Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies?

4. I support the idea of incorporating general concepts of personal finance in the Economics strands, but I don't think Social Studies is the place to teach students specific skills like how to calculate compound interest. Connecting personal finance to History and Civics brings social studies into students' lives in a way that helps them understand the world they live in better. But I strongly support the addition of a stand-alone full (not half) credit graduation requirement that would address those specific personal finance skills.

5. Asian Americans are not specifically included the way European and Hispanic, Indigenous, and Black Americans are. They should be. Asian Americans have played crucial but largely unrecognized roles in the development of this country and state. For instance, the role of Asians, primarily Chinese and Japanese, in building the railroads was integral to their completion, and the development of the railroads profoundly affected our economy, laws, and society as a whole. The High School New Mexico History standards contain a single reference to "introduction of the Chinese population to New Mexico" [D(1)(b)]. In New Mexico, is it widely known that there was a small but thriving Japanese community in the Clovis area who were essential to the building of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railroad? The experience of New Mexico's 400th Coast Artillery in the Pacific during World War II is usually included in New Mexico history; but is it widely known that there were four prison camps in New Mexico from 1942 - 1945, including one in Santa Fe that held more than 4500 Japanese American citizens. The people who were arrested, transported to New Mexico, and held without charges were there solely because of their ethnicity. Citizens and legal residents of Japanese, German, and Italian descent were required to register with the federal government in accordance with a law Congress passed in 1940.

This is an enormous undertaking, evidenced by the wealth of commentary. The process outlined by PED for adoption of the new standards includes a one year period from December 2021 to January 2022 to develop revisions to the proposed standards based on the comment received. I am confident that the PED will carefully consider the many thoughtful, specific comments and suggestions from this comment period. I hope that, given that the revisions are likely to be extensive, PED will also publish the revisions and open a second public comment period before finally adopting the new standards.

Celia Ludi
Santa Fe

[EXTERNAL] Adoption of new social studies standards mimi.roberts@planetera.com <mimi.roberts@planetera.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:20 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing in support of the adoption of the new social studies standards. As a parent who raised three children in the Santa Fe Public Schools, I would like to make the following points about what the standards will do to begin the process of closing the achievement gap in our schools:

- Help students to develop a positive social identity and sense of civic pride.
- Help students to understand how our nation's past affects present society.
- Help students to develop critical thinking skills through a focus on inquiry rather than memorization.
- Promote cross-cultural understanding and prepare students to live in a multicultural society.
- Eliminate hate and restore empathy.
- Help students to learn the difference between fact and opinion.

Thank you,
Mimi Roberts

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Curriculum comment letter

Jessie Lewis <jlewis@ltschools.net>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:26 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: jstone29@rocketmail.com <jstone29@rocketmail.com>

 1 attachments (2 MB)

NMAC6.29.11 JL_PC.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Submitted for public comment on proposed social studies curriculum

Thank you,
Jessie Lewis

Sent from my iPad

Jessie Lewis Parent, citizen, community member, and governing committee member

RE: Notice of Proposed Rulemaking to obtain input on the proposed repeal of 6.29.11NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11NMAC Social Studies, public comment

November 10, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. John Sena:

I am writing to express my concerns with the proposed draft Social Studies standards curriculum, to express my antipathy for the implied, sometimes explicit racial ideology, and to respectfully request that you

- 1) Extend the public comment period and
- 2) Encourage PED to submit the proposed curriculum to the State Legislature for formal, well-publicized, public hearings.

I have had numerous conversations with parents and teachers who expressed concerns over having inadequate information on the proposed changes and having inadequate time to review the draft standards and the resources used to create those changes. I urge you to extend the review and comment period, and to submit the proposed curriculum to the State Legislature for formal public hearings which the public may attend.

My primary concern with the proposed Social Studies curriculum is an apparent disrespect for our country's foundations and for ALL of its people, ALL people of varying races, creeds, cultures, beliefs, politics, class, background, personal identity, etc.; for which our founding documents were created in the pursuit of constant betterment, where "all [men] are created equal."

Overall and throughout, the curriculum focuses on diversity, inequity, injustice, and oppression. Americans with various and mixed backgrounds, flourish when the focus is on what we have in common. Our duty to teach our children how to get along, to cooperate, to respect others despite our differences; must not be supplanted by a curriculum that disparages their differences, such as who has “oppressed” them?!?!?! The proposed curriculum includes copious focus on slavery and oppression, yet contains no mention of why America fought for independence, no mention of the countless soldiers and citizens who fought to abolish slavery.

The proposed curriculum heavily emphasizes both the “global community” as well as slavery. It stresses human rights’ atrocities and inequities within the United States; yet the curriculum evades addressing the perpetuation of human rights’ violations, human trafficking and slavery amidst the global community. The exclusion of these topics, in itself, is inequitable.

I am concerned with the curriculum’s disrespect for America’s history and our foundational documents. In the current Social Studies curriculum, American History is taught. Our country’s history, as imperfect as it may be, provides evidence from the past that gives us insight into why we must behave as a civil nation. Teaching a broader range of topics is forward thinking, but in ignoring the data, the facts of the past, we risk losing our understanding of why we as a society have changed, and why our most important basic tenets have remained.

- The curriculum should first provide historical context before adding contentious and difficult topics.
- The proposed curriculum must present significant American historical events and figures.
- Children should be taught the meaning of the Pledge of Allegiance, what it means to be a citizen of the United States and that standing together as a nation is important. Students should be allowed to continue the non-compulsory recitation of the Pledge.
- The names of specific documents - “The Bill of Rights” and “The Declaration of Independence” must be capitalized. Treating the names of these documents as common nouns is as disrespectful as addressing our Governor as governor michelle.

I am also concerned with use of language and rhetoric within the proposed standards. An entire section of the Social Studies curriculum is entitled, “Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards”. This is a concocted concept: “Identity Standards”; what is it doing in curriculum? How does NMPED attempt to define what “identity standards” are in education. Are our children to be branded?

Rhetoric such as: “critical consciousness”, “community equity”, “global community”, social identity”, “reconciliation”, and “implicit bias” indicate a politicized educational agenda.

Many terms and concept titles are devices, subterfuge that give an educator opportunity to teach their beliefs over historical facts. There are loopholes within the curriculum where a student's education may be manipulated by a teacher, an administrator, or another to present one's own agenda.

*Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(i)
"...evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S."*

Comment: What standard indicates what/who defines equitable and just economic system?

*Proposed 6.29.11.11(E)(2),
6.29.11.15(E)(7),
6.29.11.15(E)(12) "...justice and fairness", "unequal power relations", and "past and current injustices".*

Comment: While these can be debated and discussed, these topics are highly subjective. For these concepts to be included as an "Anchor Standard" within the topic of "Identity Standards" leaves far too much room for interpretation. A child's identity if formed by their interactions, experiences, their own history; attempting to teach a child what their identity should be by interpretation or another's past is dishonest and manipulative.

Proposed 6.29.11.10(E)(1)(a), 6.29.11.11(E)(1)(a) "expressing a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad..."

Comment: While a student can choose their words, they cannot control how others feel. It is highly inappropriate to make one student responsible for "other people's feelings". This does not belong in curriculum.

*Proposed 6.29.11.15(E)(3)
"society's responses to different social identities lead to access or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including education, healthcare, government, and industry".*

Comment: This seeks to divide students based on what is perceived a social identity. Barriers as well as access, has traditionally, or is optimally, directly related to personal characteristics and may be bolstered by a demographic, not a social identity. Using this rhetoric in educational material has direct potential to be propagandist. Just as Proposed 6.29.11.15(E)(8) "brainstorming ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices" Informing young students that they "might heal from...injustices" makes them victims without their consent. Education shall not teach victimization. Why not use the opportunity to teach the benefits of collaboration for a community in duress?!

*Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(gg)
“examining the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence...”*

Comment: To examine the history of guns in America, one would include the Constitution and its Bill of Rights. This examination of history would include the reason Americans have had guns, protected their rights to have guns, and include how this has protected them. An appropriate examination would also include what has happened to citizen’s rights in countries where they do not possess the right to protect themselves, how violence is not extinguished just because rights are removed, and how it is the “violence” of the law breakers that is the problem, not the gun. To use the rhetoric “gun violence” is inappropriate, a gun does not perpetuate violence, a criminal does. This is an important lesson for any student.

Proposed 6.29.11.21 (A)(1)(ii) “examining anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States...”

Comment: It would be far more appropriate and relevant to discuss “anti-illegal-immigration” sentiment since that is the more pertinent issue. Many Americans are here as a result of immigration and don’t oppose it; on the other hand, students would benefit from learning how unlawful migration affects their nation and their state. They would also benefit from learning about atrocities across the globe that create refugees, and the importance of American humanitarian efforts to aid the people suffering humanitarian atrocities.

Proposed 6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d) “...social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement”

Comment: This can be highly refuted. While the media hasn’t been very honest about their reporting, statistics and studies disprove many of the “systemic inequity” arguments. Many opportunities are afforded by individual economics, fortune, merit, tenacity, etc. These things are better indicators of opportunity, not “identity groups”; and I am appalled that education is teaching about “privilege” without talking about how anyone in America is far more “privileged” than others in the “global community”. This does not belong in high school education. Leave the debate for college!

I have attempted to select the most egregious items in the proposed Social Studies curriculum. Admittedly, it has been difficult. Though I take no issue with re-evaluating curriculum to update the most recent events that expand on our history and shape society, I disagree with revising data and omitting facts - basically eliminating evidence needed to determine how we came to behave as we do in today's world. Additionally, I see the manufactured terms and manipulated meanings to teach a conflated agenda as unacceptable.

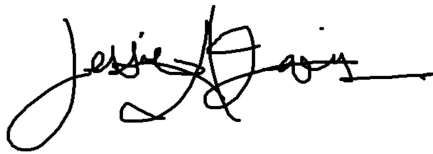

Some proposals are reasonable updates while others are quite contentious, inappropriate, or otherwise, dishonest and disrespectful. I believe a redraft of the entire curriculum is in order; and each and every occurrence of "Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards" should be removed.

The proposed curriculum fails to provide a balanced history. It fails to provide positive attributes of the United States of America, of the state of New Mexico and of its people. Students in this state should be taught what makes them exceptional human beings, and I will support curriculum revisions that teach Our History: a history that includes the good and the imperfect; a history that shows the dilemmas and perseverance of our ancestors, and a history that celebrates our identities. An understanding of history can encourage students to become responsible citizens within for our state, our nation and within the global community.

and

I appreciate your dedication to education, and to our youth - our future.

Respectfully,

Jessie Lewis

[EXTERNAL] Public Hearing Comment Re: Social Studies Standards 11/12

Andres Esquivel <andres@nmdreamteam.org>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:44 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I'd like to place a comment for the public hearing on November 12 regarding the social studies standards.

Having standards set for social studies to be taught to reflect various groups in our society does not create division, instead it creates empowerment and understanding. During my public school years, I never learned anything about my people and our history, nor the cultures and histories of the various other groups who inhabit New Mexico and the rest of the United States. I only learned about Europeans and their descendants. It wasn't until I was in university that I learned about the rich history of indigenous peoples, black folks, Chicano/a/es, and all other groups in this country. This gave me a feeling of empowerment and hope, as well as a better understanding of my friends and neighbors who I share space with. I feel like this is more important to be taught to younger children as I don't want them feeling as alienated as I did during my school years, but instead proud of where they came from and proud of the resilience of their ancestors, as well as having a shared understanding of the histories of their friends and neighbors. While I feel like there could be more done, I think the proposed updated standards are a good first step in creating a much more equitable curriculum for New Mexican Students. Thank you.

Best,

Andres Esquivel (he/him/el)
Education Justice Organizer
(505) 304-3412

[EXTERNAL] CRT theory

Shane T <roseofsharon500@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:31 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear New Mexico Public Education Department (PED):

I do not support changing New Mexico's Social Studies curriculum so that it mandates teaching our children Critical Race Theory (CRT.)

Please cite ANY time in history where being devisive has EVER brought about unity between people.

This would be a highly irresponsible change that only will cause humiliation to all our children and young adults. Our focus should be to educate, not isolate the students of New Mexico.

Thank you,
Sharon Taylor

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed K-12 Social Studies Standards

Amanda Dreyer <aj_dreyer@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 10:52 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM PED,

I have reviewed your proposed K-12 Social Studies Standards and I strongly object to adopting it to teach our children. The standards reflect Critical Race Theory and that worldview is not only divisive, but is not based in truth. CRT is not America's history. We need to teach our children America's true history, which includes our accomplishments and our mistakes. America is the greatest nation on earth, a place of freedom. That is why people came, and still come here from all around the world. Please do not adopt the proposed standards. CRT will further hurt our students and our schools here in NM. Instead, we need to teach our true history.

Thank you,

Amanda Dreyer
Tijeras, NM 87059

[EXTERNAL] Change in New Mexico Standards

Anne LechugaKanapilly <annelechugakanapilly@abhs.k12.nm.us>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:01 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am a student in New Mexico and I support the change in the New Mexico curriculum. I think it would be beneficial to the upcoming generation to learn more about their identities and how to interact respectfully with other identities.

Growing up within the New Mexico Educational system, there was a lot that I missed. When I was younger I didn't know that the Spaniards had committed such violent atrocities. But because of how I was raised and who I grew up with, I was finally able to learn and understand. I think this is a story that a lot of New Mexican students can empathize with, as there are cracks in the history that is taught to us. The curriculum we currently have is very biased towards certain identity groups, and kids that don't fit within those cookie-cutter shapes don't have the chance to learn about their culture or their identity.

I have reviewed the drafted curriculum from Kindergarten to the 12th grade, and I don't think that any of the new information takes away or demeans from one group or another. The proposed curriculum is able to combine learning how to respect other people, how to solve issues we will face in the future, and being able to stay true to our personal identities.

Please be mindful of the impact voting on this curriculum has for ourselves and our future generations.

Thank you,
Anne LK

This message contains information, which may be confidential or privileged, and is intended only for the individual or entity named above. It is prohibited for anyone else to disclose, copy, distribute or use the contents of this message. If you received this message in error, please delete immediately and notify the sender.

[EXTERNAL] PED: Proposed K-12 Social Studies curriculum standards

Kristin <dougkristinpoppe@hotmail.com>

Thu 11/11/2021 11:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am expressing my strong disappointment to the change of this hearing from in-person to virtual-only, disenfranchising countless New Mexican parents from having a voice in the curriculum of their local schools. In light of this short-notice change and in the spirit of fairness and transparency, it is my hope that the PED will extend the public comment period.

The proposed social studies standards for K-12 are disturbing and frankly, anti-American. During these days of critical military, economic, and political maneuvering by our foreign enemies, instilling in our children a pride of country and its rich history as a beacon of freedom and opportunity for the entire world is more important than ever if our country is to remain so. Unfortunately, the proposed standards promote racial, gender, and political division rather than unifying our children (and citizens). History is not black and white because history is the story of people and we are all flawed. While I believe it's important to point out shortcomings in our historical figures and actions of our country, we must not let these issues paint over 250 years (a very short amount of time in the scheme of history) of greatness and unprecedented achievement with a negative brush. Adopting these standards will encourage disloyalty and civil unrest in our county when we need unity more than ever. Teaching history by asking children to judge the actions of few through the lenses of today is a disservice to children and future adults by sending the message that political correctness is paramount above all and will shame them from offering any dissent, critical thinking, or polite debate.

Too many of adults are not familiar with the U.S. Constitution and how our government works. New Mexico would do well by reinstating these lessons into social studies curriculum in lieu of the proposed changes. Free enterprise, unbounded opportunity, democratic ideals have made the United States a world leader in all elements of freedom for its citizens in an unprecedented amount of time. Our children should be taught about the sacrifices and ideals that delivered our nation where it is today and that we must continue to defend it.

In response to restrictions and educational changes that don't coincide with published science regarding the spread of COVID-19 among children, we removed our last child from the New Mexico Public School system last year. We hoped that these changes were short-lived and that my children would be able to return to public school within a few months. Sadly, that has not been the case, but the adoption of these curriculum changes would be the final obstacle to our wish of having our children return. We refuse to have teachers and peers shame (vis-à-vis this curriculum) our sons for being male and of European descent. Sexuality and gender discussions are a private matter to be discussed within our family; we do not want valuable school instruction time dedicated to LBGQTQIA+ history or issues. My ancestors fled Mexico due to terrorism and brutality during the time of Pancho Villa's assault and takeover of Zacatecas. They fled to America because it was a beacon of hope in a time of turmoil and fear and it offered liberty and opportunity ensured for future generations. Within a single generation of public education, adopting these standards would tear down what so many risked their lives for to get here. Please remove this proposed curriculum from consideration. Failing that, please extend the comment period to ensure greater access to the proposed changes and to allow more New Mexican parents to have a voice in their children's education.

Sincerely,
Kristin Pope
Carlsbad, New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed NM Social Studies Standards

Blanchard, Rosemary A <rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:33 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 3 attachments (3 MB)

Letter from HRE USA NM to PED.pdf; NM-SS-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-Edited to Send_-.pdf; HREUSA_EAD_Joint_Civics-HRE_Brief.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

INTRODUCTION AND STATEMENT OF SUPPORT:

I am writing as a retired educator, resident of New Mexico and current regional liaison with Human Rights Educators USA, a national network dedicated to building a culture of human rights (<https://hreusa.org>). HREUSA urges each state that takes up the serious task of social studies standards revision to pay particular attention to the importance of human rights education (HRE) in developing civics education that fosters participation in an inclusive, democratic society. The human rights friendly orientation is a tool for building school climates that value every student and provide opportunities for all students to engage with their school and community to create more equitable solutions to shared concerns.

I wish to share my support for the hard work New Mexico educators have undertaken to update the Social Studies Standards that will guide the education of New Mexico's children in the multiple disciplines that make up the social studies. In particular, I appreciate the attention given in the proposed standards to employing Inquiry as the primary method for students to explore the many civic, historical, economic, social, and cultural issues that they will address and have an impact on both during their time as students and throughout their adult lives as participants in the life of our state, nation, world. I applaud the attention given to the social studies of the Indigenous nations and communities situated in and near our state and to all our diverse cultural communities and their complementary, mutually challenging histories.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND CIVIC EDUCATION - BETTER TOGETHER

HREUSA has worked for many years to collaborate with and positively influence the work of major social studies organizations such as the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS, <https://www.socialstudies.org/>) and, more recently, the Educating for American Democracy project (<https://www.educatingforamericandemocracy.org/>). Indeed, HRE USA and EAD have collaborated on a short briefing paper on the important relationship between human rights and democracy. I am attaching a copy to the email that transmits this letter. In addition, you may find it at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1fwDUThvI8bDz_khS1yeZ082po2omHOin/view?usp=sharing).

In addition, HRE USA has supported the deep professional work undertaken within NCSS to incorporate human rights education into the social studies canon. We support the position statements adopted by NCSS that call for human rights education to be incorporated into social studies at every grade level through

“a comprehensive commitment and a coordinated plan of action to (1) recognize the importance of human rights education; (2) integrate human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices (<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education> and <https://www.socialstudies.org/social-education/79/3/human-rights-education-necessity-effective-social-and-civic-learning>).

Likewise, HRE USA applauds the references to human rights and social justice in the NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, which urge candidates to

“reflect and expand upon their social studies knowledge, inquiry skills, and civic dispositions to advance social justice and promote human rights through informed action in schools and/or communities” so that they can “create collaborative and interdisciplinary learning environments, and prepare learners to be informed advocates for an inclusive and equitable society (Standards 5 and 4).”

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR EVEN BETTER SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS

As stated above, HRE USA New Mexico Region and I personally strongly support the work done by New Mexico educators to create more inclusive, honest social studies standards, which acknowledge the various ways different groups have experienced our history, participate in our economic life and engage with our civic institutions. It is important to address the pain and the progress of the United States' nation building history. Only by facing, acknowledging and building upon all of our history and our contemporary differences and commonalities can we work with all of our people as we continue to “form a more perfect union.” I urge those working to finalize these standards not to be deflected from your commitment to build an inclusive, healing, forward looking social studies program.

As someone who has worked with or commented upon social studies standards revision projects in a number of states(California, Minnesota, Massachusetts, etc.), and a former legislative staffer (in Montana and in the Navajo Nation), I always look carefully at the text of any law or regulation and make recommendations to enhance the clarity and improve the focus of the text. I have done that with the Pre-Rule Draft of the NM Social Studies Standards, using in line editing features of Adobe Acrobat. The results are attached to the email that transmits this letter, and can also be found at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1LrGAFHdU6A1kLAhjhW_DRGoBuXYX1iIQ/view?usp=sharing .

Many suggested edits, particularly in the standards for primary and elementary grades, seek to guide students to an understanding of the fundamental principles of human rights through examples, activities and language that resonate with our youngest learners' own experiences, using the performance standards already in the draft, with slight modifications or additions. There is more about human rights to be learned in the playground than almost anywhere else in school, and children, especially young children, have a natural understanding of fairness, especially as it applies to themselves. They understand better than many adults why fairness for all of us is best for each one of us.

NEED FOR AN ANCHOR STANDARD ADDRESSING HUMAN RIGHTS

One important recommendation to you in your finalization of the proposed social studies standards is that you more fully incorporate human rights themes and instructional practices into the final draft by adding an Anchor Standard that specifically addresses Human Rights. Human Rights are based on the fundamental principle, as expressed in the Preamble to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that

“recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world. (UDHR, Preamble)”

A possible location for an Anchor Standard on Human Rights is through the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies strand:

Anchor Standard [#] Universal Human Rights Awareness

This can and should be augmented by adding language to Civics Anchor Standard 3, Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society.

Anchor Standard 3 Civic Dispositions and Inclusive Principles For A Pluralistic Democratic Society

These additions/changes to the Anchor Standards can then become the basis for incorporating human rights awareness and respect for the inherent dignity of every person into the performance expectations for students at every grade level, and into the culture of the schools where social studies are taught.

CONCLUSION AND THANK YOU.

Thank you for your work to build more inclusive, culturally aware social studies expectations for all of New Mexico's students. I trust that you will consider all the comments that you receive from every source and opinion. Then, I urge you to finalize the current draft as soon as possible so that all New Mexicans can employ a common standards framework for teaching our children and young people to value, participate in and work to improve their own communities, our shared community of New Mexico, our nation, and the global community as a whole. Please give attention to the specific recommended text edits incorporated into the marked-up copy of the Pre-Rule Draft included with these comments.

Please let me know if you wish any further clarification or expansion of these recommendations.

With regard,

Rosemary Ann Blanchard

Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D.
HRE USA NM Regional Representative
Associate Professor of Education Emeritus,
California State University Sacramento
Associate Professor of Social Sciences Retired
University of New Mexico Gallup
Research Lecturer III, Peace Studies, UNM
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 887104
(505) 280-1245

Rosemary Ann Blanchard
A grateful guest on Tiwa land,
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 87104
505-280-1245
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu

Peace and justice are two sides of the same coin.
Dwight D. Eisenhower

Human Rights
Educators
USA

HRE USA New Mexico Regional Chapter
Rosemary Ann Blanchard, Regional Representative
rblnchr@skymail.csus.edu; (505)280-1245
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW, Albuquerque, NM 87104

A national network dedicated to building a culture of human rights.

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

INTRODUCTION AND STATEMENT OF SUPPORT:

I am writing as a retired educator, resident of New Mexico and current regional liaison with Human Rights Educators USA, a national network dedicated to building a culture of human rights (<https://hreusa.org>). HREUSA urges each state that takes up the serious task of social studies standards revision to pay particular attention to the importance of human rights education (HRE) in developing civics education that fosters participation in an inclusive, democratic society. The human rights friendly orientation is a tool for building school climates that value every student and provide opportunities for all students to engage with their school and community to create more equitable solutions to shared concerns.

I wish to share my support for the hard work New Mexico educators have undertaken to update the Social Studies Standards that will guide the education of New Mexico's children in the multiple disciplines that make up the social studies. In particular, I appreciate the attention given in the proposed standards to employing Inquiry as the primary method for students to explore the many civic, historical, economic, social and cultural issues that they will address and have an impact on both during their time as students and throughout their adult lives as participants in the life of our state, nation, world. I applaud the attention given to the social studies of the Indigenous nations and communities situated in and near our state and to all our diverse cultural communities and their complementary, mutually challenging histories.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND CIVIC EDUCATION – BETTER TOGETHER

HREUSA has worked for many years to collaborate with and positively influence the work of major social studies organizations such as the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS, <https://www.socialstudies.org/>) and, more recently, the Educating for American Democracy project (<https://www.educatingforamericandemocracy.org/>). Indeed, HRE USA and EAD have collaborated on a short briefing paper on the important relationship between human rights and democracy. I am attaching a copy to the email that transmits this letter. In addition, you may find it at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1fwDUThvI8bDz_khS1yeZ082po2omHOin/view?usp=sharing).

In addition, HRE USA has supported the deep professional work undertaken within NCSS to incorporate human rights education into the social studies canon. We support the position statements adopted by NCSS that call for human rights education to be incorporated into social studies at every grade level through

“a comprehensive commitment and a coordinated plan of action to (1) recognize the importance of human rights education; (2) integrate human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices (<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education> and <https://www.socialstudies.org/social-education/79/3/human-rights-education-necessity-effective-social-and-civic-learning>).

Likewise, HRE USA applauds the references to human rights and social justice in the NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, which urge candidates to “reflect and expand upon their social studies knowledge, inquiry skills, and civic dispositions to advance social justice and promote human rights through informed action in schools and/or communities” so that they can “create collaborative and interdisciplinary learning environments, and prepare learners to be informed advocates for an inclusive and equitable society (Standards 5 and 4).”

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR EVEN BETTER SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS

As stated above, HRE USA New Mexico Region and I personally strongly support the work done by New Mexico educators to create more inclusive, honest social studies standards, which acknowledge the various ways different groups have experienced our history, participate in our economic life and engage with our civic institutions. It is important to address the pain and the progress of the United States' nation building history. Only by facing, acknowledging and building upon all of our history and our contemporary differences and commonalities can we work with all of our people as we continue to "form a more perfect union." I urge those working to finalize these standards not to be deflected from your commitment to build an inclusive, healing, forward looking social studies program.

As someone who has worked with or commented upon social studies standards revision projects in a number of states(California, Minnesota, Massachusetts, etc.), and a former legislative staffer (in Montana and in the Navajo Nation), I always look carefully at the text of any law or regulation and make recommendations to enhance the clarity and improve the focus of the text. I have done that with the Pre-Rule Draft of the NM Social Studies Standards, using in line editing features of Adobe Acrobat. The results are attached to the email that transmits this letter, and can also be found at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1LrGAFHdU6A1kLAhjhW_DRGoBuXYX1ilQ/view?usp=sharing .

Many suggested edits, particularly in the standards for primary and elementary grades, seek to guide students to an understanding of the fundamental principles of human rights through examples, activities and language that resonate with our youngest learners' own experiences, using the performance standards already in the draft, with slight modifications or additions. There is more about human rights to be learned in the playground than almost anywhere else in school, and children, especially young children, have a natural understanding of fairness, especially as it applies to themselves. They understand better than many adults why fairness for all of us is best for each one of us.

NEED FOR AN ANCHOR STANDARD ADDRESSING HUMAN RIGHTS

One important recommendation to you in your finalization of the proposed social studies standards is that you more fully incorporate human rights themes and instructional practices into the final draft by adding an Anchor Standard that specifically addresses Human Rights. Human Rights are based on the fundamental principle, as expressed in the Preamble to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that

"recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world. (UDHR, Preamble)"

A possible location for an Anchor Standard on Human Rights is through the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies strand:

Anchor Standard [#]
Universal Human Rights Awareness

This can and should be augmented by adding language to Civics Anchor Standard 3, Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society.

Anchor Standard 3
Civic Dispositions and
Inclusive Principles For A
Pluralistic Democratic Society

These additions/changes to the Anchor Standards can then become the basis for incorporating human rights awareness and respect for the inherent dignity of every person into the performance expectations for students at every grade level, and into the culture of the schools where social studies are taught.

CONCLUSION AND THANK YOU.

Thank you for your work to build more inclusive, culturally aware social studies expectations for all of New Mexico's students. I trust that you will consider all the comments that you receive from every source and opinion. Then, I urge you to finalize the current draft as soon as possible so that all New Mexicans can employ a common standards framework for teaching our children and young people to value, participate in and work to improve their own communities, our shared community of New Mexico, our nation and the global community as a whole. Please give attention to the specific recommended text edits incorporated into the marked-up copy of the Pre-Rule Draft included with these comments.

Please let me know if you wish any further clarification or expansion of these recommendations.

With regard,

Rosemary Ann Blanchard

Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D.
HRE USA NM Regional Representative
Associate Professor of Education Emeritus,
California State University Sacramento
Associate Professor of Social Sciences Retired
University of New Mexico Gallup
Research Lecturer III, Peace Studies, UNM
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 887104
(505) 280-1245

[FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., NM regional representative for Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org):
TO: NM Public Education Department: Email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us; Fax: 505-827-6520; Mail: Policy Division, PED, 300 Don Gaspar Ave., Santa Fe, NM 87501
Below are comments, annotations and specific language recommendations for the Draft NM Social Studies Standards published by NM PED as part of the proposed rule making for social studies standards revisions. The commentator has used the Draft, Pre-Rule Copy, because it is easier to enter specific language recommendations and comments on that document. Inquiries, etc. may be addressed to R.A. Blanchard at rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu, 1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW, Albuquerque, NM 87104]

New Mexico Social Studies Standards

Table of Contents

Introduction	8
Kindergarten	14
Inquiry	14
Theme 1: Roles and Responsibilities	14
Theme 2: Myself and My Community	15
Theme 3: Needs and Wants	15
Theme 4: Spaces and Places	16
Theme 5: Social identity	16
First Grade	18
Inquiry	18
Theme 1: Living, Learning and Working Together	18
Theme 2: Cultures Within Our Communities	19
Theme 3: Making Choices	20
Theme 4: Interactions with Our Physical Environment	20
Theme 5: Multiple Identities	21
Second Grade	23
Inquiry	23
Theme 1: We the People	23
Theme 1: We the People (Continued)	24
Theme 2: Looking in Our Past	24

Theme 3: What We Make and Use	25
Theme 4: Cultures and Environment	25
Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions	26
Third Grade	28
Inquiry	28
Theme 1: Citizenship	28
Theme 1: Citizenship (Continued)	29
Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration	29
Theme 3: Global Issues and Events	30
Theme 4: Our Changing World	30
Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity	31
Fourth Grade	33
Inquiry	33
Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present	33
Theme 2: Migration and Settlement in New Mexico	34
Theme 3: New Mexico Trade and Industry	35
Theme 4: Resources and Land Use in New Mexico	35
Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity	36
Fifth Grade	38
Inquiry	38
Theme 1: Development and Establishment of U.S. Government	39
Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US	39
Theme 3: Human Rights and Economic Development	40
Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment	41
Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces	41
	2

Sixth Grade	44
Inquiry	44
Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	45
Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures	46
Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations	47
Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations (Continued)	48
Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies	48
Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks	49
Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE–1300 CE	50
Seventh Grade	52
Inquiry	52
Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico	53
Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico (Continued)	54
Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE)	54
Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE)	55
Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE)	56
Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE)	58
Theme 6: The Mexican Period (1821 CE – 1850 CE)	59
Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE)	60
Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE)	61
Eighth Grade	64
6-8 Inquiry	64
Theme 1: Geography & Indigenous Peoples of North America	66
Theme 2: Age of Exploration and Exploitation (c. 1400 CE – c. 1500 CE)	67
Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE)	67

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE)	68
Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE – 1815 CE)	70
Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE – 1850 CE)	71
Theme 7: Sectionalism (1830 CE – 1860 CE)	72
Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE)	72
Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE)	73
Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE)	74
HS Civics	77
Inquiry	77
High School Civics	78
High School Civics (Continued)	79
HS Economics	81
Inquiry	81
High School Economics	82
HS Geography	85
Inquiry	85
High School Geography	86
High School Geography (Continued)	87
HS New Mexico History	89
Inquiry	89
Theme 1: Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo	90
Theme 2: New Mexico’s Territorial Period	91
Theme 3: Statehood and Functions of State/Tribal Governments	92
Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars)	92
Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars) (Continued)	93

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War	93
Theme 6: Civil Rights	95
Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico	95
Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico (Continued)	96
Theme 8: Resource Management and Mineral Resources in New Mexico	96
HS U.S. History.....	98
Inquiry	98
Theme 1: U.S. Origins and Origin Stories	99
Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution	100
Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876	100
Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865	102
Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877	103
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920	104
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920 (Continued)	104
Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920	105
Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I	105
Theme 9: Conflicts and Transitions, 1920–1929	106
Theme 10: Great Depression and The New Deal, 1929–1941	107
Theme 11: World War II	107
Theme 11: World War II (Continued)	108
Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975	108
Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975 (Continued)	109
Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements	109
Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements (Continued)	110

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008	110
Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008 (Continued)	111
Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present	111
Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present (Continued)	112
HS World History	114
Sample Topics by Time Period	114
Sample Themes by Time Period	114
Inquiry	116
High School World History	117
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	121
Inquiry	121
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	122

DRAFT - PRE COPY

RULE

Note from Rosemary Ann Blanchard, NM Regional Rep for Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org):

..

[The memo accompanying these textual comments begins with an introduction to Human Rights Educators USA and a thematic explanation of the need for the inclusion of Human Rights Education (HRE) in social studies, civics and cultural studies , then references position statements by the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS) on HRE, Indigenous Education, LGBTQ+ equity, etc.and NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers. The memo references the connection between Civics education for pluralistic democracy and Human Rights Education, referencing the Charter of the Council of Europe on Democratic Citizenship and Human Rights Education, and the flyer developed by Educating for American Democracy and Human Rights Educators USA stressing the intersection between human rights education and democratic civics education.]

..

[This document is written as comments on and recommendations for the Pre-Rule Social Studies Standards for Teachers published by the NM Public Education Department (https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/wp-content/uploads/2021/09/21-15540-Draft-NM-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-8_31_21-508-fmt.pdf) and includes a textual analysis and recommendations for specific wording in various sections of the Draft, using red comment boxes on the PED draft document.]

..

[Please note that comments appear in black type with brackets ([]) around them and suggested language for the standards appears in RED TYPE with quotation marks around them. Suggested new sections, anchor and performance standards begin with the word 'ADD:' followed by the proposed section in quotation marks.]

..

Introduction

Social studies is the integrated study of the social sciences and humanities to promote civic competence. Within the school program, social studies provides coordinated, systematic study drawing upon such disciplines as anthropology, archaeology, economics, geography, history, law, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, and sociology, as well as appropriate content from the humanities, mathematics, and natural sciences. The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people develop the ability to make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world.

-Definition of Social Studies (National Council for the Social Studies)

“Democratic societies rely on high-quality social studies instruction, cultivating students who delve deeper into issues and problems that vex humankind” (Hatti, Stern, Fisher & Frey, 2020). A rigorous social studies education is necessary to prepare students for success in the 21st century and is critical for the health of our democracy. Foundational to a rigorous social studies education is a set of high-quality social studies standards.

However, in order for the standards to best be implemented, each district in the state must engage students in a rigorous and relevant K-12 social studies program. It will also require an articulated district curriculum which connects students to the social world through informed instructional experiences led by teachers who are committed to active civic participation. This represents a bold step toward a vision of social studies for all of New Mexico’s students.

Additional information can be found at <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/instructional-materials/new-mexico-content-standards/>.

Overview of the Standards

New Mexico social studies standards, with anchor standards and performance standards, are mandated for students in grades K-12. The social studies standards include six strands: (1) civics and government, (2) economics, (3) geography, (4) history, (5) ethnic, cultural and identity studies, and (6) inquiry. The strands are organized by anchor standard. Anchor standards are the core ideas, at the heart of a discipline, to be implemented across a K-12 social studies program. Anchor standards establish the universal vision that defines what students should understand and be able to do, with increasing complexity as described in the performance indicators, each school year. Students get multiple opportunities to engage with anchor standards via the grade-level performance indicators. Anchor standards remain the same through all grades and courses. Anchor standards 1 through 21 are discipline-based, and anchor standards 22-26 are inquiry-based. Anchor standards are then unpacked via performance indicators. Performance indicators are specific grade-appropriate content to be mastered by the end of a specific grade. They are concise, written descriptions of what students are expected to know and be able to do at a specific stage of their education. They emphasize the essential knowledge and skills in each discipline.

There is need for an Anchor Standard or equivalent conceptual frame addressing Human Rights -- tied to Civics as well as ethnicity and race -- see EAD two-pager (it's three pages) on Civics and Human Rights Education
1679 of 2909

Each set of grade level standards begins with a set of inquiry standards. The inquiry standards define key skills within social studies. These standards are meant to be used in concert with the content standards throughout the course of study, whenever appropriate. How these standards are integrated into the curriculum is a school and classroom decision.

These standards were developed with the following guiding principles in mind:

- Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo political impact, social justice, equity and diversity through content standards designed to teach these topics in developmentally appropriate ways;
- Developing student agency and leadership, employability skills, critical thinking applied to histories, stories and the long-term impact of political decisions;
- Ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives;
- Identifying tools to share authentic stories including the study of relationship between power and oppression;
- Supporting the development of a strong critical historical consciousness representative of many perspectives while allowing students to maintain his/her/their own cultural integrity while learning about others;
- Empowering students to develop pride in his/her/their identity, history, culture, region by incorporating a community based approach while preparing students to be a part of a global environment;
- Utilizing historical events from a future focused orientation;
- Developing a future focused orientation that allows students to be critical thinkers in considering historical context in mending, healing, and transforming future interactions.

How to Read the Standards

Color Coding of the Standards

The standards are color-coded to allow for quick identification of the inquiry/content area of the standard.

Civics (Blue)	Economics (Yellow)	Geography (Green)	History (Purple)	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies (Orange)	Inquiry (Red)
-----------------------------	----------------------------------	---------------------------------	--------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------

How to Read the Document

Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc). 7.15. Describe the relationships of tribal, state, and local governments with the national government under the federal system (tribal sovereignty, state constitutions, 3-branches of government, checks and balances, legislative process, etc).
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.16. Explain how tribal, state, and local government agencies work to sustain resources in New Mexico. 7.17. Discuss New Mexico's economic limitations, barriers to development, and successes. 7.18. Examine the pros and cons of economic development in New Mexico.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.19. Construct maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources. 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. 7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics. 7.22. Use paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.23. Describe factors affecting location of human activities, including land-use patterns for local, regional, and state communities. 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted.

The K-8 standards and some high school standards are organized by theme.

The performance standard identifies what students should know and be able to do.

The standards are organized around anchor standards. Anchor standards outline key ideas within the social studies discipline.

Anchor Standards

The standards document is organized using a set of anchor standards. The purpose of anchor standards is two-fold. 1) They highlight key disciplinary concepts and ideas within social studies and 2) Create cohesiveness within the document by showing learning progressions from kindergarten to high school aligned to a set of anchor standards.

Civics	Economics	Geography	History	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	Inquiry
Anchor Standard 1 Civic and Political Institutions	Anchor Standard 5 Economic Decision Making	Anchor Standard 10 Geographic Representations and Reasoning	Anchor Standard 14 Historical Change, Continuity, Context and Reconciliation	Anchor Standard 19 Diversity and Identity	Anchor Standard 22 Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions
Anchor Standard 2 Processes, Rules and Laws	Anchor Standard 6 Incentives and Choices	Anchor Standard 11 Location, Place and Region	Anchor Standard 15 Cause and Consequence	Anchor Standard 20 Identity in History	Anchor Standard 23 Gather and Evaluate Sources
Anchor Standard 3 Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	Anchor Standard 7 Economic Systems and Models	Anchor Standard 12 Movement, Population and Systems	Anchor Standard 16 Historical Thinking	Anchor Standard 21 Community Equity Building	Anchor Standard 24 Develop Claims
Anchor Standard 4 Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	Anchor Standard 8 Money and Markets	Anchor Standard 13 Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	Anchor Standard 17 Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	[Anchor Standard #] Universal Human Rights Awareness]	Anchor Standard 25 Communicate and Critique Conclusions
	Anchor Standard 9 Global Economy		Anchor Standard 18 Power Dynamics, Leadership and Agency		Anchor Standard 26 Take Informed Action

[Anchor Standards for Civics need to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society. Civic dispositions can exist in regard to any system of government, whether democratic or autocratic. The Council of Europe has adopted a Charter on Education for Democratic Citizenship and Human Rights Education which encourages member states to implement measures to incorporate both "education for democratic citizenship" and "human rights education" into "the curricula for formal education at pre-primary, primary and secondary school level as well as in general and vocational education and training." Section III, Article 6. The National Council for the Social Studies has adopted position statements recognizing "the importance of teaching and learning about human rights 'from early childhood through advanced education and lifelong learning' and through 'Integrating human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices; (<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education>). "]

Anchor Standards for Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies need a Human Rights Awareness Anchor Standard . The National Council for the Social Studies, both in 2014 and 2021 has identified Human Rights Education as a necessary part of social studies education at every grade level. See <https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education> . Important in this context is teaching not only the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, but also including the Right to Culture under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights -- a Human Rights Treaty ratified by the US since 1992 that guarantees the cultural rights of minorities, including Indigenous peoples.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Kindergarten

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.1. Recognize a compelling question. ● K.2. Identify the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.3. Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.4. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● K.5. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

ADD: "Demonstrate respect for others and fairness in constructing responses"

"while demonstrating growing awareness of respect for others and the fairness of actions considered"

Theme 1: Roles and Responsibilities
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.6. Communicate the purpose of rules. ● K.7. Explain how the rules help us work together.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.8. Identify the consequences of following and not following rules. ● K.9. Identify authority figures and describe their roles.

[Add: "Explain why rules should be fair to everyone and how fairness helps us work together."]

ADD: "Identify why it is important that rules are fair and why respectfully objecting to unfair rules can be important in a democracy."

ADD: "Identify who these authority figures have authority over. What is the role of a person in a democracy who is subject to the legitimate authority of an authority figure?"

Theme 2: Myself and My Community
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.10. Identify the local, state, and national symbols (e.g., flag, bird, song) ← ". tribal" ← ADD Performance standard: "Build respect for each other's important symbols"
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.11. Compare traditions found in communities over time. ← ADD; "Explore how to show respect for the traditions of different communities and groups."
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.12. Demonstrate an awareness of community leaders (teacher, principal, Mayor, Tribal Leaders) "and who are the members of the communities that these leaders are responsible for?" ↗
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.13. Sequence important events in your life. • K.14. Identify how individuals are similar and different. ← ADD: "Recognize how, despite our differences, every individual is similar in their right to be respected as a person."

Theme 3: Needs and Wants
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.15. Distinguish between a need (basic needs like food, clothing, and shelter) and a want.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.16. Identify examples of goods and services. • K.17. Explain what scarcity is and how scarcity affects the accessibility of goods and services.

Theme 4: Spaces and Places
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.18. Create maps of familiar areas, such as the classroom, school and community.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.19. Recognize and identify signs and symbols around their town and community and indicate location of places, people and things. • K.20. Identify the differences and similarities between a globe and a map. Explain the purpose of a map and/or globe.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.21. Explain why and how people move from place to place within a community. ← ADD: "Explore why people sometimes leave a community they belong to and why they may seek to become a part of a new community."

Theme 5: Social identity
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities. • K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not. • K.24. Identify how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things. • K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups. ← ADD: "Demonstrate how our different identities and the identities of those around us need to be respected by all of us."

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

First Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.1. Explain why a compelling question is important. 1.2. Generate supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.3. Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using examples. ← ADD: "Demonstrate respect for others and fairness in constructing responses."
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. 1.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms. ← "while demonstrating growing awareness of respect for others and the fairness of actions considered"

Theme 1: Living, Learning and Working Together
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.7. Explain and provide examples of how people play important roles in society. ← ADD: "Explain why every member of society is important. Give examples of people whose importance to society is not always recognized or was not always recognized in the past."

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.8. Investigate how people work together to accomplish a common task and how this benefits and challenges people when working together. ← ADD: "Explore why it's important that people show respect for each other so they can more effectively work together"
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 2: Cultures Within Our Communities

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.9. Compare life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.10. Compare fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past. 1.11. Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among past, present, and future using family, school, or community events.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.12. Examine and identify cultural differences within a community. ← ADD: "Explore how cultural differences can lead to misunderstandings if they are not respected and how cultural differences can also make a community stronger for all"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.13. Investigate significant events, people, and observances in history, and discuss their effects on local and national communities. ← ADD: "Consider why different communities may have been affected differently by the various significant events in history you investigate?"

Theme 3: Making Choices
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.14. Examine choices that families make due to scarcity, and identify costs associated with these choices
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.15. Identify examples of a producer and a consumer. • 1.16. Examine how earning money through work is related to the purchase of goods and services. • 1.17. Examine decisions that people make about spending and saving money

Theme 4: Interactions with Our Physical Environment
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.18. Create geographic representations to identify the location of familiar places and demonstrate how these representations can help us navigate from one place to the next, provide directions, or trace important routes. • 1.19. Identify the common symbols used on maps for man-made structures and physical features. • 1.20. Use a variety of maps to locate specific places, and identify major landforms, bodies of water, and other places of significance around the United States.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.21. Explain how man-made structures are all examples of how people modify the physical environment to meet needs and wants.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.22. Explain how people interact with their physical environment in ways that may have a positive or a negative effect on natural resources. ", on plants and animals, and on other people living in the same place."

Theme 5: Multiple Identities

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity

- 1.23. Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways.
- 1.24. Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.

ADD: "Explore how our differences in belief, way of life, family life, community membership, and identity contribute to making our whole community more interesting and how respect for these differences help us to become a stronger community."

DRAFT - PRELIMINARY COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Second Grade

Inquiry		ADD: "Use the social studies disciplines to explore compelling questions about fairness within and among communities and individuals."
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.1. Explain why a compelling question is important. ● 2.2. Generate supporting questions across the social studies disciplines related to compelling questions.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.3. Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● 2.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms
		", while demonstrating growing awareness of respect for others and the fairness of actions considered."

Theme 1: We the People
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.7. Evaluate how American society has changed through rules and laws ● 2.8. Understand the purposes and structures of government (tribal, local, state, national government)
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.9. Assess how the contributions of diverse individuals' have helped develop our national identity. ● 2.10. Examine and compare the American democratic principles to neighboring countries.

ADD: "Examine and compare how American democratic principles have been interpreted over time and have become more equitably applied to various individuals and groups in our nation."

Theme 1: We the People (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.11. Examine and understand the qualities of good leadership. ← ADD: "What does leadership require if a society is to treat its members fairly. What is required of leaders in a democratic society?"

Theme 2: Looking in Our Past
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.12. Describe events in North America that illustrate how people from diverse cultural groups attempted to work through conflicts to solve a problem. ← ", and how solving problems together helps understanding." 2.13. Compare diverse world communities in terms of members, customs, and traditions to the local community. 2.14. Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among years and decades using a timeline of local and national events.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.15. Identify and compare the diverse North American cultural groups of the past and today. 2.16. Evaluate the effects of people, goods and ideas that diffused from one world community into other world communities and the effects of the people, goods and ideas on these communities. ← ADD: "Explore How the relationships among these diverse cultural groups have changed over time."

Theme 3: What We Make and Use

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.17. Examine how consumers react to changes in the prices of goods and how this influences economic decision making and the use of money. 2.18. Explore how communities share resources and services with other communities
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.19. Investigate what resources are available in the community, how available resources differ in communities, and what resources are obtained from neighboring communities. 2.20. Identify different types of jobs performed in the community.

"and with various members of their own communities"

"and different ways resources are exchanged within and between communities"

Theme 4: Cultures and Environment

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.21. Using maps, identify and locate the United States, Canada, and Mexico as the countries that make up North America. 2.22. Identify and locate the bordering states to New Mexico and understand that New Mexico is in the Southwest.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.23. Compare the human and physical characteristics of two regions in the United States. 2.24. Generate a definition for your region of the US by identifying unique features.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.25. List at least three different waves of migration to the Western hemisphere in chronological order. (Movement)

ADD: "Locate the various Indigenous nations and communities in the states of the Southwest."

Theme 4: Cultures and Environment (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.26. Describe ways in which individuals and groups use or save natural resources. ← ADD: "Describe changes in the ways we are using, saving and sharing natural resources today. Explore more ways our use, saving and sharing of these resources could change as our world and its climate changes."

Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad. 2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not. ← ADD: "Explore positive ways of viewing people who are different from ourselves."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.29. Demonstrate respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me. " , dignity and humanity"

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Third Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.1. Identify disciplinary ideas associated with a compelling question. ● 3.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.3. Determine the credibility of one source. ← ADD: "Identify how different perspectives can lead to different interpretations of events."
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.4. Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions. ← "; do different individuals or groups interpret the supportive evidence differently? ←
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.5. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.6. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 3.7. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms. ← ADD: "Help build an environment in which all students feel respected and feel safe to participate authentically in coming to decisions."
Theme 1: Citizenship
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.8. Explain how the democratic principles motivate people to migrate then and now. ← "and a desire for respect and dignity"

Theme 1: Citizenship (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.9. Explain how to be a responsible and active citizen in a democracy.

"an inclusive democracy." [OR "a democracy that includes people of different cultures, races, genders, family types and differently abled people."]

Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.10. Evaluate the reasons for migration and immigration and the effects on people, culture, and ideas in world communities. 3.11. Analyze how human settlement and movement impact diverse groups of people and how the cultural aspects of a region spread beyond its borders. 3.12. Analyze the movement of Indigenous groups, including the removal and return of Indigenous people throughout New Mexico and the US.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.13. Explain how world events impact New Mexico and the US, both in the past and today.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.14. Use a timeline to analyze connections among historical events, including how human settlement and movement impacted diverse groups of people.

← ADD: "Listen to stories from community members about how their family came here."

→ ", and how New Mexico has had and continues to have an impact on world events."

ADD: "See where different family stories fit into the timeline."

ADD: "Listen to stories shared by Indigenous community members about their family's experiences of removal, return and remaining in place."

Theme 3: Global Issues and Events
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.15. Examine the various ways people earn a living to meet their basic needs of food, clothing, and shelter, and how this has changed over time in various world communities. ← ADD: "How have different communities supported their members to help meet these needs in past and today?"
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.16. Investigate who receives the goods that are produced in various world communities. ← ADD: "Where are goods we use every day in class and at home produced?"
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.17. Explore the concepts of surplus and scarcity in relation to resources for various world communities. 3.18. Explore the basic economic concepts of supply and demand 3.19. Explain how supply and demand influence prices and trade. 3.20. Describe how technological developments in transportation and communication influence trade over time. 3.21. Identify currency, credit, debit, and checks as the basic means of exchange in Western society. 3.22. Compare currency, credit, debit, and checks in the United States to other world money systems.

Theme 4: Our Changing World
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.23. Create a model to demonstrate how geographic factors influence where people settle and how some people make adaptations to the environment to make a location more suitable for settlement. 3.24. Identify and use the mapping tools of scale, compass rose, grid, symbols and mental mapping to locate places on maps and globes.

Theme 4: Our Changing World (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.25. Explain how physical and cultural characteristics of world regions affect people, and examine geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations. 3.26. Identify the components of the Earth's biosystems and their makeup (e.g., air, land, water, plants, and animals).

Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly. 3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups. ← ADD: "Demonstrate respect for identities and personal characteristics different from one's own".
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.29. Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world. ← ADD: "Share personal stories of people working to improve justice, fairness and wellbeing for themselves and for others."

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Fourth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.1. Explain how a compelling question represents key ideas in the field. ● 4.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.3. Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.5. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 4.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

← ADD: "Identify evidence that might support a different response."

← ADD: "Help build an environment in which all students feel safe to participate authentically in coming to decisions."

Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.7. Examine and evaluate the rules, laws, and authorities that keep people safe in New Mexico.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 4.8. Explain how democratic principles guide local, state, and sovereign governments. ● 4.9. Demonstrate understanding that state symbols, holidays, traditions, and songs represent various cultural heritages, natural treasures, and the democratic values of New Mexico.

← ADD: "Evaluate whether these laws treat different groups of people equitably and all people fairly."

*ADD: "Explain the importance of fairness in the ways governments make and carry out decisions."
*ADD: Understand how some traditional sovereign governments rely on traditional practices to choose leaders and make decisions."

Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.10. Investigate how different groups have influenced the ways that state issues are viewed and resolved. ADD: "Explore how the roles of different groups, including Indigenous peoples, traditional Hispanic communities and others have changed over time in influencing state issues and actions."

Theme 2: Migration and Settlement in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to: [Is "pioneer" the best term here?]
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.11. Describe the different groups of people (Indigenous and explorers/pioneers) that have settled in New Mexico throughout history and describe their traditions and effects on New Mexico culture.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.12. Describe the interactions between Indigenous people and European settlers including agriculture, cultural exchanges, alliances, and conflicts
History 17. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.13. Create a timeline that depicts the events and the changes in New Mexico culture through contact with explorers and settlers. "by Indigenous peoples and by contacts and conflicts among different settlers."
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.14. Examine the changes in governance of New Mexico (Indigenous, Spanish, Mexican, Texan, Confederate, US) ADD: "Explore the contemporary forms of governance that derive from earlier forms of governance (e.g. traditional Indigenous governments, land grant associations, acequia governance, etc.)"

Comment: [Is "pioneers" the most appropriate term for both the Hispanic and Mexican settlers and the Anglo-American settlers who came after them? It's important the students look at the various waves of settlement and their effects not only on Indigenous peoples but on the various groups of settlers themselves.]

Theme 3: New Mexico Trade and Industry

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.15. Explain the impact of using natural resources on the local, county, and state economy ← "and on the economies of the Indigenous nations within or adjacent to New Mexico."
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.16. Explain how trade and industry in New Mexico is impacted by surrounding economies (Mexico, AZ, CO, TX) 4.17. Research and create a list of products, goods, and services that New Mexico imports and exports. ← "and how trade and industry affect the Indigenous communities in New Mexico"
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.18. Explore the significance of agriculture and livestock industries in New Mexico. ← ADD: "Explore the relationship between agricultural practices and traditional and Indigenous communities in New Mexico and their endurance over time."

Theme 4: Resources and Land Use in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.19. Examine and synthesize (combine) data from at least two types of maps (physical, topographical, or thematic maps) to support a claim about the regional divisions of New Mexico, and compare and contrast its diverse geography 4.20. Using a variety of maps, investigate and compare how New Mexico's political boundaries have changed over time. 4.21. Apply geographic tools of title, grid system, legends, symbols, scale and compass rose to construct and interpret maps. 4.22. Describe and identify the regions and four provinces that make up New Mexico's land surface. ← "; include traditional and Indigenous communities in this analysis." ← "including changes in the boundaries of Indigenous nations in New Mexico." ← ADD: "Include and distinguish Indigenous lands, including reservation trust lands, in this analysis."

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.23. Explore how geographic factors influence locations of settlements and use of natural resources (land, water, minerals, plants, animals) to meet their basic needs. ← ADD: "Explore how geographic factors have influenced conflicts over land, water and other natural resources among settlers, Indigenous communities and contemporary occupants."
--------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.24. Explain why individuals and groups during the same historical period differed in their perspectives towards significant historical events. ← ADD: "Explore how different individuals and groups today share similar and different understandings of these same historical events."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people's lives and experiences without judgment. ← ADD: "Share appropriate, respectful stories of their own and their group's lives and experiences."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.26. Explain connections among historical contexts and people's perspectives at the time. ← ADD: "Explore how differences in experiences of history affect different people's and groups' perspectives today."

DRAFT

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Fifth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.1. Identify the disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a compelling question. ● 5.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.3. Determine the credibility of multiple sources.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.4. Identify evidence that draws information from multiple perspectives and sources in response to a compelling question.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.5. With teacher direction, construct responses to compelling questions supported by reasoning and evidence.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.6. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 5.7. Use a range of consensus-building and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in the classroom.

ADD: "Explore why even when people rely on credible sources they sometimes come to different conclusions."

↑ ", and explore how these perspectives help to increase understanding of the compelling question."

DRAFT - COPY

Theme 1: Development and Establishment of U.S. Government

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.8. Identify and explain the structure and function of the three branches of government.
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.9. Analyze how different individuals and groups influenced the creation and interpretation of the foundational documents
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.10. Explain how the principles of the Declaration of Independence became unifying ideas of American Democracy
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.11. Evaluate how the Bill of Rights shaped the rights of U.S. Citizens

ADD: "Examine how the foundational documents affected different groups."

ADD: "Explain how different groups and categories of persons were affected by these principles both at the time of writing and in subsequent periods."

"and non-citizens."

ADD: "Examine how different groups and categories of persons were affected by these rights from their first adoption until today."

Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.13. Examine history from the perspective of the participants.

ADD: "Describe how the understanding of fundamental principles of human rights has been shaped by previous inequities and have shaped approaches to dealing with the continuing conflicts they produced."

ADD: "Explore how different groups' experiences of history continue to affect our national identity today"

[Students, and others often get the incorrect impression that the Bill of Rights and the 14th Amendment apply only to Citizens. This is not correct and gives a much more restrictive understanding of the rights of all persons. The fact that some provisions of the Bill of Rights apply to all "persons" is a gift that the U.S. system gave to the world, as reflected in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.]

Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.14. Analyze the causes of the American Revolution and the effects individuals and groups had on the conflict. 5.15. Analyze the causes of the Civil War and the effects individuals and groups had on the conflict.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.16. Create and use a chronological sequence of related events and timelines to organize and analyze cause and effect relationships. 5.17. Use primary and secondary sources to acquire historical information.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.18. Explain the connections among historical contexts and people's perspectives during major historical events in the US.

ADD: "Examine the effects each of these conflicts had on different individuals and groups."

ADD: "Examine how these historically-based differences in perspectives continue to affect people's understanding of these major historical events and their relation to today."

Theme 3: Human Rights and Economic Development

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.19. Explore examples from the Western Hemisphere to illustrate the role of scarcity historically and in current events. 5.20. Analyze how economic success is defined differently by various communities in the US (then, now, and in the future). 5.21. Identify and compare the major natural resources of the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Caribbean or South American countries, and determine the major industries of those countries in relation to available resources.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.22. Examine products that are imported and exported into markets within the United States based on demand for these products, noting how this affects the United States economy.

ADD: "Compare the importance of individual and community economic success in different cultural groups."

"; include the "human resources" of these countries and regions in the analysis."

" and the economies of other countries that produce goods exported to the United States or import goods produced in the United States."

Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.23. Demonstrate how physical maps reflect the varied climate zones, landforms, bodies of water, and natural resources of the Western Hemisphere. 5.24. Using maps and globes, identify the regions within the Western Hemisphere and locate major physical features within each region. 5.25. Demonstrate how the states are organized including time zones and the regions of the US ", including all territories, commonwealths, etc." 5.26. Use geographic and place-based vocabulary to communicate locations and navigate from one place to another.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.27. Using a map, identify and locate the 50 states in the United States and know the capitals of each state along with the surrounding U.S. territories ", commonwealths, federal districts, etc."
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.28. Examine how the physical environment influences human population distribution and land use.

Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.29. Identify the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues. ADD: "Demonstrate the ability to discuss these differences in beliefs, experiences, perspectives and values in the classroom setting in ways that are inclusive, respectful and informed."

[Remember that the United States not only has "territories," but at least one "Commonwealth (Puerto Rico) and one Federal district (District of Columbia).]

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19.
Diversity and Identity

- 5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.
- 5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

← ADD: "Identify who are considered the "main identity groups" and what groups may be missing from this analysis."

DRAFT - PRE REVIEW
COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Sixth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.1. Distinguish primary and secondary sources by correctly identifying the author, type of document and date of publication of the text in relation to the historical event described in the text. ● 6.2. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers ← "; include previously under reported stories." ● 6.3. Categorize questions as compelling (main topic) or supporting questions. ● 6.4. Pose self-generated relevant questions to be answered by historical inquiry that allow for multiple avenues of exploration.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.5. Identify where and how to locate sources to best answer a research question ● 6.6. Distinguish among fact, opinion, and reasoned judgement in a source. Identify the author's/ authors' perspectives and possible biases. ● 6.7. Identify inherent bias in maps. ● 6.8. Evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use ← "; note systemic omissions in sources."
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.9. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question ● 6.10. Support a claim using a variety of sources and perspectives ● 6.11. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources. ● 6.12. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.13. Use applicable presentation technology to communicate research findings or other significant information. ● 6.14. Create maps, charts, infographics or digital media that communicate research findings or other significant information

[Later in 6th grade, students will be asked a question about "human rights violations" in the medieval period (6.52). They need to Explore the meaning of the term "human rights" as it applies to life in different periods, societies and geographic regions.]

Inquiry (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. 6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. 6.17. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems

Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.18. Create and use maps, globes, and graphs to gather, analyze, and report geographic information.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.19. Identify how natural forces shape Earth's environments and regions.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.21. Demonstrate relationships between personal events and historical events.

← ADD: "Evaluate how human impacts interact with these natural forces."

← ADD: "Use storytelling to explore personal experiences of historical events."

Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures. ← ADD: "Examine how relationship with land (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures."

Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.23. Identify the social structures of early humans. ← "Explore" rather than "Identify". [We learn new things every day about the social structures of early human.]
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.24. Analyze the economic impact that surpluses of food and goods have on the growth of civilizations.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.25. Compare environmental and geographic attributes of locations of the earliest human settlements.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.26. Compare cultural and technological innovations of one Mesoamerican and one South American civilization. 6.27. Compare cultural, political, and religious characteristics of early river valley civilizations.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.28. Describe how the local environment impacts cultures and technology. 6.29. Describe how the people impact the local environment.

Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.30. Analyze the impact that the Agricultural Revolution had on hunter-gatherers and nomadic peoples.

Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.31. Describe cultural and political structures in classical eastern societies. 6.32. Describe cultural and political structures in classical western societies. 6.33. Compare and contrast classical forms of government and political structure to our current United States government and political structure.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.34. Identify rights and responsibilities of citizens and noncitizens in civic participation within the governmental systems such as monarchy, democracy, republic, and oligarchy
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.35. Evaluate the lasting impact of philosophy, art, science, and technology of Classical Greece, Rome, India, and China. 6.36. Evaluate the factors that allowed classical civilizations to thrive.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.37. Identify the political and social issues that lead to the development of new philosophies during the classical period. 6.38. Compare strategies used by classical civilizations to maintain their empires. 6.39. Compare causes of decline in the Roman, Han, and Gupta empires.

ADD: "Describe cultural and political structures of diverse Indigenous Peoples of North America."

", and in traditional societies."

Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.40. Describe the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explain their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period.

Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.41. Describe the distribution of resources among classes in the feudal hierarchy of European and Asian societies.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.42. Explain the reasons for the expansion of trade routes and territories in Sub-Saharan regions.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.43. Analyze the significance of innovations such as scientific, mathematical, and technological in Middle Eastern and Asian societies. 6.44. Explain how religion and philosophy shaped European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the post-classical period.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.45. Explain what led to the emergence of European feudalism.

Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.46. Describe how trade networks and the transfer of goods and ideas linked post-classical societies. 6.47. Explain the role of trade in the development and growth of societies ← " , including societies in the Americas."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.48. Explain how the interaction between producers and consumers in the trade networks satisfied economic wants and needs.

Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.49. Use maps to represent the movement of key religions and philosophies over time.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.50. Compare the transportation innovations made to travel over challenging routes and establish trade routes ← "in different regions of the world."

Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE–1300 CE

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.51. Use maps to explain how encounters and exchanges linked the world.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.52. Examine instances of conflict, oppression, human rights violations, and genocide in Medieval times as well as responses to these violations.
History 15. Causes and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.53. Analyze social, political, and economic effects of the Black Death on Europe.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.54. Examine and explain how the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society.

ADD: "Explore the differences in this historical period between conflicts within and conflicts among groups."

Glad to see "Human Rights" specifically referenced at last! However, it will be important to help students explore the meaning of the phrase "Human Rights" as interpreted by major international and domestic bodies. For example, look to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights for its extensive identification and description of Universal Human Rights.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Seventh Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.1. Develop compelling (big idea) questions about a relevant topic of interest. ● 7.2. Create supporting questions from credible sources to expand upon the compelling question.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.3. Identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts, and oral traditions. ● 7.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for fact, opinion, author's bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic. ● 7.5. Analyze various forms of media to identify polarizing language, logical fallacy, and reasonable judgment. ● 7.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.7. Use primary and secondary sources to develop an argument and cite specific textual evidence to support the claim. ● 7.8. Make connections between current events, historical materials, and personal experience.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.9. Present student-developed texts communicating thinking and understanding, including but not limited to written text, oral presentation, visual representation, and multimedia. ● 7.10. Engage in academic discussions analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity. ● 7.12. Explore opportunities to be an ally and describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally. ● 7.13. Engage in positive civic behaviors to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and communities.

↑ " , composition,"

ADD: "Define the meaning of "ally" in different contexts."

← Help create an environment in classrooms, schools, communities that supports inclusion and participation of all.

I suggest some in class exploration of what it means to be an "ally".

Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc). 7.15. Describe the relationships of tribal, state, and local governments with the national government under the federal system (tribal sovereignty, state constitutions, 3-branches of government, checks and balances, legislative process, etc).
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.16. Explain how tribal, state, and local government agencies work to sustain resources in New Mexico. 7.17. Discuss New Mexico's economic limitations, barriers to development, and successes. 7.18. Examine the pros and cons of economic development in New Mexico.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	ADD: "Explore the economic relationships within and among Indigenous Nations, traditional communities, in New Mexico and beyond." <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. 7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics. 7.22. Use paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.23. Describe factors affecting location of human activities, including land-use patterns for local, regional, and state communities. 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources. ADD: "Explore the various relationships with land and water resources of different groups in New Mexico, including Indigenous nations, land grant holders, acequia associations, farmers and ranchers, industries."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted.

"this part of"

"and historical patterns of land-use among distinct cultural communities."

Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.26. Analyze how groups maintain their cultural heritage and how we see this heritage through the symbols, traditions, and culture of our state. " , including livelihoods, land-use, economic relationships, family structure." 7.27. Define and explain the present demographics of our state. "describe" [a better word than 'define'] 7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry. " , finance, employment, housing."

Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic-Decision Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.29. Demonstrate how early humans compete and/or cooperate to gather and use resources. "in the land that became New Mexico the Southwest."
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.30. Analyze patterns of migration of early people as they settled across New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.31. Analyze land use patterns of early humans in New Mexico and the Southwest region. 7.32. Explain how building technologies are designed to respond to the constraints and freedoms of the environment. 7.33. Explain how early people adapted to the environment to develop sustainable agricultural practices. " , hunting, foraging, and"

" , hunting, foraging, and"
[Remember that many Indigenous Peoples had definite, successful strategies for sustainable hunting and foraging for their basic needs.]

Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.34. Explain the importance of artifacts and oral histories in understanding how prehistoric people lived. 7.35. Describe the technical limitations of historians and archaeologists studying the distant past.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.36. Explain the use of artifacts in dating and understanding the lives of prehistoric peoples. 7.37. Describe the similarities and differences between nomadic and semi-nomadic lifestyles

Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.38. Describe the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights, and responsibilities. ← ADD: "Describe the roles of allies in supporting long-term survival of traditional communities."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.39. Summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence. 7.40. Explain barriers to trade and how those barriers influence trade among individual people and cultural groups. ← ADD: "Explore the evidence of trade among Indigenous peoples of the Americas prior to European contact."
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.41. Analyze land use patterns of Ancestral Pueblo, Mogollon, and Athabaskan peoples. 7.42. Connect cultural adaptations of the Pueblo and Diné people to today ← "and Apache"

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.43. Identify the housing and religious structures of both the Navajo and Apache. 7.44. Compare and contrast Athabascan technology, agricultural practices, and settlement patterns with those of the Pueblos
Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.45. Discuss the importance of resource shortages on the lifestyles of the Mogollon and Ancestral Puebloans. 7.46. Create research questions about art/architecture of the Mogollon and/or the Pueblo Ancestors. 7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.48. Analyze who have been key figures that have contributed to an individual culture, and what they did. 7.49. Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/ identities. 7.50. Identify what students want the world to see when their culture is on display, and how to address negative perceptions ← " , and how to promote appropriate understanding of their culture and its strengths."

Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions ← ADD: "Compare and contrast the government systems of European and Indigenous societies of this period."	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.51. Compare and contrast global and historical government systems to the US federal system.
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.52. Demonstrate the impact of competition and/or cooperation as people gather and use resources. 7.53. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the economic motivation of Spaniards as they enter the lands of and interact with the peoples of the Americas.
Economics 9. The Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.54. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate connections between the economy of Spain and those of indigenous people.

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.55. Analyze maps and charts about the Age of Exploration to understand the movement of people, goods, and ideas across the world.
--------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.56. Interpret the cultural differences between Spaniards and Indigenous peoples.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.57. Describe the interactions between the Spaniards and Indigenous Peoples
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.58. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the political and religious motivations of Spaniards as they encounter the land and peoples of the Americas. 7.59. Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures. 7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices

"the various Indigenous Peoples and societies whom they encountered," ['Indigenous Peoples' is too generic]

the various Indigenous Peoples whom they encountered. [Again, 'Indigenous Peoples' is too generic]

"among our various racial, ethnic and national groups."

Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.62. Use figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies. 7.63. Hypothesize how the policies of the Spanish monarchy in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region ← " , including both Indigenous societies and other settler societies. "

← ADD: "Explore human rights consequences of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of various groups in New Mexico during various historical periods."

Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.64. Use primary sources to identify formal and informal actions that impacted local, tribal, and Spanish empirical economies during this time period.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.65. Analyze maps and charts from the Spanish Colonial period to understand El Camino Real as a significant corridor for movement of people, goods, and ideas.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.66. Explain how differing perceptions of places, people, and resources affected events and conditions in New Mexico during the Spanish Colonial period. 7.67. Evaluate practices of land usage and ownership between Indigenous peoples and Spaniards. ← "various Indigenous peoples encountered by the Spaniards..} . (practices differed among groups)
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.68. Compare and contrast the revolts and resistance movements under Spanish rule ← " , including both Indigenous revolts and resistance against the Spanish government by settlers. "

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspective	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.69. Discuss, debate, or hold academic conversations about both positive and negative evidence of Spanish influence in New Mexico today.
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.70. Describe key figures that have made significant contributions to an individual culture. 7.71. Explore personal, familial, and societal cultures in the modern day. 7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display, and conclude how to address stereotypes.

"evidence of both positive and negative influence" [Better sentence]

", including their origins and development over time."

"discussed, described or"

Theme 6: The Mexican Period (1821 CE – 1850 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.73. Examine how conflict over land, culture, and social class led to Mexican independence from Spain.
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.74. Identify and summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence.
ADD: "Examine how the first Mexican Constitution addressed Indigenous peoples, land grants, citizenship, race."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.75. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate connections between the economy of New Mexico and Mexico during the Mexican period. 7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact they had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.77. Compare various maps and/or geographical data to describe how the movement of people influenced the division and control of resources.
ADD: "Examine the geography of United States' expansion into the Southwest."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.78. Analyze primary and secondary ⁴to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area that would become) New Mexico. 7.79. Generate an evidence-based argument that demonstrates how troubles between Texas and the government of Mexico impacted New Mexico.

"sources"

History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.80. Cite textual evidence to interpret the factors that led to resistance and rebellion in Mexico during this time, and debate the aftermath. 7.81. Compare historians' interpretations of the reasons for the Texas-Santa Fe Expedition.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups

"on the persons and groups directly affected and on the quality of democracy in the larger society."

← ADD: "Explore the human rights consequences of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of various groups in New Mexico during various historical periods."

Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.83. Analyze US policies on expansion into the Southwest, including how they reflected US civic ideals of the time and conflicted with existing inhabitants of the region.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.84. Identify activities that had an impact on territorial and Indigenous economies. 7.85. Investigate the correlation between the territorial and Indigenous economies considering how they are impacted by federal policies.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.86. Explain the role of human movement in shaping societies in New Mexico in the past and present. 7.87. Analyze maps and charts from the Western expansion period to understand interactions between multiple cultural groups. 7.88. Analyze land use patterns of Anglo-Americans during the American Westward expansion period.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.89. Support a claim about the intent of the United States in its westward expansion. 7.90. Evaluate the significance of short- and long-range trails throughout the lands gained in the Mexican Cession.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.91. Categorize causes and consequences of the U.S. military invasion of Mexico

← ADD: "Investigate economic factors that affected Western expansion, including into New Mexico."

← ", including consequences for Mexico, New Mexico, the United States and Indigenous Peoples."

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.92. Compare and contrast primary and secondary sources in conjunction with modern-era events to explore the impact of land ownership throughout New Mexico History 	"including different forms of land ownership and use."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a 7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by person 	"perceptions" is a better word. "characteristics of an identity" [better choice of words]

Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.95. Evaluate New Mexico's transition into a US territorial government from the perspectives of the various groups residing in the territory at the time. 	ADD: "Explore effects on the civic status of Indigenous people, Blacks, Mexicans, Hispanics."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.96. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate the economy of territorial New Mexico from various perspectives such as wealthy/poor and immigrant/Indigenous, etc. 	" , land status, cultural identity,"
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.97. Analyze maps and charts from the Early American Territorial period to explain how differing perceptions of places, people, and resources have affected events and conditions of the past. 	"and continue to affect events and conditions today."
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present. 	ADD: Explore the power dynamics embedded in this cultural diffusion.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.99. Analyze land use patterns of Americans during the territorial period in New Mexico 	"various groups of Americans, including settlers, investors, ranchers, military,"

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.100. Describe how cultures were challenged by the coming of new groups to New Mexico. "existing, resident cultures"
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.101. Identify causes and consequences that gave rise to U.S. government policies impacting the territory of New Mexico. "and the various societies and communities within New Mexico."

Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.102. Use a variety of sources to contextualize and explain the impact of localized conflicts and other events throughout New Mexico. ", including the contemporary impacts of conflicts originating in this historical period."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time. ADD: "Demonstrate respect for traditions, norms and values not one's own and respect for the cultural privacy of groups not one's own."

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Eighth Grade

6-8 Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.1. Develop compelling (big idea) questions about a relevant topic of interest. ● 8.2. Create supporting questions from credible sources to expand upon the compelling question.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.3. Identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts, and oral traditions. ● 8.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for the author's bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic. ● 8.5. Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory. ● 8.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers. ● 8.8. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question ● 8.9. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources. ● 8.10. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic. ● 8.11. Make connections between current events, historical materials and personal experience. ● 8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.

← ADD: "Explore the human rights implications of differences in legal status and access to opportunity during the period in question."

6-8 Inquiry (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

ADD: "Develop skills in honestly discussing different perspectives and points of view through respectful dialogue and debate, which includes all participants and marginalizes no one."

Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions

- 8.13. Engage in discussion, debate, or academic conversation analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues.
- 8.14. Create maps, charts, infographics, or other visual media that communicate research findings or other significant information digitally or on paper.
- 8.15. Develop informational texts, including analyses of historical and current events.
- 8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
- 8.17. Use applicable presentation technology to communicate research findings or other significant information.
- 8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.

Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action

- 8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. "in and outside of"
- 8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. "misperceptions and"
- 8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally, and engaging in positive civic behaviors in classrooms, schools, and the broader community. "understanding disagreements,"
- 8.22. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results.
- 8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.

Theme 1: Geography & Indigenous Peoples of North America
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.24. Use digital literacy to research and create a presentation about a specific Sovereign Tribal Nation or Indigenous Peoples group of North America through the five themes of geography: location, place, movement, human-environment interaction, and region. 8.25. Identify the major rivers, mountain ranges, and climatic regions of North America within the lands now known as the United States, Canada, the Caribbean, and Mexico.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.26. Give specific examples to illustrate how one Indigenous culture or many Indigenous cultures in one region have been shaped by their environment and natural resources available to them. 8.27. Define a region by identifying its human and physical features.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.28. Explain how human activities and physical processes influence change in ecosystems.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspective	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.30. Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.

Red box containing the text: ", create a visual or graphic story," with a red arrow pointing to the word "or" in the row above.

Theme 2: Age of Exploration and Exploitation (c. 1400 CE – c. 1500 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.31. Describe the causes of exploration and expansion into the Americas, by the Europeans during the 15th Century.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.

"various"

ADD: Identify, to the extent known, the Peoples these various explorers encountered in their voyages.

Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 7. Economics Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.33. Draw diagrams or make models to illustrate significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the Western Hemisphere.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.34. Synthesize information from two or more different types of maps to support a claim about the global context of colonization.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.

"British"

Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.36. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within North America through the lens of the 13 colonies and the movement of people there.
Geography 13. Human-Environment Interaction	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.37. Engage in academic discussion around how the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.38. Use evidence from primary and secondary sources to compare and contrast the impacts of European colonization on Indigenous populations.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.39. Discuss the interactions and exchanges of resources, ideas, arts, and culture between and among different civilizations in the colonial period.

"British"; compare and contrast with the French, Dutch, and Spanish colonies of North America."

ADD: "Explore how slavery affected economic and land development in the various 13 British colonies."

ADD: How did various concepts about applicability of rights of persons affect these encounters?"

ADD: "Discuss how preconceptions and stereotypes influenced these interactions and exchanges."

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.40. Use maps and other primary sources to analyze the economic specializations of the 13 colonies.
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.41. Compare and contrast the efforts of the American and British governments to gain the services of African Americans during the American Revolutionary War. 8.42. Evaluate the incentives for supporting the British or American side from the perspective of enslaved and free African Americans before and during the American Revolution.

ADD: "Explore how the status of African slaves and European indentured servants changed during this time."

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established. 8.44. Develop a claim about how opinions regarding the Proclamation Line of 1763 might have varied depending on an individual's occupation and geographic location.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.45. Evaluate the effectiveness of Native American alliances during and after the American Revolutionary War as a tool to support tribal sovereignty. 8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War). 8.47. Synthesize text and non-text evidence to persuasively express a perspective on the events leading to the American Revolution.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies. 8.50. Use primary source texts and artifacts as evidence to describe daily life in the 13 Colonies by featuring individuals with diverse identities and different perspectives. 8.51. Generate historically relevant questions and hypothesize sources needed to make an argument about diverse individuals' ability to participate in the war effort (for either side).

and relations with Indigenous Peoples"

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of those individuals who sought not to take sides in the conflict, (e.g. Quaker merchants and shipowners, among others)."

Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE – 1815 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.52. Examine how challenges the government faced as a result of the Articles of Confederation resolved at the Constitutional Convention. 8.53. Make a claim to evaluate how individuals and groups addressed specific problems at various levels to form a new republic "to what extent" ", and identify problems that remained unresolved for the new republic."
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.54. Identify parallels in language or intent (construct or content) between Enlightenment philosophies and the ideas expressed in the Declaration of Independence. 8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today. "both positive and negative..."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.56. Critically read the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student-developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time "and to what extent."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.57. Support a claim about the influence of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture in early U.S. history. ", beliefs and cultural understandings"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.58. Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity.

Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE – 1850 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.59. Identify policies of this era that define the relationship between federal, state, and tribal governments through treaties, court decisions, and land acquisition statutes.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.60. Describe a human-created environmental concern related to western expansion, including different contemporary perspectives and other historical context from this period.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.61. Compare and contrast Indigenous Peoples' assimilation story with later immigrants' stories. [Please find another way to say this. Indigenous stories involve both assimilation, especially forced assimilation, and resistance. That resistance has its own set of stories that students need to explore.]
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.62. Analyze the motivations and impacts of western expansion and the settlement of the United States. 8.63. Use graphic organizers to illustrate the causes and effects of the Mexican American War and its consequences on residents living in the "new" U.S. Territories. 8.64. Use maps and other primary sources (such as the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo) to examine determination of geophysical and geopolitical boundaries between the U.S. and Mexico.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.65. Evaluate the efficacy of formal US policies of expansion, their effects on Sovereign Tribal Nations' ability to self-govern, and Indigenous resistance efforts to preserve tribal sovereignty.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture.

ADD: Examine how different concepts of land tenure, nationality and government affected these relationships.

"and cultural survival stories"

"; include different beliefs and cultural understandings about relationship to land and nature."

[Please find another way to say this. Indigenous stories involve both assimilation, especially forced assimilation, and resistance. That resistance has its own set of stories that students need to explore.]

"and the Protocol of Queretaro"

"and cultural integrity."

"and gender roles"

Theme 7: Sectionalism (1830 CE – 1860 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.67. Identify and explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the North and the South. "of the United States in the first part of the 19th Century."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.68. Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war. ADD: How did differences in belief about the rights and humanity of African American slaves affect the conflict?"
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.69. Use primary and secondary sources to examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.

Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.71. Generate research questions about the nature of civil wars in general, and the role of border states/ territories in the US Civil War specifically. ADD: "Explore the civic implications of the Fugitive Slave Act and the Dred Scott decision in the North."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.72. Summarize a significant economic warfare initiative of the Civil War through creative expression 8.73. Explain how Union Army strategies and other socio-economic changes at the end of the Civil War led to an economic depression in the Southeast United States.

Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.74. Generate research questions, brainstorm sources, and gather evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War (Guerra Civil Estadounidense). 8.75. Use examples to support an argument about the importance of science and technology during the Civil War period.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation. 8.77. Use primary and secondary sources to make an argument about the impact of the Western Campaign on Indigenous peoples

Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era. 8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.80. Describe why different people may have different perspectives of the same historical event; multiple interpretations should be considered in order to avoid historical linearity and inevitability.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions. 8.82. Use data to describe demographic shifts as a consequence of the Civil War and Reconstruction.

ADD: Investigate the "Buffalo Soldiers" in the West and their role in the control of Indigenous Peoples."

Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.

Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.84. Investigate the causes and effects of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture that are associated with immigration and migration. ← "by different groups, ethnicities, religious affiliations, etc."
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.85. Analyze the benefits and challenges that are associated with rapidly growing urban areas as a result of industrialization.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.86. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within the United States during time periods of mass immigration.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.87. Analyze the development of the women's suffrage movement over time and its legacy. 8.88. Make personal connections to immigration stories and experiences-- both in the past and present
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.89. Examine both sides in debate or academic discussion of politics in response to immigration. ← "various perspectives or"

Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identify

- 8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

DRAFT - PRE-PROOF COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS Civics

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Civ.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Civ.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Civ.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Civ.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose. ● 9-12.Civ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Civ.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Civ.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

ADD: Evaluate the cross-cultural credibility of experts from one culture evaluating material from another culture.

ADD: "Reflect and act upon their knowledge, inquiry skills and civic dispositions to become inform advocates for social justice and human rights in an inclusive and equitable society in their classrooms, schools, communities and their interconnected worlds."

[Note that this proposed Inquiry Standard is taken directly from the National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, adopted in 2017 by the National Council for the Social Studies (<https://www.socialstudies.org/standards/national-standards-preparation-social-studies-teachers>), particularly Core Competency Standards 4 and 5.]

High School Civics
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able  ADD: "Explore the work of one or more effective civil society, non-governmental organization (NGO), evaluating reasons for and limits of their effectiveness."
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.13. Distinguish the powers and responsibilities of local, state, indigenous, national, and international civic and political institutions. ● 9-12.Civ.14. Develop claims about the purpose, processes, strengths, and weaknesses of the U.S. government. ● 9-12.Civ.15. Evaluate efforts to adapt and redesign the U.S. Constitution and political institutions over time. ● 9-12.Civ.16. Analyze the role of groups without formal decision-making power in influencing change in the U.S. government. ● 9-12.Civ.17. Evaluate multiple sources and cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy. "human rights" ● 9-12.Civ.18. Investigate relationships among governments, civil societies, and economic markets. "in diverse regions of the world." ● 9-12.Civ.19. Distinguish historical and current types and systems of government in the U.S. and abroad. ● 9-12.Civ.20. Use data and evidence from multiple perspectives related to federal policy toward Indigenous groups to develop an understanding of Indigenous/U.S. relations over time "; compare with the experiences of Indigenous groups within other nation states." ● 9-12.Civ.21. Evaluate the way America's founding principles and constitutional structures have influenced initiatives and revisions to foreign policy over time. ", including the U.S. promotion of global human rights." ● 9-12.Civ.22. Research multiple sources to think critically about how the U.S. should conduct itself in international relations "and how International standards should affect U.S. domestic policy."
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Civ.23. Evaluate procedures for making governmental decisions at the local, state, national, and international levels in terms of the civic purposes achieved. "and humanitarian" ● 9-12.Civ.24. Evaluate sources to determine how people use and challenge local, state, national, and international laws, to address a variety of public issues ", advocate for their own interests and promote fairness, equity and social justice." ● 9-12.Civ.25. Evaluate public policies in terms of intended and unintended outcomes and related consequences. ● 9-12.Civ.26. Analyze historical, contemporary, and emerging means of changing societies, promoting the common good and protecting rights "civil and human rights" ● 9-12.Civ.27. Evaluate the US justice system over time and its impacts on policy, society, economics, and individual rights. ● 9-12.Civ.28. Explain the unique features and processes of New Mexico's constitution.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.29. Evaluate the contributions of New Mexico’s diverse populations to it’s governmental structure and outcomes. 9-12.Civ.30. Investigate challenges and opportunities within and between different government entities in New Mexico.
--	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.31. Analyze the impact and the appropriate roles of personal interests and perspectives on the application of civic virtues, democratic principles, constitutional rights, and human rights. [[These terms need to be defined at some point.]] 9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels. “, fairness and empathy” 9-12.Civ.33. Apply civic dispositions and democratic principles when working with others. “for” 9-12.Civ.34. Analyze founding documents and their impact on national unity over time. 9-12.Civ.35. Evaluate the tensions between personal interests, different cultural groups, and civic responsibilities or the common good overtime. “ group interests within”
---------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

ADD: “Develop a personal understanding of the Constitution's identified governmental purpose “to promote the general welfare.”

High School Civics (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------

Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Civ.36. Participate in civil discourse to promote greater understanding around historical, contemporary, and future opportunities and obstacles. “, demonstrating respect for others with different perspectives.” 9-12.Civ.37. Use historical data and evidence related to various actors’ interests and motivations to determine their influence on contemporary issues. 9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted overtime and how they currently shape policy debates. 9-12.Civ.39. Develop strategies for evaluating multiple perspectives about current events, and policy issues. 9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them. 9-12.Civ.41. Apply an effective questioning strategy to evaluate sources intended to inform the public, and consider the effects of choices made by media organizations (including internet social platforms), on elections and social movements. “various” 9-12.Civ.42. Evaluate sources and determine potential bias in the media and how that impacts government decision-making. “. beliefs. values and cultural perspectives” 9-12.Civ.43. Evaluate the effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society. 9-12.Civ.44. Analyze rights and obligations of citizens in the United States.
-------------------------------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

[[Please remember that under the U.S. Constitution, both citizens and non-citizens have certain rights and responsibilities. See Bill of Rights, 14th Amendment and laws applying to “persons”.]

ADD: “Employ human rights principles and concepts to formulate strategies to redress historic inequities and heal their continued effects.”

ADD: “Analyze rights and obligations of citizens when situated within the United States.”

- 9-12.Civ.45. Critique leadership strategies through past and present examples of change-makers.
- 9-12.Civ.46. Plan and demonstrate some ways in which an active citizen can effect change in the community, state, nation, or world.
- 9-12.Civ.47. Evaluate citizens' and institutions' effectiveness in addressing social and political problems at the local, state, Indigenous, national, and/or international government.
- 9-12.Civ.48. Take informed action to improve your community.

“, build a more inclusive and equitable society, advance social justice and promote human rights.”
Please note that this language is drawn directly from the National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, adopted in 2017 by the National Council for the Social Studies. Teacher education programs seeking [national recognition of their social studies program through CAEP are required to use these standards. (https://www.socialstudies.org/standards).]

DRAFT - PRE FINAL COPY

HS Economics

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Econ.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Econ.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	ADD: "Explore differences in expert opinions referenced, including differences in cultural positionality." <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Econ.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Econ.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.Econ.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Econ.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Econ.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Econ.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

ADD: "Explore the concept of "fairness" as it applies to economic analysis and decisionmaking."

High School Economics

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making

- 9-12.Econ.13. Apply understanding of economic concepts and systems to analyze decision-making and the interactions between consumers, business, government, and societies.
- 9-12.Econ.14. Gather and evaluate sources to explain the relationship between economic decisions and environmental consequences.
- 9-12.Econ.15. Use cost-benefit analysis and/or marginal analysis to evaluate an economic issue.
- 9-12.Econ.16. Evaluate how economic principles influence choices and can produce varied outcomes for different individuals or groups
- 9-12.Econ.17. Explain how and why people make choices to improve their economic well-being.
- 9-12.Econ.18. Evaluate the market value of income earned through wages and other activities associated with saving, and investing.
- 9-12.Econ.19. Compare the costs and benefits of saving, using credit, and or making certain types of financial investments.
- 9-12.Econ.20. Evaluate how and why individuals choose to accept risk, reduce risk, or transfer risk to others.

Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models

- 9-12.Econ.21. Analyze the production, distribution, and consumption of goods and services.
- 9-12.Econ.22. Evaluate economic theories for their compatibility with democracy.
- 9-12.Econ.23. Compare the advantages and disadvantages of major economic systems found around the world.
- 9-12.Econ.24. Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.
- 9-12.Econ.25. Use economic data to evaluate the positive and negative aspects of American capitalism in relationship to other economic systems.
- 9-12.Econ.25. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico.
- 9-12.Econ.26. Critique the impact of globalization on New Mexico and its citizens.
- 9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities.

ADD: Explore the causative and consequential economic factors that promote or mitigate inequality in local, national and global communities.”

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.28. Evaluate opportunities for economic diversification that can significantly impact state and local conditions ← "and conditions within neighboring Indigenous nations."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.Econ.29. Explain how buyers and sellers interact to create markets and market structures. 9-12.Econ.30. Evaluate how a variety of factors and conditions in a market determine price and the allocation of scarce goods and resources. 9-12.Econ.31. Evaluate the role played by competition in the market. 9-12.Econ.32. Evaluate the role of financial institutions in a market economy. 9-12.Econ.33. Analyze the role of money in the economy. 9-12.Econ.34. Critique specific government policies/regulations initiated to improve market outcomes and the consequences, both intended and unintended experienced by individuals, business, communities, and states. 9-12.Econ.35. Generate possible explanations for a government role in markets when market inefficiencies exist. 9-12.Econ.36. Evaluate the causes and implications of market failures. 9-12.Econ.37. Explain how governments establish the rules and institutions in which markets operate at the local, state, tribal, national and international levels. 9-12.Econ.38. Use economic indicators and data to analyze the health of the national economy in relation to other countries. 9-12.Econ.39. Evaluate how fiscal and monetary policy choices have economic consequences for different stakeholders in a variety of economic conditions. ← "and affect the overall equity of the system." 9-12.Econ.40. Evaluate foreign and domestic issues related to United States economic growth overtime. 9-12.Econ.41. Explain the effect of advancements in technology and training on economic growth and standards of living.

Economics 9. Global Economy

- 9-12.Econ.42. Explain how current globalization trends and policies affect economic growth, labor, markets, rights of citizens, the environment, and resource and income distribution in different nations.
- 9-12.Econ.43. Explain how economic conditions and policies in one nation increasingly affect economic conditions and policies in other nations.
- 9-12.Econ.44. Evaluate how geography, demographics, industry structure, and the rules of economic institutions influence a nation's economic development ← "and the extent of its economic equity."
- 9-12.Econ.45. Analyze why a country might participate in global trade.
- 9-12.Econ.46. Connect how trade agreements between nations have short and long-term effects.
- 9-12.Econ.47. Construct an argument about how global interdependence impacts individuals, institutions, and or societies based on documented evidence.

DRAFT - PRELIMINARY COPY

HS Geography

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.Geo.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.Geo.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
ADD: "Seek expertise from diverse cultural and historical perspectives when examining geographic claims in areas occupied by different groups."
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.Geo.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses. ● 9-12.Geo.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.Geo.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.Geo.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.Geo.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

High School Geography
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.13. Analyze and evaluate the characteristics and purposes and uses of geographic tools, knowledge, and skills. ● 9-12.Geo.14. Create maps to display and explain the spatial patterns of culture and environment. ● 9-12.Geo.15. Analyze and interpret geographic characteristics of cultures, economies, and political systems. ● 9-12.Geo.16. Interpret geographic representations to evaluate and explain changes over time. ● 9-12.Geo.17. Apply geographic knowledge and geospatial skills to interpret the past and present in order to make informed decisions.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.18. Analyze and explain the reciprocal relationship between physical, geographical locations and the patterns and processes humans create within them. ● 9-12.Geo.19. Explain and evaluate the process of place-making and the development of place-based identity. ● 9-12.Geo.20. Identify, define, and explain the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.Geo.21. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of human movement (migration, immigration, emigration) and settlement patterns at the local, national, and global scale. ● 9-12.Geo.22. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time. ● 9-12.Geo.23. Describe, analyze, and compare how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time. ● 9-12.Geo.24. Analyze and predict how location, place, and region impact the evolution of human perspectives and identities. ● 9-12.Geo.25. Identify, evaluate, and predict how particular historical events and developments shape human processes and systems in a given place/region over time. ● 9-12.Geo.26. Predict future social, political, economic, cultural, spiritual and environmental opportunities, and obstacles associated with movement, population, decision-making, and perspectives in a given place or region.

ADD: "Explore how different historic groups have interpreted and engaged with the geographic features of the same region(s)."

High School Geography (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Geography 13. Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability

- 9-12.Geo.27. Make reasoned ethical judgments about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determine appropriate ways to respond.
- 9-12.Geo.28. Analyze shifting U.S. government environmental policies and regulations in response to changing human environment interactions.
- 9-12.Geo.29. Evaluate the consequences of human-made and natural catastrophes on global trade, politics, and human migration.
- 9-12.Geo.30. Assess the reciprocal relationship between physical environment and culture within local, national, and global scales ← “over time and in the contemporary period.”
- 9-12.Geo.31. Evaluate how economic globalization and the scarcity of resources contribute to conflict and cooperation within and among countries.
- 9-12.Geo.32. Analyze how the forces of cooperation and conflict within and among people, nations, and empires influence the division and control of Earth’s surface and resources.
- 9-12.Geo.33. Assess how social, economic, political, and environmental developments at global, national, regional and/or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS New Mexico History

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.NMH.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.NMH.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.NMH.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.NMH.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.NMH.9. adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.NMH.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.NMH.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.NMH.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

ADD: "Apply cross-cultural awareness in exploring, making decisions, and taking actions in regard to issues arising from the historical experiences of various groups within New Mexico."

Theme 1: Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.13. Connect various disputes that occur as a result of Article X being stricken from the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.14. Determine why it was necessary for the U.S. to purchase the land acquired by the Gadsden Purchase, instead of obtaining it by warfare.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.15. Examine the different perspectives from the peoples of New Mexico, and the United States at the time of annexation. 9-12.NMH.16. Dissect the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and evaluate how the different people of New Mexico were addressed and impacted by the document.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.17. Examine the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.

← ADD: "Study the Protocol of Queretaro and evaluate its effect in securing Mexican acceptance of the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and the consequences of its non-ratification by the U.S. Senate."

← ADD: "Examine differences in the way the Mexican Constitution and the U.S. Constitution defined "Citizen," and the implications of those differences for Indigenous people and persons of African descent."

Theme 2: New Mexico's Territorial Period
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.19. Examine the changes in the Plains of New Mexico as irrigation and cattle ranches expand into the territory. ADD: "Examine the impact of railroad construction and the railroad system on the conflicts between the United States and the Navajo People."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.20. Describe the introduction of the Chinese population into New Mexico. 9-12.NMH.21. Assess the changes of the land and society initiated by the railroad system, along with the immigrant population it brought to the New Mexican territory. 9-12.NMH.22. Explain how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.23. Examine the causes and effects of the Civil War, and the battles that ensued within New Mexico. 9-12.NMH.24. Explain how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico. 9-12.NMH.25. Probe the beginnings of the Native American boarding school system, and the ramifications that it had on Indigenous communities in New Mexico and abroad.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA.

Theme 3: Statehood and Functions of State/Tribal Governments
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.28. Compare and contrast the similarities and differences between the three branches of the federal and state governments.
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.29. Analyze the requirements for statehood. 9-12.NMH.30. Debate whether or not New Mexico's constitution supports bilingualism.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.31. Define sovereignty, and distinguish ways in which the different Native American tribes in New Mexico conduct governmental affairs.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.32. Evaluate efforts from the people of New Mexico to become a state, and analyze outside perspectives to the entrance of New Mexico as a state.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.33. Contrast the rights given to people that live within a territory vs. a state.

ADD: "Explore how 'tribal sovereignty' has been interpreted over time by Indigenous peoples, the United States government and the world community, and how differences in understanding of sovereignty continue today."

Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.34. Discuss the sequence of events that led to the Great Depression and the implementation of New Deal Programs in New Mexico.

"including the efficacy of these programs for different communities within New Mexico."

Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to: [There are positive as well as negative stories here, particularly in regard to the Japanese residents of Gallup, NM and other communities who were not Interned, but who continued to participate in their communities throughout WWII.]
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.35. Summarize the impacts that artists have had on our state, and why so many artists choose to live in New Mexico.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.36. Interpret data/evidence to conduct periodization of key events and contributions by key people to the events that occurred during the early 20th century. ADD: "Explore the history of Japanese internment in New Mexico during WWII, both in regard to Japanese residents of New Mexico and Japanese persons from other states interned in New Mexico."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.37. Analyze the causes and effects of the Dust Bowl in New Mexico, and how it changed or eliminated communities in our state. 9-12.NMH.38. Demonstrate ability to use relevant historical evidence to synthesize information regarding the impact of nuclear weapons on people around the world. "including the effects of nuclear weapons production on diverse peoples within New Mexico."
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.39. Demonstrate historical argumentation by using various resources and perspectives to show the impact of World War II on the people of New Mexico, and the impact that our citizens had on the war "and resident populations"
[Although the Indian Citizenship Act was passed in 1924, tribally affiliated Indigenous people in New Mexico and other states did not enjoy full "citizenship," including voting and attendance of children in state public schools until after litigation brought by returning Indigenous veterans after WWII; yet their contributions to the war effort were considerable.]
Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.40. Summarize how the U.S. and Soviet Union emerge from World War II as superpowers, and articulate the difference between communism and capitalism.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.41. Identify the military bases and weapons testing sites in New Mexico.

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.42. Analyze the pros and cons of New Mexico's role in the production of uranium fueled weapons built during the Cold War ← ", including the impacts on Indigenous and traditional communities and their members."
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.43. Identify the beginnings of the arms race between the Soviet Union and the U.S. 9-12.NMH.44. Uncover what types of activities took place, and what products were produced at Los Alamos National Laboratory and Sandia National Lab during the Cold War and beyond.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.45. Give examples of how New Mexicans played an active role in military service during the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

Theme 6: Civil Rights ← "and Human Rights" [PLEASE!]		[Don't overlook Reies Tijerina's activities at this time.]
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:	"traditional land grant communities and"
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.46. Demonstrate contextualization and interpretation of key events that took place within Native American communities during the Civil Rights Era. 	ADD: "Examine how the global movement for Human Rights, and the United States' role in promoting universal human rights through the United Nations and other regional and global efforts affected the course of the struggle for Civil Rights in the United States."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using 9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.49. Compare organizations engaged in Civil Rights work. 9-12.NMH.50. Demonstrates interpretation of critical changes in New Mexico's segregation laws 	"and laws regarding access to public services."

Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.51. Illustrate the ways in which the movie and technology industries contribute to our state's economy. 9-12.NMH.52. Connect the activities of the federal government in the state of New Mexico during both the Cold War and WWII, to our current economy. 9-12.NMH.53. Identify the main sources of income for tribes. 	"the various Indigenous nations within and adjacent to the state of New Mexico and their members."
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.54. Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry.

Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.55. Give examples of the different types of sites and activities that would make people want to tour aspects of our state.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.56. Analyze how New Mexicans maintain an agricultural industry being that we are one of the driest states in the country ← “including the practices and priorities of Indigenous and traditional agricultural communities in New Mexico.”

Theme 8: Resource Management and Mineral Resources in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.57. Use multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of how water management has changed over the centuries in New Mexico. 9-12.NMH.58. Develop an argument showing the importance of preserving historical sites and New Mexico’s resources.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.NMH.59. Appraise the value of New Mexico’s historical sites to our state’s culture ← “and to the Indigenous and traditional communities of New Mexico.”

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS U.S. History

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.US.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection. ● 9-12.US.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.US.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.US.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data (while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose). ● 9-12.US.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.US.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.US.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

", including experts within communities of color."

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of various groups whose experience of key historical events, their consequences and causality differ from the dominant narratives."

ADD: Explore how different groups interpret the problematic or beneficial nature of the same events, phenomena, occurrences and how different perspectives affect problem identification and proposed solutions."

Theme 1: U.S. Origins and Origin Stories

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.13. Examine the course and consequences of the Columbian Exchange. ● 9-12.US.14. Describe the evolution and short and long-term consequences of racialized labor and caste systems such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America. ● 9-12.US.15. Analyze how various Indigenous nations changed as a result of European settler colonialism. "military incursions and" "in the Americas" ● 9-12.US.16. Examine the involvement of Indigenous nations in the colonial wars and evaluate the consequences for their societies. "Explore" [Do you mean the colonial wars in North America, or are you including colonial wars in Central and South America?]
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.17. Explain the ways that Indigenous nations expressed and transmitted their beliefs and values. "various" ● 9-12.US.18. Compare and contrast the different ways in which Indigenous people have resisted, survived, and adapted to maintain their patterns of community life "and Indigenous national identity" ● 9-12.US.19. Compare and contrast the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism vs. classic colonialism.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.20. Explain the common elements of Indigenous societies. "of diverse Indigenous societies in the Americas." ● 9-12.US.21. Analyze facets of Indigenous social, political, and economic organization. "of the Americas" ● 9-12.US.22. Analyze relationships between Indigenous peoples and Spanish, English, French, and Dutch colonizers. ● 9-12.US.23. Examine the interactions between English colonizers and Indigenous peoples in the 13 Colonies.

[Be sure to explore the meaning of the term "classical colonialism." According to Wikipedia, "Historians often distinguish between various overlapping forms of colonialism, which they classify into four types: settler colonialism, exploitation colonialism, surrogate colonialism, and internal colonialism.", citing Healy, Roisin; Dal Lago, Enrico (2014). The Shadow of Colonialism on Europe's Modern Past. New York: Palgrave Macmillan. p. 126. ISBN 978-1-137-45075-3.]

[This is a well intentioned but culturally questionable performance standard. Given the diversity and complexity of Indigenous societies, from the Mayan to Akaskan, it is essentializing to talk about "common elements of Indigenous societies," other than the fact that they exist where they have been since before contact with settler colonizers.]

Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.24. Determine the importance and utility of rights versus responsibilities. ← “and rights versus privileges.” 9-12.US.25. Determine the characteristics of a revolution and evaluate the American Revolution as compared to the French and Haitian Revolutions. ← “and the various revolutions throughout the Americas in the 19th Century.”
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.26. Investigate the causes and effects of the Revolutionary War on diverse groups of people in the United States. 9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery. 9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans. ← “and women.”
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.30. Describe the Constitutional Convention, the roles of specific individuals, and their conflicts and compromises. 9-12.US.31. Explore the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States.
ADD: “Examine how these key ideals and principles have influenced ideas of the relationship between people and their government across the world.”

Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.32. Examine the short- and long-term impact of settlers, pioneers, frontiersman, and homesteaders on the United States and on sovereign Indigenous nations. ← “and on the other European nations with colonies in the area that became the United States.”

ADD: “Compare and contrast the process of separation of the 13 Colonies from Britain and the process that led to the creation of Canada as a separate nation.”

Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787-1876 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.33. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and short and long term effects of U.S. territorial expansion. ● 9-12.US.34. Examine the ways in which the United States acquired new territories, including purchases, annexation, treaties, and war. ● 9-12.US.35. Explain the importance of the Transportation Revolution of the 19th century. ● 9-12.US.36. Analyze the effects of industrial growth throughout antebellum America. ● 9-12.US.37. Describe the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural South, explain reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyze how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.38. Analyze the convergence of the expansion of colonialism through territorial acquisition and the expansion of chattel slavery in acquired territory. ● 9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants. ● 9-12.US.40. Explore forms of resistance, adaptation and cultural preservation practiced by enslaved and colonized peoples during this period. ● 9-12.US.41. Assess the impact of Federal policy towards Indigenous nations. ← “and individual citizens of Indigenous nations.”

ADD: “Examine responses of different groups and individuals in the United States to the laws upholding chattel slavery and requiring the return of escaped slaves, even when they escaped to non-slave-holding states.”

Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.42. Analyze the persistence of the “Lost Cause of the Confederacy” narrative and its long term effects. ● 9-12.US.43. Evaluate whether the Civil War was a “war to free the slaves,” and how successfully the war contributed to the liberation of enslaved people.
Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.44. Analyze critical policies and events leading to the Civil War and connections among them. ● 9-12.US.45. Explain how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.46. Explore the similarities and differences between reform movements in the United States in the early to mid-19th century. ● 9-12.US.47. Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the Civil War, including women and African Americans.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.48. Analyze major factors that determined the outcome of the Civil War.

"diverse narratives about the meaning of the Civil War, including"

Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.49. Evaluate the long-term consequences of the end of Reconstruction and the rise of Jim Crow on formerly enslaved people and their descendants. 9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.51. Analyze the short- and long-term effects of the end of the Civil War and Reconstruction period.
 ← ADD: "Examine the impact of the end of the Civil War on the settlement of the West, and on the relationship between the United States and the Indigenous nations in the American West."
Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865-1877 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.52. Explore African American economic, political, sociocultural (educational, artistic, literary) responses to emancipation and Reconstruction. 9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.54. Explore the efforts of the federal government and African Americans to forge a new political and social order after emancipation.
 ← "and civil society reformers"

Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.55. Examine immigration policy in the United States over time. ● 9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States. ● 9-12.US.57. Examine contemporary labor struggles and populist movements in the United States and around the world. ● 9-12.US.58. Explore the short- and long-term effects of the Jim Crow era on African Americans in both the North and the South ← “and on working people of all races.”
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.59. Explain the various causes of the Industrial Revolution. ● 9-12.US.60. Make connections among the important consequences of the Industrial Revolution. ● 9-12.US.61. Analyze social, political, and economic reasons groups migrated to and within the United States, including push and pull factors.
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.62. Evaluate the effects of the entry of women into the workforce after the Civil War and analyze women’s political organizations. ● 9-12.US.63. Analyze the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the Civil War and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native Peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women. ← “13th, 14th and 15th Amendments” ● 9-12.US.64. Examine the ways that the Great Migration changed America, exploring the ways that African Americans adapted and resisted.

Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.65. Determine the effectiveness of post colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule, "and the effect of disparities in global economic power on perpetuating the effects of colonial rule."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.66. Analyze the causes and course of the growing role of the United States in world affairs from the Civil War to World War I.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.67. Examine the ways in which art, journalism, literature, and cultural artifacts served as forms of resistance and contributed to the anti-imperialist movement s. 9-12.US.68. Examine the legacy and evolution of turn of the century imperialism, including the short- and long-term effects in Latin America, Asia, and the Pacific. "by the U.S. and European countries"

Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.69. Examine the ethics of the suppression of civil liberties during times of conflict and war, past and present. "and the enduring consequences of such suppression." "and human rights" 9-12.US.70. Analyze the role of the United States in the world and the balance of foreign and domestic priorities. 9-12.US.71. Determine the utility or futility of war.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.72. Distinguish between the long-term causes and triggering events that led the United States into World War I. 9-12.US.73. Explain the course and significance of Woodrow Wilson's wartime diplomacy, including his Fourteen Points, the League of Nations, and the failure of the Versailles Treaty.

ADD: "Analyze how the ideologies of the Progressive Movement impacted Indigenous Peoples in the United States, particularly Indigenous families."

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.74. Evaluate major reform movements and reformers during the Progressive Era. ● 9-12.US.75. Evaluate the inclusivity and exclusivity of Progressive Era reform movements. ● 9-12.US.76. Analyze the campaign for, and the opposition to, women's suffrage in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. ● 9-12.US.77. Analyze the strategies of African Americans to achieve basic civil rights in the early 20th century. ● 9-12.US.78. Examine the role of colonial peoples, women, Indigenous peoples and African Americans during World War I.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.79. Explain what Progressivism meant in the early 20th century through the ideas, actions, and experiences of Progressive leaders ← "and through impacts on immigrants and communities of color." ● 9-12.US.80. Analyze the governmental policies of the Progressive Period, determine which problems they were designed to solve, and assess long and short-term effectiveness. ● 9-12.US.81. Analyze the role and conduct of the United States during the war ← "World War I"

Theme 9: Conflicts and Transitions, 1920–1929
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.82. Explore the ongoing conflict between traditionalism and modernity in American society today, making connections to the movements, ideas and experiences of the past. ● 9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany. ← "the 1920s"
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.84. Assess how new technology in transportation, communication, and finance impacted American society. ← "in this period"
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.85. Explore the arts, entrepreneurship, and philanthropy of the Harlem Renaissance and its connections to the Great Migration. ● 9-12.US.86. Evaluate the passage of the 19th amendment from the perspective of diverse groups in American society including white women, African American women, Native Americans, and Asian Americans ← ", and Mexican Americans." ● 9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.88. Examine the conflict between traditionalism and modernity as manifested in the major political and economic events in the first two decades of the 20th century.

← ADD: "Explore the various causes that led to the Great Depression in the United States."

Theme 10: Great Depression and The New Deal, 1929–1941

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.89. Assess the degree to which New Deal programs have been maintained or dismantled over time.
- 9-12.US.90. Evaluate the impact of New Deal programs and policies on diverse groups of people in America, including African Americans and Indigenous peoples.
- 9-12.US.91. Determine the effectiveness of the United States government in averting and responding to similar economic disasters.

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.92. Describe the multiple causes and consequences of the global depression of the 1930s.
- 9-12.US.93. Assess the impact and legacy of New Deal relief, recovery, and reform programs.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.94. Examine the lives and experiences of Mexicans during the 1930s and the relationship of the United States to Mexico.

← "in the United States"

Theme 11: World War II

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period
- 9-12.US.96. Explore the ethics of and arguments for and against the use of nuclear weapons past and present.

← "leading up to and at the start of World War II."

- 9-12.US.97. Explore the legacy of “othering” in the United States, including boarding schools, internment camps, and detention centers.

ADD: “Explore the differences between the treatment of Japanese Americans and German Americans in the United States during World War II.”

Theme 11: World War II (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 15. Cause and Consequence

- 9-12.US.98. Analyze the events that led to World War II, the major battles of the war and its consequences, and the conferences of Allied leaders following the war.
- 9-12.US.99. Explain the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the Holocaust.
- 9-12.US.100. Explain the reasons for American involvement in World War II and the key actions and events leading up to declarations of war against Japan and Germany.
- 9-12.US.101. Assess the social, political, and economic transformation of the United States during World War II.

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives

- 9-12.US.102. Evaluate the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals.
- 9-12.US.103. Examine the ways in which gender roles changed and stayed the same for women during the war.
- 9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia.

ADD A WHOLE SECTION: “Human Rights Post World War II: Explore the consequences of World War II for international and domestic support for human rights and humanitarian treatment. Evaluate the role of the United States in the creation of the United Nations, the development of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Nuremberg Principles and the 1949 expansion of the Geneva Conventions.”

Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation

- 9-12.US.105. Examine the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America.
- 9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.

“and the economic forces that contributed to the CIA's presence.”

[The role of the United States in the establishment of the United Nations, the adoption of the Nuremberg Principles that guided the trial of the Nazi high command and the expansion of the Geneva Conventions is a powerful and positive aspect of the History of the United States, of OUR history! And, of course, Eleanor Roosevelt chaired the UN committee that drafted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Please do not ignore the American history of human rights and humanitarian law, particularly as they flourished in the period immediately after World War II.]

Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975 (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.107. Examine the factors that contributed to the Cold War. ● 9-12.US.108. Evaluate the policy of containment as a response by the United States to Soviet expansionist policies. ● 9-12.US.109. Analyze how U.S. foreign policy during the Cold War shaped conflicts in Asia and the Americas. ● 9-12.US.110. Analyze the roots of domestic communism and anti-communism in the 1950s, the origins and consequences of, and the resistance to McCarthyism
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.111. Analyze the impact of the Vietnam War on the Vietnamese people and on the United States. ● 9-12.US.112. Explore the impact of the Cold War on indigenous peoples around the world. ● 9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.114. Summarize the diplomatic and military policies on the War in Vietnam of Presidents Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon.

“and the impact of “Red Scare” politics on various social, economic and political movements in the United States.”

“, Cambodian and Laotian”

Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.115. Research and analyze issues related to race relations in the United States since the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. ● 9-12.US.116. Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO. ● 9-12.US.117. Evaluate the influence of 1960s cultural and artistic movements from past to present day.
History 15: Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.

ADD: “Examine how evolving global and domestic understanding of and respect for universal human rights for all affected the development of the Civil Rights Movement in the United States.”

[These sections are somewhat choppy and could be better integrated with each other and with their over-arching themes with minimal editing. These are extremely important areas for students to analyze and form inquiry-based and research-based conclusions regarding.]

Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.119. Analyze the origins, evolution, and goals of the African American Civil Rights Movement and Black Power Movement. 9-12.US.120. Analyze the causes, course, and impact on American politics and society of new social and political movements, including consideration of the role of protest, advocacy organizations, and active citizen participation.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.121. Evaluate accomplishments of the Civil Rights movement and how they served as a model for later feminist, disability, and gender rights movements of the 20th and 21st centuries. 9-12.US.122. Analyze the important policies and events that took place during the presidencies of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon.

ADD: Explore the intersection of the Civil Rights Movement with action within Indigenous communities, and non-Black communities of color."

"and strategies"

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people. 9-12.US.124. Examine the short- and long-term impacts of criminal justice policy implemented during the presidencies of Ronald Reagan and Bill Clinton. 9-12.US.125. Examine the push-pull relationship between progressivism and conservatism in America over time. 9-12.US.126. Evaluate whether the Cold War definitively ended in 1991.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.US.127. Analyze how communist economic policies and U.S.-sponsored resistance to Soviet military and diplomatic initiatives contributed to the fall of the Berlin Wall in 1989 and the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991.

ADD: "Examine the various meanings that different proponents and opponents have given to the terms "Conservatism," "Liberalism," "Progressivism," and other organizing terms and the impact of the use of these definitional categories on the political life of the United States."

[These sections are somewhat choppy and could be better integrated with each other and with their over-arching themes with minimal editing. These are extremely important areas for students to analyze and form inquiry-based and research-based conclusions regarding.]

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008 (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.128. Evaluate the significance of the 1990 American Disability Act "Americans with Disabilities Act". ● 9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality. ● 9-12.US.130. Examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.131. Analyze the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics.

Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future. ● 9-12.US.133. Analyze the current state and health of American democracy and create an action plan to protect American democracy "improve and maintain an inclusive, constitutional democracy in the United States." ● 9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States "attitudes and policies, both positive and negative toward immigrants" over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. ● 9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.

ADD: "Explore the competing claims that surround defense of and challenges to gun rights as interpreted in the United States and in other developed countries."

ADD: "Establish the rules of debate and discussion to facilitate an open, non-threatening, safe discussion of the appropriate relationship between the right to bear arms and other competing rights, particularly in regard to the use of various kinds of public spaces."

"persons of diverse races, genders, sexual orientations and the differently abled."

"to foster equity, advance social justice and promote human rights in the United States for all persons, including members of groups who have frequently experienced discrimination and been treated unfairly," [Refer to Standards 4 and 5 of the NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers (<https://www.socialstudies.org/standards/national-standards-preparation-social-studies-teachers>)]

Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present (Continued)

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to

History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency

- 9-12.US.137. Analyze some of the major technological and social trends and issues of the late 20th and early 21st centuries.
- 9-12.US.138. Evaluate the effectiveness of the federal government's response to international terrorism in the 21st century.
- 9-12.US.139. Examine contemporary civil rights struggles.
- 9-12.US.140. Analyze US government policies to reduce climate disruption.
- 9-12.US.141. Compare and Contrast the response and plan of the US government during the Covid-19 pandemic with the AIDS epidemic and the 1918 influenza.

"and domestic"

"and human"

DRAFT - PREVIEW COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

HS World History

Sample Topics by Time Period	Sample Themes by Time Period
1300–1500: Global Encounters and Exchanges Grow (Topics may include but are not limited to Pueblo, Dine’ (Navajo), Apache, Seminole, Culhua-Mexica (Aztec), Maya, Arawak, Andean Civilization, Mali, Ethiopia, Great Zimbabwe, Swahili Coast, Byzantium, Medieval Scholasticism, European Exploration, Mongolian Empire, Ottoman Empire, Ming Dynasty, Asian Exploration, Trans-Saharan & Indian Ocean Slave Trade Networks, Black Death, Crusades, Divine Right of Kings, Mandate of Heaven, Arabic-Latin Translation)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Interregional system of communication, trade, and cultural exchange ● Rise of the Mongol empire and its consequences for Eurasian peoples, 1200–1350 ● Growth of states, towns, and trade in Sub-Saharan Africa between the 11th and 15th centuries ● Patterns of crisis and recovery in Afro-Eurasia, 1300–1450 ● Expansion of states and civilizations in the Americas, 1000–1500 ● Major global trends from 1000–1500 CE
1450–1770: The First Global Age Emerges (Topics may include but are not limited to Fall of Constantinople, Reconquista, Inquisition, War of the Roses, Columbian Exchange, Ayiti (Taino), Tenochtitlan (Aztec), Cajamarca (Inca), Mestizo, Songhai Empire, African Diaspora, Safavid Empire, Renaissance, Julian v. Gregorian Calendar, Scientific Revolution, Protestant Reformation, Counter Reformation, Absolute Monarchies, Elizabethan Age, Glorious Revolution, Iroquois Confederacy, Enlightenment, Qing Dynasty, Tokugawa Shogunate, etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Transoceanic interlinking of all major regions of the world from 1450–1600 led to global transformations ● European society experienced political, economic, and cultural transformations in an age of global intercommunication, 1450–1750 ● Large territorial empires dominated much of Eurasia between the 16th and 18th centuries ● Economic, political, and cultural interrelations among peoples of Africa, Europe, and the Americas, 1500–1750 ● Transformations in Asian societies in the era of European expansion ● Major global trends from 1450–1770
1750–1923: Revolution, Democratization, and New Empires Spread (Topics may include but are not limited to Industrial Revolutions, American Revolution, French Revolution, Romanticism, Napoleon, Latin American Revolutions, Monroe Doctrine, Mexican Independence, Unification of European Countries (Italy, Germany), Imperialism, Social Darwinism, Berlin Conference, Leopold and the Congo Genocide, Battle of Adwa, Suez Canal Construction, Boer Wars, Australian Frontier Wars, New Zealand Wars, Mughal Empire,	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● Causes and consequences of political revolutions in the late 18th and early 19th centuries ● Causes and consequences of the agricultural and industrial revolutions, 1700–1850 ● Transformation of Eurasian societies in an era of global trade and rising European power, 1750–1870 ● Patterns of nationalism, state-building, and social reform in Europe and the Americas, 1830–1914

Meiji Restoration, Opium Wars, Taiping Rebellion, Boxer Rebellion, Sepoy Rebellion, Russian Revolution, etc.)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Patterns of global change in the era of Western military and economic domination, 1800–1914 • Major global trends from 1750–1923
1900–1980: Conflict & Self-Determination Expand (Topics may include but are not limited to Mexican Revolution, World War I, Armenian Genocide, 1918 Pandemic, Treaty of Versailles, Panama Canal, Global Great Depression, Nationalism, Japanese Empire, World War II, Shoah, Greek Civil War, Rape of Nanking, Chinese Revolution, Pinochet in Chile, Cuban Revolution, Asian Independence Movements, Nonviolent Resistance Movements, Sykes-Picot, Nation of Israel, Middle East Conflicts, Partition of India, U.S. Civil Rights Movement, African Independence Movements, Fall of Saigon, Cambodian Genocide, Tiananmen Square, League of Nations, Cold War)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Causes and global consequences of World War I • Search for peace and stability in the 1920s and 1930s • Causes and global consequences of World War II • Major global trends from 1900 to the end of World War II
1945–Future: Global Interconnections Accelerate (Topics may include but are not limited to Nuclear Age, United Nations, Universal Declaration of Human Rights, NATO, Space Age, Apartheid, Fall of Soviet Union, Globalization, Information Age, Social Media, Nationalism, Global Influence (U.S.A, China, Russia), International Unions (EU, AU, USAN, ACD), Economic Growth of the Global South, War on Drugs, War on Terror, Rwandan Genocide, September 11th, Afghanistan War, Iraq War, Arab Spring, Great Recession, Equity Movements, Climate Change, Indigenous Environmentalism, Green Revolution, Greenbelt Movement, Paris Agreement, Covid-19 Pandemic, WHO, NAFTA/CUSMA, etc)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Post-World War II reconstruction, new international power relations, and colonial empires break-up • Search for community, stability, and peace in an Interdependent world • Major global trends since World War II • Long-term changes and recurring patterns in world history

“The expansion of international humanitarian law in the 20th Century, including the Nuremberg principles, expansion of the Geneva Conventions, and various treaties seeking to limit anti-civilian weapons such as land mines, nuclear weapons, etc.;

“The founding of the United Nations, development and adoption of the UN Charter, and the development of global agencies addressing global security, hunger, refugees, health, environment, human rights and international cooperation;

“The historical, geographical, social and political factors leading to a broader global consensus on fundamental human rights which should be respected by all nations and their citizens.”

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas in world history.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.2. Evaluate the credibility of sources from a range of media (print, internet, audio, visual) by examining origin, author, context, content, and corroborative value. ● 9-12.WH.3. Gather relevant information from credible sources representing a wide range of views and note inconsistencies in the information.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.4. Develop claims and analyze counterclaims about the significance of historical events using evidence that draws directly and substantively from multiple sources. ● 9-12.WH.5. Analyze evidence to detect inconsistencies within the evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.6. Present arguments and explanations that reach a range of audiences using print and oral technologies (e.g., posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, maps) and digital technologies (e.g., Internet, social media, and digital documentary).
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.7. Evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems. ● 9-12.WH.8. Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems. ● 9-12.WH.9. Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts.

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of diverse groups whose experience of key historical events, their consequences and causality differ from dominant narratives."
 ADD: Explore how different groups interpret the problematic or beneficial nature of the same events, phenomena, occurrences and how different perspectives affect problem identification and proposed solutions."

High School World History
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.10. Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems. ● 9-12.WH.11. Apply a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts. ● 9-12.WH.12. Evaluate methods people use to create, change, expand, or oppose systems of power/authority.
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.13. Evaluate the impact of global interconnectedness on international economic stability and growth. ● 9-12.WH.14. Analyze how national and global economic trends and policies impact the state and local economies in New Mexico.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.15. Analyze and explain the reciprocal relationship between physical, geographical locations and the patterns and processes humans create within them.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.16. Identify, evaluate, and explain the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.17. Assess how social, economic, political, and environmental developments at global, national, regional, and/or local levels affect the sustainability of modern and traditional cultures. ADD: Examine the 17 Sustainable Development Goals adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 2015 as goals for building a more sustainable and equitable world; consider their applicability to sustainability, development and equity concerns of Americans, including Indigenous Americans. Give particular attention to the applicability of the Sustainable Development Goals to issues facing New Mexico.”

High School World History (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.18. Identify significant transformative moments in world history, analyze the reasons behind their transformative nature, and explain how they continue to shape contemporary global interactions. ● 9-12.WH.19. Trace political, intellectual, religious, artistic, technological, economic, and social developments in historical periods as well as within individual societies. ● 9-12.WH.20. Identify patterns of continuity and change over time in world history, focusing on patterns both within and between historical eras. ● 9-12.WH.21. Examine how historical events and developments were shaped by unique circumstances of time and place as well as broader historical contexts. ● 9-12.WH.22. Identify individuals, groups, and events in New Mexico's history that have influenced or were influenced by events in world history.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.23. Identify and evaluate multiple causes and effects of historical events within world history. ● 9-12.WH.24. Distinguish between long-term and short-term causes in developing historical interpretations. ● 9-12.WH.25. Identify contemporary global issues that influence or are influenced by New Mexicans.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.26. Analyze and evaluate the values and limitations of primary and secondary sources of information (including digital) with attention to the source, its context, reliability, and usefulness. ● 9-12.WH.27. Effectively use and integrate evidence from a variety of diverse sources in order to evaluate and develop historical claims. ● 9-12.WH.28. Synthesize historical information to create new understandings.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.29. Use a variety of source materials to compare and contrast treatments of the same topic. ● 9-12.WH.30. Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, regional, racial, ethnic, class, and gender. ● 9-12.WH.31. Analyze and evaluate multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups.

ADD: "Trace the history of the development of fundamental principles of human rights in diverse human societies throughout history. Explore concepts of fundamental fairness as they have arisen in traditional and historic societies, and exist across a broad historical, cultural and geographical spectrum, including standards of conduct within various Indigenous societies of the Americas, ancient Middle Eastern and Mediterranean societies (e.g. the Code of Hammurabi, the Torah), India (the Upanishads), the laws of republican Rome, the Analects of Confucius, the Magna Carta, etc."

ADD: "Examine the circumstances surrounding World War II, the Holocaust, the restoration of democratic governments, the ending of colonialism by the West, etc. that contributed to the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights, the Nuremberg Principles created by the Allies for the trial of the Nazi high command, the expansion of the Geneva Conventions, etc. Evaluate how those principles have survived and evolved to the present day."

High School World History (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.32. Use historical thinking skills to evaluate historical and contemporary sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems and identify challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems. ● 9-12.WH.33. Investigate cultural and historical developments within societies with attention to belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology. ● 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression, persistence of stereotypes, reactions, response and resistance of diverse groups to domination by an occupying power, and the short and long-term effects of oppressive and inequitable power relationships."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history. ● 9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups. ● 9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.

DRAFT COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.1. Create compelling questions representing key ideas within the disciplines. ● 9-12.ECI.2. Develop supporting questions that contribute to an inquiry and demonstrate how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.3. Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection ● 9-12.ECI.4. Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.5. Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims. ● 9-12.ECI.6. Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.7. Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources (while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses). ● 9-12.ECI.8. Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequence, examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations given its purpose. ● 9-12.ECI.9. Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies and digital technologies. ● 9-12.ECI.10. Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 9-12.ECI.11. Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place. ● 9-12.ECI.12. Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school contexts.

"while evaluating cultural awareness and bias of "experts" who operate outside the culture of society being studied."

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of various groups whose experience of key global phenomena, their consequences and causality differ from the dominant narratives."

ADD: Explore how different groups interpret the problematic or beneficial nature of the same events, phenomena, occurrences and how different perspectives affect problem identification and proposed solutions."

Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity "and the intersections among identities,"	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior. 9-12.ECI.14. Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities. "the larger or more dominant society regarding these identities." 9-12.ECI.15. Identify and explore how current traditions, rites, and norms of identity groups have or are changing over time. "various identity groups" "changed" 9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. "regard to"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.17. Compare and contrast the various origins (Indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in the United States. ", national, gendered," 9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups. 9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language. "and the impact of hybridity in creating new identities."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 9-12.ECI.20. Examine historical and contemporary cultural, economic, intellectual, political, and social contributions to society by individuals or groups within an identity group. 9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy. "and transformational change." 9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.

EDUCATING FOR AMERICAN DEMOCRACY

A ROADMAP FOR EXCELLENCE IN HISTORY AND CIVICS EDUCATION FOR ALL LEARNERS

The Educating for American Democracy (EAD) initiative provides national guidance that states, local school districts, and all educators can use to transform teaching of civics and history to sustain our constitutional democracy and meet the needs of a diverse 21st-century K–12 student body. The initiative includes a Roadmap to Educating for American Democracy and accompanying documents that give suggested educational strategies and suggested content for history and civics at every grade level—along with strategies for implementation in schools—so that each state, district, or school educator can fit into the needs of their own, unique communities. The EAD initiative is committed to providing instructional strategies and content for all learners to ensure that excellent history and civic learning opportunities are delivered equitably throughout the country.

Why EAD?

Trust in institutions and investment in communities are declining with time. The Civics Deserts report from the National Conference on Citizenship highlighted concerning civic decay. The public's trust in key institutions and leaders such as the media, branches of government, and volunteering declined by over 15% between 2005 and 2015.

Lack of knowledge on the part of youth is a pervasive problem.

Only 24% of 8th graders scored proficient in the 2018 NAEP in Civics exam, the results of which were released April 2020. In 2018, nearly three-fourths of eighth-grade students report low to moderate levels of confidence in their civics-related knowledge and skills.

Lack of foundation for civic friendship and unity threatens our country. According to a January 2021 CBS News poll, 40% of Democrats and over half of Republicans tend to think of the other party as “enemies,” rather than “political opponents”. A majority of Americans identify other Americans as the greatest national threat.

Lack of access to high quality civic education exacerbates national social and economic gaps. According to analysis by Kei Kawashima-Ginsberg at CIRCLE, students from systemically disadvantaged communities, including low-income and Latino/a/x students, scored much lower on NAEP civics exams and reported less exposure to critical civic education products such as simulations, debates, and discussions.

Why EAD and Human Rights Education (HRE)?

HRE reinforces civil society and provides a strong basis for "civic friendship" across ideological differences. The essence of Human Rights theory and practice and the foundation for both content and methodology in Human Rights Education is recognition of the equality and inherent dignity of persons, without references to their differentiating characteristics. While we acknowledge and seek to understand differences of race, ethnicity, religion, gender identification, age, ability/disability, economic circumstances, etc., the fact that such differences exist does not make any of us less worthy or less entitled to the benefits of participation in an inclusive, democratic society.

Human Rights are inherent in all persons. They do not need to be earned and are not granted to us by governments or other social institutions. When “rights” are treated more as “privileges,” the holders of privilege often feel they risk loss of their human value when the value of groups in which they do not participate are strengthened. However, respect for human rights is not a zero-sum game; the realization of human rights benefits everyone in society. The human rights lens, applied to difference, seeks both to build equity among individuals and groups and to ensure that no artificial barriers impair participation by anyone (or any group) in the fruits of our inclusive democratic society. A core purpose of the U.S. Constitution, according to the Preamble, is to “promote the general welfare.” When that “general welfare” is not equitably available to some members of society, threats to fundamental human rights are present and need to be resolved to realize the ideals of our democratic republic and its Constitutional democracy.

What Can Students Do?

- Deepen your engagement with our constitutional democracy by learning how to recognize and exercise human rights and civic responsibilities.
- Engage in student government, in-school activities, community engagement initiatives, and other practices that strengthen understanding of your human rights and civic responsibilities as well as those of your peers, , family, and community members.
- Become aware of the various legal, political, educational, and societal mechanisms for protecting those rights.

*

What Can State Policy-Makers Do?

- Set ambitious goals to ensure that all students have access to opportunities for excellent civic and human rights learning opportunities.
- Adopt social studies standards that align with EAD and incorporate robust standards addressing universal human rights.
- Require EAD and human rights education training as part of educator preparation or licensure requirements.
- Integrate the Civic Learning Plan data within state accountability systems as a component of school performance indicators.

What Can Families Do?

- Introduce your children to civic activities, from community service to voting.
- Discuss human rights issues and factors that may affect how individuals and members of different groups benefit from societal and governmental policies and participate in democratic institutions.
- You can engage and collaborate on civic activities together with the students in your family such as volunteering, tabling, etc.
- Build relationships with the educators of your students and understand your school policies, community members, and other administrators, and families.
- Support passionate yet respectful discussions of current events at the table.
- Explore your own family's heritage and how that has changed over time.
- Critically assess media sources together with your child.

What Can School and District Leaders Do?

- Adopt and purchase curricula that emphasize the inquiry-based, interdisciplinary approach advanced by EAD.
- Recruit and support staff with a commitment to the school and district's civic engagement- mission and human rights values.
- Forge outside partnerships with families, community leaders, museums, libraries, and other organizations that can support high quality, inclusive civic learning
- Engage in self-evaluation of schools within the District, including participation by school administrators, teachers, staff, students, parents, and community members. Amnesty International and Human Rights Educators USA have resources for assessing the fairness, equity, and human rights friendliness of school districts.
 - Engaging in this kind of self-evaluation can strengthen students' sense of empowerment and provides an ideal environment for administrators, educators, and all participants to learn and practice civil friendships across ideological differences. A process grounded in respect for human rights assures that no one's concerns can be dismissed or marginalized.
 - Recognizing the human rights of all does not diminish the rights of any (but may have some effect on privileges that are not equitably shared with all.)

What Can Educators Do?

Actions to Promote Excellence for All

- Join professional learning communities, including PLCs of human rights educators focused on support, sharing resources, and mentoring to promote a continuous cycle of improvement and courageous engagement in dialogues and discussions that result from teaching the EAD Roadmap. Affirm diverse identities and provide inclusive instruction and examples.
- Incorporate human rights into your teaching and learning practices.
- Communicate clear expectations and express support and care for students.
- Provide opportunities for students to deepen and synthesize learning.
- Differentiate and scaffold instruction to ensure accessibility for all learners.

Actions to Promote Growth Mindset & Capacity Building

- Gather formal and informal student feedback on their learning experiences to understand individual needs and strengths.
- Engage in self-reflection to identify and address implicit biases and practices that may interfere with some students' learning processes.
- Learn about activities to cultivate student motivations to improve and develop a growth mindset.
Develop student-centered teaching and learning strategies that model respect for human rights.

Actions to Promote EAD Classrooms & Schools

- Seek to learn more about students and their families and strive to build relationships with and among students and their families.
- Be mindful of how structural, institutional, and other factors may influence the rights and privileges of your students and affect student engagement in school-based opportunities.
- Help students engage productively with disagreements and solve conflicts.
- Support students to process emotionally difficult events using modes of expression such as dialogue, writing, and creating art.

Actions to Help Practice Constitutional Democracy & Agency

- Facilitate opportunities for students to interact with community leaders, initiatives, and issues.
- Provide students the opportunity to practice democratic skills in the classroom and to demonstrate an understanding of their human rights implications.
- Facilitate opportunities for students to take informed action in their communities.

Actions to Help Practice Inclusive, Participatory Constitutional Democracy

- Employ a human rights lens to evaluate the fairness, inclusiveness, and openness of institutions, policies, laws, economic arrangements, educational set-ups, etc.
Utilize content from the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and related human rights documents to evaluate our domestic polity, economy, society.

Actions to Reflect, Assess, and Improve

- Assess students' civic skills and agency.
- Seek out student feedback to facilitate self-reflection and growth in meeting the needs of all students.

What can you do right now?

Attend EAD and HRE webinars and events, including those promoted by HRE USA, share the EAD Roadmap and Pedagogy Companion on social media, submit resources and discuss what implementing EAD at your school would look like.

Start the discussion about why civic and history education are instrumental for our democracy.

[EXTERNAL] Against CRT Curriculum

Carla Jo Duke <carlajoduke@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:34 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I would like to voice my concern regarding the NMPEDs consideration of CRT curriculum. I am a private educator here in NM and have been for 28 years. I have only rarely spoke out against curriculum that NMPED is considering. However, as a concerned citizen of our state, a parent and a grandparent of school aged children, I believe it is my duty to let the state know this curriculum has an agenda that is dangerous to the very fabric and unity of our country.

I am of mixed race, Hispanic and Caucasian, and the mother of several children of ethnic minority including an Asian (Chinese) daughter and an African American son, as well as 4 children who are part Native American. We are anything but racist or white supremacist. We love diversity, and feel all people should be treated with kindness and respect. But also know that as Americans we have the responsibility to raise the next generation to take responsibility for their lives. This CRT curriculum does not promote personal responsibility, nor does it encourage love and respect toward others, our country, or even our selves.

Respectfully, I ask that you consider the damage this curriculum most certainly will do to our culturally diverse community here in New Mexico, and do not allow such nonsense to enter our schools and contaminate the minds of our children. They will follow, let us stand and lead them to a love of our fine country and all of the unique and diverse people who make it what it is.

Passionately,
Carla Duke

[EXTERNAL] STOP CRT NOW!!!

Aletta <livingthedreambb@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:16 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Public Education Department,

First, these meetings should be held in the OPEN, where the taxpaying public who funds the programs can attend and BE HEARD! Enough of this hiding behind a virtual meeting where you are unable to hear and see the public. We deserve to be heard.

Critical Race Theory is a dangerous agenda full of assumption and prejudice. It is the very "SYSTEMIC RACISM" that it claims to eschew. Martin Luther King is famous for imploring that we JUDGE PEOPLE ON THEIR CHARACTER AND NOT THE COLOR OF THEIR SKIN; this rhetoric does the very OPPOSITE. It makes assumptions about people that are untrue and TEACHES our children to be racist and assume things about others that are often false.

This has no place in the education of our children. It is highly detrimental.

Aletta Salganek

[EXTERNAL] STOP CRT

Mik Salganek <mikmivia@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Public Education Department:

CRT has no place in our public schools. It teaches bias to our children and sets them up to be racist. The liability alone should be enough to make you stay away from this dangerous agenda. It is just plain WRONG to teach "assumptions" about others.

As a person with disabilities, I do not approve of making assumptions about people.

MIK SALGANEK

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Carolyn Banks <carolynbanks@usa.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (15 KB)

I write in OPPOSITION to these proposed standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My OPPOSITION comments are attached.

Carolyn Banks

9 Sagebrush Trl
Artesia, New Mexico 88210

I write in OPPOSITION to these proposed standards.

Many of the Revised Standards attempt to engrain leftist political ideas into children's minds. You claim the standards promote civic engagement, and that is promoting activism. The standards promote the ideas that America and its very Constitution are racist. The standards make Black students feel like victims and White students feel guilty.

Multiple tenets of the standards directly highlight these claims (this list is not exhaustive in the least):

"Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today."

"Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures"

"Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement." The standards pit children against each other based on factors they cannot control, such as race, class, sex, sexual orientation, ethnicity, location, or heritage — all factors included in the proposed social studies updates.

The proposed standards contain hidden agendas. These contain blatant not-so-hidden agendas:

One proposed rule has students "examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future." No hidden agenda from the anti-gun lobby, such as Mike Bloomberg's Everytown, of which Morales and Lujan Grisham have both been beneficiaries?

The rules ask students to "cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy." The United States is a constitutional republic — not a "democracy." No hidden agenda?

Students are also to "[e]xplore the movement against police brutality." No hidden agenda from the racist anti-police Black Lives Matter lobby?

Students are to evaluate the "effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society." No hidden agenda from the socialist/communist sect of the Democrat Party?

Students are to analyze "US government policies to reduce climate disruption." No hidden agenda from the "climate change" conspiracists who have heavily donated to Lujan Grisham's and Morales' campaigns?

Students are called to “[a]ssess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.” No hidden agenda against conservatives — the enemy to left-wing extremism?

Critical Race Theory is seeping through in these standards and proposals. Students are told to look at race and other external factors about others that “look like them” — a dog whistle for racism.

Supposedly, these standards hope to have an outcome where students respect and value others, although the means of this supposed outcome is through forcing children into a power struggle over their identity and to sew seeds of doubt in their minds about their supposed inherent racism or privilege. This is Critical Race Theory, plain and simple.

DO NOT adopt these standards.

Carolyn Banks

[EXTERNAL] abolish crt largemarge078@aol.com <largemarge078@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:31 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I oppose CRT as a divisive and for a large part untrue theory. Our children should not be taught to hate their fellow citizens, we should focus on teaching reading, writing, and arithmetic instead of worrying about skin color. This is not a true forward thinking platform for justice - it will take us back decades and should be abolished.

Yosarian Salganek

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies proposed revisions

Daniel Banks <danbanks@usa.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:34 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (15 KB)

I write in OPPOSITION to these proposed standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

M comments in opposition are attached.

Daniel Banks

9 Sagebrush Trl
Artesia, New Mexico 88210

I write in OPPOSITION to these proposed standards.

Many of the Revised Standards attempt to engrain leftist political ideas into children's minds. You claim the standards promote civic engagement, and that is promoting activism. The standards promote the ideas that America and its very Constitution are racist. The standards make Black students feel like victims and White students feel guilty.

Multiple tenets of the standards directly highlight these claims (this list is not exhaustive in the least):

"Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today."

"Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures"

"Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement." The standards pit children against each other based on factors they cannot control, such as race, class, sex, sexual orientation, ethnicity, location, or heritage — all factors included in the proposed social studies updates.

The proposed standards contain hidden agendas. These contain blatant not-so-hidden agendas:

One proposed rule has students "examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future." No hidden agenda from the anti-gun lobby, such as Mike Bloomberg's Everytown, of which Morales and Lujan Grisham have both been beneficiaries?

The rules ask students to "cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy." The United States is a constitutional republic — not a "democracy." No hidden agenda?

Students are also to "[e]xplore the movement against police brutality." No hidden agenda from the racist anti-police Black Lives Matter lobby?

Students are to evaluate the "effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society." No hidden agenda from the socialist/communist sect of the Democrat Party?

Students are to analyze "US government policies to reduce climate disruption." No hidden agenda from the "climate change" conspiracists who have heavily donated to Lujan Grisham's and Morales' campaigns?

Students are called to “[a]ssess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.” No hidden agenda against conservatives — the enemy to left-wing extremism?

Critical Race Theory is seeping through in these standards and proposals. Students are told to look at race and other external factors about others that “look like them” — a dog whistle for racism.

Supposedly, these standards hope to have an outcome where students respect and value others, although the means of this supposed outcome is through forcing children into a power struggle over their identity and to sew seeds of doubt in their minds about their supposed inherent racism or privilege. This is Critical Race Theory, plain and simple.

DO NOT adopt these standards.

Daniel Banks

[EXTERNAL] Comment: response to letter from GOP Representatives michael adams <mladams520@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:34 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: michael adams <mladams520@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr. John Sena

Policy Division

New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED)

300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501 - rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena:

I write to provide accurate information and offer correction to misinformation that was included in both a widely circulated Republican Party of New Mexico flier [FLIER], and a November 9 letter to your office from New Mexico State Representatives: James G. Townsend, Rod Montoya, Rebecca Dow, Randall S. Crowder, Alonzo Baldonado, Ryan T. Lane, Candy Spence Ezzell, Cathryn N. Brown, Martin Zamora, Rachel A. Black, Greg Nibert, Randall T. Pettigrew, Gail Armstrong, James R.J. Strickler, Jack Chatfield, Larry Scott, William R. Rehm, Jane E. Powdrell-Culbert, Stefani Lord, Kelly K. Fajardo, Luis M. Terrazas, Zachary J. Cook, Joshua Hernandez, and Jason C. Harper. [LETTER]

[LETTER] “...proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards fail to teach students what has made America great, but instead has followed the path of various historical revisionists who only want to degrade and slander the greatest country on earth. Our country’s history is not perfect in terms of economic and human rights, but that does not require altering Social Studies curriculum to embrace a highly distorted or biased video that the United States is dominated by white supremacists and racists.”

[LETTER] “... At least 26 states have either adopted or are considering various policies/legislation that would restrict the teaching of CRT... New Mexico should join these other 26 states in rejecting this Marxist inspired theology.”

[FLIER] “Critical Race Theory, which divides students into either ‘oppressor’ or ‘oppressed’ and is highly rooted in Marxist ideology.”

The first quote does the following:

1. Accuses the New Mexico Public Education Department of attempting to degrade and slander the [United States of America]
2. Minimizes many well-known historical abuses as being “not perfect.”
3. Asserts that proposed changes to New Mexico’s Social Studies curriculum are “highly distorted or biased” and the proposed changes teach that the US is “dominated by white supremacists and racists.”

The second quote demonstrates that none of its signatories know what Critical Race Theory is, and they erroneously believe that NMPED is proposing the inclusion of a graduate-level legal framework (Critical Race Theory) in its K-12 curriculum.

The third quote demonstrates the fact that numerous Republican citizens have strong emotions about Critical Race Theory, but also do not know what Critical Race Theory is.

It would be unfair to omit that most people don’t know what Critical Race Theory is, including many with opinions for it. Even those who support Critical Race Theory in K-12 education don’t know what it is. The Republican Party of New Mexico has made a common mistake here.

In 2018 I watched a video where a conservative personality attacked Critical Race Theory. He said it teaches that all white people are evil. I knew nothing about Critical Race Theory, but remember thinking, “He must be making that up. He doesn’t know what Critical Race Theory is.”

Moments later, I chuckled, realizing that I didn’t know what Critical Race Theory is and that his assertions might be correct.

I purchased, “Critical Race Theory, an Introduction (third edition)” by Richard Delgado, the John J. Sparkman Chair of Law at the University of Alabama, and Jean Stefancic, Professor and Clement Research Affiliate at the University of Alabama School of Law.

I learned that Critical Race Theory is not a way of teaching history or a philosophy aimed at achieving broad societal change. Rather, it is a legal framework, developed at Harvard Law School in a classroom setting by use of Socratic questioning about race and US law.

Critical Race Theory has allowed people to legally challenge employers who discriminate against groups not specifically protected from discrimination, like black women. Prior to Critical Race Theory, an employer could discriminate against black women, provided the employer didn't discriminate against black men, or against non-black women. The employer could point to black men as proof of not being racist and non-black women as not having a gender bias, then say, "I just don't like black women, and that isn't legal discrimination."

Obviously, that is prejudice, but legally, Attorneys needed a framework, like Critical Race Theory to extend anti-discrimination protections to people who were targeted for being members of intersecting groups. This means that Intersectionality is a component of Critical Race Theory, and it is integral to the legal framework that protects people who are black and female, or indigenous and disabled, etc.

"So why are so many people upset about Critical Race Theory in our schools?"

Because most people don't know what Critical Race Theory is, and because there has been a concerted effort to gin up emotions and then tell people that their emotional imbalance is due to "Critical Race Theory" as exemplified by Christopher Rufo, who thrust Critical Race Theory into the limelight, and who publicly admitted on Twitter, "We have successfully frozen their brand — "critical race theory"—into the public conversation and are steadily driving up negative perceptions. We will eventually turn it toxic, as we put all of the various cultural insanities under that brand category."

Critical Race Theory is a specialized, and academically advanced legal topic, which isn't taught in K-12 curriculum.

"But why do people publish opinion articles and describe themselves as Critical Race Theorists?"

There exists a broad school of advanced academic thought, evolved from the legal framework, and some academics call themselves Critical Race Theorists.

In this context, Critical Race Theory isn't well defined, and most who oppose racism could claim to be Critical Race Theorists. This is changing, but the topic is still broad and might include academics interested in education, social work, economics, business administration, etc.

As far as I can tell, outside of the legal framework, Critical Race Theory, while confined to advanced academic circles, lacks a specific definition. As such, neither the legal framework nor the undefined school of advanced academic thought are being taught in public schools.

“What about Marxism and Critical Race Theory? Is Critical Race Theory a version of Marxism?”

No, as stated above, Critical Race Theory is a legal framework that was developed at Harvard Law School. I feel pretty certain that Harvard Law School did not develop or rebrand Marxism.

“Well the New Mexico Republican Party insists that Marxism is being pushed in our K-12 public schools, that seems really scary, is it true?”

Generally, no! But to be honest, a solid “no” is probably not accurate, because Karl Marx's writings have influenced so much, including modern notions around aesthetics, ethics, ontology, epistemology, theoretical psychology, and the philosophy of science, just to name a few.

...But the Republican Party of New Mexico isn't worried about those things, rather they seem to suggest that students are being taught to create a Communist society. This seems like a revival of 1950s McCarthyism where the United States Republican Senator Joseph McCarthy led the United States populace through eight years of histrionic terror over “communist subversion.”

In the end, McCarthy was censured by his Senate colleagues, and his name is infamously is the root of the word “McCarthyism,” which generally means reckless, and unsubstantiated accusations.

Today the histrionics are around “socialists”, and around “Marxism in the schools.” Similar to 1950s McCarthyism, these modern hysterical entreaties are also unsubstantiated, as evidenced in the [LETTER] page 4, where “Critical Race Theory” (scary Marxism) can be detected by the “not-so-subtle inclusion of various words and phrases...”

This portion of the [LETTER] made me chuckle, it reminded me of a musical I performed in as a high school student, “The Music Man.”

In short, a grifter, while trying to scam a small town, says of the town’s children, “have you noticed certain words creeping into their conversation? Words like, ‘swell’, and ‘so is your old man’, well if so, my friends, you’ve got trouble!” He worked the community into a state of hysteria, where they almost turned on the mayor, for allowing a pool table in the billiard hall. A pool table which would certainly result in the unraveling of society, and destruction of the American Dream.

The [LETTER] contains numerous other examples of unsubstantiated hysteria-inducing allegations.

For example, comparing ANTIFA, characterized by the FBI director as “a movement or an ideology [not an organization]” or the weather underground, a truly violent extremist group of fewer than 10 people, to the KKK an infamous domestic terrorist group, which in the early 20th century boasted as many as four to five million members in the USA. The [LETTER] also sought to compare BLM to the KKK, despite the fact that more than 95% of BLM protests were peaceful, and its aim is to end the unequal treatment of Black people, while the KKK’s aim was always to perpetuate unequal treatment of Black people, Indigenous people, Latin American people, Catholics, Jews, etc.

I struggle with why the Republican Party of New Mexico is concerned with students exploring the history and terror of the KKK. I feel that the history of the KKK and its decline from several million members to fewer than ten thousand, today is something to be proud of, as a country.

Sincerely,
Michael Adams, Los Alamos

[EXTERNAL] Our family in full support of updating K-12 social studies curriculum

Karen Bentrup <karenbentrup@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 5:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To NM Public Education Department,

NM's social studies standards have not been updated since 2001 AND they must be upgraded to meet the settlement agreement of Yazzie/Martinez v. State of New Mexico. In addition, excellent curriculum like the 1619 Project and many more are filling in the omissions in our education for all ages. Especially in NM with it's at least 3 waves of colonial assaults on the indigenous peoples of this land - Spanish, Mexican&Spanish, and Anglos later. It only serves the lies of white supremacy when the superficial, watered-down history and current experiences of people in this land called the U.S. is taught to our children.

Be bold, be real and prepare ALL our children with the full history of this land, it's many nations and the U.S.

Thank you, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd DeWald and Family
Albuquerque NM 87122

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies NM Rules

Andra Stradling <andrastradling@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) recently published its draft social studies standards for teachers, which are chock-full of racist Critical Race Theory (CRT), anti-Hispanic hate, the "LGBTQI+" agenda, among other frightening curricula.

Michelle Lujan Grisham's NMPED claims the current social studies standards "do not address the increasingly diverse perspectives and histories of the peoples of New Mexico." The rules want students to demonstrate "respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me."

The proposed rules weave in socialism, racism toward non-minority groups, extreme environmentalism, and globalism. These benchmarks have students "develop pride in his/her/their identity, history, culture, region by incorporating a community based approach while preparing students to be a part of a global environment."

Students are to "[a]ssess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement," writes one of the proposed rules, a key tenet of the racist Critical Race Theory. The rules ask students to assess this and to "Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities."

CRT is blatant in the rules, especially where the students are to learn how America is supposedly racist in its very framework. Students are to "[d]escribe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today."

The standards include alarming new benchmarks, specifically targeting Spanish settlers in the United States, writing regarding historical thinking that students should "Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards."

The proposed draft notes that it wants to "Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures" Regarding the territorial period of New Mexico, the rules aim to "Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period."

Also, students are to use "evidence from primary and secondary sources to compare and contrast the impacts of European colonization on Indigenous populations."

The proposed curriculum appears to attempt to demonize conservatives, having students "Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people."

Also apparently demonized in the new curriculum are guns and gun owners. The rule states that students are to "Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future."

Included in the proposed rule is a move to have students examine "anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present."

Action steps urged for students to take through the new social studies curriculum include the following:

Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.

Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability

The "civics" section of these rules includes benchmarks for students to "cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy." The United States is a constitutional republic, not a "democracy."

The Constitution is demonized for what groups are allegedly left out of it and students are to "determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time."

Students are also to "Explore the movement against police brutality." Also, they are to evaluate the "effects of diverse ideologies and the process of political socialization on oneself and society."

Regarding the environment, among many other factors, students are to analyze "US government policies to reduce climate disruption."

As well, students must evaluate the economic framework of America, which the curriculum sheds in a bad light for its capitalist structure. They are to "[c]ritique inequalities that exist in economic systems." while using "economic data to evaluate the positive and negative aspects of American capitalism in relationship to other economic systems."

These policies are full of new racist, anti-capitalist, anti-police, anti-gun, anti-conservative, anti-Hispanic, and anti-American sentiments while only mentioning the Constitution to claim it is a racist document full of "inequities."

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Honorina Briones <honobri17@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:17 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

No; do not update Social Studies Standards.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Comment on proposed changes to Social Studies Standards 6.29.11

Nancy Spivey <spiveyslp@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:23 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To New Mexico Public Education Department,

This is NOT the time to update New Mexico's Social Studies Standards. Please leave the current standards in place at this time.

Having reviewed the Social Studies standards that are currently in place that address Civics, History, Geography, and Economics as compared to the Proposed Integrated standards that add "Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity" as well as "Inquiry", I am respectfully recommending that the Social Studies Standards SHOULD NOT BE UPDATED at this time.

NM students need to learn the facts, good and bad, about our World, US and NM History. The current NM Social Studies standards that address Civics, History, Geography and Economics provide well rounded factual lessons. New Mexico needs to continue to teach with Dr. King's dream as a foundation, that our children "will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character. "

Before standards are changed, the local school boards and the public need to see sample lessons and samples of curriculum that address the new "Integrated Standards" 6.29.11 without teaching or instilling divisiveness.

NM students SHOULD NOT be required, as indicated in the "Proposed Integrated" 6.29.11 Social Studies standards to:

"describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today" discuss "diversity and identity"

"evaluating how society's responses to different social identities lead to access or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions..."

"demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures"

"...evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups"

Please DO NOT update NM Social Studies Standards.

Nancy Spivey

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Comments: "New Mexico Social Studies Standards, Draft — Pre Rule Copy (122 pages):"

Michael Campbell <camp.pecos@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:24 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 2 attachments (546 KB)

Written Comments to PED.pdf; NMPED Slide Attachments.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Could I again ask someone at PED to acknowledge its receipt on my submittal (below) and confirm that I have been placed on the Speaker's list for a 3 minute presentation? Thanks.

Michael Campbell
camp.pecos@gmail.com

Begin forwarded message:

From: Michael Campbell <camp.pecos@gmail.com>

Subject: Comments: "New Mexico Social Studies Standards, Draft — Pre Rule Copy[122 pages]:"

Date: November 8, 2021 at 1:08:06 PM MST

To: John Sena <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>

Dear Mr. Sena:

I tender the following documents, to be added to the public record, as comments regarding: "New Mexico Social Studies Standards, Draft — Pre Rule Copy (122 pages):"

1. A 29-page letter, including endnotes, dated November 8, 2021 and signed by me, and;
2. An attached PowerPoint, Slide Nos. 1-17.

Could I ask that you or someone at the Department acknowledge receipt (by a short return e-mail) of these documents. Thank you.

Michael Campbell
camp.pecos@gmail.com

November 8, 2021

VIA E-MAIL

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gasper Ave, Room 121
Santa Fe, N.M. 87501
rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Re: Written Public Comments:
New Mexico Social Studies Standards
Draft – Pre Rule Copy (pp. 1-122)

Dear Mr. Sena

My background is noted.¹

I ask that you make these comments part of the public record in this matter. I have reviewed the “New Mexico Social Studies Standards, Draft – Pre Rule Copy (pp. 1-122)(the “Proposed New Standards”) as well as documents surrounding those standards, found on the PED website, and elsewhere. I offer a Summary of my Comments, followed by General Comments, and then Specific Comments on the Proposed New Standards by grade, beginning with the proposed standards for New Mexico Kindergarten children.

SUMMARY

By sponsoring the Proposed New Standards, the New Mexico Public Education Department (“PED”) introduces major tenants of Critical Race Theory (“CRT”) to New Mexico public school classrooms, beginning in Kindergarten and continuing with increasing intensity through Grade 12.

CRT is an ideology premised on division and fear that looks at American society with the conviction that racism is at the core of American law and institutions. The doctrine posits that there are only two types of people in America: oppressors and oppressed. It is sourced in classic Marxist theory about a struggle between capitalists and the working class. CRT theory dictates that to eliminate racism American society and institutions must first be destroyed, and then be rebuilt as directed by its proponents.

As proposed by PED, these CRT “standards” indoctrinate New Mexico children, beginning at 5 YOs in Kindergarten, by placing them in respective racial groups – presently defined by PED to include “[i]ndigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizano, African American” and, presumably, white.² CRT proponents euphemistically call these racial distinctions “identity groups.” Children are placed and kept in these “identity groups” beginning in Kindergarten with seemingly innocuous learning standards:

“K22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.

“K23 Describe ways in which they are similar and different from other people who share their identities, and people who do not.”

See, Proposed New Standards, Kindergarten at p. 16 (emphasis added). But PED intensifies CRT indoctrination as New Mexico children advance in age and grade. By the time New Mexico children reach 9th Grade, PED drops all pretense and out-right announces its demand that New Mexico public school students adopt CRT theory:

“9-12.ECI.14 Identify and analyze cultural, differently abled, ethnic, gender, national, political, racial, and religious identities and related perceptions and behaviors by society of these identities.

“9-12.ECI.16 Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.”

See, Proposed New Standards 9-12 at p. 122 (emphasis added). This is pure, unadulterated CRT-speak.

Any rational assessment would conclude that PED’s Proposed New Standards are infested with CRT. These standards are divisive, anti-American, anti-free enterprise, and destructive of the tri-cultural community at the center of New Mexico’s identity. There could not be a more socially-divisive educational approach than what the PED seeks to implement with its Proposed New Standards.

These Proposed New Standards should be abandoned or amended substantially. Any further PED meetings on these Standards should be noticed and open to the public and parents, which has not occurred previously.

GENERAL COMMENTS

These are comments on the general tone, tenor and content of the Proposed New Standards, the faulty, exclusionary procedure by which these standards have been drafted to date, and the prospect these standards may be adopted and implemented without appropriate public or parental disclosure or input.

1. With these Proposed New Standards, Critical Race Theory (“CRT”) Comes to New Mexico. Proponents of these Proposed New Standards will take one of two tracks to support their adoption. Some will argue that these standards do not incorporate CRT. That argument is demonstrably false. Facts demonstrate that language in these standards comes straight from CRT ideology and literature. Other proponents will argue that while these standards do incorporate CRT, it’s OK to teach CRT to New Mexico children, beginning in Kindergarten. That argument is also false.

2. What is CRT? We can’t see CRT unless we know what we are looking for. What is CRT?

CRT is an intellectual approach to looking at US society with a conviction that racism is at the core of [American] laws and institutions.³ It is an academic discipline built on the framework of Marxism.⁴ Relegated for many years to universities and obscure academic journals, over the past decade it has increasingly become the default ideology in public institutions.⁵

There are a series of euphemisms deployed by supporters of CRT to describe the doctrine, including “equity,” “social justice,” “diversity and inclusion,” “identity groups,” and “culturally responsive teaching.”⁶ CRT theorists, realizing a label of “neo-Marxism” would be a hard sell, cloak the program in terms of “equity.” But the object of CRT is to divide people into their respective racial “identity groups” and then let them fight it out as to who is more “oppressed.”

Marxist-based CRT embedded in these New Proposed Standards is culturally divisive, detrimental and destructive of the tri-cultural community at the center of New Mexico’s identity. These standards must be abandoned.

3. CRT is embedded in the Proposed New Standards by means of “Guiding Principles.”

It takes little effort to recognize the CRT-speak embedded in the Proposed New Standards. In its Introduction to the Proposed New Standards, PED announces “[t]hese standards were developed with the following guiding principles in mind:”

“Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo political impact, social justice, equity and diversity through content standards designed to teach these topics in developmentally appropriate ways.”

See, Proposed New Standards at p. 9. This is nothing but CRT-Speak. Why must the PED “guiding principles” be so uniformly negative? Are there perhaps other “major historical themes” – positive themes -- that might guide educational instruction, such as “America fought the Civil War to end slavery,” “America is a land of opportunity,” “rising living standards,” “eradication of Jim Crow laws,” “integration replacing segregation?” But optimism and patriotism have no place in CRT theory, which is grounded in division and disunity. In CRT-speak, some people are “oppressors” (usually identified as white, Christian, heterosexual males) and all other people are “oppressed.” Another of the PED’s “guiding principles” -- used to frame these Proposed New Standards -- is:

“Ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizano, African American and other cultural perspectives.”

See, Proposed New Standards, at p. 9. Hopefully, at some point, PED will explain to the public/parents the educational relevance of teaching differences among “Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, and Genizaro.” Why does PED propose to teach these racial distinctions to New Mexico students? How exactly are teachers supposed to teach these distinctions to students? And what are students supposed to do once they acquire this “knowledge?” Another of the PED’s “guiding principles:”

“Identifying tools to share authentic stories including the study of the relationship between power and oppression.”

Id. This is nothing but Marxist indoctrination.

The PED’s “Guiding Principles” undergird the Proposed New Standards beginning in Kindergarten and continuing through 12th Grade, See, Specific Comments, infra. The Standards should not be adopted.

4. The PED’s radical “Guiding Principles” were not drafted by the 64 New Mexico Educators. They were drafted by PED and imposed on the educators by fiat.

The PED, in public press reports, suggests the Proposed New Standards were the work of 64 dedicated New Mexico Educators.⁷ That is not fully truthful. Documents obtained through the New Mexico Inspection of Public Records Act appear to confirm that the radical “Guiding Principles” undergirding the Proposed New Standards were drafted solely by the PED and imposed on the educators with no room for debate.⁸

One plaintive participant reacted to the PED-imposed “Guiding Principles” with a lament probably held by many such educators:

“After looking at many of these concerns my number 1 concern is how much are we really looking out for the children. Many concerns about culture, sexuality, and diversity, but those are personal issues. Kids are the ones being taught so are they being [thought of] when we are writing the standards.”

See, PED document produced in response to IPRA request: “Reflection 4-13-21” (emphasis added).

5. The Proposed New Proposed Standards are sourced in CRT literature.

Where does this CRT-based language in New Mexico’s Proposed New Standards come from? Did the “64 New Mexico educators” who allegedly drafted these standards come up with these standards on their own?

No they didn’t. A review of the source materials used by the drafters of these standards confirms that the most controversial of these standards are grafted directly from reliable CRT sources.⁹ One of its sources is:

(a) “Social Justice Standards,” authored by the Southern Poverty Law Center (“SPLC”). The teaching principles of the SPLC are “divided into four domains: identity, diversity, justice, and action,”¹⁰ which is CRT-speak. The PED’s adoption of the Social Justice Standards is exemplified by comparing the following standards for Kindergarten students:

Social Justice Standard

I can describe some ways that I am similar to and different from people who share my identities and those who have other identities. DLK-2.7

PED’s Proposed New Standard

Describe ways in which I am similar and different from other people who share my identity, and people who do not. K.23

(emphasis added). PED has simply lifted standards from this CRT-favored source.

(b) A second source utilized by the PED is “Teaching Hard History (K-5),” also authored by the SPLC.¹¹ These are simply the same SPLC-authored “Social Justice Standards,” on steroids.

(c) A third source listed by the PED is “NCSS,” which is shorthand for the National Association of Social Studies. One can find all one needs to know about this organization by examining a speech the head of this group, Tina Lane Heafner, gave to the organization in 2018 titled “Agency, Advocacy, Activism for Social Studies.”¹² Ms. Heafner states:

“Social studies, more than any other subject area, has the capacity to reveal structural racism, inequality and exclusion that endures in U.S. society and is deeply rooted in our nation’s history and perpetuated through policies, practices, attitudes and cultural messages.

This is textbook CRT-messaging. It is embedded in the Proposed New Standards for New Mexico public school students.

There can be no credible debate that the Proposed New Standards are embedded with CRT.

6. There has been little, if any, public/parental participation in the formulation, discussion and drafting of the Proposed New Standards.

The PED website confirms that there has been little, if any, public or parental participation in formulation, discussion or drafting of the Proposed New Standards.¹³

7. This November 12, 2021 hearing may be the one and only opportunity for public/parental comment on the Proposed New Standards.

The PED website confirms that this November 12, 2021 hearing will be the one and only opportunity for public/parental input into these Proposed New Standards. The 64 New Mexico educators will “implement” these standards via teacher training and compilation of materials in the Spring of 2022, with full implementation contemplated by the 2023-2024 school year.¹⁴

8. The Proposed New Standards will be mandatory. Local School Boards cannot modify or opt-out of the standards.

The PED website states that the “[Proposed New Standards], once the Rule approval process has taken place . . . will be codified . . . and will continue to be mandated for students in grade k-12.”¹⁵ Local School Boards will have no authority to modify or opt-out of these standards.¹⁶

9. The “warts” or “evils” of New Mexico and American history should be taught in New Mexico public schools, but only at an appropriate time and in an appropriate manner.

I don’t criticize these Proposed New Standards thinking that students should not be educated on the “warts” or “evils” of the New Mexico and the American experience. They must be educated on that history – whether early practices of indigenous people, conflict among indigenous people, conflict between indigenous people and Spanish explorers, conflict among indigenous people, Spanish descendants, and white pioneers, slavery, Jim Crow laws in the South, woman’s suffrage, etc., etc., etc. But shouldn’t we be very careful and very sensitive about when we teach these subjects and how we teach them lest we exacerbate the tensions and conflict readily apparent in American society today. These Proposed New Standards fail on these criteria; they are neither careful nor sensitive about when and how we teach these subjects to New Mexico’s children. I fear that the adoption and implementation of these Proposed New Standards will worsen our already fragile societal cohesion.

SPECIFIC COMMENTS

I offer these more specific comments directed to the New Proposed Standards, by age and grade. I've reviewed the Proposed New Standards in detail. I've also reviewed the standards existing now, before these proposed revisions (the "Existing Standards").¹⁷

I've made detailed comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards. These are my specific comments.

1. Why is it either necessary or appropriate to teach "social studies" to 5-10 year old children in grades K-5, when the great majority of these students can't read at grade level?

Both the Existing Standards and the Proposed New Standards pose social studies "standards" for 5-10 year old children in grades K-5. The question should be asked . . . WHY? Why is it necessary or productive to attempt to teach these young children "social studies" -- particularly the controversial "social studies" posted by the Proposed New Standards (infra) -- when the vast majority of these children cannot read at grade level?

The latest achievement data posted on the PED website is for 2019.¹⁸ A spreadsheet at that site¹⁹ shows the dismal numbers for reading proficiencies by grade in all New Mexico public schools. For all New Mexico students/all schools, 63% of kindergarten children cannot read at grade level; for first grade, 66% are not proficient; for second grade 57%; for third grade 70%; for fourth grade 70%, and, fifth grade 67%. Math proficiencies at these grade levels are even worse. And this data was before the educational disruptions caused by the pandemic. Proficiencies are undoubtedly worse today.

It appears some educators agree with the proposition that at these younger ages in these early grades, a social studies curriculum should defer to (and be incorporated into) the reading curriculum. Common Core Standards, which I understand were adopted by the PED, state:

"The [Social Studies] standards below begin at Grade 6; standards for K-5 reading in history/social studies, science and technical subjects are integrated into the K-5 Reading standards."²⁰

(emphasis added). Doesn't it make sense to at least discuss whether the educational populace (students, parents, teachers and society in general) is better served by concentrating educational resources on basic subjects like reading and math in these early years?

2. The Proposed New Standards posit two completely novel “strands” of social studies: (v) “inquiry” and (vi) “ethnic, cultural and identity studies.”

In its Introduction to the Proposed New Standards, PED identifies four traditional “strands” of social studies: (i) civics and government, (ii) economics, (iii) geography, and (iv) history.²¹ These strands are also identified in the Existing Standards.²²

But the PED has inserted two new, completely novel “strands” in its Proposed New Standards: (v) “inquiry,” and (vi) “ethnic, cultural and identity studies.”²³ PED offers no justification for adding these new “strands” and it offers no “source” for these additions. It’s unlikely the 64 New Mexico Educators drafted these new “strands” on their own. What is the source of these two new social studies “strands?”

3. Grade-Specific Comments

What follows are specific comments, by age and grade-level, on the Proposed New Standards.

Because it is important that decision-makers understand that PED seeks to embed CRT theory into the very earliest public education grades, beginning with Kindergarten, I have made a detailed side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards for Kindergarten through Grade 3. The standards will apply to New Mexico children ages 5-8.

K. Kindergarten (5 YO)

I’ve attached to this letter as Slides 1-3, a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards, for Kindergarten students (5 YO). That comparison yields the following conclusions:

(i) PED has eliminated Existing Standards for teaching “patriotic activities.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for Kindergarten students as follow:

“KIII-B Recognize patriotic activities including the Pledge of Allegiance, the Star Spangled Banner, salutes to New Mexico, and the New Mexico State Songs.”

See, Slide 3 (attached). The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(ii) PED has eliminated Existing Standards for teaching “fairness.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for Kindergarten students as follow:

“KIII-C Describe and provide examples of fairness.”

Slide 3. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(iii) PED has eliminated Existing Standards for teaching “good citizenship,” including “taking turns” and “sharing.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for Kindergarten students as follows:

“KIII-D Describe what is meant by citizenship. Explain what is meant by “good citizenship,” to include: (i) taking turns and sharing, and (ii) taking responsibility for your own actions.”

Slide 3. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(iv) PED has eliminated Existing Standards for teaching “the importance of jobs.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for Kindergarten students as follows:

“KIV-B Understand the importance of jobs.

Slide 3. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(v) PED introduces racial distinctions (called “Group Identity”) to 5 YO Kindergarten children.

The Proposed New Standards introduce the concept of racial distinctions (called “Group Identity”) to 5 YO children at the Kindergarten level:

“K22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.

“K23 Describe ways in which they are similar and different from other people who share their identities, and people who do not.

Slide 3 (emphasis added). PED should explain why it's necessary or appropriate to teach New Mexico's 5 YO Kindergarten students about racial "group identities." Are the group identities to be taught those identities specified in the PED's introductory "Guiding Principles:" "Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizano, African American and other cultural perspectives?" Really? In Kindergarten?

(vi) PED's Proposed New Standards seek to teach "compelling questions" to 5 YO Kindergarten children.

The Proposed New Standards, under the new social studies "strand" of "Inquiry," propose to teach 5 YO Kindergarten children something called "compelling questions," whatever that might be:

"K1 Recognize a compelling question.

"K2 Identify the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.

"K3 Construct responses to compelling questions using examples."

Slide 1. I first thought this Proposed New Standard was a typographical error. How and why does PED propose to teach "compelling questions" to 5 YO children? What exactly is a "compelling question" suitable to be taught to a 5 YO child? Who decides that? What exactly is the reason or purpose in teaching a 5 YO child "the relationship between compelling and supporting questions?" Perhaps PED can explain what its objectives are here.

(vii) PED seeks to make 5 YO Kindergarten children "student activists."

The Proposed New Standards require that we teach 5 YO Kindergarten children to be "student activists;"

"K4 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional and/or global problems."

Slide 1 (emphasis added). Is it appropriate to teach 5 YO Kindergarten children to "address . . . problems?" Is it the collective mentality of the educational establishment in New Mexico that 5 YO Kindergarten students should be taught to "address . . . global problems?"

(viii) PED seeks to make 5 YO Kindergarten children "student activists," contd.

The Proposed New Standards require that we teach 5 YO Kindergarten children to:

“K5 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.”

Slide 1 (emphasis added). Again, what exactly are we doing teaching 5 YO New Mexico Kindergarten children to “act on civic problems in their classrooms?” 5 YO children do not know or comprehend what “civic problems” are . . . unless their teachers tell them what they are. And is that what we want to happen? Don’t we want 5 YO children to grow in these years happy and inquisitive? Won’t their appreciation of “problems” come soon enough?

FG. FIRST GRADE – 6 YO

I’ve attached to this letter as Slides 4-7, a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards, for 6 YO First Grade students. That comparison yields the following conclusions:

(i) PED re-enforces teaching racial distinctions (called “Group Identity”) to 6 YO First Graders.

The Proposed New Standards continue the teaching of racial distinctions (called “Group Identity”) to 6 YO children at the First Grade level:

“1.23 Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways.

“1.24 Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.”

Slide 7 (emphasis added).

(ii) PED continues its effort to make now 6 YO First Graders “student activists.”

The Proposed New Standards continue the goal to make now 6 YO First Graders into “student activists:”

“1.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional and/or global problems.”

Slide 4 (emphasis added).

(iii) PED continues its effort to make now 6 YO First Graders “student activists,” contd.

The Proposed New Standards require that we teach 6 YO First Grade children to:

“1.6 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.”

Slide 4 (emphasis added). What exactly is PED’s objective with these “standards?”

(iv) PED has eliminated Existing Standards for teaching “US historical events,” like MLK day, Memorial Day, etc.

The Existing Standards contain a standard for 6 YO First Grade children as follows:

“1I-B Identify the significance of US historical events and symbols (e.g. MLK Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, US Flag, bald eagle).

Slide 4. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(v) PED has eliminated Existing Standards teaching “fairness, loyalty, patriotism.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for 6 YO First Grade children as follows:

“1III-D Identify examples of honesty, courage, fairness, loyalty, patriotism, and other character traits seen in American history.”

Slide 6. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(vi) PED has eliminated an Existing Standard teaching “good citizenship” and “fair play” and “being trustworthy.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for 6 YO First Grade children as follows:

“1III-D Explain and apply “good citizenship” traits within the school and community using the elements of fair play, good sportsmanship, the idea of treating others the way you want to be treated, and being trustworthy.”

Slide 6. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(vii) PED has eliminated an Existing Standard teaching the “value of work.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard for 6 YO First Grade children as follows:

“1IV-B Understand the value of work.”

Slide 7. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(viii) The Existing Standards focus on “commonality” among First Graders; the Proposed New Standards focus on “differences.”

The Existing Standards contain a standard based on “commonality” among First Graders; the Proposed New Standards focus on “differences” among them.

Existing Standard	PED’s Proposed New Standards
1I-A Identify common attributes of people living in New Mexico today.	1.12 Examine and identify cultural differences within a community. 1.23 Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways .

Slides 4, 5 and 7 (emphasis added). Perhaps PED could explain why, in teaching New Mexico’s 6 YO First Graders, it thinks it best to focus on differences among children, rather than commonalities among them.

(ix) PED Proposed New Standards seek to teach “compelling questions” to 6 YO First Graders.

The Proposed New Standards, under the new social studies “strand” of “Inquiry,” increase teaching emphasis on “compelling questions,” now to 6 YO First Graders:

“1.1 Explain why a compelling question is important;

“1.2 Generate a supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.

“1.3 Determine if a source is primary or secondary and determine whether it is mostly fact or opinion.

1.4 Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.

Slide 4. Again, perhaps PED can explain what its objectives are here.

SG. SECOND GRADE – 7 YO

I've attached to this letter as Slides 8-12, a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards, for 7 YO Second Grade students. That comparison yields the following conclusions:

(i) For 7 YO Second Grade children, PED continues its demand for teaching “diversity” rather than “commonality:”

The Proposed New Standards mandate teaching New Mexico 7 YOs “diversity” on a global scale:

“2.13 Compare diverse world communities in terms of members, customs and traditions to the local community.

“2.15 Identify and compare the diverse North American cultural groups of the past and today.”

Slide 10 (emphasis added). And in a Proposed New Standard that defies comprehension, the PED insists on teaching 7 YO New Mexico children to:

“2.16 Evaluate the effects of people, goods and ideas that diffused from one world community into other world communities and the effects of the people, goods and ideas on these communities.”

Id. (emphasis added). What? For 7 YO children? One can only imagine the teacher training and classroom materials necessary to put this “standard” into effect.

(ii) For some unexplained reason, PED continues to insist that 7 YO Second Grade children be taught “compelling questions.”

The Proposed New Standards continue to insist that 7 YO New Mexico children be taught about “compelling” questions, whatever that might mean:

“2.1 Explain why a compelling question is important.

“2.2 Generate supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.

“2.3 Determine if a source is primary or secondary and determine whether it is mostly fact or opinion.

“2.4 Construct responses to compelling questions using examples, and relevant details.”

Slide 8. Good luck with this, when 57% of New Mexico 7 YO Second Graders are not proficient in reading at grade level.

(iii) PED re-emphasizes that 7 YO Second Graders must become “student activists.”

As if by rote and repetition, PED continues to demand that 7 YO Second Graders be taught to be “student activists:”

2.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems.

2.6 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Slide 8 (emphasis added).

(iv) PED insists that New Mexico 7 YO Second Graders remain in their respective “Identity Groups.”

Without any stated justification, PED insists that New Mexico 7 YO Second Graders remain in their respective “Identity Groups:”

*2.28 Describe ways in which we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.*

*2.29 Demonstrate respect for the feelings of people who are similar to and different from me.*

Slide 12 (emphasis added).

(v) PED has eliminated standards to teach 7 YO Second Graders about the “public good” and “good citizenship.”

Existing Standards contained standards to teach Second Graders about the “public good” and about “good citizenship:”

“2III-C Describe the concept of “public good” and identify local examples of systems that support the “public good.”

