*Albuquerque Sign Language Academy serves a population of 100% Students with Disabilities in high school and has had a policy of not officially graduating any students at the 4-year threshold, as it would render them ineligible for transition services. Since its inception, the school's transition program has graduated 100% of students who have enrolled, but since they do not graduate in 4, 5 or 6 years, the school's graduation rates for those metrics are officially 0%. The school is disputing both its Vistas score and its designation.