2III-D Understand characteristics of “good citizenship” as exemplified by historic and ordinary people.”

Slide 10. The Proposed New Standards eliminate these standards .

TG. THIRD GRADE – 8 YO

I've attached to this letter as Slides 13-17, a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards for 8 YO Third Grade students. That comparison yields the following conclusions:

(i) PED, for 8 YO Third Grade children, continues to insist on teaching “group identity:”

The PED's Proposed New Standards continues its efforts to indoctrinate New Mexico's 8 YO Third Graders on their respective “group identity:”

“3.27 Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.

“3.28 Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups.

“3.29 Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world.”

Slide 17 (emphasis added). With respect to the Proposed New Standard 3.29, would PED include America's Founding Fathers in any such group? Probably . . . not.

(ii) For 8 YO Third Grade children, PED continues to insist on teaching “compelling questions,” whatever those might be.

PED, with its Proposed New Standards for New Mexico's 8 YO Third Graders, continues to insist on teaching “compelling questions,” whatever those might be. The Proposed New Standards require Third Graders to:

3.1 Identify disciplinary ideas associated with a compelling question.

3.2 Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.

3.3 Determine the credibility of one source.

3.4 Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.

3.5 Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details.

Slide 13.

(iii) PED, with its Proposed New Standards, continues to demand that New Mexico’s 8 YO Third Graders become “student activists.”

PED, with its Proposed New Standards for New Mexico’s 8 YO Third Graders, continues to teach children to be “student activists.” The Proposed New Standards require Third Graders to:

3.6 Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to problems, including predictable possible results.

3.7 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Slide 13 (emphasis added). PED’s own data confirms that 70% of New Mexico 8 YO Third Graders are not proficient at grade level reading.²⁴ Shouldn’t we perhaps focus educational effort on that deficiency before we ask these children to “act on civic problems in their classrooms?”

(iv) PED has eliminated an Existing Standard to teach 8 YO Third Graders about the “public good:”

There is an Existing Standard that requires teachers to teach 8 YO Third Graders about the “public good;”

“3III-A Explain the basic structure and functions of local government. Explain and give examples of “public good.” Explain how NM helps to form a nation with other states.”

Slide 15. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(v) PED has eliminated an Existing Standard to teach 8 YO Third Graders about “how the majority protects the minority.”

There is an Existing Standard that requires New Mexico teachers to teach 8 YO Third Grade students about concepts of majority/minority government:

“3III-C Describe how the majority protects the rights of the minority.”

Slide 15. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

(vi) PED has eliminated an Existing Standard explaining the US system of “free enterprise:”

There is an Existing Standard requiring teachers to teach 8 YO Third Graders to understand America’s “free enterprise” system:

“3IV-B Recognize that a market system exists whenever buyers and sellers exchange goods and services. Understand how businesses operate in the US in a free enterprise system, identify examples of economic systems.”

Slide 16. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard.

4G—6G. 4th THRU 6th GRADE – 9 to 11 YOs

Because of time and space limitations, I don’t offer a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards for Grades 4 thru 6. But I have studied both standards and offer these observations:

(i) The PED, for Grades 4 thru 6, continues to insist on teaching racial distinctions based on “Group Identities:”

This category of standards is for some reason muted for 9 YO 4th Graders. But they reappear with a vengeance for 10 YO Fifth Graders and for 11 YO Sixth Graders.

“5.30 Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity group.

“6.15 Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.

“6.16 Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.

“6.20 Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impacts perspectives.

“6.22 Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.”

Proposed New Standards, at pp. 42, 45-46 (emphasis added). Perhaps someone should ask PED to explain why it insists on the teaching 11 YO New Mexico Sixth Graders about “self-identified affinity groups” when its own data shows that nearly 70% of them cannot read at grade level.

(ii) The Proposed New Standards for Grades 4 thru 6 continue to demand teaching the array of “compelling questions” first begun in Kindergarten.

The PED’s fixation on “compelling questions,” begun in Kindergarten, continues apace for 9-11 YO children in Grades 4 thru 6. Each such grade has some variation of the following Grade 4 standard for 9 YOs:

“4.1 Explain how a compelling question represents key ideas in the field.

“4.2 Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.

“4.3 Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.

“4.4 Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details.”

Proposed New Standards, at p. 33. For nearly identical standards for 10 YO 5th Graders, see Proposed New Standards 5.1 – 5.5, id. at p. 38; for similar standards for 11 YO 6th Graders, see Proposed New Standards 6.1 – 6.3, id. at p. 44.

(iii) The Proposed New Standards for Grades 4 thru 6 continue to insist on “student activism:”

The PED’s insistence that the New Mexico public school children become “student activists,” first begun in Kindergarten, continues apace for 9-11 YO children in Grades 4 thru 6. Each such grade has some variation of the following Grade 4 standard for 9 YOs:

“4.5 Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results.

“4.6 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

Proposed New Standards, at p. 33 (emphasis added). For nearly identical standards for 10 YO 5th Graders, see Proposed New Standards 5.6 – 5.7, id. at p. 38; for “Inquiry” standards for 11 YO 6th Graders, see Proposed New Standards 6.17, id. at p. 45.

(iv) PED has removed from teaching Existing Standards that are principled, and non-controversial.

Existing Standards require the teaching to 9 YO 4th Graders of simple, principled concepts of the free-enterprise system:

“K-4IV-B(1) Understand how the characteristics and benefits of the free-enterprise system in New Mexico compare to the other economic system in New Mexico (e.g. acequia system).

Existing Standards, fn. 19, supra., at p. 6. The Proposed New Standards eliminate this standard. Similar principled, non-controversial standards are eliminated from 5th and 6th Grade Existing Standards. See, 5th Grade Existing Standard 5IIC(2) (“Describe the contribution and roles of major individuals, including George Washington, James Madison and Ben Franklin” – eliminated); 6th Grade Existing Standard 6II-A(i) (“Identify the location of places using latitude and longitude” – eliminated).

(v) The PED’s Proposed New Standards insist of teaching some pretty strange topics in 4th thru 6th Grades.

In a Proposed New Standard, the PED requires teaching 9 YO 4th Graders to:

“4.26 Explain connections among historical contexts and people’s perspectives at the time.”

Proposed New Standards, at p. 36. Say again? A different Proposed New Standard demands teaching 11 YO 6th Graders to:

“6.7 Identify the inherent bias in maps.”

Proposed New Standard, at p. 44. Where is this nonsense coming from?

7G – 8G 7th and 8th GRADE – 12-13 YO

Because of time and space limitations, I do not offer a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards for 7TH and 8TH Grades. But I have studied both standards and offer these observations:

(i) 7th Graders continue to be indoctrinated in CRT theory.

The PED, with its Proposed New Standards, intensifies its efforts to teach 12 YO children the tenants of racial “group identity:”

“7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity.”

“7.28 Evaluate how society’s responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.”

Proposed New Standards, at pp. 52, 54 (emphasis added). The PED standards focus on pessimism, not optimism:

“7.38 Describe the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights and responsibilities.”

Id. at p. 55 (emphasis added). The PED proposes extremely problematic classroom teaching for New Mexico’s 12 YO 7th Grade children, particularly New Mexico children of Spanish descent:

“7.59 Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards.

“7.60 Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.”

Id. at p. 57 (emphasis added). Hopefully, at some point, the PED will explain to New Mexico parents what its object is in teaching these divisive concepts to their children and, more importantly, what the result of teaching these concepts will be. At the same time, PED might explain why it insists on teaching these concepts when its own data confirms that 75% of New Mexico’s 7th Grade male students cannot read at grade level.²⁵

Moreover, PED insists on teaching what it calls “unequal power relations:”

“7.82 Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impact of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.”

Id. at p. 60 (emphasis added). Is there any data, from any source, that presents credible evidence suggesting that in New Mexico there exists “unequal power relations” or “disenfranchisement of persons or groups?” Unless the PED can produce such evidence, these exceedingly divisive standards should be stricken from its proposed standards.

(ii) The PED continues to indoctrinate 8th Graders with CRT theory.

As New Mexico’s 12 YO 7th Graders graduate to the next grade, the PED continues apace with its attempted indoctrination of them with CRT principles:

“8.12 Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.

Proposed New Standards, at p. 64 (emphasis added). Emphasis remains on students’ racial “identity:”

“8.19 Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and other people in their self-identified affinity groups.”

Id. at p. 65 (emphasis added). Perhaps at some point the PED will explain what it means by its term “self-identified affinity groups,” a term it first introduced in its Proposed New Standards (6.15) for Sixth Grade?” What exactly does PED seek to “teach” New Mexico 13 YO with this “standard?” PED then introduces “gender” issues to its teaching standards:

“8.66 Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact of gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community’s culture.”

Id. at 71 (emphasis added). Really? Where is this standard coming from? Should we now be teaching alleged “gender discrimination” to New Mexico’s 13 YO 8th Grade children? When PED’s own data confirms that 69% of those children cannot read at grade level?²⁶ Finally, PED continues to require that we teach New Mexico children that . . . somehow, someway . . . maps are “biased:”

“8.5 Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory.”

Id. at 64 (emphasis added). Ok. Who is the PED designee who will stand-up at a public meeting and explain this “bias in maps” and “cultural memory” teaching standard? Who will that person be?

9G – 12G HIGH SCHOOL – 9TH THRU 12TH GRADE -14-18 YO

Because of time and space limitations, I don’t offer a side-by-side comparison of the Existing Standards to the Proposed New Standards for 9th thru 12th Grades. But I have studied both standards and offer these observations.

Initially, it is of note that PED’s Proposed New Standards do not offer grade-specific standards for individual Grades 9 thru 12, as do the Existing Standards. Rather, the Proposed New Standards aggregate standards applicable for Grades 9-12, without specifying which standards apply to which grades. That non-distinction might make a big difference. The maturity level of a 14 YO 9th Grader is materially different from an 18 YO 12th Grader. The PED’s Proposed New Standards don’t recognize that differential in maturity levels. At a minimum, shouldn’t PED be made to break-out these proposed standards so as to identify which are grade/age appropriate for which grade/age? Or, alternatively, shouldn't PED at least admit that its goal is to indoctrinate all of New Mexico's high school students (Grade 9 -12) with each of these "standards" in each such grade?

For its proposed new high school teaching standards, PED drops all pretense and outright admits that it will teach New Mexico's high school students the core CRT concept of "privilege" vested in the white race and "systemic inequity" resulting for everyone else:

"9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. "

Proposed New Standards, at p. 122 (emphasis added). Please read that sentence again. And then try to imagine how New Mexico's teachers are trained to teach this topic and what materials are distributed in the classroom. Try to imagine further how a classroom of multi-cultured students is supposed to react to such teaching. It's a bit frightening. But PED continues:

"9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical, cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups."

Id. Where is the factual data suggesting there exists in New Mexico or nationally "unequal power relations among identity groups?" What does "unequal power relations" even mean? What is the educational purpose of teaching New Mexico's high school students that there may be "unequal power relations among identity groups?" More importantly, what is the societal result of such teaching?

The radical standards PED proposes are particularly distressing when posed against the current dismal state of New Mexico student achievement in the core topics of reading, math and science. The PED's published data, with respect to the academic competency of New Mexico's public high school students, yields the following depressing statistics:

- Statewide, 60% of 16 YO 11th Graders cannot read at grade level²⁷;
- Statewide, 90% of 16 YO 11th Graders are not proficient at grade level math²⁸;
- Statewide, 75% of 16 YO 11th Graders are not proficient at grade level science²⁹;
- In the Santa Fe School District, 61% of 16 YO 11th Graders cannot read at grade level³⁰;

- In the Santa Fe School District, 91% of 16 YO 11th Graders are not proficient at grade level math³¹;
- In the Santa Fe School District, 78% of 16 YO 11th Graders are not proficient at grade level science³²;
- At Capital High School, in the Santa Fe School District, 68% of 16 YO 11th Graders cannot read at grade level³³;
- At Capital High School, 95% of 16 YO 11th Graders are not proficient at grade level math³⁴;
- At Capital High School, 88% of 16 YO 11th Graders are not proficient at grade level science³⁵;
- 97% of the male students in the 11th Grade at Capital High School, in the Santa Fe School District, are not grade level proficient in math.³⁶

Why is it -- given these heart-breaking statistics -- that PED has chosen to focus its energy on teaching CRT-embedded “social studies?” Shouldn’t our fundamental education goal be to improve New Mexico student performance in reading, math and science? Do PED’s Proposed New Standards advance that goal? No! New Mexico’s drop-out rate will probably increase with these teaching standards, with the only other result being that dropouts will be more despondent or more angry.

Tone deaf, PED persists in insisting on teaching that “systemic inequity” underlies the American system:

“9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.”

Proposed New Standards, at p. 122 (emphasis added). At one time, many thought that “assimilation” was noble and aspirational in American society. No longer. Assimilation, under the PED’s new standards, is not only ignoble; it is destructive:

“9-12.ECI.19 Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.”

Id. (emphasis added). The PED’s very last teaching standard asks 14 – 18 YO New Mexico High School students to:

“9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.”

Id. (emphasis added). If one googles the terms “racial social constructs,” one retrieves 20+ pages of articles, books and blogs speaking to the topic. The most understandable definition of the phrase is this:

“Social construction is a theory of knowledge that holds characteristics typically thought to be immutable and solely biological – such as race, gender and sexuality – are products of human definition and interpretation shaped by cultural and historical contexts . . . As such, social constructionism highlights the ways in which cultural categories – like “men,” women,” “black,” “white,” are concepts created, changed and reproduced through historical processes within institutions and culture.”³⁷

A second definition of the term is found in the Urban Dictionary: “Social Construct: A rhetorical technique used (often by a neurotic undergraduate with a Yoko Ono Tattoo) to deny the existence of an irrefutable fact.”³⁸

Needless to say the “social construct theory of knowledge” is an esoteric field of study, highly controversial, the validity of which is hotly debated in the halls of collegiate academia. Like “CRT” itself, “social construct theory” may have a place for discussion within collegiate academia. It has no place as a teaching “standard” in New Mexico’s high schools.

CONCLUSION

Under the PED’s Proposed New Standards, what starts as a rather innocuous Kindergarten standard of teaching 5 YO children to “identify some of their group identities” (K.22) evolves, by the time these New Mexico children reach high school, into full-fledged CRT indoctrination:

“9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement. “

(emphasis added). PED must answer the question of why this is happening now? Why – when all ages/grades of New Mexico students continue to underperform on basic subjects like reading, math and science – must New Mexico expend any of its precious educational resources on CRT indoctrination?

These Proposed New Standards should be abandoned or substantially modified. They are divisive. They will be detrimental to the preservation of New Mexico’s unique tri-cultural community.

Respectfully Submitted,

/s/ Michael Campbell

Michael Campbell
camp.pecos@gmail.com

ENDNOTES

¹ I am 72 years old and a life-long resident of New Mexico. All of my education
¹ I am 72 years old and a life-long resident of New Mexico. All of my education – from kindergarten through graduation from law school – occurred in New Mexico. I obtained a BA degree in Education from UNM. Since I retired from the practice of law, I’ve been a volunteer in Santa Fe Public Schools (“SFPS”), tutoring middle-school students in English Language Arts (“ELA”). I’ve lived in Santa Fe for almost sixty years. I have an abiding interest in quality public education in New Mexico, believing it is the foundation for a productive and prosperous society. I have drafted and submit these comments on my own, without assistance or input from anyone.

² Proposed New Standards, at p. 9. The PED announces that one of its “Guiding Principles” in promulgating its new standards is:

“Ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives.”

³ Education Post: “Explained-The Truth About Critical Race Theory and How It Shows Up in Your Child’s Classroom.” <https://educationpost.org/explained-the-truth-about-critical-race-theory-and-how-it-shows-up-in-your-childs-classroom/>; see also “Critical Race Theory: A Brief History,” July 27, 2021 <http://www.nytimes.com/article/what-is-critical-race-theory.html>; RealClear Political Affairs: “Critical Race Theory in K-12,” July 2020 https://www.realclearpublicaffairs.com/articles/2020/07/16/critical_race_theory_in_k-12_education_498969.html#!#:~:text=Public%20schools%20and%20other%20educational%20institutions%20throughout%20the,maintain%20their%20elite%20status%2C%20both%20economically%20and%20politically; “Critical Race Theory, the New Intolerance, and Its Grip on America,” The Heritage Foundation, Background, No. 3567, December 7, 2020.

⁴ Imprimis: “Critical Race Theory – What is it and How to Fight It.” March 20, 2021 <https://imprimis.hillsdale.edu/critical-race-theory-fight/>.

⁵ Id.

⁶ Id.

⁷ See, Las Cruces Sun Time, October 7, 2021: “New Mexico Wants Your Feedback on Changing Social Security Standards.” <https://www.lcsun-news.com/story/news/education/2021/10/07/new-mexico-updates-social-studies-education-standards-asks-feedback/6034864001/>

⁸ At the first (virtual) meeting of the 64 New Mexico educators, the PED distributed its pre-drafted “Guiding Principles” with the directive that educators “Understand the guiding principles.” See, NMPED, Social Studies Standards Review – Writing Team Meeting 1 (Virtual) 4/13/2021, 4pm to 6pm.

⁹ Proposed New Standards; PED Answer to Question 11. <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/literacy-humanities/social-studies/social-studies-standards-faq/>.

¹⁰ “Social Justice Standards – The Teaching Tolerance Anti-Bias Framework” <https://www.learningforjustice.org/sites/default/files/2020-09/TT-Social-Justice-Standards-Anti-bias-framework-2020.pdf>

¹¹ “Teaching Hard History K-5 Framework – Learning for Justice” <https://www.learningforjustice.org/sites/default/files/2020-08/TT-2007-Teaching-Hard-History-K-5-Framework.pdf>

¹² Social Education, NCSS: “Agency, Advocacy, Activism: Action for Social Studies,” Heafner, Jan/Feb 2020 <https://www.socialstudies.org/social-education/84/1/agency-advocacy-activism-action-social-studies#:~:text=As%20social%20studies%20teachers%2C%20we,become%20informed%20and%20engaged%20citizens.>

¹³ Proposed New Standards <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/literacy-humanities/social-tudies/social-studies-standards-faq/>. PED answer to Question 7:

“The standards have been in process of re-write since the spring of 2021, after a statewide call, on February 18, 2021, for participants was circulated. The call was placed in the weekly communication blast to Superintendents from PED. Any educator was eligible to apply (teacher, superintendent, etc). The committee ultimately included 64 members (educators) to represent k-12 from 38 districts and charters.

“In addition, Focus Groups were held in June 2021 for the following stakeholder groups so that writing teams could incorporate feedback into the writing of the draft standards.

...
parents
students
...
Advisory Committee

There is no evidentiary indication that the public/parents have participated in the drafting of these Proposed New Standards.

14 Id., PED Answers to Questions 3 and 4.

15 Id., PED Answer to Question 5.

16 Id., PED Answer to Question 8 (“Local school boards do not have a formal role in the development of any administrative rules, including academic standards.”).

17 The existing Standards for Social Studies can be found at PED-Social Studies-Social Studies Standards. <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/instructional-materials/new-mexico-content-standards/>

18 PED Achievement Data <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/accountability/achievement-data>

19 Webfiles-2019-Proficiencies-All-by-State-by-District-by School-by Grade (1).xlsx

20 Common Core State Standards <http://www.corestandards.org/ELA-Literacy/RH/introduction/>

21 Proposed New Standards, at p. 8.

22 Existing Standards, see ftn. 17, Kindergarten.

23 Proposed New Standards, at p. 8.

24 See ftn. 19, supra.

25 Id., Line 111, Column H.

26 Id., Line 124, Column H.

27 Webfiles-2019-Proficiencies-All-by-State-by-District-by School-by Grade (1).xlsx (Line 169, Column H).

28 Id. (Line 169, Column J).

29 Id. (Line 169, Column L).

30 Id. (Line 9343, Column H)

31 Id. (Line 9343, Column J).

32 Id. (Line 9343, Column L).

33 Id. (Line 45128, Column H).

34 Id. (Line 45128, Column J).

35 Id. (Line 45128, Column L).

36 Id. (Line 45130, Column J).

37 “Introduction to Women, Gender, Sexuality Studies: Grounding Theoretical Frameworks and Concepts,” UMassLibraries.
<https://openbooks.library.umass.edu/introwgss/chapter/social-constructionism/>

38 Urban Dictionary. <https://www.urbandictionary.com/define.php?term=social%20construct>

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

KINDERGARTEN – 5 YO

EXISTING STANDARDS

- KI-A Identify the customs, celebrations, and holidays of various cultures of New Mexico.
- KI-B Demonstrate an awareness of community leaders.
- KI-C Identify the local, state, and national symbols (e.g., flag bird, song).
- KI-D Understand the concept of past and present.
- KII-A Define relative location of items in the physical environment in terms of over, under, near, far, up, and down.
- KII-A Define personal direction of front, back, left, and right.
- KII-B Identify natural characteristics of places (e.g. climate, topography).
- KII-C Identify family customs and traditions and explain their importance.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- K1 Recognize a compelling question.
- K2 Identify the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.
- K3 Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.
- K4 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional and/or global problems.
- K5 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.
- K6 Communicate the purpose of rules.
- K7 Explain how rules help us work together.
- K8 Identify the consequences of following and not following the rules.
- K9 Identify authority figures and describe their roles

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS KINDERGARTEN, 5YO contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- KII-C Describe the natural characteristics of places (e.g. landforms, bodies of water, natural resources, and weather).
- KII-D Describe the earth's physical characteristics.
- KII-E Identify classroom population.
- KII-F Identify natural resources.
- KIII-A Identify authority figures and describe their roles (e.g. parents, teachers, principal, superintendent, police, public officials).
- KIII-B Recognize the name symbols and activities of the United States, New Mexico, and tribes to include:
 - US symbols to include the flag, bald eagle, monuments
 - NM symbols to include flag, Smokey Bear, State Bird, chili
 - tribal symbols and activities to include Feast Days, pottery, art, storytelling

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- K10 Identify the local, state, and national symbols (e.g. flag, bird, song).
- K11 Compare traditions found in communities over time.
- K12 Demonstrate an awareness of community leaders (teacher, principal, Mayor, Tribal Leaders).
- K13 Sequence important events in you life
- K14 Identify how individuals are similar and different
- K15 Distinguish between a need (basic needs like food, clothing, and shelter) and a want
- K16 Identify examples of goods and services
- K17 Explain what scarcity is and how scarcity affects the accessibility of goods and services

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS KINDERGARTEN, 5YO contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- ~~• KIII-B Recognize patriotic activities including the Pledge of Allegiance, the Star Spangled Banner, salute to the New Mexico flag, and the New Mexico state songs.~~
- ~~• KIII-C Describe and provide examples of fairness.~~
- ~~• KIII-D Describe what is meant by citizenship. Explain what is meant by “good citizenship,” to include:
 - taking turns and sharing
 - taking responsibility for your own actions . . .~~
- KIV-A Understand that basic human needs are met in many ways.
- KIV-B Understand the concept of product (something produced by human . . . process).
- ~~• KIV-B Understand the importance of jobs.~~
- KIV-C Describe trade (e.g. buying and selling, bartering, simple exchange).

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- K18 Create maps of familiar areas, such as the class room, school and community.
- K19 Recognize and identify signs and symbols around their town and community and indicate location of places, people and things.
- K20 Identify the differences and similarities of a globe and a map . . . Explain their purposes.
- K21 Explain why and how people move from place to place within a community.
- K22 Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.
- K23 Describe ways in which they are similar and different from other people who share their identities, and people who do not.
- K24 Identify how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things.
- K25 Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

FIRST GRADE -- 6YO

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 1I-A Identify common attributes of people living in New Mexico today.
- 1I-B Identify the significance of US historical events and symbols (e.g. MLK Day, Memorial Day, Independence day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, U.S. Flag, bald eagle).
- 1I-B Identify and recognize major political and social figures in the US.
- 1I-C Identify and compare celebrations and events from the US, Mexico and Canada.
- 1I-D Demonstrate the use of timelines in order to show events in relation to one another.
- 1II-A Understand maps and globes and the four cardinal directions; Create, use and describe simply maps to identify locations within familiar places (e.g. classroom, school, community)
- 1II-B Identify and classify characteristics of places as human or natural.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 1.1 Explain why a compelling question is important.
- 1.2 Generate supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.
- 1.3 Determine if a source is primary or secondary and determine whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
- 1.4 Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.
- 1.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems.
- 1.6 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their class rooms.
- 1.7 Explain and provide examples of how people play important roles in society

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

FIRST GRADE -- 6YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 1II-B Identify how traditional tribal and local folklore attempt to explain weather, characteristics of places, and human origin and relationships.
- 1II-C Identify examples of and uses for natural resources in the community, state and nation.
- 1II-C Describe the human characteristics of places such as housing types and professions.
- 1II-D Describe the Earth-Sun relationship and how it affects living conditions on Earth.
- 1II-E Identify characteristics of culture (e.g., language, customs, religion, shelter).
- 1II-F Describe the role of resources in daily life.
- 1II-F Describe the ways that humans depend upon, adapt to, and affect the physical environment.
- 1III-A Understand the purpose of rules and identify examples of rules and the consequences of breaking them.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 1.8 Investigate how people work together to accomplish a common task and how this benefits and challenges people when working together
- 1.9 Compare life in NM in the past to life in NM today.
- 1.10 Compare fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past.
- 1.11 Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among past, present, and future using family, school, and community events.
- 1.12 Examine and identify cultural differences within a community.
- 1.13 Investigate significant events, people, and observations in history, and discuss their effects on local and national communities.
- 1.14 Examine choices that families make due to scarcity, and identify associated costs.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
FIRST GRADE -- 6YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 1III-A Describe different groups and rules that apply to them (e.g. families, classrooms, communities).
- 1III-B Identify the President of the US and the Governor of NM.
- 1III-B Describe how local, state, tribal and national leaders exemplify the ideals of the communities they represent.
- 1III-C Describe different ways to determine a decision (e.g. majority rule, consensus. Authoritarian [parent, teacher, principal]).
- ~~1III-D Identify examples of honesty, courage, fairness, loyalty, patriotism, and other character traits seen in American history.~~
- ~~1III-D Explain and apply “good citizenship” traits within the school and community using the elements of fair play, good sportsmanship, the idea of treating others the way you want to be treated, and being trustworthy.~~

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 1.15 Identify examples of a producer and a consumer.
- 1.16 Examine how earning money through work is related to the purchase of goods and services.
- 1.17 Examine decisions that people make about spending and saving money.
- 1.18 Create geographic representations to identify the location of familiar places
- 1.19 Identify the common symbols used on maps for man-made structures and physical features.
- 1.20 Use a variety of maps to locate specific places and identify major landforms
- 1.21 Explain how man-made structures are all examples of how people modify the physical environment . . .

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
FIRST GRADE -- 6YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 1IV-A Understand how resources are limited and varied in meeting human needs.
- 1IV-A Define and differentiate between needs and wants.
- 1IV-B Understand the concept of goods and services.
- 1IV-B Understand the condition of not being able to have all the goods and services one wants.
- ~~• 1IV-B Understand the value of work.~~
- 1IV-C Define the simplest form of exchange (the barter system being the direct trading of goods and services between people).

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 1.22 Explain how people interact with their physical environment in ways that may have a positive or negative effect on natural resources.
- 1.23 Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways.
- 1.24 Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

SECOND GRADE -- 7YO

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 2I-A Describe how historical people, groups, and events have influenced the local community.
- 2I-B Describe the cultural diversity of individuals and groups and their contributions to US history (e.g. George Washington, Ben Franklin, Cesar Chavez, Rosa Parks, NAACP, tribal leaders, AIM).
- 2I-C Describe and compare similarities of the history of peoples in North America through literature (e.g. story-telling, fables, folktales, fairy tales).
- 2I-D Correctly sequence historic events.
- 2II-A Use a variety of maps to locate specific places and regions; identify major landforms, bodies of water
- 2II-B Describe how climate, natural resources, and natural hazards affect activities and settlement patterns.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 2.1 Explain why a compelling question is important.
- 2.2 Generate supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.
- 2.3 Determine if a source is primary or secondary and determine whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
- 2.4 Construct responses to compelling questions using examples, and relevant details.
- 2.5 Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems.
- 2.6 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their class rooms.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
SECOND GRADE -- 7YO, contd

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 2II-B Explain how people depend on the environment and its resources to satisfy their basic needs.
- 2II-C Identify ways in which people depend on natural and man-made environments
- 2II-D Describe the physical processes that affect the Earth's features (e.g. weather, erosion); identify characteristics of physical systems (e.g. water cycle).
- 2II-E Describe how characteristics of culture affect behaviors and lifestyles.
- 2II-F Describe ways that people and groups can conserve and replenish natural resources.
- 2III-A Understand the purposes of government. Describe and compare class rules made by direct democracy (entire class votes on the rules) and by representative democracy (class elects a smaller group to make the rules).

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 2.7 Evaluate how American society has changed through laws and rules.
- 2.8 Understand the purposes and structures of government (Tribal, local, state, national government).
- 2.9 Assess how the contributions of diverse individuals have helped develop our national identity.
- 2.10 Examine and compare the American democratic principles to neighboring countries.
- 2.11 Examine and understand the qualities of good leadership.
- 2.12 Describe events in North America that illustrate how people from diverse cultural groups attempted to work through conflicts to solve a problem.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
SECOND GRADE -- 7YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 2III-B Identify local governing officials and explain how their roles reflect their community.
- ~~2III-C Describe the concept of “public good” and identify local examples of systems that support the “public good.”~~
- ~~2III-D Understand characteristics of “good citizenship” as exemplified by historic and ordinary people.~~
- 2III-D Explain the responsibilities of being a member of various groups (e.g. family, school, community).
- 2IV-A Identify economic decisions made by individuals and households and explain how resources are distributed.
- 2IV-B Understand the roles of producers and consumers in the production of goods and services. Explain the role of the worker in the local economy.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 2.13 Compare diverse world communities in terms of members, customs and traditions to the local community.
- 2.14 Demonstrate chronological think by distinguishing among years and decades using a timeline of local and national events.
- 2.15 Identify and compare the diverse North American cultural groups of the past and today.
- 2.16 Evaluate the effects of people, goods and ideas that diffused from one world community into other world communities and the effects of the people, goods and ideas on these communities.
- 2.17 Examine how consumers react to changes in the price of goods and how this influences economic decision making and the use of money.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
SECOND GRADE -- 7YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 2IV-C Understand that money is the generally accepted medium of exchange in most societies, and that different countries use different currencies.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 2.18 Explore how communities share resources and services with other communities.
- 2.19 Investigate what resources are available in the community, how available resources differ in communities, and what resources are obtained from neighboring communities.
- 2.20 Identify different types of jobs performed in the community.
- 2.21 Using maps, identify and locate the US, Canada and Mexico as the countries that make up North America.
- 2.22 Identify and locate the bordering states to NM and under that NM is in the Southwest.
- 2.23 Compare the human and physical characteristics of two regions in the US.
- 2.24 Generate a definition for your region of the US by identifying unique features.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
SECOND GRADE -- 7YO, CONTD.

EXISTING STANDARDS

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 2.25 List at least three different waves of immigration to the Western hemisphere in chronologic order. (Movement)
- 2.26 Describe ways in which individuals and groups use or save resources.
- 2.27 Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad.
- 2.28 Describe ways in which we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.
- 2.29 Demonstrate respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me.

COMPARISON OF ESISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

THIRD GRADE – 8 YO

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 3I-A Describe how the lives and contributions of people of NM influenced local communities and regions.
- 3I-B Describe local events and their connections to state history.
- 3I-C Identify and compare components that create a community in the US and neighboring countries.
- 3I-D Interpret information from multiple resources and contexts to determine chronological relationships.
- 3II-A Identify and use the mapping tools of scale, compass rose, grid, symbols and mental mapping to locate and draw places on maps and globes.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 3.1 Identify disciplinary ideas associated with a compelling question.
- 3.2 Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
- 3.3 Determine the credibility of one source.
- 3.4 Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.
- 3.5 Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details.
- 3.6 Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to problems, including predictable possible results.
- 3.7 Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

THIRD GRADE -- 8YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 3II-B Describe how human and natural processes can sometimes work together to shape the appearance of places (e.g. post-fire reforestation).
- 3II-B Explore examples of environmental and social changes in various regions.
- 3II-C Identify personal behaviors that can affect community planning. Identify ways in which people have modified their environments (e.g. building roads, etc). Describe the consequences of human modification of the natural environment (highways, etc.)
- 3II-D Identify the components of the Earth's bio systems and their make-up (e.g. air land, etc.)
- 3II-D Describe how physical processes shape features on the Earth's surface.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 3.8 Explain how the democratic principles motivate people to migrate then and now.
- 3.9 Explain how to be a responsible and active citizen in a democracy.
- 3.10 Evaluate the reasons for migration and immigration and the effects on people, culture, and ideas in world communities.
- 3.11 Analyze how human settlement and movement impact diverse groups of people and how the cultural aspects of a region spread beyond its borders.
- 3.12 Analyze the movement of indigenous groups, including the removal and return of indigenous people throughout NM and the US.
- 3.14. Explain how world events impact NM and the US , bit in the past and today.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

THIRD GRADE -- 8YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 3II-E Describe how patterns of culture vary geographically. Describe how transportation and communication networks are used in daily life. Describe how cooperation and conflict affect neighborhoods and communities.
- 3I-F Identify the characteristics of renewable and nonrenewable resources.
- 3III-A Explain the basic structure and functions of local government. Explain and give examples of "public good." Explain how NM helps to form a nation with other states.
- 3III-B Explain how symbols, songs, icon, and traditions combine to reflect various cultures over time.
- ~~3III-C Describe how the majority protects the rights of the minority.~~
- 3III-C Explain how rules/laws are made and compare different processes used by various governments to determine rules/laws.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 3.15 Examine the various ways people earn a living to meet their basic needs of food, clothing, and shelter, and how this has changed over time in various world communities.
- 3.16 Investigate who receives the goods that are produced in various world communities.
- 3.17 Explore the concepts of surplus and scarcity in relation to resources for various world communities.
- 3.18 Explore the basic economic concepts of supply and demand.
- 3.19 Explain how supply and demand influence prices and trade.
- 3.20 Describe how technological developments in transportation and communication influence trade over time.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

THIRD GRADE -- 8YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

- 3III-D Explain the significance of participation and cooperation in the classroom and the community. Understand the impact of individual and group decisions on communities in a democratic society. Explain the significance and process of voting.
- 3IV-A Explain that people want more goods and services than is possible to produce. Define and categorize resources (human, financial, natural). Identify a variety of products that use similar resources.
- 3IV-B Recognize that a market system exists whenever buyers and sellers exchange goods and services. ~~Understand how businesses operate in the US in a Free enterprise system.~~ Identify examples of economic systems.
- 3IV-C Understand the purposes of spending and saving money. Identify currency, credit, debit and checks as the basic mediums of exchange in Western society.

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 3.21 Identify currency, credit, debit, and checks as the basic means of exchange in Western society.
- 3.22 Compare currency, debit, credit, and checks in the US to other world systems.
- 3.23 Create a model to demonstrate how geographic factors influence where people settle and how some people make adaptations to the environment to make a location more suitable for settlement.
- 3.24 Identify and use the mapping tools of scale, compass rose, grid, symbols and mental mapping to locate places on maps and globes.
- 3.25 Explain how physical and cultural characteristics of world regions affect people, and examine geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps. Photos, and other geographic representations.

COMPARISON OF EXISTING STANDARDS TO PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS
THIRD GRADE -- 8YO, contd.

EXISTING STANDARDS

PROPOSED NEW STANDARDS

- 3.26 Identify the components of the Earth's bio systems and their makeup (e.g., air, land, water, plants, and animals).
- 3.27 Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.
- 3.28 Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups.
- 3.29 Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world.

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on proposed social studies standards

Patti Wojahn <pwojahn@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:51 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (48 KB)

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on proposed social studies standards;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

From: Patti Wojahn <pwojahn@nmsu.edu>
Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 6:52 AM
To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Feedback on proposed social studies standards

I applaud the committee who managed to assess, revise, and create the proposed NMPED Social Studies Standards. I wish my education had been based on these proposed standards. I like the focus on “deliberative and democratic” discussions, the call to focus on the complexities of our history, the encouragement to focus on how one wants one’s culture to be seen/viewed in the world & how to achieve that - among many other positive approaches. This is a step in a great direction to help build sound, kind, and understanding communities in society -can’t think of much better for such standards!

Thank you for supporting this set of standards! -Patti

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards - Support

Kari Fresquez <kari_fresquez@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED:

Thank you for the opportunity to review and provide feedback regarding the proposed social studies rules – 6.29.11 NMAC.

I would like to express my support for the modernization of these rules. I particularly support the focus area on civics, economics and ethnic/cultural study. These standards will help prepare students for navigating the complexity of our current world and making informed choices. Navigating the vast information that is available via the internet and social media requires our students to be competent critical thinkers while also respecting diversity of views while being respectful and getting along with others. Understanding government, democracy, and election, and economics are important to build skills in making informed decisions and deciphering what information is real and what is fake. These new standards promote all of these efforts and the PED has done a good job in recognizing these necessities in the proposed standards and rule.

Thank you for your consideration.

Kari Fresquez
NM Citizen

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] PED Social Studies Standards

G Lewis <gkmalewis@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:54 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Public Education Department of NM,

We object to your proposed PED Social Studies Standards. This is nothing more than your continued victimization of our children in the public schools. It is unethical and extremely divisive to force children to view their studies of society and responses to society solely based on their race. This incessant focus on a person's outside appearance or their race, forcing children to see themselves as only victims or victimizers, creates a classroom of unrelenting angry people with no hope, no sense of human dignity regardless of race, and a mindless disregard for doing good for others with grace, respect and forgiveness. PED is assaulting our children with its forced indoctrination. A mind is a terrible thing to waste and PED is doing it by encouraging this divisive militant program. It needs to stop now.

Mary Ann Lewis

[EXTERNAL] 'NO' to PED's Proposed Changes to Social Studies Curricula

Kyle Baxter <oahu808surfer@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 6:57 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The proposed changes to the Social Studies curricula by the PED are unacceptable! Incorporating the racist/Marxist Critical Race Theory & anti-American progressive ideology into the classroom is, I'm sure we can all agree, very harmful to our students. Government should not be indoctrinating our students. The responsibility of government is to educate, as in the 3 Rs, not indoctrinate. I do not want my tax dollars used to advance hatred & division, therefore I demand the current proposed changes to the Social Studies curricula by PED be denied & rescinded! Thank you.

Kyle L Baxter
Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] Critical Race Theory style education for K-12 grades

Gilbert Chavez <nottotall04@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:02 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am strongly opposed to this form in any form. Most NM school children are biracial in NM. My children are all biracial.

Teach children to learn the core subjects equally. Special needs children are the exception, yet they should be taught that they are inferior because of the content of the melanin in their skin.

If you as the PED decide to go through with this I will pull my child from public school and will stop funding public schools. I will vote no on all proposed issues regarding public school issues.

No child regardless of melanin content in their skin should be down graded as inferior or superior over another, especially those who are biracial. My biracial children don't have the same melanin content in their skin and you would have them in conflict with each other teaching/indoctrinating them against one another. This is evil!

Teach them mathematics, science, English composition, to write legibly, health (only two sexes) reading, and continue with elective subjects such as sports, band, chorus, arts, mechanics, construction etc.

Don't allow bullying in any form by students or teachers towards anyone for any reason.

Teach respect, honor, caring, patriotism, and character.

Teach American history and world history. Teach economics. Teach these subjects without injecting personal edicts.

Thank you for your time and efforts. Bring NM children up, stop tearing them down. Pay teachers better.

Respectfully submitted,

Gilbert Chavez
Carlsbad, NM
575-689-8505

--

Gilbert Chavez
1813 N Canal St
Carlsbad, NM 88220

[EXTERNAL] Against changes

Sarah Johnson <sarah.abq@me.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:18 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

I am against the proposed new changes to the NM Social Studies Curriculum for the 2023 school year and beyond. Although our current curriculum certainly needs to be updated; the proposed changes go too far in their oversight of exploring what actually happened in NM's history. The pedagogy implied in the suggested new standards, while "not containing CRT" lean heavily on progressive and one sided ideologies. I do not support the proposed changes. Please go back to the drawing board and take the time to do start again in your attempt to overhaul our state's standards. New Mexico has never contained a school system that its citizens can be proud of. These changes will further make the majority of your state hang its head in shame.

Sincerely,

Sarah Johnson

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Laurel Wyckoff <LWyckoff@nmpbs.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:23 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

This is my personal view and does not necessarily reflect the position of NMPBS.

Cultural identity is an important aspect of children's and young people's development. Cultural background influences how children think, learn, and develop. Teaching with a preference for dominant cultural values places considerable value on characteristics that represent dominant cultural groups. This may devalue or create negative views of own race or other racial/ethnic groups. Teachers can help their students openly examine our nation's past and how it influences society today. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.

Laurel Wyckoff

Education and Outreach Manager

NMPBS

Cell 505-322-9992

(Pronouns: She, Her, Hers)

Why Pronouns Matter

This email and any attachments transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for use by the intended recipient. Any review, reliance or distribution of such material by others, or forwarding of such material without express permission, is strictly prohibited. If you are not the intended recipient, please notify the sender and destroy all copies.

knme.unm.pbs

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

jennifurr2013 <jennifurr2013@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:33 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello, I am a teacher within the Gadsden School district and I do not support the adoption of the new Social Studies Curriculum that promotes Critical Race Theory. It has been proven that this will influence and shape our students to begin discriminating and treating those of white descent differently. Please reconsider adopting this curriculum.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards - Public Comment

Jeanette Writer <jeanettewriter@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:36 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Social Studies Review Committee,

I examined the proposed social studies standards. While there some slight modification could be carried out in a few places (i.e., in the area of editing or refinement around wording), the standards are solid in providing New Mexico students a more accurate and balanced view of the social studies.

I am especially appreciative of: “7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.” I find that this assists students to understand that the past has impact today, but also that students can generate ways to treat each other thoughtfully to move forward as citizens in shared spaces.

It is time for the social studies to be based on historical facts and current realities. As well, it is imperative that New Mexico curriculum aligns with what is called for in the Yazzie-Martinez legal decision. Thank you for the opportunity to provide feedback, as a citizen of New Mexico, I am in full support of the new social studies standards.

Jeanette Haynes

[EXTERNAL] social studies

Diana Crowson <dicrow12@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:42 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please allow the truth of history to finally be taught in NM schools. I had to study on my own to find out the truth about our history because I was taught the white-washed version in school. We should teach truth, not the political agenda that is passing for truth at the present time. I want my great grandchildren to know the truth so they won't repeat the mistakes from the past. Knowing the truth can actually make this country better.

Thank you,

Diana Crowson.

[EXTERNAL] Comment on Proposed Rule for Social Studies Standards

Sarita <cargas@unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:44 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NM Public Education Department

I am writing to share my support for the update to the Social Studies Standards that will guide the education of New Mexico's children in the multiple disciplines that make up the social studies. In particular, I appreciate the attention given in the proposed standards to employing Inquiry as the primary method for students to explore the many civic, historical, economic, social and cultural issues that they will address and have an impact on both during their time as students and throughout their adult lives as participants in the life of our state, nation, world. I applaud the attention given to the social studies of the Indigenous nations and communities situated in and near our state.

I urge you to more fully incorporate human rights themes and instructional practices into the final draft. Human Rights are based on the fundamental principle, as expressed in the Preamble to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that

"recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world."

The National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS), the largest professional association in the country devoted solely to social studies education, has adopted a position statement calling for "a comprehensive commitment and a coordinated plan of action to (1) recognize the importance of human rights education; (2) integrate human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices...(<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education>)." I urge you to incorporate the principles of the NCSS position statement into the final standards document

One strategy for integrating human rights awareness into the draft standards is to add an Anchor Standard to the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies strand:

Anchor Standard [#]

Universal Human Rights Awareness

And to add language to Civics Anchor Standard 3, Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society.

Anchor Standard 3

Civic Dispositions and Inclusive Principles For A

Pluralistic Democratic Society

These additions/changes to the Anchor Standards can then become the basis for incorporating human rights awareness and respect for the inherent dignity of every person into the performance expectations for students at every grade level, and into the culture of the schools where social studies are taught.

Thank you for your work to build more inclusive, culturally aware social studies expectations for all of New Mexico's students.

Sarita Cargas, D.Phil.
Associate Professor, Human Rights
UNM Honors College

Co-editor Book Reviews
Journal of Human Rights
cargas@unm.edu

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Social Studies Standards

Judy Elkins <2judith.rebecca@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:51 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (42 KB)

Social Studies Standards Comments.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached comments on proposed adoption of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

*Thank you,
Judy and Stetson Elkins*

To: John Sena, Policy Division, New Mexico Public Education Department
From: Judy and Stetson Elkins, Concerned Parents, Artesia Public Schools
Date: November 7, 2021 Subject: Comments on the Proposed Repeal and Replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Dear Mr. Sena,

As the concerned parents of 2 children, soon to be 3, attending school within NM, we would like to submit our comments concerning the proposed changes to the social studies standards:

Firstly, we are concerned with the vagueness of the verbiage within the proposed standards. Without clear and defined standards, how are we, the parents, supposed to know for sure what is being proposed to teach our children? It is within our rights to know what our children are being taught, and we do not feel comfortable submitting our children to be taught whatever someone in the capital sees as fit to teach.

Secondly, many of these new standards seem to focus on having children define their social groups and concentrate on their differences. Why would we want to do this to our children? In recent past, it was the main goal of most in our nation to get everyone to see each other as equals, and to see past our differences regardless of race, gender, or social status. We believe this is still a worthwhile endeavor and should be focused on much more than divisive issues that will do nothing other than ostracize, divide, and confuse our children.

Lastly, we do not believe it is the responsibility of the public school system to reinforce social constructs. It is the school's job to teach the fundamentals needed to succeed in life. In particular, social studies should be used to teach about the geography, economies, and social historic facts. It should not be focusing on perceived social groups and social engineering.

In closing, we would like you to carefully consider the direction that you would be sending our students if you teach them to identify people as being in separate groups and to only identify with others that are similar to themselves instead of trying to look past groups and constructs and see the person as an individual worth knowing despite what they identify as. In America, we are a blend of many different nations and backgrounds. We should be teaching our children historical facts about these cultures solely so they can understand those around them, not so they will not associate with them. A blended nation such as our own can never be united if we only concentrate on and teach what makes us different, not what unites us.

Because of all of these concerns, we are in opposition to the proposed changes in Social Studies Standards. We would ask that you reconsider and revise the standards to include requirements that focus solely on historical facts that promote inclusion of different cultures, not divisive social ideals. Our history, although not perfect, needs to be taught factually because it is what makes us the nation that we are and knowledge of that is the only way to continue moving forward to a more united society.

Sincerely,

Judy Elkins

2judith.rebecca@gmail.com

Stetson Elkins

Stetson.elkins@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Patricia Pfeifer <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. It is so important that students learn to budget, save early in life and understand financial terms that they will encounter in life.

Let's not be one of only five states that excludes include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is most important for lower-income students who may come from families who are unbanked or underbanked. Moreover, many students who learn personal finance concepts in school bring these skills home to their parents, grandparents, and other family members, helping to combat the effects of intergenerational poverty.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Patricia Pfeifer
208 Spring Creek Dr NE
Albuquerque, NM 87122-2012

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Curriculum in Public Schools

darryl@leslieanimal.com <darryl@leslieanimal.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:55 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I oppose any teaching of Critical Race Theory in our schools. CRT's intent is to divide rather than unite. Children should be taught to respect differences among us and to celebrate the things that unite us. We are all citizens of the greatest country in the world and students should be taught to be proud of it, not to seek to destroy it. All peoples should be taught to be proud of who they are, not to make some feel guilty because of the color of their skin. People should be judged not by the color of their skin, but by their character which is the opposite of what CRT espouses.

Thank you,

Darryl B. Leslie DVM

[EXTERNAL] Feedback for Rule 6.29.11

Nancy Hooker <nhooker001@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:56 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (288 KB)

[EXTERNAL] Feedback for Rule 6.29.11;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Petition of the
Cimarron District Board of Education

Whereas, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

Whereas, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

Whereas, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico are of critical importance;

Whereas, the New Standards Draft is considerably more lengthy and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

Whereas, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

Whereas, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

Whereas, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

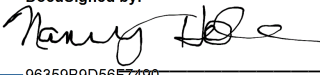

Whereas, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

Whereas, the Cimarron Municipal School District Board of Education (the “Board”) deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

Now therefore, the Board, by unanimous approval by its members, hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to at least July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

Respectively submitted,

Cimarron District Board of Education

DocuSigned by:

96359B9D56F7490...

Nancy Hooker, President

Date

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Michael Pfeifer <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:01 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. It is so important to learn the importance of budgeting and saving at an early age. I lived in another state as a child, but remember how proud I was of having my own savings account as an elementary student.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is important for all students, regardless of a family's financial status. Students who learn personal finance concepts are able to assist their parents, grandparents, and other family members, with managing their finances.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

I appreciate your considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Michael Pfeifer
208 Spring Creek Dr NE
Albuquerque, NM 87122-2012

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards Draft Feedback

Christopher Murphy <chrmur@pm.me>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I've recently read the New Mexico Social Studies Standards Draft Pre-Rule document and would like to express my pleasant surprise and support for the document as-written. As a father of 2 young children, who will be entering the Albuquerque Public School system within the next year, I'm encouraged to see New Mexico educators committed to crafting comprehensive and meaningful curricula. I believe these standards outline a body of education with the potential to empower and engage students in a powerful way at each step of their education.

I hope the document, if not adopted outright, informs our standards moving forward. Furthermore, I'm encouraged knowing that our educators are committed to advancing our collective knowledge and creating a more just and inclusive society.

Thank you,

Christopher Murphy

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards comments

Tina Kincaid <tak555@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:16 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am very disappointed and concerned that this hearing was changed to virtual only and the time to speak has been shortened, further silencing New Mexican parents from having a voice in the curriculum of their local schools. Since this change has been made with such short notice, to be fair, I hope you will consider extending the public comment period for this very important and life changing issue!

The proposed social studies standards for K-12 are very disturbing! These new standards should be teaching all of the elements in our U.S. History, especially the ones that helped make America the greatest nation in the history of the world. Our history is not perfect by any means, but to eliminate the good and rewrite history is destructive to the great pillars...the foundation of our Republic, our founding documents and the process our Founders went through to establish a nation upon the truths, that we are all CREATE EQUAL and how our government is supposed to work, with 3 branches with checks and balances to prevent over reach, and how our free enterprise system has contributed to the highest standard of living in the world and provides, EQUAL OPPORTUNITY not equal results.

This proposed curriculum will not only not teach our children, who are the future of America, what made America great, but will fuel division, and will teach our children a very disorted and biased idea that our country was and is a racist and dominated by a particular race (white). Our American children should be taught our country's complete and truthful history based upon facts that are found in our founding documents and the writings of those who were actually there and a part of our history. Racism and sexism should be limited to just the established facts and the revisionist accounts that are not based in fact and actually contribute the division, and the victim mentality that is being inculcated into our children's minds that will further erode our God given liberties and destroy our free country, and take us backward into tyranny, oppression and slavery, the likes most of us have never experienced before. We should be instilling in our young people a sense of pride in our country, a strong work ethic, that will help them achieve success and allow them to pursue happiness, and the freedom to pursue their dreams. Instead these proposed standards will do just the opposite promoting racial, gender, and political division rather than unifying our children (and citizens). Adopting these standards will encourage disloyalty and civil unrest in our county when we need unity more than ever. When we need to be encouraging them to think for themselves, and allowing for disagreement and polite respectful debate

So many people today are not familiar with the U.S. Constitution and how our government is supposed to work. New Mexico would do well by reinstating these lessons into social studies curriculum in lieu of the proposed changes. Free enterprise, unbounded opportunity, democratic ideals have made the United States a world leader in all elements of freedom for its citizens in an unprecedented amount of time. Our children should be taught about the sacrifices and ideals that delivered our nation where it is today and that we must continue to defend it.

So many people in history came to America because it was a beacon of hope, opportunity and freedom from tyranny and oppression. Adopting these standards would tear down what so many risked their lives for to get here, and what so many have fought and died to preserve for future generations. Please remove this proposed curriculum from consideration, or at least extend the comment period so that all concerned parents and citizens will be able to know and understand these changes and have a voice in their children's education.

Thank you for your consideration,

Tina Kincaid

Carlsbad NM

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the Rule

Joan Boudreau <joan.boudreau@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:17 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Critical Race Theory should not be taught in our schools including K-12, colleges, and universities. It, and its underlying concept of equity, are Marxist ideas in which economic class has been replaced with race.

Equality, as proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, guarantees equal rights under the law. Equity results in an end to private property, individual rights, federalism, and freedom of speech. It leads to race-based redistribution of wealth, group-based rights, active discrimination, and omnipotent bureaucratic authority. It is anti-American.

American is not systemically racist. CRT promotes racism.

Joan M Boudreau
1000 LOs Pueblos St.
Los Alamos, NM 87544

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies standards

Debaura James <debauraperu@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:18 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired teacher of Social Studies, I strongly urge you to accept the improvements/changes to the Standards. I especially applaud the interest in helping students discern what is fact and what is opinion as well as openly examining our nation's past with honesty.

--

Debaura James, Silver City, NM

SEED (Securing Economic and Energy Democracy)
100% Renewables Campaign
Campaign to END SACRIFICE ZONES

*The most common way people give up their power is by thinking they don't have any.
(Alice Walker)*

[EXTERNAL] Proposed social studies standards

Laura Stokes <stokescorrales@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:19 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I strongly support the new standards. This richer, more comprehensive and relevant curriculum will benefit not just students but everyone in New Mexico. Keeping students engaged in learning has multiple benefits for the entire community as well as the well-being of the student population. Students will have a much better understanding of their classmates and the world, making them more prepared to be critically thinking adults and responsible citizens.

Laura Stokes
retired APS teacher

[EXTERNAL] Nm studies standards

Tara Partow <partowtara@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:21 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I'm a New Mexico educator and I spent my first three years of working in schools in Gallup, NM. There are glaring gaps in the proposed high school NM studies standards whereas other courses have more than twice the number of requirements. I recognize that most students will have taken New Mexico history in middle school, but that will have been two years ago when they were virtually different people. The high school course makes no reference to indigenous people or history. What message does it send students when we teach them about indigenous people prior to conquest and colonization, but don't acknowledge the experiences and contributions of indigenous people and contributions in recent history and contemporary culture? Being real, the 7th grade standards look more rigorous and developmentally appropriate for older students.

Thank you,

Tara

--

Tara Partow

[EXTERNAL] The importance of truth

Vicki Plevin <vicplvn@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:23 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please do not allow a whitewashing of history. The people who say they want to ban Critical Race Theory want to hide the truth from our children. Across the country they are banning books in order to insure that our children learn history in a way that maintains the lie of white supremacy. This is a disservice to all our children and to the nation. It is the opposite of " freedom and justice for all." In order to build a multiracial democracy our children must understand how we got to where we are today, and how we can repair the injustices created by slavery and all forms of racial and ethnic discrimination. We cannot be fearful of the truth and survive as a democracy. Let's stop this right here and right now in New Mexico, before the proponents of ignorance succeed in burning and banning history. As a Jewish grandmother of three APS children, I am deeply worried about their safety when the organizers of bigotry seek to control their education.

Vicki Plevin

9100 Galaxia Way NE

Albuquerque, NM 87111

505-459-1776

[EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

Dr. Glenn Haven <ghaven@magschools.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: MMSD Board <mmsdboard@magschools.us>; MMSD Administration <mmsdadmin@magschools.us>; Kyl Candelaria <kyl.candelaria@magschools.us>; Cheremiah, Evanna <echeremiah@magschools.us>; Mizell, Dr. Kimberly <kmizell@bsin.k12.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (125 KB)

MMSD Resolution No. 2 Social Studies.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached you will find Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Resolution No. 2 in regards to the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum. This resolution was adopted at a regular open public meeting on October 18, 2021. Please consider this our written comment from Magdalena Municipal Schools for today's public hearing. Ahéhee'

We Are Steer Here! Steer Strong! And Still Steer Tough!

Dr. Glenn Haven

Superintendent

Magdalena Municipal Schools

Phone: (575) 854-8013

Cell: (505) 252-9554

FAX : (575) 854-2531

"My grandchild, education is the ladder. Tell our people to take it."

Chief Manuelito (Diné)

This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the system manager. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the named addressee you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

LYNN MAJOR, President
SHARON HARRIS, Vice President
KAYLA KERSEY, Secretary
KELBY STEPHENS, Member
BRETT BRUTON, Member

Magdalena Municipal Schools

P.O. BOX 24
MAGDALENA, NEW MEXICO 87825
PHONE 854-2241, FAX 854-2531

“OUR STUDENTS ARE OUR NUMBER ONE PRIORITY”

DR. GLENN HAVEN, Superintendent
LESLIE CLARK, Principal, MS/HS
JORY MIRABAL, Principal Elem.
KERI JAMES, Curriculum and
Instruction/Human Resources/Fed-State
Programs
R. DOROTHY ZAMORA, Business Manager

Resolution and Petition of the Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Regarding the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum
Resolution No.2

Whereas, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

Whereas, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

Whereas, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico are of critical importance;

Whereas, the Existing Standards are 26 pages in length and the New Standards Draft is 129 pages in length and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

Whereas, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

Whereas, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

Whereas, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle

the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

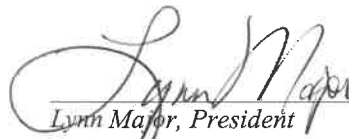

Whereas, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

Whereas, the Magdalena Municipal Public School District Board of Education (the "Board") deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

Now therefore, the Board, by unanimous approval by its members, hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

Respectively Adopted and Submitted by the Board of Education of the Magdalena Municipal School District, Socorro County, New Mexico, at the regular open public meeting thereof, held this 18th day of October 2021.

ATTEST: Board of Education

Lynn Major, President

Sharon Harris, Vice President

Kayla Kersey, Secretary

Kelby Stephens, Member

Brett Bruton, Member

Magdalena Municipal School District does not discriminate in employment or provision of services
On the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age, or handicapping condition

La falta de conocimiento de inglés o identificación como estudiante con necesidades especiales no serán barreras para la admisión en programas de enseñanza de educación técnica.

Lack of English language skills or identification as a special needs student will not be barriers to admission and participation in career technical education programs.

1898 of 2909

Bilagaana bizaad íhoóq'g'íí doyeegó bilbééhózingo éí doodaií óltaí' bich'j' ándahaaazi'f'gí éidóó yiniítáakaahda. Naanish ál'íigí dóó ba 'ihoo'aahgí bich'j'aa'a't'é.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Revisions

Dale Rutherford <dale@firststreetfirearms.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:28 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a grandparent of students in NM. I am concerned that we are polarizing our communities with this new social studies standards revision. There's one race and that's the human race. I don't care what branch of the human race you are. We are all equal when you look at us through God's eyes. We are all equal it doesn't matter what your skin color is or where you come from. This concept is also enshrined in the Declaration of Independence in that ALL men are created equal. This is what we must continue to teach our children.

To begin with I am concerned about these sections in the proposal:

5.12 describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.

7.28 evaluate how societies responses to different social identities lead to access and or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal instructional institutions, including butler not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.

7.60 demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of groups identities and cultures.

7.8 to use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.

These are opinionated pieces that do not teach a subject, this is teaching an opinion. This leaves a wide interpretation by the teacher, on presentation, instead of being factual and something to learn from. It leads to undue influence of the teacher.

It's too broad of a brush to paint with. It's like telling a black person you can't be the lieutenant governor of the state of Virginia because you're a black woman from Jamaica. In America, we're all given the equal rights to do whatever we want to do.

9.12 US 132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.

This appears to be solely anti-gun with no pro gun comments or teachings about the benefits of a society that uses guns to protect us as citizens.

The content needs to enable the students to learn from facts, analyze those facts and make their own determination versus being told what to think that often slants towards a liberal interpretation.

I do not want this being taught in New Mexico schools. Please review the revisions submitted by the Artesia schools social studies department..

--

Dale Rutherford-Owner
First Street Firearms LLC
1711 N. 1st St.
PO Box 509
Artesia, NM 88210
575-746-8974
<><

FW: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (125 KB)

MMSD Resolution No. 2 Social Studies.pdf;

From: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 8:29 AM

To: Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

FYI

From: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 8:28 AM

To: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

Here is the attachment

Kurt Steinhaus, Ed.D. | Secretary of Education (Designate)

New Mexico Public Education Department

300 Don Gaspar Ave. | Santa Fe, NM 87501

Appointments: Consuelo Constantine (505-309-2801, Consuelo.Constantine@state.nm.us)

Office: (505) 827-6452 | Help Desk: (505) 827-5800

Check us out here: NMPED News & Media

EQUITY • EXCELLENCE • RELEVANCE

From: Dr. Glenn Haven <ghaven@magschools.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 8:25 AM

To: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>; Bannerman, Vickie, PED <Vickie.Bannerman@state.nm.us>; Sandoval, Katarina, PED <Katarina.Sandoval@state.nm.us>; Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>

Cc: Lynn Major <lynn.major@magschools.us>; MMSD Administration <mmsdadmin@magschools.us>; Cheromiah, Evanna <echeromiah@magschools.us>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Secretary Steinhaus,

Attached you will find Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Resolution No. 2 in regards to the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum. This resolution was adopted at a regular open public meeting on October 13, 2021.

18, 2021. Ahéhee'

We Are Steer Here! Steer Strong! And Still Steer Tough!

Dr. Glenn Haven

Superintendent

Magdalena Municipal Schools

Phone: (575) 854-8013

Cell: (505) 252-9554

FAX : (575) 854-2531

"My grandchild, education is the ladder. Tell our people to take it."

Chief Manuelito (Diné)

This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the system manager. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the named addressee you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

LYNN MAJOR, President
SHARON HARRIS, Vice President
KAYLA KERSEY, Secretary
KELBY STEPHENS, Member
BRETT BRUTON, Member

Magdalena Municipal Schools

P.O. BOX 24
MAGDALENA, NEW MEXICO 87825
PHONE 854-2241, FAX 854-2531

“OUR STUDENTS ARE OUR NUMBER ONE PRIORITY”

DR. GLENN HAVEN, Superintendent
LESLIE CLARK, Principal, MS/HS
JORY MIRABAL, Principal Elem.
KERI JAMES, Curriculum and
Instruction/Human Resources/Fed-State
Programs
R. DOROTHY ZAMORA, Business Manager

Resolution and Petition of the Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Regarding the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum
Resolution No.2

Whereas, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

Whereas, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

Whereas, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico are of critical importance;

Whereas, the Existing Standards are 26 pages in length and the New Standards Draft is 129 pages in length and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

Whereas, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

Whereas, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

Whereas, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle

the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

Whereas, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

Whereas, the Magdalena Municipal Public School District Board of Education (the "Board") deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

Now therefore, the Board, by unanimous approval by its members, hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

Respectively Adopted and Submitted by the Board of Education of the Magdalena Municipal School District, Socorro County, New Mexico, at the regular open public meeting thereof, held this 18th day of October 2021.

ATTEST: Board of Education

Lynn Major, President

Sharon Harris, Vice President

Kayla Kersey, Secretary

Kelby Stephens, Member

Brett Bruton, Member

Magdalena Municipal School District does not discriminate in employment or provision of services
On the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age, or handicapping condition

La falta de conocimiento de inglés o identificación como estudiante con necesidades especiales no serán barreras para la admisión en programas de enseñanza de educación técnica.

Lack of English language skills or identification as a special needs student will not be barriers to admission and participation in career technical education programs.

1904 of 2909

Bilagaana bizaad íhoóq'g'íí doyeegó bilbééhózingo éí doodaií óltaí' bich'j' ándahaaazi'f'gí éidóó yiniítáakaahda. Naanish ál'íigí dóó ba 'ihoo'aahgí bich'j'áa'a't'é.

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards- 2021 Revision - YES... we need to adopt the newly revised Social Studies Standards

Patricia Jiménez-Latham <patricia@transformeducationnm.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The 2021 revision of the New Mexico Social Studies Standards is not about teaching the tenets of Critical Race Theory, but rather it is about honoring truth as one of our country's democratic core values. This value is also central to how we approach and therefore model the teaching of our society's children, youth and adults in ways that ensure a legacy of future communities of integrity. This precious and powerful endeavor, developed by New Mexican experts seeks to improve upon our past practices and go far beyond the traditional single narrative regarding the telling of our local, national and world histories. – It is time, our children deserve to learn about New Mexico's rich multicultural gifts- our people- and history.

Thank you for your time,

Patricia Jimenez-Latham

Retired NM Educator

505-350-1513

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Cindy Goetz <cindyatcutter@icloud.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:37 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please do not introduce CRT into our schools . School should be a place to learn FACTS not feelings. SOCIAL studies should be based on facts not the 'feelings of a few' .

Cindy Goetz

15287 Highway 187

Williamsburg, NM. 87942

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Public feedback on Social Studies

Nicole Brooks <codyandnicole@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:39 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a Christian mom of 3 children I'm doing my best to teach my kids to love God and love one another. As humans, we mess up and Forgiveness is big in our home.

But you masked our kids. Not ok.

Now the vaccines. Not ok.

If you push this CRT (which you won't say is CRT, but we all know it is) you will see a mass exodus like nothing you've ever seen before.

Don't mess with our kids!!

Remember, YOU work for US!

Not the other way around.

Best regards,

A very p off momma bear

[EXTERNAL] PED change to Social Studies Curriculum

June Coburn <junecob@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:41 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: Mr. Jon Sena

I am a retired Albuquerque Public School teacher. I taught first grade for 13 years at San Antonio Elementary School in Sandia Park, NM. After I retired, I worked as a substitute teacher, including kindergarten, until the Covid pandemic.

I have read the proposed standards for kindergarten. I have a concern about "Identify how individuals are similar and different". I believe that this is emphasizing the differences, which causes division - instead of emphasizing the similarities and thus encouraging unity. This is at a critical time in our nation, where we as a whole, seemingly have forgotten that we are United in one country.

I am strongly against the proposed standards, with a focus on diversity and identity. I absolutely believe in teaching and teaching all of the facts about our American History.

Thank you

June Coburn

[EXTERNAL] Feed back

Eliseo Aguirre <AguirreE@beleneagles.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:44 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We are open to revising the social studies standards in New Mexico but these standards and revisions should be to make the standards better not worse. They should also take students into account we understand that many standards should be addressed in the elementary level but very few are. Due to the prioritizing of English and math. So many students are not exposed to history standards until seventh grade. Unlike other subjects social studies does not align vertically the way other subjects do and because of this there is a lot reteaching going on at the high school level.

Working as teachers we focus not only on subject standards but on student engagement and student achievement. Because the proposed standards are so vague, we feel that they will be difficult to teach. Students right now must pass in the EOC provided by an NMPED to graduate and these questions are usually very specific. With no specific guidance on these broad and vague standards we feel they will hinder student achievement.

As proposed, some of the historical topics do not seem complete. The World History Section for high school is confusing because it has "sample topics and themes" that makes it seem that they are optional not required. Why do the other historical concepts have their themes and topics broken down but world history does not?

The ethnic cultural and identity section is going to be difficult to teach if adopted. We feel that many complaints will be filed towards teachers if this is adopted.

Some of the topics especially those in New Mexico history do not have good textbooks or materials to help with teaching. Will new materials be adopted or created? If this does happen how will schools purchase these materials? Funding is severely lacking and if the materials are not provided many hours of teacher research will be required. Will that time be compensated if NMPED or the state will not provide funding to buy materials?

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Julie Johnson <julie.jung.johnson@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:49 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the new proposed Social Studies standards. I am not in favor of changing the current standards this way. I believe that the timeframe to review the standards has not been sufficient for most stakeholders given the amount of changes proposed. From what I've read, many of the proposed changes include the teaching of historical events with opinion regarding race and racial equity that are currently debated in academia and in educational institutions which stand for teaching the truth of our history to the next generations. Racial essentialism and critical race theory have no place in primary education and disguising it in these new standards as factual is misleading and damaging to our children. The debate and discussion on critical race THEORY, belongs in higher education, not to be taught as fact to elementary and high school students.

Please consider more time for review of these standards and edits that remove teaching that we are divided into oppressor/oppressed groups because of race.

Thank you,

Juliana Johnson, BA, CG (ASCP)

Artesia, NM

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Social Studies Standards

Cindy Sims, PhD <cindy.sims@emsdbears.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:51 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Elaine Darnell <elaine.darnell@emsdbears.us>

Date: Tue, Nov 9, 2021 at 5:10 PM

Subject: Social Studies Standards

To: Cindy Sims, PhD <cindy.sims@emsdbears.us>

I believe that everything we teach in social studies should be based upon providing students with historical facts without bias. In today's political climate of division, it is especially important to present information carefully and clearly without adding an editorial, judgemental or slanted component. I fear that our country is increasingly moving toward open conflict because of misleading information that is perceived as fact on both sides of any conversation. Educators must continue to safeguard the young minds with whom they work each day. Our future rests on the shoulders of our educators who teach our children. They are up to the task, but must be supported with clear, unbiased standards

--

Elaine Darnell

Estancia Municipal Schools

School Board Vice President

elaine.darnell@emsdbears.us

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and attached documents may contain confidential information. All information is intended only for the use of the named recipient. If you are not the named recipient, you are not authorized to read, disclose, copy, distribute or take any action in reliance on the information and any action other than immediate delivery to the named recipient is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, do not read the information and please immediately notify sender by telephone or email to arrange for a return of the original documents. If you are the named recipient you are not authorized to reveal any of this information to any other unauthorized person. If you did not receive all pages listed or if pages are not legible, please immediately notify sender by phone or email.

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on SS Standards revision from Lovington Municipal School Teachers

Gandy, LeAnne <leannegandy@lovingtonschools.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (46 KB)

Copy of LMSD SS Feedback - All Grades.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached feedback from practitioners for Lovington Municipal Schools, regarding revisions to SS standards.

LeAnne Gandy

Superintendent

Lovington Municipal Schools

18 West Washington Avenue

Lovington, New Mexico 88260-4023

575.739.2200 Office

The Lovington Municipal School District does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, disability, or age in its educational programs, activities and employment. Furthermore, it provides equal access to designated youth groups. The following persons are designated to handle inquiries regarding the non-discrimination policies:

Stefanie Stephens

Coordinator of Assessment and Communications

18 West Washington Avenue

Lovington, New Mexico 88260-4023

Telephone: (575) 739-2181

Email: stefaniestephens@lovingtonschools.net

robertarreola@lovingtonschools.net

Robert Arreola

District Activities Director

701 West Avenue K

Lovington, New Mexico 88260-5514

Telephone: (575) 739-2266

Email:

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or confidential information. If you are not the intended recipient or have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete this email and any attachments without reading, copying or disclosing the contents. If you are not the intended recipient, any disclosure, copying, distribution or use of the contents is prohibited. Your receipt of this communication is not intended to waive any applicable privilege.

Timestamp	Email Address	Theme - Please type in theme that corresponds to your feedback (ex: The Land, people and resources of New Mexico.)	Anchor Standard - Please type in the anchor standard (ex: Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions)	Performance Standard - Please type in the number. (Ex: 7.23)	Feedback - Please provide feedback on the proposed revision to the standard in the context of the Anchor Standard or Theme.
		All Themes	All Anchor Standards	all	I think the entire revision is well thought out, easy to follow, leaves instructors the latitude to teach the material in a number of different ways, addresses different learning types, and is more rigorous than the previous Standards and Benchmarks.
		US History	General High School US History	General High School US History	Stand suggest going from 1491-present and it is impossible to cover everything in one year in a regular history class. Needs to be split like it has in the past. Inherently recognizing personal strengths is important for the development of a person as a whole. Cultural identity, self-worth, and positive attributes do need to be explored by the student. However, it is difficult for a teacher to instill positive attributes, and assume that a person sees something as a positive attribute or not. This particular idea will cause debate and stop the learning of students. As a professional historian, we feel that it is our job to point out the various ideas, but not to label something as good or bad. It is imperative that these conversations are held with the student and their parent to determine the final outcome.
		Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	19. Diversity and Identity	9-12.ECL.13	There is no issue in identifying various aspects of how people's identity impact the development of a society or nation. However, the idea of recognizing these, and causing separation is of no small impact, and in all practical purposes is in direct conflict with 9-12.ECI.13. In one sentence you are asking students to identify and value group identify without treating others as inferior, but in this you are asking to identify and show how these impact the develop of society and nation building. This holds back to the argument given over the issue of segregation in Plessy v. Ferguson which provided that simply separating groups does not make one inferior to the other. It is commonly held by historians and law professionals that this is impossible. You cannot separate and then assume that there will be no inferiority. This view point was upheld in the case of Brown v. Board of Education, that you cannot separate and expect things to be equal.
		Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	19. Diversity and Identity	9-12.ECL.15	There is not really an argument that the past was steeped in racism and bias against various groups, be it racial groups, ethnic, gender, or such. These laws have played a role in the development of the nation and the framework for which we live in. However, even liberal authors such as Howard Zinn argue that it is imperative to look at this, but not attempt to change these as they happened in the past. Our job is to attempt to figure out what to do in the present, not attempt to blame someone or something for the present situation based on the actions. If laws are written in an attempt to make one group inferior of the past, it is paramount that these laws are changed on the sole basis of the present, not the past. This interferes with the issue of 9-12.ECL.13, in that you are creating a substantial view of one group being inferior to another group.
		Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	19. Diversity and Identity	9-12.ECI.16	Identifying groups that attempt to bring about change is a significant part of studying history. However, it is prudent to do so when looking at the past, and then applying to future organization. While we can look back at organizations such as Martin Luther King Jr. and the civil rights movement, or the suffrage movement, and determine the impacts they have, it is difficult to do so with modern day groups. For example, modern day groups that attempt to push for change, are labeled by some as being revolutionary, while others would label them as rebellious. This distinction can cause there to be conflict with the goals of 9-12.ECI.13, which requires one group to not be seen as inferior to other groups. For example, how does the discussion on the impacts of Black Live Matter Movements, without making those who see it as a "violent rebellion," feel that they are being in the wrong?
		Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	21. Community Equity Building	9-12.ECI.21	While there is no argument that there are social constructs in place that are part of the structure and functions of the 21st century, it is impossible to avoid conflict with 9-13.ECL.13. There is no way to examine these events, in the context of modern day issues, without inadvertently placing blame upon a specific group of people. There is little to no justification for the implementation of this concept without harm to another group, as they will see themselves as being responsible for the implementation of those social constructs.
		Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo	9-12 NM 26, 13, & 17	"Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period"	This standard is asking student to "Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period". As we know land distribution and land grants have a long and controversial past within our state and territory, which still burns deep within many New Mexicans today. The question to ponder is what if race played no role at all? History, as we should know, is based on facts and truth, not theory and make believe. Effective history teachers engage students with facts and ask intriguing questions in order for them to "think outside the box". Our job is not the "who, what and when", but the "why"; this is also known as "cause and effect". Through facts and truth, we can learn from history, even from our darkest times. Standards NM 2 and NM 5 call for the usage of "evidence" and "multiple sources" to more or less build questions and strengthen claims through misconceptions. This standard itself, could be a misconception. What if our students determine that race did not, in fact, play a role? Are we on the "wrong side" of history? We are being asked to teach young adults to determine, and possibly believe, that race and racism was a factor during land distribution. What if it wasn't? Why should we invent ideas that do not hold truth? Our job is not to teach theories, but truth. Effective historians and teachers stir the minds of students naturally. Though some may believe that race and racism may have some to do with land re-distribution, some may disagree, therefore, why are teachers being made to teach to this standard? What picture are we trying to paint? Are we subliminally trying to say race is to blame? The perceived goal of this standard goes hand in hand with NM 13 and NM 17. Article X of the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo was stricken due to Secretary of State Buchanan believing that it was unnecessary. The US Constitution ensures American citizens enjoy the rights to life, liberty and property, therefore, in Buchanan's opinion, there was no need for Article X to be included. Why does this topic need separate standards to begin with? Is there an implication that Article X was stricken on the basis of race? If so, that is not accurate. It is a theory. In conclusion, the issue with these standards is not the material, it is the delivery and verbiage. We as historians should not shy away from our nation's and state's darkest times. We must teach with precision and accuracy with facts and evidence, not apparent notions. These standards can be perceived as racially inflammatory and manipulative; possibly making race an issue when, in fact, it was not.
		Inquiry	NM2 & NM5	call for the usage of "evidence" and "multiple sources" to more or less build questions and strengthen claims through misconceptions	This standard itself, could be a misconception. What if our students determine that race did not, in fact, play a role? Are we on the "wrong side" of history? We are being asked to teach young adults to determine, and possibly believe, that race and racism was a factor during land distribution. What if it wasn't? Why should we invent ideas that do not hold truth? Our job is not to teach theories, but truth. Effective historians and teachers stir the minds of students naturally. Though some may believe that race and racism may have some to do with land re-distribution, some may disagree, therefore, why are teachers being made to teach to this standard? What picture are we trying to paint? Are we subliminally trying to say race is to blame? In conclusion, the issue with these standards is not the material, it is the delivery and verbiage. We as historians should not shy away from our nation's and state's darkest times. We must teach with precision and accuracy with facts and evidence, not apparent notions. These standards can be perceived as racially inflammatory and manipulative; possibly making race an issue when, in fact, it was not.
		Spaces and Places	Theme 4: Geographic Representation and Reasoning	K. 18	I think this is an important skill for students to be exposed to and to begin understanding. Student very rarely ever see a physical map, but we use all sorts of maps all the time. It is important for students to be aware of their physical surroundings and to be able to map out geographical locations if ever in a situation that could be useful.

Timestamp	Email Address	Theme - Please type in theme that corresponds to your feedback (ex: The Land, people and resources of New Mexico.)	Anchor Standard - Please type in the anchor standard (ex: Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions)	Performance Standard - Please type in the number. (Ex: 7.23)	Feedback - Please provide feedback on the proposed revision to the standard in the context of the Anchor Standard or Theme.
		Social Identity	Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards	K.22, K.23, K.24, K.25	These additions to the Kindergarten Social Studies curriculum are asking teachers and students to point out differences rather than learn differences and celebrate them. Teaching students and shaping them to recognize differences this early in life seems like we are trying to a socialist society from the beginning. Students at this age are not able to understand these differences in people/families/cultures/beliefs appropriately. We read many book throughout the year that talk about differences in cultures, as in languages, and how we celebrate holidays, etc. this is the extent to which they can understand cultural differences among families. In my opinion it is not the schools job to teach differences in people's identify to this extent, rather the parent/guardians job. These are things that some families choose to teacher in different phases of life based off of their religion.
		Social Identity	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity	K.22, K.23, K.24, K.25	I believe that student's at the kindergarten age can not demonstrate an appropriate understanding of these standards. These standards are asking children to point out each other's differences in what seems to be a negative light, stating why they are different from each other. We encourage students to celebrate their differences and embrace them because that is what makes them unique. It is not our job to teach our students their identity, but instead their parents/guardians job.
		Theme 4: Cultures and Environment	Geography 10. Geographic Representation and Reasoning	2.21	With this revised standard, I can see that the students would be able to utilize mapping skills that are normally not used in this grade level. It will help students in years to come on testing and making connections within cultures.
		Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	6.22	It's too broad of a standard. It would be beneficial if specific events or examples were provided to guide my instruction.
		The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures	Civics 1: Civic and Political Institutions	6.23	It would be beneficial if it specified which civilization's social structures we need to focus on. For example, India's caste system
		Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks	Geography 10: Geographic Representations and Reasoning	6.49	It would be beneficial if the key religions which we need to focus on were listed. For example, Hinduism
		Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20 Identity in History	6.21	My question is "Whose personal events?" For example, students, teachers It would be beneficial if an example was provided.

[EXTERNAL] Fw: Changes in Social Studies being taught in NM Schools

Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:56 AM

To: Rodriguez, Aaron, PED <Aaron.Rodriguez2@state.nm.us>; Force, Kevin, PED <Kevin.Force@state.nm.us>; Mastalir, Dawn, PED <DawnE.Mastalir@state.nm.us>; Philip.Gloudemanos@state.nm.us <Philip.Gloudemanos@state.nm.us>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; johnsena@state.nm.us <johnsena@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning. We need your help in advising your client that we will be seeking IPRA, Inspection of Public Records to see how all this forcing CRT (although they have never said CRT, still the same thing.) was created and who is behind it. A fraud by any other name is still a fraud.

We are against any changes in Social Studies Curriculum that will teach our children to hate America, hate our history, hate our forefathers, hate white people, blame them for everything. Hate our great history.

Richard and Emilia Williams

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

To: Gene Reese <gene.reese.gr@gmail.com>; Tina Kincaid <tak555@yahoo.com>; david.rsi@hotmail.com <david.rsi@hotmail.com>; Rebecca Dow <rebecca@dowform.com>; Republican Party of New Mexico <contact@gopnm.org>; Larry <larrym_gdc@hotmail.com>

Sent: Saturday, October 9, 2021, 08:27:14 AM MDT

Subject: Fw: Changes in Social Studies being taught in NM Schools

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>; johnsena@state.nm.us <johnsena@state.nm.us>

Sent: Saturday, October 9, 2021, 08:24:48 AM MDT

Subject: Changes in Social Studies being taught in NM Schools

Good morning.

1. What is the rush to force New Mexico Schools to teach Critical Race Theory to be taught to our children? It is anti-American. No what name is used by the Public Education Department, it is being used to teach our children to hate America and to be ashamed of our great history, our leaders that put their lives on the line to defy the King of England and his dictator rulings.
2. Our children should be taught how great America is. If it is so bad according to CRT, why are there so many people trying to come into the United States to get away from dictatorships from around the world?
3. 3 whole minutes to give a person's view at the November meeting. Does that mean you have already made up your minds and this is just window dressing to pretend you listen to us taxpayers who through taxes and bond issues pay and pay so our children will have a good education, not a anti- American, anti-freedom, anti-capitalism, pro-socialist agenda.

4. We are against any changes in teaching of Social Studies in NM Schools and want to know also what your rush is to force the schools and our children to agree with the Democrats plan for a one party system.

Thank you for your time.

Richard and Emilia Williams

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Maker, Dymorie <dymoerimaker@lovingtongschools.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:00 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (15 KB)

Social Studies Standards Feedback.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

Attached you will find my comments regarding the proposed Social Studies standards; while many positive pieces exist, I have some concerns. Primarily, the recurring verbage throughout the document that displays bias, which is counterproductive to the intent of discussions that are consistently held across the state regarding equity.

Sincerely,

Dymorie Maker

President, Lovington Municipal Schools Board of Education

Vice-President, New Mexico School Boards Association

Performance Standard	Current Descriptor	Area of Concern
K.14	Identify how individuals are similar and different	As defined by LEA, or curriculum?
K.22- K.25	Social Identity Standards	As defined by LEA, or curriculum?
3.27	Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
7.61	Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
7.82	Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups	Assumes multiple items, without giving students the opportunity to think and discover for themselves.
7.94	Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
7.98	Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present	This is to be taught during the topic of Early American Territorial Period (1850-1880) ... inconsistent messaging by including the present day.
7.103	Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging, and explain how these traditions, rites and norms may have changed over time.
8.5	Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory	Assumptions made, rather than having the student determine if there is an inherent bias.
8.23	Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing and transforming the future.	Assumptions made, rather than having the student determine if there is, in fact, action needed for mending, healing and transforming the future..
8.76	Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
8.81	Describe how the KKK and other white supremacist organizations in the US arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions.	Highly subjective and controversial, particularly for this age group, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
8.83	Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.	Highly subjective and exclusive to recognizing only one cultural celebration; can be difficult for a teacher to teach without bias

[EXTERNAL] Support of the Proposed Social Studies Standards

Lisa Paz <lisampaz@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom this may concern-

I am the mother of two middle schoolers in the Rio Rancho Public School District. We are from the Pawnee and Comanche Nations and we are also Mexican-American.

I urge you to accept the new proposed social studies standards. The updating of our social studies standards is long overdue. I have many reasons for requesting this, but one major one is that the proposed standards add a focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies. This is in direct response to the Yazzie/Martinez ruling to provide a culturally and linguistically relevant curriculum for our students. The goal of this standard is to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation. With this standard, all students will see their communities and identities reflected in the historical narrative, making the content more relevant to their daily lives.

Thank you for your consideration,
Lisa Paz

[EXTERNAL] proposed rule changes-social studies

Joel Brown <joelbrown82@q.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:07 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I fully support the proposed rule changes to the social studies standards (11/12/2021). It is important for the education of all students in NM that they be taught an accurate version of history and cultural development in the state, region, nation and world. If we are to truly seek inclusion and diversity as goals that make us a better society, the standards are the minimum.

Joel Brown
1975 Avenida de Antigua
Las Cruces NM 88005

[EXTERNAL] Social studies

Susan McGrew <sumac3b@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired teacher, I know that we need an updated, more accurate, and more relevant social studies curriculum. Additionally, this revision focuses the material on an inquiry and critical thinking basis, so sorely needed in our public schools. Please do what is right and pass this update.

Susan McGrew
Santa Fe, NM
Sumac3b@gmail.com

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Curriculum

Jashley Wiberg <jashleywiberg@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am a parent in APS and i strongly oppose the proposed changes to the NM Social Studies Curriculum. I am a believer that every group, every race, every nationality, every ethnicity group matters. I think it is wrong to single out groups and make either side feel as if they have done something wrong. I believe history is best learned by sharing facts and not opinion. There are enough opinions on Social Media in our world and our kids need somewhere to go where they can receive unbiased facts. That is what school should be: Facts. I strongly oppose the changes proposed and ask that they remain out of the curriculum so that families who have parents that are involved in their children's lives and teach them morals will keep their students in the school system instead of feeling like the only way to teach our children facts is by homeschooling them.

Regards,
Jashley Wiberg

[EXTERNAL] No CRT in the Classroom

Kiran Androlewicz <kiran.nm.us@protonmail.ch>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: KRQE 13, TV <newsdesk@krqe.com>; koat_newstips@hearst.com <koat_newstips@hearst.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

NO CRITICAL RACE THEORY TO BE TAUGHT IN PUBLIC SCHOOL. AT ITS BEST IT UNDOES MLKS VISION, AT ITS WORST IT IS JUST PLAIN RACISM AND DISUNITY.

Sent from ProtonMail for iOS

[EXTERNAL] Support for draft NM Social Studies Standards

Dana Bell <danabelledit@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:14 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED and Legislators:

I am writing to urge your strong support of the new draft standards for social studies curriculum in public schools in New Mexico.

From my point of view as an education researcher as well as mother of two children who have benefited from education in New Mexico's public schools, I find them to be strong standards for ensuring that students learn what they need to be just citizens in our diverse state and country. They invite students across backgrounds to consider contributions of all groups to society, and support the complex thinking about history and diversity that students need to develop in order to be leaders, citizens and neighbors. The emphasis in the standards on teaching higher order inquiry skills and the ability to separate fact from opinion makes these standards critical for 21st century students. This, combined with a needed update to account for events that have occurred in the past twenty years, makes these standards important to support and implement.

These standards demonstrate careful thinking about race, ethnicity, culture and history, in ways that bypass the current politicized debates that use curriculum as a battlefield for "culture wars." Social media has inflamed an uninformed concern about "critical race theory", which, as a theoretical concept from legal and graduate studies, is not and has never been taught in K-12 settings. These standards reflect continuity and best practice in K-12 pedagogy, and I urge the state of New Mexico to ensure that best practice is offered to all of our children.

Sincerely,

Dana Bell

614 Alvarado Dr NE

Albuquerque, NM 87108

Director, Cradle to Career Policy Institute

University of New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] In support of Asian American Studies in proposed PED Social Studies Standards/Curriculum huong nmafc.org <huong@nmafc.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:16 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

I am writing in support of Asian American Studies, Ethnic Studies, and Critical Race Theory in the proposed PED Social Studies Standards/Curriculum.

As an Asian/Vietnamese American mother of two high schoolers at Cibola High, I want my children to learn about their own community's history, cultures/values, struggles and contributions. Having an accurate account of U.S. history, including the studies of Asian American and other race/ethnicity and the historical impact of laws and practices that have created systemic oppression of Asian Americans, and People of Color in America is necessary to create a culture that recognizes and understands the historical racial injustices that have existed and continue to exist within our country. My family and children need and want this education!

New Mexico is one of the only 6 majority-minority states. More than ever, this is overdue for NM to have such Social Studies standards and curriculum that include Asian American Studies, Ethnic Studies, and Critical Race Theory.

Thanks,
Huong Nguyen

[EXTERNAL] New Social Study Standards

Ruth Juarez <cometrice@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:19 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please consider adopting the following changes to our current K-12 education curriculum in Social Studies:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

Thank you

--

Ruth

ella, suya (Spanish) | she, her (English)

[EXTERNAL] Against the repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies

ted kamp <tedkampdpt@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:20 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in opposition to the proposed changes made to NMAC 6.29.11 Social Studies. I believe these changes incorporate ideas and opinions (not facts) that are divisive, anti-American, and far-left leaning. They cast our nation in a negative light that infers we are unjust and oppressive. I believe we can admit that historically the U.S. had made mistakes and not done everything right, but these proposed changes go too far and are not appropriate or based in truth. Thank you for your time.

Traci Kamp

[EXTERNAL] Carolyn Hong Chan's Comment on Social Studies Standards

Carolyn H. Chan <carochan@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:20 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (151 KB)

Carolyn Hong Chan's Comments for Social Studies Standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. John Sena
Policy Director, Public Education Department

Attached are my comments regarding New Mexico Social Studies Standards.

Respectfully,
Carolyn Hong Chan
Past National President
Chinese American Citizens Alliance
(505) 298-1727
carochan@aol.com

COMMENT ON NEW MEXICO SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS
NOVEMBER 12, 2021

I am Carolyn Hong Chan, former national president of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance (C.A.C.A.), one of the nation's oldest Asian American civil rights organization formed in 1895 in San Francisco in response to racism and prejudice that limited employment, education, housing, insurance, and banking opportunities. Our members are dedicated to enhancing civic pride, supporting community services and promoting responsible citizenship. I have also served as chairman of the National Advisory Council on Bilingual Education and Minority Language Affairs. In that capacity, I chaired a public hearing in Albuquerque to address language access needs of the diverse native and immigrant populations in New Mexico.

I grew up in the segregated South during Chinese exclusion and attended a one-room school of Chinese children until we were integrated in 1947. My parents, my siblings, and I intersected daily with customers of multi-ethnic backgrounds in our corner grocery store in a low-middle working class neighborhood. Some customers would use racist slurs, but our relationships were usually uneventful and even kind.

Even after student teaching in a white high school, I would not have been given a teacher's certificate. That changed when my husband and I moved to Albuquerque and I taught Native American, Hispanic, and White children at Old Town Elementary School. Although I formally taught five years in APS, many of my former students from sixty years ago have thanked me for my encouragement and attested to how sharing of my Chinese American culture has changed their lives.

Inclusion of the many rich cultures of our state is long overdue and would strengthen our national and world image. I strongly support inclusion of Asian American and Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islander history in the social studies standards. Their contributions in railroad building, agriculture, entrepreneurial enterprises, STEM, politics, arts and culture, defense, space exploration, and as tech developers, civil rights activists, first responders, and health care professionals, and Olympic athletes deserve recognition. Their stories can serve as inspirational role models for children and youth.

Most Americans are not aware that 20,000 Chinese American men and women served in World War II including 40 percent without citizenship. They fought for America in all branches of the military in all theaters of the war in spite of the discriminatory 1882 Chinese Exclusion Act in effect until it was repealed in 1943. Men and women, who volunteered to fight for a country that would not give them citizenship, demonstrated their patriotic loyalty. It has taken more than 76 years for their service to be recognized with the Congressional Gold Medal.

As the world gets smaller, Education about accomplishments of our diverse ethnicities comprising our state and nation strengthens our country's ability to compete. Students want stories about those who look like them and are empathetic with strong heroes who are resilient and persevere.

With the uptick in verbal and physical abuse against Asian Americans, efforts must be made to change attitudes and develop understanding of people regardless of race, gender, and abilities. It will take the efforts of teachers, parents, and community to change hearts and minds beginning with the youngest children.

California is the first state to require a unit in Asian American history for graduation from high school. Oregon's approach is integration throughout the curriculum from K-12. Washington, Illinois, Virginia and Connecticut are other states that are requiring ethnic studies. Parents, students, teachers, and community leaders can affect change.

Many resources are available online, at state museums, and the Smithsonian, National Parks, and National Archives websites. "From Invisible to Visible: The Chinese American Experience in Albuquerque" a virtual exhibit spearheaded by the Albuquerque chapter of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance, is available on the City of Albuquerque's website. Books, films, and PBS programs such as "The Chinese Exclusion Act," "Becoming American," and "The Asian Americans" are historically informative. Bring AAPI, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders to the schools to share their stories and culture with teachers and students.

The review to be more inclusive of the many cultures in our state is long overdue. I strongly urge that Asian American and Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander history be included in the social studies curriculum. We would welcome the opportunity to work with the PED to develop lesson plans about AANHPI history and culture. Without inclusion of Asian American history in social studies standards, American History is incomplete.

Respectfully,
Carolyn Hong Chan
Past National President
Chinese American Citizens Alliance
carochan@aol.com
(505) 835-5179

[EXTERNAL] The change to should extended

julie catuccio <juliecatuccio@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am asking this board to stop this change of indoctrination of our children with this bizarre curriculum. I have read a few examples of what this curriculum consists of and it is DISTURBING ! Children in this state are being left behind by other states leave the indoctrination to the parent - focus on what REALLY matters reading n math ! THIS PROPOSAL SHOULD NOT BE ADOPTED BY THIS ADMINISTRATION !

[EXTERNAL] PDA Social Study Standards

Mike Hanna <mike112447@outlook.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am strongly in favor of the proposed PDA Social Study standards .

Mike Hanna 2 San Juan Trail,

Corrales, NM 87048

Get Outlook for iOS

[EXTERNAL] Feedback for Rule 6.29.11

Nancy Hooker <nhooker001@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 7:56 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (288 KB)

[EXTERNAL] Feedback for Rule 6.29.11;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Petition of the
Cimarron District Board of Education

Whereas, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

Whereas, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

Whereas, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico are of critical importance;

Whereas, the New Standards Draft is considerably more lengthy and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

Whereas, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

Whereas, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

Whereas, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

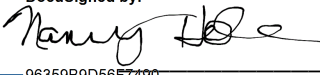

Whereas, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

Whereas, the Cimarron Municipal School District Board of Education (the “Board”) deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

Now therefore, the Board, by unanimous approval by its members, hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to at least July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

Respectively submitted,

Cimarron District Board of Education

DocuSigned by:

96359B9D56F7490...

Nancy Hooker, President

Date

[EXTERNAL] Add Personal Finance Standards to 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Michael Pfeifer <mailagent@thesoftedge.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:01 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. Sena:

I am writing to urge you to adopt the recommended revisions submitted by Think New Mexico and add substantive personal finance standards to the economics standards in 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. It is so important to learn the importance of budgeting and saving at an early age. I lived in another state as a child, but remember how proud I was of having my own savings account as an elementary student.

New Mexico is one of only five states that fails to include personal finance in its education standards. This means that our schools are failing to teach students essential life skills and concepts like budgeting, checking and savings accounts, credit, interest, investing, and the costs of borrowing. Every student needs this education, whether they are going on to college or entering the workforce.

Including strong personal finance benchmarks in New Mexico's education standards is also an anti-poverty strategy that will advance educational equity. Personal finance education is important for all students, regardless of a family's financial status. Students who learn personal finance concepts are able to assist their parents, grandparents, and other family members, with managing their finances.

Think New Mexico's proposed personal finance standards would make sure that every student in New Mexico has the opportunity to learn essential personal finance skills before they graduate from high school, benefitting them for the rest of their lives. I strongly urge you to adopt Think New Mexico's recommendation.

I appreciate your considering my comments.

Sincerely,

Michael Pfeifer
208 Spring Creek Dr NE
Albuquerque, NM 87122-2012

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards Draft Feedback

Christopher Murphy <chrmur@pm.me>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I've recently read the New Mexico Social Studies Standards Draft Pre-Rule document and would like to express my pleasant surprise and support for the document as-written. As a father of 2 young children, who will be entering the Albuquerque Public School system within the next year, I'm encouraged to see New Mexico educators committed to crafting comprehensive and meaningful curricula. I believe these standards outline a body of education with the potential to empower and engage students in a powerful way at each step of their education.

I hope the document, if not adopted outright, informs our standards moving forward. Furthermore, I'm encouraged knowing that our educators are committed to advancing our collective knowledge and creating a more just and inclusive society.

Thank you,

Christopher Murphy

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards comments

Tina Kincaid <tak555@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:16 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am very disappointed and concerned that this hearing was changed to virtual only and the time to speak has been shortened, further silencing New Mexican parents from having a voice in the curriculum of their local schools. Since this change has been made with such short notice, to be fair, I hope you will consider extending the public comment period for this very important and life changing issue!

The proposed social studies standards for K-12 are very disturbing! These new standards should be teaching all of the elements in our U.S. History, especially the ones that helped make America the greatest nation in the history of the world. Our history is not perfect by any means, but to eliminate the good and rewrite history is destructive to the great pillars...the foundation of our Republic, our founding documents and the process our Founders went through to establish a nation upon the truths, that we are all CREATE EQUAL and how our government is supposed to work, with 3 branches with checks and balances to prevent over reach, and how our free enterprise system has contributed to the highest standard of living in the world and provides, EQUAL OPPORTUNITY not equal results.

This proposed curriculum will not only not teach our children, who are the future of America, what made America great, but will fuel division, and will teach our children a very disorted and biased idea that our country was and is a racist and dominated by a particular race (white). Our American children should be taught our country's complete and truthful history based upon facts that are found in our founding documents and the writings of those who were actually there and a part of our history. Racism and sexism should be limited to just the established facts and the revisionist accounts that are not based in fact and actually contribute the division, and the victim mentality that is being inculcated into our children's minds that will further erode our God given liberties and destroy our free country, and take us backward into tyranny, oppression and slavery, the likes most of us have never experienced before. We should be instilling in our young people a sense of pride in our country, a strong work ethic, that will help them achieve success and allow them to pursue happiness, and the freedom to pursue their dreams. Instead these proposed standards will do just the opposite promoting racial, gender, and political division rather than unifying our children (and citizens). Adopting these standards will encourage disloyalty and civil unrest in our county when we need unity more than ever. When we need to be encouraging them to think for themselves, and allowing for disagreement and polite respectful debate

So many people today are not familiar with the U.S. Constitution and how our government is supposed to work. New Mexico would do well by reinstating these lessons into social studies curriculum in lieu of the proposed changes. Free enterprise, unbounded opportunity, democratic ideals have made the United States a world leader in all elements of freedom for its citizens in an unprecedented amount of time. Our children should be taught about the sacrifices and ideals that delivered our nation where it is today and that we must continue to defend it.

So many people in history came to America because it was a beacon of hope, opportunity and freedom from tyranny and oppression. Adopting these standards would tear down what so many risked their lives for to get here, and what so many have fought and died to preserve for future generations. Please remove this proposed curriculum from consideration, or at least extend the comment period so that all concerned parents and citizens will be able to know and understand these changes and have a voice in their children's education.

Thank you for your consideration,
Tina Kincaid
Carlsbad NM

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the Rule

Joan Boudreau <joan.boudreau@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:17 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Critical Race Theory should not be taught in our schools including K-12, colleges, and universities. It, and its underlying concept of equity, are Marxist ideas in which economic class has been replaced with race.

Equality, as proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, guarantees equal rights under the law. Equity results in an end to private property, individual rights, federalism, and freedom of speech. It leads to race-based redistribution of wealth, group-based rights, active discrimination, and omnipotent bureaucratic authority. It is anti-American.

American is not systemically racist. CRT promotes racism.

Joan M Boudreau
1000 LOs Pueblos St.
Los Alamos, NM 87544

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies standards

Debaura James <debauraperu@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:18 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired teacher of Social Studies, I strongly urge you to accept the improvements/changes to the Standards. I especially applaud the interest in helping students discern what is fact and what is opinion as well as openly examining our nation's past with honesty.

--

Debaura James, Silver City, NM

SEED (Securing Economic and Energy Democracy)
100% Renewables Campaign
Campaign to END SACRIFICE ZONES

*The most common way people give up their power is by thinking they don't have any.
(Alice Walker)*

[EXTERNAL] Proposed social studies standards

Laura Stokes <stokescorrales@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:19 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I strongly support the new standards. This richer, more comprehensive and relevant curriculum will benefit not just students but everyone in New Mexico. Keeping students engaged in learning has multiple benefits for the entire community as well as the well-being of the student population. Students will have a much better understanding of their classmates and the world, making them more prepared to be critically thinking adults and responsible citizens.

Laura Stokes
retired APS teacher

[EXTERNAL] Nm studies standards

Tara Partow <partowtara@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:21 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I'm a New Mexico educator and I spent my first three years of working in schools in Gallup, NM. There are glaring gaps in the proposed high school NM studies standards whereas other courses have more than twice the number of requirements. I recognize that most students will have taken New Mexico history in middle school, but that will have been two years ago when they were virtually different people. The high school course makes no reference to indigenous people or history. What message does it send students when we teach them about indigenous people prior to conquest and colonization, but don't acknowledge the experiences and contributions of indigenous people and contributions in recent history and contemporary culture? Being real, the 7th grade standards look more rigorous and developmentally appropriate for older students.

Thank you,

Tara

--

Tara Partow

[EXTERNAL] The importance of truth

Vicki Plevin <vicplvn@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:23 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please do not allow a whitewashing of history. The people who say they want to ban Critical Race Theory want to hide the truth from our children. Across the country they are banning books in order to insure that our children learn history in a way that maintains the lie of white supremacy. This is a disservice to all our children and to the nation. It is the opposite of " freedom and justice for all." In order to build a multiracial democracy our children must understand how we got to where we are today, and how we can repair the injustices created by slavery and all forms of racial and ethnic discrimination. We cannot be fearful of the truth and survive as a democracy. Let's stop this right here and right now in New Mexico, before the proponents of ignorance succeed in burning and banning history. As a Jewish grandmother of three APS children, I am deeply worried about their safety when the organizers of bigotry seek to control their education.

Vicki Plevin

9100 Galaxia Way NE

Albuquerque, NM 87111

505-459-1776

[EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

Dr. Glenn Haven <ghaven@magschools.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: MMSD Board <mmsdboard@magschools.us>; MMSD Administration <mmsdadmin@magschools.us>; Kyl Candelaria <kyl.candelaria@magschools.us>; Cheremiah, Evanna <echeremiah@magschools.us>; Mizell, Dr. Kimberly <kmizell@bsin.k12.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (125 KB)

MMSD Resolution No. 2 Social Studies.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Attached you will find Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Resolution No. 2 in regards to the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum. This resolution was adopted at a regular open public meeting on October 18, 2021. Please consider this our written comment from Magdalena Municipal Schools for today's public hearing. Ahéhee'

We Are Steer Here! Steer Strong! And Still Steer Tough!

Dr. Glenn Haven

Superintendent

Magdalena Municipal Schools

Phone: (575) 854-8013

Cell: (505) 252-9554

FAX : (575) 854-2531

"My grandchild, education is the ladder. Tell our people to take it."

Chief Manuelito (Diné)

This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the system manager. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the named addressee you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

LYNN MAJOR, President
SHARON HARRIS, Vice President
KAYLA KERSEY, Secretary
KELBY STEPHENS, Member
BRETT BRUTON, Member

Magdalena Municipal Schools

P.O. BOX 24
MAGDALENA, NEW MEXICO 87825
PHONE 854-2241, FAX 854-2531

“OUR STUDENTS ARE OUR NUMBER ONE PRIORITY”

DR. GLENN HAVEN, Superintendent
LESLIE CLARK, Principal, MS/HS
JORY MIRABAL, Principal Elem.
KERI JAMES, Curriculum and
Instruction/Human Resources/Fed-State
Programs
R. DOROTHY ZAMORA, Business Manager

Resolution and Petition of the Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Regarding the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum
Resolution No.2

Whereas, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

Whereas, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

Whereas, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico are of critical importance;

Whereas, the Existing Standards are 26 pages in length and the New Standards Draft is 129 pages in length and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

Whereas, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

Whereas, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

Whereas, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle

the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

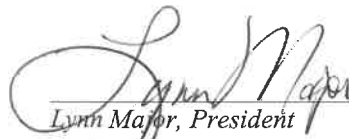

Whereas, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

Whereas, the Magdalena Municipal Public School District Board of Education (the "Board") deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

Now therefore, the Board, by unanimous approval by its members, hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

Respectively Adopted and Submitted by the Board of Education of the Magdalena Municipal School District, Socorro County, New Mexico, at the regular open public meeting thereof, held this 18th day of October 2021.

ATTEST: Board of Education

Lynn Major, President

Sharon Harris, Vice President

Kayla Kersey, Secretary

Kelby Stephens, Member

Brett Bruton, Member

Magdalena Municipal School District does not discriminate in employment or provision of services
On the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age, or handicapping condition

La falta de conocimiento de inglés o identificación como estudiante con necesidades especiales no serán barreras para la admisión en programas de enseñanza de educación técnica.

Lack of English language skills or identification as a special needs student will not be barriers to admission and participation in career technical education programs.

1948 of 2909

Bilagaana bizaad íhoóq'g'íí doyeegó bilbééhózingo éí doodaií óltaí' bich'j' ándahaaazi'í'gí éidóó yiniítáakaahda. Naanish ál'íigí dóó ba 'ihoo'aahgí bich'j'áa'a't'é.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Revisions

Dale Rutherford <dale@firststreetfirearms.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:28 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a grandparent of students in NM. I am concerned that we are polarizing our communities with this new social studies standards revision. There's one race and that's the human race. I don't care what branch of the human race you are. We are all equal when you look at us through God's eyes. We are all equal it doesn't matter what your skin color is or where you come from. This concept is also enshrined in the Declaration of Independence in that ALL men are created equal. This is what we must continue to teach our children.

To begin with I am concerned about these sections in the proposal:

5.12 describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.

7.28 evaluate how societies responses to different social identities lead to access and or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal instructional institutions, including butler not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.

7.60 demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of groups identities and cultures.

7.8 to use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.

These are opinionated pieces that do not teach a subject, this is teaching an opinion. This leaves a wide interpretation by the teacher, on presentation, instead of being factual and something to learn from. It leads to undue influence of the teacher.

It's too broad of a brush to paint with. It's like telling a black person you can't be the lieutenant governor of the state of Virginia because you're a black woman from Jamaica. In America, we're all given the equal rights to do whatever we want to do.

9.12 US 132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.

This appears to be solely anti-gun with no pro gun comments or teachings about the benefits of a society that uses guns to protect us as citizens.

The content needs to enable the students to learn from facts, analyze those facts and make their own determination versus being told what to think that often slants towards a liberal interpretation.

I do not want this being taught in New Mexico schools. Please review the revisions submitted by the Artesia schools social studies department..

--

Dale Rutherford-Owner
First Street Firearms LLC
1711 N. 1st St.
PO Box 509
Artesia, NM 88210
575-746-8974
<><

FW: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (125 KB)

MMSD Resolution No. 2 Social Studies.pdf;

From: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 8:29 AM

To: Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

FYI

From: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 8:28 AM

To: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

Here is the attachment

Kurt Steinhaus, Ed.D. | Secretary of Education (Designate)

New Mexico Public Education Department

300 Don Gaspar Ave. | Santa Fe, NM 87501

Appointments: Consuelo Constantine (505-309-2801, Consuelo.Constantine@state.nm.us)

Office: (505) 827-6452 | Help Desk: (505) 827-5800

Check us out here: NMPED News & Media

EQUITY • EXCELLENCE • RELEVANCE

From: Dr. Glenn Haven <ghaven@magschools.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 8:25 AM

To: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>; Bannerman, Vickie, PED <Vickie.Bannerman@state.nm.us>; Sandoval, Katarina, PED <Katarina.Sandoval@state.nm.us>; Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>

Cc: Lynn Major <lynn.major@magschools.us>; MMSD Administration <mmsdadmin@magschools.us>; Cheremiah, Evanna <echeremiah@magschools.us>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] MMSD Board Resolution No. 2

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Secretary Steinhaus,

Attached you will find Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Resolution No. 2 in regards to the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum. This resolution was adopted at a regular open public meeting on October 19, 2021.

18, 2021. Ahéhee'

We Are Steer Here! Steer Strong! And Still Steer Tough!

Dr. Glenn Haven

Superintendent

Magdalena Municipal Schools

Phone: (575) 854-8013

Cell: (505) 252-9554

FAX : (575) 854-2531

"My grandchild, education is the ladder. Tell our people to take it."

Chief Manuelito (Diné)

This email and any files transmitted with it are confidential and intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you have received this email in error please notify the system manager. This message contains confidential information and is intended only for the individual named. If you are not the named addressee you should not disseminate, distribute or copy this e-mail. Please notify the sender immediately by e-mail if you have received this e-mail by mistake and delete this e-mail from your system. If you are not the intended recipient you are notified that disclosing, copying, distributing or taking any action in reliance on the contents of this information is strictly prohibited.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

LYNN MAJOR, President
SHARON HARRIS, Vice President
KAYLA KERSEY, Secretary
KELBY STEPHENS, Member
BRETT BRUTON, Member

Magdalena Municipal Schools

P.O. BOX 24
MAGDALENA, NEW MEXICO 87825
PHONE 854-2241, FAX 854-2531

“OUR STUDENTS ARE OUR NUMBER ONE PRIORITY”

DR. GLENN HAVEN, Superintendent
LESLIE CLARK, Principal, MS/HS
JORY MIRABAL, Principal Elem.
KERI JAMES, Curriculum and
Instruction/Human Resources/Fed-State
Programs
R. DOROTHY ZAMORA, Business Manager

Resolution and Petition of the Magdalena Municipal School District Board of Education Regarding the Adoption of Social Studies Curriculum
Resolution No.2

Whereas, in June of 2009, the Public Education Department of the State of New Mexico (“PED”) adopted comprehensive Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “Existing Standards”);

Whereas, the PED has prepared a draft of new Social Studies Standards for New Mexico for kindergarten through the 12th grade (the “New Standards Draft”) and only recently has made the New Standards Draft available for review;

Whereas, social studies and the standards of social studies that are to be taught to the students of New Mexico are of critical importance;

Whereas, the Existing Standards are 26 pages in length and the New Standards Draft is 129 pages in length and contains numerous material additions and revisions to the Existing Standards;

Whereas, substantial time, resources, research, and efforts of school administrators and teachers, including social studies teachers, will be necessary to properly evaluate, carefully consider, and thoughtfully offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, other stakeholders, including parents and others in the community, need time to review and provide comments regarding the New Standards Draft;

Whereas, due to the events of the past year and a half, almost all of our students are behind in their education, including some who are behind as much as a year;

Whereas, school districts in New Mexico are continuing to address numerous Covid 19 issues;

Whereas, the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel are working overtime to help our students achieve their proper grade level, handle

the myriad complexities resulting from the Covid 19 pandemic, and perform their regular jobs, which has resulted in considerable stress and fatigue;

Whereas, due to the extreme workload of the school administrators, teachers, and other district personnel, they do not have the time to adequately read, evaluate, research, and offer possible revisions to the New Standards Draft at this time and during this school year;

Whereas, the Magdalena Municipal Public School District Board of Education (the "Board") deems the proper vetting and critical review of the New Standards Draft to be of the utmost importance;

Now therefore, the Board, by unanimous approval by its members, hereby petitions the PED to grant the school districts in New Mexico and the public a time period extending to July 1, 2022, to adequately review, research, and provide comments and proposed changes to the New Standards Draft.

Respectively Adopted and Submitted by the Board of Education of the Magdalena Municipal School District, Socorro County, New Mexico, at the regular open public meeting thereof, held this 18th day of October 2021.

ATTEST: Board of Education

Lynn Major, President

Sharon Harris, Vice President

Kayla Kersey, Secretary

Kelby Stephens, Member

Brett Bruton, Member

Magdalena Municipal School District does not discriminate in employment or provision of services
On the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, age, or handicapping condition

La falta de conocimiento de inglés o identificación como estudiante con necesidades especiales no serán barreras para la admisión en programas de enseñanza de educación técnica.

Lack of English language skills or identification as a special needs student will not be barriers to admission and participation in career technical education programs.

1954 of 2909

Bilagaana bizaad íhoóq'g'íí doyeegó bilbééhózingo éí doodaií óltaf' bich'j' ándahaaazi'f'gí éidóó yiniítáakaahda. Naanish ál'íigí dóó ba 'ihoo'aahgí bich'j'aa'a't'é.

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Standards- 2021 Revision - YES... we need to adopt the newly revised Social Studies Standards

Patricia Jiménez-Latham <patricia@transformeducationnm.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The 2021 revision of the New Mexico Social Studies Standards is not about teaching the tenets of Critical Race Theory, but rather it is about honoring truth as one of our country's democratic core values. This value is also central to how we approach and therefore model the teaching of our society's children, youth and adults in ways that ensure a legacy of future communities of integrity. This precious and powerful endeavor, developed by New Mexican experts seeks to improve upon our past practices and go far beyond the traditional single narrative regarding the telling of our local, national and world histories. – It is time, our children deserve to learn about New Mexico's rich multicultural gifts- our people- and history.

Thank you for your time,

Patricia Jimenez-Latham

Retired NM Educator

505-350-1513

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Cindy Goetz <cindyatcutter@icloud.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:37 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please do not introduce CRT into our schools . School should be a place to learn FACTS not feelings. SOCIAL studies should be based on facts not the 'feelings of a few' .

Cindy Goetz

15287 Highway 187

Williamsburg, NM. 87942

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Public feedback on Social Studies

Nicole Brooks <codyandnicole@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:39 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a Christian mom of 3 children I'm doing my best to teach my kids to love God and love one another. As humans, we mess up and Forgiveness is big in our home.

But you masked our kids. Not ok.

Now the vaccines. Not ok.

If you push this CRT (which you won't say is CRT, but we all know it is) you will see a mass exodus like nothing you've ever seen before.

Don't mess with our kids!!

Remember, YOU work for US!

Not the other way around.

Best regards,

A very p off momma bear

[EXTERNAL] PED change to Social Studies Curriculum

June Coburn <junecob@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:41 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: Mr. Jon Sena

I am a retired Albuquerque Public School teacher. I taught first grade for 13 years at San Antonio Elementary School in Sandia Park, NM. After I retired, I worked as a substitute teacher, including kindergarten, until the Covid pandemic.

I have read the proposed standards for kindergarten. I have a concern about "Identify how individuals are similar and different". I believe that this is emphasizing the differences, which causes division - instead of emphasizing the similarities and thus encouraging unity. This is at a critical time in our nation, where we as a whole, seemingly have forgotten that we are United in one country.

I am strongly against the proposed standards, with a focus on diversity and identity. I absolutely believe in teaching and teaching all of the facts about our American History.

Thank you

June Coburn

[EXTERNAL] Feed back

Eliseo Aguirre <AguirreE@beleneagles.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:44 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

We are open to revising the social studies standards in New Mexico but these standards and revisions should be to make the standards better not worse. They should also take students into account we understand that many standards should be addressed in the elementary level but very few are. Due to the prioritizing of English and math. So many students are not exposed to history standards until seventh grade. Unlike other subjects social studies does not align vertically the way other subjects do and because of this there is a lot reteaching going on at the high school level.

Working as teachers we focus not only on subject standards but on student engagement and student achievement. Because the proposed standards are so vague, we feel that they will be difficult to teach. Students right now must pass in the EOC provided by an NMPED to graduate and these questions are usually very specific. With no specific guidance on these broad and vague standards we feel they will hinder student achievement.

As proposed, some of the historical topics do not seem complete. The World History Section for high school is confusing because it has "sample topics and themes" that makes it seem that they are optional not required. Why do the other historical concepts have their themes and topics broken down but world history does not?

The ethnic cultural and identity section is going to be difficult to teach if adopted. We feel that many complaints will be filed towards teachers if this is adopted.

Some of the topics especially those in New Mexico history do not have good textbooks or materials to help with teaching. Will new materials be adopted or created? If this does happen how will schools purchase these materials? Funding is severely lacking and if the materials are not provided many hours of teacher research will be required. Will that time be compensated if NMPED or the state will not provide funding to buy materials?

Sent from Mail for Windows

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Julie Johnson <julie.jung.johnson@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:49 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the new proposed Social Studies standards. I am not in favor of changing the current standards this way. I believe that the timeframe to review the standards has not been sufficient for most stakeholders given the amount of changes proposed. From what I've read, many of the proposed changes include the teaching of historical events with opinion regarding race and racial equity that are currently debated in academia and in educational institutions which stand for teaching the truth of our history to the next generations. Racial essentialism and critical race theory have no place in primary education and disguising it in these new standards as factual is misleading and damaging to our children. The debate and discussion on critical race THEORY, belongs in higher education, not to be taught as fact to elementary and high school students.

Please consider more time for review of these standards and edits that remove teaching that we are divided into oppressor/oppressed groups because of race.

Thank you,

Juliana Johnson, BA, CG (ASCP)
Artesia, NM

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Social Studies Standards

Cindy Sims, PhD <cindy.sims@emsdbears.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:51 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Elaine Darnell <elaine.darnell@emsdbears.us>

Date: Tue, Nov 9, 2021 at 5:10 PM

Subject: Social Studies Standards

To: Cindy Sims, PhD <cindy.sims@emsdbears.us>

I believe that everything we teach in social studies should be based upon providing students with historical facts without bias. In today's political climate of division, it is especially important to present information carefully and clearly without adding an editorial, judgemental or slanted component. I fear that our country is increasingly moving toward open conflict because of misleading information that is perceived as fact on both sides of any conversation. Educators must continue to safeguard the young minds with whom they work each day. Our future rests on the shoulders of our educators who teach our children. They are up to the task, but must be supported with clear, unbiased standards

--

Elaine Darnell

Estancia Municipal Schools

School Board Vice President

elaine.darnell@emsdbears.us

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and attached documents may contain confidential information. All information is intended only for the use of the named recipient. If you are not the named recipient, you are not authorized to read, disclose, copy, distribute or take any action in reliance on the information and any action other than immediate delivery to the named recipient is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, do not read the information and please immediately notify sender by telephone or email to arrange for a return of the original documents. If you are the named recipient you are not authorized to reveal any of this information to any other unauthorized person. If you did not receive all pages listed or if pages are not legible, please immediately notify sender by phone or email.

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on SS Standards revision from Lovington Municipal School Teachers

Gandy, LeAnne <leannegandy@lovingtonschools.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

📎 1 attachments (46 KB)

Copy of LMSD SS Feedback - All Grades.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached feedback from practitioners for Lovington Municipal Schools, regarding revisions to SS standards.

LeAnne Gandy

Superintendent

Lovington Municipal Schools

18 West Washington Avenue

Lovington, New Mexico 88260-4023

575.739.2200 Office

The Lovington Municipal School District does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, disability, or age in its educational programs, activities and employment. Furthermore, it provides equal access to designated youth groups. The following persons are designated to handle inquiries regarding the non-discrimination policies:

Stefanie Stephens

Coordinator of Assessment and Communications

18 West Washington Avenue

Lovington, New Mexico 88260-4023

Telephone: (575) 739-2181

Email: stefaniestephens@lovingtonschools.net

robertarreola@lovingtonschools.net

Robert Arreola

District Activities Director

701 West Avenue K

Lovington, New Mexico 88260-5514

Telephone: (575) 739-2266

Email:

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or confidential information. If you are not the intended recipient or have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete this email and any attachments without reading, copying or disclosing the contents. If you are not the intended recipient, any disclosure, copying, distribution or use of the contents is prohibited. Your receipt of this communication is not intended to waive any applicable privilege.

Timestamp	Email Address	Theme - Please type in theme that corresponds to your feedback (ex: The Land, people and resources of New Mexico.)	Anchor Standard - Please type in the anchor standard (ex: Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions)	Performance Standard - Please type in the number. (Ex: 7.23)	Feedback - Please provide feedback on the proposed revision to the standard in the context of the Anchor Standard or Theme.
		All Themes	All Anchor Standards	all	I think the entire revision is well thought out, easy to follow, leaves instructors the latitude to teach the material in a number of different ways, addresses different learning types, and is more rigorous than the previous Standards and Benchmarks.
		US History	General High School US History	General High School US History	Stand suggest going from 1491-present and it is impossible to cover everything in one year in a regular history class. Needs to be split like it has in the past. Inherently recognizing personal strengths is important for the development of a person as a whole. Cultural identity, self-worth, and positive attributes do need to be explored by the student. However, it is difficult for a teacher to instill positive attributes, and assume that a person sees something as a positive attribute or not. This particular idea will cause debate and stop the learning of students. As a professional historian, we feel that it is our job to point out the various ideas, but not to label something as good or bad. It is imperative that these conversations are held with the student and their parent to determine the final outcome.
		Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	19. Diversity and Identity	9-12.ECL.13	There is no issue in identifying various aspects of how people's identity impact the development of a society or nation. However, the idea of recognizing these, and causing separation is of no small impact, and in all practical purposes is in direct conflict with 9-12.ECI.13. In one sentence you are asking students to identify and value group identify without treating others as inferior, but in this you are asking to identify and show how these impact the develop of society and nation building. This holds back to the argument given over the issue of segregation in Plessy v. Ferguson which provided that simply separating groups does not make one inferior to the other. It is commonly held by historians and law professionals that this is impossible. You cannot separate and then assume that there will be no inferiority. This view point was upheld in the case of Brown v. Board of Education, that you cannot separate and expect things to be equal.
		Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	19. Diversity and Identity	9-12.ECL.15	There is not really an argument that the past was steeped in racism and bias against various groups, be it racial groups, ethnic, gender, or such. These laws have played a role in the development of the nation and the framework for which we live in. However, even liberal authors such as Howard Zinn argue that it is imperative to look at this, but not attempt to change these as they happened in the past. Our job is to attempt to figure out what to do in the present, not attempt to blame someone or something for the present situation based on the actions. If laws are written in an attempt to make one group inferior of the past, it is paramount that these laws are changed on the sole basis of the present, not the past. This interferes with the issue of 9-12.ECL.13, in that you are creating a substantial view of one group being inferior to another group.
		Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	19. Diversity and Identity	9-12.ECI.16	Identifying groups that attempt to bring about change is a significant part of studying history. However, it is prudent to do so when looking at the past, and then applying to future organization. While we can look back at organizations such as Martin Luther King Jr. and the civil rights movement, or the suffrage movement, and determine the impacts they have, it is difficult to do so with modern day groups. For example, modern day groups that attempt to push for change, are labeled by some as being revolutionary, while others would label them as rebellious. This distinction can cause there to be conflict with the goals of 9-12.ECI.13, which requires one group to not be seen as inferior to other groups. For example, how does the discussion on the impacts of Black Live Matter Movements, without making those who see it as a "violent rebellion," feel that they are being in the wrong?
		Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	21. Community Equity Building	9-12.ECI.21	While there is no argument that there are social constructs in place that are part of the structure and functions of the 21st century, it is impossible to avoid conflict with 9-13.ECL.13. There is no way to examine these events, in the context of modern day issues, without inadvertently placing blame upon a specific group of people. There is little to no justification for the implementation of this concept without harm to another group, as they will see themselves as being responsible for the implementation of those social constructs.
		Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo	9-12 NM 26, 13, & 17	"Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period"	This standard is asking student to "Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period". As we know land distribution and land grants have a long and controversial past within our state and territory, which still burns deep within many New Mexicans today. The question to ponder is what if race played no role at all? History, as we should know, is based on facts and truth, not theory and make believe. Effective history teachers engage students with facts and ask intriguing questions in order for them to "think outside the box". Our job is not the "who, what and when", but the "why"; this is also known as "cause and effect". Through facts and truth, we can learn from history, even from our darkest times. Standards NM 2 and NM 5 call for the usage of "evidence" and "multiple sources" to more or less build questions and strengthen claims through misconceptions. This standard itself, could be a misconception. What if our students determine that race did not, in fact, play a role? Are we on the "wrong side" of history? We are being asked to teach young adults to determine, and possibly believe, that race and racism was a factor during land distribution. What if it wasn't? Why should we invent ideas that do not hold truth? Our job is not to teach theories, but truth. Effective historians and teachers stir the minds of students naturally. Though some may believe that race and racism may have some to do with land re-distribution, some may disagree, therefore, why are teachers being made to teach to this standard? What picture are we trying to paint? Are we subliminally trying to say race is to blame? The perceived goal of this standard goes hand in hand with NM 13 and NM 17. Article X of the Treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo was stricken due to Secretary of State Buchanan believing that it was unnecessary. The US Constitution ensures American citizens enjoy the rights to life, liberty and property, therefore, in Buchanan's opinion, there was no need for Article X to be included. Why does this topic need separate standards to begin with? Is there an implication that Article X was stricken on the basis of race? If so, that is not accurate. It is a theory. In conclusion, the issue with these standards is not the material, it is the delivery and verbiage. We as historians should not shy away from our nation's and state's darkest times. We must teach with precision and accuracy with facts and evidence, not apparent notions. These standards can be perceived as racially inflammatory and manipulative; possibly making race an issue when, in fact, it was not.
		Inquiry	NM2 & NM5	call for the usage of "evidence" and "multiple sources" to more or less build questions and strengthen claims through misconceptions	This standard itself, could be a misconception. What if our students determine that race did not, in fact, play a role? Are we on the "wrong side" of history? We are being asked to teach young adults to determine, and possibly believe, that race and racism was a factor during land distribution. What if it wasn't? Why should we invent ideas that do not hold truth? Our job is not to teach theories, but truth. Effective historians and teachers stir the minds of students naturally. Though some may believe that race and racism may have some to do with land re-distribution, some may disagree, therefore, why are teachers being made to teach to this standard? What picture are we trying to paint? Are we subliminally trying to say race is to blame? In conclusion, the issue with these standards is not the material, it is the delivery and verbiage. We as historians should not shy away from our nation's and state's darkest times. We must teach with precision and accuracy with facts and evidence, not apparent notions. These standards can be perceived as racially inflammatory and manipulative; possibly making race an issue when, in fact, it was not.
		Spaces and Places	Theme 4: Geographic Representation and Reasoning	K. 18	I think this is an important skill for students to be exposed to and to begin understanding. Student very rarely ever see a physical map, but we use all sorts of maps all the time. It is important for students to be aware of their physical surroundings and to be able to map out geographical locations if ever in a situation that could be useful.

Timestamp	Email Address	Theme - Please type in theme that corresponds to your feedback (ex: The Land, people and resources of New Mexico.)	Anchor Standard - Please type in the anchor standard (ex: Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions)	Performance Standard - Please type in the number. (Ex: 7.23)	Feedback - Please provide feedback on the proposed revision to the standard in the context of the Anchor Standard or Theme.
		Social Identity	Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards	K.22, K.23, K.24, K.25	These additions to the Kindergarten Social Studies curriculum are asking teachers and students to point out differences rather than learn differences and celebrate them. Teaching students and shaping them to recognize differences this early in life seems like we are trying to a socialist society from the beginning. Students at this age are not able to understand these differences in people/families/cultures/beliefs appropriately. We read many book throughout the year that talk about differences in cultures, as in languages, and how we celebrate holidays, etc. this is the extent to which they can understand cultural differences among families. In my opinion it is not the schools job to teach differences in people's identify to this extent, rather the parent/guardians job. These are things that some families choose to teacher in different phases of life based off of their religion.
		Social Identity	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity	K.22, K.23, K.24, K.25	I believe that student's at the kindergarten age can not demonstrate an appropriate understanding of these standards. These standards are asking children to point out each other's differences in what seems to be a negative light, stating why they are different from each other. We encourage students to celebrate their differences and embrace them because that is what makes them unique. It is not our job to teach our students their identity, but instead their parents/guardians job.
		Theme 4: Cultures and Environment	Geography 10. Geographic Representation and Reasoning	2.21	With this revised standard, I can see that the students would be able to utilize mapping skills that are normally not used in this grade level. It will help students in years to come on testing and making connections within cultures.
		Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	6.22	It's too broad of a standard. It would be beneficial if specific events or examples were provided to guide my instruction.
		The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures	Civics 1: Civic and Political Institutions	6.23	It would be beneficial if it specified which civilization's social structures we need to focus on. For example, India's caste system
		Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks	Geography 10: Geographic Representations and Reasoning	6.49	It would be beneficial if the key religions which we need to focus on were listed. For example, Hinduism
		Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20 Identity in History	6.21	My question is "Whose personal events?" For example, students, teachers It would be beneficial if an example was provided.

[EXTERNAL] Fw: Changes in Social Studies being taught in NM Schools

Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 8:56 AM

To: Rodriguez, Aaron, PED <Aaron.Rodriguez2@state.nm.us>; Force, Kevin, PED <Kevin.Force@state.nm.us>; Mastalir, Dawn, PED <DawnE.Mastalir@state.nm.us>; Philip.Glourdemanos@state.nm.us <Philip.Glourdemanos@state.nm.us>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; johnsena@state.nm.us <johnsena@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning. We need your help in advising your client that we will be seeking IPRA, Inspection of Public Records to see how all this forcing CRT (although they have never said CRT, still the same thing.) was created and who is behind it. A fraud by any other name is still a fraud.

We are against any changes in Social Studies Curriculum that will teach our children to hate America, hate our history, hate our forefathers, hate white people, blame them for everything. Hate our great history.

Richard and Emilia Williams

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

To: Gene Reese <gene.reese.gr@gmail.com>; Tina Kincaid <tak555@yahoo.com>; david.rsi@hotmail.com <david.rsi@hotmail.com>; Rebecca Dow <rebecca@dowform.com>; Republican Party of New Mexico <contact@gopnm.org>; Larry <larrym_gdc@hotmail.com>

Sent: Saturday, October 9, 2021, 08:27:14 AM MDT

Subject: Fw: Changes in Social Studies being taught in NM Schools

----- Forwarded Message -----

From: Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>; johnsena@state.nm.us <johnsena@state.nm.us>

Sent: Saturday, October 9, 2021, 08:24:48 AM MDT

Subject: Changes in Social Studies being taught in NM Schools

Good morning.

1. What is the rush to force New Mexico Schools to teach Critical Race Theory to be taught to our children? It is anti-American. No what name is used by the Public Education Department, it is being used to teach our children to hate America and to be ashamed of our great history, our leaders that put their lives on the line to defy the King of England and his dictator rulings.

2. Our children should be taught how great America is. If it is so bad according to CRT, why are there so many people trying to come into the United States to get away from dictatorships from around the world?

3. 3 whole minutes to give a person's view at the November meeting. Does that mean you have already made up your minds and this is just window dressing to pretend you listen to us taxpayers who through taxes and bond issues pay and pay so our children will have a good education, not a anti- American, anti-freedom, anti-capitalism, pro-socialist agenda.

4. We are against any changes in teaching of Social Studies in NM Schools and want to know also what your rush is to force the schools and our children to agree with the Democrats plan for a one party system.

Thank you for your time.

Richard and Emilia Williams

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Maker, Dymorie <dymoerimaker@lovingtonschools.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:00 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (15 KB)

Social Studies Standards Feedback.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

Attached you will find my comments regarding the proposed Social Studies standards; while many positive pieces exist, I have some concerns. Primarily, the recurring verbage throughout the document that displays bias, which is counterproductive to the intent of discussions that are consistently held across the state regarding equity.

Sincerely,

Dymorie Maker

President, Lovington Municipal Schools Board of Education

Vice-President, New Mexico School Boards Association

Performance Standard	Current Descriptor	Area of Concern
K.14	Identify how individuals are similar and different	As defined by LEA, or curriculum?
K.22- K.25	Social Identity Standards	As defined by LEA, or curriculum?
3.27	Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
7.61	Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
7.82	Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups	Assumes multiple items, without giving students the opportunity to think and discover for themselves.
7.94	Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
7.98	Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present	This is to be taught during the topic of Early American Territorial Period (1850-1880) ... inconsistent messaging by including the present day.
7.103	Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging, and explain how these traditions, rites and norms may have changed over time.
8.5	Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory	Assumptions made, rather than having the student determine if there is an inherent bias.
8.23	Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing and transforming the future.	Assumptions made, rather than having the student determine if there is, in fact, action needed for mending, healing and transforming the future..
8.76	Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation	Highly subjective, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
8.81	Describe how the KKK and other white supremacist organizations in the US arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions.	Highly subjective and controversial, particularly for this age group, can be difficult for a teacher to teach effectively
8.83	Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.	Highly subjective and exclusive to recognizing only one cultural celebration; can be difficult for a teacher to teach without bias

[EXTERNAL] Support of the Proposed Social Studies Standards

Lisa Paz <lisampaz@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom this may concern-

I am the mother of two middle schoolers in the Rio Rancho Public School District. We are from the Pawnee and Comanche Nations and we are also Mexican-American.

I urge you to accept the new proposed social studies standards. The updating of our social studies standards is long overdue. I have many reasons for requesting this, but one major one is that the proposed standards add a focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies. This is in direct response to the Yazzie/Martinez ruling to provide a culturally and linguistically relevant curriculum for our students. The goal of this standard is to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation. With this standard, all students will see their communities and identities reflected in the historical narrative, making the content more relevant to their daily lives.

Thank you for your consideration,
Lisa Paz

[EXTERNAL] proposed rule changes-social studies

Joel Brown <joelbrown82@q.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:07 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I fully support the proposed rule changes to the social studies standards (11/12/2021). It is important for the education of all students in NM that they be taught an accurate version of history and cultural development in the state, region, nation and world. If we are to truly seek inclusion and diversity as goals that make us a better society, the standards are the minimum.

Joel Brown
1975 Avenida de Antigua
Las Cruces NM 88005

[EXTERNAL] Social studies

Susan McGrew <sumac3b@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a retired teacher, I know that we need an updated, more accurate, and more relevant social studies curriculum. Additionally, this revision focuses the material on an inquiry and critical thinking basis, so sorely needed in our public schools. Please do what is right and pass this update.

Susan McGrew
Santa Fe, NM
Sumac3b@gmail.com

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] NM Social Studies Curriculum

Jashley Wiberg <jashleywiberg@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am a parent in APS and i strongly oppose the proposed changes to the NM Social Studies Curriculum. I am a believer that every group, every race, every nationality, every ethnicity group matters. I think it is wrong to single out groups and make either side feel as if they have done something wrong. I believe history is best learned by sharing facts and not opinion. There are enough opinions on Social Media in our world and our kids need somewhere to go where they can receive unbiased facts. That is what school should be: Facts. I strongly oppose the changes proposed and ask that they remain out of the curriculum so that families who have parents that are involved in their children's lives and teach them morals will keep their students in the school system instead of feeling like the only way to teach our children facts is by homeschooling them.

Regards,
Jashley Wiberg

[EXTERNAL] No CRT in the Classroom

Kiran Androlewicz <kiran.nm.us@protonmail.ch>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: KRQE 13, TV <newsdesk@krqe.com>; koat_newstips@hearst.com <koat_newstips@hearst.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

NO CRITICAL RACE THEORY TO BE TAUGHT IN PUBLIC SCHOOL. AT ITS BEST IT UNDOES MLKS VISION, AT ITS WORST IT IS JUST PLAIN RACISM AND DISUNITY.

Sent from ProtonMail for iOS

[EXTERNAL] Support for draft NM Social Studies Standards

Dana Bell <danabelledit@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:14 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED and Legislators:

I am writing to urge your strong support of the new draft standards for social studies curriculum in public schools in New Mexico.

From my point of view as an education researcher as well as mother of two children who have benefited from education in New Mexico's public schools, I find them to be strong standards for ensuring that students learn what they need to be just citizens in our diverse state and country. They invite students across backgrounds to consider contributions of all groups to society, and support the complex thinking about history and diversity that students need to develop in order to be leaders, citizens and neighbors. The emphasis in the standards on teaching higher order inquiry skills and the ability to separate fact from opinion makes these standards critical for 21st century students. This, combined with a needed update to account for events that have occurred in the past twenty years, makes these standards important to support and implement.

These standards demonstrate careful thinking about race, ethnicity, culture and history, in ways that bypass the current politicized debates that use curriculum as a battlefield for "culture wars." Social media has inflamed an uninformed concern about "critical race theory", which, as a theoretical concept from legal and graduate studies, is not and has never been taught in K-12 settings. These standards reflect continuity and best practice in K-12 pedagogy, and I urge the state of New Mexico to ensure that best practice is offered to all of our children.

Sincerely,

Dana Bell

614 Alvarado Dr NE

Albuquerque, NM 87108

Director, Cradle to Career Policy Institute

University of New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] In support of Asian American Studies in proposed PED Social Studies Standards/Curriculum

huong nmafc.org <huong@nmafc.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:16 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

I am writing in support of Asian American Studies, Ethnic Studies, and Critical Race Theory in the proposed PED Social Studies Standards/Curriculum.

As an Asian/Vietnamese American mother of two high schoolers at Cibola High, I want my children to learn about their own community's history, cultures/values, struggles and contributions. Having an accurate account of U.S. history, including the studies of Asian American and other race/ethnicity and the historical impact of laws and practices that have created systemic oppression of Asian Americans, and People of Color in America is necessary to create a culture that recognizes and understands the historical racial injustices that have existed and continue to exist within our country. My family and children need and want this education!

New Mexico is one of the only 6 majority-minority states. More than ever, this is overdue for NM to have such Social Studies standards and curriculum that include Asian American Studies, Ethnic Studies, and Critical Race Theory.

Thanks,
Huong Nguyen

[EXTERNAL] New Social Study Standards

Ruth Juarez <cometrice@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:19 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please consider adopting the following changes to our current K-12 education curriculum in Social Studies:

- Add a much-needed focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation.
- Provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their current experiences.
- Place an important focus on inquiry, by asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events rather than to simply memorize names and dates.
- Openly examine our nation's past and how it affects present society. This teaches students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals.
- Bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy.

Thank you

--

Ruth

ella, suya (Spanish) | she, her (English)

[EXTERNAL] Against the repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC Social Studies

ted kamp <tedkampdpt@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:20 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in opposition to the proposed changes made to NMAC 6.29.11 Social Studies. I believe these changes incorporate ideas and opinions (not facts) that are divisive, anti-American, and far-left leaning. They cast our nation in a negative light that infers we are unjust and oppressive. I believe we can admit that historically the U.S. had made mistakes and not done everything right, but these proposed changes go too far and are not appropriate or based in truth. Thank you for your time.

Traci Kamp

[EXTERNAL] Carolyn Hong Chan's Comment on Social Studies Standards

Carolyn H. Chan <carochan@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:20 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (151 KB)

Carolyn Hong Chan's Comments for Social Studies Standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Mr. John Sena
Policy Director, Public Education Department

Attached are my comments regarding New Mexico Social Studies Standards.

Respectfully,
Carolyn Hong Chan
Past National President
Chinese American Citizens Alliance
(505) 298-1727
carochan@aol.com

COMMENT ON NEW MEXICO SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS
NOVEMBER 12, 2021

I am Carolyn Hong Chan, former national president of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance (C.A.C.A.), one of the nation's oldest Asian American civil rights organization formed in 1895 in San Francisco in response to racism and prejudice that limited employment, education, housing, insurance, and banking opportunities. Our members are dedicated to enhancing civic pride, supporting community services and promoting responsible citizenship. I have also served as chairman of the National Advisory Council on Bilingual Education and Minority Language Affairs. In that capacity, I chaired a public hearing in Albuquerque to address language access needs of the diverse native and immigrant populations in New Mexico.

I grew up in the segregated South during Chinese exclusion and attended a one-room school of Chinese children until we were integrated in 1947. My parents, my siblings, and I intersected daily with customers of multi-ethnic backgrounds in our corner grocery store in a low-middle working class neighborhood. Some customers would use racist slurs, but our relationships were usually uneventful and even kind.

Even after student teaching in a white high school, I would not have been given a teacher's certificate. That changed when my husband and I moved to Albuquerque and I taught Native American, Hispanic, and White children at Old Town Elementary School. Although I formally taught five years in APS, many of my former students from sixty years ago have thanked me for my encouragement and attested to how sharing of my Chinese American culture has changed their lives.

Inclusion of the many rich cultures of our state is long overdue and would strengthen our national and world image. I strongly support inclusion of Asian American and Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islander history in the social studies standards. Their contributions in railroad building, agriculture, entrepreneurial enterprises, STEM, politics, arts and culture, defense, space exploration, and as tech developers, civil rights activists, first responders, and health care professionals, and Olympic athletes deserve recognition. Their stories can serve as inspirational role models for children and youth.

Most Americans are not aware that 20,000 Chinese American men and women served in World War II including 40 percent without citizenship. They fought for America in all branches of the military in all theaters of the war in spite of the discriminatory 1882 Chinese Exclusion Act in effect until it was repealed in 1943. Men and women, who volunteered to fight for a country that would not give them citizenship, demonstrated their patriotic loyalty. It has taken more than 76 years for their service to be recognized with the Congressional Gold Medal.

As the world gets smaller, Education about accomplishments of our diverse ethnicities comprising our state and nation strengthens our country's ability to compete. Students want stories about those who look like them and are empathetic with strong heroes who are resilient and persevere.

With the uptick in verbal and physical abuse against Asian Americans, efforts must be made to change attitudes and develop understanding of people regardless of race, gender, and abilities. It will take the efforts of teachers, parents, and community to change hearts and minds beginning with the youngest children.

California is the first state to require a unit in Asian American history for graduation from high school. Oregon's approach is integration throughout the curriculum from K-12. Washington, Illinois, Virginia and Connecticut are other states that are requiring ethnic studies. Parents, students, teachers, and community leaders can affect change.

Many resources are available online, at state museums, and the Smithsonian, National Parks, and National Archives websites. "From Invisible to Visible: The Chinese American Experience in Albuquerque" a virtual exhibit spearheaded by the Albuquerque chapter of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance, is available on the City of Albuquerque's website. Books, films, and PBS programs such as "The Chinese Exclusion Act," "Becoming American," and "The Asian Americans" are historically informative. Bring AAPI, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders to the schools to share their stories and culture with teachers and students.

The review to be more inclusive of the many cultures in our state is long overdue. I strongly urge that Asian American and Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander history be included in the social studies curriculum. We would welcome the opportunity to work with the PED to develop lesson plans about AANHPI history and culture. Without inclusion of Asian American history in social studies standards, American History is incomplete.

Respectfully,
Carolyn Hong Chan
Past National President
Chinese American Citizens Alliance
carochan@aol.com
(505) 835-5179

[EXTERNAL] PDA Social Study Standards

Mike Hanna <mike112447@outlook.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am strongly in favor of the proposed PDA Social Study standards .

Mike Hanna 2 San Juan Trail,

Corrales, NM 87048

Get Outlook for iOS

[EXTERNAL] The change to should extended

julie catuccio <juliecatuccio@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am asking this board to stop this change of indoctrination of our children with this bizarre curriculum. I have read a few examples of what this curriculum consists of and it is DISTURBING ! Children in this state are being left behind by other states leave the indoctrination to the parent - focus on what REALLY matters reading n math ! THIS PROPOSAL SHOULD NOT BE ADOPTED BY THIS ADMINISTRATION !

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards for NM Students

Blanca Bustos <carrascoblanca@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:23 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

As a parent, I am concerned with the proposed standards for our New Mexico children. While I understand that many world events are not included in our studies now, such as 9/11 and believe it should be updated to include these events, I do NOT believe changing the main pillars of social studies is a change New Mexico schools need to be pursuing.

It is my understanding that social studies are taught under four main pillars: civics, economics, geography and history. New Mexico PED has no business adding ethnic, cultural and identity studies. This opens up bias and a lot of opinion on subjects where students should only be given facts of historical events. Our schools have no business talking to our children about ethnicity, culture, let alone, identity. This is the place of the parents/family. Our children should never be taught based on personal interpretation of the state, school and/or teacher. Stick to the facts of the events!

I pray New Mexico refrains from letting our schools, and subsequently, our children, be pawns in the political game of chess we are seeing happen throughout our nation. Our children should NEVER be subjected to any indoctrination to satisfy a political party's agenda. New Mexico needs to be better than that. Our children need you to be better than that.

Thank you,
Blanca Bustos

[EXTERNAL] New Mexico Social Studies Standardd

martha.phillips55@gmail.com <martha.phillips55@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Sue Joiner <sjoiner@firstuccabq.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena:

We are writing in support of the draft New Mexico social studies standards, 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, for New Mexico public education schools (K-12).

First Congregational Church of Albuquerque (United Church of Christ) established a Racial Justice Team in 2020, shortly after the murder of George Floyd by a police officer in Minneapolis. Our church has since held events in support of the Black Lives Matter movement. We have also engaged in study and education of our members on issues of racial justice, and have held discussions of racial justice with other churches of the UCC Southwest conference, which includes the states of New Mexico and Arizona, as well as the El Paso area.

In reviewing the draft NM social studies standards, we asked ourselves, do these standards, as revised, contribute to the furthering of education for racial justice in New Mexico? We have concluded that they do. Specifically,

- We are pleased to see that there are numerous anchor standards and performance standards at all grade levels that specifically refer to the history, civics, geography, and economics of Black, Indigenous, and other people of color, as well as to people of Hispanic origin.
- We were pleased to note that one of the high school history performance standards is to "Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, regional, racial, ethnic, class, and gender." We hope that perspectives of diverse groups will be included throughout the teaching of social studies.
- We are especially pleased to see that there is a separate content area that deals with Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies, especially at the high school level.
- We are also encouraged to see that the high school U.S. history standards include very recent events, such as contemporary civil rights struggles, the pandemic (compared to the AIDS epidemic and the influenza epidemic), anti-immigrant sentiment, climate disruption, and gun violence.

- As an open and affirming church, we are pleased to see that there are performance standards at the high school level related to LGBTQIA+ people.
- We think that the Inquiry standards are essential to thinking about all aspects of human activity.

We commend the people who worked to create these revised standards, and we urge the Public Education Department to adopt these standards and to move forward with their implementation.

Sincerely,
Rev. Sue Joiner, Pastor

Martha Phillips, Chair,
Racial Justice Team

First Congregational United Church of Christ
2801 Lomas Boulevard NE
Albuquerque, NM 87106

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Cancel Critical Race Theory

Simmons Family <m_simmons@cybermesa.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:28 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

John Sena,

Do not update the social studies standards. You are seeing the start of a mass exodus from the school systems due to our schools teaching kids to hate each other because God gave them one skin tone or another. Don't push parents farther away. Or actually, do push them. Homeschool makes the smartest kids anyway, especially those who started this country. Just look at our Constitution and see what a bunch of homeschoolers can do.

Maria Simmons

[EXTERNAL] Comment on the Proposed New Mexico Social Content Standards

Cibele Howard <cibelehoward@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:29 AM

To: Feedback, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; cibelehowad@gmail.com <cibelehowad@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Comment on the Proposed New Mexico Social Content Standards

Good morning,

My name is Cibele Howard, back in 2000/2001 I was a Brazilian Rotary exchange student in the USA.

I was amazed about the American school system and happy to be in a place where people would respect the difference of cultures and different ways of thinking.

In 2015 I married an American veteran and law enforcement man. We share the same principles, thoughts and expectations about constitutional rights, freedom and what History and social classes teach our students, including our 4 year old daughter that already attends preschool in the Artesia Public Schools System.

As a Brazilian immigrant and recently an American citizen in this Great country and being a parent of a student in the Public Schools, I have concerns about the way that the Civics Standards will be taught in our classrooms.

The proposed standards seem too vague and discriminate against people from other cultures, etc.

As a parent and an American citizen, I ask for better and understanding civics standards for our students as:

that the students could describe their family history, culture and past. People are different and they think differently and they should be able to compare and contrast cultural identity with other cultures and costumes.

Finally, I appreciate you reading these notes and I hope to be responded in my arguments.

Cibele Howard

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies

Paul Maupin <pauljmaupin@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr Sena,

I am NOT in favor of the proposed social studies standards. These new standards will only serve to further divide us. New Mexico is a politically diverse state and passing extreme measures like this will surely drive out more hard-working citizens to other conservative surrounding states. Respectfully,
Dr Paul Maupin

[EXTERNAL] Wrong lanes have right turns

Lexi123 Leyva <62nleyva48@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Inspection of Public Records NM Public Education Department

Richard Williams <rtw88220@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:33 AM

To: Rodriguez, Aaron, PED <Aaron.Rodriguez2@state.nm.us>; Force, Kevin, PED <Kevin.Force@state.nm.us>; Mastalir, Dawn, PED <DawnE.Mastalir@state.nm.us>; Philip.Gludemonos@state.nm.us <Philip.Gludemonos@state.nm.us>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; johnsena@state.nm.us <johnsena@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning.

NM Public Education Department is already enlisting left-wing speakers to speak about CRT, Critical Race Theory, onto the teaching curriculum even before today's hearing. At least these people call it CRT, not like the PED who tries to hide it in a massive 122 page document.

Enough is enough for parents and grandparents of New Mexico who are being called lizards by MLG and other names when she is not agreed with. Arrogance is what today's meeting is about. Who cares what NM citizens and taxpayers care about?

Well, we do!!! The silent majority you all were hoping would keep our mouths shut.

We are against this 120 plus page attack on our great Country, our great State, our parents, our teachers, our local school boards.. We need and will request IPRA's Inspection of Public Records to see who is behind this push to destroy our great history, our great Country, our Great State.

Richard and Emilia Williams

[EXTERNAL]

Silvina Farmin <silvina.farmin@aps.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:36 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a Social Studies teacher I urge you to keep the proposed changes to our Curriculum. I want to be able to teach American History from all perspectives and see my student's background and heritage reflected in such curriculum!

--

Silvina Torre Farmin M.A. Multicultural/TESOL Ed

She, Her, Ella

Social Studies/Estudios Sociales

Bilingual Advisory Committee /Community School Council/Discipline Committee/Equity Team

National Hispanic Honor Society

G.S.A. Co-sponsor/SAFE ZONE/Crafty Dawgs/Dream Team

Albuquerque High School

505-480-3651(c)

Room 513

 Coelho

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and attached documents may contain confidential information. All information is intended only for the use of the named recipient. If you are not the named recipient, you are not authorized to read, disclose, copy, distribute or take any action in reliance on the information and any action other than immediate delivery to the named recipient is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, do not read the information and please immediately notify sender by telephone to arrange for a return of the original documents. If you are the named recipient you are not authorized to reveal any of this information to any other unauthorized person. If you did not receive all pages listed or if pages are not legible, please immediately notify sender by phone.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards

Christopher Bruell <christopher.bruell@bc.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:40 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Steinhaus, Kurt <k.steinhaus@laschools.net>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The proposed standard for kindergarten children (to have them identify themselves as belonging to some group or other) shows appalling ignorance of what the early childhood experience should be and also incidentally of the principles that have held our multi-ethnic country together for so long. Children should have the experience of approaching one another on the basis of our common humanity and of learning to discriminate among their fellows on the basis of the distinctions that really count: which children are fair, which are kind, which are generous, etc. and which display the opposite qualities of dishonesty, cruelty and so forth. These distinctions transcend the matter of group identity and thus reinforce the children's sense of our common humanity. The proposed "group identifying" blunts the opportunity for children to have this experience so essential to their future lives by telling them, in effect, that the only thing that matters is the group to which one belongs and at the same time a wholly abstract and necessarily ineffective "tolerance" of all groups and group membership as such. No development or proposal that has come to our attention in recent years could be more harmful to the country and to the children themselves than this one.

Christopher Bruell

Professor Emeritus of Political Science

[EXTERNAL] Policy changes to be discussed 11/12 gingerw65 <gingerw65@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:43 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I have always supported the public school system. I still do now for my grandchildren & my TAXES! If you wish to curtail input from parents & all taxpayers concerning our children's curriculum or the ability to replace substandard administrators then perhaps we should stop funding these public schools! Teaching our children that somehow their skin color makes them different or lesser is racism! All children need to be respected & taught to love & respect each other. New Mexico is a state of "united cultures"! To teach that any one culture is less or more is wrong!

If you take my tax dollars, you will take my input & let we the people decide what to teach our children. If you take my tax dollars, you will take my input & let we the people decide who is in our school administration & when they need to go.

[EXTERNAL] PED SS feedback

SEAN CALLAN <spcallan@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Teach the truth no matter whose feelings get hurt.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Public Comment

Deidre Patel <deidre.patel@gccs.k12.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The Social Studies Department of Grants High School is composed of educators of diverse backgrounds and experience levels within the public education system. The educators of this group have reviewed the proposed standards in their respective subject areas and also considered the overall impact the proposals would have from a classroom perspective to a department-wide perspective.

The notification of proposed standards lacked timely and transparent communication. To ask for quality educator feedback while coming back from a pandemic year, with strenuous workloads and unusual conditions within such a short time-frame is not being respectful of our time and expertise level. It also begs the question of whether our feedback is truly valued.

From an operational/department-wide perspective it is important for the NMPED to recognize the effective date of the proposed curriculum is not in step with the adoption cycle of Social Studies textbooks. The proposed curriculum would be effective at the start of the 2022 school year, with the new textbooks arriving at the start of the 2024 school year. Educators will be left to find all of their own materials and lack the essential written materials for student reading. Such a short adoption period will pose significant difficulties for the development of scope and sequence that can be actively implemented in the classroom while at the same time searching for materials.

From an educational/standards perspective, the Educators questioned why the existing standards were not simply improved upon rather than eliminating standards that provided a fairly decent path for instruction of information. The existing curriculum was a great starting point to further develop. If the intent of redesigning the standards is to teach all perspectives of history and those events, the attempt has failed. The existing standards require teachers to teach ALL perspectives of groups involved, while the proposed standards focus only upon specific groups. That is not the way history should be taught nor studied. Such standards will pit student against student, parent against parent and cause many issues for the Educators. Educators who are new to the profession and may lack the background will be unable to teach the proposed standards as they are too vague and lack sufficient scaffolding. This will force textbook teaching, except there are no textbooks. The current standards have a scaffolding and flow that allow for implementation by Educators at all levels of experience and expertise. Not all Districts were aware or included in the invitation to participate in this process. The map of Districts represented clearly shows a lack of participation from all Districts and therefore a lack of the diverse viewpoints in the State.

The proposed standards lack consistency between subjects, some are too vague while others are far too detailed. The World History standards are not developed in the same manner as the other subject matters. While some of the standards look great on paper, they are too "lofty". There is no structure within the standards to reach those ideals. If we are going to adopt new standards, why not adopt the Advanced Placement CED for subject matter.

As for the proposed Government/Civics standards, the previous standards were not the best, but improvement was possible with some concrete direction and specific topics and documents for primary and secondary. Shifting from a focus on the US Government to “Civics” is part of why the proposed standards have become so “fluffy” and obtuse. The proposed standards are overly vague and filled with “fluffy” language that provides little if any guidance (ie: principles, documents, etc.). These standards make the assumption that students have the appropriate foundation in the US Government and the Constitution. Specifically, 9-12 CIV.25-.27 are so vague that it could lead to Educator avoidance or dominance of the subject matter. While these standards look great, there is no foundation to teach from - it is wide-open to interpretation.

The Economics standards are all encompassing, all micro and macro details that are important to Economics. The concern in this area is that the proposed standards are written as facts, when in a number of instances there is room for student evaluation. The proposed standards simply teach students WHAT to think, not HOW to think. Student ability to think critically is already on life support. Educators struggle to develop students that are unable to think critically, these standards will exacerbate this student weakness from earlier ages and further debilitate our students in their future endeavors.

The proposed US History standards change the time period for instruction significantly, from Reconstruction forward to colonization forward. That is a significant change. The proposed standards are clearly taught from one perspective (the “victim”), this effectively implements the teaching of critical race theory in classrooms. The proposed standards are redacting historical events and that does not constitute teaching history. For example, 9-10.US.55-.68 - “Identify the ways gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.” Would it not be important to teach the various efforts undertaken during the Reconstruction period to put the torn and divided country back together? Instead our Educators will be focused on teaching sexuality changes. In addition, the immigration standards are too vague - US.55 “Examine immigration policy in the US over time”, rather than examining the various “waves” of immigration, the causes and the impacts. US.56 requires students to evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like without students knowing what an economic system is or what actual economic events took place during the specific time periods. While this is a good overall idea of what adults should be able to consider, there is no true scaffolding at the primary and early secondary levels to support the execution of these standards.

In conclusion, while the department does not support the proposed standards, it does strongly support enhancing standards to improve the overall education of our students. It would have been beneficial to work with existing standards, enhancing and addressing deficiencies rather than totally reinvent or borrow from other sources.

[EXTERNAL] Comment on Social Studies

Richard Ferrary <golferbuds@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:54 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am in my 70s and feel like I got a great education. I remember going to the library encyclopedia and realizing how out-of-date they were even back then in a pretty wealthy community. I would have assumed all that was over with the web. I now know I am wrong.

It is more important than ever that kids be taught and given the opportunity to learn about "Social Studies" in today's world and reality. I fully support the proposed updates to the curriculum for our students. In fact, to not do this ASAP is a disservice to them!

Thank you for the opportunity to comment.

Richard Ferrary
Las Cruces resident since 1999

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards Comment

Daisy Askey <daskey@bsin.k12.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:54 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Comment on History Standards, especially US and World History Fall 2021

To Whom it May Concern,

As a teacher in New Mexico who has taught for over 10 years, I am deeply concerned about these standards. I whole-heartedly support a retooling of the standards, but this overhaul will make both teaching and learning harder for teachers and students. First, my number one concern is that the US history standards are way too much to teach in one school year. I already teach US history to juniors and teaching "just" Reconstruction-Present is too much already. Students already say the pacing is too fast, they never have time to learn anything, and it is overwhelming the amount of material we have to cover. More is not better.

I absolutely believe in the value of history, but adding more to an already over-full curriculum is not the solution. It is not better. We should be able to focus more and go more in-depth on what we are already teaching. Skimming the surface of the entire history of the United States will not help students learn more. There is value in being able to focus on and learn topics at a slower pace. We should trust that 8th grade US history is being taught and taught well, and therefore this division of curriculum into early and later US history between 8th and 11th grade has always made the most sense to me, and 8th graders shouldn't have to race to cover more content either. Only AP classes should be forced to teach US history at breakneck speed.

I already have trouble teaching anything after the Vietnam War as there just isn't time in the school year, especially when we keep adding standardized testing for its own sake. Adding in an entire half of the curriculum to cover in the same amount of time would be detrimental to my teaching and my students' learning. New Mexico already has an incredible teacher shortage. Do we want to add to it by driving out teachers like me who want to be here because the requirements are not in any realm possible to meet? The world history standards look just as bad, if not worse, though they look less complete.

Again, more is not better. More content is not better content. I appreciate the details of the post WW2 era, and I would want to teach that, but if I have to teach all of US history to that point, I will never get to it. There just isn't time.

Our students already have trouble keeping up, learning, and being motivated. Adding more to their plates as well as to mine would not help anyone learn better history. Yes, we need to teach history better in this state as well as in most states at this time. More is not better. More content is not the solution. Skimming the surface would not allow for studies of multiple perspectives, as the standards indicate is important, and I agree. This would be impossible when covering twice the content in the same amount of time.

Thank you for your time, Daisy Askey

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: New social studies curriculum

Louise Kahn <lbkahn55@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:55 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

I support the new social studies curriculum, as it will help our state's children and future leaders to move forward with a better understanding of our past in order to create a more equitable future for all New Mexicans.

To suggest that this is teaching Critical Race Theory is ridiculous and deeply insulting to those whose histories have been erased or seen as less important since the advent of public education. Otherwise, we are teaching hypocritical race theory.

Sincerely,

Louise Kahn, MSN, MA, RN
Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL]

Silvina Farmin <silvina.farmin@aps.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:56 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a Social Studies teacher I urge you to keep the proposed changes to our Curriculum. I want to be able to teach American History from all perspectives and see my student's background and heritage reflected in such curriculum!

--

Silvina Torre Farmin M.A. Multicultural/TESOL Ed

She, Her, Ella

Social Studies/Estudios Sociales

Bilingual Advisory Committee /Community School Council/Discipline Committee/Equity Team

National Hispanic Honor Society

G.S.A. Co-sponsor/SAFE ZONE/Crafty Dawgs/Dream Team

Albuquerque High School

505-480-3651(c)

Room 513

 Coelho

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and attached documents may contain confidential information. All information is intended only for the use of the named recipient. If you are not the named recipient, you are not authorized to read, disclose, copy, distribute or take any action in reliance on the information and any action other than immediate delivery to the named recipient is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, do not read the information and please immediately notify sender by telephone to arrange for a return of the original documents. If you are the named recipient you are not authorized to reveal any of this information to any other unauthorized person. If you did not receive all pages listed or if pages are not legible, please immediately notify sender by phone.

[EXTERNAL] Repeal and Replace: 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Diana Pinkston <diana@dlenm.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:59 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED,

I am writing to fervently ask you to continue with your efforts to repeal and replace 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies to be inclusive of all New Mexican students, their families and communities. The time is now to stand against any effort to keep our state from moving forward in a constructive and affirming manner. Social studies is the study of the history, organization and realities of our human experience - how can we not use an inclusive lens as we teach our students to be engaged, powerful members of our state and country?

Thank you for your dedication to all the students of New Mexico!

--

Diana Pinkston-Stewart

she/her/ella

DLeNM GLAD® Program Coordinator

diana@dlenm.org

505.259.4829 (cell)

505.243.0648 (work)

For more information about DLeNM and Project GLAD® click here!

[EXTERNAL] Personal Finance Graduation Requirement

Luke Sanchez <980050179@aps.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:59 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello, my name is Luke Sanchez and I am a student in the 12th grade at Sandia High School. I am taking a personal finance class following the Ramsey Classroom textbook, and my teacher is Mrs. Wilson.

I would recommend making personal finance a required course for high school students. Personal finance is something that nobody can avoid in life, even people who aren't really into money and possessions. People have health emergencies, career plans/goals, and every day things that require money. When I first started this class I really wasn't sure if I was going to learn anything that would be useful, but I would say that every little thing I have learned so far this semester is something that will be useful in the future, and right now. My favorite topics we have gone over are budgeting, how to plan (and save) for purchases like cars, college, and mortgage.

I have been given helpful strategies and options to stay out of debt as much as possible, and be comfortable with my finances. I do believe that if people were informed about the same things I have been in this class that New Mexico as a state would benefit. It is simply arming citizens with the weapons needed to live a comfortable life and give to those less fortunate.

Thank you,
God Bless

[EXTERNAL] Re: New Mexico Social Studies Standardd

Sue Joiner <sjoiner@firstuccabq.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:59 AM

To: martha.phillips55@gmail.com <martha.phillips55@gmail.com>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you very much!

Get Outlook for iOS

From: martha.phillips55@gmail.com <martha.phillips55@gmail.com>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 9:25:03 AM

To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>

Cc: Sue Joiner <sjoiner@firstuccabq.org>

Subject: New Mexico Social Studies Standardd

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena:

We are writing in support of the draft New Mexico social studies standards, 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, for New Mexico public education schools (K-12).

First Congregational Church of Albuquerque (United Church of Christ) established a Racial Justice Team in 2020, shortly after the murder of George Floyd by a police officer in Minneapolis. Our church has since held events in support of the Black Lives Matter movement. We have also engaged in study and education of our members on issues of racial justice, and have held discussions of racial justice with other churches of the UCC Southwest conference, which includes the states of New Mexico and Arizona, as well as the El Paso area.

In reviewing the draft NM social studies standards, we asked ourselves, do these standards, as revised, contribute to the furthering of education for racial justice in New Mexico? We have concluded that they do. Specifically,

- We are pleased to see that there are numerous anchor standards and performance standards at all grade levels that specifically refer to the history, civics, geography, and economics of Black, Indigenous, and other people of color, as well as to people of Hispanic origin.
- We were pleased to note that one of the high school history performance standards is to "Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, regional, racial, ethnic, class, and gender." We hope that perspectives of diverse groups will be included throughout the teaching of social studies.

- We are especially pleased to see that there is a separate content area that deals with Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies, especially at the high school level.
- We are also encouraged to see that the high school U.S. history standards include very recent events, such as contemporary civil rights struggles, the pandemic (compared to the AIDS epidemic and the influenza epidemic), anti-immigrant sentiment, climate disruption, and gun violence.
- As an open and affirming church, we are pleased to see that there are performance standards at the high school level related to LGBTQIA+ people.
- We think that the Inquiry standards are essential to thinking about all aspects of human activity.

We commend the people who worked to create these revised standards, and we urge the Public Education Department to adopt these standards and to move forward with their implementation.

Sincerely,
Rev. Sue Joiner, Pastor

Martha Phillips, Chair,
Racial Justice Team

First Congregational United Church of Christ
2801 Lomas Boulevard NE
Albuquerque, NM 87106

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Re: New Mexico Social Studies Standardd

Sue Joiner <sjoiner@firstuccabq.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 9:59 AM

To: martha.phillips55@gmail.com <martha.phillips55@gmail.com>; Feedback, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you very much!

Get Outlook for iOS

From: martha.phillips55@gmail.com <martha.phillips55@gmail.com>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 9:25:03 AM

To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>

Cc: Sue Joiner <sjoiner@firstuccabq.org>

Subject: New Mexico Social Studies Standardd

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena:

We are writing in support of the draft New Mexico social studies standards, 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, for New Mexico public education schools (K-12).

First Congregational Church of Albuquerque (United Church of Christ) established a Racial Justice Team in 2020, shortly after the murder of George Floyd by a police officer in Minneapolis. Our church has since held events in support of the Black Lives Matter movement. We have also engaged in study and education of our members on issues of racial justice, and have held discussions of racial justice with other churches of the UCC Southwest conference, which includes the states of New Mexico and Arizona, as well as the El Paso area.

In reviewing the draft NM social studies standards, we asked ourselves, do these standards, as revised, contribute to the furthering of education for racial justice in New Mexico? We have concluded that they do. Specifically,

- We are pleased to see that there are numerous anchor standards and performance standards at all grade levels that specifically refer to the history, civics, geography, and economics of Black, Indigenous, and other people of color, as well as to people of Hispanic origin.
- We were pleased to note that one of the high school history performance standards is to "Examine historical events from the perspectives of diverse groups, including but not limited to Indigenous peoples, regional, racial, ethnic, class, and gender." We hope that perspectives of diverse groups will be included throughout the teaching of social studies.

- We are especially pleased to see that there is a separate content area that deals with Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies, especially at the high school level.
- We are also encouraged to see that the high school U.S. history standards include very recent events, such as contemporary civil rights struggles, the pandemic (compared to the AIDS epidemic and the influenza epidemic), anti-immigrant sentiment, climate disruption, and gun violence.
- As an open and affirming church, we are pleased to see that there are performance standards at the high school level related to LGBTQIA+ people.
- We think that the Inquiry standards are essential to thinking about all aspects of human activity.

We commend the people who worked to create these revised standards, and we urge the Public Education Department to adopt these standards and to move forward with their implementation.

Sincerely,
Rev. Sue Joiner, Pastor

Martha Phillips, Chair,
Racial Justice Team

First Congregational United Church of Christ
2801 Lomas Boulevard NE
Albuquerque, NM 87106

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] please adopt proposed Social Studies Standards

Alan Wagman <avramwagman@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:01 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I have been reviewing the proposed draft Social Studies Standards. I only wish these standards had been in place when I was a child. They outline a much fairer and accurate picture of what this country has been, is, and can be than what I learned. Please adopt the proposed standards.

Thank you,

((Alan Wagman)) he/him <avramwagman@gmail.com>

"In the end, we will remember not the words of our enemies, but the silence of our friends." -- MLK, Jr.

[EXTERNAL] Support for History Curriculum

Alexia Castillo <alexia0531@icloud.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I support and want to be prt of the change. We are in the 21st Century and we are learning just the minimum. We have to opened mind. Things are different compared to 200 years back.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Youth driven non-profit supports the new Social Studies Standards for NM

LAB Radio Hour <lablearningactionbuffet@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:03 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

On behalf of the LAB Learning Action Buffet, we want to express our full support for the new Social Studies Standards. Our Youth Voice Matters Project team is comprised of current and former students in NM. The new standards reflect the changes that youth and young people in NM have been requesting for decades. They're more inclusive of all the racial and ethnic groups in our state and all students will be able to see themselves represented in the new standards. Many stories/historical truths were untold and excluded previously so these standards are a positive step in addressing this void. Thank you for considering our input.

Sincerely,

Annie Quintana (former student), Kat Trujillo (former student), Kiara Banka (current student), Carmen Bell (current student), Andres Uribe (current student), Olga Chavez, Michelle Valverde, Lamaia Vaughn
The LAB Learning Action Buffet; a non-profit organization in Las Cruces focused on youth leadership development through art, communication, and action.

[EXTERNAL] Supporting Asian American Studies!

Ana Bhandari <ana@nmafc.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:04 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

My name is Ana Bhandari. I am writing in support of Asian American Studies, Ethnic Studies, and Critical Race Theory in the proposed PED Social Studies Standards/Curriculum. As an Asian American who received her education through the APS system I was not exposed to my own community's history, cultures/values, struggles and contributions. Having an accurate account of U.S. history, including the studies of Asian American and other race/ethnicity and the historical impact of laws and practices that have created systemic oppression of Asian Americans, and People of Color in America is necessary to create a culture that acknowledges the historical racial injustices that have existed and continue to exist within our country. New Mexico is a majority-minority state. More than ever, this is overdue for NM to have such Social Studies standards and curriculum that include Asian American Studies, Ethnic Studies, and Critical Race Theory.

With Gratitude,

Ana

Ana Bhandari

Youth Coordinator, New Mexico Asian Family Center

Pronouns: she, her, hers

Confidentiality Notice: This e-mail including all attachments is for the sole use of the intended recipient(s) and may contain confidential and privileged information, some of which may be protected under Federal law (HIPAA; Public Law 104-191). Any unauthorized review, use, disclosure or distribution is prohibited and may be subject to penalties. If you are not the intended recipient, please contact the sender and destroy all copies of this message.

[EXTERNAL] Personal Finance

Linda Wilson <ljwilson49@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:04 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I have been teaching a personal finance course for the past 6 years, and I believe it is the most important class I teach.

Please add Personal Finance standards to the Social Studies curriculum and make it a mandatory requirement for high school graduation in New Mexico. Our students deserve it.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

Linda Wilson
505-264-2389

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] CRT Education

Cheryl Huppertz <cahuppe@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:08 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED Administrators,

Please DO NOT include Critical Race Theory into our public education system. Public schools are already suffering from students withdrawing to charter schools, private schools, and homeschooling. I believe that if this curriculum is forced into our schools, you will lose more students in public education.

CRT will cause more hate and racial division. Young children have no prejudices, they are taught. The focus needs to be on the progress the US has made in racial justice and that it needs to continue to do so.

New Mexico is already at the bottom in education in our country. Let's get back to the basics of reading, writing, and arithmetic. Our children are graduating illiterate or not graduating at all. Include more vocational classes.

This will also alienate school boards that do not agree with CRT.

Thank you.

Cheryl Huppertz
573-7916

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

clandde <clandde@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:08 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please avoid teaching CRT, sex ed and other topics that divert from the 1776 Project in the Social Studies curriculum for New Mexico students.

Dorothy and Charles Miller
68 Meadowlark Lane,
Edgewood NM 87015

Sent from my Verizon, Samsung Galaxy smartphone

[EXTERNAL] Please see attached letter

Stephanie Becker <sbecker@abhs.k12.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (70 KB)

Social Studies standards letter to Sena.2021.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you,
Stephanie

--

Stephanie G. Becker, Ph.D.
Executive Director/Principal
Amy Biehl High School
office/ 505-299-9409
cell/ 505-306-0763

Preferred gender pronouns: she, her, hers

This message contains information, which may be confidential or privileged, and is intended only for the individual or entity named above. It is prohibited for anyone else to disclose, copy, distribute or use the contents of this message. If you received this message in error, please delete immediately and notify the sender.

This message contains information, which may be confidential or privileged, and is intended only for the individual or entity named above. It is prohibited for anyone else to disclose, copy, distribute or use the contents of this message. If you received this message in error, please delete immediately and notify the sender.

AMY BIEHL HIGH SCHOOL

COURAGE | SCHOLARSHIP | COMMUNITY
123 4th Street SW, Albuquerque, NM 87102 Ph: 299-9409

November 12, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Director
NMPED
300 Don Gaspar, Rm 121
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

I am Stephanie Graham Becker, the Executive Director of Amy Biehl Charter High School in downtown Albuquerque. Before holding this position, I was a Civics instructor for many years and today's hearing along with the outcome of the proposed update to the NM Social Studies Standards is monumental for the state of New Mexico and its students. Including Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies is vital for all students; also, allowing students to pursue the Inquiry strand will foster better reflective and critical thinking skills across the grade levels.

Equity is not just a term or a concept in education; it must involve action. For nearly 20 years ABHS students have been engaged in a robust Humanities curriculum called Facing History and Ourselves (www.facinghistory.org) where we are tasked with exploring our own identities and others' cultural and ethnic histories. We must look at where othering and dehumanization led to the atrocities in history so that we can interrupt the cycle of violence to marginalized communities. It is focused on our role in history and what kind of participants we can be. Will we be bystanders or upstanders? The new standards that New Mexico proposes are intricately linked to these discussions. Our students report that they are better community members, more attuned to the needs of those who are at the margins of society, and ready to make a difference in the lives of others.

Suffice to say that I support these new standards wholeheartedly as they are reflective beginning in elementary school and moving through 12th grade; being able to connect and develop one's identity is crucial as young people develop. Adding the inquiry standards furthermore provides the opportunity to increase their capacity for critical thinking as they mature in their educational careers. Once students can begin to identify biases employing primary and secondary sources, they are able to competently develop their own views and make vital connections to events in their communities, the state, the nation, and the world.

These standards significantly improve the current standards as they increase rigor and allow for inclusion of all. I again repeat my passionate support of these standards and enthusiastically imagine supporting our school and others in the implementation of them in the future.

Sincerely,

Stephanie Graham Becker, Ph.D.
Executive Director, ABHS

[EXTERNAL] in support of changes to social studies standards

Nancy O'Donohue <nancy@lakeshorehealing.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:11 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Gentlepersons: I have read the N.M. GOP's objections to the proposed social studies standards.

To call the "systemic racism" in our country a false theology is naive and racist in itself. Systemic Racism exists and must be countered with education. You need look no further than US Congressman Goshen's video of killing another Congressperson.

I support the new standards!

Nancy O'Donohue
Tutor - NFSH - The Healing Trust nancy@lakeshorehealing.com
269-929-6796

[EXTERNAL] RE Teaching Critical Race Theory

Daniel Castillo <dcastillo54@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:12 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Our New Mexico Public Education Department:

I am a former history and government teacher in the Santa Fe Public Schools. Do not change our Social Studies Standards and allow Critical Race Theory to be the paradigm by which we teach our children and young people history and government. This ideology is false and is promoted to facilitate socialist income distribution and special rights instead of equal rights in our society! Those of you who implement this divisive and false historical narrative and and false attack upon our institutions will lose your jobs when CRT supporters are voted out of office, just as happened recently in Virginia! Do not allow the politicization of our education and the manipulation of our children and young people! It is a disservice and danger to them and to our nation. CRT is a lie that pronounces our nation racist and discriminatory! It divides our youth into racial and gender categories and unjustly shames or radicalizes them! Yes, we have to teach U.S. history and government without glossing over our nation's wrongs and faults, but there is much that is positive in our history and our government! Please stand up for the truth! Mr. Daniel Castillo, Former History Teacher at Santa Fe High and History and Government Teacher at Tierra Encantada Charter School

[EXTERNAL] Student Feedback

Adán U. Veleta <a.v240@icloud.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

I am a student in Albuquerque High School, and I would personally like for the state to approve the new history Curriculum.

Thank you

[EXTERNAL] STOP CRT

Hutchcma <hutchcma@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

STOP CRT
NAME	ADDRESS	EMAIL
Katrina Dryer	312 S Ash St. Aztec NM	Katrinaedryer@gmail.com
Melissa York	117 1/2 N. Mesa Verde Ave	Kylie272@yahoo.com
Andrea Stradling	6200 Lake Shore Dr. Flora Vista, NM	andreastradling@gmail.com
Kevin Serrano	991 N Kathy Lyon Blvd. El Dorado, NM	ks333@aol.com
CUNTON FERRIER	P.O. Box 1248 Aztec, NM	m.vale.ferrier3@gmail.com
Thomas Story	218 Robinson Ave Aztec N.M	thomas.story60@gmail.com
Mark Bailey	Box 1240 Aztec NM	markbailey@gmail.com
Fawn Bailey	Box 1240 Aztec NM	mfbailey@mail.com
Becky Welch	24 Road 3103 Aztec, NM
Kacie Serrano	P.O. Box 1845 Flora Vista, N.M.	kaciewelch24@gmail.com
Erika Arnell	6426 Bent Tree Cir Farmington NM	erky9@hotmail.com
Blaze Beards	719 Pioneer Ave Aztec, NM	blaze.007@hotmail.com
Connie Hutchison	82 Rd 3535 Flora Vista, NM	hutchcma@yahoo.com
DAVID LAWSON	621 East Blomost, Aztec N.M.	elz-dav93@msn.com
Jarrell Batello	6006 Tee Court Fern, NM
JARRELL BATELLO	400 LOVERS LANE AZTEC, NM	jarrellbatello@hotmail.com
Michelle R. Ridgley	1217 Smith Lane Farmington, NM	M.ridgley1955@gmail.com
Elaine Lawson	Box 213 Aztec, N.M.	ela-dav93@msn.com
David Lawson	Box 213 Aztec, N.M.	ela-dav93@msn.com
J.J. West	2609 Rio Vista Way Fern NM	taggwest@gmail.com
Wm Bruce Higgins	2405 N. Cochiti, Farmington	bruce194669@msn.com
Wendy Sore	7 Rd 3538 Flora Vista, N.M.	wendysore@yahoo.com
Tiffany Sore	915 Hwy 17a Farmington, NM	tiffolive88@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Jamie Patterson <silverjamie11@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:31 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

To Whom It May Concern,

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed Social Studies curriculum standards. Please consider the following revisions during the editing process.

Elementary: Please look at this vertically. Does the sequencing align from one grade level to the next?

Revisions to consider to proposed Social Studies standards

6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

A. Civics.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by:

(b) identifying authority figures and describing their roles. (Add)- What does it mean to be a good citizen?

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by:

(a) recognizing and identifying signs and symbols around their town (parks, statues, murals) and community and indicating location of places, people, and things; and

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation (define this) by comparing traditions found in communities over time.

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(f) describing their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups. (how do you do this? Consider rewriting for clarity).

6.29.11.9 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FIRST GRADE:

A. Civics. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a civic life by explaining and providing examples of how people play important roles in society (parents, teachers, police officers, etc.).

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation (clarify the meaning of reconciliation or provided examples in a supplemental document to support teachers) by comparing life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:

(a) comparing fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past (about what?); and

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness (what is the definition of this in first grade?) and perspectives by examining and identifying cultural differences within a community.

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(b) explaining how student and individual identities (what is the difference?) are part of what makes each person unique and special.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building (what does this look like?) by investigating how people work together to accomplish a common task, and how working together benefits and challenges (define) people.

6.29.11.10 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SECOND GRADE:

A. Civics.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:
 - (a) evaluating how American society has changed through rules and laws; and
 - (b) understanding the purposes and structures of government (e.g. tribal, local, state, national).

(move to 3rd grade)

- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
 - (b) examining and comparing the American democratic principles to neighboring countries. (is this appropriate for 2nd grade? If so, what does it look like?)

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a civic life by examining and understanding the qualities of good leadership. (same as first?)

C. Geography.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems ~~by listing at least three different waves of migration to the western hemisphere~~ (too specific; maybe consider something like this 'explain why people move from one place to another) in chronological order.

D. History.

- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness (define) and perspectives by:

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(a) expressing a positive view of themselves ~~without being mean or making other people feel bad; and~~ (while being respectful to others)

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building by demonstrating respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from ~~the student.~~ (one's self)

6.29.11.11 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR THIRD GRADE:

A. Civics.

(f) comparing currency, ~~credit, debit, and checks~~ (remove) in the United States to other world money systems.

C. Geography.

- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by:

(a) explaining how physical and cultural characteristics (same as 3a) of world regions affect people, and examining geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations; and

(c) analyzing the movement of indigenous groups, including the removal and return of Indigenous people throughout New Mexico and the US. (move to 4th grade)

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(a) expressing a positive view of personal identities ~~without making someone else feel bad; and~~ (while being respectful of others)

6.29.11.12 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FOURTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by: (where do local and state leaders belong?)

6.29.11.13 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FIFTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:

(a) explaining how the principles of the declaration of independence became unifying ideas of American democracy; and (identify Democratic principles; add Constitution)

D. History.

(4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:

(b) identifying the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues. (be more specific)

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(2) explaining how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are. (clarify)

Middle School: There are a lot of standards at all three levels. Is there a way to scale this back a bit? Please consider the 180 day timeframe and how standards will be measured. Consider applying the same standards to each theme?

6.29.11.14 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SIXTH GRADE:

D. History.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by examining and explaining the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society.

Period of time to teach should end at Middle Ages

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(b) describing the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explaining their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period. (move above to history)

6.29.11.15 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SEVENTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic and political institutions by:

(a) explaining the role (people or institution?) of political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government, including voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, and analyzing issues;

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:

(a) Using figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies;

(b) Hypothesizing (what does this look like? It is measurable) how the policies of the Spanish monarchy in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region; and

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:

(a) describing the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights, and responsibilities; and (which system of government?)

B. Economics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:

(f) using primary and secondary sources (examples?) to explain the economic motivation of Spaniards as they enter the lands of and interact with the peoples of the Americas;

(g) using primary sources (examples?) to identify formal and informal actions that impacted local, tribal, and Spanish empirical economies during the Spanish colonial period; and

C. Geography.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by:

(a) constructing maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources; (is this necessary?)

(d) using paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the southwest region; (Consider: use geographic tools to ask and answer questions about New Mexico and the southwest region. Or, just say maps- you may not need to distinguish the type of map)

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of human-environmental interactions and sustainability by:

(b) describing how environmental events affect human activities and resources; (what about adaptation to environment?)

(h) interpreting (analyzing) the cultural differences between Spaniards and indigenous peoples;

D. History.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
- (k) evaluating the significance of short- and long-range trails throughout the lands gained in the Mexican cession (such as trade routes, railroad, military posts); and
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
- (d) creating research questions about art or architecture of the Mogollon or the Pueblo ancestors;
 - (e) creating a model of Mogollon and Pueblo art or architecture; (are both necessary? Consider removing this.)

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(14) developing a claim about (change to analyze) the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces; and

Eighth Grade:

There are many times in the standards when a specific strategy must be applied- Consider leaving the strategy up to the district or individual teacher. Focus on the concept that you want mastered at the end of the learning. Consider adding a standard to each theme that grounds the content:

For example:

Explain significant events that took place during of the American Revolution.

Identify the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in or experienced the American Revolution.

6.29.11.16 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR EIGHTH GRADE: _

A. Civics.

- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
- (b) citing specific examples of precedents established in the early republic that impact American lives today.

(Add) Explain how government policies were managed in the 1800s..

(Add) Explain the basic structure of American government by analyzing the US Constitution.

- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by ~~investigating~~ comparing (add) the causes and effects of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture that are associated with immigration and migration.

B. Economics.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:

(b) ~~identifying and~~ explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the north and the south.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic systems and models by drawing diagrams or making models to illustrate (explain or analyze) significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the western hemisphere.

- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of money and markets by:

(a) summarizing a significant economic warfare initiative of the civil war ~~through creative expression~~; and

(add) Examine the policies set due to the war outcome.

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

(a) identifying key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments; (does this belong in 7th grade?)

(e) ~~making personal connections~~ (not written as a standard), compare to immigration stories and experiences in the past and present.

- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:

(i) generating research questions, brainstorming sources, and gathering evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the battle of Glorietta Pass in the western campaign of the American civil war, also known as “la guerra civil Estadounidense”, and ~~(Replace with- Evaluate the important battles and events of the Civil War.)~~

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:

(a) drawing a diagram or making a model ~~(explain or create oral history)~~ to illustrate a non-text method an indigenous person or group of indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history; and

(b) comparing and contrasting the causes, demographics, and results of the American revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution. ~~(other revolutions?)~~

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by examining history from the perspective of the participants ~~by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies. (add)~~ through primary and secondary source documents.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of identity in history by:

(e) describing immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition ~~and develop a claim~~ regarding the impact that gender proportionality or disproportionality had on immigrant or emigrant community’s culture;

~~(add)~~ Examine what different groups experienced during Westward Expansion.

~~(add)~~ Explain how different identity groups experienced the Civil War and make connections to the present.

(h) ~~using an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current~~ significance of Juneteenth ~~(Let the teacher decide how to do this)~~

F. Inquiry.

(5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by:

(a) describing ~~(identifying)~~ the many facets of their identity, including family history and culture, and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups;

6.29.11.19 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY:

A. High school geography.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by

(e) applying geographic knowledge and geospatial skills to interpret the past and present to make informed decisions. ~~(decisions about what?)~~

(c) ~~identifying, defining, and (remove)~~ explaining the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by:

(a) ~~identifying, evaluating, and explaining (remove)~~ the causes, characteristics, and impact of human movement (migration, immigration, emigration) and settlement patterns at the local, national, and global scale;

(b) ~~identifying, evaluating, and explaining (remove)~~ the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion to include ~~(add)~~: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices, traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time;

(c) ~~describing, analyzing, and (remove)~~ comparing how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time;

(d) ~~analyzing and predicting (remove)~~ how location, place, and region impact the evolution of human perspectives and identities;

(e) ~~identifying, (remove) evaluating, and predicting (remove)~~ how particular historical events and developments shape human processes and systems in a given place or region over time; and

(4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of human-environmental interactions and sustainability by:

(a) making reasoned ethical judgements ~~(how is this measured?)~~ about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determining appropriate ways to respond;

6.29.11.20 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL NEW MEXICO HISTORY:

B. Economics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:

(c) ~~connecting the activities of the federal government in the state of New Mexico during the cold war and World War II, to New Mexico’s current economy; and (change to- Explain how the activities of the federal government during WWII and the Cold War influenced our current economy.)~~

(d) ~~identifying (change)~~ the main sources of income for tribes.

(e) ~~Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry. (Replace with- Explain incentives offered by New Mexico that attract various industries.)~~

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

~~(d) explaining how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico;~~ (remove)-

(g) ~~demonstrating contextualization and interpretation of~~ (Replace with- Explain) key events (Add- and identify major figures) that took place within Native American (change to- various) communities during the civil rights era.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:

(c) ~~probing the beginnings of~~ (Evaluate) the Native American boarding school system, and the ramifications that it had on indigenous communities in New Mexico and abroad;

(f) ~~demonstrating historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the civil rights era in New Mexico.~~ (Replace with- Analyze the Civil Rights era and impact in New Mexico.)-

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:

(a) ~~determining~~ (add) Explain why it was necessary for the United States to purchase the land acquired by the Gadsden purchase, instead of obtaining it by warfare;

(b) ~~demonstrating historical~~ (Replace with- Create) argumentation by using various resources and perspectives to show the impact of World War II on the people of New Mexico, and the impact that our citizens had on the war;

(c) identifying the beginnings of the arms race between the Soviet Union and the United States;
(very specific)

(d) ~~uncovering what types of activities took place, and what products were produced at Los Alamos national laboratory and Sandia national lab during the cold war and beyond;~~ (Replace with- Explain the importance of Los Alamos and Sandia Labs during the Cold War and today)

(e) using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of (Replace with- Analyze) how water management has changed over the centuries in New Mexico; and

(4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:

(a) examining (Replace with- Evaluate) the different perspectives from the peoples of New Mexico, and the United States at the time of annexation;

(b) dissecting (Replace with- analyze) the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and evaluating how the different people of New Mexico were addressed and impacted by the document;

(c) determining (add) Examine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period; and

(d) appraising the value of New Mexico's historical sites to New Mexico's culture. (Replace with- Discuss important historical sites that contribute to New Mexico's culture.)

(5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of power dynamics, leadership, and agency by:

(a) examining (Replace with- Explain) the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken;

(b) contextualizing (Analyze) the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the United States;

(f) demonstrating interpretation of critical changes in New Mexico's segregation laws. (Replace with- Explain how laws changed to end segregation.)

US History:

There are SO MANY standards. Please help teachers understand what will be required to teach in one school year- There is no way to do all of this in one year.

Language in the below standards suggest a specific activity be used while teaching the content. The choice of activity should be decided by the teacher.

9.12US 18

9.12US 19

9.12US 25

9.12US 115

9.12US 113
9.12US 118
9.12US 114
9.12US 133
9.12US 135
9.12US 141

6.29.11.21 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL UNITED STATES HISTORY:

A. High school United States history.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
- (g) ~~comparing and contrasting global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with reconstruction;~~ (Remove, covered above)
 - (h) ~~examining~~ (Replace with- Analyze) immigration policy in the United States over time;
 - (i) evaluating what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States; (Evaluate, what is the frame of reference? Would students know what a 'just economic system' is?)
 - (j) ~~examining contemporary labor struggles and populist movements in the United States and around the world;~~ (Remove, doesn't belong in US History)
 - (l) determining the effectiveness of post-colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule; (Confusing; consider removal)
 - ~~(o) determining the utility or futility of war;~~ (Remove)
 - (q) comparing and contrasting the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world, such as Weimar Germany; (Why is this in US History?)
 - (s) evaluating the impact of new deal programs and policies on diverse groups of people in America, ~~including African Americans and indigenous people;~~
 - (u) analyzing the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in the United States and Germany during this period; (Redundant, not needed. This is covered in standards below)
 - (x) ~~examining the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America;~~ (Remove, unclear why this is in US History)
 - (y) analyzing the impact of red scare ideology on social movements and activists (Remove) in the United States;
 - (z) ~~researching and analyzing issues~~ (Add 'Explain the impact) related to race relations in the United States since the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965; (vague, where would information come from?)
 - (hh) ~~analyzing the current state and health of American democracy and creating an action plan to protect American democracy; and~~ (Add 'Evaluate American principles of 1700s and today and see if they hold true to values in the Constitution')
 - (k) ~~describing~~ (Replace with- Evaluate) the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural south, explaining reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyzing how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor; (Remove specifics)
 - (p) ~~making connections among the important consequences of the industrial revolution;~~ (connections to what? Change to 'Evaluate')
Explain the significance of WWI (Consider adding)
 - (v) describing the multiple causes and consequences of the ~~global~~ (Add 'Great') depression of the 1930s;
 - (y) explaining the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the holocaust; (overlap of world history)
 - (z) explaining the reasons for American involvement in World War II and the key actions and events leading up to declarations of war against Japan and Germany (Add 'Axis Powers');
 - (ee) analyzing the roots of domestic communism and anti-communism in the 1950s, the origins and consequences of, and the resistance to McCarthyism (Redundant, consider removing);
 - (ff) ~~researching and analyzing~~ (Add 'Evaluate') resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and supreme court decisions on civil rights; and
 - (gg) ~~analyzing how communist economic policies and United States-sponsored resistance to Soviet military and diplomatic initiatives contributed to the fall of the Berlin wall in 1989 and the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991;~~ (Change to 'Analyze fall of communism and the US reaction')

- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
- (c) comparing and contrasting the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism versus classic colonialism; ~~(is this necessary?)~~
 - (e) evaluating the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people; ~~including Native Americans and enslaved Africans; (Remove- keep these open to additional narratives)~~
 - (g) explaining the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, ~~people on the borderlands, immigrants; (Remove, redundant)~~
 - (k) identifying the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the civil war; ~~including women and African Americans; (Remove, redundant)~~
 - (o) analyzing the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the civil war and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women; ~~(Separate after 'civil war' to make 2)~~
- Need a standard for causes and effects of American Imperialism ~~(consider adding)~~
- (v) analyzing the strategies of African Americans to achieve basic civil rights in the early 20th century;
 - (w) ~~examining the role of colonial peoples, women, indigenous peoples and African Americans during World War I; (Change to- Examine diverse perspectives and the roles people played during WWI.-~~
 - (aa) examining the lives and experiences of Mexicans during the 1930s and the relationship of the United States to Mexico; ~~(Why is this here? The focus should be on Mexican Americans, repatriation)~~
 - (bb) evaluating the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups; ~~such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals; (Add ' in America)-~~
 - (cc) examining the ways in which gender roles changed and stayed the same for women during the war;
 - (dd) analyzing state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia ~~(Add 'in the US');~~
 - (ee) analyzing the impact of the Vietnam war on the Vietnamese people and on the United States; ~~(Redundant, consider removing)~~
 - (ff) exploring the impact of the cold war on indigenous peoples ~~around the world;(Remove)~~
 - (mm) creating an action plan for a more just and equitable America ~~for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans; and (Remove)-~~
 - (k) analyzing the role and conduct of the United States during ~~the war (Replace with- WWI);~~
 - (l) examining the conflict between traditionalism and modernity as manifested in the major political and economic events in the first two decades of the 20th century; ~~(Replace with- 1. 'Evaluate social, political, economic changes in society between traditionalism and modernity. And 2. Evaluate social, political, economic changes between traditionalism and modernity through multiple perspectives.)~~
 - (m) summarizing the diplomatic and military policies on the war in Vietnam and the Korean War ~~(Add)~~ of Presidents Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon;
 - (n) evaluating accomplishments of the civil rights movement and how they served as a model for later feminist, disability, and gender rights movements of the 20th and 21st centuries; ~~(Redundant, consider removing)~~
 - (o) analyzing the important policies and events that took place during the presidencies of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon;
 - (p) analyzing the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and George Bush Sr. and Jr. ~~(Add)~~ and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics;

6.29.11.22 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL WORLD HISTORY:

- A. Civics. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by:
- (1) ~~assessing options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems;~~
 - (2) ~~applying a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts; and (Remove- These are inquiry standards; this is a repeat)~~
- C. Geography.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by ~~analyzing and (Remove)~~ explaining the reciprocal relationship between physical and geographical locations, and the patterns and processes humans create within them.
 - (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by ~~identifying, evaluating, and (Remove)~~ explaining the causes, characteristics, and Evaluate ~~(Add this and make this another standard)~~ impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.
- D. History.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
- (a) identifying significant transformative moments in world history, analyze the reasons behind their transformative nature, and explain how they continue to shape contemporary global interactions; (Break into 3 standards)
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
- (a) ~~identifying and~~ evaluating multiple causes and effects of historical events within world history;
 - (b) distinguishing between long- and short-term causes in developing historical interpretations; (This needs clarification. It is confusing).
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
- (b) effectively using and integrating evidence from a variety of diverse sources to evaluate and develop historical claims (add 'about historical events'); and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
- (c) ~~analyzing and~~ (Remove) evaluating multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups.
- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of power dynamics, leadership, and agency by:
- (a) using historical thinking skills to evaluate ~~historical and contemporary~~ (Remove) sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems, ~~and identify~~ (Remove) challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems;
 - (b) investigating ~~cultural and historical~~ (Remove) developments within societies with attention to culture (add), belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology; and
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity studies. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of identity in history by:
- (2) examining the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups (over time) (add); and

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Jamie Patterson

Educator in the state of New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Suggested rule changes

Joel Hutchinson <jhutchinson@lcps.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:40 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (59 KB)

Revisions to SS standards.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

Please see attached document for suggested changes to the Social Studies standards.

*Joel Hutchinson
ELA 9-12 Content Specialist
Secretary's Teacher Advisory Alum
New Mexico Teacher Leader Network Alum
Teach Plus Alum
575-527-5866
jhutchinson@lcps.net*

*"The greatest risk to man is not that he aims too high and misses, but that he aims too low and hits."
Michelangelo*

Revisions to proposed Social Studies standards

6.29.11.8 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR KINDERGARTEN:

A. Civics.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by:
(b) identifying authority figures and describing their roles. (Add)- What does it mean to be a good citizen?

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by:

(a) recognizing and identifying signs and symbols around their town (parks, statues, murals) and community and indicating location of places, people, and things; and

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation (define this) by comparing traditions found in communities over time.

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(f) describing their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups. (how do you do this?)

6.29.11.9 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FIRST GRADE:

A. Civics. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a civic life by explaining and providing examples of how people play important roles in society (parents, teachers, police officers, etc.).

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation (clarify the meaning of reconciliation) by comparing life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:

(a) comparing fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past (about what?); and

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness (what is the definition of this in first grade?) and perspectives by examining and identifying cultural differences within a community.

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(b) explaining how student and individual identities (what is the difference?) are part of what makes each person unique and special.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building (what does this look like?) by investigating how people work together to accomplish a common task, and how working together benefits and challenges (define) people.

6.29.11.10 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SECOND GRADE:

A. Civics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:

(a) evaluating how American society has changed through rules and laws; and

(b) understanding the purposes and structures of government (e.g. tribal, local, state, national). (move to 3rd grade)

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:

(b) examining and comparing the American democratic principles to neighboring countries. (is this appropriate for 2nd grade? If so, what does it look like?)

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of the roles and responsibilities of a civic life by examining and understanding the qualities of good leadership. (same as first?)

C. Geography.

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by listing at least three different waves of migration to the western hemisphere (too specific; should sound like this 'explain why people move from one place to another) in chronological order.

D. History.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness (define) and perspectives by:

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(a) expressing a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad; and (while being respectful to)

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of community equity building by demonstrating respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from the student. (one's self)

6.29.11.11 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR THIRD GRADE:

- A. Civics.
- (f) comparing currency, ~~credit, debit, and checks~~ (remove) in the United States to other world money systems.
- C. Geography.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by:
- (a) explaining how physical and cultural characteristics (same as 3a) of world regions affect people, and examining geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations; and
- (c) analyzing the movement of indigenous groups, including the removal and return of Indigenous people throughout New Mexico and the US. (move to 4th grade)
- D. History.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context and reconciliation by explaining how world events impact New Mexico and the United States in the past and today (COVID, war, exploration?).
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:
- (a) expressing a positive view of personal identities ~~without making someone else feel bad;~~ and (while being respectful of others)

6.29.11.12 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FOURTH GRADE:

- A. Civics.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by: (where do local and state leaders belong?)
- C. Geography.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by:
- (b) using a variety of maps, investigating and comparing how New Mexico's political boundaries have changed over time (e.g. Gadsden Purchase);

6.29.11.13 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR FIFTH GRADE:

- A. Civics.
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
- (a) explaining how the principles of the declaration of independence became unifying ideas of American democracy; and (identify Democratic principles; add Constitution)
- (b) describing how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. (e.g. slavery, civil rights, women's rights, reservations)
- B. Economics.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
- (a) exploring examples from the western hemisphere to illustrate the role of scarcity historically and in current events (war, oil, revolution);
- D. History.
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
- (b) identifying the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues. (be more specific)
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:
- (2) explaining how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are. (clarify, doesn't make sense)

6.29.11.14 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SIXTH GRADE:

- D. History.
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by examining and explaining the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society. Period of time to teach should end at Middle Ages
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

(b) describing the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explaining their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period. (move above to history)

6.29.11.15 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR SEVENTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic and political institutions by:
- (a) explaining the role (people or institution?) of political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government, including voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, and analyzing issues;
 - (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of processes, rules, and laws by:
 - (a) Using figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies;
 - (b) Hypothesizing (what does this look like?) how the policies of the Spanish monarchy in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region; and
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
 - (a) describing the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights, and responsibilities; and (which system of government?)

B. Economics.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
- (f) using primary and secondary sources (examples?) to explain the economic motivation of Spaniards as they enter the lands of and interact with the peoples of the Americas;
 - (g) using primary sources (examples?) to identify formal and informal actions that impacted local, tribal, and Spanish empirical economies during the Spanish colonial period; and

C. Geography.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by:
- (a) constructing maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources; (is this necessary?)
 - (d) using paper and digital maps (necessary?) to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the southwest region;
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of human-environmental interactions and sustainability by:
 - (b) describing how environmental events affect human activities and resources; (what about adaptation to environment?)
 - (h) interpreting (analyzing) the cultural differences between Spaniards and indigenous peoples;

D. History.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
- (k) evaluating the significance of short- and long-range trails throughout the lands gained in the Mexican cession (such as trade routes, railroad, military posts); and
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
 - (d) creating research questions about art or architecture of the Mogollon or the Pueblo ancestors;
 - (e) creating a model of Mogollon and Pueblo art or architecture; (are both necessary?)

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by:

- (14) developing a claim about (change to analyze) the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces; and

6.29.11.16 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR EIGHTH GRADE:

A. Civics.

- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of civic dispositions and democratic principles by:
- (b) citing specific examples of precedents established in the early republic that impact American lives today.
 - (Add) Explain how government policies were managed in the 1800s.
 - (Add) Explain the basic structure of American government by analyzing the US Constitution.
 - (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by investigating comparing (add) the causes and effects of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture that are associated with immigration and migration.

B. Economics.

- south.
- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:
 - (b) ~~identifying and~~ explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the north and the south.
 - (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic systems and models by ~~drawing diagrams or making models to illustrate~~ ~~(explain or analyze)~~ significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the western hemisphere.
 - (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of money and markets by:
 - (a) summarizing a significant economic warfare initiative of the civil war ~~through creative expression~~; and ~~(add) Examine the policies set due to the war outcome.~~

D. History.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:
 - (a) ~~identifying key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments;~~ ~~(does this belong in 7th grade?)~~
 - (e) ~~making personal connections~~ ~~(not written as a standard)~~, ~~compare~~ to immigration stories and experiences in the past and present.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
 - (i) ~~generating research questions, brainstorming sources, and gathering evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the battle of Glorieta Pass in the western campaign of the American civil war, also known as “la guerra civil Estadounidense”;~~ and ~~(Replace with – Evaluate the important battles and events of the Civil War.)~~
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
 - (a) ~~drawing a diagram or making a model~~ ~~(explain or create oral history)~~ to illustrate a non-text method an indigenous person or group of indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history; and
 - (b) comparing and contrasting the causes, demographics, and results of the American revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution. ~~(other revolutions?)~~

E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of diversity and identity by examining history from the perspective of the participants ~~by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant’s experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.~~ ~~(add)~~ ~~through primary and secondary source documents.~~
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of identity in history by:
 - (e) describing immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition ~~and develop a claim~~ regarding the impact that gender proportionality or disproportionality had on immigrant or emigrant community’s culture;
 - ~~(add) Examine what different groups experienced during Westward Expansion.~~
 - ~~(add) Explain how different identity groups experienced the Civil War and make connections to the present.~~
 - (h) using an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth ~~and evaluate the perspective of all who participated.~~ ~~(add)~~

F. Inquiry.

- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of taking informed action by:
 - (a) ~~describing~~ ~~(identifying)~~ the many facets of their identity, including family history and culture, and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups;

6.29.11.19 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL GEOGRAPHY:

A. High school geography.

- (1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of geographic representations and reasoning by
 - (d) ~~interpreting geographic representations to evaluate and explain changes over time; and;~~ ~~(remove)~~
 - (e) applying geographic knowledge and geospatial skills to interpret the past and present to make informed decisions. ~~(decisions about what?)~~
 - (c) ~~identifying, defining, and~~ ~~(remove)~~ explaining the distinguishing features of formal, functional, and perceptual regions.
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by:
 - (a) ~~identifying~~, evaluating, ~~and explaining~~ ~~(remove)~~ the causes, characteristics, and impact of human movement (migration, immigration, emigration) and settlement patterns at the local, national, and global scale;
 - (b) ~~identifying~~, evaluating, ~~and explaining~~ ~~(remove)~~ the causes, characteristics, and impact of diffusion ~~to include~~ ~~(add)~~: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices, traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time;

- (c) ~~describing, analyzing, and~~ (remove) comparing how human systems, perceptions, and identities shape places and regions over time;
- (d) analyzing ~~and predicting~~ (remove) how location, place, and region impact the evolution of human perspectives and identities;
- (e) ~~identifying~~ (remove) evaluating, ~~and predicting~~ (remove) how particular historical events and developments shape human processes and systems in a given place or region over time; and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of human-environmental interactions and sustainability by:
 - (a) ~~making reasoned ethical judgements~~ (how is this measured?) about people, places, events, phenomena, ideas, or developments, and determining appropriate ways to respond;

6.29.11.20 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL NEW MEXICO

HISTORY:

B. Economics.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of economic decision-making by:

- (c) ~~connecting the activities of the federal government in the state of New Mexico during the cold war and World War II, to New Mexico's current economy; and~~ (change to- Explain how the activities of the federal government during WWII and the Cold War influenced our current economy.)
- (d) ~~identifying~~ (change) -the main sources of income for tribes.
- (e) ~~Identify what makes New Mexico a good location for the space industry.~~ (Replace with- Explain incentives offered by New Mexico that attract various industries.)

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

- (d) ~~explaining how the Homestead Act of 1862 impacted the demographics of New Mexico;~~ (remove)
- (g) ~~demonstrating contextualization and interpretation of~~ (Replace with- Explain) key events (Add- and identify major figures) that took place within ~~Native American~~ (change to- various) communities during the civil rights era.
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
 - (c) ~~probing the beginnings of~~ (Evaluate) the Native American boarding school system, and the ramifications that it had on indigenous communities in New Mexico and abroad;
 - (f) ~~demonstrating historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the civil rights era in New Mexico.~~ (Replace with- Analyze the Civil Rights era and impact in New Mexico.)
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
 - (a) ~~determining~~ (add) Explain why it was necessary for the United States to purchase the land acquired by the Gadsden purchase, instead of obtaining it by warfare;
 - (b) ~~demonstrating historical~~ (Replace with- Create) argumentation by using various resources and perspectives to show the impact of World War II on the people of New Mexico, and the impact that our citizens had on the war;
 - (c) ~~identifying the beginnings of the arms race between the Soviet Union and the United States;~~ (very specific)
 - (d) ~~uncovering what types of activities took place, and what products were produced at Los Alamos national laboratory and Sandia national lab during the cold war and beyond;~~ (Replace with- Explain the importance of Los Alamos and Sandia Labs during the Cold War and today)
 - (e) ~~using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of~~ (Replace with- Analyze) how water management has changed over the centuries in New Mexico; and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
 - (a) ~~examining~~ (Replace with- Evaluate) the different perspectives from the peoples of New Mexico, and the United States at the time of annexation;
 - (b) ~~dissecting~~ (Replace with- analyze) the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and evaluating how the different people of New Mexico were addressed and impacted by the document;
 - (c) ~~determining~~ (add) Examine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period; and
 - (d) ~~appraising the value of New Mexico's historical sites to New Mexico's culture.~~ (Replace with- Discuss important historical sites that contribute to New Mexico's culture.)
- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of power dynamics, leadership, and agency by:
 - (a) ~~examining~~ (Replace with- Explain) the rights that were guaranteed to citizens in Article IX of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, and reason why Article X would have been stricken;

(b) contextualizing (Analyze)-the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the United States;

(f) demonstrating interpretation of critical changes in New Mexico's segregation laws. (Replace with Explain how laws changed to end segregation.)

6.29.11.21 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL UNITED STATES HISTORY:

A. High school United States history.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

(g) comparing and contrasting global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with reconstruction. (Remove, covered above)

(h) examining (Replace with- Analyze) immigration policy in the United States over time;

(i) evaluating what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States; (Evaluate, what is the frame of reference? Would students know what a 'just economic system' is?)

(j) examining contemporary labor struggles and populist movements in the United States and around the world; (Remove, doesn't belong in US History)

(l) determining the effectiveness of post-colonial institutions in ameliorating the effects of colonial rule; (Confusing; consider removal)

(o) determining the utility or futility of war; (Remove)

(q) comparing and contrasting the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world, such as Weimar Germany; (Why is this in US History?)

(s) evaluating the impact of new deal programs and policies on diverse groups of people in America, including African Americans and indigenous people;

(u) analyzing the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in the United States and Germany during this period; (Redundant, not needed. This is covered in standards below).

(x) examining the short- and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America; (Remove, unclear why this is in US History)

(y) analyzing the impact of red scare ideology on social movements and activists (Remove) in the United States;

(z) researching and analyzing issues (Add 'Explain the impact') related to race relations in the United States since the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Voting Rights Act of 1965; (vague, where would information come from?)

(hh) analyzing the current state and health of American democracy and creating an action plan to protect American democracy; and (Add 'Evaluate American principles of 1700s and today and see if they hold true to values in the Constitution')

(k) describing (Replace with- Evaluate) the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural south, explaining reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyzing how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor; (Remove specifics)

(p) making connections among the important consequences of the industrial revolution; (connections to what? Chnge to 'Evaluate')

Explain the significance of WWI (Consider adding)

(v) describing the multiple causes and consequences of the global (Add 'Great') depression of the 1930s;

(y) explaining the rise of fascism and the forms it took in Germany and Italy, including ideas and policies that led to the holocaust; (overlap of world history)

(z) explaining the reasons for American involvement in World War II and the key actions and events leading up to declarations of war against Japan and Germany (Add 'Axis Powers');

(ee) analyzing the roots of domestic communism and anti-communism in the 1950s, the origins and consequences of, and the resistance to McCarthyism (Redundant, consider removing);

(ff) researching and analyzing (Add 'Evaluate')- resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and supreme court decisions on civil rights; and

(gg) analyzing how communist economic policies and United States-sponsored resistance to Soviet military and diplomatic initiatives contributed to the fall of the Berlin wall in 1989 and the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991. (Change to 'Analyze fall of communism and the US reaction')

(3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:

- (c) comparing and contrasting the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism versus classic colonialism; (Hard to understand, is this necessary?)
- (e) evaluating the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans; (Remove)
- (g) explaining the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants; (Remove, redundant)
- (k) identifying the ways in which diverse groups of people participated in the civil war, including women and African Americans; (Remove, redundant)
- (o) analyzing the consequences of the continuing westward expansion of the American people after the civil war and evaluate the impact of the 14th Amendment on Native peoples and Asian and European immigrant men and women; (Separate after 'civil war' to make 2)

Need a standard for causes and effects of American Imperialism (consider adding)

- (v) analyzing the strategies of African Americans to achieve basic civil rights in the early 20th century;
- (w) examining the role of colonial peoples, women, indigenous peoples and African Americans during World War I; (Change to- Examine diverse perspectives and the roles people played during WWI.

(aa) examining the lives and experiences of Mexicans during the 1930s and the relationship of the United States to Mexico; (Why is this here? The focus should be on Mexican Americans, repatriation)

(bb) evaluating the short- and long-term consequences of the war on diverse groups, such as African Americans, Native Americans, Hispanic Americans, Japanese Americans, and Japanese nationals; (Add 'in America)

(cc) examining the ways in which gender roles changed and stayed the same for women during the war;

(dd) analyzing state-sponsored persecution and "othering" including anti-Semitism and homophobia

(Add 'in the US');

(ee) analyzing the impact of the Vietnam war on the Vietnamese people and on the United States; (Redundant, consider removing)

(ff) exploring the impact of the cold war on indigenous peoples around the world; (Remove)

(mm) creating an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans; and (Remove)

(k) analyzing the role and conduct of the United States during the war; (Replace with- WWI);

(l) examining the conflict between traditionalism and modernity as manifested in the major political and economic events in the first two decades of the 20th century; (Replace with- 1. 'Evaluate social, political, economic changes in society between traditionalism and modernity. And 2. Evaluate social, political, economic changes between traditionalism and modernity through multiple perspectives.)

(m) summarizing the diplomatic and military policies on the war in Vietnam and the Korean War (Add) of Presidents Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon;

(n) evaluating accomplishments of the civil rights movement and how they served as a model for later feminist, disability, and gender rights movements of the 20th and 21st centuries; (Redundant, consider removing)

(o) analyzing the important policies and events that took place during the presidencies of John F. Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson, and Richard Nixon;

(p) analyzing the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and George Bush Sr. and Jr. (Add) and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics;

6.29.11.22 ANCHOR STANDARDS AND PERFORMANCE STANDARDS FOR HIGH SCHOOL WORLD HISTORY:

A. Civics. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of roles and responsibilities of a civic life by:

- (1) assessing options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems;
- (2) applying a range of strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts; and (Remove- These are inquiry standards; this is a repeat)

C. Geography.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of location, place, and region by analyzing and (Remove) explaining the reciprocal relationship between physical and geographical locations, and the patterns and processes humans create within them.

(2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of movement, population, and systems by identifying, evaluating, and (Remove) explaining the causes, characteristics, and Evaluate (Add this and make this another standard) impact of diffusion: the spread of ideas, beliefs, cultural practices and traits, language, artifacts, methods, technologies, and diseases across space and over time.

D. History.

(1) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical change, continuity, context, and reconciliation by:

- (a) identifying significant transformative moments in world history, analyze the reasons behind their transformative nature, and explain how they continue to shape contemporary global interactions; (Break into 3 standards)
- (2) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of causes and consequences by:
- (a) identifying and evaluating multiple causes and effects of historical events within world history;
- (b) distinguishing between long- and short-term causes in developing historical interpretations; (This needs clarification. It is confusing).
- (3) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of historical thinking by:
- (b) effectively using and integrating evidence from a variety of diverse sources to evaluate and develop historical claims (add 'about historical events'); and
- (4) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of critical consciousness and perspectives by:
- (c) analyzing and (Remove) evaluating multiple points of view to explain the ideas and actions of individuals and groups.
- (5) The student shall demonstrate an understanding of power dynamics, leadership, and agency by:
- (a) using historical thinking skills to evaluate historical and contemporary (Remove) sources of information relating to local, regional, and global problems, and identify (Remove) challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems;
- (b) investigating cultural and historical (Remove) developments within societies with attention to culture (add), belief systems, ideologies, the arts, science, and technology; and
- E. Ethnic, cultural, and identity studies. The student shall demonstrate an understanding of identity in history by:
- (2) examining the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups (over time) (add); and

HISTORY OF 6.29.11 NMAC: [RESERVED]

6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, filed 6/30/2009, was repealed and replaced by 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, effective 12/14/2021.

[EXTERNAL] Please read as I want my voice to be heard. Thank you RPNM

Jean Tru <elona.trujillo3@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:43 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My message is simple I do not want CRT taught to my child or any child because it is wrong to teach children to hate their Country and feel oppressed because of the color of their skin, but to love all skin colors. CTR is actually teaching racism. No indoctrination of our children. I do not

Co- Parent with anyone, and surely not PED.

All newly elected school board members should have 6 month time to review such a lengthy document.

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Standards

Lonnie Rowell <lrowell8881@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:52 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear PED Officials,

I am writing in support of the proposed updates to New Mexico's Social Studies Standards. The proposed standards are grounded in a careful examination of relevant education and social sciences research regarding the educational needs of children and youth in the 21st century, developments in our understanding of the importance of cultural relevance in relation to curriculum development, and the importance of addressing civic literacy in relation to strengthening democracy. The proposed standards address critical facts related to shortcomings in the current approach to social studies curriculum in the state.

Please do not be swayed by the efforts of some in the state to use fear mongering and red-baiting to distract you from the facts. These efforts to deny the evidence of inequality in the U.S., the accumulated trauma with our country's history of racism, oppression, and exploitation of minorities and marginalized groups are efforts to turn back the clock. Such efforts are blind to the need to reinvigorate our public education system so that students are taught how to think critically about our past and present and are thus better prepared to engage productively as adults charged with the responsibility of nurturing and strengthening our democratic values and practices in the decades to come.

Sincerely,

Lonnie Rowell, PhD

Rio Rancho, NM 87144

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards

Jim Cooper <jim.cooper4@icloud.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent of two New Mexico public school students, a lifelong NM resident and school board president I am opposed to your updating social studies standards.

Teaching our students divisiveness is wrong for all children regardless of race.

Children, preteens and teens should be taught the facts of history. Teach them how to think for themselves, not what to think.

Our public schools are at a tipping point. We lost many students out of our public school system during the pandemic. Some to home school, more to out of state schools. It was an easy decision for many families rather than dealing with the lockdown. While normal sports was important to many, a good education was important for all of them. While a few came back to NM, most did not. Not only will we lose these kids through high school, we will lose them to out of state colleges. I believe that we will continue to lose students if we begin teaching critical race theory in our public schools.

Let's keep New Mexico kids in New Mexico!

Thank you,

Jim Cooper, Hondo, New Mexico

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Comments on the proposed 6.29.1.9 New Mexico Social Studies Standards farrsmail@gmail.com <farrsmail@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:55 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

While there may be some very admirable educational objectives in the proposed New Mexico K-12 Social Studies standards, it is clear to me that these proposed changes are seriously flawed and have been so from their very inception. These standards should simply be rejected outright.

Overall, I am very skeptical of this initiative given all the current controversies nationwide concerning our education system and teaching standards. -

Here are some of my major concerns and objections to these proposed standards:

1. The old NMSS standards were 26 pages; the proposed standards are 129 pages Who began this initiative, and why, and why now given the controversies across our nation on educational standards, methods, and processes? .

The NMPED website indicates that the American Institutes for Research (AIR) was selected through “a competitive bidding process to help a citizen committee” develop these new standards. . What citizen committee? Who was on that committee and how were they selected? What services were requested in the RFP (can’t find that on the NMPED site); who were the respondents to the RFP – and what were the ultimate evaluation criteria? Very sketchy!

VERY CONCERNING: from the American Institutes for Research (AIR) website...

(emphasis below is mine). The following clearly indicates the skewed (political) viewpoints of the very consultant / contractor that principally drafted the proposed NMSS standards:

- From Kimberly DuMont, (VP AIR Equity Initiative): “Systemic inequity is the most urgent challenge we face as a nation. We see it in education, housing, health care, employment, and community safety and policing. We see it in income and wealth disparities, life expectancy, and opportunities for leadership and success in this nation. The fault lines are more exposed than ever due to the pandemic and the nation’s racial justice reckoning, but the inequities are longstanding and deeply ingrained in our society.” Clearly a Critical Race Theory perspective not wanted in NMSS standards – or anywhere.
- “Creating safer communities to reduce harmful policing and build alternative public safety systems” De-fund the police? Not a good idea in NM or anywhere.
- What are instructional and support materials that will be needed to support the initiative? What text books and study materials will support these standards? ALL UNKNOWN!

1. The guiding principles underlying the standards (from p.8) reflect a very skewed political viewpoint and clear left-leaning political objectives:

- Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo political impact, social justice, equity and diversity...
- Identifying tools to share authentic stories including the study of relationship between power and oppression;
- Developing a future focused orientation that allows students to be critical thinkers in considering historical context in mending, healing, and transforming future interactions

1. Mandated teacher and student (political) activism:

- The draft standards prescribe a “rigorous and relevant K-12 social studies program ... led by teachers who are committed to active civic participation?”
- In conjunction with a cadre of teachers as civic / political activists, there exists at every level from K-12 requirements for students to “take informed action” i.e. to be political activists – beginning in Kindergarten! Seriously! Standard K4 for Inquiry is “Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, or global problems” (see p. 14)

3. Promoting divisiveness and separateness

- There is underlying emphasis on such topics as Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Standards; Diversity and Identity throughout K-12. There is a pervasive emphasis on addressing the many potentially divisive individual (race, gender, sexuality, disability, nationality, class, etc. etc.) and cultural differences among students rather than on teaching the American values, principles and traditions that define us and unite us as a nation and a people.
- There are equally pervasive undertones that portray America as a basically unjust and unfair nation that needs to be fixed rather than an imperfect nation still striving to “form a more perfect union” (5th grade Theme 2: Inequality and justice in America;... “...: Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.”

Recommendations:

- Reject these proposed Social Studies standards outright! And, if any changes are really thought to be needed and appropriate, begin anew with a much broader involvement of parents, parent-teacher organizations, business leaders and owners, and just concerned citizens. Such changes should be very open, deliberative and participative - well beyond just educators, activist consultants / contractors, and politicians.
- Completely eliminate all requirements for teacher and student activism / “active civic participation.” There should be no place enforced political activism in our schools!
- Focus on developing educated, responsible, and ethical American citizens through an honest and contextual teaching of the American values, founding principles, institutions, history, and traditions that unite us as a people and a nation while at the same time engendering knowledge of, and respect for the many individual, ethnic, and cultural differences that enrich us as a culture and as a nation.

Soon Ja A. Farr
Las Cruces / Fairacres NM

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment: Social Studies Curriculum and CRT

Shawna Austin <shawnaaustin2004@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 10:56 AM

To: Feedback, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Shawna Austin <wicklessblueeyez@gmail.com>; melcooca1117@gmail.com <melcooca1117@gmail.com>

📎 1 attachments (14 KB)

Public Comment Social Studies Curriculum and CRT and Social Emotional Learning.docx;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

Public Comment: Social Studies Curriculum and CRT and Social Emotional Learning

New Mexico Public Education Department.

Myself and many of the members in my community and the State of New Mexico stand for prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory and the Social Emotional Learning curriculum in our schools that is attached in the new Social Studies Curriculum. This teaching does not teach anything but how to be a racist and such teaching and practices of discrimination of any kind is unacceptable in our schools. New Mexico is so diverse already in everything. There are not many racial issues in our state; so why would we want to bring hate, racial discrimination and division to our State by teaching this to our kids?

Placing it in the Social Studies Curriculum in a roundabout way in a document that would take months to completely review and understand is wrong and unethical. Any one in approval in this is not looking out for the best interest of our kids and the staff that teaches our kids. Stop indoctrinating our kids, and teachers that have spent years on their education with the nonsense curriculum, and common core that is mandated by government to make you an extra dollar and let our teachers teach like they are licensed and educated to do.

Please stand in prohibiting these Curriculum changes and remove the Critical Race Theory and the Social Emotional Learning aspects from being curriculum in our New Mexico Schools.

Shawna Austin
505-290-1405
Shawnaaustin2004@gmail.com

Shawna L. Austin
505-290-1405
shawnaaustin2004@gmail.com

November 12, 2021

Public Comment: Social Studies Curriculum and CRT and Social Emotional Learning

New Mexico Public Education Department.

Myself and many of the members in my community and the State of New Mexico stand for prohibiting the teaching of Critical Race Theory and the Social Emotional Learning curriculum in our schools that is attached in the new Social Studies Curriculum. This teaching does not teach anything but how to be a racist and such teaching and practices of discrimination of any kind is unacceptable in our schools. New Mexico is so diverse already in everything. There are not many racial issues in our state; so why would we want to bring hate, racial discrimination and division to our State by teaching this to our kids?

Placing it in the Social Studies Curriculum in a roundabout way in a document that would take months to completely review and understand is wrong and unethical. Any one in approval in this is not looking out for the best interest of our kids and the staff that teaches our kids. Stop indoctrinating our kids, and teachers that have spent years on their education with the nonsense curriculum, and common core that is mandated by government to make you an extra dollar and let our teachers teach like they are licensed and educated to do.

Please stand in prohibiting these Curriculum changes and remove the Critical Race Theory and the Social Emotional Learning aspects from being curriculum in our New Mexico Schools.

Shawna Austin
505-290-1405
Shawnaaustin2004@gmail.com

Fwd: [EXTERNAL] Social Studies Department

Danny Parker <dparker@bulldogs.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:00 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Null, John Ross <jrnull@bulldogs.org>

📎 1 attachments (1 MB)

Artesia Public Schools Proposed Changes to Social Studies Standards.pdf;

Get Outlook for iOS

From: Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>

Sent: Thursday, November 11, 2021 6:16 PM

To: Danny Parker; Steinhaus, Kurt, PED; Sandoval, Katarina, PED; Bannerman, Vickie, PED; FeedBack, Rule, PED

Cc: John Ross Null

Subject: RE: [EXTERNAL] Social Studies Department

'Warning: This message originated outside of Artesia Public Schools. Do not click links or open attachments unless you are expecting the email and know the content is safe.'

CAUTION: This email originated from outside your organization. Exercise caution when opening attachments or clicking links, especially from unknown senders.

Thank you, Assistant Superintendent.

Gwen

From: Danny Parker <dparker@bulldogs.org>

Sent: Thursday, November 11, 2021 8:23 AM

To: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>; Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>; Sandoval, Katarina, PED <Katarina.Sandoval@state.nm.us>; Bannerman, Vickie, PED <Vickie.Bannerman@state.nm.us>; FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Social Studies Department

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see that attached from the Artesia Public Schools' Social Studies Department.

Danny

Danny Parker, Assistant Superintendent Secondary Education

Artesia Public Schools
301 Bulldog Blvd.
Artesia, NM 88210
575-746-3585

The information contained in this message may be confidential and/or constitute a privileged document. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient, or an employee or agent responsible for delivering this message to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any dissemination, distribution or copying of this communication is strictly prohibited. If you have received this communication in error, please notify Artesia Public Schools immediately by replying to the message and deleting it from your computer. Thank you.

Date: November 11, 2021

To: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary Designate
Dr. Gwen Perea-Warniment, Deputy Secretary of Teaching, Learning and Assessment
Ms. Katarina Sandoval, Deputy Secretary, Academic Engagement and Student Success
Dr. Vickie C. Bannerman, Deputy Secretary of Identity, Equity, and Transformation
Mr. John Sena, Director of Policy, Innovation, and Measurement

From: Danny Parker, Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Education
Jesse Wright, Social Studies Department Head
Terra Greer, Artesia Junior High School Social Studies Department Head
Alayna Guidry, Artesia Intermediate School Department Head

Please see the attached recommended edits from the Artesia Public Schools. This was a combined effort of the social studies departments at the secondary schools in Artesia. Every effort was made to keep the spirit of the standard while removing language that some could perceive as political.

These are some of the guiding principles that informed our work:

- Some of the language in the standards were doing the work of the parent. For example, having a standard for a kindergarten student that asks them to identify their people groups is not age appropriate. Therefore, the teacher would have to be actively helping a student identify their identity groups. This is dangerous and could be counterproductive on the students' part. The parent should be the one to help their child with this work.
- Some of the standards were actual assignments. The standard should not be prescriptive on how it is taught. For example, the standard reads that students should "Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture." The purpose of the standard is to have knowledge of Mogollon and Pueblo art and architecture. This standard adds the skill of creating a model to the standard.
- One teacher said that some of the "culturally and linguistically relevant" language should not be in the standard, but that the skills of teaching with cultural and linguistic relevance should be included in professional development for every teacher. "It's just good teaching."

Artesia Public Schools Recommended Edits to the Proposed Social Studies Standards

K-5

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.	K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves.
K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not.	K.23. Describe ways the student is similar and different from other people without making someone else feel badly.
K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.	K.25. Describe the student's family history, culture, and past.
2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.	2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people .
3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.	3.27. Express a positive view of themselves without making someone else feel badly.
3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups.	3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other cultures.
5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.	Cut...inappropriate for 5th grade...open to teacher's opinion
5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.	5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions.
5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.	5.31. Explain how each student's abilities could contribute to our society.

Grades 6-8

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	6.15. Describe how family history and culture connects us to the collective history and culture of other people.
6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	see 15
6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives.	see 15

6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.	see 15
7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity	not 7th grade history
7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.	7.21. Select a region of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.
7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.	7.28. Describe the obstacles and how people have overcome these obstacles in various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.
7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.	7.47. Research and understand Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.
7.49. Describe the relationship between their (key figures in NM History) cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/identities.	7.49. Describe the relationship between key figures in NM History cultural heritage(s).
7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.	Cut...not a standard but an opinion
7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.	Cut...assignment
7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display and conclude how to address stereotypes.	Cut...assignment
7.74. Identify and summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence.	Cut...of what?
7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact they had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.	7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact these routes and systems had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.
7.78. Analyze primary and secondary (perhaps sources) to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area) that would become) New Mexico.	7.78. Analyze primary and secondary sources to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on the area that would become New Mexico.
7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.	Cut...not a standard
7.92. Compare and contrast primary and secondary sources in conjunction with modern-era events to explore the impact of land ownership throughout New Mexico History.	Cut...assignment, not a standard

7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group.	7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives. (Perhaps not even a social studies standard???)
7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.	Cut...assignment, not a standard
7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.	7.98. Research examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.
7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.	7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the student's culture and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.
8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers.	8.7. Identify significant people, places, events, and ideas in history. (Way too broad)
8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.	8.12. Examine how and why colonists believed they were denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.
8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.	8.16. Accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.	Cut...assignment
8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	8.19. Describe the many facets of the student's family history and culture and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other Americans.
8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	Cut...Not Early US History

8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.	Cut...Not US History
8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.	8.29. Research the ways an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.
8.30. Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.	8.30. Research how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.
8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.	8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century (Portugal and Spain to Columbus) and the 16th century (Portugal, Spain & France) and describe the accomplishments of Pocahontas, Juan Ponce de Leon, the five tribes, etc..
8.34. Synthesize information from two or more different types of maps to support a claim about the global context of colonization.	8.34. Analyze, make and use different types of maps, globes, charts, and databases to include: indigenous peoples, immigrants, exploring countries, Proclamation of 1763, Westward Expansion
8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.	Same as 34...assignment
8.37. Engage in academic discussion around how the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.	8.37. Understand the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use that impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.
8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established.	8.43. Understand the importance of the Proclamation Line of 1763 and it's effect on the future colonies.
8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War).	8.46. Analyze the significance of 7 Year's War on the colonists and their relationship with Britain.

8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution	8.48. Understand the causes and results of the American Revolution and the inspiration it gave to other countries' revolutions to include Sugar Act, Tea Act, Boycotts, Stamp Act, Sons of Liberty, Daughters of Liberty, Boston Massacre, Boston Tea Party, Townshend Acts, Intolerable Acts, First and Second Continental Congress.
8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.	8.49. Discover the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on American Colonial Identity.
8.5. Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory.	Cut...see 34 above
8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.	8.55. Research precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.
8.58. Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity.	Cut...assignment
8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture.	Cut...assignment
8.68. Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.	8.68. Research how conflicts over slavery and economics led the North and South to war.
8.69. Use primary and secondary sources to examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.	8.69. Examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity to include John Brown, Fredrick Douglass, Harriett Tubman, Dred Scott, among others.
8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.	8.70. Examine events of the Sectionalism and Reform Era and how they relate to current issues and events.
8.72. Summarize a significant economic warfare initiative of the Civil War through creative expression	8.72. Identify significant economic warfare initiatives of the Civil War.
8.74. Generate research questions, brainstorm sources, and gather evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War (Guerra Civil Estadounidense).	8.74. Research the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War.

8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation.	8.76. Understand the Emancipation Proclamation and correct common misconceptions.
8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era.	8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation (including Kansas Nebraska Act, Missouri Compromise, Compromise of 1850) and judicial precedents in former slave states during the Reconstruction Era.
8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.	8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements advocating for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history (e.g. Quakers, Underground Railroad, newspapers, etc.)
8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions.	8.81. Describe the influence that the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States had on civil rights after the Civil War.
8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.	8.83. Evaluate the influence and origin of Juneteenth and its current significance.
8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies	Cut...assignment

9-12 Civics

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted overtime and how they currently shape policy debates.	9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted over time and how they currently shape policy debates.
9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them.	9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to ensure representation for all citizens in our form of government.
9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels.	9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" at all levels of government.

9-12 World History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.	9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and the long-term effects of their places in society.
9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.	9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins of people groups in World history (indigenous, forced migration, or voluntary migration).
9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in underrepresentation (or no representation) among people groups.

9-12 NM History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.	9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of each student's family history and cultural background and describe how each student's own identity is informed and shaped.
9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.	9-12.NMH.26. Determine the issues that affected some people's access pertaining to the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA. (no comma needed)	9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war prior to becoming a state of the USA.
9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using	9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico .
9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico (47 and 48 should be together????)	47 and 48 should be together.

9-12 US History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.US.13. Examine the course and consequences of the Columbian Exchange.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.14. Describe the evolution and short and long-term consequences of racialized labor and caste systems such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.15. Analyze how various Indigenous nations changed as a result of European settler colonialism.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.16. Examine the involvement of Indigenous nations in the colonial wars and evaluate the consequences for their societies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.17. Explain the ways that Indigenous nations expressed and transmitted their beliefs and values.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.18. Compare and contrast the different ways in which Indigenous people have resisted, survived, and adapted to maintain their patterns of community life.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.19. Compare and contrast the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism vs. classic colonialism.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.20. Explain the common elements of Indigenous societies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.21. Analyze facets of Indigenous social, political, and economic organization.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.22. Analyze relationships between Indigenous peoples and Spanish, English, French, and Dutch colonizers.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.23. Examine the interactions between English colonizers and Indigenous peoples in the 13 Colonies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.24. Determine the importance and utility of rights versus responsibilities.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.25. Determine the characteristics of a revolution and evaluate the American Revolution as compared to the French and Haitian Revolutions. History 15. Cause and Consequence	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.26. Investigate the causes and effects of the Revolutionary War on diverse groups of people in the United States.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States.	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans. History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.30. Describe the Constitutional Convention, the roles of specific individuals, and their conflicts and compromises.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.31. Explore the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States. Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876 Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of: Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.32. Examine the short- and long-term impact of settlers, pioneers, frontiersman, and homesteaders on the United States and on sovereign Indigenous nations. 101 Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787-1876 (Continued) Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of: Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to History 15. Cause and Consequence	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.33. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and short and long term effects of U.S. territorial expansion.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.34. Examine the ways in which the United States acquired new territories, including purchases, annexation, treaties, and war.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.35. Explain the importance of the Transportation Revolution of the 19th century.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.36. Analyze the effects of industrial growth throughout antebellum America.	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.37. Describe the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural South, explain reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyze how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.38. Analyze the convergence of the expansion of colonialism through territorial acquisition and the expansion of chattel slavery in acquired territory.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.40. Explore forms of resistance, adaptation and cultural preservation practiced by enslaved and colonized peoples during this period.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.41. Assess the impact of Federal policy towards Indigenous nations.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.	9-12.US.50. Analyze the Reconstruction efforts and determine their short- and long-term affects.
9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.	9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender roles have changed since the 19th century.
9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.	9-12.US.56. Evaluate the following concerning the economic system of the United States: efficiency, equity, and equality.
9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany.	Cut-extraneous
9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.	Cut--Same as 53
9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period.	9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections of different countries that have struggled with racial inequities such as Germany, South Africa, and middle Eastern countries.

9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia	9-12.US.104. Analyze how the perceptions of racism, sexism, and the "othering" of people groups have changed over time.
9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.	9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of the Cold War on social movements and activists in the United States.
9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.	9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Cold War with the other social movements in the United States.
9-12.US.116. Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO.	9-12.US.116. Examine Cold War issues such as McCarthyism and the Counter Intelligence Program.
9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.	9-12.US.118. Examine the obstacles of racial integration in communities and schools, attempts to end segregation, and the impact of the Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.
9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.	9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of different eras in the United States on diverse groups of people (i.e. progressivism, separatism, World War I, great depression, World War II, Cold War, Postwar Boom, Civil Rights, Vietnam War, Era of Social Change, environmentalism, conservatism, globalization).
9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality.	Cut - Current Events not US History
9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.	Cut - Current Events not US History
9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.	9-12.US.134. Examine the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present in the United States.
9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.	9-12.US.135. Examine social justice movements throughout history designed to improve conditions for Americans including Native Americans and African Americans.
9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.	9-12.US.136. Evaluate the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability and their impacts on legislation.

9-12 Economics

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.Econ.24. Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.	9-12.Econ.24. Compare and contrast economic systems including socialism, communism, and capitalism.
9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities.	9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the social problems that affect New Mexican communities
9-12.Econ.48 – 175 are missing from the original proposed draft	???

9-12 Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.	9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value all cultures represented in the community without perceiving or treating any culture as inferior.
9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.	Cut
9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical, cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which have impacted some underrepresented populations.
9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.	Cut
9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.	Same as 18
9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.	9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate how recent social justice protests have affected the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.

[EXTERNAL] PROPOSED SOCIAL STUDIES CURRICULUM

FAIR Las Cruces Chapter <las-cruces@fairforall.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:00 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Abelardo Balcazar, and I am writing on behalf of the Las Cruces Chapter of FAIR, The Foundation Against Intolerance and Racism.

FAIR is a nonpartisan, grassroots organization with approximately 30,000 members and 80 chapters nationwide, and still growing. FAIR is dedicated to advancing civil rights and liberties for all Americans, and promoting a common culture based on fairness, understanding and humanity. I invite you to look at FAIR's website www.fairforall.org to learn more about our organization.

Racism is real. Prejudice is real. But we urge you to reject the divisive and race-essentialist Social Studies curriculum that the NMPED is currently proposing. As proposed, this intolerant, divisive curriculum will be damaging to our children's academic, psychological, and emotional development. By implementing this regressive curriculum, with no definitive proof the learning concepts being proposed are either effective or beneficial, you will instead move us backward toward more division and racism, instead of forward toward greater understanding, fairness, and compassion within our community.

The NMPED's proposed Social Studies curriculum is being presented as a benign and scholarly attempt to understand the causes and implications of racism in society. However, we also believe that the proposed standards practice promotes race essentialism, fixating on our differences and presenting a skewed, negative version of history that focuses on flaws and failings and mostly ignores the success and progress our nation has made.

The NMPED, have wrongly suggested that those concerned about the proposed social studies curriculum are against teaching "real" history. On the contrary, we advocate for providing a fair and balanced accounting of history, that includes its flaws and failings, as well as its great progress over injustice. We also believe in providing our children with a sense of hope and optimism. By teaching our children that the most important thing to consider about our history is the skin color, gender, ethnicity, or group identity of the people involved, you are locking them into a limited view of themselves and others and stunting their potential for true academic and critical understanding of our history and how it has shaped our society. A young mind that is taught how to think and not what to think can see new worlds and possibilities, and can question relentlessly, which directly aligns with continuous, life-long learning.

Fortunately, FAIR has a solution to fighting racism and intolerance in all its forms, while also teaching a fair and accurate view of history. FAIR has created FAIRStory, a research-based curriculum that focuses on our shared humanity, understanding, diversity and fairness and empowers educators to create inclusive classrooms. The FAIRStory Curriculum exposes students to the histories, experiences, struggles, accomplishments, and contributions of Americans of diverse backgrounds. Ours is a fact-based approach to teaching students about racism; it's honest about the failures and shortcomings of our American past and present, while also recognizing how the struggles and accomplishments of Americans continue to move us closer to our founding ideals. Students learn to counter racism and intolerance with humanity and compassion. I encourage the NMPED to review the curriculum at www.fairstory.org.

In our view, all students, families, and educators, regardless of their faith, skin color, ancestry, or other personal traits, must feel a sense of belonging in New Mexico classrooms. By acknowledging our uniqueness as individuals, while also emphasizing our common humanity, FAIR curriculum inspires children toward a more fair, tolerant, and optimistic future.

New Mexico's Public Schools must promote shared humanity and empathy, not the divisiveness proposed by the NMPED and others, as we strive to create a truly inclusive and nurturing learning environment for all. By focusing on what we have in common, we can transcend differences and create bonds of trust and understanding as we continue to grapple with difficult issues in our communities.

Moving forward, we request that our students' curricula be discussed in a transparent manner with a true opportunity for community consultation and feedback before implementation. Additionally, we call on our school districts to promote diversity, equality, and inclusion (DEI) in a manner that respects the dignity and unique personality of all students. Woven into our American culture is our optimism and our commitment to continued progress through challenges. To face those challenges now, we urge our school districts to embrace pro-human ideals of fairness, equality, and shared humanity, and to commit to an open-minded and honest discussion of the proposed changes.

Respectfully,

Abelardo Balcazar

Chapter Leader

FAIR Las Cruces

las-cruces@fairforall.org

(575) 414-8851

[EXTERNAL] Proposal to change Social Studies K-12 curriculum

Evelyn Rinaldi <emagnolia59@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:02 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am in opposition to your proposal to include identity (LGTBQ) and divisive ethnic topics (systemic racism) into our Social Studies curriculum. This proposal will fan the flames of racism rather than quench them. We were all created in the image of God. We are the HUMAN RACE. LORD forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us... deliver us from evil, for thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory for ever.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Proposed replacement Social Studies Curriculum Draft 6.29.11 NMAC

Carol Komesu <carolkomesu@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:02 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Sir/Madam,

Before I retired from my career as a New Mexico teacher, I was on the committee who helped write the Kindergarten science curriculum for APS to align to NM Standards. After reviewing the draft of the NM Social Studies, on the whole it seems to be a very ambitious and all encompassing document. Unfortunately, there are some instances of bias written into the document. With a few changes, this curriculum would be less divisive AND still accomplish the goals. Below are specifics with the corresponding standard numbers in the strands, "Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity," and "Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building," so you can easily access and reword them:

First, you need to strike the words "systemic inequity" throughout the document. The term, systemic racism is a THEORY developed by sociologist Joe Fegin; it is not a fact. Adding it to the curriculum will only perpetuate derision, shame, and hatred. Certainly instances of racist acts (e.g. slavery) and corresponding events to counteract racism (e.g. the Underground Railroad) should be taught. Strike the words "systemic" and "equity" throughout the document and replace the word "equity" with the word "fairness" for "unjust acts/actions" when necessary. This will help students understand the concept without stoking the flames of racism by using incendiary slogans of the radical left Woke movement.

"9-12.EC1.16 Access how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, and law enforcement." This entire standard should be eliminated because it is covered in "9-12.EC1.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups."

"9-12.EC1.21 Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy." Rephrase this standard by deleting the words "systemic inequity" and replacing them with "unfairness" or "current unjust actions."

Within the grade level performance standards, certain standards should be revised including:

Fifth Grade, Theme 2, Civics 3, 5.12. "Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today." Replace the word "inequity" with "unjust acts". (Page 39 in draft)

Seventh Grade, Theme 1, 7.28. "Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to.....". Insert the words "in the past have" before the words "lead to...". (Page 54).

Seventh Grade, Theme 4 (c. 1490s - 1590s CE), 7.60. "Describe how diversity includes the impact of unequal power" Insert the word "past" before "unequal power." (Page 57 in draft)

Eighth Grade, Inquiry 24. 8.12. "Describe how different groups have been denied...." Change "have been" to "were." (Page 64 in draft)

I salute your hard work in this much needed revision to NM Social Studies Standards. I hope that you will consider and implement my suggestions into the draft so that students will be more able to learn our past history and develop strategies to discern truth in current and future events. It is too easy to fall into rhetoric proposed by social media and biased reporting. Citizens need to be able to recognize the propaganda and use their critical thinking to mold the future of our state, nation, and world.

Sincerely,
Carol Ann Sigler-Komesu

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] CRT

Kay Arvizu <kayarvizu@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:05 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

This is to voice our opposition to the current atrocity being forced on our children. This "theory" goes against our instruction from God to love and encourage each other. This is a divisive tactic that doesn't fool anyone. Please do NOT implement this agenda.

Ruben & Kay Arvizu

Sent from my iPad

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum change

Angela Cadwallader <acadwallader@tularosa.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:06 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

While I recognize that " Critical Race Theory" is typically a subject taught in Colleges. I believe that the Social Studies Curriculum changes proposed are dangerously close to approaching this level. As evidenced by the Virginia election, the parents and community of this country do not believe that our children should be indoctrinated in this fashion.

Thank you for your time.

Angie Cadwallader

NM resident

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards feedback

Cynthia Wise <cynde@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:07 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon. I am writing on behalf of myself as a graduate of New Mexico Schools and as a mother.

I think the draft revised standards are a great first step in righting the historical wrongs done in the New Mexico education system (as evidenced by the outcome of the consolidated Martinez/Yazzie ruling). For too long New Mexico's Public Education Department has ignored the histories of a majority of this state's children. It is about time that the social studies standards be revised and updated to be more inclusive in recognizing the various social locations of its students. I could get all academic and provide a bunch of citations that show that students do better when they see themselves in the curriculum – but you likely know that.

I would also urge that the PED be mindful of these standards when adopting curriculum. Teachers are using textbooks that are outdated and discriminatory in that they ignore much of the state's Indigenous History. I attended and graduated from Gadsden High School in the 1970s. Sadly, the textbooks being used for social studies aren't much different than they were then.

Finally, I would urge that you NOT delay adoption of these standards. We've all had plenty of time to read through them and investigate their worth.

Thank you for your time and consideration. Should you have any questions, feel free to reach out.

Make the day matter!

Cynthia Wise, PhD
(she/her pronouns)

Southern New Mexico Equity Forum
Transform Education NM
NM Statewide Ethnic Studies Council
AERA Ed Change SIG
Alma d'arte Charter HS Governing Council

"If what you're doing doesn't make a difference, why are you doing it?" - Shaun Harper

"Spectacular success is the result of unspectacular preparation" - (paraphrased, Robert Schuller)

[EXTERNAL] social studies curriculum

Alan Marks <jamar@unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My input is that the social studies teachers who put this new curriculum together did a terrific job. We have to recognize the world we live in and the history of that world. We want critical thinking skills taught in every class and especially in social studies. This is just to give emphatic support to the proposed new curriculum.

Alan Marks

English and Social Studies teacher

[EXTERNAL] PED Revision of Social Studies Curriculum

Ken Carpenter <kencarpenter5@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:09 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing to strongly support the PED's proposed curriculum changes in social studies. I have been an educator for over fifty years, now retired from the University of New Mexico, and still teaching part time. My degrees are in history and education policy and management. These changes are timely and especially needed in these days when our social, political and cultural systems are under severe strain. I have taught and written extensively about the rich diversity and cultural heritage of New Mexico and the U.S. Southwest Borderlands. We are now what the rest of the U.S. will look like in the next few decades. We must reshape our educational system to serve all students equally and instill both pride in who we are and sensitivity to the background and accomplishments of everyone in our society.

Those voices calling for white supremacy, hatred of immigrants, racism, sexism, chauvinism and xenophobia must not be allowed to divide us and impose their extremist agendas on our educational system.

Thank you for your consideration.

Ken Carpenter, PhD

kencarpenter5@gmail.com

505-379-0099

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Study Standards

Tiffany Cortez <tsn816@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:21 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

I am a resident of Albuquerque and have four children who will be or are attending a NM funded school. My husband is Filipino and I am Caucasian. Race is something we discuss at home in a loving environment. I definitely want them to know the history of the world and about the natural man's desire to marginalize those that are different than them. This is found across history and across races and ethnicities and is something to be aware of and suppressed. Slavery and the sad history of the African Americans should definitely be taught in schools.

After reading the proposed standard, I see that you are trying to bring different voices that are sometimes left out of history. I think that's great. The worry I have is that children will be put into categories by the way they look instead of just reflecting back on history. This is racism. I would like you to add into the rules that no teacher should ever take what was historically true and project that onto the children in his/her classroom.

Children are not responsible for what other people who looked like them did (what was very common in the time that they lived). We must be very careful not to accuse someone of being a racist because they were born to certain parents. It actually encourages more racism by making whites feel like they have to defend themselves and their heritage. There are good and bad aspects of every culture and we should not assume that because a person is a certain race that they hold particular values or that one culture is superior.

Learning about different cultures and their history is important, but no culture should be shown in a completely negative light and divide children into groups. We have a wonderful diverse culture that should be celebrated.

Thank you,
Tiffany Cortez
Albuquerque, NM

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum

Sarah Brown-Martinez <kc5ayr@unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:22 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern,

I am writing to voice my support of the changes being suggested for New Mexico's social studies curriculum. I taught in the Albuquerque Public Schools for 33 years and was an instructor for UNM, College of Education for 20 years. My focus has always been on language acquisition, helping students learn English and develop their Spanish, and on developing students' pride in their native languages and their cultures. I know first hand how helpful or how discouraging classrooms can be for our students when the teacher or the curriculum ignores their identities. At the college level I worked with teachers to guide them to understand the diversity of our classrooms and see our students as assets and contributors, not just English language learners and thus a problem.

The need is great for a better understanding of our unique New Mexican history, and both students and teachers will gain from the innovations being suggested for our social studies curriculum. I strongly encourage you to think about the needs of our teachers as well as the needs of all of our New Mexican children and families. This should not be a political decision, but one based on the future and our place in it.

Respectfully,

Sarah Brown-Martínez, PhD

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed Repeal and Replace of 6.29.11 NMAC

Stuart Joy <stuartljoy@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:06 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

 1 attachments (2 MB)

Comments on Proposed Repeal & Replace of 6.29.11 NMAC.pdf;

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see my attached comments on the Proposed Repeal and Replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Please confirm you've received this and are able to open the attachment.

Thanks,
Stuart Joy

November 12, 2021

VIA EMAIL TO: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Re: Proposed Repeal and Replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Dear Mr. Sena,

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the proposed repeal and replace of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies. The periodic evaluation of standards is consequential in ensuring students are receiving the best quality of an education that society can provide. I assume a great deal of effort has been expended by numerous individuals to draft the proposed standards and would like to express my gratitude for their efforts.

There is an intrinsic challenge developing social studies standards that is unique to this subject as opposed to other disciplines such as math, science, and reading. For math, science, and reading there are more core principles that are universally accepted as fact and truth. There are agreed upon rules for arithmetic, proven laws of nature, and generally accepted rules of grammar that we can agree are essential building blocks for an educational foundation. However, by nature social studies are much more nuanced. All over the world people of all walks of life add and subtract the same, they live by the same laws of physics and chemistry, and though we speak in numerous different languages we for the most part have a general understanding of how to translate and communicate effectively, but look at the social aspect of different cultures and you will find all kinds of forms of government and social “norms” in an particular culture that are vastly different from one another. How humanity interacts with one another is probably the most complex thing about us. The draft social studies standards are not just a review and refining of the current standards but a complete repeal and replace. That is a major undertaking. By law only a 45-day public comment period is required but it would be a grave mistake to not extend that to allow a more thorough review and revisions of the proposed standards. These standards are the building blocks of teaching our kids how to interact with one another. We should all take notice and contemplate the irony that the draft social studies standards that are supposed to bring us together are causing deep division.

I am not in favor of just maintaining the status quo without considering opportunities for improvement. I do believe that there is a natural tendency for history to be written by the victors. For the first time this year at the age of 35 I learned of the Tulsa Race Massacre. I think that is a very important historical event that should be taught. There are a lot of other things like this that we could take a closer look at to make sure we are accurately teaching a more wholistic history.

There are some fundamental flaws to the proposed standard that violate the core principle of developing a future-focused orientation, that allows students to be critical thinkers in considering historical context in mending, healing, and transforming future interactions. The proposed standards go beyond helping a student find confidence and pride in their own identity and mutual respect for others identity to degrading another's identity by labeling it as "oppressive." For example:

- 9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, ~~including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long term effects of oppression.~~
 - The implicit message is that ones identity as described by their race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion can classify them as an oppressor simply based on if they are viewed as being part of a dominant culture. That is a very destructive idea. I would propose striking everything after "history" as shown above.
- 9-12.WH.37. Examine the role colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism plays in the evolution of ~~cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language~~ culture.
 - It seems to me to be a big problem that the standards from starting in Kindergarten are striving to focus on students identify their "groups" and "identity" and then build up to this where it is implied that their cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language are based on colonization, assimilation, and/or syncretism. I don't believe that meets the principle of mending, healing, and transforming. I would suggest the change as shown above.

The proposed social studies standards could easily be viewed as collectively valuing the individual and their identity more than the collective identity we have as a society or nation. Also, "groups" and "group identities" are mentioned 26 times in the proposed social studies standards which also has the unintended consequence of dividing us even further. I believe the aim of social studies is to provide the necessary background knowledge to develop values and reasoned opinions for responsible participation in a diverse democratic society. If we excessively focus on what divides us and makes us different we are not adequately equipping our students with the skills and knowledge to participate in a civil manner. There needs to be a more balance approach that embodies our national motto of E Pluribus Unum (out of many, one). As they are written the proposed social studies suggest we are simply E Pluribus, there is not much that inspires the next generation to come together.

Many of the standards have a fundamental flaw of being written as assignments and not standards. That makes it difficult for teachers to do their job of developing appropriate methods for helping their students meet set standards. It also become difficult if not impossible to assess whether a standard is met when it's not written as a standard. The following are a few examples:

- ~~7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.~~
 - This is an assignment and one my 4th grade teacher actually had us do for NM History back in 1994. The purpose of the assignment would be the standard.
- ~~8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers.~~
 - Everything after "history" is prescribing a method. To make the standard measurable then specific people, places, events, ideas would need to be identified in the standard.
- ~~8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.~~

- Examining history from perspective of the participant would be the standard, the first part is a prescribed assignment.
- 8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.
 - Who is the arbiter of the claim as correct or not?
- 8.83. ~~Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to~~ describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.
 - Not a bad idea but once again the first part is an assignment not a standard.

There are partisan political ideologies baked into the standards. Robust and passionate debate from opposing sides has been a defining characteristic of our country from its inception. That fiery debate is what I believe has and continues to forge a more perfect union. It is why constitutional protections for the minority (regardless of what group or ideology is in the minority at any given time) has allowed our country to evolve over time into a very diverse and strong society. To allow partisan political ideologies into the proposed social studies standards is immoral, dangerous, and antithetical to who we are as a democratic republic that values and protects the minority. To be fair it is hard to not allow our biases to influence our work, but I think there needs to be more honest evaluation and standards and strike any standard that has a partisan political bent. It is common knowledge that Democrats currently have majority control over all the state government. Yes, elections have consequences, but our children's educational curriculum should be off limits by both sides. This may not have been intentional, but it is definitely not acceptable to have these ideologies in the proposed social studies standards. A good faith exercise would be to allow all partisan political caucuses in our legislature an opportunity to strike any standard that it views is political. A few examples are:

- 9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.
- 9-12.US.131. Analyze the presidency of Ronald Reagan (1981–1989) and the rise of the conservative movement in American politics.
- 9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.
- 9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.

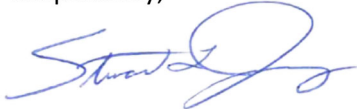

This is not an exhaustive list of comments because I simply did not have enough time to do a thorough review and revision of the proposed social studies standards. For this reason, I've attached a list of recommended edits to the proposed social studies standards that were developed by the social studies staff at Artesia Public Schools. I trust their experience and judgement and concur with most of their suggestions.

From my experience New Mexico has a bad habit of writing long and complicated laws and standards with no real strategy of how to meet those standards. I think when it comes to laws, rules, and standards the expression "less is more" is usually true. We will achieve better outcomes if we focus on doing the fundamentals exceptionally well. For example, I work in environmental compliance and the New Mexico Environment Department I believe suffers from the same problem. The NMED continues to spend most of their limited resources on writing long complicated laws with very little left for implementation and enforcement. The result is an unjust system in which law breakers have an economical advantage over law abiding citizens because the state has very few resources left to equitably enforce those laws. We need to work smarter not harder. The proposed social studies standards are too long and complicated. They need to be whittled down to something more manageable.

Many school boards have laid out logical and justifiable reasons for the NMPED to extend the comment and revision period on these standards until July 2022. I respectfully request that you grant this reasonable request given the intrinsic complexities of developing social studies standards as I've explained above.

Respectfully,

Stuart Joy
2205 W Ray Ave
Artesia, NM 88210
stuartjoy@gmail.com

Encl. Artesia Public Schools Recommended Edits to the Proposed Social Studies Standards

Artesia Public Schools Recommended Edits to the Proposed Social Studies Standards

K-5

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.	K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves.
K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not.	K.23. Describe ways the student is similar and different from other people without making someone else feel badly.
K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.	K.25. Describe the student's family history, culture, and past.
2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.	2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people .
3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.	3.27. Express a positive view of themselves without making someone else feel badly.
3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups.	3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other cultures.
5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.	Cut...inappropriate for 5th grade...open to teacher's opinion
5.30: Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.	5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions.
5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.	5.31. Explain how each student's abilities could contribute to our society.

Grades 6-8

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	6.15. Describe how family history and culture connects us to the collective history and culture of other people.
6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	see 15
6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives.	see 15

6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.	see 15
7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity	not 7th grade history
7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.	7.21. Select a region of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.
7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.	7.28. Describe the obstacles and how people have overcome these obstacles in various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.
7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.	7.47. Research and understand Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.
7.49. Describe the relationship between their (key figures in NM History) cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/identities.	7.49. Describe the relationship between key figures in NM History cultural heritage(s).
7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.	Cut...not a standard but an opinion
7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.	Cut...assignment
7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display and conclude how to address stereotypes.	Cut...assignment
7.74. Identify and summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence.	Cut...of what?
7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact they had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.	7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact these routes and systems had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.
7.78. Analyze primary and secondary (perhaps sources) to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area) that would become) New Mexico.	7.78. Analyze primary and secondary sources to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on the area that would become New Mexico.
7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.	Cut...not a standard
7.92. Compare and contrast primary and secondary sources in conjunction with modern-era events to explore the impact of land ownership throughout New Mexico History.	Cut...assignment, not a standard

7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group.	7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives. (Perhaps not even a social studies standard???)
7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.	Cut...assignment, not a standard
7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.	7.98. Research examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.
7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.	7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the student's culture and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.
8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers.	8.7. Identify significant people, places, events, and ideas in history. (Way too broad)
8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.	8.12. Examine how and why colonists believed they were denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.
8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.	8.16. Accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.	Cut...assignment
8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	8.19. Describe the many facets of the student's family history and culture and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other Americans.
8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	Cut...Not Early US History

8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.	Cut...Not US History
8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.	8.29. Research the ways an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.
8.30. Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.	8.30. Research how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.
8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.	8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century (Portugal and Spain to Columbus) and the 16th century (Portugal, Spain & France) and describe the accomplishments of Pocahontas, Juan Ponce de Leon, The Prophet and his brother Tecumseh, the five tribes, etc..
8.34. Synthesize information from two or more different types of maps to support a claim about the global context of colonization.	8.34. Analyze, make and use different types of maps, globes, charts, and databases.
8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.	Same as 34...assignment
8.37. Engage in academic discussion around how the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.	8.37. Understand the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use that impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.
8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established.	8.43. Understand the importance of the Proclamation Line of 1763 and it's effect on the future colonies.
8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War).	8.46. Analyze the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War).
8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution	8.48. Understand the causes and results of the American Revolution and the inspiration it gave to other countries' revolutions.

8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.	8.49. Discover the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity.
8.5. Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory.	Cut...see 34 above
8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.	8.55. Research precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.
8.58. Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity.	Cut...assignment
8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture.	Cut...assignment
8.68. Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.	8.68. Research how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.
8.69. Use primary and secondary sources to examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.	8.69. Examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.
8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.	8.70. Examine events of the Sectionalism and Reform Era and how they relate to current issues and events.
8.72. Summarize a significant economic warfare initiative of the Civil War through creative expression	8.72. Identify significant economic warfare initiatives of the Civil War.
8.74. Generate research questions, brainstorm sources, and gather evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War (Guerra Civil Estadounidense).	8.74. Research the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War.
8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation.	8.76. Understand the Emancipation Proclamation and correct common misconceptions.
8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era.	8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in former slave states during the Reconstruction Era.
8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.	8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements advocating for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.

8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions.	8.81. Describe the influence that the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States had on civil rights after the Civil War.
8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.	8.83. Evaluate the influence and origin of Juneteenth and its current significance.
8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies	Cut...assignment

9-12 Civics

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted overtime and how they currently shape policy debates.	9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted over time and how they currently shape policy debates.
9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them.	9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to ensure representation for all citizens in our form of government.
9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels.	9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" at all levels of government.

9-12 World History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.	9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and the long-term effects of their places in society.
9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.	9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins of people groups in World history (indigenous, forced migration, or voluntary migration).

9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in underrepresentation (or no representation) among people groups.
----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

9-12 NM History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.	9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of each student's family history and cultural background and describe how each student's own identity is informed and shaped.
9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.	9-12.NMH.26. Determine the issues that affected some people's access pertaining to the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA. (no comma needed)	9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war prior to becoming a state of the USA.
9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using	9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico .
9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico (47 and 48 should be together????)	47 and 48 should be together.

9-12 US History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.US.13. Examine the course and consequences of the Columbian Exchange.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.14. Describe the evolution and short and long-term consequences of racialized labor and caste systems such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.15. Analyze how various Indigenous nations changed as a result of European settler colonialism.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.16. Examine the involvement of Indigenous nations in the colonial wars and evaluate the consequences for their societies.	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.17. Explain the ways that Indigenous nations expressed and transmitted their beliefs and values.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.18. Compare and contrast the different ways in which Indigenous people have resisted, survived, and adapted to maintain their patterns of community life.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.19. Compare and contrast the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism vs. classic colonialism.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.20. Explain the common elements of Indigenous societies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.21. Analyze facets of Indigenous social, political, and economic organization.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.22. Analyze relationships between Indigenous peoples and Spanish, English, French, and Dutch colonizers.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.23. Examine the interactions between English colonizers and Indigenous peoples in the 13 Colonies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.24. Determine the importance and utility of rights versus responsibilities.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.25. Determine the characteristics of a revolution and evaluate the American Revolution as compared to the French and Haitian Revolutions. History 15. Cause and Consequence	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.26. Investigate the causes and effects of the Revolutionary War on diverse groups of people in the United States.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans. History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.30. Describe the Constitutional Convention, the roles of specific individuals, and their conflicts and compromises.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.31. Explore the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States. Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876 Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of: Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.32. Examine the short- and long-term impact of settlers, pioneers, frontiersman, and homesteaders on the United States and on sovereign Indigenous nations. 101 Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787-1876 (Continued) Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of: Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to History 15. Cause and Consequence	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.33. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and short and long term effects of U.S. territorial expansion.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.34. Examine the ways in which the United States acquired new territories, including purchases, annexation, treaties, and war.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.35. Explain the importance of the Transportation Revolution of the 19th century.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.36. Analyze the effects of industrial growth throughout antebellum America.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.37. Describe the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural South, explain reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyze how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.38. Analyze the convergence of the expansion of colonialism through territorial acquisition and the expansion of chattel slavery in acquired territory.	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.40. Explore forms of resistance, adaptation and cultural preservation practiced by enslaved and colonized peoples during this period.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.41. Assess the impact of Federal policy towards Indigenous nations.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.	9-12.US.50. Analyze the Reconstruction efforts and determine their short- and long-term affects.
9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.	9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender roles have changed since the 19th century.
9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.	9-12.US.56. Evaluate the following concerning the economic system of the United States: efficiency, equity, and equality.
9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany.	Cut-extraneous
9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.	Cut--Same as 53
9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period.	9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections of different countries that have struggled with racial inequities such as Germany, South Africa, and middle Eastern countries.
9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and "othering" including anti-Semitism and homophobia	9-12.US.104. Analyze how the perceptions of racism, sexism, and the "othering" of people groups have changed over time.
9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.	9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of the Cold War on social movements and activists in the United States.
9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.	9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Cold War with the other social movements in the United States.
9-12.US.116. Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO.	9-12.US.116. Examine Cold War issues such as McCarthyism and the Counter Intelligence Program.

9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.	9-12.US.118. Examine the obstacles of racial integration in communities and schools, attempts to end segregation, and the impact of the Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.
9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.	9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of different eras in the United States on diverse groups of people (i.e. progressivism, separatism, World War I, great depression, World War II, Cold War, Postwar Boom, Civil Rights, Vietnam War, Era of Social Change, environmentalism, conservatism, globalization).
9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality.	Cut - Current Events not US History
9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.	Cut - Current Events not US History
9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.	9-12.US.134. Examine the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present in the United States.
9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.	9-12.US.135. Examine social justice movements throughout history designed to improve conditions for Americans including Native Americans and African Americans.
9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.	9-12.US.136. Evaluate the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability and their impacts on legislation.

9-12 Economics

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.Econ.24. Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.	9-12.Econ.24. Compare and contrast economic systems including socialism, communism, and capitalism.
9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities.	9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the social problems that affect New Mexican communities
9-12.Econ.48 – 175 are missing from the original proposed draft	???

9-12 Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.	9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value all cultures represented in the community without perceiving or treating any culture as inferior.
9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.	Cut
9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical, cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which have impacted some underrepresented populations.
9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.	Cut
9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.	Same as 18
9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.	9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate how recent social justice protests have affected the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.

[EXTERNAL] Estancia Municipal School District SS Feedback

Randol Riley <randol.riley@emsdbears.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:08 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see attached

CONFIDENTIALITY NOTICE: This email and attached documents may contain confidential information. All information is intended only for the use of the named recipient. If you are not the named recipient, you are not authorized to read, disclose, copy, distribute or take any action in reliance on the information and any action other than immediate delivery to the named recipient is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, do not read the information and please immediately notify sender by telephone or email to arrange for a return of the original documents. If you are the named recipient you are not authorized to reveal any of this information to any other unauthorized person. If you did not receive all pages listed or if pages are not legible, please immediately notify sender by phone or email.

November 11, 2021

To: Social Studies Review Committee

From: Estancia Municipal Schools Board of Education

We believe that we are trying to include material that should not be included in the social studies standards. We as a united Board at Estancia Municipal Schools have listed areas of concern with the new standards. The Public Education Department has provided LOTS of supporting documents in relation to the revision and proposed Social Studies Standards. At some point, this begins to feel as if we are being “sold” a product. If the standards were not so controversial, there would not be such a need to justify the position. As presented, the recurring themes embedded in the proposed social studies standards are not grounded in fact but in many cases represent an opinion or a certain way of thinking. In schools, we should allow students to form their own opinions after careful review of facts and provided opportunity to think critically. As written, there is a theme of opinion that does not promote critical thinking; instead, it tells children how and what to think based upon presupposed opinions.

Following are a few concerns we have noted. This is not an exhaustive list, as time does not permit as in depth a review as we would like. For this reason, we passed a resolution on October 11th, requesting a delay in adoption in order to have adequate time to involve a larger group of teachers in a more thorough review of the standards.

1. The insertion of “identity” standards as cited by Girard & Harris (2018); International Standards (Singapore, Ontario, and British Columbia); and two (2) of the 14 states listed in the Social Studies Landscape Report (Nevada and New Mexico) is not appropriate. Alaska, Arizona, Georgia, Hawai`i, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Jersey, Oregon, South Carolina, and Washington, the other twelve (12) states referenced in the document do not mention identity. Estancia advocates for the inclusion of standards addressing culture and diversity, but NOT identity as outlined in these proposed standards. Expanding the field of Social Studies to incorporate Sociology and Psychology is not a discussion that has been had, and should have been a starting point prior to introducing Sociology and Psychology based standards such as identity.
2. Fifth Grade, Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US – the title of this theme is built around a premise that is not accepted by all and involves judgment, opinion, or belief. As written this standard begins from a point of judgment or opinion. From this standard going forward into upper grades, many standards begin from a position of judgment or opinion. We should be challenging our students to become critical thinkers, not just telling them what to think from an opinion as if it is fact. These types of standards are not appropriate and do not promote critical thinking. Instead, they “fill in the blank” for what a student should believe.
3. 9-12.US.53: “Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.” As written, this standard will incite some parents who are opposed to discussions of sexuality in the schools. This can be better stated another way as it relates to the women’s suffrage movement.
4. 9-12.US129: References to police brutality are an interpretation of events and based on opinion. Again, history should teach events and not interpret intent, rather allow students to critically form opinions on their own based on the unbiased retelling of events.

5. 9-12.US.130: US History should retell the events regarding activism in the 90's through an unbiased lens without a focus on any given group. This allows students to form their own opinions without being led by another's opinions.
6. 9.12.US132: "Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future." I'm not sure why this standard is appropriate here. IF included (and NOT as stated in this context), it should be included in studies around the 2nd amendment. The Bill of Rights is studied in 8th grade. Amendments should be included there.
7. 9.12.WH.36: "...which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups" begins from a position of judgment/opinion. The standard should read, "Examine the impact of historical, cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors." This allows students to come to their own conclusion through critical thinking instead of telling them what to think. See previous note about introducing "identity groups" into the Social Studies curriculum.
8. The use of "evocative ideas" is controversial and unnecessary. Teaching students to think critically is more appropriate.
9. 9-12.NMH.26: "Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period." Strike racism – it is divisive, an opinion, and begins from a point of bias. As well, this belongs in US History, not NMH. Standard should read, "Determine the role of race in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period."
10. Standards associated with gun violence, police brutality, and focus on perceived marginalized groups are similarly biased and inappropriate. As presented, there is a bias that feels like propaganda.
11. 9-12.US.130: "Examine the experiences and activism of the LGBTQIA+ community during this period, including the AIDS epidemic, social movements, resistance, and hate crimes." Why the focus on LGBTQIA+ specifically? There were MANY activists at this time. Standard should be broader to read: "Examine social movements and areas of activism during this period."
12. 9-12.US.134: Anti-immigration is an assumption and judgment. Standard should address concerns over illegal immigrants.
13. 9-12.US.135: "Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans." An "equitable America for diverse groups" should not be limited to or focused on only these two groups. Strikethrough ~~including Native Americans and African Americans~~; inclusive is inclusive to all. "More" implies a bias, judgment, opinion. Standard should read, "Create an action plan for a just and equitable America for diverse groups of people addressing rights, economics, etc."
14. 9-12.WH.34: "Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression." What are "constructions of race" and "reactions"? "Long term effects of oppression" is a leading question and tells the student what to think instead of asking them to think critically and come up with their own conclusion. This question could also be framed to outline the effects of war and the impact to the "conquered." What is the intent of the standard? It feels politically driven as written.

We believe that everything we teach in social studies should be based upon providing students with historical facts without bias. In today's political climate of division, it is especially important to present information carefully and clearly without adding an editorial, judgmental or slanted component. We fear that our country is increasingly moving toward open conflict because of misleading information that is perceived as fact on both sides of any conversation. Educators must continue to safeguard the young minds with whom they work each day. Our future rests on the shoulders of our educators who teach our children. They are up to the task, but must be supported with clear, unbiased standards. As written, MANY of the standards could be interpreted politically as opposed to presenting historical facts. This MUST be addressed in a thoughtful, reflective manner involving representative stakeholders, not just a select few of like-minded individuals. It is the Board's fervent hope that the Public Education Department listens to these concerns and delays the adoption of these standards until all stakeholders may participate in a thorough and comprehensive review to bring a more balanced set of standards forward.

Respectfully,

The Estancia Board of Education

Randol Riley, President

Elaine Darnell, Vice President

Lee Widner, Secretary

Kendra Otis, Member

Keith Sandy, Member

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment in Response to Proposed NM Social Studies Standards Revision

Wauneka, Missy <Missy.Wauneka@teachforamerica.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:16 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see the attached letter. Thank you for the opportunity to submit a public comment!

Missy Wauneka
Local Impact Officer
Teach For America New Mexico
505-850-6166

One day, all children in this nation will have the opportunity to attain an excellent education.

November 11, 2021

To: John Sena, Policy Division, New Mexico Public Education Department
From: Missy Wauneka, Teach For America New Mexico - Local Impact Officer
Subject: Public Comment in Response to Proposed NM Social Studies Standards Revision

Dear Mr. Sena,

Teach For America New Mexico (TFANM) is pleased to have the opportunity to submit a public comment about New Mexico's revised social studies standards. As an organization that supports teachers and works alongside other local partners toward educational excellence and equity, TFANM has a vested interest in ensuring that New Mexico's social studies standards provide a clear roadmap for teachers to help students learn key historical events, connect the past to the present, and critically analyze historical claims.

We shared the opportunity to participate in standards revision with our network, and multiple TFANM alumni took the opportunity. Participants shared positive anecdotes about the experience and confidence in the outcome. They spoke about robust discussions, diverse perspectives, and an inclusive approach, which aligns with the Reflect, Review, and Revise process described on NMPED's website. Throughout the process, TFANM has appreciated NMPED's transparency, inclusivity and openness to feedback and diverse perspectives.

We agree with the statement on NMPED's website that "the current [2009] standards have numerous strengths and cover a wide range of topics [but] do not address the increasingly diverse perspectives and histories of the peoples of New Mexico." All New Mexico students deserve to see their own ancestral histories represented in historically accurate ways in our social studies standards. As our state is unique, diverse, and constantly changing, TFANM believes that we will need to periodically return to our social studies standards to ensure that they continue to develop the "knowledge, skills and dispositions critical to ensure ALL students in New Mexico are college, career, and civic ready."

We feel the revised standards have several improvements over the 2009 standards. The use of guiding principles and strands makes the standards more coherent from year to year, and the inclusion of Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Standards and Inquiry Standards increases the focus on critical thinking and diverse perspectives. In comparison to the 2009 standards, the revised standards use more specific, descriptive action-verbs, to help teachers understand the level at which students should be expected to perform and how standards build in difficulty over time.

One day, all children in this nation will have the opportunity to attain an excellent education.

Updating New Mexico's social studies standards is just a first step. It will be equally important to develop exemplary curricular resources, suggested texts, and lessons that bring a new set of standards to life for teachers and students. We are eager and ready to support teachers to implement new social studies standards and confident that the revised standards will result in greater student engagement, analysis, and critical thinking. Thank you again for the opportunity to provide public comment!

Sincerely,

Missy Wauneka
Local Impact Officer
Teach For America New Mexico

[EXTERNAL] Support for Social Studies Revisions for State of New Mexico

John Rodarte <JohnRodarte@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:24 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning, State Officials.

My name is John Rodarte. I am an educator for 21 years serving the diverse populations of New Mexico. My family hails from Penasco, NM. I am a member of the Fighting Irish and graduate of the University of Notre Dame. I am also a herald of the teachings of Ernesto Nieto and Gloria De Leon in their great work with the National Hispanic Institute.

I address you as a supporter of revisions to the Social Studies Standards for the great State of New Mexico. I am biased as I am among the team leads responsible for these revisions, in particular, those of the Cultural, Ethnic, and Identity Standards.

Of this work, I am particularly proud, not just because it is a benchmark of achievement for all the work NM Social Studies educators do everyday, but because it represents a triumph as New Mexicans and as Americans in expanding the telling of our own stories.

When I began my career as an educator, there was one and only one narrative in American history. Our struggle as educators was to include the stories of our own families, cultures, and ethnicity into a "mainstream" narrative.

With the adoption of the proposed Social Studies revisions, that struggle ends as we "mainstream" our own history into that of New Mexico and America. The revisions are an effort to include, not exclude, our own well deserved place in the history of our state and nation.

By doing so, we extend, restore, and magnify the dignity of our own identities and cultures which prior narratives did not.

At the same time, we honor and value the identities and cultures of all peoples who come to call themselves New Mexicans and Americans, including our white brothers and sisters who are equally valued in this retelling and re-sharing of our histories under a more inclusive and diverse embrace.

Lastly, I want everyone to understand that the new Social Studies Standards do not operate from a position of "victimhood" or a "division by race", but from a stance of Community Equity Building. From this perspective, students (and by extension, parents, schools, and community) are asked to look at their communities from an "asset mindset" and see the value of each person, each relationship, and each member in growing our community in ways that benefit and respect everyone.

"Unity Through Diversity" is how I would frame the new standards. I sincerely believe this phrase captures the spirit and intent of our efforts in the revisions.

I ask that you and all New Mexicans unite in support of the new standards. Let the good work of educators continue to illuminate, educate, and inspire ALL of our people to learn more of each other and our past to forge a better future for us all.

Sincerely,

John Rodarte

11/15/21, 10:00 AM

Mail - FeedBack, Rule, PED - Outlook

Principal, Educator, New Mexican, American

Sent from Mail for Window

[EXTERNAL] CRT Feedback

Wade Lamphere <wlamphere@frontier.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:24 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: wlamphere@frontier.net <wlamphere@frontier.net>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the attention of Mr. John Sena, Policy Division New Mexico Public Education Department:

Dear sir, this email comes to you from a parent with great concern about the teachings of Critical Race Theory in our public schools, I strongly request that this practice come to a halt. The harm that CRT will bring to the students is beyond tolerance, it will ultimately divide Americans into two categories either "victim" or "oppressor". As a former white student in a Spanish and Native American dominant school I understand racism and the effects that it has on young students, as I had to endure it. However, what your suggesting is going to enhance this division even further in a time when we need to pull together and unify this country. Just the thought of a public school mandating a teaching such as this is outlandish and is beyond comprehension. I have to ask, what is the motivation to teach students "that to achieve racial justice and have equality between racial groups today requires the action of discrimination against people based upon on their whiteness"(???????) this is outrageous no matter what color your skin is. And to top it off, when we have teachers offer their opinions and or challenge this outrageous mandate they're threatened with their jobs. Please, I beg you to understand, this is the United States of America not some third world dictatorship that suppresses the people and forces their mandate at all cost, this will not stand!

Wade & Gina Lamphere "Tax Payer San Juan County"

Virus-free. www.avast.com

[EXTERNAL] In support of the new Social Studies standards AS WRITTEN Sharla Parsons <sharla.parsons@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:25 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I want to send my strong support and gratitude for the new social studies standards AS WRITTEN with no omissions or changes. The thoughtful updates address our most crucial needs right now in order to create an equitable society for our children to live in. Furthermore, they support the data that is undeniable concerning the need for civics training in our country. Strengthening our democracy starts with our children and their ability to thrive depends upon learning and knowing actual, real history.

Please, also, disregard any partisan opposition you receive to the current standards as they are not in the best interest of our children but rather the political powers that be. We need to stand strong in our conviction to allow this generation a chance to do better. And it will only happen when we remember that science is not a matter of opinion or debatable and not on the chopping block.

Thank you so much for the work you do and for considering my humble request.

Sincerely,

Sharla Parsons

Former educator, parent of school aged children, community member 505-506-5579

sharla.parsons@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Support revised social studies standards

Erica McDowell <erica.c.mcdowell@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:26 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

My name is Erica McDowell and I am a proud graduate of New Mexico public schools in Albuquerque and am currently a science teacher in Las Cruces.

I fully support the revised Social Studies standards that have been proposed. It is beyond time for New Mexican students to learn the full history of our state and learn through a curriculum that values people of all racial and ethnic backgrounds.

Please support the revised standards!

Sincerely,
Erica McDowell
Physics Teacher
Mayfield High School
Las Cruces, NM

[EXTERNAL] Social studies curriculum

Therese Saunders <tsaunders3@me.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:29 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

My name is Therese Saunders and a retired elementary school teacher. I feel that the proposed social studies curriculum is developmentally appropriate and needed in our public schools.

Sincerely,
Therese Saunders
tsaunders3@mac.com

FW: [EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards

Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:33 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

From: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>
Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 11:33 AM
To: Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>
Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards

FYI

From: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>
Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 11:22 AM
To: Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>; Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>
Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards

From: Christopher Bruell <christopher.bruell@bc.edu>
Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 9:44 AM
To: Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>
Subject: [EXTERNAL] Proposed Standards

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The proposed standard for kindergarten children (to have them identify themselves as belonging to some group or other) shows appalling ignorance of what the early childhood experience should be and also incidentally of the principles that have held our multi-ethnic country together for so long. Children should have the experience of approaching one another on the basis of our common humanity and of learning to discriminate among their fellows on the basis of the distinctions that really count: which children are fair, which are kind, which are generous, etc. and which display the opposite qualities of dishonesty, cruelty and so forth. These distinctions transcend the matter of group identity and thus reinforce the children's sense of our common humanity. The proposed "group identifying" blunts the opportunity for children to have this experience so essential to their future lives by telling them, in effect, that the only thing that matters is the group to which one belongs and at the same time a wholly abstract and necessarily ineffective "tolerance" of all groups and group membership as such. No development or proposal that has come to our attention in recent years could be more harmful to the country and to the children themselves than this one.

Christopher Bruell
Professor Emeritus of Political Science

[EXTERNAL] "OPPOSED" Social Studies Standards

Lorrie Martinez <lorriecm63@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am "OPPOSED" to the proposed Social Studies Standards.

Some children already have a hard time learning the basics without being taught about an academic movement which seeks to link racism, race and power. That is straight up racism. We are going back to Jim Crow Laws. All this type of teaching would do is divide our children and our nation. Children's brains are not even fully developed until way into their 20's, so why would the State want to mess with children's mind's this way.

The public schools should focus on teaching children how to read, write, math, science and the history that showed all the good "and" the bad of America, and what America has gone through to get to where we are today and learn from history, and not repeat the mistakes that have been made. This is a teaching of Woke ideology in public schools that begin the division of individuals which is (CRT) Critical Race Theory, in disguise "ethnic, cultural and identity studies".

Thank you for allowing my input.

Sincerely,
Lorrie Martinez
(Grand mother of 14 year old and 5 year old)

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies proposed changes

Amanda Beltran <mandakdib@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:35 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

November 12, 2021

To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my concerns over the proposed changes to the Social Studies standards. I am a parent of two children who attend Artesia Public Schools and am a former teacher myself, so I am no stranger to education. My children are currently in 3rd and 5th grades, so while I did read through the entire 122-page document, I am focusing on the standards which will affect them over the next couple of years. I agree that our Social Studies standards are out of date and need to be revised to reflect recent historical events, but I have concerns over some of the language included and what exactly it means for our growing children.

In the proposed 5th grade standards, I see that students will be expected to demonstrate knowledge of family and cultural history, but also to associate themselves with identity groups. My first question is what exactly are these "main identity groups?" Does this refer to race? Religion? Gender? Ethnicity? Socio-economic status? Specifically, in 5.31, students are to "explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are." It appears our state will pigeon-hole our children into these "identity groups" and pit them against each other. The "haves" will be ostracized for the abuses their ancestors laid on the "have nots." On the flip side, the "have not" identity groups will learn to become victims, feeling entitled to hand outs and sympathy because of abuses heaped on their ancestors, which they may or may not feel the effects of in their lives. In both cases, the students have not participated in any atrocities, yet will be penalized just the same. Also, what happens if a student doesn't fit neatly into one of these identity categories? What if they fit more than one? Should my mixed-race children become victims due to their oppressed immigrant heritage? Or should they feel the weight of guilt from their white ancestors (who may or may not have even been involved in committing atrocities)? Which should they chose to identify with? And which set of grandparents should they ostracize for their ancestral crimes? Why can't we teach family history, cultural history, along with local, state, U.S., and world history without glorifying and magnifying the differences within our classrooms? It feels like we are saying to our children: "This is your culture's past, therefore this is how you must feel limited in your life." Rather, let's focus on how each student's personal experiences and abilities could contribute to society, regardless of their ancestral past. We cannot put children into these boxes and expect them to grow into productive citizens with strong work ethics and proud ties to their heritage.

In the 6th grade proposed standards, again I see this concept of identity and affinity groups. At a time in students' lives when hormones are hitting, insecurities are raging and they just want to fit in, is it wise to give them more reasons to feel segregated, ostracized, and penalized? This way of thinking promotes a sense of entitlement and victimization as well as guilt and self-loathing, all for historical events these children have NO power over. Let's EMPOWER these kids to appreciate their strengths as well as those of their peers, form bonds between them, and create positive energy in their lives!

As a whole, the proposed standards are a long, wordy, complex, yet frustratingly vague document. I'd like to know just how teachers should navigate this document. There are very few specific references to historical figures, events, places and dates. This vagueness leaves teachers having to come up with what it is they are supposed to teach. It complicates their job, which is complicated enough! I foresee the state losing good educators if these proposed standards pass without some serious editing. I also foresee those families who can afford the expense moving their children to homeschool, private school, or uprooting their families out of state to continue their children's education. This will further the divide in NM, taking educators, tax dollars, workers, and future productive citizens away from our state. Thank you for your time and I hope that you consider the impact of this decision on NM families and communities for years to come.

Sincerely,

11/15/21, 10:03 AM

Mail - FeedBack, Rule, PED - Outlook

Amanda Beltran

mandakdib@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Social studies standards

Annie Davis-Karim <anniehelendavis@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:36 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I wanted to voice my strong support for the new social studies standards that have been mischaracterized as critical race theory.

I am the parent of an APS student. Part of the reason I send my daughter to public school is the diversity of views and other children she will get to know there. I want her to become knowledgeable and empathetic about the rich culture and many experiences of people in this community. The social studies standards support this goal for all public school students.

Please don't let buzzwords like critical race theory get in the way of good educational policy. I ask you to support these standards.

Best,
Annie Davis-Karim

[EXTERNAL] Support letter for NM social studies stards

Karen Buller <karenradneybuller@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:38 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Board of Directors

November 12, 2021

Karen Radney Buller

(Comanche)

Chair

John Sena

Policy Division

New Mexico Public Education Department

300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Deborah Abeita-Torres

(Isleta Pueblo)

Vice Chair

We are writing our formal comments on the proposed repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be replaced with 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

Edith Brycelea

Treasurer

Nancy Davis

(Turtle Mountain Chippewa)

It is the Mission of the Santa Fe Indigenous Center to serve the 10,000 Native Americans living in Santa Fe County with food distributions, emergency funds for housing and living, cultural classes, cultural social gatherings, and lectures. We serve Pueblo tribal members, Navajo tribal members and over 150 other tribes living in urban Santa Fe.

Cyndi Hall

(Cherokee)

Kathryn Harris Tijerina

(Comanche)

For many years we have been concerned about the accurate portrayal of Native Americans in history, social studies, and civics classes in New Mexico. We feel the new standards are big step in the right direction and we Support them. It seems that the large group of educators who worked on these new standards were a diverse group representing all groups living in New Mexico. We at the Indigenous Center are pleased when Native American voices are heard and respected.

Ehren Kee Natay

(Diné)

Linda Lomahaftewa

(Hopi/Choctaw)

The new standards for Social Studies have been disseminated to the Santa Fe Indigenous Center Board have been discussed at our board meeting and we support the newly proposed standards.

Kathleen Romero

(Pechanga)

Samuel Villarreal

Catanach

(Pojoaque Pueblo)

Respectfully submitted,

Carrie Wood

(Diné)

Karen Buller, Board Chair

Santa Fe Indigenous Center

www.santafeindigenouscenter.org

Santa Fe Indigenous Center is a project of the New Mexico Community Foundation, a 501©(3) nonprofit organization.

[EXTERNAL] Statement: Revision of NM State Social Studies Standards

Glenabah Martinez <glenie@unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:49 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Martinez, Glenahah <glenie@unm.edu>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department

FROM: Glenabah Martinez, Ph.D

DATE: November 12, 2021

RE: Revised NM State Social Studies Standards

My name is Glenabah Martinez and I am an associate professor at UNM and Director of the Institute for American Indian Education. Every fall semester I teach secondary social studies methods courses required for undergraduate and graduate students seeking licensure to teach middle and high school social studies in the state of New Mexico. Early on, I introduce the students to the New Mexico State Social Studies standards. Not only are they responsible for thinking critically about the idea of “what counts as knowledge and skills in social studies,” but they must also become acquainted with the standards for learning how to plan lessons and units. I am fully aware of the limitations of the current strands, benchmarks, and performance standards in addressing the complexity of human experiences and facilitating a strong historical consciousness. I am looking forward to the newly revised standards for three main reasons:

1. The revised standards demonstrate current thinking about the need to affirm the unique status of Indigenous Peoples in the United States and globally. The National Council for the Social Studies released a position statement in 2018 that affirms the rights of Indigenous People: “In the spirit of the [United Nations Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples]...NCSS recognizes that Indigenous Peoples have the right to dignity in education, and to see and experience their cultures, traditions, histories, and ongoing sovereignty movements affirmed in social studies curriculum and classrooms” (Social Education 82(3), p. 168). There is a strong link between the position statement with the eight guiding principles that shaped the revised standards.
2. The pedagogy of history – New Mexico, United States, and World/Global – is most effective when historical thinking skills of corroboration, historiography, contextualization, historical empathy, change and continuity, ethical judgement, argumentative writing, identifying historical significance, and sourcing are embedded in curriculum and instruction. Collectively, these skills work best when they are aligned with social studies standards such as the proposed revised framework.
3. History and social studies educators are part of the education that our youth receive as they learn about informed civic engagement. I am convinced that the revised social studies standards provide a means for the youth of New Mexico to exercise agency and make meaningful contributions in multiple settings from the local to global.

At the foundation of the three reasons articulated above is the pedagogical utility of a critical sociocultural approach to history education. As Epstein & Peck (2018) note: “We conceive of historical narratives as embedded in complex webs of power relations that influence whose and which historical narratives are legitimated” (p. 7). The guiding principles and operationalization of the revised New Mexico State Social Studies Standards is a pedagogical response to facilitating a strong historical consciousness among our students and reinforcing the significance of civic engagement. I wholeheartedly support the rearticulation or revision of the New Mexico State Social Studies standards.

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department
FROM: Glenabah Martinez, Ph.D
DATE: November 12, 2021
RE: Revised NM State Social Studies Standards

My name is Glenabah Martinez and I am an associate professor at UNM and Director of the Institute for American Indian Education. Every fall semester I teach secondary social studies methods courses required for undergraduate and graduate students seeking licensure to teach middle and high school social studies in the state of New Mexico. Early on, I introduce the students to the New Mexico State Social Studies standards. Not only are they responsible for thinking critically about the idea of “what counts as knowledge and skills in social studies,” but they must also become acquainted with the standards for learning how to plan lessons and units. I am fully aware of the limitations of the current strands, benchmarks, and performance standards in addressing the complexity of human experiences and facilitating a strong historical consciousness. I am looking forward to the newly revised standards for three main reasons:

1. The revised standards demonstrate current thinking about the need to affirm the unique status of Indigenous Peoples in the United States and globally. The National Council for the Social Studies released a position statement in 2018 that affirms the rights of Indigenous People: “In the spirit of the [United Nations Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples]...NCSS recognizes that Indigenous Peoples have the right to dignity in education, and to see and experience their cultures, traditions, histories, and ongoing sovereignty movements affirmed in social studies curriculum and classrooms” (Social Education 82(3), p. 168). There is a strong link between the position statement with the eight guiding principles that shaped the revised standards.
2. The pedagogy of history – New Mexico, United States, and World/Global – is most effective when historical thinking skills of corroboration, historiography, contextualization, historical empathy, change and continuity, ethical judgement, argumentative writing, identifying historical significance, and sourcing are embedded in curriculum and instruction. Collectively, these skills work best when they are aligned with social studies standards such as the proposed revised framework.
3. History and social studies educators are part of the education that our youth receive as they learn about informed civic engagement. I am convinced that the revised social studies standards provide a means for the youth of New Mexico to exercise agency and make meaningful contributions in multiple settings from the local to global.

At the foundation of the three reasons articulated above is the pedagogical utility of a critical sociocultural approach to history education. As Epstein & Peck (2018) note: “We conceive of historical narratives as embedded in complex webs of power relations that influence whose and which historical narratives are legitimated” (p. 7). The guiding principles and operationalization of the revised New Mexico State Social Studies Standards is a pedagogical response to facilitating a strong historical consciousness among our students and reinforcing the significance of civic engagement. I wholeheartedly support the rearticulation or revision of the New Mexico State Social Studies standards.

[EXTERNAL] PED hearing 11.12.2021

Beth Isler <brisler@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:49 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

#parentsmatter

To All citizens of NM,

Do not force CRT into NM schools! 26 states have removed this damaging view point from their schools. And now, NM PED is trying to force it upon our students. Wrong move PED!!! NM schools are already at the very bottom in education. This move will only prove to cement that last place mentality. Our students, our teachers, our citizens deserve better!

Retired NM Teacher,
Beth Isler

[EXTERNAL] Submission of Public Comment for Proposed Social Studies Standards

Emily Wildau <ewildau@nmvoices.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good morning,

Attached is a letter stating New Mexico Voices for Children's support of the proposed social studies standards.

Best,

Emily Wildau, MPP

(she, her, & why this matters)

Research & Policy Analyst/KIDS COUNT Coordinator

New Mexico Voices for Children

625 Silver Ave SW, Suite 195

Albuquerque, NM 87102

C: 575-910-8769

Board of Directors

Kenneth J. Martinez,
Psy.D.
Chair

Charlotte Little
Vice-Chair

Debra Baca, MBA

R. Antonio Granillo

Fred Harris, J.D.

Ruth Hoffman

Yvette Kaufman-Bell

Danielle Lansing, Ed.D.

Newton Robinson

Olivia Underwood
Jackson, Ph.D.

Rev. Dr. Robert Woodruff

November 12, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena,

History is written by the victors – the invaders, the colonizers, the empire builders. But theirs is never the only side of the story. In the case of America, the nation’s story has been almost exclusively told by white men. Americans of color are given little, if any, voice in the narrative. Because of this, too many of New Mexico’s children – more than 75 percent of whom are children of color – don’t necessarily see themselves or their communities reflected in history’s retelling. What’s more, due to erasure and exclusion, many children of color in the state cannot help but see themselves portrayed in American history as the vanquished and the over-run.

We know that students are more engaged in their studies when they see themselves and their communities represented in positive ways in the curriculum. But American pedagogy has ignored that need for far too long.

We believe the new social studies standards being set forth by the New Mexico Public Education Department are a step in the right direction, and we approve of them. Not only are these new standards an improvement, but these changes are a necessary part of the remedy in response to the Martinez/Yazzie lawsuit. The current standards lack material that is culturally relevant for our diverse student body, giving only cursory exposure to cultural diversity and the influence of historical events, culture, and people on present-day society.

We have several reasons for our approval of the proposed social studies curriculum:

- The proposed standards add a focus on ethnic, cultural, and identity studies. This is responsive to the spirit of the Martinez/Yazzie ruling to provide a culturally and linguistically relevant curriculum for New Mexico students. The goal of this standard is to help students make sense of history and to ensure that every student recognizes the important role their communities have played in the development of our state and nation. With this standard, all students will see their communities and identities reflected in the historical narrative, making the content more relevant to their daily lives.
- One of the goals of the new standards is to provide students with accounts of many different experiences, events, and perspectives throughout history to help them understand how various events from the past shape their and others’ experiences. This also helps them to see that the same event can be interpreted differently depending on how a community or individual is or was situated within a society.
- Another strength of the revised standards is the new focus on inquiry. Previously, students have been asked to memorize certain dates and give a basic account of some historical events. With the new anchor standard of inquiry, students will be asked to apply a higher level of thinking – instead of treating history like a memory exercise, the new standards ask students to explain the significance of events and why they are important today.

- Another overarching strength of the proposed standards is the willingness to openly examine our nation’s past and how it affects present society. Some say it is divisive to talk about the differences between communities or to teach that our nation’s past mistakes have led to problems we are still dealing with today. However, it is more accurate to say that these standards are seeking to teach students that although we come from different backgrounds, we can and do work together to ensure our state and nation live up to our democratic ideals. The shift in how we teach social studies is intended to strengthen students’ ability to look at our past critically so our future can benefit. It is intended to teach students that it is okay to respectfully disagree with past decisions made by leaders, and that it is natural to have complicated feelings about complex issues.
- Perhaps most significantly, the new standards bring a focus to identifying what is fact and what is opinion – a skill that is critical both in understanding social studies and participating in democracy. Throughout the proposed standards, students are asked to apply democratic procedures and deliberative discussion to solve issues in their classrooms and communities. This is important and valuable in order to prepare students to become engaged and thoughtful members of society after they leave the education system.

Ultimately, the revised standards will provide students with critical thinking skills that will greatly benefit them throughout their lives. Implementing the standards will prepare students to form their own opinions, to support their arguments, and to see a much richer picture of our state and nation’s shared history – as well as the roles their own ancestors played in shaping it.

Unfortunately, a great deal of angst has been expressed over the new standards. We believe the hysteria that has cropped up against the changes is just that – hysteria. It is based on a political ploy put in place to whip up fear in order to drive voters toward a very narrow end of the ideological spectrum. Those who rail against critical race theory (CRT) not only invariably know little about it, but they also seem to see it in every attempt to engage in reasonable, inclusive conversation about the history of race and power in this country. These social studies standards are not the boogeyman of CRT that so many have been encouraged to fear and fight. The anti-CRT comments should be taken for what they are: misplaced concerns about a phantom menace that has been erected to take advantage of people’s fears.

The updating of our social studies standards is long overdue. We urge the PED to adopt these new social studies standards.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'J. C. Jimenez', with a large, sweeping flourish extending to the right.

James C. Jimenez
Executive Director
New Mexico Voices for Children

[EXTERNAL] Proposed social studies standards

Consuelo Juarros Valdez <cjuarrosvaldez@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:53 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I want to share my support for the proposed social studies standards which are being considered for adoption. The students in our schools not only need the exposure to the content being considered, but also rigor of the analysis & inquiry required by the standards. We should never be afraid of knowledge and & truth. We need citizens who will ask questions & who will be able to think for themselves. These standards will promote this among our students.

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Approval of social studies changes

Sharon Kayne <slkayne@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:54 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

Please mark me down as a person who agrees with the new social studies standards and thinks they are an improvement. For far too long children of color have only seen themselves as victims and second-class citizens when the history of this nation has been taught. They need to learn about the contributions their ancestors and communities made as well.

And please ignore all the bellicose bluster about critical race theory. That whole demon is manufactured and was whipped up as a political ploy to play on people's fears. These new standards are NOT critical race theory, nor are they going to "made white kids feel bad" (one of the more idiotic complaints I've heard about teaching American history from multiple perspectives).

Thank you,
Sharon Kayne
Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Jennifer Tucker <jennifertucker@unm.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:56 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear committee,

I write to encourage you to accurately teach about race, racism and US history as you update the social studies standards. As a professor at UNM, I believe it is necessary and urgent that we prepare our students to build better futures by accurately teaching about the good and the bad of US history. There are those who claim that teaching the true history of slavery, settler colonialism and the present-day realities of institutional racism is divisive. However, we will not be able to move forward as a country by covering over difficult truths. Our students deserve diverse perspectives and a social studies curriculum that helps them understand the complexity of contemporary challenges, especially around race and racism, by providing them with an accurate history of how we got here.

All the best,
Jennifer

Jennifer Tucker, PhD, MPP, MA (she/they)Assistant Professor*Community + Regional Planning*University of New MexicoUNM is on unceded Pueblo landSign up for office hours: <https://www.wejoinin.com/sheets/vifln>Faculty bioFulbright Scholar 2019-2022New article: Outlaw Capital: Accumulation by Transgression on the Paraguay-Brazil BorderNew article: Informal Work and Sustainable Cities: From Formalization to Reparation

[EXTERNAL] Revisions to state Social Studies standards

Elizabeth Johns <elizjohns@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:57 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

John Sena

Policy Division

New Mexico Public Education Department

300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121

Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena:

My name is Elizabeth Johns, and I am a resident of Albuquerque. I am in favor of the proposed revised Social Studies standards. I thank those educators who worked on the standards revision committee for their efforts.

I attended high school in Florida during the Civil Rights era. It was an all-white school, and while my family and I were transplanted northerners and certainly not pro-segregation, it was easy to acquiesce to the status quo—specifically, that black students were attending a separate high school in a poorer part of town. Our social studies classes didn't help us students think about the lives of the other kids across town or the inequality we were all living.

One powerful way of thinking about a social studies curriculum is to consider the variety of students who will be learning from it. We can think of curriculum as a mirror, reflecting back to the students an image of who they are, and affirming the culture of which they are a part. We can also think of the curriculum as a window, open so they can see the world beyond what they know from their own culture and experience.

For many students who are of European ancestry, the social studies curriculum of most American states has been primarily a mirror, reflecting a history of people that look like themselves, and a culture that is familiar from their own experiences and with which they already identify. That same curriculum has seldom been a window, providing much information about the history, culture, and perspectives of the descendants of the original inhabitants of this land, or of people of African, Latin American, or Asian heritage.

On the other hand, for students who are Indigenous, or are descendants of people from Africa, Latin America, or Asia, the social studies curriculum has provided a window on the history and culture of Americans whose ancestors came from Europe. In fact, it has presented that understanding of history and culture as the one and only correct way to think about the world in which we live, a process we now refer to as assimilation. It has failed to be a mirror, a reflection of their own history and culture as something of worth.

All our students need a social studies curriculum that provides both mirrors and windows, affirming what is positive in their own history and culture, whatever that might be, and also exposing them to the histories and cultures of many other peoples.

The New Mexico social studies curriculum now under consideration could provide both mirrors and windows for all students. I strongly support that inclusive curriculum.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Johns
3136 Indiana St. NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110
(207) 745-6719

November 12, 2021

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Via email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us

Dear Mr. Sena:

My name is Elizabeth Johns, and I am a resident of Albuquerque. I am in favor of the proposed revised Social Studies standards. I thank those educators who worked on the standards revision committee for their efforts.

I attended high school in Florida during the Civil Rights era. It was an all-white school, and while my family and I were transplanted northerners and certainly not pro-segregation, it was easy to acquiesce to the status quo—specifically, that black students were attending a separate high school in a poorer part of town. Our social studies classes didn't help us students think about the lives of the other kids across town or the inequality we were all living.

One powerful way of thinking about a social studies curriculum is to consider the variety of students who will be learning from it. We can think of curriculum as a mirror, reflecting back to the students an image of who they are, and affirming the culture of which they are a part. We can also think of the curriculum as a window, open so they can see the world beyond what they know from their own culture and experience.

For many students who are of European ancestry, the social studies curriculum of most American states has been primarily a mirror, reflecting a history of people that look like themselves, and a culture that is familiar from their own experiences and with which they already identify. That same curriculum has seldom been a window, providing much information about the history, culture, and perspectives of the descendants of the original inhabitants of this land, or of people of African, Latin American, or Asian heritage.

On the other hand, for students who are Indigenous, or are descendants of people from Africa, Latin America, or Asia, the social studies curriculum has provided a window on the history and culture of Americans whose ancestors came from Europe. In fact, it has presented that understanding of history and culture as the one and only correct way to think about the world in which we live, a process we now refer to as assimilation. It has failed to be a mirror, a reflection of their own history and culture as something of worth.

All our students need a social studies curriculum that provides both mirrors and windows, affirming what is positive in their own history and culture, whatever that might be, and also exposing them to the histories and cultures of many other peoples.

The New Mexico social studies curriculum now under consideration could provide both mirrors and windows for all students. I strongly support that inclusive curriculum.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Johns
3136 Indiana St. NE
Albuquerque, NM 87110
(207) 745-6719

[EXTERNAL] Rule feedback abq 11/12/21Princess Daisy <ryoung8884@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 11:58 AM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I am an Albuquerque resident who has concerns for the curriculum change proposed. I am a disabled woman who recently obtained her Bachelors. I struggle with the knowledge that I am deemed a person who needs help and assistance that is not available to others, I only receive assistance because I am a woman and disabled. This has caused me issues with wondering if I made it this far only because people saw me as needing help or special treatment. I can not say I did this on my own because of who I am inside and all the hard work I did put in. I only can say that I made it this far because of special treatment and wonder if I truly deserve my degree.

I do not wish this on any girls growing up, or any other child who is disabled, wondering if society didn't just give them handouts. Teaching children to treat others differently because they may not have had it as easy is the step in the wrong direction.

We instead need to enforce them to get to know an individual before making any assumptions. This is how we remove stereotypes and truly protect and encourage women and the disabled. I truly believe this applies for skin color as well, based on many conversations with diverse groups of friends. I do not support hyper focusing on stereotypes.

thank you,
a very concerned individual

[EXTERNAL] Fwd: Public Comments- Social Studies Curriculum and CRT/ Social Emotional Learning

Stephanie Gabaldon <selozano252@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:00 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: shawnaaustin2004@gmail.com <shawnaaustin2004@gmail.com>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

----- Forwarded message -----

From: Gabaldon, Stephanie, NMDOT <Stephanie.Gabaldon@state.nm.us>

Date: Fri, Nov 12, 2021, 11:57 AM

Subject: Public Comments- Social Studies Curriculum and CRT/ Social Emotional Learning

To: Stephanie Gabaldon <selozano252@gmail.com>

November 12, 2021

My Stephanie Gabaldon and I'm a mother of children in the Grants/ Cibola County School District.

Today, I'm speaking out against the proposed changes to the New Mexico Social Studies Curriculum include lessons that closely resemble "Critical Race Theory (CRT), which divides students into either "oppressor" or oppressed" and is highly rooted in Marxist ideology.

Not only does CRT discriminate against white people, but it hurts minorities, too. It forces young black and Hispanic children to accept they will always be victims and that under our current system, there is nothing they can do to improve their lot in life. It also advocates lowered standards for minorities and strips them of agency. Teaching CRT is not just unconstitutional — it is demonstrably false and cruelly immoral.

CRT "seeks to find racism in every part of American society. It is poisonous. It should have no place in our schools." Martin Luther King Jr. "looked to the day when all of us would be judged by the content of our character, not the color of our skin" in his 1963 'I Have a Dream' speech. America embraced that goal and we have made great progress. Alarmingly, critical race theory does the opposite.

Until now, a total of 21 American states have oppose the teaching of critical race theory curriculum in school to discuss racism and sexism. Therefore, ask that New Mexico Public of Education also oppose the teaching of critical race theory.

State Attorney General who oppose CRT Curriculum in Schools

Indian	Kentucky	Texas
Alabama	Louisiana	Utah
Alaska	Mississippi	West Virginia
Arizona	Missouri
Arkansas	Montana
Florida	Nebraska
Georgia	Ohio
Idaho	Oklahoma
Kansas	South Carolina

Thank you,

Stephanie Gabaldon
PO Box 973
Grants, NM 87020
Email: Selozano252@gmail.com
Phone: (505) 290-1282

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards feedback

Tony Watkins <advocates4equity@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:01 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide input on the proposed new social studies standards.

I believe the principles cited at the beginning of the document are very strong. However, I would like to see fostering an analysis of the root causes of inequalities across race, class, gender, sexual orientation, ability and immigration status and the moral imperative to act showing up at much earlier grade levels. Otherwise, our children will continue to be faced with unlearning a false meritocracy ideology as they get older. Teaching children "what makes a good citizen" in this country and the value of hard work will do damage without an analysis of how this country came to be so unequal in the first place. A good start would be making sure every kindergartener knows that only white people were allowed to vote in this country based on the Naturalization Act of 1790, and that using someone's race in determining who could and could not be a citizen was not changed until the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952. A similar analysis of the laws governing interracial marriage could be introduced in kindergarten, as well, and would be equally as accessible.

Children in elementary school need to learn how racism, in particular, was embedded through laws and court cases from the very beginning so they don't internalize unhealthy and inaccurate beliefs about why white people fare better in every institution in this country than people of color. Young minds can handle that analysis, in fact they require it, before racism and internalized oppression take hold of another generation.

Young students are also capable of analyzing the many ways institutions continue to perpetuate racism today. It is very important that they learn this early on so they can identify and interrupt racism in their classrooms, schools, families and communities.

Sincerely,

Tony Watkins

[EXTERNAL] NISN Comments on 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Nathan Morrison <nate@nacainspireschoolsnetwork.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:01 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Anpao Duta Flying Earth <anpaoduta@nacainspireschoolsnetwork.org>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi Mr. Sena, I've attached public comment from the NACA Inspired Schools Network (NISN).

--

Nate Morrison
Senior Director, Strategy and Development
NACA Inspired Schools Network
(505) 933-2643

November 12, 2021

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division, New Mexico Public Education Department
300 Don Gaspar Avenue, Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr. Sena,

The NACA Inspired Schools Network (NISN) appreciates the opportunity provided by the New Mexico Public Education Department to comment on the proposed replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC.

At NISN—a nonprofit that supports the articulation of Indigenous education through community-designed schools—we believe that students, families, and communities should receive high quality education that is grounded in excellent and relevant content and context. Our schools reflect the identities and histories of the communities they serve, and our organization brings state and national perspectives from Indigenous communities.

We support updating and revising the New Mexico social studies standards. Intentionally designed standards are a necessary component of the state's Yazzie/Martinez response, and an update is overdue. On the whole, the NACA Inspired Schools Network supports the proposed draft standards.

We appreciate that the standards implement an inquiry-based framework

NISN helps schools develop curriculum and instructional materials that sustain and revitalize Indigenous culture. We use a backward design framework that emphasizes performance tasks and authentic audiences, along with identification of big ideas for cultivating student understanding. The proposed standards were designed with an inquiry framework in mind and include corresponding themes that spiral through every grade level, which aligns well with our approach to curriculum design.

Students benefit when they see people like them reflected and celebrated in school

We appreciate the inclusion of Anchor Standards 19-21, centered on identity development. All the schools in our network have, to some extent, centered their missions on cultivating a strong sense of identity for students. There are many proof points in our work with schools that show overall wellness and academic achievement is increased when children see themselves, their families, their histories and their experiences reflected in the curriculum.

Far from a radical idea, this is just good teaching. There has been bipartisan consensus on the importance of identity development for Native youth for over 50 years. The 1969 Kennedy report, titled “Indian Education: A National Tragedy—A National Challenge,” found broad racism within the Bureau of Indian Education and concluded “creative, imaginative, and above all, relevant educational experiences can blot the stain on our national conscience.” Since then, New Mexico has implemented the Indian Education Act to “ensure equitable and culturally relevant learning environments,” and the US Congress has passed a series of bipartisan laws to “to ensure that Indian students gain knowledge and understanding of Native communities, languages, tribal histories, traditions, and cultures.”

We care for our children when we are honest with them

As New Mexicans, we know the history of our state is complex. Schools should celebrate the strengths of our state, people, and nations, and should also teach our full history, including the terrible impacts of racism. Our social studies classrooms can hold this complexity. Our children are strong enough to handle hard conversations. We support standards that lead to meaningful discussions and analytical thinking, encourage our children’s fundamental right to freedom of thought and expression, and expand our children’s ability to understand historical and current events.

PED should ensure the final standards intentionally recognize Indigenous perspectives

The proposed standards must acknowledge and reflect the experiences of Indigenous populations in our state and country, and explicitly counter narratives that would minimize their contributions. The standards should also address the facts about colonization and the founding of this country and the impacts they have had on Indigenous communities. The strengths, genius, and contributions of Indigenous communities should be intentionally uplifted and taught in every school. Anything less is inadequate for our children.

As Judge Singleton noted in Yazzie/Martinez v. State of New Mexico, the New Mexico Indian Education Act requires that the State provide “culturally relevant instructional materials for American Indian students enrolled in public schools.” The Court ruled that Native American children in New Mexico Public Schools cannot access a constitutionally adequate education without culturally relevant materials.

School districts make decisions about curriculum by looking at the state standards. Too often those standards do not intentionally recognize Indigenous perspectives, and districts’ instructional materials do not represent Native people. The most recent National Indian Education Study, released earlier this year, found that only 23% of Native 8th graders use materials in school that represent Native people more than once or twice a year. Without standards that center Indigenous histories, this reality is unlikely to change. Standards which center Indigenous perspectives will encourage public schools to adopt instructional materials that represent Native points of view. This is good for the educational progress of Native students, who see themselves reflected in the curriculum, and for all students, who are exposed to a more complete understanding of the history of our state and nation.

The standards must center Indigenous perspectives because they are core to the history of this place, because doing so is good for students, and because New Mexico cannot comply with Yazzie/Martinez without ensuring Native students have access to culturally relevant instructional materials.

Clarify some standards before adoption

While we acknowledge that the updated standards are written in a way that is accessible to all learners, in some places the standards are vague and leave significant room for interpretation. As an example, we suggest a revision around the use of the cognitive verb “compare” as it is situated in certain standards. The second grade standard 2.13 states, “Compare diverse world communities in terms of members, customs and traditions to the local community.” Additional language should be included so that implementation of this standard in the classroom does not leave room for students to loosely compare and rank traditions. Instead, the standard should place emphasis on developing or increasing understanding of customs and traditions.

On the whole, the proposed standards demonstrate progress.

By incorporating an inquiry-based framework and ensuring more students see themselves reflected in the school curriculum, the standards have potential to strengthen the educational experience for all New Mexico students. They can be made even stronger with intentional revisions. We support PED’s efforts to revise and update the NM social studies standards and are open to engaging in dialogue on how to improve them. Please feel free to email us at anpaoduta@nacainspiredschoolsnetwork.org.

Wopila! Da wah eh!

Anpao Duta Flying Earth
Executive Director
NACA Inspired Schools Network

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Proposed Changes

Constance Mussells <cmussells@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:02 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am a proponent of the changes proposed to the State Social Studies curriculum. Especially in these polarized times, teaching our children about our history (all of it, including the not-so-great stuff) and about tolerance is crucial.

Educating our young people about how our country works is imperative. One only has to glance at the news to see the misleading and misinformed coverage of the basic tenets of our society. We need citizens who, because they have learned basic civics, understand what is true and what isn't.

Let's see these standards implemented as they were written, I believe they will be a change for the better.

Constance Mussells
5019 Night Hawk Drive, NE
Rio Rancho, NM 87144

[EXTERNAL] I support the social studies standards

Jeremy Sment <jeremy.sment@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am very proud and impressed with the important improvements in the social studies and stem ready science standards laid out by the PED. On the contrary, I was shocked and disappointed to see the NM GOP's politicized open letter to the PED regarding the new science and social studies standards. Moreover, I'm concerned that there is a coordinated strategy as seen in recent school board elections to control the narrative in our schools in a way that exacerbates racial and partisan tensions and demonizes the teaching of racial inequality in our communities.

Now, more than ever, we need to protect our students from politicized, biased, and censored messaging and give them a comprehensive understanding of the social, and environmental implications of the world today. Science standards should not be used to censor factual information. I am passionately supportive of teachers and administrators being unhindered by politics while teaching civics, economics, and politics.

On behalf of our students, thank you for working to protect critical thinking and evaluation of diverse opinions and sources, facts based on measured data from reputable and diverse sources with peer reviewed consensus, and historic truth based on sourced records and research from diverse cultures and perspectives.

Jeremy Sment
505-506-8006
6628 Lafving St. NE
Albuquerque, NM 87109

FW: [EXTERNAL] Statement: Revised State Social Studies Standards

Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:03 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

From: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 12:03 PM

To: Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Statement: Revised State Social Studies Standards

FYI

From: Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 11:57 AM

To: Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>; Costales, Jacqueline, PED <Jacqueline.Costales@state.nm.us>

Subject: FW: [EXTERNAL] Statement: Revised State Social Studies Standards

For feedback.

-Gwen

From: Glenabah Martinez <glenie@unm.edu>

Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 11:51 AM

To: Warniment, Gwen, PED <Gwen.Warniment@state.nm.us>; Lee, Tiffany S. <tslee@unm.edu>; Tso, Lashawna, PED <Lashawna.Tso@state.nm.us>

Subject: [EXTERNAL] Statement: Revised State Social Studies Standards

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi,

Here is my statement. I will tune in for the hearing as well. Do we need to register to speak? If so, what is the link? Thank you.

Glenabah

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: RESPONSE TO MLG'S PED standards

Thoughts on teaching Critical Race Theory ideology proposed by MLG/New Mexico

If America is founded on freedom, then we must understand that freedom begins at home, with love and caring for our fellow humans. Every country in the world seems to have some form of prejudice--class, economic status, religion, skin color, whatever. It is not logical--it is emotional. Those entrenched in prejudiced racist ideology present their ideas as TRUE, and thus can use any manner of excuses and explanations for their beliefs "because they are true." But that is what they are selling--belief. NOT TRUTH. Not only that--their "Truth/belief" is has an agenda we must be aware of.

Children's minds are delicate, impressionable, and aware. Kids have very few innocent years to experience their own world presented by their family group before they are forced to navigate the barrage of adult reality foisted upon them from every possible corner of the globe. They are susceptible to a barrage of attitudes, subtle messages, TV/electronic propaganda, and by what we now know as professional brainwashing by big tech. The result--a generation of young adult suicides. How's THAT for caring for our youth? Brainwashing masquerading as TRUTH.

If we are sovereign beings, and I believe we are, then our upbringing springs from and depends upon the intrinsic love from parents/family/early surroundings. Why are we here if we are not to love our children, teach them right from wrong? School could be an extension of that wisdom IF our teachers are themselves carrying that kind of wisdom in their hearts. I read a simple statement recently: "All racism is personal" -- and it seems to me that the proponents of CRT are the racists in this situation. Up close and personal. They appear to hate Americans--and by extension America itself. They want to personally indoctrinate every one of our children. Where is kindness, caring, compassion, and an interest/respect for original thinking as children begin to develop their own minds? "It doesn't matter what your mom or dad said...listen to what we tell you. We know TRUTH."

Critical Race Theory appears to focus on destroying human beings' critical thinking skills, using some dystopian logic masquerading as truth, rather than wisdom, compassion and love. It would seem that CRT theorists have spent decades carefully rehashing/regurgitating Marxist dogma and repackaging it as TRUTH--then infiltrating it into our schools. I can only observe that CRT proponents actually want to destroy America using hate and division to incite violence, thereby undermining the structure of society. This has nothing to do with rational thinking. Instead, CRT demands we fall victim to their distorted views. There is a quest for domination, and we must awaken to this very carefully executed plan before it is too late--maybe it already is. Allowing CRT to be taught in schools to children of any age is criminal.

Are there people who are prejudiced--you bet. Racists? You bet. But it is personal, not a "plandemic" to hate people of another color--unless you try to teach it to children--THAT IS A PLANDEMIC of epic proportions to change a culture. CRT has an agenda. To use a theory developed by racist dogma to force others to agree to victimhood is ridiculous. To learn the enormous lessons of compassion, love and acceptance of humanity in all its foibles is what we should be teaching. NOT a full-blown assault on American citizens.

Barbara Hamaker
Resident of Albuquerque, NM

[EXTERNAL] PED comment to social studies curricula

Curt Chester <cchester82@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:05 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Honorable leaders

It is high time to return to teaching children. The battle over teaching "politicized perspectives" such as "you are a certain way of you are "X" instead of history -good and bad undermines educational quality and significantly complicates teacher ability to TEACH and help children achieve.

I agree that critical thinking is a necessary skill for healthy citizens to maintain. But it is about presenting the full account of history and letting children discuss and arrive at conclusions that represent their understanding - NOT bias plantings of one viewpoint without factual representation of another.

This curriculum is unhealthy, detrimental to a child's health and development, and counterproductive to quality education.

But I have a solution, return to teaching reading, writing and arithmetic. Encourage thoughtful expression in writing assignments and promote discussion to think. Incorporate more art in education to allow for expression, and upgrade critical technology infrastructure state-wide to bring resources to our students.

STOP teaching agendas and return to TEACHING OUR CHILDREN!!

If NMPED cannot do that then they are not fulfilling and complying with their mission, goals, and objectives.

We ARE LAST -LETS BE FIRST!!

Curtis Chester
Eddy County

[EXTERNAL] PED Proposed Social Studies Standards: In Favor

Josette Arvizu <josette@progressnownm.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:08 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am strongly in favor of social studies standards that emphasize critical thinking and inquiry into the roles that our diverse communities have shaped the U.S., the land that would become the state of New Mexico and a truly inclusive approach to the many-faceted stories that make our history.

I applaud the state for responding to the much-needed culturally relevant needs of indigenous students, hispano/latinx students, and many others whose stories have not been widely told (Jewish settlement in the area and work during the Holocaust to protect their relatives in Europe, the Black communities in Las Cruces and Albuquerque that have long lived here and built our cities) and furthering the hard work that many excellent teachers have begun in these areas for the past two decades and even before, when I was a student in Los Lunas Schools in the 1980s and 1990s. I am a product of NM public schools and have thrived with the expert instruction from my honors and AP coursework in college and graduate school. All students would have access to excellent instruction and a culturally relevant approach to history and other subject matter in the schools.

Thank you,

Josette Arvizu (she/her)

Deputy Director

ProgressNow New Mexico

505.357.0485

[EXTERNAL] S.S.curriculum NMAC 6.29.11

Ian Devlin <devlinelectric01@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

As a patriot of the United States, as a former student of APS and a parent of a student in APS ; I am ADAMANTLY OPPOSED to the Racist, Un-American, Marxist ideology that is being brought forth by CRT or SEL or any other pseudonym they try to hide behind. I , and many other parents and Patriots will not stand idly by while you poison the minds of our youth. We The People are sick and tired of having our children put in the middle of the political bologna. We're not putting up with it anymore. We're taking our country back. Our History back and most importantly our Kids back! CRT teaches kids to feel either ashamed of their skin color or that they are victims because of their skin color. I can't think of more racist. And to try to brainwash our kids into this is, unethical and immoral, to say the least.

If this gets implemented into APS there will be a Mass Exodus from the public school system. Myself and others are already sick and tired of the draconian mask mandates enforced upon our children. Kids need fresh air and sunshine. They need to see smiles and expressions on faces. We've already had enough of this. Turn it around or we'll turn it around for you. This is your last chance.

[EXTERNAL] CONCERNS

Loretta Ramirez <loramirez@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:16 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

After reviewing the proposed changes, I am very concerned that the State of New Mexico has not heeded the very loud voices of parents across the United States opposing the teaching of Critical Race Theory in our schools. It is apparent, although masked, that this is the goal of these new standards. Seeing words such as Diversity, Inclusion, and Equity is indicative that this new proposal is in fact, founded in the teaching of CRT. I agree that New Mexico is a beautiful state that houses many cultures, beliefs, and peoples that warrant teaching, but the tenets below are SOME of the examples in the new standards that are a blatant imitation of CRT:

STARTING IN KINDERGARTEN:

K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.

1ST GRADE

1.24. Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.

2ND GRADE- no blaring wording, but very vague standard for this specific grade

2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad.

3RD GRADE

3.29. Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world.

4TH GRADE

- NM history has appeared to be untouched by new standards, which I am very happy about. Again, if we teach about the beautiful cultures within the state and not focus how "we" are better or inferior to other cultures, then our children can learn to respect and value others. The role of educators is to teach the facts of a culture, religion, and peoples, but it is the role of the parent to teach their children to love one another and to respect those they may not understand.

5TH GRADE

5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.

5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.

5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

6TH GRADE

6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.

7TH GRADE

7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.

7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.

7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.

8TH GRADE

8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.

8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.

8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies.

HIGH SCHOOL

9-12.Civ.17. Evaluate multiple sources and cite evidence investigating the relationships between equality, equity, justice, freedom, and order in American constitutional democracy.

9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.

9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.

9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.

In the proposal, there is no evidence of literature or authors that were used to establish these new standards. What pedagogy supports these new standards? In my profession, we are required to use evidence-based practices and publish the author/scientist or ideology that supports our treatment. I see none of this in these proposals and if they are available, they are not easy to find. I am also concerned that the district my children attend did not give parents sufficient time to review and discuss these new proposals which makes me wonder if NMPED is trying to covertly pass these new standards.

I am concerned and am willing to remove my children from the public school setting if this movement progresses in New Mexico's educational standards. I hope that Governor Michelle Lujan Grisham and all of the elected officials would hear our voices and understand that we, as parents, are very well aware that our vote matters. We also hope that you would hear the voices of those nationwide that spoke with their vote to remove those in office that refuse to understand that we want what is best for our children and that we DO NOT agree with anything that resembles CRT. I am from a family of educators and I GREATLY appreciate the tasks that many teachers must complete and I understand the challenges that they face, but I believe their focus should be on teaching educational content, not ideologies and definitely not morals, that is my job and responsibility.

I do wish I would have had more time to do more research with each standard, but I had one evening. I also wish I could attend the 1:00 pm meeting today, but I work. I would ask that NMPED would consider working parents when scheduling these meetings and possibly extending the timeline so that more parents can participate.

I appreciate any feedback and am willing to provide additional information if needed.

Deeply concerned and disheartened,

Loretta Ramirez
Parent of 3

[EXTERNAL] In Opposition

Lupe Cerquera <hiz777@hotmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:18 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern,

We are writing in opposition of the new proposed K-12 Social Studies Curriculum Standards.

Our opposition is based on our belief that they incorporate flawed concepts of Critical Race Theory and impose a liberal bias to historical and social events that are being imposed on our New Mexico children.

The education of Social Studies should not be taught to indoctrinate students with false theology that our country is racist and that all things are blamed on oppressed and oppressor or that our country should adopt a socialistic system in exchange for a capitalistic system.

We also believe that personal political views should be left out of the classroom.

Sincerely yours,

Pablo and Maria Cerquera

[EXTERNAL] Comments to proposed changes to NM social studies curriculum

Doug Brown <doug.brown.abq@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Members of the PED:

I am submitting my comments to the proposed changes to the New Mexico social studies curriculum. I am very concerned with the content of these changes, which closely resemble Critical Race Theory.

I am a retired Senior Scientist of Sandia National Laboratories, and I ran for the APS School Board in the 2017 election cycle. I only say this to indicate my interest in the educational system and to make the point that I am educated, interested, and informed regarding this topic.

I am also an elder (lay pastor) in my church. I feel responsibility for roughly 80 children and teens who attend my church. Their spiritual, emotional, and physical well-being is of paramount importance. I am also interested in this topic because what is being taught in our schools affects all of our society for a very long time. As a grandfather, I want to see my grandchildren and their children grow up in a stable, healthy society.

The big problem with Critical Race Theory is that it divides people into competing, antagonistic groups, rather than helping them unite in a mutually-supportive community where everyone is treated with love and respect. Nothing good is achieved when people are divided into oppressors and oppressed based upon the rather superficial characteristic of skin color. This causes one group to be shamed and feel guilty and the other group to become angry and filled with hate. We have enough angry, hate-filled people in our society without trying to fan the flames and create even more. This simply leads to the further disintegration of our society.

I believe the solution to racial harmony in our society is to be found in the principles of love, respect, and forgiveness taught by Jesus Christ. Clarence Washington, a black pastor here in Albuquerque and a personal friend of mine for many years, recently published a four-volume set of books entitled "Hijacked: How Dr. King's Dream Became a Nightmare". In the first volume he explains the nature of Martin Luther King's dream and the methods he proposed to achieve it. In a nutshell, Dr.

King believed in the principles of Jesus and in the foundation expressed in the Declaration of Independence - that all men are created equal and are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, including life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. He wanted to see all races receive these rights. But he was also very clear that only certain methods should be used to achieve his dream - including non-violence, self-respect and self-control, and unity. He also said we should replace Hateful Unforgiveness with Loving Forgiveness. If our schools are to be inculcating any principles into our children, these are the ones that will be best for our society.

The principles of Critical Race Theory being proposed for the NM social studies curriculum will only lead to anger, hatred, and ultimately violence that will tear our society apart. These are Marxist principles that are designed to destroy a society so that a new totalitarian society can arise in its place. If that is what you really want to achieve, then you will proceed with your plan to adopt Critical Race Theory. I hope you will instead choose to adopt and teach the principles of our founding fathers that made our nation great. And I pray that you will teach our children to love and respect one another rather than divide them into competing, antagonistic groups. The survival of our society depends upon it.

May God bless you as you make this important decision.

C. Douglas (Doug) Brown
12801 Granite Ave NE
Albuquerque, NM 87112
(505) 280-4083
Elder, Mountainside Church of Christ
Sr. Scientist (ret.) Sandia National Laboratories

[EXTERNAL] Letter of Support for the Revised Social Studies Standards for NM Public Education

Cynthia Pelak <cpelak@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:22 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Policy Division of the NMPED,

I am writing in support of the new Social Studies standards for NM primary and secondary public education in New Mexico that have been established.

As a professor of Sociology at NMSU over the past 12 years, I have had the distinct privilege and pleasure of teaching and learning from NMSU students about their social histories and the social institutional forces in past and present New Mexico and beyond.

I have observed first-hand the strengths and weaknesses of social scientific knowledge and related skills of inquiry that undergraduate students bring to my introductory level classes. After reviewing the proposed changes, I am confident that these curriculum changes will have a positive effect on all New Mexican students today and in the future.

Facing our shared histories as human beings is no easy task, but the rewards are great. I want to offer my sincere thanks to all the individuals and groups who have contributed to this difficult work of updating the social studies curriculum. Congratulations on a job well-done!

All the best,

Cynthia F. Pelak

Cynthia Fabrizio Pelak, Ph.D.
Associate Professor, Department of Sociology
Faculty Affiliate, Borderlands and Ethnic Studies Program
New Mexico State University

MSC 3WSP

PO BOX 30001

Las Cruces, NM 88003

EMAIL: cpelak@nmsu.edu

TELEPHONE: 575-646-4494

WEBPAGE: <https://sociology.nmsu.edu/faculty/faculty-pages/drcynthiafabriziopelak.html>

"Where, after all, do universal human rights begin? In small places, close to home – so close and so small that they cannot be seen on any maps of the world. ... Unless these rights have meaning there, they have little meaning anywhere. Without concerned citizen action to uphold them close to home, we shall look in vain for progress in the larger world."

Eleanor Roosevelt, March 27, 1958

https://www.democracynow.org/2020/1/1/eleanor_roosevelt

2146 of 2909

6.29.11 Exhibit_1096

[EXTERNAL] Public Comment Social Studies Standards

John Ross Null <jrnull@bulldogs.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:24 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr. Sena,

Please post the attached letter as part of the record regarding the proposed Social Studies standards. I have also attached the proposed revisions to the standards developed by the Artesia Public Schools. They have been submitted previously by Mr. Danny Parker, so if already part of the record, they do not need to be posted again.

Thank you,

J. R. Null

John Ross Null, Superintendent
Artesia Public Schools
301 Bulldog Boulevard
Artesia, NM 88210
575-308-3687
jrnull@bulldogs.org

“Superior Quality Education for All Students”

CHILDREN FIRST!! City of Champions

Artesia Public Schools

301 Bulldog Boulevard
Artesia, New Mexico 88210-1899
575.746.3585

John Ross Null, Superintendent
jrnull@bulldogs.org

November 12, 2021

Dear Mr. Sena,

I am writing in regard to proposed rule 6.29.11, Social Studies. I have personally spent a great deal of time reviewing the draft standards, comparing them to the existing standards, and drawing conclusions from that work.

After doing so, it is my opinion that the language utilized in some of the standards does lend itself to the teaching of facets of Critical Race Theory. This is problematic, because Critical Race Theory was not intended to be taught in K-12 education. The intent was for discussion and review in some higher education courses.

It is also my opinion that overall our kids are doing very well with one another in our classrooms, on our playgrounds, in our activities, and in our athletics. I have concern that teaching some of the standards as proposed would introduce controversy and divisiveness that doesn't need to be introduced. When I look at that through a lens of what is best for kids, I don't believe that is best for kids.

It is also important to establish that I am not talking about not celebrating and respecting the diverse cultures of our state and country, intentionally ignoring events in our history—even those we are not proud of, and not striving to improve our ability to deliver culturally and linguistically relevant instruction and resources.

As a result of my conclusions, I direct you to the proposed specific edits to the draft standards by the Artesia Public Schools. These have been submitted previously by Mr. Danny Parker, Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Education. I believe these edits move us toward accomplishing appropriate attention to all historical events in a manner that is culturally and linguistically relevant without using language that could unnecessarily introduce tenets of Critical Race Theory in our K-12 education.

Although the work has been exhausting, it has not been exhaustive. It is good, but it could be better. The brief time allowed for review and comment has prevented stakeholders from the thorough attention this project deserves.

As evidence of the need and desire for additional time, numerous school boards from all regions of the state have submitted resolutions or petitions requesting that additional time. Furthermore, in a recent survey of superintendents by the New Mexico School Superintendents Association, 49 of 53 superintendents responding to the survey prefer a delay.

To quote a November 11, 2021 editorial from the Albuquerque Journal regarding the Social Studies standards, "If it takes a little more time, it's worth it."

Sincerely,

John Ross Null, Superintendent

SUPERIOR QUALITY EDUCATION FOR ALL STUDENTS

www.bulldogs.org

Date: November 11, 2021

To: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary Designate
Dr. Gwen Perea-Warniment, Deputy Secretary of Teaching, Learning and Assessment
Ms. Katarina Sandoval, Deputy Secretary, Academic Engagement and Student Success
Dr. Vickie C. Bannerman, Deputy Secretary of Identity, Equity, and Transformation
Mr. John Sena, Director of Policy, Innovation, and Measurement

From: Danny Parker, Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Education
Jesse Wright, Social Studies Department Head
Terra Greer, Artesia Junior High School Social Studies Department Head
Alayna Guidry, Artesia Intermediate School Department Head

Please see the attached recommended edits from the Artesia Public Schools. This was a combined effort of the social studies departments at the secondary schools in Artesia. Every effort was made to keep the spirit of the standard while removing language that some could perceive as political.

These are some of the guiding principles that informed our work:

- Some of the language in the standards were doing the work of the parent. For example, having a standard for a kindergarten student that asks them to identify their people groups is not age appropriate. Therefore, the teacher would have to be actively helping a student identify their identity groups. This is dangerous and could be counterproductive on the students' part. The parent should be the one to help their child with this work.
- Some of the standards were actual assignments. The standard should not be prescriptive on how it is taught. For example, the standard reads that students should "Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture." The purpose of the standard is to have knowledge of Mogollon and Pueblo art and architecture. This standard adds the skill of creating a model to the standard.
- One teacher said that some of the "culturally and linguistically relevant" language should not be in the standard, but that the skills of teaching with cultural and linguistic relevance should be included in professional development for every teacher. "It's just good teaching."

Artesia Public Schools Recommended Edits to the Proposed Social Studies Standards

K-5

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities.	K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves.
K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not.	K.23. Describe ways the student is similar and different from other people without making someone else feel badly.
K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups.	K.25. Describe the student's family history, culture, and past.
2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not.	2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people .
3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly.	3.27. Express a positive view of themselves without making someone else feel badly.
3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups.	3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other cultures.
5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.	Cut...inappropriate for 5th grade...open to teacher's opinion
5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.	5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions.
5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.	5.31. Explain how each student's abilities could contribute to our society.

Grades 6-8

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	6.15. Describe how family history and culture connects us to the collective history and culture of other people.
6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	see 15
6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives.	see 15

6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures.	see 15
7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity	not 7th grade history
7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.	7.21. Select a region of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics.
7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.	7.28. Describe the obstacles and how people have overcome these obstacles in various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry.
7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.	7.47. Research and understand Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.
7.49. Describe the relationship between their (key figures in NM History) cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/identities.	7.49. Describe the relationship between key figures in NM History cultural heritage(s).
7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures.	Cut...not a standard but an opinion
7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices.	Cut...assignment
7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display and conclude how to address stereotypes.	Cut...assignment
7.74. Identify and summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence.	Cut...of what?
7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact they had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.	7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact these routes and systems had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.
7.78. Analyze primary and secondary (perhaps sources) to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area) that would become) New Mexico.	7.78. Analyze primary and secondary sources to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on the area that would become New Mexico.
7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups.	Cut...not a standard
7.92. Compare and contrast primary and secondary sources in conjunction with modern-era events to explore the impact of land ownership throughout New Mexico History.	Cut...assignment, not a standard

7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a group.	7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives. (Perhaps not even a social studies standard???)
7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by personal choice or external forces.	Cut...assignment, not a standard
7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.	7.98. Research examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present.
7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.	7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the student's culture and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.
8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers.	8.7. Identify significant people, places, events, and ideas in history. (Way too broad)
8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.	8.12. Examine how and why colonists believed they were denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.
8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.	8.16. Accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants.
8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.	Cut...assignment
8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups.	8.19. Describe the many facets of the student's family history and culture and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other Americans.
8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions.	Cut...Not Early US History

8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.	Cut...Not US History
8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.	8.29. Research the ways an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.
8.30. Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.	8.30. Research how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.
8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.	8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century (Portugal and Spain to Columbus) and the 16th century (Portugal, Spain & France) and describe the accomplishments of Pocahontas, Juan Ponce de Leon, the five tribes, etc..
8.34. Synthesize information from two or more different types of maps to support a claim about the global context of colonization.	8.34. Analyze, make and use different types of maps, globes, charts, and databases to include: indigenous peoples, immigrants, exploring countries, Proclamation of 1763, Westward Expansion
8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.	Same as 34...assignment
8.37. Engage in academic discussion around how the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.	8.37. Understand the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use that impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.
8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established.	8.43. Understand the importance of the Proclamation Line of 1763 and it's effect on the future colonies.
8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War).	8.46. Analyze the significance of 7 Year's War on the colonists and their relationship with Britain.

8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution	8.48. Understand the causes and results of the American Revolution and the inspiration it gave to other countries' revolutions to include Sugar Act, Tea Act, Boycotts, Stamp Act, Sons of Liberty, Daughters of Liberty, Boston Massacre, Boston Tea Party, Townshend Acts, Intolerable Acts, First and Second Continental Congress.
8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies.	8.49. Discover the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on American Colonial Identity.
8.5. Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory.	Cut...see 34 above
8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.	8.55. Research precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today.
8.58. Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity.	Cut...assignment
8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture.	Cut...assignment
8.68. Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war.	8.68. Research how conflicts over slavery and economics led the North and South to war.
8.69. Use primary and secondary sources to examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.	8.69. Examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity to include John Brown, Fredrick Douglass, Harriett Tubman, Dred Scott, among others.
8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.	8.70. Examine events of the Sectionalism and Reform Era and how they relate to current issues and events.
8.72. Summarize a significant economic warfare initiative of the Civil War through creative expression	8.72. Identify significant economic warfare initiatives of the Civil War.
8.74. Generate research questions, brainstorm sources, and gather evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War (Guerra Civil Estadounidense).	8.74. Research the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War.

8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation.	8.76. Understand the Emancipation Proclamation and correct common misconceptions.
8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era.	8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation (including Kansas Nebraska Act, Missouri Compromise, Compromise of 1850) and judicial precedents in former slave states during the Reconstruction Era.
8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.	8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements advocating for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history (e.g. Quakers, Underground Railroad, newspapers, etc.)
8.81. Describe how the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States arose with the intention of maintaining the oppression of specific groups through informal institutions.	8.81. Describe the influence that the Ku Klux Klan and other white supremacist organizations in the United States had on civil rights after the Civil War.
8.83. Use an artistic medium or multimedia project to describe the contemporary and current significance of Juneteenth.	8.83. Evaluate the influence and origin of Juneteenth and its current significance.
8.90. Examine history from the perspective of the participants by presenting an original historical fiction piece to profile an immigrant's experience, including the impact of anti-immigrant policies	Cut...assignment

9-12 Civics

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted overtime and how they currently shape policy debates.	9-12.Civ.38. Evaluate how fundamental American principles have been interpreted over time and how they currently shape policy debates.
9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to correct them.	9-12.Civ.40. Analyze historic inequalities and evaluate proposed solutions to ensure representation for all citizens in our form of government.
9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating good governance at various levels.	9-12.Civ.32. Analyze civic virtues and principles, and the role of the people in creating a government "of the people, by the people, and for the people" at all levels of government.

9-12 World History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between dominant cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and long-term effects of oppression.	9-12.WH.34. Analyze the complex relationship between cultures and minority groups throughout world history, including but not limited to: constructions of race, ethnicity, gender, nationality, class and/or religion, reactions, and the long-term effects of their places in society.
9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins (including but not limited to: indigenous, forced, voluntary) of identity groups in World history.	9-12.WH.35. Compare and contrast the various origins of people groups in World history (indigenous, forced migration, or voluntary migration).
9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.WH.36. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in underrepresentation (or no representation) among people groups.

9-12 NM History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of their family history and cultural background and can describe how their own identity is informed and shaped by their membership in multiple identity groups.	9-12.NMH.18. Demonstrate knowledge of each student's family history and cultural background and describe how each student's own identity is informed and shaped.
9-12.NMH.26. Determine the role of race and racism in the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.	9-12.NMH.26. Determine the issues that affected some people's access pertaining to the acts of land redistribution during the territorial period.
9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war, prior to becoming a state of the USA. (no comma needed)	9-12.NMH.27. Contextualize the struggles toward statehood by including the resistance of the Hispanic population to newcomers and the participation of all ethnic populations in the Spanish American war prior to becoming a state of the USA.
9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using	9-12.NMH.47. Demonstrate historical causation by using multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico .
9-12.NMH.48. multiple perspectives to conduct historical analysis of the Civil Rights era in New Mexico (47 and 48 should be together????)	47 and 48 should be together.

9-12 US History

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.US.13. Examine the course and consequences of the Columbian Exchange.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.14. Describe the evolution and short and long-term consequences of racialized labor and caste systems such as encomienda and slavery in Spanish and Portuguese America.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.15. Analyze how various Indigenous nations changed as a result of European settler colonialism.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.16. Examine the involvement of Indigenous nations in the colonial wars and evaluate the consequences for their societies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.17. Explain the ways that Indigenous nations expressed and transmitted their beliefs and values.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.18. Compare and contrast the different ways in which Indigenous people have resisted, survived, and adapted to maintain their patterns of community life.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.19. Compare and contrast the short- and long-term causes and effects of settler colonialism vs. classic colonialism.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.20. Explain the common elements of Indigenous societies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.21. Analyze facets of Indigenous social, political, and economic organization.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.22. Analyze relationships between Indigenous peoples and Spanish, English, French, and Dutch colonizers.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.23. Examine the interactions between English colonizers and Indigenous peoples in the 13 Colonies.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.24. Determine the importance and utility of rights versus responsibilities.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.25. Determine the characteristics of a revolution and evaluate the American Revolution as compared to the French and Haitian Revolutions. History 15. Cause and Consequence	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.26. Investigate the causes and effects of the Revolutionary War on diverse groups of people in the United States.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.27. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and effects of the system of racialized slavery and caste in the United States.	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.28. Examine diverse stories of adaptation and resistance to systems of oppression including colonialism and slavery.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.29. Evaluate the impact of the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States on diverse groups of people, including Native Americans and enslaved Africans. History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.30. Describe the Constitutional Convention, the roles of specific individuals, and their conflicts and compromises.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.31. Explore the key ideals and principles outlined in the foundational documents of the United States. Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876 Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of: Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.32. Examine the short- and long-term impact of settlers, pioneers, frontiersman, and homesteaders on the United States and on sovereign Indigenous nations. 101 Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787-1876 (Continued) Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of: Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to History 15. Cause and Consequence	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.33. Evaluate the social, political, and economic causes and short and long term effects of U.S. territorial expansion.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.34. Examine the ways in which the United States acquired new territories, including purchases, annexation, treaties, and war.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.35. Explain the importance of the Transportation Revolution of the 19th century.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.36. Analyze the effects of industrial growth throughout antebellum America.	These are for 8th Grade History.

9-12.US.37. Describe the role of slavery in the economies of the industrialized North and the agricultural South, explain reasons for the rapid growth of slavery in southern states, the Caribbean islands, and South America after 1800, and analyze how banks, insurance companies, and other institutions profited directly or indirectly from the slave trade and slave labor History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.38. Analyze the convergence of the expansion of colonialism through territorial acquisition and the expansion of chattel slavery in acquired territory.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.39. Explain the causes and effects of this convergence on diverse people within the territories, Indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, people on the borderlands, immigrants.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.40. Explore forms of resistance, adaptation and cultural preservation practiced by enslaved and colonized peoples during this period.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.41. Assess the impact of Federal policy towards Indigenous nations.	These are for 8th Grade History.
9-12.US.50. Compare and contrast global historical reconciliation and reparations efforts (Denazification, Australia Mabo Case/Terra Nullius) with Reconstruction.	9-12.US.50. Analyze the Reconstruction efforts and determine their short- and long-term affects.
9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender and sexuality were changing and unchanged during the 19th century.	9-12.US.53. Identify the ways in which gender roles have changed since the 19th century.
9-12.US.56. Evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the United States.	9-12.US.56. Evaluate the following concerning the economic system of the United States: efficiency, equity, and equality.
9-12.US.83. Compare and contrast the conflict between traditionalism and modernity during this period with examples around the world such as Weimar Germany.	Cut-extraneous
9-12.US.87. Examine the ways in which gender and sexuality norms changed and stayed the same in 1920s America.	Cut--Same as 53
9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections between the racial social order in both the United States and Germany during this period.	9-12.US.95. Analyze the similarities, differences, and connections of different countries that have struggled with racial inequities such as Germany, South Africa, and middle Eastern countries.

9-12.US.104. Analyze state-sponsored persecution and “othering” including anti-Semitism and homophobia	9-12.US.104. Analyze how the perceptions of racism, sexism, and the "othering" of people groups have changed over time.
9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of Red Scare ideology on social movements and activists in the United States.	9-12.US.106. Analyze the impact of the Cold War on social movements and activists in the United States.
9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Communist Red Scare with the Lavender Scare.	9-12.US.113. Compare and contrast the Cold War with the other social movements in the United States.
9-12.US.116. Examine the evolution of McCarthyism from the Red Scare to COINTELPRO.	9-12.US.116. Examine Cold War issues such as McCarthyism and the Counter Intelligence Program.
9-12.US.118. Research and analyze resistance to integration in white communities, protests to end segregation, and Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.	9-12.US.118. Examine the obstacles of racial integration in communities and schools, attempts to end segregation, and the impact of the Supreme Court decisions on civil rights.
9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of conservatism in the United States on diverse groups of people.	9-12.US.123. Assess the short- and long-term social and political impacts of different eras in the United States on diverse groups of people (i.e. progressivism, separatism, World War I, great depression, World War II, Cold War, Postwar Boom, Civil Rights, Vietnam War, Era of Social Change, environmentalism, conservatism, globalization).
9-12.US.129. Explore the movement against police brutality.	Cut - Current Events not US History
9-12.US.132. Examine the history of guns in America as compared to other world powers and the consequences of gun violence on American society past, present, and future.	Cut - Current Events not US History
9-12.US.134. Examine anti-immigrant sentiment in the United States over time and the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present.	9-12.US.134. Examine the experiences of diverse immigrant groups past and present in the United States.
9-12.US.135. Create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans.	9-12.US.135. Examine social justice movements throughout history designed to improve conditions for Americans including Native Americans and African Americans.
9-12.US.136. Evaluate the effects of the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability.	9-12.US.136. Evaluate the representation of diverse people in the US government including race, gender, sexual orientation, and disability and their impacts on legislation.

9-12 Economics

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
----------------	---------------------

9-12.Econ.24. Critique inequalities that exist in economic systems.	9-12.Econ.24. Compare and contrast economic systems including socialism, communism, and capitalism.
9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the impact of environmental externalities on New Mexican communities.	9-12.Econ.27. Evaluate the social problems that affect New Mexican communities
9-12.Econ.48 – 175 are missing from the original proposed draft	???

9-12 Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies

Draft Standard	Our proposed change
9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value my group identities without perceiving or treating others as inferior.	9-12.ECI.13. Recognize and value all cultures represented in the community without perceiving or treating any culture as inferior.
9-12.ECI.16. Assess how social policies and economic forces offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity for identity groups in education, government, healthcare, industry, and law enforcement.	Cut
9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which resulted in unequal power relations among identity groups.	9-12.ECI.18. Examine the impact of historical, cultural, economic, political, religious, and social factors which have impacted some underrepresented populations.
9-12.ECI.19. Examine the role assimilation plays in the loss of cultural, ethnic, racial, and religious identities and language.	Cut
9-12.ECI.21. Investigate how identity groups and society address systemic inequity through individual actions, individual champions, social movements, and local community, national, and global advocacy.	Same as 18
9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate the role of racial social constructs in the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.	9-12.ECI.22. Evaluate how recent social justice protests have affected the structures and functions of a 21st Century American society.

[EXTERNAL] Guidelines/support bgrothus@aol.com <bgrothus@aol.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:25 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing in support of the education standards as currently proposed. I hope you will take input from representatives of racial, cultural and ethnic individuals and groups if they feel the standards can be improved with additional wording or emphasis on overlooked points of view or that add self-awareness in the context of improved relationships between individuals and our varied communities.

New Mexico's diversity has long been championed, but we have a long way to go to create awareness and understanding of our social and economic climate. The standards should contribute to critical thinking around issues of race, culture, and economics, and our children should be encouraged to explore differences while understanding that civic life and social and economic conditions are an important aspect of contemporary life.

Thank you very much.

Barbara Grothus, Albuquerque

[EXTERNAL] Input on Proposed Social Studies Standards

Louis Corpening <lcorpeni2@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:29 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Mr. John Sena
Policy Division
NM Public Education Dept.
Santa Fe, NM

Dear Mr. Sena,

Thank you for this opportunity to provide input to the proposed revisions to the Social Studies Standards. I am a 5th generation native New Mexican. My mother, Lillian Corpening, taught at Gadsden ISD for over 30 years. She was one of the first native New Mexicans to be employed by Gadsden ISD. Before that, most of the teachers hired at Gadsden were from out of state. I attended Gadsden schools when young and all my children graduated from Las Cruces public schools. My children have all been successful in their respective fields, one graduating from the US Air Force Academy. As you can see, I do have some experience with the New Mexico public school system.

While I am not familiar with the details of the proposed revisions, I do question some of what I have heard, namely trying to tie students back to their cultural roots. For example, my ancestors include European, Native American, and Mexican. I consider myself a New Mexican American, a little of all the settlers/natives of New Mexico. As an American, to be told otherwise would be harmful and maybe an insult if I were young. HOWEVER, I do think it is important to recognize the contributions of all the peoples that make up New Mexico. The teaching should be based on solid history to show contributions AND mistakes made in the past. I DO NOT agree with applying today's social standards to the past and trying to "cancel" historical figures of the past like Columbus, the Spanish, the Catholic Church, etc. A discussion could be that the people of the past may have been well intentioned, but they in fact imposed on the rights of those they tried to convert. During that time in history, that was the way it was not only here in New Mexico but throughout the world. Demonizing one group to build up another just causes bad feelings for the group demonized, e.g. Columbus and Italians.

In revising the standards, care must be taken so the the "Tail does not wag the dog". Any revisions should be based on solid history and NOT someone's idea of what history should be. In reality, every group here in New Mexico has contributed to its development. The challenge is to recognize the contributions. I think people have tried to tell New Mexico's history truthfully in the past, but, as always, things can improve. I think very young people should be encouraged and exposed to different ideas but they are too young to be exposed to social issues of the times. As I tell my grandkids, "we are Americans from New Mexico and don't let anyone tell you otherwise". That is the only way we can come together as a country, to recognize ALL Americans EQUALLY, and not qualify some over others.

Good luck in your work. Having a good knowledge of history and civics is very important for future generations.

Louis Corpening
Las Cruces, NM

[EXTERNAL] 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Jan <janbann@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:30 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing in support of the new guidelines for 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

All New Mexican students are growing up in a fascinating and complex world. I believe that these new social studies guidelines will allow students to explore American culture in all of its strengths, weaknesses and diversity. The more they can understand themselves and others, along with gaining an understanding of our system of government and the brilliance of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, the better prepared they will be to find their place in American society.

Jan Bandrofchak
2409 Don Onofre Trail NW
Albuquerque, NM 87107

[EXTERNAL]

Tracy Alter <abqtracy505@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:32 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

The NM PED has made a mockery of NM's students for a long, long time, and continues to do so through this set of standards that do nothing more than indoctrinate children into the new far, left-wing BS.

I am all about teaching true and accurate history, the good and the bad, but the minute you start including identity politics in the classroom, you stop being about ensuring our children are educated, which you do a piss poor job at anyways.

Our children rank at the bottom of every list out there and instead of teaching them how to read and write, and you include 12+ years of "your identity is important."

It is, but it is NOT the most important thing about someone. the job of the PED is to ensure my children are educated, and you are failing more than you ever have and that is saying something.

[EXTERNAL] support

Tonia Caselman <tcaselman@montedelsol.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:32 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I stand in support of the proposed ethnic, cultural, and identity standards.

Tonia Caselman, PhD, LCSW

[EXTERNAL] Proposed Social Studies Curriculum

Katie Kitchens <kitch104@mail.chapman.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:33 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing to voice my unequivocal support for the proposed changes to the Social Studies Standards. As a teacher in New Mexico, an educational researcher, and candidate for a PhD in Educational Studies, I recognize the importance of equipping all children with the knowledge and skills necessary to strive for a more just and liberated future. Most importantly, I recognize the need for all children to feel seen, heard, valued, honored and respected throughout the course of their educational experiences.

In my research, I specifically study whiteness and white children. I believe that much of the opposition to the teaching of racism and inequity comes from both a fundamental misunderstanding of the impact of such teaching. Teaching about the violent history and present of the United States is not an act meant to shame or belittle white children. It equips them with the skills necessary to imagine and work toward a future where all children (including themselves) can reach their fullest potential. When we look at the disparities in outcomes between white students and their Black, Indigenous and Peers of Color in New Mexican schools, it is clear that the school system is not adequately meeting the needs of the most marginalized. In fact, by not addressing the racialized realities, the school system upholds and perpetuates the harm that it seeks to uproot.

There are many comments here that express a clear misunderstanding of the goals of the proposed standards. Many include buzzwords such as Critical Race Theory, but indicate a lack of understanding about the history, purpose, or role of CRT. These new standards have the potential to begin to create a truly affirmational learning environment for all students, and I hope that at the end of the day the needs of children will be placed above the fear of adults.

With gratitude for all those working toward justice and liberation for all of the children of the State of New Mexico,

Katie Kitchens

--

Katie Kitchens, M.A.

Student, Ph.D. in Education Studies | Leadership Studies emphasis | Chapman University

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Curriculum Update

Laurie Magill <TESL@msn.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hello,

As a retired elementary school teacher, I am writing in support of the NMPED proposed update to the NM social studies curriculum to make it less Eurocentric and to include analysis of power and class, as the PED is proposing. This is a good, intelligent move which will help our students become critical thinkers and intelligent consumers of information.

In hope,

Laurie Magill

[EXTERNAL] Social studies changes

Stephanie Chittenden <stephies@valornet.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:34 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I am writing to encourage PED to stop the planned changes to the standards in social studies. I have read the proposed changes and believe this will further divide our students and sow more anger and hatred. I have twin boys enrolled in the public school system and will seek alternative education if these standards are passed. I am an involved parent and believe we need to come together as we are a culturally diverse state and NOT push this CRT agenda forward. These proposed changes ARE CRT but disguised under a different name.

Sincerely,

Stephanie

Concerned parent in the RUIDOSO SCHOOLS

Sent from my iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Opposition

Josie Harris <josiemonster89@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:36 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a parent of 2 school age students, I oppose the teaching of CRT in our schools.

[EXTERNAL] Public Hearing 11/11/2021

Deborah Marler <deborahmarler@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:36 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon. Regarding the teaching of history in New Mexico schools, it is critical that a fulsome exploration and study of facts is necessary. If we can not learn from history then we are doomed to repeat it. It does not benefit any New Mexican to disassemble and misrepresent past positive and, at times, negative events. Pretending that racism does not exist does not eliminate the heinous and evil reality and makes it more challenging to address and end. The RPNM is overreaching and creating an environment of distrust in our educators, leaders and curriculum standards. We must stand firm and continue telling the truth, even the sometimes awful truth, that we may learn and progress to a "more perfect union" and that "all men are created equal" enshrined in our Constitution. Thank you for your time.

Respectfully,

Deborah Howard

Albuquerque mother and grandmother

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Proposed new Social Studies Standards

Marti Burt <mrbconsulting.nm@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:37 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please accept my comments on the proposed new standards. I have incorporated them into the text of this email and also attached them as a Word file.

Comments on Proposed Social Studies Standards, November 12, 2021

Martha R. Burt, Ph.D.
IndivisibleSOS, Santa Fe

My name is Martha Burt. In my long career as an evaluator and policy analyst at the Urban Institute and earlier for the Minnesota State Legislature, I have worked to understand and improve public policies and programs for underserved and often misunderstood populations ranging from pregnant and parenting teens to people experiencing homelessness and living with mental illness. The situations they face often arise from the failure of institutions and people to see them as they are. I congratulate you and everyone who worked to develop these Standards on a job long needed and thoughtfully and comprehensively done.

Today I want to address the importance of providing our children with historically accurate information about the experiences of many different peoples. History, they say, is written by the winners. Their perspective reigns while the perspectives of others are ignored, denied, misrepresented, or denigrated. The new standards seek to correct that almost-inevitable bias of historical accounting.

I would like to thank you and the large team of educators who contributed to the tremendous effort culminating in these proposed Social Studies standards. With them, New Mexico will join the few states that have already adopted similar standards that put us at the forefront of quality education.

I want to use my own life to illustrate the importance of multiple perspectives. I am a prime example of intersectionality, as are all people. I am a woman, a lesbian, a Jew, highly educated. Growing up in the 1940s and 1950s, my schooling denied me any examples of women who excelled. Nothing women accomplished was ever considered worthy of notice. Luckily there was my mother, with a Ph.D. in physics, to counter that absence. Note that recently no less than the New York Times made "reparation" to women. It published obituaries of large numbers of high-achieving women from the last 150 years whom it had refused to recognize over all that time. Without these truths, this historical accuracy, girls throughout our history have been denied role models and sources of pride in who they are.

The same denial of existence has been true for centuries for all children questioning whether they fit into how society defined the "right" way to be sexual. And although America is supposed to be a melting pot, children who don't fit the supposedly "normal" white, middle-class, heterosexual, Christian image also usually cannot find themselves in presentations of history. The major focus of book banning in this country has been stories about "the other" as told from their own perspective, whether racial, gender identity, religious, or cultural. Yet these are the very stories that help us expand our horizons, meet other perspectives, and learn the skills we need to appreciate everyone beyond the boundary of our own skin.

Trying to keep children ignorant of history doesn't work to make everyone "comfortable." The "others" are always uncomfortable. The effort is based on fear—fear of difference, fear of stepping outside one's comfort zone. For better or worse, children are exposed to and try to understand conflicting information bombarding them from all sides. Information comes from parents, friends, social media, television, and their own lived experience. Denying them the opportunity to explore differences freely doesn't stop them from wondering. Such denial just increases the odds that their world view will incorporate beliefs and attitudes harmful to many other people. The only way forward is to face the fear and provide the information. We need to encourage questions and conversation. We need to teach children how to evaluate it out in the open, where they can meet and come to value differences.

Thank you for the chance to speak and to assure you that I strongly support the new Social Studies Standards.

Thank you,

--

Martha R. Burt

mrbconsulting.nm@gmail.com

(1) 240 604-6799

Comments on Proposed Social Studies Standards, November 12, 2021

Martha R. Burt, Ph.D.

IndivisibleSOS, Santa Fe

My name is Martha Burt. In my long career as an evaluator and policy analyst at the Urban Institute and earlier for the Minnesota State Legislature, I have worked to understand and improve public policies and programs for underserved and often misunderstood populations ranging from pregnant and parenting teens to people experiencing homelessness and living with mental illness. The situations they face often arise from the failure of institutions and people to see them as they are. I congratulate you and everyone who worked to develop these Standards on a job long needed and thoughtfully and comprehensively done.

Today I want to address the importance of providing our children with historically accurate information about the experiences of many different peoples. History, they say, is written by the winners. Their perspective reigns while the perspectives of others are ignored, denied, misrepresented, or denigrated. The new standards seek to correct that almost-inevitable bias of historical accounting.

I would like to thank you and the large team of educators who contributed to the tremendous effort culminating in these proposed Social Studies standards. With them, New Mexico will join the few states that have already adopted similar standards that put us at the forefront of quality education.

I want to use my own life to illustrate the importance of multiple perspectives. I am a prime example of intersectionality, as are all people. I am a woman, a lesbian, a Jew, highly educated. Growing up in the 1940s and 1950s, my schooling denied me any examples of women who excelled. Nothing women accomplished was ever considered worthy of notice. Luckily there was my mother, with a Ph.D. in physics, to counter that absence. Note that recently no less than the New York Times made “reparation” to women. It published obituaries of large numbers of high-achieving women from the last 150 years whom it had refused to recognize over all that time. Without these truths, this historical accuracy, girls throughout our history have been denied role models and sources of pride in who they are.

The same denial of existence has been true for centuries for all children questioning whether they fit into how society defined the “right” way to be sexual. And although America is supposed to be a melting pot, children who don’t fit the supposedly “normal” white, middle-class, heterosexual, Christian image also usually cannot find themselves in presentations of history. The major focus of book banning in this country has been stories about “the other” as told from their own perspective, whether racial, gender identity, religious, or cultural. Yet these are the very stories that help us expand our horizons, meet other perspectives, and learn the skills we need to appreciate everyone beyond the boundary of our own skin.

Trying to keep children ignorant of history doesn’t work to make everyone “comfortable.” The “others” are always uncomfortable. The effort is based on fear—fear of difference, fear of stepping outside one’s comfort zone. For better or worse, children are exposed to and try to understand conflicting information bombarding them from all sides. Information comes from parents, friends, social media, television, and their own lived experience. Denying them the opportunity to explore differences freely doesn’t stop them from wondering. Such denial just increases the odds that their world view will incorporate beliefs and attitudes harmful to many other people. The only way forward is to face the fear and provide the information. We need to encourage questions and conversation. We need to teach children how to evaluate it out in the open, where they can meet and come to value differences.

Thank you for the chance to speak and to assure you that I strongly support the new Social Studies Standards.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Content Standards

Patricia McClure <pmcclure@nmsu.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:38 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear Committee Members,

Attached is a peer-review published study I did last year on the 5th & 8th grade NM social studies content standards. I hope the language used in updating the standards will be inclusive and critical with social justice and human rights themes. The current language used in the content standards promotes whiteness ideology, ignores contributions from the Mexican culture and promotes property rights over human rights.

Regards,

Patricia McClure, PhD"Activism is my rent for living on this planet." ~ Alice Walker"My humanity is bound up in yours, for we can only be human together." ~ Desmond Tutu

The silent schooling of whiteness in social studies content standards

Patricia S. McClure

To cite this article: Patricia S. McClure (2021): The silent schooling of whiteness in social studies content standards, Whiteness and Education, DOI: 10.1080/23793406.2021.1993083

To link to this article: <https://doi.org/10.1080/23793406.2021.1993083>

Published online: 28 Oct 2021.

Submit your article to this journal ↗

Article views: 16

View related articles ↗

View Crossmark data ↗

The silent schooling of whiteness in social studies content standards

Patricia S. McClure

School of Teacher Preparation, Administration and Leadership (Tpal), New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, New Mexico, United States

ABSTRACT

Race shapes the policies and history of the United States. Current research shows that state-approved social studies content standards are written in a non-racial and colour-evasive whiteness language that reinforces racist policies and practices in education. This qualitative framework analysis study examines the language of social studies content standards from New Mexico and Texas; two states on the US-Mexico border. This research, theoretically grounded in Critical Race Theory and Critical Whiteness Studies, analyses how the silent schooling of whiteness uses language to support racist ideals in social studies content to promote property rights and wealth over human rights. Furthermore, whiteness language in education reinforces the racist power structure by intentionally silencing culturally relevant and anti-racist instruction to students. Learning to identify whiteness language is an important step towards developing racial literacy, cultural responsiveness and social justice in social studies education.

ARTICLE HISTORY

Received 4 June 2020
Revised 7 May 2021
Accepted 11 October 2021

KEYWORDS

Whiteness language; social studies education; racial literacy; Critical Race Theory; Critical Whiteness Studies

Introduction

Topics on democracy and popular sovereignty dominate K12 social studies content in the United States. Yet, it is racist policies that shape this country's history, society, and government (Delgado and Stefancie 2017; Feagin 2020; Kendi 2019; Ladson-Billings 2003; Southern Poverty Law Center 2020; Zinn 1990). Therefore, social studies curricula promote racist whiteness policies alongside the ideals of democracy in K12 classrooms across the country (Bigler, Shiller, and Willcox 2013; Chandler 2009; King and Chandler 2016; Ladson-Billings 2003; Smith 2012; Vasquez-Heilig, Brown, and Brown 2012). However, applying the racial literacy practice of culturally responsive language to social studies content standards may help disrupt the silent schooling of whiteness. Using Critical Race Theory and Critical Whiteness Studies as the theoretical framework in this study helped identify the whiteness practice of using colour-evasive and non-racist language in education. Colour-evasive, non-racist language is the silent schooling of

CONTACT Patricia S. McClure  pmclore@nmsu.edu

I have no conflict of interest to disclose.

© 2021 Informa UK Limited, trading as Taylor & Francis Group whiteness that erases Black, Indigenous, and People of Colour (BIPOC) Americans' voices while mythologising European Americans' notions of democratic values and citizenship (Howard 2003).

In 1994, the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS) created national social studies standards as a model framework for every state and territory in the US. The ten thematic content strands are potential guidelines for teaching race and racism in social studies curricula. However, none of the themes mention race or racism (National Council for the Social Studies 2010). Instead, written in silent whiteness language, these standards preserve the European American mythologised version of race and racism in the US (Bonilla-Silva 2018; Chandler 2015; Feagin 2020; Ladson-Billings 2003; Lipsitz 2019; Sleeter 2002). The mythologised version teaches students that racism happened in the past by small groups of people, mainly from southern states.

This study uses 'color-evasiveness' instead of the more common label known as 'colorblind' racism (Bonilla-Silva 2018; Annamma, Jackson, and Morrison 2017). According to Bonilla-Silva, 'colorblind' racism pretends not to notice the existence of race or racism. This denial helps to uphold racist policies, including those found in education policies and practices. Dis/ability Critical Race (DisCrit) Theorists argue that the denial of race and racism is due to ignorance and should not be confused with the lack of eyesight.

Colour-evasive content standards written in silent whiteness language favours passive racial discourse and erasure of societal and institutional racist policies (King and Chandler 2016). In other words, these content standards support and maintain racist education policies and practices. Using silent whiteness language to educate citizenry in a democratic republic creates a paradox by supporting racist whiteness policies while upholding democratic values (Bonilla-Silva 2018; DiAngelo 2011; Rumbaut 1996 as cited by Chandler and Branscombe 2015). Encouraging society to accept what is not said renders a dominant culture invisible while at the same time placing it on full display (Chandler and Branscombe 2015; Garner 2007). Using silent whiteness also creates missing and blank spaces within the historical narrative and makes no historical sense (Sleeter 2002). What is missing in social studies education are counternarratives of the actions and interactions of BIPOC Americans as major actors in the nation-building history of the United States (Wills 2001 as cited by Chandler and Branscombe 2015). Also missing is recognising that racist policies continue to oppress BIPOC Americans while privileging European Americans.

Racial literacy framework provides a critical lens to view race and race talk (Grayson 2018). Combining race literate content standards with culturally responsive curricula provides meaning and context to students' constructing knowledge relevant to them (Gay 2018). As an anti-racist instructional method, racial literacy focuses on not only what is said but how things are said (Grayson 2018). Although there are many important characteristics of racial literacy, for this study, racial literacy was used to decode the silent whiteness language in two US states' social studies content standards.

This study attempts to identify how language supports whiteness in Texas and New Mexico's 5th-grade and 8th-grade social studies content standards. The ability to recognise language use will help determine methods for disrupting the silent schooling of whiteness. This study aims to provide knowledge for secondary social studies educators, curriculum writers, content specialists, and school district curriculum administrators that the silent schooling of whiteness exists in social studies content language. Another aim is to empower social studies educators to use critical methodologies to inform and construct their knowledge about the damaging effects of non-racial language. To accomplish these aims, the three main activities of this analysis research include the initial orientation of the problem(s), a focused literature review, and an analysis of social studies content standards from two states (McKenney and Reeves 2018).

The research questions that guide the goal and objectives of this study are:

- How is language used in social studies content standards to support whiteness and systemic racist policies?
- What, if any, racial themes emerge from the language used in social studies content standards?
- How can the combined use of Critical Race Theory and Critical Whiteness Studies inform racial literacy practices to disrupt whiteness language used in social studies content standards?

Theoretical framework

Critical Race Theory (CRT) and Critical Whiteness Studies (CWS) provides the theoretical framework for this study. Using CRT helps frame the racial inequities found in the state-approved social studies content standards while using CWS helps reveal whiteness (Decuir and Dixson 2004; Delgado and Stefancie 2017; Feagin 2020; Hiraldo 2010; Ladson-Billings 1998). Both theories illuminate how social studies content standards, including multicultural ones, continue to promote the whiteness ideology that race and racism exist. Combining the two theories also helps identify whether the Texas Education Agency (TEA) and the New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) content standards support or fail to support BIPOC students' cultural knowledge. Equally important is determining whether the content standards develop, or fail to develop, European American students' race-consciousness. The importance of using CRT as an education research methodology cannot be understated. The United States is a racialised nation controlled by European Americans using whiteness ideology (Delgado and Stefancie 2017; Feagin 2020; Kendi 2019; Ladson-Billings 1998; Omi and Winant 2015). Therefore, it is important to study how combining the two theories strengthens racial literacy language development in education.

Using the CRT tenets to analyse silent whiteness language helps identify meritocracy, colour-evasiveness, and liberalism practices that normalises racist policies (Delgado and Stefancie 2017; Ladson-Billings 1998). The first tenet states that colour-evasiveness and meritocracy allow European Americans to ignore the power and privilege of whiteness. Liberalism reinforces the idea that laws are neutral, an equal opportunity exists for everyone, and skin colour has no economic value. Delgado and Stefancie (2017) wrote that interest convergence, the second tenet, is the European American attitudes and actions towards BIPOC Americans. Dr. King (1967) noted that the first passage of the civil rights laws was easy because they had no direct effect on European Americans' lives. However, European American women became the primary beneficiaries of those laws.

Race is a social construct because no biological or genetic differences based on skin colour exists is the third tenet. The whiteness storyline frequently ignores scientific truths or uses science (i.e., Darwin's Theory of Evolution) to contrast European American superiority with BIPOC Americans' deficits. Delgado & Stefancic's fourth tenet recognises whiteness has value as property. Whiteness policies and practices justify why European Americans enrich themselves using predatory capitalism practices that redistribute capital away from BIPOC Americans (Delgado and Stefancie 2017; Feagin 2020; Kendi 2019; Ladson-Billings 1998; Omi and Winant 2015). According to Ladson-Billings (1998), African Americans are a 'unique form of citizen in the USA; property turned into citizen' (p. 16).

Critical Whiteness Studies (CWS) does not focus on relationships between European Americans and BIPOC Americans (Dowling and Flintoff 2018). Instead, CWS is used to examine whiteness as a system of power and privilege (Flintoff and Dowling 2019). However, studying the whiteness language can be difficult for European American researchers. The white racial frame in European Americans' minds unconsciously shapes their sociopolitical actions and experiences (Feagin 2020). Therefore, combining CRT and CWS as research methodologies becomes a magnifying tool for European American researchers to identify the silent whiteness language.

The assumption of this study is that power relations are everywhere, including in this study (Merriam and Tisdell 2016). My positionality as a researcher includes being a middle-class, middle-aged, abled European American heterosexual, cisgender woman, wife, mother to two sons who self-identify as Japanese American, one son who self-identifies as European American, and an aunt to nieces and nephews who self-identify as Latinx. I am socialised to use and benefit from privilege and have lived for decades along the US-Mexico border. I am also a former middle school social studies teacher who taught at a Title I school close to a US military base. The student population equally distributed among Latinx, European Americans, and African Americans, with slightly higher Latinx student percentages. As a result, I tried to adopt culturally responsive instructional strategies to help all students develop an interest in US and Texas History. My love of history came from listening to family stories while growing up. At a young age and under the guidance of a great-grandmother, I became an amateur genealogist. The ability to view United States' history through my ancestors' stories and experiences has helped me feel a direct connection to the past. I am comfortable embracing my cultural ethnicity as a European American of Irish, English, German and Czech descent.

Literature review

The colonisation of knowledge through literacy, history, and theory creates the foundation for western education (Smith 2012). However, colonising knowledge is a whiteness tool, more about brainwashing and less about educating students. According to Willinsky (1998), the achievements of European colonisation occurred not only by war and religion but 'also by a philosophy of history that has used time and place as conceptual tools for dividing the world' (p. 134). The history of the United States told from the perspective of the European invader/ coloniser to the exclusion of stories of North American indigenous peoples, enslaved Africans, and Asian immigrants. The stories extol how whiteness came to global power, how whiteness maintains power, and why whiteness should be admired and emulated. The silent schooling of whiteness is an effective colonising tool erasing genocide, racism/racist policies, and oppression as aberrations in the nation's history rather than the norm. (Omi and Winant 2015).

Colour-evasive racism

In the 1970s, the Neo-conservative movement became the whiteness response to the Black Civil Rights Movement (Feagin 2020; Omi and Winant 2015). They successfully rearticulated Black Civil Rights' ideals and identities by proclaiming the non-existence of racist policies. Neoliberalism emerged during the Reagan administration and remained a racial regime through the Obama administration. Neoliberalism, a free-market economy ideology, uses colour-evasive racism to develop global market relationships, promote the privatisation of government services and institutions like the education system (Feagin 2020). Its ideology is anti-immigration and encourages racial profiling, mass incarceration, and voter suppression. During the Obama administration, the Tea Party, a neoliberal faction, promoted whiteness ideology (Feagin 2020). Donald Trump rose to national prominence supported by neoliberal supporters when he falsely accused President Obama of not being a US citizen. The neoliberal faction frequently changes names to avoid detection. The Tea Party, the Freedom Caucus, and Citizens United are all neoliberal organisations.

Bonilla-Silva's (2018) four frames of 'colorblind' racism, also known as colour-evasiveness, defines how whiteness ideology advances racist policies as non-racism in the United States. Non-racist education suppresses the development of European Americans' race-consciousness (DiAngelo 2016; Feagin 2020). Consequently, the silent schooling of whiteness develops citizenry, policies, and outcomes that are profoundly and systemically racist (Bonilla-Silva 2018; Choi 2008; Gordon 2008; King and Chandler 2016; King 1991). Abstract liberalism, Bonilla-Silva's (2018) first 'colorblind' frame, has historical roots in the 17th century European Era of Enlightenment when nation-states, the middle class, and capitalism were created. The concept of political and economic liberalism implies equal opportunities that do not exist, while meritocracy and individualism concepts render racialised discourse invisible. The second frame, naturalisation, is biologically or scientifically driven. European Americans explain segregated neighbourhoods and lifestyles as natural occurrences. The most racially isolated students in the United States are European Americans (Winans 2010).

Cultural racism is the third frame that distinguishes 'other' cultures from universal whiteness. This frame is central to the current conservative and neo-liberal ideological framework where European Americans are judged as individuals. In contrast, BIPOC Americans are judged based on their cultural group's stereotypes (Feagin 2020). The fourth and final frame, the minimisation of race, is another manifestation of individualism that suggests discrimination no longer affects BIPOC Americans. European Americans claim 'reverse' discrimination and accuse BIPOC Americans of 'playing the race card.'

The silent schooling of whiteness in social studies classrooms

The institutional and societal structures in the United States have always been race-conscious. According to Feagin (2020), race-consciousness becomes neurologically embedded into the brain and becomes resistant to change. The race-consciousness becomes part of the person's life, character, and identity, regardless if that consciousness is racist, anti-racist, or colour-evasive. European Americans have the option not to develop race-consciousness, an option not available to BIPOC Americans. Feagin identifies European American race-consciousness as the white racial frame. Whiteness is a system of political, social, legal, and cultural advantages maintained through conscious and unconscious awareness of its existence and is the centre of racist policies (Applebaum 2016.; DiAngelo 2011; Frankenberg 1997; Giroux 1997; Rothenberg 2002; Sleeter 1994; Tate and Page 2018). According to Johnson (2018), the white racial frame has four features: a) assumes whiteness is a beacon of moral authority; b) rationalises acts of oppression that contradict human rights; c) justifies why capitalism unjustly enriches European Americans, and d) assumes social reform is adequate reform for oppression. Most European Americans are ignorant of how this racial frame normalises their privileged views of themselves and their experiences. Living in a world of racial isolation and whiteness evades colour, critique, and self-reflection (Barnes 2017).

Because of European Americans' racial isolation, inserting the silent schooling of whiteness into the education system is an easy method for creating an imagined reality for European Americans and dehumanising treatment of BIPOC Americans (Hawkman 2020). Further, stripping European ethnicity from European Americans forces them to accept whiteness as a national identity. When European Americans forget their ethnic identity, they become ethnically and culturally homeless. This homelessness encourages the internalisation of whiteness and suspicion of peoples who retain their ethnic identity (Branch 2003; Gonzales and Cauce 1995; Helms 1994; Phinney 1996). Centering whiteness in social studies content standards protects European American teachers and students from thinking about their lack of ethnic identity (DiAngelo 2011; Leonardo 2009; Unzueta and Lowery 2008). Because whiteness is not an ethnic culture, European Americans learn to view themselves as universal humans representing all cultures. Therefore, individual BIPOC American actions become cultural stereotypes, while European Americans' actions are considered personal indiscretions (Bonilla-Silva 2018; Delgado and Stefancie 2017).

There is a profound silence on race and racism in US social studies classrooms. Branch (2003) used CRT to uncover how European Americans' fear of being called racist, the interest convergence tenet, and high stakes testing supports the silent schooling of whiteness. Until 2001, individual states maintained the autonomy of their standardised testing until federal intervention with the No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Act. Content standards, performance standardisation, and testing became linked using 'Texas-style' accountability in education. In the 1990s, neoliberals gained control of the state government in Texas and restructured the education system. The new Texas education system became the framework for NCLB and heralded it as an effective education model (Valenzuela 2005). Government agencies and policymakers collected test data based on racial and ethnic groups, gender, income status, (dis)abilities, and English language proficiency to determine school funding and other resources (Meier and Wood 2004; Gay 2018).

Several scholars have voiced concern that social studies content remain active statements of whiteness ideologies because of the silence about race, racism, slavery, as well as the lack of stories about the achievements and experiences of BIPOC Americans (Bonilla-Silva 2018; Chandler 2015; Ladson-Billings 2003; Lipsitz 2019; Sleeter 2002). BIPOC Americans make significant contributions to US society, particularly to the survival of democracy and popular sovereignty, yet those stories remain largely unknown (Feagin 2020; Omi and Winant 2015). In their research, Chandler and Branscombe (2015) revealed four whiteness themes in US social studies classrooms that help remove BIPOC American stories. First, the silent schooling of whiteness provides a colour-evasive, non-racist instructional discourse for teachers. Secondly, the narrative of European American exceptionalism protects the whiteness ideology from criticism. Thirdly, the transmitted social studies skills and knowledge contain selective information about racialised history. Lastly, the silent whiteness language creates missing narratives in the collective historical narrative.

Textbooks sometimes acknowledge contributions by BIPOC Americans but are still written in whiteness language (Byrne 2001). The silent schooling of whiteness frames narratives about how European Americans respond to adversity or conflicts rather than cause them. Textbook narratives about diversity, justice, and racist policies are often incomplete or flawed (Gay 2018). Skerrett and Hargreaves (2008) concluded that ‘standardisation has become the enemy of diversity’ (p. 913) because it reduces teachers’ abilities to incorporate culturally responsive practices in the classroom. When whiteness language defines the content, teachers often feel they cannot teach culturally responsive content for fear their students’ test performance will suffer. Therefore, teachers usually avoid cultural diversity, social class, race, and ethnicity topics beyond token acknowledgement and recognition (Gay 2018).

Racial literacy

According to Gay (2018), culturally responsive anti-racist instructional methods and practices prepare students to live, without fear or suspicion, among diverse cultural and racialised groups. Equally important, anti-racist education teaches students about the silent schooling of whiteness. Conversations about race and racism have the potential to disrupt a learning environment, so introducing racial literacy to the learning community inserts problem-solving potentiality. When Vetter and Hungerford-Kressor (2014) conducted a racial literacy study with 28 high school students, they found that small group work provided the best opportunity for students to engage in deep exploratory dialogue. Their research also discovered that teachers who received racial literacy professional development instruction were typically more confident in engaging in classroom race discussions.

On the other hand, Winans’ (2010) study revealed that offering more racial information in the classroom is not a good introduction to racial literacy. Students should analyse their racial experiences rather than focus on what they already know about race and racism. Using white emotionality to explore race-beliefs and experiences is a more effective racial literacy practice than just a class discussion or two regarding race/racism. Once an established practice, racial literacy becomes a life-long process of self-exploration and societal examination (Grayson 2018)). Another racial literacy practice is the development of the counternarrative. Because whiteness education mythologises history, counternarratives illuminate and challenge those stories. Racial literacy then becomes a theoretical, methodological, and pedagogical component of the anti-racist, social justice classrooms (Solórzano and Yosso 2001).

Methodology

I undertook a qualitative framework analysis of fifth-grade and eighth-grade social studies content standards from New Mexico and Texas to understand whether the state standards used whiteness language, what racial themes emerged from the analysis, and whether using racial literacy could improve the language. No two states could be further apart than Texas and New Mexico in terms of wealth, population, and politics. Both states also have differing attitudes regarding their shared and diverse past. However, I chose the two states because of their shared history, culture, boundaries, and borders that predate European Americans' arrival. I selected fifth- and eighth-grade social studies because the subject is US History.

Texas and New Mexico approach education differently but spend similar amounts of money per student. In 2016, the total spending per student in Texas was $9016 and $9693 in New Mexico, with instructional spending per student in Texas at $5514 and $5418 in New Mexico (Education Spending per student by State 2020). While Texas institutions, education, and politics have fully embraced whiteness ideology, New Mexico attempts diversity within its institutions, education, and politics by recognising contributions made by indigenous cultures, European nations, notably Spain, and the United States. The Texas Education Agency (TEA) oversees K12 public education, and according to its website, 'Public education is big business in Texas' (Texas Education Agency Welcome & Overview, 2020, para2). The Texas Education Agency (TEA) website provides abundant information regarding the structure, history, and development of public education in Texas. In contrast, the New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED) website emphasises current programmes and provides instructional resources to educators, parents, and administrators. The website also has links to indigenous instructional materials, a Culturally Responsive Teaching PDF document, and a rubric for 'Vetting Multiculturalism and Cultural Responsiveness in Instructional Materials' (Resources and Information – New Mexico Public Education Department 2020).

K12 education in the United States has five elementary (primary) grades and seven secondary grades. Elementary schools typically house grades one through five, while secondary grades consist of two separate campuses, middle school (grades 6–8) and high school (grades 9–12). Across the country, US History is typically taught in 5th, 8th, and 11th grades, and US Government is taught one semester in the 12th grade. The US History taught in 5th-grade classrooms in Texas roughly spans 450 years from 1565, the founding of St. Augustine, Florida, to the present day. New Mexico's 5th grade US history timeline predates European colonisation to include North American indigenous cultures and concludes in the 21st century. Both states' 8th-grade historic timeline spans roughly 270 years from the founding of Jamestown in 1607 through the end of Reconstruction in 1877.

Data was collected and analysed from both states' currently adopted social studies content standards using MaxQDA data analysis software. The websites for downloading PDF copies of the content standards can be found in Appendix A. The New Mexico Social Studies Standards (2009) divides into four strands, History, Geography, Civics and Government, and Economics. The strands, further divided into benchmarks, are often written as a measurable learning objective. The number of benchmarks within a strand varies, as does the list of content standards within each benchmark. The content standards, categorised by grade, are often written as measurable learning objectives. There are 176 New Mexico social studies standards for grades 5, 6, 7, and 8.

The Texas social studies standards for Grade 5 and Grade 8 are divided into two sections, Introduction, and Skills and Knowledge. The introduction provides an overview of the historical timeframe, the US cultural symbolisms students must know, students' learning skillset mastery, students' understanding of the free-market economy, and information about Celebrate Freedom Week. The Skills and Knowledge section contains nine categories, History, Geography, Economics, Government, Citizenship, Culture, Science, Technology & Society, and Social Studies Skill. The content standards, written like measurable learning objectives, include additional specific knowledge and skills students need to know within a particular section. The 5th grade has 106 content standards, while the 8th grade has 125 standards.

A coding matrix (See Appendix A) using Delgado & Stefancic's (2017) five CRT tenets and Bonilla-Silva's (2018) four 'colorblind' frames provided a satisfactory method for identifying whiteness themes. Using the matrix allowed me to identify texts with the CRT themes of Interest Convergence, Race is Ordinary, Race is Property, Legitimacy of Knowledge by People of Colour, Place Race and Racism in Context. I listed the 'colorblind' themes in the matrix as Race Proof Naturalisation, Cultural Racism, Individualism, Minimisation of Race.

Selective coding was employed to capture data within content standards relating to any of the matrix thematic variables. Additional codewords are references to capitalism/free-market/westward expansion, individualism, colonisation, and religion. Finally, the use of code words like 'race/racism,' 'indigenous,' 'slavery,' 'African Americans,' 'Latinx,' 'Asian' determined race literate language. Then axial coding was employed to determine connections or relationships between the variables. Ultimately, the 231 Texas social studies standards received 422 codes, while the 113 New Mexico standards received 264.

Because the language of whiteness is silent, deeper thematic analysis was needed. Therefore, definitions of CRT and the 'colorblind' frames provided by Delgado and Stefancie (2017), Bonilla-Silva (2018), as well as Smith's (2012) descriptions for the colonisation of history were placed in the matrix to define the intersection between a particular CRT tenet and 'colorblind' frame (See Appendix A). For example, the intersection between 'Race is ordinary' and 'Individualism' is defined as 'whiteness is the universal race.'¹ Another example of 'Individualism,' this time intersecting with 'Legitimacy of knowledge by people of color,' is defined as 'white knowledge is individual, but BIPOC knowledge is collective.'² These intersecting definitions provided racialised interpretations of the silence in whiteness language. Appendix B includes screenshots of the results of the selective and axial coding of the Texas content standards inputted into MaxQDA software, while Appendix C is screenshots of the selective and axial coding results for New Mexico.

Findings

The general picture emerging from this analysis is that colour-evasive and non-racist themes and language are detectable when using CRT-framed analysis. I identified the silent schooling of whiteness in Texas and New Mexico content standards based on the higher usage of certain words and themes over others. The higher use of words like ‘religion,’ ‘individuals,’ and ‘Capitalism’ over words like ‘slavery,’ ‘indigenous,’ and ‘African American’ indicate whiteness interest in specific topics over others. The Texas content standards language provides evidence of whiteness interest in capitalism and property ownership over human rights. Capitalism and property ownership are important in New Mexico content standards, too, but there are attempts with culturally responsive language. Interestingly, even that language contains bias. While there is an attempt to include the cultures and experiences of indigenous peoples in the northern part of the state, there are no references to the cultures and experiences of the Mexican Americans living along the border in the southern half of the state.

Texas content standards coding frequency

The Texas social studies content standards provided 105 examples of the whiteness narratives that ignore race, 96 examples of the CRT tenet of interest convergence, reflecting European American attitudes, beliefs, values, and morals, and 42 examples of the CRT themes show race as property (see Table 1). Other CRT themes include: Race is ordinary (61 examples), legitimacy of knowledge by people of colour (39 examples), and placing race and racism in context (28 examples). There are 85 examples of ‘colorblind’ themes of cultural racism reinforcing stereotypes about minoritised cultures (see Table 1). Other ‘colorblind’ themes included 52 examples of individualism and 28 examples of

Table 1. Texas content standards: matrix coding themes & code word frequency.

CRT Themes	Number of Examples
Interest Convergence	96
Race is Ordinary	61
Race as Property	42
Legitimacy of Knowledge by People of Colour	39
Placing Race & Racism in Context	28
‘Colorblind’ Themes	Number of Examples
Race-Proof Naturalisation	105
Cultural Racism	85
Individualism	52
Minimisation of Race	24
Code Words	Number of Examples
Economics (Capitalism, Free Market, Westward Expansion)	64
‘Religion’	18
‘Slavery’	9
‘Race’	4
‘African American’	2
‘American Indian’	2

minimisation of race. Sixty-four code words reference economic growth, i.e., capitalism, free-market economy, and westward expansion, while the code word 'slavery' was referenced nine times. The code word 'religion' had 18 references, but the word 'race' was used four times. The words 'African Americans' and 'American Indians' appeared twice each. There were no direct references to Latinx, particularly Mexican or Asian cultures.

The data shows a direct connection between economic topics and examples of interest convergence. Of the 20 definitions, ten became common themes in the content standards and are listed in Table 2. Notably, there were 51 examples of whiteness language, 43 examples of mythological whiteness history, and 26 examples of the standards promoting European American values, beliefs, and knowledge. Additionally, the non-racist, colour-evasive language described whiteness as the universal race (23 examples), European American actions are not racially motivated (20 examples), and economic or class status has nothing to do with race (19 examples).

New Mexico standards coding frequency

Although New Mexico standards were written in a more culturally responsive language, there are 73 examples of the race proof 'colorblind' themes, 63 examples of interest convergence themes, and 34 examples of economic codewords of 'capitalism,' 'free market,' and 'westward expansion' (see Table 3). Other CRT themes include 29 examples

Table 2. Texas content standards: ten most frequent matrix definitions.

Matrix Definitions	Number of Examples
• Whiteness is in full display and invisible at the same time.	51
• The founding of the white nation is a myth when told as raceless.	43
• White history establishes universal values, beliefs, and knowledge.	26
• Whiteness is the universal race.	23
• White people's actions are raceless; creating blank spaces in the historical narrative.	20
• Race has nothing to do with economic or class status.	19
• Missing are meaningful representations of BIPOC groups	15
• Property rights vs. human rights.	14
• White knowledge is individual; BIPOC knowledge is collective.	13
• Genocide, racism, and oppression are viewed as aberrations rather than the norm.	12

Table 3. New Mexico content standards: matrix coding themes & code word frequency.

CRT Themes	Number of Examples
Place Race & Racism in Context	29
Race as Property	10
Legitimacy of Knowledge by People of Colour	6
'Colorblind' Themes	Number of Examples
Cultural Racism	25
Minimisation of Race	11
Individualism	6
Code Words	Number of Examples
Economics (Free Market, Capitalism, Westward Expansion)	34
American Indian (Native Americans, tribal governments)	21
European Colonisation	11
Religion	6
Slavery	4
Race	3
African Americans	2

of placing race and racism in context, ten examples of race as property, and six examples of knowledge legitimacy of people of colour. There were no examples of the CRT tenet that race is ordinary. Examples of colorblind frames include 25 examples of cultural racism, 11 examples of minimisation of race, and six examples of individualism. There were 26 examples of culturally responsive or race literate language in the New Mexico standards compared to the seven examples in the Texas standards. Twenty-one standards made references to either Native Americans or tribal governments; however, there are only two references about African Americans and no references about Mexican, Latinx, or Asian cultures. There are four references about slavery and the codeword ‘race’ mentioned three times. There are six codeword references to ‘religion’ and 11 references to either European colonisation or European Americans.

Table 4 show the frequency of nine of the 20 intersecting definitions between CRT tenets and ‘colorblind’ frames. The definition, ‘Whiteness, is on full display and invisible at the same time,’³ intersects the ‘colorblind’ frame of race-proof naturalisation and CRT tenet, interest convergence, and was identified 47 times. Examples of non-racialised actions of European Americans appear in 16 standards; history told as a white myth were in 13 standards, and European American guidelines for universal values, beliefs, and knowledge appeared at least 12 times. While the New Mexico standards show less frequency of whiteness language, an additional bias was revealed in culturally responsive language about northern New Mexico indigenous cultures while ignoring the southern New Mexico border cultures.

Coded language differences between the state standards

Language differences between the two states also helped reveal whiteness language in the content standards. I illustrated the whiteness language examples in this section using italicised font, while culturally responsive or race literate language appears in bold font. Whiteness language assumes readers understand that US History is the narrative about European American history. For example, the 5th grade Texas standards require students to ‘identify reasons people moved west’ (History (4)(C)) without making clear exactly which people moved west. In contrast, the New Mexico 8th grade standard reads, ‘provide a historic overview of patterns of population expansion into the west by the many diverse groups of people (e.g., Native Americans, European Americans and others) to include movement into the southwest along established settlement, trade, and rail routes’ (Geography Strand. Content Standard II. 2-A.8.2).⁴

Table 4. New Mexico content standards: Nin most frequent matrix definitions.

Matrix Definitions	Number of Frequencies
• Whiteness is in full display and invisible at the same time.	47
• White people’s actions are raceless, creating blank spaces in the historical narrative	16
• The founding of the white nation is a myth when told as raceless.	13
• White history establishes universal values, beliefs, and knowledge.	12
• Race has nothing to do with economic or class status.	10
• Diverse cultures often shown as the background props to the white narrative.	7
• White knowledge is individual; BIPOC knowledge is collective.	6
• No context between white colonisation and current societal issues.	6
• Genocide, racism, and oppression are viewed as aberrations rather than the norm.	4

The 8th grade New Mexico standards about the ‘successes and failures of the reforms during the age of Jackson’ requires students to describe the ‘extension of franchise to all white men, Indian removal, the Trail of Tears, the Long Walk and the abolition movement’ (History Strand. Content Standard I. 1-B.8.4. a, b, c) while the Texas 8th grade standard requirement reads: ‘explain the impact of the election of Andrew Jackson, including expanded suffrage; analyse the reasons for the removal and resettlement of Cherokee Indians during the Jacksonian era, including the Indian Removal Act, Worcester v. Georgia, and the Trail of Tears’ (History (5) (F)(G)). Both states identify the expansion of European American male voting rights as historically noteworthy. Only New Mexico specifically identifies white men as the recipients and includes the abolition movement at the end. Texas remains vague about the expansion of voting rights to African Americans, Native Americans, and women, as evidenced in the 5th-grade standard, ‘describe various amendments to the US Constitution such as those that extended voting rights of US citizens’ (Citizenship (20)(B)).

Both states differ in the historical emphasis on the topic of European colonisation. New Mexico 5th grade has several standards that require students to ‘explain the reasons for European exploration of the Americas’ (History Strand Content Standards I, Benchmark 1-A, 5.1), ‘explain the motivations for the European exploration of the Americas’ (History Strand Content Standards I, Benchmark 1-B, 5.1), ‘identify the interactions between American Indians and European settlers, including agriculture, cultural exchanges, alliances and conflicts (e.g., the first Thanksgiving,⁵ the pueblo revolt,⁶ French and Indian war)’ (History Strand Content Standards I, Benchmark 1-B, 5.4). The standard ‘describe how the introduction of slavery into the Americas, and especially the United States’ (History Strand Content Standards I, Benchmark 1-B, 5.5) is interesting because it makes the distinction between the United States as a nation and the hemisphere of America continents. These types of distinctions are rare. Another form of whiteness language is coopting ‘American’ to mean United States residents when technically anyone living in the Americas are Americans.

The 5th New Mexico standards for European exploration and colonisation also require students to ‘describe the characteristics of early societies’ and describe the ‘development of slavery as a widespread practice that limits human freedoms and potentials’ (History Strand Content Standards I, Benchmark 1-C, 5.1 & 5.4). In contrast, in the 5th grade Texas standards, European colonisation begins in 1565 with the founding of St. Augustine, Florida. Students are required to ‘explain when, where, and why groups of people explored, colonised, and settled in the United States, including the search for religious freedom and economic gain; and describe the accomplishments of significant individuals during the colonial period’ (History (1)(A)(B)). The significant individuals named are primarily religious white British colonists, so it can be assumed the reference that exploration and colonisation by ‘groups of people’ are British, Spanish, and occasionally French groups.

While there are differences between both states recognising indigenous North American cultures, language similarities using the CRT tenet, interest convergence implies that European Americans’ attitudes, beliefs, and morals are the same for all cultures. Several examples in both state content standards use language to omit racial references when mentioning US or American residents. The omission is particularly revealing in the New Mexico content standards, especially when culturally responsive content standards recognise Native Americans. For example, New Mexico Benchmark 1-B, 8.5, tells students to ‘describe, explain and analyse the aims and impact of western expansion and the settlement of the United States to include: American belief in manifest destiny and how it led to the Mexican War and its consequences.’ Furthermore, Benchmark 2-D, 8.1, ‘explain and describe how the movement of people impacted and shaped western settlement’ as opposed to the more culturally responsive standard that reads ‘provide a historic overview of patterns of population expansion into the west by the many diverse groups of people (e.g., Native Americans, European Americans, and others)⁷ to include movement into the southwest along established settlement, trade, and rail routes’ (Benchmark 2-A, 8. 2).

Other examples of interest convergence that contributes to mythologising American history in the New Mexico content standards include, ‘identify and describe the significance of American symbols, landmarks, and essential documents’ (Content III, Benchmark 3-A, 5.3), ‘explain the significance and importance of American customs, symbols, landmarks, and celebrations’ (Content III, Benchmark 3-B, 5.1), ‘Explain how the development of symbols, songs, traditions and concepts of leadership reflect American beliefs and principles’ (Content III, Benchmark 3-B, 8.1). The interest convergence language provides race-proof narratives that support whiteness by never mentioning BIPOC Americans’ narratives and histories. The race-proof narratives also establish universal values, beliefs, and knowledge from a European American perspective. For example, the 5th grade (Economics (13)(E)) standards read ‘explain the impact of American ideas about progress and equality of opportunity on the economic development and growth of the United States.’ An 8th-grade standard (History (3)(C)) states, ‘describe how religion and virtue contributed to the growth of representative government in the American colonies.’ An awkwardly written standard in the New Mexico 5th grade standards attempts to appear diverse but is Euro-centric. ‘Describe . . . colonists’ and Native Americans’ shared sense of individualism, independence and religious freedom that developed before the revolution’ (Benchmark 3-C, 5.1.a). This standard assumes that the quest for individualism, independence, and religious freedom are characteristics of all North American indigenous peoples, too.

Assumptions that all cultures share the same values as European Americans also imply whiteness as the universal race. The universality of whiteness removes notions of racial discourse from the historical stories. The absence of race dialogues turns historical accounts into mythologies about the founding of the United States. The introduction to the Texas standards states, ‘Students examine the American beliefs and principles (and) . . . examine the rights and responsibilities of the citizens of the United States’ as goals, among others, for the social studies content standards. Value-added language in standards read ‘evaluate the contributions of the Founding Fathers as models of civic virtue’ (Citizenship (20)(A)), and ‘analyse the leadership qualities of elected and appointed leaders of the United States . . .’ (Citizenship (22)(A)). Also located in the 8th grade Texas Citizenship standards is an objective for students to analyse civil disobedience using only the Boston Tea Party and Henry David Thoreau’s refusal to pay tax as examples.⁸

The standards reveal that European American knowledge is individual, but BIPOC Americans’ knowledge is collective. The content standards from both states separate the actions of specific European American ‘heroes and heroines’ from the group efforts by BIPOC Americans. The Texas content standards have a Culture content strand that has several standards that expect students to identify, explain or describe ‘various racial, ethnic and religious groups,’ however in the History, Government, and Citizenship content strands, students are expected to ‘explain the roles played by significant individuals such as,’ with the names of the individuals listed.’ New Mexico employs the same methods of lumping cultural groups together, ‘explain the role of African Americans; purpose and effect of the emancipation proclamation,’ while selecting ‘the contributions and roles of major individual’ throughout specific nation-building eras.

New Mexico provides more possibilities for race-literate content standards. For example, New Mexico Benchmark 3-D states that students should ‘explain how individuals have rights and responsibilities as members of social groups, families, schools, communities, states, tribes and countries’ while specifically telling 5th graders to ‘explain the meaning of the American creed that calls on citizens to safeguard the liberty of individual Americans within a unified nation, to respect the rule of law and to preserve the constitutions of local, state, tribal and federal governments’ (Content Standards III, Benchmark 3-D, 5.1). An 8th standard reveals a more race literate standards that read: ‘understand the multiplicity and complexity of human rights issues’ (8.2). The New Mexico Strand, Civics, and Government expect students to understand governmental functions at the ‘local, state, tribal and national levels.’ In the Texas standards, culturally responsive or race literate content standards are confined to the Cultural Strand that expects students to understand ‘relationships between and among people from various groups, including racial, ethnic and religious groups during the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries’ (Culture, (23)).

Discussion and conclusion

When considering a qualitative framework analysis using critical language from CRT tenets, Bonilla-Silva’s (2018) Four Frames of ‘Colorblind’ Racism, and Smith’s (2012) decolonising methodologies, the invisible whiteness language becomes detectable. Using critical language in this research became a whiteness decoding guide for me. Having the ability to decode whiteness language is significant because, as Kendi (2019) noted, there is no continuum between being a racist or anti-racist. Actions, or nonactions, are either racist or anti-racist, never both. Ignoring whiteness language is a racist act, while anti-racist actions seek to identify and disrupt whiteness language.

From this study, an important finding becomes quite clear. Using critical language as analysis tools identified silent whiteness language. As a European American researcher, I could easily identify and decode whiteness language and uncover a wealth of information. The silent schooling of whiteness appeared below the surface of non-racial language in social studies content standards from Texas and New Mexico. Analysis of the language revealed a strong link between interest convergence and capitalism. Other whiteness themes included European liberalism and individualism, historical facts as mythology, whiteness as an ethnicity, and silence on BIPOC American knowledge and stories. There was too much information to unpack for one article, so I focused on two themes that best answered the research questions. The first theme is valuing capitalism and property ownership over human rights. The second theme is the profound silence about Mexican peoples from two former Mexican territories with a large Latinx population.

In response to the first research question, the whiteness language in the social studies standards sanctioned racist policies that upheld capitalism. Learning about economic practices and human rights should not be mutually exclusive. However, the whiteness agenda promoting capitalism also silenced human rights issues. For example, promoting the economic development in Colonial America silenced the human rights issues about the economic practice of slavery. The inability to discuss both becomes a zero-sum illusion that wealth is more important than life. Similarly, focusing on westward expansion without mentioning indigenous genocide shifts students' gaze to property ownership rights instead of human rights. Students internalise the whiteness message that pursuing wealth is preferable to respecting life. Studying the economic benefits for the 'American belief in Manifest Destiny' instead of learning how lives were uprooted and destroyed from those beliefs is another example of whiteness indoctrination.

Further, the language requires teachers to perform the racist act of remaining silent whiteness gatekeepers. The whiteness standards intentionally make it difficult for history teachers to create a culturally responsive and anti-racist learning community (Chandler and Branscombe 2015). In April 2021, the Idaho legislature passed a bill restricting education about racism and sexism (Jones 2021). Visible flashes of the whiteness grip on education are reoccurring messages of European Americans remaining in control of the narrative.

The second research question asks what, if any, racial themes emerge from the social studies content standards language. There were few culturally responsive racial themes. The few themes that did appear were backdrops to the whiteness conquest, colonisation, and economic expansion narrative. The infrequency of BIPOC Americans in the standards upholds the whiteness notion of their lack of influence in US History except to support 'American beliefs and principles.' Having lived in both states, I find the silence in social studies content standards about Mexican peoples astounding. The Mexican American culture is influential in both states and dominant in cities like San Antonio, Texas, or regions like the Rio Grande Valley and Southern New Mexico. I did not expect many references about Latinx peoples but never anticipated no references. New Mexico's silence is particularly puzzling given the culturally responsive language and education resources about the tribal nations in the northern part of the state. Hesitantly, I cynically suggest the culturally responsive language originates from the lucrative tourism economy, New Mexico's third primary economic industry, that equals the military and petroleum industries.

The third question helped identify how using critical language informs racial literacy practices for examining whiteness language. This study used CWS and critical language to centre whiteness ideology in the content standards language. The study's findings reflect the successful use of CRT language for analysing whiteness in education. Introducing CRT as praxis in teacher education programmes could help preservice teachers examine whiteness. Even more important, the teacher education programmes advocating anti-racist praxis could end their complacent involvement in racist whiteness education policies. The majority of K12 educators are European American women uncomfortable discussing race and racism (Young 2010). Many are race-ignorant and assume that being colour-evasive and non-racial means being anti-racist. Developing an educated race-consciousness helps European American teachers become aware of the need for anti-racist and racial literacy instructional methods (Martell 2015). As the nexus between racist policies and education, teacher education programmes need to move away from whiteness education towards social justice, anti-racist, and culturally relevant education.

The limitations of this research include a short research period spanning 16 weeks. Also, the risk for data analysis bias is moderately high due to the positionality of the single researcher. Future studies should continue exploring methods for uncovering and decoding whiteness language in all content standards and curricula. Other studies could examine strategies to develop European American awareness of whiteness education. But most importantly, further research into how to disrupt racist teacher education programmes that perpetuate whiteness education.

This study was consistent with previous research centring whiteness in curriculum and instruction (Leonardo 2009; Unzueta and Lowery 2008). Colour-evasive and non-racial language in education promotes the whiteness economic agenda to normalise capitalism's pursuit for wealth at the expense of human rights. For this indoctrination to be successful, ethnic narratives are removed, which means European Americans must adopt whiteness as their new ethnic identity. At the same time, BIPOC Americans' ethnicities become marginalised and vanish from the whiteness narratives supporting capitalist expansion.

Because it is relatively easy to identify the silent schooling of whiteness using CRT language, it is also possible to replace that language using racial literacy methods like counternarratives and culturally relevant language. The former US presidential administration encouraged an open and ugly whiteness revival. However, now is the perfect opportunity for European Americans to look in the mirror at that ugliness. And many are. Teacher education programmes cannot remain slow in implementing anti-racist social justice education. Now is a golden opportunity for anti-racist educators to capitalise on the current whiteness movement by actively challenging its narrative.

Notes

1. Adapted from Smith's (2012) Decolonising Methodologies, p. 31.
2. Adapted from Delgado and Stefancic (2017) Critical Race Theory: An Introduction
3. Adapted from Bonilla-Silva's (2018) Racism without racism: Colour-blind racism and the persistence of racial inequality in america. 5th edition. Lanham, Maryland: The Rowman & Littlefield Publishing Group, Inc.
4. The content standards for both states ignore they were once territories of Mexico. While this narrative is included in state history curricula (taught in 7th grade), remaining silent in the states' US History curricula creates huge gaps in the narratives. According to the 2010 US Census, in Texas, 40% of the population is Latinx while 49% in New Mexico.
5. A regional historical event not found in other states' US history content standards, El Paso, Texas and New Mexico claims the first Thanksgiving occurred on 30 April 1598 on the banks of the Rio Grande River (now an international boundary between Mexico and US) between Spanish explorer Juan de Oñate's expedition and the Mansos peoples.
6. Another unique historical event not found in other states' US history standards. The Pueblo Revolt of 1680 successfully overthrew the Spanish rule in northern New Mexico for 12 years. The revolt organised by many Pueblo communities was the result of almost 100 years of tyranny by despotic men like Juan de Oñate.

7. African Americans, Mexican Americans (Latinx), and Asian Americans contributions are silenced here.
8. Both actions were by European American men for economic purposes, although Thoreau's protest against the Mexican War was a bit more altruistic.
9. Adapted from Smith's (2012) Decolonising Methodologies. London: Zed Books Ltd.
10. Adapted from Bonilla-Silva's (2018) Racism without racism: Colour-blind racism and the persistence of racial inequality in america. 5th edition. Lanham, Maryland: The Rowman & Littlefield Publishing Group, Inc.
11. Adapted from Delgado & Stefancic's (2017) Critical race theory: An introduction. 3rd edition. New York: New York University Press.

Disclosure statement

No potential conflict of interest was reported by the author(s).

Funding

The author(s) reported there is no funding associated with the work featured in this article.

ORCID

Patricia S. McClure  <http://orcid.org/0000-0001-8328-5846>

References

- Annamma, S. A., D. D. Jackson, and D. Morrison. 2017. "Conceptualizing Color-evasiveness: Using Dis/ability Critical Race Theory to Expand a Color-blind Racial Ideology in Education and Society." Race Ethnicity and Education 20 (2): 147–162. doi:10.1080/13613324.2016.1248837.
- Applebaum, B. 2016. Critical Whiteness Studies. Oxford Research Encyclopedia of Education. Retrieved 19 April 2020 <https://oxfordre.com/education/view/10.1093/acrefore/9780190264093.001.0001/acrefore-9780190264093-e-5> ..
- Barnes, M. E. 2017. "Practicing What We Preach in Teacher Education: A Critical Whiteness Studies Analysis of Experiential Education." Studying Teacher Education 13 (3): 294–311. doi:10.1080/17425964.2017.1365701.
- Bigler, E., J. Shiller, and L. Willcox. 2013. "The Reaching of Race and Class in American Social Studies Classrooms." In The Status of Social Studies: Views from the Field, edited by J. Passe and P. Fitchett, 153–168. Charlotte: Information Age.
- Bonilla-Silva, E. 2018. Racism without Racists: Color-Blind Racism and the Persistence of Racial Inequality in America. Fifth ed. Lanham, Maryland: Rowman & Littlefield Publishers.
- Branch, A. 2003. "A Look at Race in the National Standards for the Social Studies: Another Bad Check." In Critical Race Theory Perspectives on Social Studies: The Profession, Policies, and Curriculum, edited by G. Ladson-Billings, 99–122. Greenwich, CT.: Information Age Publishing.
- Byrne, M. M. 2001. "Uncovering Racial Bias in Nursing Fundamentals Textbooks." Nursing and Health Care Perspectives 22 (6): 299–303.
- Chandler, P. T., Ed. 2015. Doing Race in Social Studies: Critical Perspectives. A Volume in Teaching and Learning Social Studies. Charlotte, NC: Information Age Publishing.
- Chandler, P. T., and A. Branscombe. 2015. "White Social Studies: Protecting the White Racial Code." In Doing Race in Social Studies: Critical Perspectives, edited by P. T. Chandler, 61–88. Charlotte, NC: Information Age.

- Chandler, P. 2009. "Blinded by the White: White Teachers, Social Studies and Raceless Pedagogies." Journal of Educational Thought 43 (3): 259–288.
- Choi, J. 2008. "Unlearning Colorblind Ideologies in Education Class." Educational Foundations 22: 53–71. <http://search.ebscohost.com.librarylink.uncc.edu/login.aspx?direct=true&db=eric&AN=EJ857639&site=ehost-live>
- Decuir, J., and A. Dixson. 2004. "'So When It Comes Out, They Aren't Surprised that It Is There': Using Critical Race Theory as a Tool of Analysis of Race and Racism in Education." Educational Researcher 33 (5): 26–31. doi:10.3102/0013189X033005026.
- Delgado, R., and J. Stefancic. 2017. Critical Race Theory.: An Introduction. 3rd ed. New York: NYU Press.
- DiAngelo, R. 2011. "White Fragility." International Journal of Critical Pedagogy 3 (3): 54–70.
- DiAngelo, R. 2016. What Does It Mean to Be White? Developing White Racial Literacy (Revised). New York: Peter Lang Publishing.
- Dowling, F., and A. Flintoff. 2018. "A Whitewashed Curriculum? The Construction of Race in Contemporary PE Curriculum Policy." Sport, Education and Society 23 (1): 1–13. doi:10.1080/13573322.2015.1122584.
- Education Spending per student by State*. (2020). "Governing: The Future of States and Localities ." Retrieved 10 February 2020, from <https://www.governing.com/gov-data/education-data/state-education-spending-per-pupil-data.html>
- Feagin, J. 2020. The White Racial Frame: Centuries of Racial Framing and Counter-framing. New York: Routledge Kindle Edition.
- Flintoff, A., and F. Dowling. 2019. "I Just Treat Them All the Same, Really': Teachers, Whiteness and (Anti) Racism in Physical Education." Sport, Education and Society 24 (2): 121–133. doi:10.1080/13573322.2017.1332583.
- Frankenberg, R. 1997. Displacing Whiteness: Essays in Social and Cultural Criticism. Durham, NC: Duke University Press.
- Garner, S. 2007. Whiteness: An Introduction. New York: Routledge.
- Gay, G. 2018. Culturally Responsive Teaching: Theory, Research, and Practice (Multicultural Education Series). Third ed. New York: Teachers College Press.
- Giroux, H. A. 1997. "Rewriting the Discourse of Racial Identity: Towards a Pedagogy and Politics of Whiteness." Harvard Educational Review 67 (2): 285–320. doi:10.17763/haer.67.2.r4523gh4176677u8.
- Gonzales, N. A., and A. M. Cauce. 1995. "Ethnic Identity and Multicultural Competence: Dilemmas and Challenges for Minority Youth." In Toward a Common Destiny: Improving Race and Ethnic Relations in America, edited by W. D. Hawley and A. W. Jackson, 131–161. San Francisco: Jossey-Bass.
- Gordon, J. 2008. "Inadvertent Complicity: Colorblindness in Teacher Education." Educational Studies 38 (2): 135–153. doi:10.1207/s15326993es3802_5.
- Grayson, M. L. 2018. Teaching Racial Literacy: Reflective Practices for Critical Writing. Lanham, Maryland: Rowman & Littlefield Publishers.
- Hawkman, A. M. 2020. "Swimming in and through Whiteness: Antiracism in Social Studies Teacher Education." Theory and Research in Social Education 1–28. doi:10.1080/00933104.2020.1724578.
- Helms, J. E. 1994. "The Conceptualization of Racial Identity and Other 'Racial' Constructs." In Human Diversity: Perspectives on People in Context, edited by E. J. Trickett, R. J. Watts, and D. Birman, 285–311. San Francisco: Jossey-Bass.
- Hiraldo, P. 2010. "The Role of Critical Race Theory in Higher Education Payne Hiraldo." The Vermont Connection 31: 53–59.
- Howard, T. 2003. The Dis(g)race of the Social Studies: The need for racial dialogue in the social studies. Critical Race Theory Perspectives on Social Studies: The Profession, Policies and Curriculum, edited by G. Ladson-Billings, 27–44. Greenwich, CT: Information Age Publishing.
- Johnson, L. 2018. "Reflections on Teaching the Wire: Developing a Radical Pedagogy." Radical Teacher 112 (112): 6–15. doi:10.5195/rt.2018.343.

- Jones, B. (2021). "Students Protest Restrictions on Racism, Sexism in Idaho School Curricula." Retrieved 15 April 2." IDEDNEWS.org:<https://www.idahoednews.org/top-news/students-protest-proposed-restrictions-on-racism-sexism-in-idaho-school-curricula>
- Kendi, I. 2019. How to Be an Antiracist. One World Kindle Edition https://www.amazon.com/gp/product/B017QL8WV4/ref=kinw_myk_ro_title .
- King, J. 1991. "Dysconscious Racism: Ideology, Identity, and Miseducation of the Teachers." The Journal of Negro Education 60 (2): 133–146. doi:10.2307/2295605.
- King, L., J., and P. T. Chandler. 2016. "From Non-racism to Anti-racism in Social Studies Teacher Education: Social and Racial Pedagogical Content Knowledge." In Rethinking Social Studies Teacher Education in the Twenty-First Century, edited by A. R. Crowe and A. Cuenca, 3–20. Switzerland: Springer International Publishing. doi:10.1007/978-3-319-22939-3.
- King, M. L., Jr. 1967. Where Do We Go from Here: Community or Chaos? Boston, MA.: Beacon Press.
- Ladson-Billings, G. 1998. "Just What Is Critical Race Theory and What' S It Doing in a Nice Field like Education?" International Journal of Qualitative Studies in Education 11 (1): 7–24. doi:10.1080/095183998236863.
- Ladson-Billings, G. 2003. Lies My Teacher Still Tells. Critical Race Theory Perspectives on Social Studies: The Profession, Policies and Curriculum, G. Ladson-Billings. Greenwich, CT: Information Age Publishing, 1–11 .
- Leonardo, Z. 2009. Race, Whiteness and Education. New York: Routledge.
- Lipsitz, G. 2019. "The Sounds of Silence: How Race Neutrality Preserves White Supremacy." In Seeing Race Again: Countering Colorblindness across the Disciplines, edited by K. Crenshaw, L. C. Harris, D. M. HoSang, and G. Lipsitz, 23–51. Oakland: University of California Press.
- Martell, C. C. 2015. "Learning to Teach Culturally Relevant Social Studies: A White Teacher's Retrospective Self-study." In Doing Race in Social Studies: Critical Perspectives, edited by P. T. Chandler, 41–60. Greenwich, CT: Information Age Publishing.
- McKenney, S., and T. C. Reeves. 2018. Conducting Educational Design Research. 2nd Edition. New York: Routledge.
- Meier, D., and G. Wood. 2004. Many Children Left Behind: How the No Child Left behind Is Damaging Our Children and Our Schools. Boston: Beacon Press.
- Merriam, S. B., and E. J. Tisdell. 2016. Qualitative Research: A Guide to Design and Implementation. 4th Edition. San Francisco, CA: Jossey-Bass.
- National Council for the Social Studies. 2010. National Curriculum Standards of Social Studies: A Framework for Teaching, Learning and Assessment. Silver Springs, Maryland: National Council for the Social Studies.
- New Mexico Public Education Department. (2020). "Resources and Information." 13 February 2020 from the website <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/instructional-materials/resources-information>
- New Mexico Social Studies Standards: The website. (2009. . Retrieved 20 January 2020: https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/wp-content/uploads/2018/01/SocialStudiesStandards_5-8.pdf .
- Omi, M., and H. Winant. 2015. Racial Formation in the United States. New York: Routledge Kindle Edition.
- Phinney, J. S. 1996. "When We Talk about American Ethnic Groups, What Do We Mean?" American Psychologist 51 (9): 918–927. doi:10.1037/0003-066X.51.9.918.
- Rothenberg, P. S. 2002. White Privilege: Essential Readings on the Other Side of Racism. New York: Worth Publishers.
- Rumbaut, R. 1996. "Prologue." In Origins and Destinies: Immigration, Race, and Ethnicity in America, edited by S. Pedraza and R. Rumbaut, xvi–xix. Belmont, CA: Wadsworth.
- Skerrett, A., and A. Hargreaves. 2008. "Student Diversity and Secondary School Change in Context of Increasingly Standardized Reform." American Educational Research Journal 45 (4): 913–945. doi:10.3102/0002831208320243.
- Sleeter, C. E. 1994. "White Racism." Multicultural Education 1 (4): 5–8.
- Sleeter, C. 2002. "State Curriculum Standards and the Shaping of Student Consciousness." Social Justice 29 (4): 8–25.

- Smith, L. T. 2012. Decolonizing Methodologies. London: Zed Books.
- Solórzano, D. G., and T. J. Yosso. 2001. "Critical Race and LatCrit Theory and Method: Counter-storytelling." International Journal of Qualitative Studies in Education 14 (4): 471–496. doi:10.1080/09518390110063365.
- Southern Poverty Law Center. (2020). "Teaching Tolerance." Retrieved 14 February 2020, from <https://www.tolerance.org>
- Tate, S. A., and D. Page. 2018. "Whiteness and Institutional Racism: Hiding behind (Un)conscious Bias." Ethics and Education 13 (1): 141–155. doi:10.1080/17449642.2018.1428718.
- Texas Education Agency (2020) "Welcome and Overview." 12 February 2020 <https://tea.texas.gov/about-tea/welcome-and-overview>
- Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills for Social Studies: The website. (2018). , Retrieved 20 January 2020, from <http://ritter.tea.state.tx.us/rules/tac/chapter113/index.html>
- Unzueta, M. M., and B. S. Lowery. 2008. "Defining Racism Safely: The Role of Self-image Maintenance on White Americans." Journal of Experimental Psychology 44 (14): 91–97.
- Valenzuela, A. (2005). "Leaving Children Behind: How "Texas-style" Accountability Fails Latino Youth". Albany: State University of New York Press. Retrieved 09 March, 2020, from <https://www.hepg.org/her-home/issues/harvard-educational-review-volume-77-issue-1/herbooknote/leaving-children-behind-how-texas-style-accountability>
- Vasquez-Heilig, J. V., K. D. Brown, and A. L. Brown. 2012. "The Illusion of Inclusion: A Critical Race Theory Textual Analysis of Race and Standards." Harvard Educational Review 82 (3): 403–424. doi:10.17763/haer.82.3.84p8228670j24650.
- Vetter, A., and H. Hungerford-Kressor. 2014. "'We Gotta Change First': Racial Literacy in a High School English Classroom." Journal of Language & Literacy Education 10 (1): 82–99.
- Willinsky, J. 1998. Learning to Divide the World: Education at Empire's End. Minneapolis, MN: University of Minnesota Press.
- Wills, J. 2001. "Missing in Interaction: Diversity, Narrative, and Critical Multicultural Social Studies." Theory and Research in Social Education 29 (1): 43–64. doi:10.1080/00933104.2001.10505929.
- Winans, A. 2010. "Cultivating Racial Literacy in White, Segregated Settings: Emotions as Site of Ethical Engagement and Inquiry." Curriculum Inquiry 40 (3): 475–491. doi:10.1111/j.1467-873X.2010.00494.x.
- Young, E. 2010. "Challenges to Conceptualizing and Actualizing Culturally Relevant Pedagogy: How Viable Is the Theory in Classroom Practice?" Journal of Teacher Education 61 (3): 248–260. doi:10.1177/0022487109359775.
- Zinn, H. 1990. A People's History of the United States. New York: Harper & Row.

Appendices

Appendix A. Coding Matrix

Theoretical Construction of the Coding Matrix

Four Frames of 'Colorblind' Racism Definitions (Bonilla-Silva 2018)

- (1) Individualism is a consumer, business-oriented concept that supports property rights, free trade, capitalism over human rights.
- (2) Race proof narratives (Naturalisation) explains away race and racism.
- (3) Cultural racism provides stereotypical arguments to explain the standing of minorities in society.
- (4) Minimisation of race disconnects current societal issues from historical events. Suggests today is a post-racial society.

Critical Race Tenets Definitions (Delgado and Stefancie 2017)

- (1) Racism is ordinary through the practice of meritocracy, colorblindness, and liberalism.

- (2) Interest convergence are the attitudes, beliefs, values and morals shared by the majority of people in a given society.
- (3) Race is a social construct and Whiteness as property.
- (4) Centrality of experiential knowledge recognises that the knowledge of people of colour is legitimate.
- (5) Transdisciplinary perspective offers CRT curriculum integration in education by placing race and racism into historical and contemporary context.

The Colonising Purpose of Western History Definitions (Smith 2012)

- (1) Discursive knowledge that creates classification systems, rules of practice, and methods for western science, thought, and the rule of law.
 - (a) Guidelines to establish universal values, beliefs, and knowledge.
 - (1) A story of linear development and an official chronology of historical events.
 - (2) Representation of human progression from primitive to civilised.
 - (3) A chart for human development of morality, emotions, and intellect.
 - (4) One narrative.
 - (5) Neutral, innocent, and unbiased information.

Social Studies Content Standards Websites

- (1) Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills for Social Studies: <http://ritter.tea.state.tx.us/rules/tac/chapter113/index.html>.
- (2) New Mexico Social Studies Content Standards: https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/wp-content/uploads/2018/01/SocialStudiesStandards_5-8.pdf

Appendix B. Screenshots of Texas Content Standards Selective and Axial Coding (MaxQDA)

Appendix C. Screenshots of New Mexico Content Standards Selective and Axial Coding (MaxQDA)

Colorblind Frames	Individualism	Race-proof Naturalisation	Cultural Racism	Minimalization of Race
CRT Tenets
Race is Ordinary	Whiteness is the universal race. ⁹	Race is explained as abnormal. ¹⁰	White history provides guidelines to establish universal values, beliefs, and knowledge. ¹	Genocide, racism and oppression are viewed as aberrations in our history rather than the norm. ¹
Interest	Convergence	Benevolent actions by white leaders towards diverse cultures benefit white society and economy, i.e. whiteness history is patriarchal. ¹	Whiteness is in full display and invisible at the same time. ²	The story of the founding of the white nation is a myth when told as raceless. ¹
One group of individuals (i.e.	slaveowners) are responsible for racial crimes rather than revealing the systematic racism and oppression of the entire nation building process. ²
Race as Property	Property rights vs human rights. ¹¹	Race has nothing to do with economic or class status. ²	Establishes 'Otherness' to promote white ideals: whiteness vs blackness, freedom vs slavery, wealth vs poverty. ¹	There are plenty of opportunities for people of colour if they get out there and hustle for it. ³
Legitimacy of knowledge by people of colour	White knowledge is individual, but BIPOC knowledge is collective. ¹	Missing in the content are meaningful representation of historical actions and interactions of diverse groups. ³	Lack of information about ethnically diverse people, issues, cultures, and experiences imply that they are not only irrelevant but expendable. ¹	Knowledge from people of colour is minimized, and crudely represented and simplified. ¹
Place Race and racism into historical and	contemporary contexts	No context between white colonisation and current societal issues. ²	Actions of white people have nothing to do with race; creating blank spaces in the historical narrative. ²	Minimalization of language to 'protect' people of colour. The linear development in white history also represents human progression from primitive to civilised. ¹
Diverse cultures are often shown as the background props to the white narrative. ¹

Code System	Gr...	Gr...	SUM
Texas Codes
A			0
A1. Whiteness is the universal ra			23
A3. White history provides guide			26
A4. Genocide, racism and oppre			12
B			0
B1. Benevolent actions by white			2
B2. Whiteness is in full display an			50
B3. The story of the founding of			43
C			0
C1. Property rights vs human rig			14
C2. Race has nothing to do with			19
C3. Establishes 'Otherness' to pr			7
C4. There are plenty of opportur			2
D			0
D1. White knowledge is individu			13
D2. Missing in the content are m			15
D3. Lack of Diverse History			9
D4. Knowledge from people of c			2
E			0
E2. Actions of white people have			20
E4. Diverse cultures are often sh			8
Colonization references			6
Immigrants			6
European Countries			7
Diverse Group reference			10
Diversity Attempt			5
Diversity			1
Economics			43
Expansion			7
Capitalism/Free Market/Free Ent			14
Individualism			19
Racial Literate Content Standards			7
Race			4
Indigenous Cultures			2
African Americans			2
Slavery			2
Religion			18
SUM	131	289	420

Code System	Texas	A	A1...	A3...	A4...	B	B1...	B2...	B3...	C	C1...	C2...	C3...	C4...	D	D1...	D2...	D3...	D4...	E	E2...	E4...	In...	Eur...	Dive...	Dive...	Eco...	Exp...	Cap...	Ind...	Raci...
A1. Whiteness is the universal ra
A3. White history provides guide
A4. Genocide, racism and oppre
B1. Benevolent actions by white
B2. Whiteness is in full display and r
B3. The story of the founding of
C1. Property rights vs human right
C2. Race has nothing to do with
C3. Establishes 'Otherness' to pr
C4. There are plenty of opportant
D1. White knowledge is individual, I
D2. Missing in the content are m
D3. Lack of Diverse History
D4. Knowledge from people of col
E2. Actions of white people have n
E4. Diverse cultures are often sho
Immigrants
European Countries
Diversity Attempt
Diversity
Expansion
Capitalism/Free Market/Free Entry
Individualism
Indigenous Cultures
African Americans
Slavery
Religion
SUM	0	0	100	104	51	8	3	183	174	4	69	183	45	18	0	40	94	64	9	9	77	27	2	17	17	42	14	1	135	19	44	28	26

Code System	Soci...	SUM
New Mexico Codes		0
Frame A		0
A3. White history provides guide		12
A4. Genocide, racism and oppre		4
A1. Whiteness is the universal race.		1
Frame B		0
B2. Whiteness is in full display ai		47
B3. The story of the founding of		13
B4. One group of individuals (i.e		2
Frame C		0
C2. Race has nothing to do with ecc		10
Frame D		0
D1. White knowledge is individu		6
Frame E		0
E2. Actions of white people have		16
E4. Diverse cultures are often sh		7
Colonization References		11
European Countries		9
Immigrants		1
Diverse Group Reference		3
Diversity		3
Diversity Attempt		0
Economics		26
Capitalism/Free Market/Free Ent		3
Expansion		3
Individualism		22
Racial Literate Content Standards		26
Race		3
African Americans		3
Slavery		4
Indigenous Cultures		21
Religion		6
SUM	262	262

Code System	Ne.	Fr...	A3...	A4...	A1...	Fr...	B2...	B3...	B4...	Fr...	C2...	Fr...	D1...	Fr...	E2...	E4...	Col.	Exp...	Ind.	Rac.	Race	Afr.	Slav.	Ind.	Rel.
New Mexico Codes
Frame A
A3. White history provides guide							12
A4. Genocide, racism and oppress							4
A1. Whiteness is the universal race.							1
Frame B
B2. Whiteness is in full display and							47
B3. The story of the founding of th							13
B4. One group of individuals (i.e. si							2
Frame C
C2. Race has nothing to do with econo							10
Frame D
D1. White knowledge is individual,							6
Frame E
E2. Actions of white people have n							16
E4. Diverse cultures are often shou							7
Colonization References
European Countries							9
Immigrants							1
Diverse Group Reference
Diversity							3
Diversity Attempt							0
Economics
Capitalism/Free Market/Free Enter;							3
Expansion							3
Individualism							22
Racial Literate Content Standards
Race							3
African Americans							3
Slavery							4
Indigenous Cultures							21
Religion							6
SUM	0	0	26	7	0	0	74	38	6	0	24	0	13	0	27	20	19	9	1	3	2	0	27	3	23	43	6	9	8	25	11

[EXTERNAL] Public comment on the new social studies standards

Elizabeth Tidrick <etidrick@montedelsol.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

As a teacher with 17 years of experience at both the college and high school level, I can say that, in my opinion, the most important aspect of teaching is to always lead your students towards learning the truth. The truth can never hurt or unfairly influence any student. These new social studies standards are so important because they speak to the truth. History should be the truth. Period. These standards have been very thoughtfully redesigned by teachers with decades of experience. I encourage everyone to uphold our state's education system in its push to teach the truth for all communities of our state.

[EXTERNAL] Reject the proposed Social Studies Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

Dianne Coane <dcoane@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:39 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

John Sena
Policy Division
New Mexico Public Education Department (NMPED)
300 Don Gaspar Avenue
Room 121
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Mr Sena,

RE: Reject the proposed Social Studies Standards of 2021 NMAC 6.29.11

I am writing to urge you to reject these standards as they promote and may instill assumptions about race and inequality as the basis for America in our students. This progressive/liberal bias is not new. It stems from an ideology of Critical Race Theory (CRT). Critical race theory is destructive and rejects the fundamental ideas on which our constitutional republic is based. Applying the philosophy would violate a multitude of American civil rights by treating people differently according to race. It should not be elevated in American classrooms or in our military.

I urge NMPED to promote knowledge of civics, not social action and diversity training. Many schools around the country are spending significant amounts of money on so-called anti-bias training. Educators should focus on teaching how our government functions, the importance of constitutional rights, and the equal treatment under the law, as well as historical facts and content that prepares students for life after school.

Some of the most egregious new proposed standards include:

1. In Ethics, Cultural and Identity Studies, a requirement that students assess how social policies and economic forces "offer privilege or systemic inequity in accessing social, political, and economic opportunity." This standard assumes that there are only 2 choices.
6.29.11.23(A)(1)(d)
2. Throughout the entire social studies curriculum for K-8 grades, there is a continued focus on the differences, rather than the similarities, among various groups of people. This has the purpose of dividing people among various minority groups, which can quickly lead to victimhood.
3. There are also numerous examples where a teacher can impose the notion of "justice and fairness," unequal power relations, "past and current injustices," although those terms are open to many interpretations. These phrases are also pejorative as it perpetrates the sense of inequity in our society along racial lines. 6.29.11.11(E)(2) and 6.29.11.15(E)(7) and 6.29.11.15(E)(12)

4. Within High School U.S. History, numerous references, or preoccupation with slavery during the formation of America which echoes both CRT and the 1619 Project that slavery/racism is the foundation of American society. 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(b) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(d) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(e) and 6.29.11.21(A)(2)(k) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(f) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(g) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(h)

5. Within High School U.S. History, a requirement that students "evaluate what an efficient, equitable, and just economic system would look like in the U.S." This standard assumes that there is no such system in the US and it imposes the belief on students that our current capitalistic system must be eliminated to eliminate racism. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(i)

6. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to create an action plan for a more just and equitable America for diverse groups of people including Native Americans and African Americans. Embedded in this standard is the assumption that America and its founding principles are unjust and inequitable to various minority groups. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(kk)

7. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to understand how gender and sexuality norms were changing during Reconstruction and 1920s, as well as are required to examine the activities the LGBTQIA+ community during a recent 40-year period. Why is this a standard rather than an option? This standard imposes a liberal bias on students. 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(m) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(z) and 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(ll)

8. Within High School U.S. History, students are required to examine the past, present, and future of gun violence in the U.S. Of course, there are no standards provided to discuss the constitutional rights of gun owners, or that individuals, not an inanimate object, are responsible for gun violence in America or how gangs, drug cartels, etc. have resulted in greater gun violence in our society. 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(gg)

9. In the 5th Grade, students are required to describe how inequity in the U.S. laid the foundation for conflict that continues today. This standard pits race against race and stresses racial disparity and inequality. Again see the socialist class v. class assumption herein. 6.29.11.13(A)(3)(b)

10. Within High school U.S. History, students must examine the short-and long-term effects of CIA involvement in Latin America. Why? 6.29.11.21(A)(1)(x)

11. In the 7th Grade, students must compare the patterns of exploration, destruction, and occupation of the Americas by the Spaniards. How about the benefits of the occupation such as western civilization? 6.29.11.15(D)(3)(g)

12. Within High School U.S. History, students must explore the movement against police brutality. How about the movement Back the Blue? 6.29.11.21(A)(3)(mm)

Government funded bias has no place in our classrooms or our military, or in our country. I emphatically reject the overall progressive – even socialist- bias that these standards are intended to impose on our children and grandchildren.

Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Dianne Coane
18 Loma del Escolar
dcoane@gmail.com
505-660-1344

[EXTERNAL] Proposed social studies standards

Tyner <tyner@q.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:42 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

While I will be unable to attend today's zoom meeting, I wanted to let you know that I strongly support updating New Mexico's social studies standards per the Yazzie/Martinez v. State of New Mexico lawsuit and our Governor's position.

Thank you!

Craig

Craig Tyner
13516 Witcher Ave NE
Albuquerque, NM
tyner@q.com
505-294-5289
505-252-4217 cell

[EXTERNAL] Rule feedback

Brian McCollaum <brianmccollam1968@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:43 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Good afternoon,

I would implore the governing body to resist the urge to obscure history by deeming accurate, if discomfoting, FACTS about history be hidden or dissed in favor of a mythical notion of the US as somehow being free from problems on its history. We cannot progress as a nation or individual communities without seeing accurately our past, determining how it affects the present, to make plans to better our collective future. Please listen to reality and don't hobble our future by intentionally distorting the teaching history to placate a noisy but small few.

Respectfully,

Brian McCollaum
Aztec, NM

[EXTERNAL] Proposed repeal and replacement of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies

Patricia Bartels <pbartels8@comcast.net>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To: Mr. John Sena

Policy Division of NM PED

Dear Mr. Sena,

I am writing in support of the proposed changes to 6.28.11 NMAC, K-12 Social Studies standards.

The proposed new standards update the standards with the most recent education research, best practices for teaching, and ensure that New Mexico children are receiving the best education possible. It is past time to make these changes.

The false rhetoric and misinformation that is being shared by the GOP about the proposed curriculum - that it will indoctrinate students with a "false theology" and lead to a socialist system - is a false narrative. These arguments serve to foment further cultural divide and are an attempt to maintain the white dominant culture.

The new standards recognize the unique nature of our minority-majority state population. They align with the Yazzie lawsuit that curriculum must be culturally and linguistically relevant to our population school children - more than 70% of whom are kids of color. These changes will help to build bridges between communities while allowing for a diversity of views.

Teaching an accurate account of U.S. history and the historical impact of laws and practices that have created systemic oppression of People of Color is necessary to create a culture that recognizes and understands the historical racial injustices that have existed and continue to exist within our country. Every country has as part of its history, elements that "make it great" and elements that are shameful.

By asking students to apply a higher level of thinking about historical events (appropriate for their grade level) we enhance student's critical thinking skills far beyond simply memorizing names and dates and the contributions of a particular race, gender and caste of historical people.

These new standards for Social Studies will help our young people create a world where there is room for everyone and each person is valuable to the group. These civic values are important in teaching students important civic values and teach students how to think, not what to think, and help them be better citizens.

Respectfully submitted,

Patricia Bartels
1412 Silver Ave SW
Albuquerque, NM 87104

[EXTERNAL] Public comment on Social Studies standards update

Janet Nordmann <janetnordmann@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:50 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

After reviewing the proposed update to New Mexico's social studies standards I am impressed. Many years have passed since I went through the public school system. I believe I received a good education, but so much in the world has changed since that time. There is so much more information to be addressed - discoveries of the distant past, revelations of how one thing has impacted another over time, advancements in areas that impact people all over the world, developments in New Mexico and in the United States, political movements, societal changes.....

I am happy to endorse the proposed update. However, I do have a few concerns. One of my concerns has to do with the materials to be used. All materials for the various grade levels need to be vetted for factual accuracy and inclusiveness of details and viewpoints. Another concern has to do with teacher presentation of issues that might be considered to be inflammatory. I assume that today those individuals studying to become teachers are taught how to refrain from injecting their personal opinions/biases into the teaching of any subject matter. That is as it should be in the public school system. I sincerely hope that school districts throughout New Mexico review this concept on an annual basis. Even the teacher who has been in the field for 5, 10, or 20 years may need and appreciate the reminder. Today's political climate can make the career of teaching much more difficult than it was in my time as a teacher. Our teachers need the support of administration and the public so the future generations are productive, thoughtful citizens.

I recommend that updates to the social studies standards be done every 10 years in subject areas where significant events have occurred since the last update. The world changes rapidly. Waiting 20 years to do a major update is most likely a mistake.

Thank you,
Janet Nordmann,
Las Cruces

Sent from my iPad

[EXTERNAL] comment on proposed social studies standards

Paula Sabloff <psabloff@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please see my comment, attached.

--

Paula L.W. Sabloff, Ph.D.

External Faculty Fellow

Santa Fe Institute

1399 Hyde Park Road

Santa Fe, NM 87501

psabloff@santafe.edu

Testimony to the Department of Public Education
Paula LW Sabloff

Good afternoon. My name is Professor Paula Sabloff. I am an anthropologist and an External Faculty member at the Santa Fe Institute. I am also a mother of adult children who attended the Albuquerque public schools. Now I am a caring educator and grandmother.

I want to congratulate the PED and all the educators who worked to rewrite the social studies standards in such a meaningful way. I look forward to its passage, for I believe these new standards will make a big difference in our children's understanding of the world they live in and the world they will inherit as adults.

In this time of young people being bombarded with social media, the inquiry strand of the revisions is more important than ever. Students of all ages need to learn how to distinguish between facts and different interpretations of those facts. I was lucky to learn this from 2 sources: In 7th grade, we had a unit of evaluating so-called facts, especially in advertising campaigns. I am 76, and I still remember learning this.

Of course my most important teacher was my grandmother. She would sit in front of the TV when the old Chesterfield cigarette ads came on. They claimed that each cigarette had 20,000 filter traps. My grandmother would shout at the TV set: "Who is counting them?" Everyone should have a grandmother like mine. But since most people don't, the schools need to help children learn healthy skepticism. They need to learn how to ask—and judge—good questions. And they need to learn how to evaluate statements by taking into account the goals and perspectives of the people who are talking. By learning to evaluate speech and texts as well as videos, students will develop the tools to navigate their complex world.

We owe it to our children to prepare them for the world they live in and the world they will grow into. The Department of Public Education's proposed inquiry strand will help them prepare. I applaud you in featuring this strand among the others.

Thank you.

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards

Rebecca Olsen <music_s@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:51 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Just wanted to comment that I don't agree with the new standards. Is there somewhere I need to comment? I am a teacher in the GISD.

Thank you

Rebecca Olsen

Sent from Yahoo Mail for iPhone

[EXTERNAL] Re Social Studies Curriculum in NMSusan Schuurman <susanjschuurman@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:56 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To the NM Public Education Dept.

I would like to submit this public comment regarding the curriculum of social studies in our state.

I fully support that social studies should include and emphasize the unjust aspects of the founding of the United States, including enslaved peoples, land theft and genocide of Indigenous peoples, and racist structures in federal laws, as well as on the local levels with redlined housing. If we are to raise generations that will achieve equality under the law, then past and current institutionalized racism in this country's history must be taught, understood, analyzed, critiqued and acknowledged so the grave mistakes of the past will not be repeated in the future.

I wish I had not had to wait until I was an adult to gain a critical knowledge of U.S. history at the college level.

I fully support social studies curriculum that is not Euro-centric. I believe that is the intention of the current proposed curriculum.

This type of education will help foster generations of anti-racists and help dismantle white supremacy in this country. The founding documents contain language that holds up ideals of equality that have not been acted out in laws and policies. To achieve the goals of true equality we must acknowledge the inequality inherent and foundational from the beginnings of the United States' history. In a place like New Mexico, that has seen colonization by the Spanish and then the United States, this inclusive history is especially needed.

The United States is on a path of acknowledging hard truths about our history; the current climate of reactionary parents objecting to their children hearing the true history is not surprising but should not deter educational professionals from continuing to emphasize teaching children these hard truths and not sugar coating US history to stories that don't make White parents feel uncomfortable. Those myths about this country only perpetuate inequity and injustice.

Thank you,
Susan Schuurman
B.A. History, Calvin College
M.A. History, University of New Mexico
NM Resident
2112 Charlevoix NW
Albuquerque, NM 87104
susanjschuurman@gmail.com

[EXTERNAL] Comments on Social Studies Standards rlfeldman1949@gmail.com <rlfeldman1949@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:56 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Public Testimony November 12, 2021
Response to Proposed Social Studies Standards
By Rachel Feldman
#1 Via Bella
Santa Fe, NM 87507

My name is Rachel Feldman.

I want to thank the PED for launching this initiative, and I want to thank the many teachers who contributed their time, research, experience, heartfelt concern, compassion and respect for children in crafting the proposed standards. I support them whole heartedly.

We underestimate the intellect and insight of our children TO THEIR PERIL. Disagreements and conflict are real and evident everywhere. Children need to learn to navigate complexity, respecting differences of opinion and perspective, but standing up for their own interests WITHOUT FEAR.

I want to focus on the importance of identity in these standards. When I was in public school, my family was the only Jewish family in the elementary school, and one of three in the middle school, I heard repeatedly that “this is a Christian country”. It was the cold war and if you questioned US policy, you were labelled a communist. Many political leaders dealt with different perspectives by calling names. I have read most of the over 1400 pages of comments on these standards, and it appears little has changed. We need to get past name calling.

In school every Christmas was a challenge. Feeling excluded, I gathered my courage to tell my 3rd grade class that I was not a Christian and didn’t celebrate Christmas. I won’t ever forget the stares. Fortunately, my teacher invited me to explain what holidays my family celebrated, and that began a tradition of explaining being Jewish every year. Doing so, made me feel visible, like my heritage counted--I too am an American. As a parent, I made holiday presentations in schools, adding an invitation for children with non-Christian heritage to explain their ceremonies. It was fun and interesting. I never received negative feedback, and have had lots of people thank me, some saying it gave them the courage to stand up for themselves and their kids. Recognizing identity doesn’t say anything negative about anyone else. It makes everyone visible and valuable. Learning about and sharing traditions brings us closer together...it unifies us as human beings sharing a human community. It does not divide. The accusation that these standards will divide people and shame white children is wrong. The intention of these standards is the opposite.

Fear of the OTHER is part of human nature, but the American experiment confronts that fear. President Roosevelt facing world war and depression without clear outcomes, said “the only thing we have to fear is fear itself”. Fear is like COVID....it spreads rapidly, and it kills. These standards will give our kids skills and insights to face down fear, respect differences, navigate conflict, and stand up for themselves and others.

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards Feedback

Sara Weihausen <srs2905@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:56 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Greetings,

I reside in Alamogordo, NM and I am against the approval of the new Social Studies Standards.

Anti-racism actually teaches students to be racist. Inclusion only includes some. Communism is the underlying principle throughout these new standards. None of these concepts align with the truth of how our country was founded or how the majority feels that this country should be.

The new standards teach a slanted view of our history, as well as, teach our students to see themselves as either victim or oppressor.

Social emotional learning, or culturally responsive learning, is CRT and it does not belong in our schools.

Sara Weihausen

[EXTERNAL] attn: John Sena

Doris Moore <dgmoore2@q.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 12:59 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Since New Mexico rates extremely low in education compared to all other states in the U.S., instead of adding two new categories, we need to concentrate on history, geography, civics and economics!!

Only when our students excel in those areas, should we consider any changes.

Sincerely,

Doris H Moore

[EXTERNAL] New social studies standards for New Mexico's K-12 students

Elisa Gagliano <em.gagliano@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:06 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

To whom it may concern:

I hope this email finds you well. I have concerns about the proposals to change the ways social studies are taught in New Mexico's schools, because of the events of the last few years.

I am concerned that this call for new standards may have too much in common with the recent push from "progressives" to villainize Hispanics in New Mexico and the wider United States. I have observed this push and personally experienced it. It has been disturbing to see people using and condoning intolerance and violence. I expect this could intensify as America's Hispanic population grows.

It would be nice if people were more aware of how New Mexico has one of highest counts and percentages of Native Americans in the U.S. - and for much different reasons than Oklahoma has. And maybe if progressives in New Mexico had known about Vicente Villela[1,2], Hispanics' current economic standing [3], and the historical persecution of Hispanics [the Black Legend, for starters], then 2020 would have unfolded differently. But judging from current events in the news and my personal experiences, this is not the sort of factual information that progressives are interested in engaging with.

I hope my perspective will be considered.

Sincerely,
Elisa Gagliano

Sources:

1. <https://apnews.com/article/059f64f61b8d348611af6c6a00a71e4e>
2. <https://www.abqjournal.com/1466162/death-by-restraint-3-new-mexico-cases.html?amp=1>
3. <https://www.nmvoices.org/archives/5984>

[EXTERNAL] Feedback on Social Studies Standards

Susan Quass <rev.susan.q@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Cc: Bannerman, Vickie, PED <Vickie.Bannerman@state.nm.us>; Steinhaus, Kurt, PED <Kurt.Steinhaus@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Letter to Dr. Kurt Steinhaus

See attached PDF.

Rev. Susan Quass
(she/ella on Tewa / Pueblo Land)
1901 Buffalo Dancer Trail NE
Albuquerque, NM 87112
Rev.Susan.Q@gmail.com
505-290-7661 (cell)

Rev. Susan J. Quass
1901 Buffalo Dancer Trail NE, Albuquerque, NM 87112
505-290-7661 (c) Rev.Susan.Q@gmail.com

TO: Dr. Kurt Steinhaus, Secretary of Education
New Mexico Public Education Department

DATE: November 11, 2021

RE: Proposed Social Studies Standards

As a white person I call on New Mexico Public Education Department to direct schools to tell the whole history of my race. Shortcuts or omissions will diminish our children's education and their understanding of themselves and today's world.

My immigrant ancestors include a revolutionary war hero, an English indentured servant who became a wealthy agriculturalist, a peasant fleeing Ireland who became a miner of essential metals, and a freedom-seeking German who settled and farmed newly opened lands in the Midwest.

All these ancestors contributed to building this nation in significant ways.

Their contributions cannot be rightly understood, however, if lessons leave out the communities and conditions in which they lived. Civic, economic, cultural, racial, geographical, and gendered systems shaped how they navigated life.

My ancestors were participants in the systems and events of their day-just as you and I live within current systems. For decades in the 1700 and 1800s my people owned other human beings making great wealth off them. They gained a large and prosperous land holding through the (Indian) Removal Act of 1830. They safeguarded their white privilege by discriminating against Italians (who were considered non-white at the time) in housing during the 1940s and so much more.

Our children deserve to have the benefits of a robust education on the complex histories of all the peoples of our state. That includes critical thinking skills appropriate to their grade level to better understand the world, both historically and in the present. Therefore, I support the proposed social studies standards.

We would not dream of teaching our children outdated science or literature. We would never seek to deny them the latest achievements of human creativity and intellect. Why would we want to deny them the latest in the social sciences?

My white ancestors were human beings; a complex mixture of sinners and saints living within the constraints of intersecting hierarchical systems, and sometimes resisting them. So were the ancestors of all who live in New Mexico. Knowing this will strengthen self-awareness and mutual understanding in our children and therefore our community.

Teaching the whole truth is never wrong.

[end.]

Public Comment on Social Studies Standards

NMTOY, Alisa, PED <Alisa.NMTOY@state.nm.us>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:09 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

Hello! I write in support of the proposed updated Social Studies Standards. As a first grade teacher who has been incorporating the current standards into my six transdisciplinary units of inquiry, I find that proposed changes lend themselves much better to my and my students' explorations of the categories that fall under the umbrella of Social Studies. I also appreciate the guidance on Inquiry and Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity anchor standards. This will provide needed latitude in designing learning experiences with my students that allow them to see that their own backgrounds and current contexts are both relevant and a part of our living state of New Mexico. Most importantly, the proposed standards embed critical thinking skill development that my students can use throughout their lifetimes as our local, national, and global contexts evolve in history, economics, civics, and geography.

Again, I support these proposed standards and the opportunities it will open for my practice as an educator.

Alisa Cooper de Uribe (she/her/ella)
2021 New Mexico Teacher of the Year
Alisa.NMTOY@state.nm.us

[EXTERNAL] Updated New Mexico schools Social Studies curricula

H. G. Davis <davis.hg@gmail.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:14 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Dear NMPED,

Please oppose any and all theory and practice arising from so-called Critical Race Theory, which is a derivative of Marxist Critical Theory.

This includes preoccupation with: a) "diversity"--we are naturally diverse here, b) equity--which is NOT the same thing as the desirable equality we all strive for, c) "affinity groups"--actually classic segregation, d) identity--we are all human, New Mexicans and Americans or e) "oppressors" and "victims"--this is just too harmful to all involved and society on the whole to even describe; no one is forever defined by current class, name, race, ethnicity or appearance and should not be encouraged to believe they are.

Social, philosophical and political theories can be taught and compared in upper college years, after critical abilities are developed and refined and good reading skills are demonstrated. They should not be imposed on vulnerable, developing young people in K-12.

Likewise, gender identity does not belong in curricula or practice. Stress that everyone has a right to equal treatment in law, under rules and for grades regardless of race, sex, sexual orientation, political beliefs, gender, etc., and a responsibility to respect others.

Some things sound positive but turn out harmful. Please--no divisive, racist, traumatizing programs for our kids, no matter how okay they might sound at first.

Helen Davis
Grants NM

[EXTERNAL] Please pass the updated SS standards!

Dair Obenshain <dobenshain@cienaguas.org>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:17 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Hi, PED friends and colleagues,

Thank you for initiating the long-overdue update of our social studies standards. We all know that for way too long they have been very lopsided, and, frankly, inaccurate. Teachers need the support of good state standards to implement the curriculum that our students need.

I have heard that there is a lot of push-back, much of it from outside our state, attacking these. I'm sorry you're subjected to that. We all know that when those who have been very entitled start experiencing some equality from others, they generally fight back and call themselves oppressed. I'm sure you've heard the expression, "When you've been overly entitled, equality feels like oppression ..." but we know that it's not.

For our children to succeed, for all our children to succeed, they need to know that their experiences, and those of their families and cultures, are real, valid and appreciated.

Thank you so much for updating the standards, and for taking on this important work. Please count on me if you need support in implementing the fully multicultural, antiracist curriculum that our students and teachers desperately need.

Speaking as a proud graduate of Albuquerque Public Schools, many years ago, and a 20-year-veteran teacher in the public school system, thank you again,

Dair Obenshain

Dair Obenshain

(they/them/elle)

\(aprenda aquí cómo usar pronombres no binarios\)\(Learn the importance of using people's proper pronouns\)\(Lindo video de una niña de primaria sobre los pronombres/ beautiful video of an elementary-school girl about pronouns\)

Maestre de música

Escuela internacional Cien Aguas

[EXTERNAL] Social Studies Standards

Gail Wheeler <gailwid@yahoo.com>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:21 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

I would like to add my voice in support of the updated standards for Social Studies in New Mexico. I have been a teacher for over twenty years, certified and highly qualified in Social Studies and English/Language Arts, and I know that our children are being short changed with the current curriculum. Many misinformed parents are objecting to these standards based on their misunderstanding of and objections to CRT. I am asking that you all stand strong against this trend and implement the new standards. Not only is much of our current curriculum factually incorrect, it is also very outdated and slanted to favor the native English language speakers in our state. I urge you to adopt the new standards, listen to the educated voice of teachers in the state, and do the right thing for all of our children.

Gail Wheeler

ELA Teacher, Centennial High School, Las Cruces

[EXTERNAL] Fw: Comments on Proposed NM Social Studies Standards

Blanchard, Rosemary A <rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu>

Fri 11/12/2021 1:24 PM

To: FeedBack, Rule, PED <Rule.FeedBack@state.nm.us>; Costales, Jacqueline, PED <Jacqueline.Costales@state.nm.us>; Martinez, Severo, PED <Severo.Martinez@state.nm.us>; Perea, Elaine, PED <Elaine.Perea@state.nm.us>; Burns, Anthony, PED <Anthony.Burns@state.nm.us>; Sena, John, PED <John.Sena@state.nm.us>; MacDonald, Heidi, PED <Heidi.MacDonald@state.nm.us>; Terrazas, Denise, PED <Denise.Terrazas@state.nm.us>

CAUTION: This email originated outside of our organization. Exercise caution prior to clicking on links or opening attachments.

Please accept the forwarded and attached comments on proposed rule to revise and replace New Mexico's Social Studies Standards. I am resubmitting them after making my submission last evening. I did attempt to also send written comments via Fax. However, both Fax attempts came back "Busy/no answer." Therefore I decided to re-submit the emailed comments with proof of delivery and to key policymakers.

Thank you for your hard work on this important work to make New Mexico's social studies standards incorporate the histories, cultures and perspectives of our multiple communities, including the Indigenous nations among us.

With regard,
 Rosemary Ann Blanchard
 New Mexico Regional Representative
 Human Rights Educators USA

Rosemary Ann Blanchard
A grateful guest on Trwa land,
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 87104
 505-280-1245
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu

Peace and justice are two sides of the same coin.
Dwight D. Eisenhower

From: Blanchard, Rosemary A <rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu>
Sent: Friday, November 12, 2021 12:30 AM
To: rule.feedback@state.nm.us <rule.feedback@state.nm.us>
Subject: Comments on Proposed NM Social Studies Standards

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

INTRODUCTION AND STATEMENT OF SUPPORT:

I am writing as a retired educator, resident of New Mexico and current regional liaison with Human Rights Educators USA, a national network dedicated to building a culture of human rights (<https://hreusa.org>). HREUSA urges each state that takes up the serious task of social studies standards revision to pay particular attention to the importance of human rights education (HRE) in developing civics education that fosters participation in an inclusive, democratic society. The human rights friendly orientation is a tool for building school climates that value every student and provide opportunities for all students to engage with their school and community to create more equitable solutions to shared concerns.

I wish to share my support for the hard work New Mexico educators have undertaken to update the Social Studies Standards that will guide the education of New Mexico's children in the multiple disciplines that make up the social studies. In particular, I appreciate the attention given in the proposed standards to employing Inquiry as the primary method for students to explore the many civic, historical, economic, social, and cultural issues that they will address and have an impact on both during their time as students and throughout their adult lives as participants in the life of our state, nation, world. I applaud the attention given to the social studies of the Indigenous nations and communities situated in and near our state and to all our diverse cultural communities and their complementary, mutually challenging histories.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND CIVIC EDUCATION - BETTER TOGETHER

HREUSA has worked for many years to collaborate with and positively influence the work of major social studies organizations such as the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS, <https://www.socialstudies.org/>) and, more recently, the Educating for American Democracy project (<https://www.educatingforamericandemocracy.org/>). Indeed, HRE USA and EAD have collaborated on a short briefing paper on the important relationship between human rights and democracy. I am attaching a copy to the email that transmits this letter. In addition, you may find it at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1fwDUThvI8bDz_khS1yeZ082po2omHOin/view?usp=sharing).

In addition, HRE USA has supported the deep professional work undertaken within NCSS to incorporate human rights education into the social studies canon. We support the position statements adopted by NCSS that call for human rights education to be incorporated into social studies at every grade level through

“a comprehensive commitment and a coordinated plan of action to (1) recognize the importance of human rights education; (2) integrate human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices (<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education> and <https://www.socialstudies.org/social-education/79/3/human-rights-education-necessity-effective-social-and-civic-learning>).

Likewise, HRE USA applauds the references to human rights and social justice in the NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, which urge candidates to “reflect and expand upon their social studies knowledge, inquiry skills, and civic dispositions to advance social justice and promote human rights through informed action in schools and/or communities” so that they can “create collaborative and interdisciplinary learning environments, and prepare learners to be informed advocates for an inclusive and equitable society (Standards 5 and 4).”

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR EVEN BETTER SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS

As stated above, HRE USA New Mexico Region and I personally strongly support the work done by New Mexico educators to create more inclusive, honest social studies standards, which acknowledge the various ways different groups have experienced our history, participate in our economic life and engage with our civic institutions. It is important to address the pain and the progress of the United States’ nation building history. Only by facing, acknowledging and building upon all of our history and our contemporary differences and commonalities can we work with all of our people as we continue to “form a more perfect union.” I urge those working to finalize these standards not to be deflected from your commitment to build an inclusive, healing, forward looking social studies program.

As someone who has worked with or commented upon social studies standards revision projects in a number of states(California, Minnesota, Massachusetts, etc.), and a former legislative staffer (in Montana and in the Navajo Nation), I always look carefully at the text of any law or regulation and make recommendations to enhance the clarity and improve the focus of the text. I have done that with the Pre-Rule Draft of the NM Social Studies Standards, using in line editing features of Adobe Acrobat. The results are attached to the email that transmits this letter, and can also be found at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1LrGAFHdU6A1kLAhjhw_DRGoBuXYX1iIQ/view?usp=sharing .

Many suggested edits, particularly in the standards for primary and elementary grades, seek to guide students to an understanding of the fundamental principles of human rights through examples, activities and language that resonate with our youngest learners’ own experiences, using the performance standards already in the draft, with slight modifications or additions. There is more about human rights to be learned in the playground than almost anywhere else in school, and children, especially young children, have a natural understanding of fairness, especially as it applies to themselves. They understand better than many adults why fairness for all of us is best for each one of us.

NEED FOR AN ANCHOR STANDARD ADDRESSING HUMAN RIGHTS

One important recommendation to you in your finalization of the proposed social studies standards is that you more fully incorporate human rights themes and instructional practices into the final draft by adding an Anchor Standard that specifically addresses Human Rights. Human Rights are based on the fundamental principle, as expressed in the Preamble to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that

“recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world. (UDHR, Preamble)”

A possible location for an Anchor Standard on Human Rights is through the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies strand:

Anchor Standard [#]
Universal Human Rights Awareness

This can and should be augmented by adding language to Civics Anchor Standard 3, Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society.

Anchor Standard 3
Civic Dispositions and
Inclusive Principles For A
Pluralistic Democratic Society

These additions/changes to the Anchor Standards can then become the basis for incorporating human rights awareness and respect for the inherent dignity of every person into the performance expectations for students at every grade level, and into the culture of the schools where social studies are taught.

CONCLUSION AND THANK YOU.

Thank you for your work to build more inclusive, culturally aware social studies expectations for all of New Mexico's students. I trust that you will consider all the comments that you receive from every source and opinion. Then, I urge you to finalize the current draft as soon as possible so that all New Mexicans can employ a common standards framework for teaching our children and young people to value, participate in and work to improve their own communities, our shared community of New Mexico, our nation, and the global community as a whole. Please give attention to the specific recommended text edits incorporated into the marked-up copy of the Pre-Rule Draft included with these comments.

Please let me know if you wish any further clarification or expansion of these recommendations.

With regard,

Rosemary Ann Blanchard

Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D.
HRE USA NM Regional Representative
Associate Professor of Education Emeritus,
California State University Sacramento
Associate Professor of Social Sciences Retired
University of New Mexico Gallup
Research Lecturer III, Peace Studies, UNM
rblnchr@skymail.csus.edu

1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 887104
(505) 280-1245

Rosemary Ann Blanchard
A grateful guest on Tiwa land,
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 87104
505-280-1245
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu

Peace and justice are two sides of the same coin.
Dwight D. Eisenhower

Human Rights
Educators
USA

HRE USA New Mexico Regional Chapter
Rosemary Ann Blanchard, Regional Representative
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu; (505)280-1245
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW, Albuquerque, NM 87104

A national network dedicated to building a culture of human rights.

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., New Mexico Regional Representative, Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org)

TO: New Mexico Public Education Department, Office of the Secretary of PED, Office of Curriculum and Instruction, Office of Literacy and Humanities, Office of Policy and Legislative Affairs

SUBJECT: Comments and Recommendations on Draft NM Social Studies Standards Pursuant to Rulemaking Process for Proposed Repeal of 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies, to be Replaced With 6.29.11 NMAC, Social Studies.

SUBMITTED: November 12, 2021

INTRODUCTION AND STATEMENT OF SUPPORT:

I am writing as a retired educator, resident of New Mexico and current regional liaison with Human Rights Educators USA, a national network dedicated to building a culture of human rights (<https://hreusa.org>). HREUSA urges each state that takes up the serious task of social studies standards revision to pay particular attention to the importance of human rights education (HRE) in developing civics education that fosters participation in an inclusive, democratic society. The human rights friendly orientation is a tool for building school climates that value every student and provide opportunities for all students to engage with their school and community to create more equitable solutions to shared concerns.

I wish to share my support for the hard work New Mexico educators have undertaken to update the Social Studies Standards that will guide the education of New Mexico's children in the multiple disciplines that make up the social studies. In particular, I appreciate the attention given in the proposed standards to employing Inquiry as the primary method for students to explore the many civic, historical, economic, social and cultural issues that they will address and have an impact on both during their time as students and throughout their adult lives as participants in the life of our state, nation, world. I applaud the attention given to the social studies of the Indigenous nations and communities situated in and near our state and to all our diverse cultural communities and their complementary, mutually challenging histories.

HUMAN RIGHTS AND CIVIC EDUCATION – BETTER TOGETHER

HREUSA has worked for many years to collaborate with and positively influence the work of major social studies organizations such as the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS, <https://www.socialstudies.org/>) and, more recently, the Educating for American Democracy project (<https://www.educatingforamericandemocracy.org/>). Indeed, HRE USA and EAD have collaborated on a short briefing paper on the important relationship between human rights and democracy. I am attaching a copy to the email that transmits this letter. In addition, you may find it at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1fwDUThvI8bDz_khS1yeZ082po2omHOIn/view?usp=sharing).

In addition, HRE USA has supported the deep professional work undertaken within NCSS to incorporate human rights education into the social studies canon. We support the position statements adopted by NCSS that call for human rights education to be incorporated into social studies at every grade level through

“a comprehensive commitment and a coordinated plan of action to (1) recognize the importance of human rights education; (2) integrate human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices (<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education> and <https://www.socialstudies.org/social-education/79/3/human-rights-education-necessity-effective-social-and-civic-learning>).

Likewise, HRE USA applauds the references to human rights and social justice in the NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers, which urge candidates to “reflect and expand upon their social studies knowledge, inquiry skills, and civic dispositions to advance social justice and promote human rights through informed action in schools and/or communities” so that they can “create collaborative and interdisciplinary learning environments, and prepare learners to be informed advocates for an inclusive and equitable society (Standards 5 and 4).”

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR EVEN BETTER SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS

As stated above, HRE USA New Mexico Region and I personally strongly support the work done by New Mexico educators to create more inclusive, honest social studies standards, which acknowledge the various ways different groups have experienced our history, participate in our economic life and engage with our civic institutions. It is important to address the pain and the progress of the United States' nation building history. Only by facing, acknowledging and building upon all of our history and our contemporary differences and commonalities can we work with all of our people as we continue to "form a more perfect union." I urge those working to finalize these standards not to be deflected from your commitment to build an inclusive, healing, forward looking social studies program.

As someone who has worked with or commented upon social studies standards revision projects in a number of states(California, Minnesota, Massachusetts, etc.), and a former legislative staffer (in Montana and in the Navajo Nation), I always look carefully at the text of any law or regulation and make recommendations to enhance the clarity and improve the focus of the text. I have done that with the Pre-Rule Draft of the NM Social Studies Standards, using in line editing features of Adobe Acrobat. The results are attached to the email that transmits this letter, and can also be found at https://drive.google.com/file/d/1LrGAFHdU6A1kLAhjhW_DRGoBuXYX1ilQ/view?usp=sharing .

Many suggested edits, particularly in the standards for primary and elementary grades, seek to guide students to an understanding of the fundamental principles of human rights through examples, activities and language that resonate with our youngest learners' own experiences, using the performance standards already in the draft, with slight modifications or additions. There is more about human rights to be learned in the playground than almost anywhere else in school, and children, especially young children, have a natural understanding of fairness, especially as it applies to themselves. They understand better than many adults why fairness for all of us is best for each one of us.

NEED FOR AN ANCHOR STANDARD ADDRESSING HUMAN RIGHTS

One important recommendation to you in your finalization of the proposed social studies standards is that you more fully incorporate human rights themes and instructional practices into the final draft by adding an Anchor Standard that specifically addresses Human Rights. Human Rights are based on the fundamental principle, as expressed in the Preamble to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that

"recognition of the inherent dignity and of the equal and inalienable rights of all members of the human family is the foundation of freedom, justice and peace in the world. (UDHR, Preamble)"

A possible location for an Anchor Standard on Human Rights is through the Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies strand:

Anchor Standard [#]
Universal Human Rights Awareness

This can and should be augmented by adding language to Civics Anchor Standard 3, Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles, to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society.

Anchor Standard 3
Civic Dispositions and
Inclusive Principles For A
Pluralistic Democratic Society

These additions/changes to the Anchor Standards can then become the basis for incorporating human rights awareness and respect for the inherent dignity of every person into the performance expectations for students at every grade level, and into the culture of the schools where social studies are taught.

CONCLUSION AND THANK YOU.

Thank you for your work to build more inclusive, culturally aware social studies expectations for all of New Mexico's students. I trust that you will consider all the comments that you receive from every source and opinion. Then, I urge you to finalize the current draft as soon as possible so that all New Mexicans can employ a common standards framework for teaching our children and young people to value, participate in and work to improve their own communities, our shared community of New Mexico, our nation and the global community as a whole. Please give attention to the specific recommended text edits incorporated into the marked-up copy of the Pre-Rule Draft included with these comments.

Please let me know if you wish any further clarification or expansion of these recommendations.

With regard,

Rosemary Ann Blanchard

Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D.
HRE USA NM Regional Representative
Associate Professor of Education Emeritus,
California State University Sacramento
Associate Professor of Social Sciences Retired
University of New Mexico Gallup
Research Lecturer III, Peace Studies, UNM
rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu
1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW
Albuquerque, NM 887104
(505) 280-1245

[FROM: Rosemary Ann Blanchard, J.D., Ph.D., NM regional representative for Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org):
TO: NM Public Education Department: Email: rule.feedback@state.nm.us; Fax: 505-827-6520; Mail: Policy Division, PED, 300 Don Gaspar Ave., Santa Fe, NM 87501
Below are comments, annotations and specific language recommendations for the Draft NM Social Studies Standards published by NM PED as part of the proposed rule making for social studies standards revisions. The commentator has used the Draft, Pre-Rule Copy, because it is easier to enter specific language recommendations and comments on that document. Inquiries, etc. may be addressed to R.A. Blanchard at rblnchrd@skymail.csus.edu, 1727 Los Jardines Pl., NW, Albuquerque, NM 87104]

New Mexico Social Studies Standards

Table of Contents

Introduction	8
Kindergarten	14
Inquiry	14
Theme 1: Roles and Responsibilities	14
Theme 2: Myself and My Community	15
Theme 3: Needs and Wants	15
Theme 4: Spaces and Places	16
Theme 5: Social identity	16
First Grade	18
Inquiry	18
Theme 1: Living, Learning and Working Together	18
Theme 2: Cultures Within Our Communities	19
Theme 3: Making Choices	20
Theme 4: Interactions with Our Physical Environment	20
Theme 5: Multiple Identities	21
Second Grade	23
Inquiry	23
Theme 1: We the People	23
Theme 1: We the People (Continued)	24
Theme 2: Looking in Our Past	24

Theme 3: What We Make and Use	25
Theme 4: Cultures and Environment	25
Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions	26
Third Grade	28
Inquiry	28
Theme 1: Citizenship	28
Theme 1: Citizenship (Continued)	29
Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration	29
Theme 3: Global Issues and Events	30
Theme 4: Our Changing World	30
Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity	31
Fourth Grade	33
Inquiry	33
Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present	33
Theme 2: Migration and Settlement in New Mexico	34
Theme 3: New Mexico Trade and Industry	35
Theme 4: Resources and Land Use in New Mexico	35
Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity	36
Fifth Grade	38
Inquiry	38
Theme 1: Development and Establishment of U.S. Government	39
Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US	39
Theme 3: Human Rights and Economic Development	40
Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment	41
Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces	41
	2

Sixth Grade	44
Inquiry	44
Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking	45
Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures	46
Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations	47
Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations (Continued)	48
Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies	48
Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks	49
Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE–1300 CE	50
Seventh Grade	52
Inquiry	52
Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico	53
Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico (Continued)	54
Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE)	54
Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE)	55
Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE)	56
Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE)	58
Theme 6: The Mexican Period (1821 CE – 1850 CE)	59
Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE)	60
Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE)	61
Eighth Grade	64
6-8 Inquiry	64
Theme 1: Geography & Indigenous Peoples of North America	66
Theme 2: Age of Exploration and Exploitation (c. 1400 CE – c. 1500 CE)	67
Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE)	67

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE)	68
Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE – 1815 CE)	70
Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE – 1850 CE)	71
Theme 7: Sectionalism (1830 CE – 1860 CE)	72
Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE)	72
Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE)	73
Theme 10: Immigration and Industrialization (c. 1880 CE – 1920 CE)	74
HS Civics	77
Inquiry	77
High School Civics	78
High School Civics (Continued)	79
HS Economics	81
Inquiry	81
High School Economics	82
HS Geography	85
Inquiry	85
High School Geography	86
High School Geography (Continued)	87
HS New Mexico History	89
Inquiry	89
Theme 1: Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo	90
Theme 2: New Mexico’s Territorial Period	91
Theme 3: Statehood and Functions of State/Tribal Governments	92
Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars)	92
Theme 4: 1900s–1940s, (WWI, WWII and Between the Wars) (Continued)	93

Theme 5: New Mexico and the Cold War	93
Theme 6: Civil Rights	95
Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico	95
Theme 7: Economics and Industries of New Mexico (Continued)	96
Theme 8: Resource Management and Mineral Resources in New Mexico	96
HS U.S. History	98
Inquiry	98
Theme 1: U.S. Origins and Origin Stories	99
Theme 2: Early America: The American Revolution and Constitution	100
Theme 3: Westward Expansion, 1787–1876	100
Theme 4: Civil War, 1861–1865	102
Theme 5: Reconstruction, 1865–1877	103
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920	104
Theme 6: Rebuilding the United States: Industry and Immigration, 1865–1920 (Continued)	104
Theme 7: Imperialism, 1890–1920	105
Theme 8: Progressivism and World War I	105
Theme 9: Conflicts and Transitions, 1920–1929	106
Theme 10: Great Depression and The New Deal, 1929–1941	107
Theme 11: World War II	107
Theme 11: World War II (Continued)	108
Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975	108
Theme 12: The Cold War: 1945–1975 (Continued)	109
Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements	109
Theme 13: Civil Rights and People Power Movements (Continued)	110

Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008	110
Theme 14: Rise of Conservatism, 1968–2008 (Continued)	111
Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present	111
Theme 15: U.S. in a Global Age, 2008–Present (Continued)	112
HS World History	114
Sample Topics by Time Period	114
Sample Themes by Time Period	114
Inquiry	116
High School World History	117
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	121
Inquiry	121
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies	122

DRAFT - PRE COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE

Note from Rosemary Ann Blanchard, NM Regional Rep for Human Rights Educators USA (hreusa.org):

..

[The memo accompanying these textual comments begins with an introduction to Human Rights Educators USA and a thematic explanation of the need for the inclusion of Human Rights Education (HRE) in social studies, civics and cultural studies , then references position statements by the National Council for the Social Studies (NCSS) on HRE, Indigenous Education, LGBTQ+ equity, etc.and NCSS National Standards for the Preparation of Social Studies Teachers. The memo references the connection between Civics education for pluralistic democracy and Human Rights Education, referencing the Charter of the Council of Europe on Democratic Citizenship and Human Rights Education, and the flyer developed by Educating for American Democracy and Human Rights Educators USA stressing the intersection between human rights education and democratic civics education.]

..

[This document is written as comments on and recommendations for the Pre-Rule Social Studies Standards for Teachers published by the NM Public Education Department (https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/wp-content/uploads/2021/09/21-15540-Draft-NM-Standards-For-Teachers-PRE-RULE-VERSION-8_31_21-508-fmt.pdf) and includes a textual analysis and recommendations for specific wording in various sections of the Draft, using red comment boxes on the PED draft document.]

..

[Please note that comments appear in black type with brackets ([]) around them and suggested language for the standards appears in RED TYPE with quotation marks around them. Suggested new sections, anchor and performance standards begin with the word 'ADD:' followed by the proposed section in quotation marks.]

..

Introduction

Social studies is the integrated study of the social sciences and humanities to promote civic competence. Within the school program, social studies provides coordinated, systematic study drawing upon such disciplines as anthropology, archaeology, economics, geography, history, law, philosophy, political science, psychology, religion, and sociology, as well as appropriate content from the humanities, mathematics, and natural sciences. The primary purpose of social studies is to help young people develop the ability to make informed and reasoned decisions for the public good as citizens of a culturally diverse, democratic society in an interdependent world.

-Definition of Social Studies (National Council for the Social Studies)

“Democratic societies rely on high-quality social studies instruction, cultivating students who delve deeper into issues and problems that vex humankind” (Hatti, Stern, Fisher & Frey, 2020). A rigorous social studies education is necessary to prepare students for success in the 21st century and is critical for the health of our democracy. Foundational to a rigorous social studies education is a set of high-quality social studies standards.

However, in order for the standards to best be implemented, each district in the state must engage students in a rigorous and relevant K-12 social studies program. It will also require an articulated district curriculum which connects students to the social world through informed instructional experiences led by teachers who are committed to active civic participation. This represents a bold step toward a vision of social studies for all of New Mexico’s students.

Additional information can be found at <https://webnew.ped.state.nm.us/bureaus/instructional-materials/new-mexico-content-standards/>.

Overview of the Standards

New Mexico social studies standards, with anchor standards and performance standards, are mandated for students in grades K-12. The social studies standards include six strands: (1) civics and government, (2) economics, (3) geography, (4) history, (5) ethnic, cultural and identity studies, and (6) inquiry. The strands are organized by anchor standard. Anchor standards are the core ideas, at the heart of a discipline, to be implemented across a K-12 social studies program. Anchor standards establish the universal vision that defines what students should understand and be able to do, with increasing complexity as described in the performance indicators, each school year. Students get multiple opportunities to engage with anchor standards via the grade-level performance indicators. Anchor standards remain the same through all grades and courses. Anchor standards 1 through 21 are discipline-based, and anchor standards 22-26 are inquiry-based. Anchor standards are then unpacked via performance indicators. Performance indicators are specific grade-appropriate content to be mastered by the end of a specific grade. They are concise, written descriptions of what students are expected to know and be able to do at a specific stage of their education. They emphasize the essential knowledge and skills in each discipline.

There is need for an Anchor Standard or equivalent conceptual frame addressing Human Rights -- tied to Civics as well as ethnicity and race -- see EAD two-pager (it's three pages) on Civics and Human Rights Education
2244 of 2909

Each set of grade level standards begins with a set of inquiry standards. The inquiry standards define key skills within social studies. These standards are meant to be used in concert with the content standards throughout the course of study, whenever appropriate. How these standards are integrated into the curriculum is a school and classroom decision.

These standards were developed with the following guiding principles in mind:

- Incorporating major historical themes such as power, class conflict, struggle, geo political impact, social justice, equity and diversity through content standards designed to teach these topics in developmentally appropriate ways;
- Developing student agency and leadership, employability skills, critical thinking applied to histories, stories and the long-term impact of political decisions;
- Ensuring divergence from a singular Eurocentric cultural script ensuring equitable inclusion of accurate historical stories reflecting Indigenous, Hispano/Latino, Chicano, Mestizo, Genizaro, African American and other cultural perspectives;
- Identifying tools to share authentic stories including the study of relationship between power and oppression;
- Supporting the development of a strong critical historical consciousness representative of many perspectives while allowing students to maintain his/her/their own cultural integrity while learning about others;
- Empowering students to develop pride in his/her/their identity, history, culture, region by incorporating a community based approach while preparing students to be a part of a global environment;
- Utilizing historical events from a future focused orientation;
- Developing a future focused orientation that allows students to be critical thinkers in considering historical context in mending, healing, and transforming future interactions.

How to Read the Standards

Color Coding of the Standards

The standards are color-coded to allow for quick identification of the inquiry/content area of the standard.

Civics (Blue)	Economics (Yellow)	Geography (Green)	History (Purple)	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies (Orange)	Inquiry (Red)
-----------------------------	----------------------------------	---------------------------------	--------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------	-----------------------------

How to Read the Document

Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc). 7.15. Describe the relationships of tribal, state, and local governments with the national government under the federal system (tribal sovereignty, state constitutions, 3-branches of government, checks and balances, legislative process, etc).
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.16. Explain how tribal, state, and local government agencies work to sustain resources in New Mexico. 7.17. Discuss New Mexico's economic limitations, barriers to development, and successes. 7.18. Examine the pros and cons of economic development in New Mexico.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.19. Construct maps of New Mexico based on physical and cultural features using technology resources. 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. 7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics. 7.22. Use paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.23. Describe factors affecting location of human activities, including land-use patterns for local, regional, and state communities. 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted.

The K-8 standards and some high school standards are organized by theme.

The performance standard identifies what students should know and be able to do.

The standards are organized around anchor standards. Anchor standards outline key ideas within the social studies discipline.

Anchor Standards

The standards document is organized using a set of anchor standards. The purpose of anchor standards is two-fold. 1) They highlight key disciplinary concepts and ideas within social studies and 2) Create cohesiveness within the document by showing learning progressions from kindergarten to high school aligned to a set of anchor standards.

Civics	Economics	Geography	History	Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies	Inquiry
Anchor Standard 1 Civic and Political Institutions	Anchor Standard 5 Economic Decision Making	Anchor Standard 10 Geographic Representations and Reasoning	Anchor Standard 14 Historical Change, Continuity, Context and Reconciliation	Anchor Standard 19 Diversity and Identity	Anchor Standard 22 Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions
Anchor Standard 2 Processes, Rules and Laws	Anchor Standard 6 Incentives and Choices	Anchor Standard 11 Location, Place and Region	Anchor Standard 15 Cause and Consequence	Anchor Standard 20 Identity in History	Anchor Standard 23 Gather and Evaluate Sources
Anchor Standard 3 Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	Anchor Standard 7 Economic Systems and Models	Anchor Standard 12 Movement, Population and Systems	Anchor Standard 16 Historical Thinking	Anchor Standard 21 Community Equity Building	Anchor Standard 24 Develop Claims
Anchor Standard 4 Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	Anchor Standard 8 Money and Markets	Anchor Standard 13 Human- Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	Anchor Standard 17 Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	[Anchor Standard #] Universal Human Rights Awareness]	Anchor Standard 25 Communicate and Critique Conclusions
	Anchor Standard 9 Global Economy		Anchor Standard 18 Power Dynamics, Leadership and Agency		Anchor Standard 26 Take Informed Action

[Anchor Standards for Civics need to make clear that the "civic dispositions" being taught are civic dispositions appropriate to participation in an equitable, pluralistic democratic society. Civic dispositions can exist in regard to any system of government, whether democratic or autocratic. The Council of Europe has adopted a Charter on Education for Democratic Citizenship and Human Rights Education which encourages member states to implement measures to incorporate both "education for democratic citizenship" and "human rights education" into "the curricula for formal education at pre-primary, primary and secondary school level as well as in general and vocational education and training." Section III, Article 6. The National Council for the Social Studies has adopted position statements recognizing "the importance of teaching and learning about human rights 'from early childhood through advanced education and lifelong learning' and through 'Integrating human rights education into social studies curricula, schoolwide policies, and classroom practices; (<https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education>). "]

Anchor Standards for Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies need a Human Rights Awareness Anchor Standard . The National Council for the Social Studies, both in 2014 and 2021 has identified Human Rights Education as a necessary part of social studies education at every grade level. See <https://www.socialstudies.org/position-statements/human-rights-education> . Important in this context is teaching not only the Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples, but also including the Right to Culture under the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights -- a Human Rights Treaty ratified by the US since 1992 that guarantees the cultural rights of minorities, including Indigenous peoples.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Kindergarten

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.1. Recognize a compelling question. ● K.2. Identify the relationship between compelling and supporting questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.3. Construct responses to compelling questions using examples.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.4. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● K.5. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

ADD: "Demonstrate respect for others and fairness in constructing responses"

"while demonstrating growing awareness of respect for others and the fairness of actions considered"

Theme 1: Roles and Responsibilities
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.6. Communicate the purpose of rules. ● K.7. Explain how the rules help us work together.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● K.8. Identify the consequences of following and not following rules. ● K.9. Identify authority figures and describe their roles.

[Add: "Explain why rules should be fair to everyone and how fairness helps us work together."]

ADD: "Identify why it is important that rules are fair and why respectfully objecting to unfair rules can be important in a democracy."

ADD: "Identify who these authority figures have authority over. What is the role of a person in a democracy who is subject to the legitimate authority of an authority figure?"

Theme 2: Myself and My Community
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.10. Identify the local, state, and national symbols (e.g., flag, bird, song) ← ADD Performance standard: "Build respect for each other's important symbols"
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.11. Compare traditions found in communities over time. ← ADD; "Explore how to show respect for the traditions of different communities and groups."
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.12. Demonstrate an awareness of community leaders (teacher, principal, Mayor, Tribal Leaders) "and who are the members of the communities that these leaders are responsible for?"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.13. Sequence important events in your life. • K.14. Identify how individuals are similar and different. ← ADD: "Recognize how, despite our differences, every individual is similar in their right to be respected as a person."

Theme 3: Needs and Wants
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.15. Distinguish between a need (basic needs like food, clothing, and shelter) and a want.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.16. Identify examples of goods and services. • K.17. Explain what scarcity is and how scarcity affects the accessibility of goods and services.

Theme 4: Spaces and Places
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.18. Create maps of familiar areas, such as the classroom, school and community.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.19. Recognize and identify signs and symbols around their town and community and indicate location of places, people and things. • K.20. Identify the differences and similarities between a globe and a map. Explain the purpose of a map and/or globe.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.21. Explain why and how people move from place to place within a community. ← ADD: "Explore why people sometimes leave a community they belong to and why they may seek to become a part of a new community."

Theme 5: Social identity
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • K.22. Communicate a positive view of themselves and identify some of their group identities. • K.23. Describe ways they are similar and different from people who share their identities, and people who do not. • K.24. Identify how their family does things both the same as and different from how other people do things. • K.25. Describe their family history, culture, and past to current contributions of people in their main identity groups. ← ADD: "Demonstrate how our different identities and the identities of those around us need to be respected by all of us."

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

First Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard	Performance Standard:
The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.1. Explain why a compelling question is important. 1.2. Generate supporting questions related to compelling questions across the social studies disciplines.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.3. Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using examples. ← ADD: "Demonstrate respect for others and fairness in constructing responses."
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. 1.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms. ← "while demonstrating growing awareness of respect for others and the fairness of actions considered"

Theme 1: Living, Learning and Working Together
Anchor Standard	Performance Standard:
The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.7. Explain and provide examples of how people play important roles in society. ← ADD: "Explain why every member of society is important. Give examples of people whose importance to society is not always recognized or was not always recognized in the past."

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.8. Investigate how people work together to accomplish a common task and how this benefits and challenges people when working together. ADD: "Explore why it's important that people show respect for each other so they can more effectively work together"
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 2: Cultures Within Our Communities

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.9. Compare life in New Mexico in the past to life in New Mexico today.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.10. Compare fact and opinion in stories and narratives from the past. 1.11. Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among past, present, and future using family, school, or community events.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.12. Examine and identify cultural differences within a community. ADD: "Explore how cultural differences can lead to misunderstandings if they are not respected and how cultural differences can also make a community stronger for all"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 1.13. Investigate significant events, people, and observances in history, and discuss their effects on local and national communities. ADD: "Consider why different communities may have been affected differently by the various significant events in history you investigate?"

Theme 3: Making Choices
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.14. Examine choices that families make due to scarcity, and identify costs associated with these choices
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.15. Identify examples of a producer and a consumer. • 1.16. Examine how earning money through work is related to the purchase of goods and services. • 1.17. Examine decisions that people make about spending and saving money

Theme 4: Interactions with Our Physical Environment
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.18. Create geographic representations to identify the location of familiar places and demonstrate how these representations can help us navigate from one place to the next, provide directions, or trace important routes. • 1.19. Identify the common symbols used on maps for man-made structures and physical features. • 1.20. Use a variety of maps to locate specific places, and identify major landforms, bodies of water, and other places of significance around the United States.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.21. Explain how man-made structures are all examples of how people modify the physical environment to meet needs and wants.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1.22. Explain how people interact with their physical environment in ways that may have a positive or a negative effect on natural resources. ", on plants and animals, and on other people living in the same place."

Theme 5: Multiple Identities

Anchor Standard

The student demonstrates an understanding of:

Performance Standard:

Therefore, the student is able to:

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Standards 19. Diversity and Identity

- 1.23. Explain how groups of people believe different things and live in different and interesting ways.
- 1.24. Explain how student and individual identities are part of what makes each person unique and special.

ADD: "Explore how our differences in belief, way of life, family life, community membership, and identity contribute to making our whole community more interesting and how respect for these differences help us to become a stronger community."

DRAFT - PRELIMINARY COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Second Grade

Inquiry		ADD: "Use the social studies disciplines to explore compelling questions about fairness within and among communities and individuals."
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.1. Explain why a compelling question is important. ● 2.2. Generate supporting questions across the social studies disciplines related to compelling questions.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.3. Determine if a source is primary or secondary and distinguish whether it is mostly fact or opinion.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.5. Take group or individual action to help address local, regional, and/or global problems. ● 2.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms
		", while demonstrating growing awareness of respect for others and the fairness of actions considered."

Theme 1: We the People
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.7. Evaluate how American society has changed through rules and laws ● 2.8. Understand the purposes and structures of government (tribal, local, state, national government)
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 2.9. Assess how the contributions of diverse individuals' have helped develop our national identity. ● 2.10. Examine and compare the American democratic principles to neighboring countries.

ADD: "Examine and compare how American democratic principles have been interpreted over time and have become more equitably applied to various individuals and groups in our nation."

Theme 1: We the People (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.11. Examine and understand the qualities of good leadership. ← ADD: "What does leadership require if a society is to treat its members fairly. What is required of leaders in a democratic society?"

Theme 2: Looking in Our Past
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.12. Describe events in North America that illustrate how people from diverse cultural groups attempted to work through conflicts to solve a problem. ← ", and how solving problems together helps understanding." 2.13. Compare diverse world communities in terms of members, customs, and traditions to the local community. 2.14. Demonstrate chronological thinking by distinguishing among years and decades using a timeline of local and national events.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.15. Identify and compare the diverse North American cultural groups of the past and today. 2.16. Evaluate the effects of people, goods and ideas that diffused from one world community into other world communities and the effects of the people, goods and ideas on these communities. ← ADD: "Explore How the relationships among these diverse cultural groups have changed over time."

Theme 3: What We Make and Use

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.17. Examine how consumers react to changes in the prices of goods and how this influences economic decision making and the use of money. 2.18. Explore how communities share resources and services with other communities
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.19. Investigate what resources are available in the community, how available resources differ in communities, and what resources are obtained from neighboring communities. 2.20. Identify different types of jobs performed in the community.

"and with various members of their own communities"

"and different ways resources are exchanged within and between communities"

Theme 4: Cultures and Environment

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.21. Using maps, identify and locate the United States, Canada, and Mexico as the countries that make up North America. 2.22. Identify and locate the bordering states to New Mexico and understand that New Mexico is in the Southwest.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.23. Compare the human and physical characteristics of two regions in the United States. 2.24. Generate a definition for your region of the US by identifying unique features.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.25. List at least three different waves of migration to the Western hemisphere in chronological order. (Movement)

ADD: "Locate the various Indigenous nations and communities in the states of the Southwest."

Theme 4: Cultures and Environment (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.26. Describe ways in which individuals and groups use or save natural resources. ← ADD: "Describe changes in the ways we are using, saving and sharing natural resources today. Explore more ways our use, saving and sharing of these resources could change as our world and its climate changes."

Theme 5: Multi-Identity Interactions

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.27. Express a positive view of themselves without being mean or making other people feel bad. 2.28. Describe ways we are similar and different from people who share identities, and people who do not. ← ADD: "Explore positive ways of viewing people who are different from ourselves."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 2.29. Demonstrate respect for the feelings of people who are similar and different from me. " , dignity and humanity"

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Third Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.1. Identify disciplinary ideas associated with a compelling question. ● 3.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 23. Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.3. Determine the credibility of one source.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.4. Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.5. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.6. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 3.7. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.
Theme 1: Citizenship
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 3.8. Explain how the democratic principles motivate people to migrate then and now.

← ADD: "Identify how different perspectives can lead to different interpretations of events."

←"; do different individuals or groups interpret the supportive evidence differently? ←

← ADD: "Help build an environment in which all students feel respected and feel safe to participate authentically in coming to decisions."

↑ "and a desire for respect and dignity"

Theme 1: Citizenship (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.9. Explain how to be a responsible and active citizen in a democracy.

"an inclusive democracy." [OR "a democracy that includes people of different cultures, races, genders, family types and differently abled people."]

Theme 2: Global Immigration and Migration
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.10. Evaluate the reasons for migration and immigration and the effects on people, culture, and ideas in world communities. 3.11. Analyze how human settlement and movement impact diverse groups of people and how the cultural aspects of a region spread beyond its borders. 3.12. Analyze the movement of Indigenous groups, including the removal and return of Indigenous people throughout New Mexico and the US.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.13. Explain how world events impact New Mexico and the US, both in the past and today.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.14. Use a timeline to analyze connections among historical events, including how human settlement and movement impacted diverse groups of people.

← ADD: "Listen to stories from community members about how their family came here."

→ ", and how New Mexico has had and continues to have an impact on world events."

ADD: "See where different family stories fit into the timeline."

ADD: "Listen to stories shared by Indigenous community members about their family's experiences of removal, return and remaining in place."

Theme 3: Global Issues and Events
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.15. Examine the various ways people earn a living to meet their basic needs of food, clothing, and shelter, and how this has changed over time in various world communities. ← ADD: "How have different communities supported their members to help meet these needs in past and today?"
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.16. Investigate who receives the goods that are produced in various world communities. ← ADD: "Where are goods we use every day in class and at home produced?"
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.17. Explore the concepts of surplus and scarcity in relation to resources for various world communities. 3.18. Explore the basic economic concepts of supply and demand 3.19. Explain how supply and demand influence prices and trade. 3.20. Describe how technological developments in transportation and communication influence trade over time. 3.21. Identify currency, credit, debit, and checks as the basic means of exchange in Western society. 3.22. Compare currency, credit, debit, and checks in the United States to other world money systems.

Theme 4: Our Changing World
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 3.23. Create a model to demonstrate how geographic factors influence where people settle and how some people make adaptations to the environment to make a location more suitable for settlement. 3.24. Identify and use the mapping tools of scale, compass rose, grid, symbols and mental mapping to locate places on maps and globes.

Theme 4: Our Changing World (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 3.25. Explain how physical and cultural characteristics of world regions affect people, and examine geographic features of various global communities that might create a need for migration or immigration using a variety of maps, photos, and other geographic representations. • 3.26. Identify the components of the Earth's biosystems and their makeup (e.g., air, land, water, plants, and animals).

Theme 5: Global Diversity and Identity
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 3.27. Express a positive view of personal identities without making someone else feel badly. • 3.28. Compare and contrast cultural identity with other people and groups. ← ADD: "Demonstrate respect for identities and personal characteristics different from one's own".
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 3.29. Identify the actions of people and groups who have worked throughout history to bring more justice and fairness to the world. ← ADD: "Share personal stories of people working to improve justice, fairness and wellbeing for themselves and for others."

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Fourth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.1. Explain how a compelling question represents key ideas in the field. 4.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.3. Cite evidence that supports a response to supporting or compelling questions.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.4. Construct responses to compelling questions using reasoning, examples, and relevant details.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.5. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. 4.6. Use deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in their classrooms.

← ADD: "Identify evidence that might support a different response."

← ADD: "Help build an environment in which all students feel safe to participate authentically in coming to decisions."

Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.7. Examine and evaluate the rules, laws, and authorities that keep people safe in New Mexico.
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.8. Explain how democratic principles guide local, state, and sovereign governments. 4.9. Demonstrate understanding that state symbols, holidays, traditions, and songs represent various cultural heritages, natural treasures, and the democratic values of New Mexico.

← ADD: "Evaluate whether these laws treat different groups of people equitably and all people fairly."

*ADD: "Explain the importance of fairness in the ways governments make and carry out decisions."
*ADD: Understand how some traditional sovereign governments rely on traditional practices to choose leaders and make decisions."

Theme 1: New Mexico Government Past and Present (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.10. Investigate how different groups have influenced the ways that state issues are viewed and resolved. ADD: "Explore how the roles of different groups, including Indigenous peoples, traditional Hispanic communities and others have changed over time in influencing state issues and actions."

Theme 2: Migration and Settlement in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to: [Is "pioneer" the best term here?]
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.11. Describe the different groups of people (Indigenous and explorers/pioneers) that have settled in New Mexico throughout history and describe their traditions and effects on New Mexico culture.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.12. Describe the interactions between Indigenous people and European settlers including agriculture, cultural exchanges, alliances, and conflicts
History 17. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.13. Create a timeline that depicts the events and the changes in New Mexico culture through contact with explorers and settlers. "by Indigenous peoples and by contacts and conflicts among different settlers."
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.14. Examine the changes in governance of New Mexico (Indigenous, Spanish, Mexican, Texan, Confederate, US) ADD: "Explore the contemporary forms of governance that derive from earlier forms of governance (e.g. traditional Indigenous governments, land grant associations, acequia governance, etc.)"

Comment: [Is "pioneers" the most appropriate term for both the Hispanic and Mexican settlers and the Anglo-American settlers who came after them? It's important the students look at the various waves of settlement and their effects not only on Indigenous peoples but on the various groups of settlers themselves.]

Theme 3: New Mexico Trade and Industry

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.15. Explain the impact of using natural resources on the local, county, and state economy
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.16. Explain how trade and industry in New Mexico is impacted by surrounding economies (Mexico, AZ, CO, TX) 4.17. Research and create a list of products, goods, and services that New Mexico imports and exports.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.18. Explore the significance of agriculture and livestock industries in New Mexico.

← "and on the economies of the Indigenous nations within or adjacent to New Mexico."

← "and how trade and industry affect the Indigenous communities in New Mexico"

← ADD: "Explore the relationship between agricultural practices and traditional and Indigenous communities in New Mexico and their endurance over time."

Theme 4: Resources and Land Use in New Mexico

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.19. Examine and synthesize (combine) data from at least two types of maps (physical, topographical, or thematic maps) to support a claim about the regional divisions of New Mexico, and compare and contrast its diverse geography 4.20. Using a variety of maps, investigate and compare how New Mexico's political boundaries have changed over time. 4.21. Apply geographic tools of title, grid system, legends, symbols, scale and compass rose to construct and interpret maps. 4.22. Describe and identify the regions and four provinces that make up New Mexico's land surface.

← "; include traditional and Indigenous communities in this analysis."

← "including changes in the boundaries of Indigenous nations in New Mexico."

← ADD: "Include and distinguish Indigenous lands, including reservation trust lands, in this analysis."

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.23. Explore how geographic factors influence locations of settlements and use of natural resources (land, water, minerals, plants, animals) to meet their basic needs. ← ADD: "Explore how geographic factors have influenced conflicts over land, water and other natural resources among settlers, Indigenous communities and contemporary occupants."
--------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 5: New Mexico Identity and Diversity

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.24. Explain why individuals and groups during the same historical period differed in their perspectives towards significant historical events. ← ADD: "Explore how different individuals and groups today share similar and different understandings of these same historical events."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.25. Demonstrate respectful inquiry about other people's lives and experiences without judgment. ← ADD: "Share appropriate, respectful stories of their own and their group's lives and experiences."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 4.26. Explain connections among historical contexts and people's perspectives at the time. ← ADD: "Explore how differences in experiences of history affect different people's and groups' perspectives today."

DRAFT

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Fifth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.1. Identify the disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a compelling question. ● 5.2. Use supporting questions to help answer the compelling question in an inquiry.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.3. Determine the credibility of multiple sources.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.4. Identify evidence that draws information from multiple perspectives and sources in response to a compelling question.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.5. With teacher direction, construct responses to compelling questions supported by reasoning and evidence.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 5.6. Identify challenges and opportunities when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 5.7. Use a range of consensus-building and democratic procedures to make decisions about and act on civic problems in the classroom.

ADD: "Explore why even when people rely on credible sources they sometimes come to different conclusions."

↑ ", and explore how these perspectives help to increase understanding of the compelling question."

Theme 1: Development and Establishment of U.S. Government

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.8. Identify and explain the structure and function of the three branches of government.
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.9. Analyze how different individuals and groups influenced the creation and interpretation of the foundational documents
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.10. Explain how the principles of the Declaration of Independence became unifying ideas of American Democracy
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.11. Evaluate how the Bill of Rights shaped the rights of U.S. Citizens

ADD: "Examine how the foundational documents affected different groups."

ADD: "Explain how different groups and categories of persons were affected by these principles both at the time of writing and in subsequent periods."

"and non-citizens."

ADD: "Examine how different groups and categories of persons were affected by these rights from their first adoption until today."

Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.12. Describe how inequity in the United States laid the foundation for conflict that continues today.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.13. Examine history from the perspective of the participants.

ADD: "Describe how the understanding of fundamental principles of human rights has been shaped by previous inequities and have shaped approaches to dealing with the continuing conflicts they produced."

ADD: "Explore how different groups' experiences of history continue to affect our national identity today"

[Students, and others often get the incorrect impression that the Bill of Rights and the 14th Amendment apply only to Citizens. This is not correct and gives a much more restrictive understanding of the rights of all persons. The fact that some provisions of the Bill of Rights apply to all "persons" is a gift that the U.S. system gave to the world, as reflected in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.]

Theme 2: Inequality and Justice in the US (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.14. Analyze the causes of the American Revolution and the effects individuals and groups had on the conflict. 5.15. Analyze the causes of the Civil War and the effects individuals and groups had on the conflict.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.16. Create and use a chronological sequence of related events and timelines to organize and analyze cause and effect relationships. 5.17. Use primary and secondary sources to acquire historical information.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.18. Explain the connections among historical contexts and people's perspectives during major historical events in the US.

ADD: "Examine the effects each of these conflicts had on different individuals and groups."

ADD: "Examine how these historically-based differences in perspectives continue to affect people's understanding of these major historical events and their relation to today."

Theme 3: Human Rights and Economic Development

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.19. Explore examples from the Western Hemisphere to illustrate the role of scarcity historically and in current events. 5.20. Analyze how economic success is defined differently by various communities in the US (then, now, and in the future). 5.21. Identify and compare the major natural resources of the United States, Canada, Mexico, and Caribbean or South American countries, and determine the major industries of those countries in relation to available resources.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 5.22. Examine products that are imported and exported into markets within the United States based on demand for these products, noting how this affects the United States economy.

ADD: "Compare the importance of individual and community economic success in different cultural groups."

"; include the "human resources" of these countries and regions in the analysis."

" and the economies of other countries that produce goods exported to the United States or import goods produced in the United States."

Theme 4: Human Impact on Environment
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 5.23. Demonstrate how physical maps reflect the varied climate zones, landforms, bodies of water, and natural resources of the Western Hemisphere. • 5.24. Using maps and globes, identify the regions within the Western Hemisphere and locate major physical features within each region. • 5.25. Demonstrate how the states are organized including time zones and the regions of the US ", including all territories, commonwealths, etc." • 5.26. Use geographic and place-based vocabulary to communicate locations and navigate from one place to another.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 5.27. Using a map, identify and locate the 50 states in the United States and know the capitals of each state along with the surrounding U.S. territories ", commonwealths, federal districts, etc."
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 5.28. Examine how the physical environment influences human population distribution and land use.

Theme 5: Identity in Multiple Spaces
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 5.29. Identify the beliefs, experiences, perspectives, and values that form points of view about civic issues. ADD: "Demonstrate the ability to discuss these differences in beliefs, experiences, perspectives and values in the classroom setting in ways that are inclusive, respectful and informed."

[Remember that the United States not only has "territories," but at least one "Commonwealth (Puerto Rico) and one Federal district (District of Columbia).]

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19.
Diversity and Identity

- 5.30. Demonstrate knowledge of family history, culture, and past contributions of people in main identity groups.
- 5.31. Explain how groups of people are treated today and in the past is a part of what makes them who they are.

← ADD: "Identify who are considered the "main identity groups" and what groups may be missing from this analysis."

DRAFT - PRE REVIEW
COPY

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Sixth Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.1. Distinguish primary and secondary sources by correctly identifying the author, type of document and date of publication of the text in relation to the historical event described in the text. ● 6.2. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers ← "; include previously under reported stories." ● 6.3. Categorize questions as compelling (main topic) or supporting questions. ● 6.4. Pose self-generated relevant questions to be answered by historical inquiry that allow for multiple avenues of exploration.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.5. Identify where and how to locate sources to best answer a research question ● 6.6. Distinguish among fact, opinion, and reasoned judgement in a source. Identify the author's/ authors' perspectives and possible biases. ● 6.7. Identify inherent bias in maps. ● 6.8. Evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use ← "; note systemic omissions in sources."
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.9. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question ● 6.10. Support a claim using a variety of sources and perspectives ● 6.11. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources. ● 6.12. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 6.13. Use applicable presentation technology to communicate research findings or other significant information. ● 6.14. Create maps, charts, infographics or digital media that communicate research findings or other significant information

[Later in 6th grade, students will be asked a question about "human rights violations" in the medieval period (6.52). They need to Explore the meaning of the term "human rights" as it applies to life in different periods, societies and geographic regions.]

Inquiry (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.15. Describe the many facets of student identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. 6.16. Identify their family and personal cultural identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. 6.17. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems

Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.18. Create and use maps, globes, and graphs to gather, analyze, and report geographic information.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.19. Identify how natural forces shape Earth's environments and regions.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.20. Identify how differences and similarities between diverse groups impact perspectives.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.21. Demonstrate relationships between personal events and historical events.

← ADD: "Evaluate how human impacts interact with these natural forces."

← ADD: "Use storytelling to explore personal experiences of historical events."

Theme 1: Introduction to Geography and Historical Thinking (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.22. Explain how the treatment of people (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures. ← ADD: "Examine how relationship with land (past and present) shaped group identities and cultures."

Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.23. Identify the social structures of early humans. ← "Explore" rather than "Identify". [We learn new things every day about the social structures of early human.]
Economics 9. Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.24. Analyze the economic impact that surpluses of food and goods have on the growth of civilizations.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.25. Compare environmental and geographic attributes of locations of the earliest human settlements.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.26. Compare cultural and technological innovations of one Mesoamerican and one South American civilization. 6.27. Compare cultural, political, and religious characteristics of early river valley civilizations.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.28. Describe how the local environment impacts cultures and technology. 6.29. Describe how the people impact the local environment.

Theme 2: The Environment and Early Civilizations: Human Beginnings and Ancestral Cultures (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.30. Analyze the impact that the Agricultural Revolution had on hunter-gatherers and nomadic peoples.

Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.31. Describe cultural and political structures in classical eastern societies. 6.32. Describe cultural and political structures in classical western societies. 6.33. Compare and contrast classical forms of government and political structure to our current United States government and political structure.
Civics 4. Roles and Responsibilities of a Civic Life	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.34. Identify rights and responsibilities of citizens and noncitizens in civic participation within the governmental systems such as monarchy, democracy, republic, and oligarchy
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.35. Evaluate the lasting impact of philosophy, art, science, and technology of Classical Greece, Rome, India, and China. 6.36. Evaluate the factors that allowed classical civilizations to thrive.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.37. Identify the political and social issues that lead to the development of new philosophies during the classical period. 6.38. Compare strategies used by classical civilizations to maintain their empires. 6.39. Compare causes of decline in the Roman, Han, and Gupta empires.

ADD: "Describe cultural and political structures of diverse Indigenous Peoples of North America."

", and in traditional societies."

Theme 3: Classical Eastern and Western Civilizations (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Content Standard Therefore, the student is able to
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.40. Describe the interactions of religious and philosophical perspectives and explain their impact on European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the classical period.

Theme 4: Post-Classical Societies
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.41. Describe the distribution of resources among classes in the feudal hierarchy of European and Asian societies.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.42. Explain the reasons for the expansion of trade routes and territories in Sub-Saharan regions.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.43. Analyze the significance of innovations such as scientific, mathematical, and technological in Middle Eastern and Asian societies. 6.44. Explain how religion and philosophy shaped European, Asian, and Middle Eastern societies during the post-classical period.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.45. Explain what led to the emergence of European feudalism.

Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.46. Describe how trade networks and the transfer of goods and ideas linked post-classical societies. 6.47. Explain the role of trade in the development and growth of societies ← " , including societies in the Americas."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.48. Explain how the interaction between producers and consumers in the trade networks satisfied economic wants and needs.

Theme 5: Post-Classical Trade Networks (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.49. Use maps to represent the movement of key religions and philosophies over time.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.50. Compare the transportation innovations made to travel over challenging routes and establish trade routes ← "in different regions of the world."

Theme 6: Encounters and Exchanges: 600 CE–1300 CE

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.51. Use maps to explain how encounters and exchanges linked the world.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.52. Examine instances of conflict, oppression, human rights violations, and genocide in Medieval times as well as responses to these violations.
History 15. Causes and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.53. Analyze social, political, and economic effects of the Black Death on Europe.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 6.54. Examine and explain how the perspectives and encounters between Christians, Muslims, and Jews impacted individuals and society.

ADD: "Explore the differences in this historical period between conflicts within and conflicts among groups."

Glad to see "Human Rights" specifically referenced at last! However, it will be important to help students explore the meaning of the phrase "Human Rights" as interpreted by major international and domestic bodies. For example, look to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights for its extensive identification and description of Universal Human Rights.

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Seventh Grade

Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.1. Develop compelling (big idea) questions about a relevant topic of interest. ● 7.2. Create supporting questions from credible sources to expand upon the compelling question.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.3. Identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts, and oral traditions. ● 7.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for fact, opinion, author's bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic. ● 7.5. Analyze various forms of media to identify polarizing language, logical fallacy, and reasonable judgment. ● 7.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.7. Use primary and secondary sources to develop an argument and cite specific textual evidence to support the claim. ● 7.8. Make connections between current events, historical materials, and personal experience.
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.9. Present student-developed texts communicating thinking and understanding, including but not limited to written text, oral presentation, visual representation, and multimedia. ● 7.10. Engage in academic discussions analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 7.11. Examine the relationship between stereotypes, bias, and group identity. ● 7.12. Explore opportunities to be an ally and describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally. ● 7.13. Engage in positive civic behaviors to make decisions and take action in classrooms, schools, and communities.

" , composition,"

ADD: "Define the meaning of "ally" in different contexts."

Help create an environment in classrooms, schools, communities that supports inclusion and participation of all.

I suggest some in class exploration of what it means to be an "ally".

Theme 1: The Land, People, and Resources of New Mexico
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.14. Explain the role of the political decision-making process at the tribal, state, and local levels of government (voting, upholding the constitution, petitioning public officials, analyzing issues, etc). 7.15. Describe the relationships of tribal, state, and local governments with the national government under the federal system (tribal sovereignty, state constitutions, 3-branches of government, checks and balances, legislative process, etc).
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.16. Explain how tribal, state, and local government agencies work to sustain resources in New Mexico. 7.17. Discuss New Mexico's economic limitations, barriers to development, and successes. 7.18. Examine the pros and cons of economic development in New Mexico.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	ADD: "Explore the economic relationships within and among Indigenous Nations, traditional communities, in New Mexico and beyond." <ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.20. Explain the physical and human characteristics of New Mexico, and use this knowledge to define the Southwest region of the U.S. 7.21. Select a province of New Mexico and research its distinguishing characteristics. 7.22. Use paper and digital maps to ask and answer geographical questions about New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.23. Describe factors affecting location of human activities, including land-use patterns for local, regional, and state communities. 7.24. Describe how environmental events affect human activities and resources. ADD: "Explore the various relationships with land and water resources of different groups in New Mexico, including Indigenous nations, land grant holders, acequia associations, farmers and ranchers, industries."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.25. Make connections between the past and modern events from the local, territorial, state, and/or sovereign nations' perspective and predict how the future may be impacted.

"this part of"

"and historical patterns of land-use among distinct cultural communities."

ADD: "Explore the various relationships with land and water resources of different groups in New Mexico, including Indigenous nations, land grant holders, acequia associations, farmers and ranchers, industries."

Theme 1: The Land, People & Resources of New Mexico (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.26. Analyze how groups maintain their cultural heritage and how we see this heritage through the symbols, traditions, and culture of our state. " , including livelihoods, land-use, economic relationships, family structure." 7.27. Define and explain the present demographics of our state. "describe" [a better word than 'define'] 7.28. Evaluate how society's responses to different social identities lead to access and/or barriers for various demographic groups in relation to various societal institutions, including but not limited to education, healthcare, government, and industry. " , finance, employment, housing."

Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic-Decision Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.29. Demonstrate how early humans compete and/or cooperate to gather and use resources. "in the land that became New Mexico the Southwest."
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.30. Analyze patterns of migration of early people as they settled across New Mexico and the Southwest region.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.31. Analyze land use patterns of early humans in New Mexico and the Southwest region. 7.32. Explain how building technologies are designed to respond to the constraints and freedoms of the environment. 7.33. Explain how early people adapted to the environment to develop sustainable agricultural practices. " , hunting, foraging, and"

" , hunting, foraging, and"
[Remember that many Indigenous Peoples had definite, successful strategies for sustainable hunting and foraging for their basic needs.]

Theme 2: The Earliest New Mexicans (c. 12,000 BCE – c. 1200 BCE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.34. Explain the importance of artifacts and oral histories in understanding how prehistoric people lived. 7.35. Describe the technical limitations of historians and archaeologists studying the distant past.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.36. Explain the use of artifacts in dating and understanding the lives of prehistoric peoples. 7.37. Describe the similarities and differences between nomadic and semi-nomadic lifestyles

Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.38. Describe the role of citizens in ensuring the long-term survival of their community, including cooperation, obligations, rights, and responsibilities. ← ADD: "Describe the roles of allies in supporting long-term survival of traditional communities."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.39. Summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence. 7.40. Explain barriers to trade and how those barriers influence trade among individual people and cultural groups. ← ADD: "Explore the evidence of trade among Indigenous peoples of the Americas prior to European contact."
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.41. Analyze land use patterns of Ancestral Pueblo, Mogollon, and Athabaskan peoples. 7.42. Connect cultural adaptations of the Pueblo and Diné people to today ← "and Apache"

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.43. Identify the housing and religious structures of both the Navajo and Apache. 7.44. Compare and contrast Athabascan technology, agricultural practices, and settlement patterns with those of the Pueblos
Theme 3: The Emergence of Pueblos and Tribes (c. 1200 BCE – c. 1500 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.45. Discuss the importance of resource shortages on the lifestyles of the Mogollon and Ancestral Puebloans. 7.46. Create research questions about art/architecture of the Mogollon and/or the Pueblo Ancestors. 7.47. Create a model of Mogollon and/or Pueblo art/architecture.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.48. Analyze who have been key figures that have contributed to an individual culture, and what they did. 7.49. Describe the relationship between their cultural heritage(s) and their personal identity/ identities. 7.50. Identify what students want the world to see when their culture is on display, and how to address negative perceptions ← " , and how to promote appropriate understanding of their culture and its strengths."

Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions ← ADD: "Compare and contrast the government systems of European and Indigenous societies of this period."	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.51. Compare and contrast global and historical government systems to the US federal system.
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.52. Demonstrate the impact of competition and/or cooperation as people gather and use resources. 7.53. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the economic motivation of Spaniards as they enter the lands of and interact with the peoples of the Americas.
Economics 9. The Global Economy	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.54. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate connections between the economy of Spain and those of indigenous people.

Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.55. Analyze maps and charts about the Age of Exploration to understand the movement of people, goods, and ideas across the world.
--------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Theme 4: The Spaniards Enter the Americas (c. 1490s CE – c. 1590s CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
--------------------------------------------------------------------------------	---------------------------------------------------------------------------

Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.56. Interpret the cultural differences between Spaniards and Indigenous peoples.
--------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

"the various Indigenous Peoples and societies whom they encountered," ['Indigenous Peoples' is too generic]

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.57. Describe the interactions between the Spaniards and Indigenous Peoples
-------------------------------------------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

the various Indigenous Peoples whom they encountered. [Again, 'Indigenous Peoples' is too generic]

History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.58. Use primary and secondary sources to explain the political and religious motivations of Spaniards as they encounter the land and peoples of the Americas. 7.59. Compare the patterns of exploration, destruction and occupation of the Americas by Spaniards
----------------------------------------	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.60. Demonstrate how diversity includes the impact of unequal power relations on the development of group identities and cultures. 7.61. Brainstorm ways in which New Mexicans might heal from past and current injustices
--------------------------------------------------------------------------	----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

"among our various racial, ethnic and national groups."

Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.62. Use figurative language to describe the relationship between a nation-state and its colonies. 7.63. Hypothesize how the policies of the Spanish monarchy in New Spain interacted with other societies in the region ← " , including both Indigenous societies and other settler societies. "

← ADD: "Explore human rights consequences of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of various groups in New Mexico during various historical periods."

Theme 5: The Spanish Colonial Period (c. 1500s CE – 1821 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.64. Use primary sources to identify formal and informal actions that impacted local, tribal, and Spanish empirical economies during this time period.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.65. Analyze maps and charts from the Spanish Colonial period to understand El Camino Real as a significant corridor for movement of people, goods, and ideas.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.66. Explain how differing perceptions of places, people, and resources affected events and conditions in New Mexico during the Spanish Colonial period. 7.67. Evaluate practices of land usage and ownership between Indigenous peoples and Spaniards. ← "various Indigenous peoples encountered by the Spaniards..} . (practices differed among groups)
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.68. Compare and contrast the revolts and resistance movements under Spanish rule ← " , including both Indigenous revolts and resistance against the Spanish government by settlers. "

History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspective	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.69. Discuss, debate, or hold academic conversations about both positive and negative evidence of Spanish influence in New Mexico today.
Ethnic, Cultural and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.70. Describe key figures that have made significant contributions to an individual culture. 7.71. Explore personal, familial, and societal cultures in the modern day. 7.72. Discuss how individuals want to be perceived when their culture is on display, and conclude how to address stereotypes.

"evidence of both positive and negative influence" [Better sentence]

", including their origins and development over time."

"discussed, described or"

Theme 6: The Mexican Period (1821 CE – 1850 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.73. Examine how conflict over land, culture, and social class led to Mexican independence from Spain.
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.74. Identify and summarize the relationship between specialization and interdependence.
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.75. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate connections between the economy of New Mexico and Mexico during the Mexican period. 7.76. Investigate the use of trade routes and systems to analyze the economic impact they had on New Mexico as well as those who traded with New Mexicans.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.77. Compare various maps and/or geographical data to describe how the movement of people influenced the division and control of resources.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.78. Analyze primary and secondary ⁴to explain what impact Mexican Independence had on (the area) that would become) New Mexico. 7.79. Generate an evidence-based argument that demonstrates how troubles between Texas and the government of Mexico impacted New Mexico.

ADD: "Examine how the first Mexican Constitution addressed Indigenous peoples, land grants, citizenship, race."

ADD: "Examine the geography of United States' expansion into the Southwest."

"sources"

History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.80. Cite textual evidence to interpret the factors that led to resistance and rebellion in Mexico during this time, and debate the aftermath. 7.81. Compare historians' interpretations of the reasons for the Texas-Santa Fe Expedition.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.82. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate the lasting impacts of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of persons and groups

"on the persons and groups directly affected and on the quality of democracy in the larger society."

← ADD: "Explore the human rights consequences of unequal power relations and disenfranchisement of various groups in New Mexico during various historical periods."

Theme 7: American Western Expansion (1848 CE – 1869 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.83. Analyze US policies on expansion into the Southwest, including how they reflected US civic ideals of the time and conflicted with existing inhabitants of the region.
Economics 7. Economic Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.84. Identify activities that had an impact on territorial and Indigenous economies. 7.85. Investigate the correlation between the territorial and Indigenous economies considering how they are impacted by federal policies.
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.86. Explain the role of human movement in shaping societies in New Mexico in the past and present. 7.87. Analyze maps and charts from the Western expansion period to understand interactions between multiple cultural groups. 7.88. Analyze land use patterns of Anglo-Americans during the American Westward expansion period.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.89. Support a claim about the intent of the United States in its westward expansion. 7.90. Evaluate the significance of short- and long-range trails throughout the lands gained in the Mexican Cession.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.91. Categorize causes and consequences of the U.S. military invasion of Mexico

← ADD: "Investigate economic factors that affected Western expansion, including into New Mexico."

← ", including consequences for Mexico, New Mexico, the United States and Indigenous Peoples."

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.92. Compare and contrast primary and secondary sources in conjunction with modern-era events to explore the impact of land ownership throughout New Mexico History 	"including different forms of land ownership and use."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.93. Identify how stereotyping influences social perspectives about members of a 7.94. Develop a claim about the extent to which identity can be modified by person 	"perceptions" is a better word. "characteristics of an identity" [better choice of words]

Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.95. Evaluate New Mexico's transition into a US territorial government from the perspectives of the various groups residing in the territory at the time. 	ADD: "Explore effects on the civic status of Indigenous people, Blacks, Mexicans, Hispanics."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.96. Use and create charts, graphs, and infographics to demonstrate the economy of territorial New Mexico from various perspectives such as wealthy/poor and immigrant/Indigenous, etc. 	" , land status, cultural identity,"
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.97. Analyze maps and charts from the Early American Territorial period to explain how differing perceptions of places, people, and resources have affected events and conditions of the past. 	"and continue to affect events and conditions today."
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.98. Explain examples of cultural diffusion into and out of New Mexico from the past and present. 	ADD: Explore the power dynamics embedded in this cultural diffusion.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.99. Analyze land use patterns of Americans during the territorial period in New Mexico 	"various groups of Americans, including settlers, investors, ranchers, military,"

History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.100. Describe how cultures were challenged by the coming of new groups to New Mexico. "existing, resident cultures"
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.101. Identify causes and consequences that gave rise to U.S. government policies impacting the territory of New Mexico. "and the various societies and communities within New Mexico."

Theme 8: Early American Territorial Period (1850 CE – 1880s CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.102. Use a variety of sources to contextualize and explain the impact of localized conflicts and other events throughout New Mexico. ", including the contemporary impacts of conflicts originating in this historical period."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 19. Diversity and Identity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 7.103. Identify, explore, and describe the traditions, rites, and norms of the groups to which the student identifies as belonging; and explain how these traditions, rights, and norms may have changed over time.  ← ADD: "Demonstrate respect for traditions, norms and values not one's own and respect for the cultural privacy of groups not one's own."

DRAFT - PRE RULE
COPY

Eighth Grade

6-8 Inquiry
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 22. Construct Compelling and Supporting Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.1. Develop compelling (big idea) questions about a relevant topic of interest. ● 8.2. Create supporting questions from credible sources to expand upon the compelling question.
Inquiry 23: Gather and Evaluate Sources	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.3. Identify, locate, and gather reliable and relevant primary and secondary sources from a variety of media, such as print, digital, multimedia, artifacts, and oral traditions. ● 8.4. Evaluate primary and secondary sources for the author's bias, perspective of the creator, and relevance to the topic. ● 8.5. Identify inherent bias in maps and analyze how they impact cultural memory. ● 8.6. Use a coherent system or structure to evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
Inquiry 24. Develop Claims	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.7. Categorize and sequence significant people, places, events, and ideas in history using both chronological and conceptual graphic organizers. ● 8.8. Formulate a claim based on evidence from primary and secondary sources in response to a question ● 8.9. Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources. ● 8.10. Use primary and secondary sources to analyze conflicting and diverse points of views on a certain topic. ● 8.11. Make connections between current events, historical materials and personal experience. ● 8.12. Examine how and why diverse groups have been denied equality and opportunity both institutionally and informally.

← ADD: "Explore the human rights implications of differences in legal status and access to opportunity during the period in question."

6-8 Inquiry (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Inquiry 25. Communicate and Critique Conclusions	ADD: "Develop skills in honestly discussing different perspectives and points of view through respectful dialogue and debate, which includes all participants and marginalizes no one." <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.13. Engage in discussion, debate, or academic conversation analyzing multiple viewpoints on public issues. ● 8.14. Create maps, charts, infographics, or other visual media that communicate research findings or other significant information digitally or on paper. ● 8.15. Develop informational texts, including analyses of historical and current events. ● 8.16. Create historical fiction texts that accurately portray historical people, places, events, and ideologies of the time in order to examine history from the perspective of the participants. ● 8.17. Use applicable presentation technology to communicate research findings or other significant information. ● 8.18. Conduct a research project to answer a self-generated question of historical significance, and apply problem-solving skills for historical research, to include: use of primary and secondary sources; sequencing, collecting, interpreting and applying information; gathering and validating materials that present a variety of perspectives; documenting sources in a structured, systematic way; communicating findings in a medium of the student's choice.
Inquiry 26. Take Informed Action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● 8.19. Describe the many facets of their identity (including family history and culture) and how they are connected to the collective history and culture of other people in their self-identified affinity groups. "in and outside of" ● 8.20. Identify facets of personal identity, determine how they want to present themselves to the world as a person belonging to an identity group, and brainstorm how to address negative perceptions. "misperceptions and" ● 8.21. Describe ways in which stereotyping can be a barrier to acting as an ally, and engaging in positive civic "understanding disagreements," behaviors in classrooms, schools, and the broader community. ● 8.22. Explain the challenges and opportunities people face when taking action to address problems, including predicting possible results. ● 8.23. Synthesize historical and local knowledge to take age-appropriate action towards mending, healing, and transforming the future.

Theme 1: Geography & Indigenous Peoples of North America
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.24. Use digital literacy to research and create a presentation about a specific Sovereign Tribal Nation or Indigenous Peoples group of North America through the five themes of geography: location, place, movement, human-environment interaction, and region. 8.25. Identify the major rivers, mountain ranges, and climatic regions of North America within the lands now known as the United States, Canada, the Caribbean, and Mexico.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.26. Give specific examples to illustrate how one Indigenous culture or many Indigenous cultures in one region have been shaped by their environment and natural resources available to them. 8.27. Define a region by identifying its human and physical features.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.28. Explain how human activities and physical processes influence change in ecosystems.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.29. Draw a diagram or make a model to illustrate a non-text method an Indigenous person or group of Indigenous people have employed to record and preserve their history/ histories.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspective	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.30. Support a claim about how knowledge and perspectives of Indigenous peoples of North America, and Indigenous Peoples around the world, have the potential to inform solutions to global problems.

" , create a visual or graphic story, "

Theme 2: Age of Exploration and Exploitation (c. 1400 CE – c. 1500 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.31. Describe the causes of exploration and expansion into the Americas, by the Europeans during the 15th Century.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.32. Identify key explorers, places, and ideas from major European nations of the 15th century, and be able to describe their accomplishments.

"various"

← ADD: Identify, to the extent known, the Peoples these various explorers encountered in their voyages."

Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 7. Economics Systems and Models	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.33. Draw diagrams or make models to illustrate significant contemporary economic theories and their connection to the European colonization of the Western Hemisphere.
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.34. Synthesize information from two or more different types of maps to support a claim about the global context of colonization.
Geography 11. Location, Place, and Region	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.35. Use a topographic or climate map to create a geographic argument about how economic specialization developed in the 13 colonies based on natural resource availability.

"British"

Theme 3: Colonization (1490 CE – 1750 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 12. Movement, Population, and Systems	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.36. Identify immigration and emigration factors that motivated groups to move to and within North America through the lens of the 13 colonies and the movement of people there.
Geography 13. Human-Environment Interaction	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.37. Engage in academic discussion around how the ideas and belief systems related to land and resource use impacted the experiences of Indigenous Peoples and colonizers.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.38. Use evidence from primary and secondary sources to compare and contrast the impacts of European colonization on Indigenous populations.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.39. Discuss the interactions and exchanges of resources, ideas, arts, and culture between and among different civilizations in the colonial period.

"British"; compare and contrast with the French, Dutch, and Spanish colonies of North America."

ADD: "Explore how slavery affected economic and land development in the various 13 British colonies."

ADD: How did various concepts about applicability of rights of persons affect these encounters?"

ADD: "Discuss how preconceptions and stereotypes influenced these interactions and exchanges."

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 5. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.40. Use maps and other primary sources to analyze the economic specializations of the 13 colonies.
Economics 6. Incentives and Choices	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.41. Compare and contrast the efforts of the American and British governments to gain the services of African Americans during the American Revolutionary War. 8.42. Evaluate the incentives for supporting the British or American side from the perspective of enslaved and free African Americans before and during the American Revolution.

ADD: "Explore how the status of African slaves and European indentured servants changed during this time."

Theme 4: Causes, Events, and Impact of the American Revolution (1763 CE – 1787 CE) (Continued)

Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Geography 10. Geographic Representations and Reasoning	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.43. Use population, topographical, and political maps (as well as supporting texts) to generate questions about why the Proclamation Line of 1763 was established. 8.44. Develop a claim about how opinions regarding the Proclamation Line of 1763 might have varied depending on an individual's occupation and geographic location.
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.45. Evaluate the effectiveness of Native American alliances during and after the American Revolutionary War as a tool to support tribal sovereignty. 8.46. Use primary and secondary sources to evaluate an instructor-generated claim about the significance of the 7 Years' War (French and Indian War). 8.47. Synthesize text and non-text evidence to persuasively express a perspective on the events leading to the American Revolution.
History 16. Historical Thinking	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.48. Compare and contrast the causes, demographics, and results of the American Revolution with those of later revolutions inspired by the American revolution
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.49. Develop research questions about the role of religion in the 13 colonies and its impact on nascent American identity (identidad Estadounidense); and hypothesize how gender roles were impacted by the role of religion in the 13 colonies. 8.50. Use primary source texts and artifacts as evidence to describe daily life in the 13 Colonies by featuring individuals with diverse identities and different perspectives. 8.51. Generate historically relevant questions and hypothesize sources needed to make an argument about diverse individuals' ability to participate in the war effort (for either side).

and relations with Indigenous Peoples"

ADD: "Explore the perspectives of those individuals who sought not to take sides in the conflict, (e.g. Quaker merchants and shipowners, among others)."

Theme 5: Constitution and Foundation of the Republic (1787 CE – 1815 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.52. Examine how challenges the government faced as a result of the Articles of Confederation resolved at the Constitutional Convention. 8.53. Make a claim to evaluate how individuals and groups addressed specific problems at various levels to form a new republic "to what extent" ", and identify problems that remained unresolved for the new republic."
Civics 3. Civic Dispositions and Democratic Principles	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.54. Identify parallels in language or intent (construct or content) between Enlightenment philosophies and the ideas expressed in the Declaration of Independence. 8.55. Cite specific examples of precedents established in the Early Republic that impact American lives today. "both positive and negative..."
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.56. Critically read the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to determine which narratives were excluded from the original document; and use text evidence from the Bill of Rights and supporting texts to support a student-developed argument by citing specific evidence to track whose rights were added over time "and to what extent."
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.57. Support a claim about the influence of diverse ideologies on politics, society, and culture in early U.S. history. " , beliefs and cultural understandings"
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.58. Analyze a variety of art media to create an argument about the development of American national identity.

Theme 6: Expansion and Displacement (1815 CE – 1850 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.59. Identify policies of this era that define the relationship between federal, state, and tribal governments through treaties, court decisions, and land acquisition statutes.
Geography 13. Human-Environmental Interactions and Sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.60. Describe a human-created environmental concern related to western expansion, including different contemporary perspectives and other historical context from this period.
History 14. Historical Change, Continuity, Context, and Reconciliation	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.61. Compare and contrast Indigenous Peoples' assimilation story with later immigrants' stories. [Please find another way to say this. Indigenous stories involve both assimilation, especially forced assimilation, and resistance. That resistance has its own set of stories that students need to explore.]
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.62. Analyze the motivations and impacts of western expansion and the settlement of the United States. 8.63. Use graphic organizers to illustrate the causes and effects of the Mexican American War and its consequences on residents living in the "new" U.S. Territories. 8.64. Use maps and other primary sources (such as the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo) to examine determination of geophysical and geopolitical boundaries between the U.S. and Mexico.
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.65. Evaluate the efficacy of formal US policies of expansion, their effects on Sovereign Tribal Nations' ability to self-govern, and Indigenous resistance efforts to preserve tribal sovereignty.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.66. Describe immigrant and emigrant groups according to gender composition and develop a claim regarding the impact that gender (dis)proportionality had on immigrant/emigrant community's culture.

ADD: Examine how different concepts of land tenure, nationality and government affected these relationships.

"and cultural survival stories"

"; include different beliefs and cultural understandings about relationship to land and nature."

[Please find another way to say this. Indigenous stories involve both assimilation, especially forced assimilation, and resistance. That resistance has its own set of stories that students need to explore.]

"and the Protocol of Queretaro"

"and cultural integrity."

"and gender roles"

Theme 7: Sectionalism (1830 CE – 1860 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Economics 6. Economic Decision-Making	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.67. Identify and explain the economic, social, and cultural differences between the North and the South. "of the United States in the first part of the 19th Century."
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.68. Use text evidence to support a claim about how conflicts over slavery led the North and South to war. ADD: How did differences in belief about the rights and humanity of African American slaves affect the conflict?"
History 18. Power Dynamics, Leadership, and Agency	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.69. Use primary and secondary sources to examine how enslaved people adapted within and resisted their captivity.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 21. Community Equity Building	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.70. Develop a claim to illustrate how an event of the Sectionalism and Reform Era helps modern students understand current issues and events.

Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 1. Civic and Political Institutions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.71. Generate research questions about the nature of civil wars in general, and the role of border states/ territories in the US Civil War specifically. ADD: "Explore the civic implications of the Fugitive Slave Act and the Dred Scott decision in the North."
Economics 8. Money and Markets	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.72. Summarize a significant economic warfare initiative of the Civil War through creative expression 8.73. Explain how Union Army strategies and other socio-economic changes at the end of the Civil War led to an economic depression in the Southeast United States.

Theme 8: The Civil War (1860 CE – 1865 CE) (Continued)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
History 15. Cause and Consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.74. Generate research questions, brainstorm sources, and gather evidence to evaluate a claim about the significance of the Battle of Glorieta Pass in the Western Campaign of the American Civil War (Guerra Civil Estadounidense). 8.75. Use examples to support an argument about the importance of science and technology during the Civil War period.
Ethnic, Cultural, and Identity Studies 20. Identity in History	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.76. Identify and correct misconceptions about the Emancipation Proclamation. 8.77. Use primary and secondary sources to make an argument about the impact of the Western Campaign on Indigenous peoples

Theme 9: Reconstruction (1865 CE – 1877 CE)
Anchor Standard The student demonstrates an understanding of:	Performance Standard: Therefore, the student is able to:
Civics 2. Processes, Rules, and Laws	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.78. Discuss the impact of significant legislation and judicial precedents in formally perpetuating systemic oppression during the Reconstruction Era. 8.79. Evaluate the impact of individuals and reform movements on the struggle for greater civil rights and liberties throughout early U.S. history.
History 17. Critical Consciousness and Perspectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> 8.80. Describe why different people may have different perspectives of the same historical event; multiple interpretations should be considered in order to avoid historical linearity and inevitability.
